THE CHRISTIAN OCTOPUS! ITS TENTACLES AND SUCKERS!!

THE MISSIONARY DEVIL-FISH!!!

Five Hundred Soul-Savers Supported at a Cost of $500,000 per Annum—A Horde of Renegades, Criminals and Hypocrites Let Loose.

For over fifteen centuries Christianity has directed its best efforts to the conversion of the Jew. It has been a persistent campaign of brute force, rapine, pillage, murder, sacrilege, artifice and deceit, a constant warfare against that inalienable right which man holds the most sacred,

THE LIBERTY OF CONSCIENCE.

No matter under what form Christianity has presented itself, it has been the implacable foe of the Jew, and has sought by every means at its command to win him from his allegiance to the faith of his fathers.

There is not a land where Christianity has firmly implanted itself, that has not been saturated with Jewish blood, blood which cries out in mockery against a religion which professes—but does not practise—peace and good will to all men.

The intelligent reader of history may perhaps attribute the brutality of the Crusades and the horrors of the Inquisition—when Christianity ruled the world—to the ignorance of the times, but what palliative apology there can be for Russian cruelty and persecution, we do not know; what excuse for Anti-Semitic outbreaks, we are at a loss to understand. And yet Russia prides herself upon the orthodoxy of her Christianity and but a few years ago posed as the protector of Christianity in the Balkans; and Germany also boasts of being a veritable bulwark of the Christian faith.

What Catholic Christianity essayed to accomplish by torture and terrorism, what Greek Christianity is now endeavoring to obtain by brute force and persecution, Protestant Christianity seeks to gain by artifice and deceit. Then it was the sword of the despoiler, the club of the ruffian, now it is the oily artifice of the ensnarer, the sickly smile of the hypocritical missionary. That Protestant Christians love the Jew no one can doubt, in view of the fact that they have spent millions in their efforts to make him believe that there are three Gods, while he foolishly insists in believing that there is but one God. That they regard his moral well-being, is evidenced by their desire to have him change the purity of his domestic life and his freedom from crime, to that higher purity and virtue of which practical Christianity affords so many shining examples. That they admire his self-respect and zealously guard their own reputation for common decency, is strikingly illustrated by their hiring a howling mob of ignorant hypocrites, branded jail-birds, forgers and thieves, to trade upon the necessities of the weak and to allure and entice little children from the faith in which they are being reared.

Few of our readers are aware of the vast machinery at work to gain these ends. Fifty powerful organizations with an annual outlay of over half a million dollars, employing between five and six hundred workers, with a horde of renegades, the majority of whom are criminals—is the army against which we have to contend.

The following is a list of Protestant Missionary Societies—as near as can be ascertained.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews (Church of England), was organized in 1809. It now has twenty-two ordained missionaries and 108 assistants (not including wives of missionaries) scattered through Europe and the Orient. Income, about $175,000.

The British Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Jews (interdenominational), was founded in 1842. It has about thirty missionaries and ninety voluntary helpers in Europe. Income, about $40,000.

The Mildmay Mission to the Jews, interdenominational, was founded in 1876. This society reports fifty-six paid and voluntary workers, mostly in England, but some on the Continent. Revenue, about $35,000.

Parochial Missions to Jews, Church of England, 1875. Has missions in London, Cairo and Bombay; ten workers. Income about $5,500.

East London Mission to the Jews, organized in 1885, Church of England. Income about $15,000; supports a home for Jewish children.

Jewish Mission of the Presbyterian Church of England, organized about 1870, has work in London and Morocco. Income about $6,000.

Barbican Mission to the Jews, organized in 1889. Employs five men and two lady assistants. Income about $5,000 a year; has stations also in Paris and in Germany.

The Church of Scotland Com. for Conversion of the Jews, 1841. It has five stations in the Orient with twenty-one workers. Income, $23,000; also twenty-three workers in the Ladies' Association. Income, $6,000.

Free Church of Scotland Committee for Conversion of the Jews, 1843. Has seven stations in Europe and the Orient and thirty-nine workers. Income 1891, $34,665.

Scottish Home Mission to the Jews, 1885. Edinburg, Scotland. Income about $15,000.

Presbyterian Church of Ireland Jewish Mission, 1841. Three stations in Germany and Damascus. Income 1889, $23,000.

GERMANY.

Edzard Stiftung (Edzard Fund), Hamburg, 1667; cares for Jewish proselytes.

Die Gesellschaft zur Beforderung des Chritenthums unter den Juden, 1822; has four workers. Income about $9,000.

Der Evangelisch-Lutherische Centralverein fur die Mission unter Israel, formed in 1871; has three stations; revenue in 1889 about $5,800.

Der Rheinisch-Westfalische Verein fur Israel, 1842; has four workers in Cologne and Frankfurt; income about $3,500.

The Students Instituta Judaica, 1880, Leipzig, and similar associations in Erlangen, Halle, Greifswald and Berlin. Income unknown.

SWITZERLAND.

Der Verein der Freunde Israel, supports a home and two missionaries, one in Basle and one in Prague; income, $3,600.

HOLLAND.

The Netherland Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, 1844; Amsterdam; revenue about $9,000. Cares for proselytes and distributes literature.

The Netherland Society for Israel, 1861, Amsterdam. Has two missionaries; revenue, $2,500.

The Christian Reformed Mission among the Jews, 1875, Alblasterdam; revenue about $800.

SCANDINAVIA.

The Central Committee of the Mission to the Jews, 1865. Revenue about $7000. Two stations at Leipzig and Kischenew.

The Society for Missions to Israel, 1876, Stockholm, Sweden. Revenue about $9,500; has four missionaries who itinerate through Sweden.

The Evangelical National Society established a Mission to the Jews in Hamburg in 1889. Income unknown.

The Swedish Mission Union, 1877. Income unknown.

FRANCE.

The French Society for the Evangelization of Israel, 1888, Paris.

The Paris Mission to the Jews, 1878, Paris.

RUSSIA.

An asylum for Jewish girls in St. Petersburg founded in 1864.

The Baltic Lutheran Church Mission to the Jews, 1870; one missionary at Riga. Revenue about $1,500.

Probst R. Faltn's Mission to the Jews in Kischenew begun prior to 1869; supports a home. Revenue about $4,500.

Joseph Rabinowitz's Mission to Israel in Kischenew begun in 1883.

There are several other small missions or individual missionaries in Great Britain and Germany, and collections for Jewish work are also taken in Australia and South Africa.

UNITED STATES.

The Church Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, Protestant Episcopal. Revenue $12,978.

The Hebrew Christian Mission, Rev. Jacob Freshman, 1882.

Evangelical Lutheran Mission to the Jews, 1883.

New York City Mission and Tract Society. Jewish work begun in 1889. Income about $10,000.

Hebrew Christian Mission, begun 1892, Presbyterian. Rev. H. Faust, 126 Forsythe Street, New York.

New York Church Extension and City Missionary Society, Methodist Episcopal, special department for mission to the Jews.

Chatham Square Mission, Baptist. Mariners' Temple, No. 1 Henry Street, New York. Special department for Jewish work begun in 1891. Income about $3,000 per year.

Christian Mission to the Jews of Brooklyn, begun 1892.

The Norwegian Lutheran Zion Society for Mission among the Jews, 1880.

Hebrew Messianic Association (undenominational), begun in 1888. Address, 18 Portland Street, Boston, Mass.

Mission to the Jews in Rochester, N. Y., 1892.

The Minneapolis and St. Paul Hebrew Mission Society (interdenominational), 1892. Has two missionaries; annual expense about $2,000.

The Chicago Hebrew Mission (interdenominational), 1887. One ordained missionary, three assistants, five physicians assist voluntarily in the Dispensary.

Prayer Circle for Israel, Toronto, Can. Supports industrial school and house to house visitation.

Thus the Christian Octopus spreads its loathsome tentacles and suckers wherever the Jew dwells, and drags its few unwary victims down to its own polluted mire.

We have no fault to find with the moral principles of pure Christianity, except that they are more preached about than practised, but we do protest in the name of common decency against the despicable means and the nefarious characters employed to attain their ends.

With the increase of crime, prostitution, vice and ignorance in the Christian cities of this Christian (?) nation, it seems to us, that all this vast machinery could be better devoted to the rescue of their own fellow believers in Christ from vice and degradation.

That would be pure, practical Christianity indeed. But the Christianity whose results we see in daily life, the Christianity which teaches that a Jew, who leads a moral upright life, and who loves his fellow-man, is eternally lost because he believes in one God only, while the murderer at the foot of the gallows is ensured eternal salvation by simply believing in Jesus, is too nauseating and abhorrent to contemplate, especially when promulgated by the vile, ignorant scalliwags, who pose as exemplars of its teachings.

Robbers preaching honesty and prostitutes preaching virtue are on the same plane as renegade Jews preaching Christianity.

A WORTHY CHARITY.

THE SANITARIUM FOR HEBREW CHILDREN.

A Boon to the Poor and Suffering—Encouragement and Financial Aid Should Be Rendered It.

Of all the demands in sweet charity's name, made upon a generous public, none is more worthy of receiving encouragement and substantial financial aid than the Sanitarium for Hebrew Children. The good work done by this institution has covered a period of sixteen years, and in that space of time many a suffering child has breathed new life, and many weary mothers have obtained a rest and an outing, which they could never obtain, if they were to defray the expense from their own scanty store.

Last year a large commodious building was erected as a permanent home for the Sanitarium at Rockaway Park, Long Island. Situated in a quiet spot, directly facing the ocean, it possesses advantages as a summer home that can not be excelled.

Children up to the age of fourteen years are kept at the Sanitarium for one or two weeks, as their individual cases necessitate. At times very sick children are taken, and while the Sanitarium is by no means a hospital, some very stubborn cases are discharged entirely cured, owing to the untiring care and interest given to the work by the Sanitarium's indefatigable and able physician, Dr. Frederic Bierhoff, who has earned the everlasting gratitude of many of our East Side co-religionists.

Since July 1st of this year three hundred and fifteen children have been treated. This being independent of the excursions, which are given each week. On these excursions women and children are given a day at the seashore, provided with a hot meal, and the opportunity of indulging in the luxury of a surf bath, an opportunity often embraced. The number of excursionists to date is over eleven thousand. Last Tuesday an extra excursion was given to the inmates of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, and the sight at Rockaway Park, when the children arrived, will be long remembered by those who witnessed it.

The steamboat "Cygnus" conveyed the children, their instructors and invited guests, from the pier at One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street to the Park. The splendid band of the Asylum enlivened the trip by its rendition of many popular airs. After they had partaken of the dinner provided for them by the matron, Mrs. Travers, the guests were favored with more music and an exhibition of marching by the boys. The excellent training of and the discipline maintained by all the children, both boys and girls, elicited a great amount of praise and favorable com-

IN THE THEATRES.

"Liberty Hall," R. C. Carton's four-act play, opened the Empire Theatre for its preliminary season Monday night. It won an immediate success, and was interpreted by a company which is by long odds the best that has yet trod the Empire's boards. "Liberty Hall" tells a simple tale in a simple manner. It tells the sort of story that goes straight to the heart. The dialogue of the play is uncommonly bright, and there is not a stagey speech in it from start to finish. The best acting of the evening was that of Miss Viola Allen as "Blanche Chelworth." Miss Agnes Miller as Amy, and Miss May Robson as Crafer were both very good. The male portion was well looked after by Messrs. Henry Miller, W. H. Crompton and Cyril Scott.

Proctor's Theatre this week as usual has an array of artists that is quite an imposing one. It includes Wilfred Young, the boy soprano; the Gorman brothers, Nelsonia, Carmelli and Lucile, May Towle, Delmore and Wilson, Jessie Lindsay, Satsuma, the Oriental juggler; Shepard and Whiting, Leurs and Elliott, Mile. Ottillie, Paul Slator, Mile. Morello, Sheridan and Forrest, the Dunbars, Lehman and Keating, Eddie Abbott and Foster and Evans.

Autumn approaches and the roof gardens are making final efforts to please. The effort at the Casino this week is a successful one. Equice Vance sings, Ando and Omne, the Japanese jugglers, do their little specialty; Frank Moran makes a few remarks in his accustomed breezy way, and Sig. Borrelli plays the piano with his hands and feet, and consequently outdoes Paderewski.

The Summer days are going, and so is the big spectacle of "King Solomon and the Destruction of Jerusalem," which is presented at Eldorado-on-the-Palisades. There have been large attendances lately and the spectacle will certainly not be withdrawn until the cold weather renders out-of-door entertainment impossible. The ballets are given with splendid effect, and the tableaux are as imposing as ever. Bolossy Kiralfy's expectations have been well sustained.

There was the cream of refined variety Monday night at Tony Pastor's. The programme was a very entertaining one, and the audience was large. The artists were Bessie Bonehill, who will end her engagement here Saturday night; Nellie L'Estrange, Ward and Vokes, Charles J. Ross and Mabel Fenton, Seeley and West, the musical comedy team; Charles M. McDonald, James F. Murray and Alice G. Alden, the entertaining Nawns, Edward and Louise Lorrett, and Ferry, "the frog man."

"The Danger Signal" was the play presented at the Columbus Theatre, Harlem, Monday evening. It was written by the late Henry C. DeMille, and produced some years ago at the Lyceum Theatre under the title of "The Main Line; or, Rawson's Y." It has been very radically altered since then, and it was seen Monday with modern melodramatic improvements in the shape of a rotary snow-plow and a full-sized steel locomotive. In the cast were Garland Faden, Ida Solfe, Paul Dresser and others.

The O'Brien Sisters, two very pretty girls, were added to the programme at the Eden-Musee Monday night, and did some very effective work. They are high kickers and skirt dancers, and much that they did was novel. Of course, they met with success. At this time dancing is all the rage, and the vaudeville house that tries to do without it will get left. The O'Brien Sisters will remain but one week.

The Grand Opera House opened for the season Monday night, thoroughly renovated and redecored. People smile nowadays at the oft-repeated tale of renovation, but there is no need to scoff at this statement in the present instance. The Grand Opera House has been veritably "done up as new." The opening attraction was "The Span of Life," a melodrama. The great scene, in which the heroine crossed a yawning chasm over the bodies of three acrobats, brought down the house, as usual.

Miss Grace Golden was added to the cast of "Panjandrum" at the Broadway Theatre Monday night, and she will undoubtedly win for herself golden (ahem!) opinions as she did in "The Fencing Master." This little artist has an admirably cultivated voice, and she sang the not very arduous music entrusted to her with much delicacy and good taste. "Panjandrum" has a new finale that goes very well, and Hopper is as anxious to please as he was during the first part of the "olla podrida's" existence.

The performance at the Imperial Music Hall has scarcely a week spot this week. The artists have been admirably selected, and the programme is executed with much vim. Those appearing are Cissy Lind, Marie Collins, the extremely musical Avolos, the humorous Taccis, Sherman and Morisey, Charles Compton, the mimic, Harry Le Clair, John W. Myers, Jules Keller, the Patterson brothers, A. O. Duncan, Kitty Clayton, Alice Delmore, Alice Evans and Rex and Forster.

The hourly vaudeville performances at Huber's Fourteenth Street Museum this week is furnished by the Palace Novelty Company, an organization containing many good people, among whom are Prof. Stanton, a hypnotist; the Alcoots, M. Forbes, the Fitzgibbons sisters, the comic Morrises, Will Dennis and his lively songs and dances, and Girard, the black-face comedian. In the curio halls are Prof. Peate's performing monkeys, one of the best drawing cards Huber has ever had.

This season's "Black Crook," which has now been playing for some time at the Academy of Music, New York, has thus far proved signally successful. In the grouping and dances the daily rehearsals have made a decided improvement, and the play is now running with admirable smoothness. The new quartet, which was engaged to sing in the charming little ballet, "After the Ball," makes a very pleasing addition to this exquisite picture, which is more effective than ever. Dagmar and De Cella, the Danish singers, render a number of popular airs in an excellent manner, and their warbling is also a marked feature of the entertainment. Astonishing rapidity characterizes their changes of costume, which are complete from hat to shoes, and are made in from twelve to eighteen seconds. Sig. Salvaggi, premier danseur, is repeating in this country the success he has achieved in Europe, where he has earned the reputation of being the finest European male dancer. Louise Montrose and Thomas O'Brien have made a decided hit in their character songs, dances, and duets, their rendering of "He Stole McCarty's Wife" and "Listen to the Story That I Tell" being extremely laughable. A great many changes will be made in each week's programme of songs, dances and duets, and new figures will from time to time be introduced in the March of the Amazons.

A MINNEAPOLIS MIRACLE.

A Cripple for Two Years, Pronounced Incurable by Physicians and Given up by His Friends to Die—How He Obtained Relief and Became a Well Man—His Daughter's Marvelous Improvement.

From the Minneapolis Journal.

"Precious is the panacea that cures when hope is gone and medical advice pronounces the death sentence—'incurable.' How terrible it is to think of leaving this sweet life before the allotted years of man's time here on earth are spent." Thus spoke J. B. White of 1201 Third street, N. E., last night to a Journal reporter. Mr. White has been much talked about of late, and the following conversation explains why:

"I am a native of Shediac, New Brunswick, and of French descent. I have been in Minneapolis for many years. I am now 60 years old. I fell from a building two years ago and broke my thigh, besides injuring myself internally. The doctors could do nothing for me but let the bones grow together as best they could. When I was able to walk on crutches I came near dying from the complication of troubles that had set in after the fall. For one year and a half I walked on crutches, striving in vain to find some relief from the misery I felt night and day. The worst part of my afflictions was that I could not eat anything. If I could have taken nourishment and kept it down I could have stood the pain better. I had four doctors, and kept taking all sorts of medicines. I had to stop all of them or I would have been a dead man. I have enough bottles left to start a drug store. I would be troubled so with headaches, and my hips would pain me so that I often thought I should go crazy. I was so emaciated that there was nothing to me but skin and bone. Last Summer I felt as if I was nearly dead. My kidneys then began to bother me. I got so I could not sleep only at intervals. Finally I gave up in despair. One day I was sitting out on the porch. It was a beautiful, sunny day. The singing of birds and the odor of flowers set me to thinking of my childhood days. From that my thoughts reverted to the little French weekly paper, Le Moniteur Acadien, that we got, and I thought I would like to read it and see how things were at my old home. I told my wife to give me the last number. She brought me the one that came that morning. The first thing I saw was a long article about the miraculous cure of a cripple. I read on and on, becoming more interested than ever. The patient described in the article said that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured him and they would cure others. The story aroused my interest and I induced my druggist to send for them. I did not expect relief right away, but soon they made the headache pass away. After taking them some days I could eat. People laughed at me when I began to take the pills, telling me I was taking so much candy. But the day I threw away the crutches they thought different. I am now well and hearty as a young man of 25."

At this juncture his married daughter, Mrs. N. White, came into the store. "There," said he, "is another case. She has tried them, too." The reporter thought it would be a good idea to speak of her case, also, since it was a woman's. Mrs. White married a man of the same name as her father, so this accounts for the same name.

"The doctors," she said, "told me I had uterine trouble. I was in a miserable condition. Nothing that I took could alleviate the pains I would feel in my limbs and abdomen. I often had fluttering of the heart, and frequent weak spells. I would eat, but it would do me no good. I could not sleep. I was in misery and despair. My father took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and his improvement was so rapid that I thought I would take them too. At first I felt worse, and then I began to me so rapidly that I was astonished. I have taken seven boxes and am now nearly well. I can do my own work and can sleep and eat well. In the mornings I feel refreshed after a night's rest."

August Grotefend, who keeps the Germania Drug Store, at 1011 Main street, N. E., corroborated what Mr. White had said above in regard to his condition, saying: "I have sold a great many since these cures. Some of the lumbermen going in the woods have taken half dozen box lots of these pills with them. They certainly have done a wonderful lot of good and should have the entire credit of the cures."

On inquiry The Journal reporter found that these pills are now on sale at the various wholesale drug houses of Minneapolis and St. Paul and are meeting with a good sale; but not as fast as they will sell as soon as their merit is fully known. He also found that they were manufactured by Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Brockville, Ont., and the pills are sold in boxes (never in bulk by the hundred) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect blood builder and nerve restorer, curing such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling therefrom, the after effects of la grippe, influenza, and severe colds, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system; in men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of any nature.

The household department is under the charge of Mrs. T. Travers, while Dr. Bierhoff has the able assistance of Miss Elsa Weinberg, late of the German Hospital, and Miss Alice M. Tomlinson, who are invaluable as aids in the sick room, always ministering to the wants of the little tots with care and devotion. Another feature about the Sanitarium deserving the highest praise is the garden, which is so carefully attended to by the janitor, Charles Phillips. It is conceded by all, that it is the finest garden on Rockaway Beach.

In view of the good work done, and the amount of care exercised to uphold the institution in a manner deserving of support, efforts tending to increase the funds for the continuance of this noble charity will not be misdirected.

A RISING MUSICIAN.

The development of the "New South" is one of the most wonderful spectacles of the past decade. Along industrial lines her progress, since the beginnings of recovery from the ravages of war, has been so remarkable as to challenge the admiration of the world. It has not been a resuscitation of a condition destroyed by the terrible conflict, but a positive acquirement of a substantial and lasting prosperity such as the States never before knew.

But not alone in material things is this advancement apparent. A new era has opened in literature and the arts, unrivaled by that of the halcyon days when the "Slave States" practically controlled the destinies of the nation in the halls of Congress. Among the evidences of this improved condition, none are more marked than the new ambitions taken on by devotees to music. The leisure of the best people of alleged musical taste in the old days was occupied in acquiring the superficial, namby-pamby knowledge which went for "musical accomplishments." But now a new condition exists. There are hundreds of years ago occupied a prominent position among the best artists and teachers of New York and Boston, and who is yet, in somewhat advanced years, one of the chief lights in the musical world of Ohio's beautiful capital city. Young Mayer was a precocious boy, and in his eleventh year made public appearances as a pianist which attracted unusual attention of musicians and critics. His studies continued through a number of years, and before he was 20 he became recognized as one of the musical lights of the city. His truly artistic qualities were recognized while he was a mere lad by some of the best known artists, who, while in Columbus, secured him as accompanist at their concerts and frequently requested him to travel with them on their tours through Ohio and surrounding States.

Meanwhile, he studied the organ, theory and composition, principally with the late Redner Mees, pupil of Weitzman and brother of Arthur Mees. He developed a very exceptional capacity for choir direction, and during a number of years was organist and choirmaster at the Jewish Synagogue in Columbus, for which church he composed many musical services. Some of these were much young men and women below Mason and Dixon's line who are making an earnest and conscientious endeavor to become worthy in the musical world—whose influence will surely be felt for great good in the future, and who are inaugurating a condition which cannot but be of the greatest benefit to the South of the next generation.

Among the musicians who are stimulating and contributing to this condition no one is more potent for good than Mr. I. M. Mayer, pianist, organist, director and teacher, of Atlanta, Ga. He has been a resident of the "Gate City" for only about four years, yet he has gathered around him a clientele of ambitious students, into whom he has infused much of his own spirit—enthusiastic for all that is good in music and unselfishly devoted to the highest and best in art. He is yet a young man, having reached only his 30th year, and he has a long period of usefulness before him.

Mr. Mayer was born in Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8, 1862, and is the son of Mr. Morris Mayer, now of Brooklyn. His artistic temperament evidenced itself early, and while yet a young boy he was placed under the instruction of competent masters, especially Herman Eckhardt, who sought after by visitors who heard them, and, although they were not published, they became widely known.

In 1888, Mr. Mayer, finding that his health, never robust, was failing under the rigors of the hard Winters of the North, removed to Atlanta, where his talent was at once recognized. He was appointed organist and choirmaster in the synagogue, and soon assumed the same position at St. Philip's, one of the largest and finest Episcopal churches in the South. In these positions he achieved success before unprecedented in Atlanta, making the music in each one of the chief features of the service. Holding both simultaneously he composed numbers of musical services, which have ever since been among the most popular used by succeeding choirs. He is now content to direct the choir in but one church, the Central Presbyterian, perhaps the largest and most prosperous congregation in Atlanta.

Meanwhile he had commenced to teach, and his superior methods and conscientious, painstaking work won for him a position which has remained unshaken. He is now one of the busiest musicians of the city, and has an established position which will doubtless secure for him lifelong prosperity. He is happily married, and the father of four bright children.

Mr. Mayer has written a number of compositions for piano which have been highly successful. Some of them he retains for his exclusive use in concerts, but others have been published and have a wide circulation. One of these, "A Mi Nino" (To My Baby), is heard in almost every musical house in the South. Mr. Mayer is in constant demand for concerts in Atlanta and elsewhere in the Southern States. His great charm is in the delicacy of his touch and the lovely singing quality of his tone.

These characteristics he imparts to his pupils in such a degree that they are always recognizable. His technical proficiency is very great, and his playing of bravura compositions never fails to arouse the utmost enthusiasm of his audiences. His conceptions are intelligent and scholarly, and he never strives for sensational effects. His means for pleasing are always legitimate and thoroughly artistic. That his efforts are appreciated is fully attested by the immense number of critical reviews of his work in the newspapers. His large scrap book is filled with most complimentary references, from which only four short ones are extracted, as follows:

Mr. Mayer is a musician of great ability, and there has been nothing published recently more exquisitely dainty than his lullaby ("A Mi Nino"), which represents a mother swinging her child in a hammock to slumberland.—Atlanta Constitution.

One of those musicians who are destined to exert a cogent influence upon Southern musical thought and advancement is Mr. Isaac M. Mayer of Atlanta. He is one of the best pianists and teachers Atlanta has ever had, and he is bound to win distinction as a composer.—Sunny South.

The "Capriccio Brillante," by Mendelssohn, as played by Mr. I. M. Mayer, was the gem of the programme. Mr. Mayer's conception, phrasing and tone coloring were artistic beyond conception. His technique is simply grand, while his delicacy of touch is wonderful. It is a revelation to hear such runs as played by him.—Atlanta Evening Journal.

Mr. Mayer is a many-sided musician. His compositions have received the highest praise from capable critics. As a pianist and organist he deserves a place among the best artists. His style is peculiarly elegant and brilliant, and his playing is a delight to those who enjoy the refined school of pianism.—Atlanta Constitution.

A JOLLY AFFAIR.

A reception was given last Sunday evening by Miss Hattie Loewus at her home, 58 East 79th street, in honor of Miss Sylvia Sattler of Philadelphia. Among those who participated in entertaining the guests were Miss Carrie Jackson in songs, accompanied by Miss Cohn; Mr. Edward R. Cohn in humorous selections; Mr. Mark Kaye, songs, accompanied by Miss Lewis; Misses Lillie Rosenberger and Jennie Greenhood in fancy dancing. Miss Martha Hammerschlag played several ballads on the piano. Counselor H. J. Goldsmith recited some Shakespearean selections. Ballads from "Robin Hood" were sung by Messrs. Al Dublon, Mark Kaye, Henry Jackson and Edward R. Cohn, and many others did similar honors.

At midnight an elegant repast was served, which all did full justice to.

Those present were Misses Carrie Levy, H. Loewus, L. Rosenberger, G. Greenhood, C. Jackson, M. Hammerschlag, R. Kouder, S. G. and D. Lewis, H. Moutner, Sylvia Sattler, D. Steiner, C. Cohn, H. and F. Dublon, F. Werner, J. Hafer, and Messrs. E. R. Cohn, Mark Kaye, J. Rodmann, A. Dublon, H. Jackson, J. Rosenberger, H. J. Goldsmith, A. Hammerschlag, J. Adler, M. Kouder, H. Hafer, H. and S. Moutner, A. Lewis and many others. The guests departed at an early hour of the morn in a very jolly mood.

Lorelie Social Society.

After an adjournment of a few months the Lorelie Social Society will again start their regular meetings for their fourth season, beginning next Sunday, Aug. 27. Much interest is being manifested by the members in this event, as election of officers is to be held and other important business discussed. There is a rumor current that preparations are to be made for a grand ball. The friends of the Lorelies are, therefore, looking forward to a good time, as the members were wont to give.

AN ACROSTIC.

Long may they remain together,
On each of them may fortune smile,
Round their standard gathering ever,
Ere many an hour to bequile,

The public of New York who are unable to attend the World's Fair in Chicago are to be given an opportunity to see the best exhibits, those which have taken the prizes, through the efforts of the Manhattan Industrial Exhibition Company, who propose to hold an exhibition in the Grand Central Palace, in January next.

The object of this exposition is to reproduce, as far as practicable, the prominent and most attractive exhibits at the World's Fair. The Grand Central Palace, with its 400,000 square feet of floor space, has been secured for the purpose. Here an opportunity is offered those firms in New York, who for one reason or another did not participate in the World's Fair, to make an exhibit and display their goods, to perhaps as great if not greater advantage than at Chicago.

As a strong effort is being made to interest the principal exhibitors at the World's Fair in the undertaking, it is to be hoped that our merchants will be alive to the possibilities of the situation and will not let others crowd them out on their own stamping ground.

It is proposed to fix the price of admission at the popular figure of 25 cents, which alone ought to be sufficient inducement to attract many thousands of people. Further information in regard to the exposition can be obtained by addressing the office, 122 West 23d street, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Mayer are at Lenz's Hotel, Hammel's Station.

Mr. and Mrs. Blau are at the Blythewood.

Miss Mildred Goldberg is at the Blythewood.

Miss Birdie and Jennie Goldberg are at Grand View Cottage, Pine Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaw are at Bath Beach.

Misses A. and S. Berlinger are at Pine Hill.

Edward Shaw is summering at Sheepshead Bay.

Miss Fannie Goldberg is stopping at Lenz's Hotel, Hammel's Station.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Birus are among the guests at Pine Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Birus are stopping at Long Branch.

Misses Evaline and Rose Shaw are at Corona, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Sabel are seen daily at Asbury Park.

Mrs. Chas Cahn and son, accompanied by her niece, Miss Bertha Cahn, are at the Johnson House, as are also Mrs. F. Schwabe and daughters.

The guests at the Belvedere in Tannersville, Catskill Mountains, have whiled away their time in pleasant pursuits, yet have ever remembered the unfortunate sick of our faith.

Mrs. Theresa Wolf of East 90th street, this city, has been chief among the charitably inclined, and has raised a large sum of money by contributions from the boarders for the benefit of the Hebrew Sanitarium.

Entertainments have been the order of the day, the performers being confined to the lady guests of the house, and many an evening has been rendered pleasant by the singing of Mrs. Mitchel Levy, Mrs. Sam Cohen and Mrs. Friedman.

The dancing a la Carmencita by Miss Dollie Kaufman attracted considerable attention and comment, and was repeatedly encored.

The recitations by Miss Lillie Elkann and Miss Elsie Elkann did much to increase the fund for the Sanitarium, and it is expected that before the close of the Summer season a very large sum will be realized for the benefit of the suffering and oppressed.

Assistant District-Attorney Unger, also a guest at the house, presided with credit to himself, at a professional entertainment given at the Belvedere on the 12th inst.

Sam Cohen feels proud of his record as a bowler. Accidentally he scored a hit.

Mrs. Lena Meyer of New York spends her time in close communion with her children, and is very fond of walking. We would advise her to climb the "Round Top" Mountains, noted for their beauty and surroundings. The higher you go, the faire beauties you behold.

TO THE LADIES.

As the holidays will shortly be here our lady readers are perhaps preparing to get their Fall millinery. For style and elegance we recommend them to the "Newport," 107 East 72d street, between Third and Lexington avenues, where all the latest designs in French millinery may be seen. The "Newport" has on hand a large variety of flowers, feathers, ribbons, laces, crepe, etc., and artistic work is guaranteed.

AN IMMENSE SUCCESS.

A grand entertainment and ball in aid of the Lebanon Hospital, was held at Lenz's Ocean Hotel, Rockaway, last Saturday evening. Though it was raining, it prevented none of the guests, friends and neighbors from attending this successful occasion. It was just as expected, a thorough financial and social success.

The programme was excellent, consisting of an address by Lewis Oppenheim; songs by Bonnie Thornton; piano solo, by Benjamin Loewenthal; tenor solo, by M. Shutter; mimic, Harry Eisenbach; besides many others. After this programme, the dancing commenced, lasting until early next morn. Noticeable on the pavilion were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hirsch, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Jaworower, Mr. A. Uhlfelder and wife, H. Rosenthal and lady, Miss Lewie, Mr. and Mrs. C. Kleinert and daughter, Miss Goldberg, Irvin Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. D. Delmonte, Dr. and Mrs. Fenn, Misses L. Hirsch, V. Newman, Miriam Heyman, V. Ettinger, D. Beerman, M. and D. Lese; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lenz, L. Gronau and wife, Louis Oppenheim and wife, H. J. Meyer, H. Oppenheim, B. Foss and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Heyman, Miss M. Schackman, H. M. Solomon, Louis Meyer, Miss Rose Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. B. Bennett.

The many friends of Miss Josie Bacharach will be pleased to hear that she has returned to the Maimonides Library after spending her vacation in the country.

Mignonette Pleasure Circle.

The Mignonette Pleasure Circle, a society composed exclusively of young ladies, held their first sociable Sunday evening, Aug. 20, at Odd Fellows' Hall. The hall was handsomely decorated with flags and flowers, and presented a neat appearance.

Among those whom we noticed were Mr. Isaiah Goldsmith, Mr. Max Goldbaum and Miss Kent, Miss Hirsch, Mr. H. Sobel, Mr. Samuel Wolff and lady, Mr. R. Rosenbaum and sister, M. Benjamin and lady, Mr. Henry Goldsmith, Miss Blee, Miss Batiste, Miss Basskopf and Miss Glans.

Miss Glans was the recipient of a handsome souvenir as being the most popular lady present.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

On Saturday, Aug. 19, Master Morris Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Klein (one of the trustees of the State Street Synagogue), celebrated his Bar-Mitzvah festival at the synagogue Beth Elohim, W. D. A few words of thanks to God, to his parents and teachers, and a fervent prayer in behalf of his parents, relatives, friends and the congregation at large, were delivered by him, after which he read his portion of the law in a proper, distinct and correct manner, for which his teacher, Mr. S. Solomon, deserves due credit. Rev. G. Taubenhaus addressed the Bar-Mitzvah, explaining what the word Shemang and "to hear and to listen" implies.

On Sabbath, Aug. 19, Master Louis Lichtenstein celebrated his Bar-Mitzvah festival in the Beth Hammidrash Hagdal of Brooklyn. The portion of the law, also the Haftorah, was read by him to the satisfaction of all present, thanks to the efforts of his teacher, Rev. Mr. Bernberg. The Bar-Mitzvah and his parents received the congratulations of all present. The next day the celebration was continued at the lad's residence, by a reception given to the relatives and friends who had assembled there in large numbers. The Bar-Mitzvah received many handsome, valuable and useful presents. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Grossman, Mr. and Mrs. L. Grossman, Mr. and Mrs. M. Stone, Miss Cille Marx, Mr. Aaron Blum, Miss Malle Marx, Counselor Marc Alter, Miss Gussie Davis, Mr. Michael Levison, Miss Ellie Davis, Mr. Ben Marx, Miss Lizzie Harkin, Mr. Ferd. Stern and sister, Mr Ike Marks and many others.

On Sunday afternoon, the 20th inst. an entertainment was given at Franklin Hall, 18th street and Third avenue, for the benefit of the Hebrew Free School of South Brooklyn. An excursion ticket to Chicago to visit the World's Fair was raffled off.

The third excursion of the Brooklyn children to the Sanitarium for Hebrew children at Rockaway took place on Wednesday, the 16th inst., and was enjoyed by about 300 mothers and children.

The engagement of Miss Frances Byk, daughter of Mr. Morris Byk of 501 Hancock street, to Mr. Henry Stein, was celebrated on Sunday, 20th inst., at the bride's residence. It was a grand affair and marked by a ceremony said to be the custom in Germany on these occasions, or at least an imitation thereof. Mr. Byk had engaged Herr Fahn, a gardener from the royal gardens of Berlin, to construct a bower in the garden at the rear of the residence, as is done in court circles in Germany. It was twelve feet high, and young maples and other trees were so dexterously interwoven that the light was entirely shut out. Flags were festooned from the boughs in handsome designs and colored lanterns hung from the branches. Birds sang all night among the greenery. A fountain was in the rear of the bower. In the conservatory over the bower the orchestra was placed, hidden from the view of the festive party. About one hundred guests were assembled in the bower, when at about 10 p. m. Rev. A. H. Geisman, minister of Temple Israel, went up and stood in front of the fountain facing the hero and heroine of the evening. Miss Sarah Stein and Miss Minnie Goodwin were maids to Miss Byk, and Abraham Stein and Joseph Byk were pages to Mr. Stein. The minister now blessed the young couple and their engagement, and as he did so a shield of bunting rose over their heads, and from an opening three white doves descended bearing a wreath. This was intended as a symbol of peace and happiness, love and joy. After this ceremony, a collation was spread in the bower and well enjoyed. In singing, recitations and dancing was the balance of the night spent, which was kept up to a late hour. Among the guests were: County Clerk John Cottier, Sheriff John Courtney, Justice and Mrs. Jacob Neu, Justice Robert Connelly, Capt. William Kitzer, Capt. Brennan, Mr. and Mrs. Eppig, Mr. and Mrs. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Dr. Willoughby Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Simon May, Mr. Charles H. Eldred, Mr. and Mrs. M. Stein, Miss Minnie Goodworth, Mr. Gustave Blumenau and Miss Clara Blumenau, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hamburger, Mr. C. Schellenberg and Mr. and Mrs. S. Goldman.

The wedding will take place in the early winter.

Huber and Gebhardt furnished a fine entertainment this week. Cyrene, who made a successful tour abroad and at the Chicago Fair, was warmly welcomed by a large audience. Aimee, who is known as the "human fly," performed in mid-air, and "Handsome" Dan Hart, Lena Lecomore, Van Gofel, the strong man, and others appeared to advantage. Minnie Schultz has returned from Saratoga, and occupied a box, but will start for Vermont with her husband. Miss Schultz will not appear at the Casino until the Fall. Next week Mlle. Aimee, Cyrene, the King sisters, Alele Stuart and others.

Russian Jews and Education.

The Jew has always been characterized by an ambitious interest in the improvement and education of his children. In Russia he has had the further incentive of being able by this means to secure for his sons a release from the veritable prison house of social and political proscription. Ever since Alexander II. gave encouragement to his Jewish subjects to attend the schools of the country they have eagerly taken advantage of the privilege.

Owing to a natural avidity for education, the proportion of Jewish children at the Russian schools, especially the higher schools, has always been larger than that of the general population, which fact one would naturally suppose would be put down to their credit. This is not the view, however, adopted by the Russian officials, who recently took steps to diminish the number of Jewish children educated at the gymnasias and at the universities, and by that means lessening the number of those who in the next generation would be entitled to settle outside the Pale.

Debarred by recent laws from the public schools, the Jews of Russia might reasonably ask to be allowed to establish schools of their own. Indeed, the surplus of the special tax put upon animals killed in accordance with Jewish custom is declared legally to be intended for that purpose. As a matter of fact, however, it is rarely so applied. On one occasion the Governor of Kishineff took one hundred thousand rubles from this surplus to build himself an elaborate official residence. But, apart from this, the Jews, in several instances, attempted to establish higher schools of their own and at their own expense, but were immediately met by a rescript forbidding them to consummate such projects. This is sufficient to indicate that the policy at the root of Russia's recent restrictions placed upon Jewish education is to limit the number of highly educated and professional Jews, who would have a right to freedom of movement. It was undoubtedly this same stupid policy that caused the Russian Government to refuse Baron Hirsch's munificent offer of $10,000,000, to be applied to the higher and technical education of the Russian Jews.

In addition to this, recent Russian regulations have decided that no Jew shall be an army doctor; the only college of veterinary surgery, that at Charkov, has been closed to them. Jews cannot be engineers; they are excluded from the civil service, and indeed all public offices. The profession of advocate, in which Jews have had great distinction and success, is now closed to them, except they obtain a permit of the Minister of Justice which recent experience has shown is seldom, if ever given. The Russian law, therefore, practically says: "You Jews may study for the law, but you cannot practice at the bar. You may study to be engineers, but you must not act in that capacity." These despotic laws and cruel restrictions not only operated against the Jews, but have made the name of Russia a byword among the civilized nations.

Another severe hardship which Russian Jews have suffered under is the stringent enforcement of the laws against the employment of Jews in the government service. This principle is now being made retrospective. Thus, in consequence of a circular issued by the Governor of Kovno to the effect that all Jewish writers and clerks in the government offices, municipal establishments and courts of justice were to be dismissed, a number of Jews in Novo-Alexandrovsk who had been in the public service for more than fifteen years, during which time they had enjoyed the esteem and confidence of their Christian fellow workers, were suddenly discharged. They and their families are now reported to be absolutely without a source of income and reduced almost to beggary. Nor are there any adequate means by which these outraged and persecuted sufferers can state their case and seek redress. They are not permitted to answer the accusations of their enemies. There are practically no representative bodies that can approach the government on any question affecting the interests or rights of the Jews. Thus their only hope of securing redress for their injuries, or any mitigation of their sufferings, is through the friendly intervention of the free press of enlightened and civilized nations.

These Russian Jews are not fiends in human shape. They are above the average of Russian subjects in all the elements and attributes of good citizenship. Thousands of them have sought shelter and safety on these shores of freedom. They remain with us. They certainly bring with them some of the bad habits that belong to Russians in general, but there is nothing that is essentially abominable and atrocious that has been deserved in their character of conduct. They have shown a capacity for improvement under freer and fairer conditions that is both gratifying and surprising, and the readiness with which their children adopt American ways of thinking and acting has demonstrated what good citizens they are capable of becoming if they are granted a free scope for the exercise and development of their abilities.

Under proper and necessary regulations and qualifications, we cannot do other than extend a cheerful welcome to these hapless victims of oppression and persecution to this glorious land of political and religious liberty.

The Disclosure.

An elderly man with a vivid nose leaned far over the second-story window sill and listened. It was midnight's holy calm. The cool zephyr fanned his brow and moved the pink fringe on the front of his night robe. To his expectant ears was borne the sound of voices. A youth in russet shoes was lingering at the threshold below and looking backward at a slender figure in the doorway. His lips moved. "Good night, Mabel." "Good night, Edwin." The elderly man held his breath with a violent effort. The latch of the front gate clicked and all was still. "The match!" The elderly man was groaning. "Is off, by gosh. They only said good night once. How long, oh, how!" It was like a wall of anguish. "Long will that fool of a girl stay single?" And the hush of the night seemed to lend sympathy to him in his woes.—Detroit Tribune.

הגידו בניכם והשמעו ויאמ נא: Declare Ye Among the Nations—Publish and Set Up a Standard.

Out in the highways, wherever we go, Seed we must gather and seed we must sow; Even the tiniest seed has a power, Be it a thistle, or be it a flower.

Out of each moment some good we obtain, Something to winnow and scatter again; All that we listen to, all that we read, All that we think of, is gathering seed.

Gathering seed, we must scatter as well; God will watch over the place where it fell. Only the gain of the harvest is ours; Shall we plant thistles, or shall we plant flowers? Josephine Pollard.

It is much harder to be a successful hypocrite, than it is to be a faithful Israelite.

It would be wiser and more Jewish, instead of sending floral pillows to funerals to forward the cost of the useless flowers to some hospital.

An ounce of cheerfulness is worth a pound of sadness to serve God with, and that is the reason why our Cantors should not recite the prayers in such a funeral, lugubrious tone, which incites melancholy depression instead of feeling of praise and thanksgiving.

Jewish ladies who, following the dictates of fashion, garb themselves in men's attire almost, should read the Sidrah of this week:

"A woman shall not have upon her the apparel of a man, and a man shall not put on a woman's garment, for an abomination unto the Lord, thy God, are all who do this." Deut. xxii, 5.

JUDGE STECKLER READS THE SIDRAH.

More free summonses for wages are issued by Julius Harburger, the popular clerk of the Fourth District Court, than in all the other courts combined. We regret to say, that the majority of the defendants are Israelites, and their withholding the wages of these poor working people is certainly a great outrage.

We suggest to Judge Steckler the advisability of "calling them up," and reading the Torah to them from this week's Sidrah:

"Thou shalt not withhold the wages of a hired man, of the poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren or of thy strangers, that are in the land within thy gates.

On the same day thou shalt give him his wages, that the sun may not go down upon it, for he is poor, and his soul longeth for it, so that he may not cry against thee unto the Lord, and it be sin in thee."

A sage who was very sorrowful was once comforted thus: "If thy sorrow relates to this world, may God decrease it and add sorrow to sorrow."—Ibid., fol. 10, col. 1.

RABBINICAL ETHICS.

אלו דברים שאדם אינל פרוחהו בעולם הזה והקרן קימת לעולם הבא ואלו הן כבוד אב ואם ושמירת הסודים והשכמת בית המדרש שהרית יערבות והכנסת אורחים ובקרן הולים והכנסת כלה והלויית הפת ועיון תפלה והבאת שלום בין אדם לחברו ותלמוד תורה כנגד כלם:

These are the things the interest of which man enjoys in this world, and the principal standing over for the world to come, viz.: The honor of father and mother, kindly deeds, timely attendance at the house of learning, mornings and evenings, receiving way-farers, visiting the sick, bestowing dowries on poor brides, paying respect to the dead, meditating prayer, promoting peace between man and man, and above all studying the Law. (Peah 1; 1. Sab. f. 127 a, Aboth de R. Nathan 40.)

VII.

PAYING RESPECT TO THE DEAD.

Paying respect to the dead, or more literally "accompanying the dead" to the last resting place, was made by the rabbis one of the prime duties of the Jew. It is a duty, the exercise of which is profitable in this life, and bearing benefits for the great future.

In his immortal poem on "Wisdom and Death" (הדעת והמית), the late "Hebrew Schiller" as he was called, A. B. Læbensohn, explains why our knowledge of death fails to effect our conduct in life. This knowledge, he says, is merely theoretical, while life, as long as it lasts, is practical and mandatory in its requirements. "Can air cut iron? Thus the knowledge of death, which is a mere conception, can not effect the reality of life and its demands."

Still, the more this conception, this knowledge, that we must die, is realized, the better does it shape life on earth. The man imbued with a religious sense, knowing that he must die, will endeavor to work for the salvation of his immortal soul while he lives, and thus promote righteousness and idealistic efforts. The humanitarian will try to do all the good he can to his fellow-man, and provide even for the good work to be continued after his death, as he knows that he can not take his substance with him when he quits this world. The scholar, the thinker, the scientist, the man who conceives of the beauty of life, will work the more ardently to promote the light that is within him while he lives, the more he realizes that he must die. For such men "death has no sting," but it is a spur to urge them in the promotion of God while life lasts.

And a man can never realize that he must die better than in the presence of death; he can never realize what life on earth is worth better than in the presence of a dead fellow-man. Accompanying the remains of the dead to their last resting place, he hears the tributes man pays to the life that is departed. If that life was of any lasting value, if it was virtuous, good and beneficial, he hears the virtues extolled, the goodness praised, the benefits appreciated and acknowledged. And he is encouraged to shape his own life accordingly. By the very apologies, which the surviving friends of the deceased make in his behalf, the thoughtful man can learn what wrong or foolishness is worth in the economy of life, eschew them in his own living. In this sense the ecclesiast said: "It is better to go to the house of mourning than to the house of feasting, etc., that the living may take to heart" what life is and how to conduct it in their own experience.

For this reason, too, our rabbis have extolled the "accompanying of the dead to the grave" as one of the prime duties the Israelite is to think of every day.

Get habituated to the sight of death, realize how short life on earth is and what it must end in, so that you may make the best use of your own life while it lasts, and by wise and righteous living raise it above the mound, prolong it beyond the limits of physical life on earth.

GOOD WORK.

The season for the Hebrew Sanitarium is drawing to a close, but there is yet time to send your donation. Owing to the stringency in financial affairs, contributions to this excellent charity have not flowed into its treasury as liberally as its needs require. Our readers should bear in mind, that the Hebrew Sanitarium relies solely upon the contributions it receives from the Jewish public for its support. It has no membership dues, no salaried officers, no allowance from the city, and gives no affairs in aid of its funds. In view of these facts and its great humanitarian work, freely and unostentatiously rendered, a liberal encouragement should be accorded it.

THE DUTY OF THE B. B.

However far the time may yet be for a direction of the compulsory Jewish exodus from countries of barbarism to Palestine and Syria, that time will come; if the signs of the times point rightly, many years will not elapse before a solution of the Jewish question will be attempted. The Order of B'nai B'rith is preparing the ground, setting the house in order in the Orient for the proper reception of the hordes of expatriated victims, and the value of their institutions will be properly appreciated then. It may be a time of great trial and tribulation, but there cannot be the slightest doubt, that Palestine, with the help of the Jews, will experience a new life of industrial and social prosperity, and the land made to bloom as it never did before.

The duty of the Order B'nai B'rith is to encourage their brethren in the East, to continue untiringly in the work so auspiciously inaugurated, to strengthen their own ranks in the American House, so that they can give efficient support to the noble pioneers, who have planted and are cultivating American progress and western civilization on the ancient soil upon which the foundation was laid for the civilization, which the world now enjoys, with such a noble mission, and carried out so intelligently and wisely, it should not be difficult to enlist the wisest and the best of our people in this great mission, and the year of the celebration of the Golden Jubilee, is above all others the year in which the ranks of the Order should be filled, because its labors of civilization entitle it to the support of every right-minded Israelite, in fact of every friend of humanity.—M. ELLINGER, in the Menorah.

Maurice Klinkowstein's invitation to the poor workingmen:

"Every respectable man, woman and child can get at No. 162 East Broadway, corner of Canal Street, first floor, a bowl of soup, kosher meat and bread, from 11 A. M. until 1 P. M."

was gladly accepted by hundreds, and had more real Judaism in it, than all the blatant speeches of so-called Jewish politicians, who pose as guardians and defenders of the poor, but are only conspicuous about election time.

THE MISSIONARIES.

Upon our first page we present a succinct account of the missions and missionaries, that are working to convert Jews to Christianity. The names of some of the "workers," their methods and merits are quite notorious through the efforts of Ish Yemini, who seems to labor under the impression, that if the missionary is exposed as a scamp, self-respecting Christians will not accord him the support he seeks. This is an erroneous notion. The Christians do not intend to support the man, their object is to promote his "work," i. e. the propagation of their belief among the Jews. As long as this work is believed to be beneficial, or necessary, according to the demands of their religion, they care not whether the "worker" is a jai-bird or a hypocrite, or even if he dupes and entraps them by his wiles and artifice. They pay their contributions and their conscience is easy; they do their duty, and—let Christ take of the rest. We do not begrudge them this pleasure as long as they enjoy it and pay their money for it.

Still, the account is of some interest to the Jewish community as a negative lesson, so to speak; from it we may learn how wrong is pursued as a "good cause," how credulous persons and respectable organizations lend their countenance and support to such work, apparently in good faith, and how unscrupulous scamps will always be found to draw personal profits from the credulity of the unsuspecting, and to promote the most foolish perversions in the name of religion, charity and what not.

One thing may be put down as an axiom:

"The Jew who ceases to believe in one God, will never be a believer in a multiple Deity."

If he professes to have changed the belief in one into a belief in three, he must be an idiot or a scoundrel. Now the Jewish missionaries are not idiots, for they exhibit great shrewdness by the manner in which they insinuate themselves into the favor and confidence of their Christian "fellow believers." A freshman, Warshawiak or Faist can not be characterized as an idiot; these are "smart," very smart fellows, whose stories we know. If persevering in the short-comings, for which they have forfeited their rights to fraternal recognition among the Jews, they can still find respectable Christians to trust them and to help them, they are anything but fools. We must assume then, that they are scamps and hypocrites.

If such is the case, is it not possible that they can, by their exceptional abilities and methods, find their dupes among the Jews? There are, unfortunately, among our poor brethren parents enough, who in distress may forget their parental duties and deliver their children to the missionary Moloch. There are also children enough, who know not enough of Judaism to guard themselves against the enticing cant of these soul catchers.

We would therefore warn our brethren to be on their guard against these men and their schemes. Yielding to them, a Jew not only puts a price on his conscience, but he helps scoundrels to take advantage of his honest, unsuspecting Christian neighbors.

And let every self-respecting Jew help his brother to avoid these men, and to keep his children aloof from their miserable hypocritical and conscience-destroying institutions.

THE JEWS UPHOLD.

"Bab," New York correspondent of the Chicago Times, devotes nearly two columns in a recent issue of that paper to a bold defence of the Jews against the absurd charges of thoughtless prejudice and heartless intolerance, and draws a strong contrast between this narrowness and the broad and generous magnanimity and benevolence of the Jew. She says:

"The Rothschilds, who created their great fortune by being honorable to the man who believed in them, never ask whether you are a Protestant or Jew if you are in need of money. And this family, all over the world, has built hospitals for the sick, nurseries for little children and retreats for old people, and the question of your coming or going is never made one of faith. That you are in need of kindness, of a shelter, that you are sick and poor, is enough. Some of the greatest doctors have been Jews. The editor of the best known medical journal in existence—the Lancet—Ernest Hart, is a Jew, and it is his wife who is bringing into this country and exhibiting at the World's Fair the Irish village, with a view of promoting the sale of Irish lace, and so helping the poverty-stricken peasants of Ireland.

Great diplomats have been Jews—Disraeli's name telling of the race from which he came, and of which he never ceased to be proud. It is said that Mme Adam is a Jewess, certainly Sarah Bernhardt is. As for the great musicians who have been Jews, you can count all over your fingers, come back, count again and even then you will not have got the names of all.

The Jews are an honest people; they live well, and invariably pay their debts. In some charitable work connected with a Catholic maternity I have met a number of Jews, and it has never been necessary to ask them for a penny. They have invariably said to me: "You have something to do with 'the Babies' Home, haven't you? Put this in for me." And "this," nine times out of ten, was a good round sum, for when the Jews give they give gladly and liberally. Among the French people, almost without exception, the cleverest writers and the cleverest painters are of Jewish birth, and though at first it may seem strange, few Gentiles have been able to paint the madonna and child as has the Jew. Do you know why? Because there are no people who have the same respect for women and who are so tender toward them. The mother is the queen, and to her and for her is given every possible consideration.

Once in a while I get very angry at my own people; and this is one of the times. Mr. Seligman gave his money to the Union soldiers to fight against the rebels; and I am one of the rebels; but when I think that a political club deliberately blackballed his son, simply because he was a Jew, I am ashamed I was not born somewhere else.

The educated Jew of to-day is three times as liberal as the so-called Christian, who seems to think that the way to exhibit his Christianity is to do as the Romans did and crucify a man.

The more recently arrived east side Hebrews, nearly all of whom are doctored at free dispensaries, suffer much from diseases of the teeth. The physicians explain it upon the theory that these immigrants are now eating, probably for the first time in their lives, bread made from bolted flour, and are deprived of the coarse food that kept their teeth in order when they lived in Europe. The sanitary laws of Moses still save them from many serious bodily ills.—Sun.

KLINKOWSTEIN'S GENEROSITY.

HE FEEDS THE POOR OUT OF HIS OWN POCKET.

There are in this, the richest city of the New World, no less than 100,000 people who have suddenly become too poor to buy their daily bread. Lack of employment has brought them face to face with poverty to the bitterest kind, and the unwonted spectacle of well-dressed men and women begging for a bite to eat is now a common one.

The most public instance of spontaneous response to this wide spread clamor for food was discovered at the junction of East Broadway and Division street, where Morris Klinkowstein keeps a saloon. One thousand people were fed there on Sunday, and two thousands Monday. Twice as many applied for assistance, but it had to be refused, as the supply had given out.

"These men were not hard drinkers," said Mr. Klinkowstein to a Standard reporter, "but industrious mechanics who used to buy two or perhaps three glasses of beer in a day when they had work. Lately they have had no work, and consequently they have had no money. Time and again I have noticed them standing around and looking wistfully at the lunch counter. Then they would ask for a mouthful in such a way that I knew they were actually suffering for food. This determined me to give the poor people of my district a big free lunch. So last Sunday I announced it. You know the result. So many had to go away hungry that I gave it again Monday. Tuesday I repeated it on a much larger scale, and will on every day until these hard times are over. Charitable people are coming to my aid, and I'll give every dollar I can spare to carry it out. There are no times to hoard money and let your neighbors starve for the want of it. I ask no names, and care nothing about the religious views of any hungry man, woman or child. Such as it is, our charity is free to all."

LONG LINE OF THE HUNGRY.

While Mr. Klinkowstein was talking the hungry horde was crowding up the narrow stairs to the second floor, where the food was being distributed. The reporter followed and beheld a strange spectacle.

Through a narrow doorway leading in from Division street men, women and children in a long line were forcing their way in. Outside was another and larger crowd waiting its turn, and being kept in check by a squad of policemen from the Madison street police station. A glance through the door showed that the little square in front of the saloon was packed as it is when a political meeting takes place there. The crowd was silent, impatient and expectant. Many had not tasted food for twenty-four hours, and every minute's delay was an added agony. No wonder it took all the strength the policemen possessed to keep them back. In squads of thirty or forty at a time they were allowed to enter the narrow doorway and pass up the rickety steps. They spoke but little and laughed and jested not at all. As they passed the reporter many of them turned their heads so that their faces would be concealed. It was clear that they were not professional mendicants or frequenters of places where free lunches are distributed. The men were almost without an exception well but plainly dressed. They had not been poor long enough for their clothes to become shabby. They wore no jewelry, even of the cheapest kind. That was in pawn long ago. Some of the women carried tin buckets and little baskets in their hands in the hope that they might be permitted to take home some of the food.

Joining the silent throng, the reporter ascended the steps to find himself in a small room at the end of the long hall. In this room stood Mrs. Sophia Klinkowstein, with her little daughter, Lillie. They had come from their home at 312 Pleasant avenue to aid the husband and father in his charitable purpose. On a table stood a gas stove, upon which was a tin boiler such as is used for boiling clothes for the wash. In it was a quantity of soup meat, some barley and about fifteen gallons of boiling water. A savory smell testified to the excellence of the mixture, which Mrs. Klinkowstein was ladling into plates with hands upon the fingers of which glistened diamonds of rare brilliancy. The long line filled through this room into a larger one fitted up as a lodge room. Long rows of benches afforded resting places for the hungry ones.

SOUP AND BREAD.

When they were seated, each was handed a plate of soup and a half loaf of the coarse brown bread commonly known as "pumpernickel." Silently but eagerly the recipients devoured the bread and gulped down the soup. It was far from being a square meal, and many would have liked to ask for more, but the supply was limited and the demand very great. Three other gas stoves beside the one presided over by Mrs. Klinkowstein were kept going and three other boilers were filled and emptied again and again, until at 1 o'clock the supply of meat gave out. At that time 150 gallons of soup had been distributed. Some had been taken away in the little tin buckets brought by the women and children, but most of it had been drunk on the premises. Five hundred loaves of bread had been eaten or carried away, and a thousand people had been, partially fed at least. There were still five hundred more waiting patiently for their turn. There was no more meat to make soup, but in order not to entirely disappoint the unfortunate ones outside, Mr. Klinkowstein sent out for a supply of salted herring and 200 additional loaves of bread.

At 3 o'clock the crowd was gone. Two thousand had been fed, 200 pounds of meat and 700 loaves of bread had been distributed and consumed.

Register Ferdinand Levy came around during the morning and promised to send his check for $50 to help the cause along. Other contributors were: Morris Levy, $25; Katz & Co., $25; Jacob Lissner, $25; Alex. Haft, $25; Joseph Solomon, $25, and A. S. Friedland, $10.

A committee was appointed to take charge of further relief measures, composed of Ferdinand Levy, chairman; Maurice Klinkowstein, 162 East Broadway; Alexander Haft, 102 East Broadway; Morris Levy, 47 Pike street; Joseph Solomon, 237 Mercer street; Joseph Jacobs, 114 East Broadway; Jacob Katz, 102 East Broadway; Jacob L. Lissner, 278 First avenue; Daniel Rathstein, 44 East Broadway.

FED BY FLEISCHMANN.

Another place at which a daily distribution of bread takes place is at Fleischmann's bakery, 10th street and Broadway. A half loaf each is given to all comers, and every morning at 3 o'clock a line of hungry men and women may be found that extends from 14th street down to the bakery. In this line are to be seen men whose appearance betokens prosperity of recent date, and the managers of the bakery say that the line is extending daily.

All the big hotels and restaurants have a system by which they distribute such cooked food as may be left over from the tables of the guests. The demand for this is said to be unprecedented in the history of the city, and hundreds of hungry mouths are filled in that way.

An Appeal.

A pitiful cry has reached us from Jerusalem. Our pious brethren who have resided there for many years have recently had their numbers increased by the thousands who have flocked to the Holy City by reason of the Russian persecutions, and great suffering, calling for prompt relief, now prevails among our co-religionists residing there.

We would earnestly appeal to all the charitable and kind-hearted who can sympathize with those in distress to send their contributions to the undersigned officers of the North American Relief Society, who will gladly forward them to the Holy Land.

The Society has been instituted for over fifty years, with the object of assisting the poor and needy Jews of the Holy Land and ameliorating their condition, its funds having formerly been disbursed by the late Sir Moses Montefiore, and since his death through the agency of the Rev. Dr. Adler, Chief Rabbi of Great Britain.

NEWS FROM OTHER CITIES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 18, 1893.—Mr. Alfred A. Plohn the popular Secretary of the Calumet Club, left Thursday for a 10 days' visit to the World's Fair.

The engagement of Miss Lydia Cohen to Mr. Henry Bierman is announced. Both are popular members of our Jewish Society, and their many friends, who are legion, bespeak for them a happy and prosperous journey through life. The marriage will occur in October, after which the happy pair will go to house-keeping at 106 East Pentucky street.

Miss Daisy Helburn has returned from a pleasant three weeks' stay with Miss Cora Marx of Bowling Green, Ky.

The following members of the Fedellas have been "doing the Fair" lately: Misses Julia Plohn, Hattie Marx, Lillie and Carrie Rosenheim—and Carrie Bakrow. The Misses Rosenheim also visited friends and relatives in Moline, Ill., while Miss Bakrow did likewise in Milwaukee.

The marriage of Miss Ida Levi to Mr. Mose Grabfelder will be solemnized Wednesday, Sept. 26, at Progress Club Hall, Rabbi Moses officiating. Both have a large circle of acquaintances, and the wedding promises to be one of the most recherche affairs of the season. Mr. Grabfelder is connected with the well-known whisky house of S. Grabfelder & Co., while his bride is popular in the circles in which she moved. The best man will be Mr. Jake Levi, a brother of the bride, and the ushers Messrs. Mannie Grabfelder, Julius Leszinsky, Sam Frank, Sloppy Bronner and Henry Bakrow.

Those astute and enterprising managers, Messrs. C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger, who have a five years' lease on that play house, Macauley's Theatre, will have as their opening attraction on Sept. 4 Mason and Manola, who will present their new play "Friend Fritz" for a week's run.

During the Summer the theatre has been entirely remodeled, so much so that it will be hardly recognizable to its old patrons. The finest attractions of the country have already been booked, and it goes without saying that they will have a successful and profitable season. Mr. Percy Weadon, who has been with Messrs. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger for a good many years, has been made manager of the house, which is a sure guarantee that all matters will be looked after in a business-like manner. Mr. Weadon has already made himself well liked with all who have come in contact with him.

The Auditorium will open its season Oct. 23, with "The Girl I Left Behind Me." Mr. Daniel Quill is the proprietor of this popular resort, and Mr. Jas. B. Camp is business manager. They have also booked a large number of only the best attractions.

Messrs. Bourlier Bros., lessees and managers of the Masonic Temple Theatre, have promised their numerous friends the best line of attractions ever offered them heretofore. Their season opens Sept. 6, with Al Fields Minstrels. Mr. William H. Moffert will continue as treasurer.

Harris' Theatre will open soon, while the Bijou opened last Saturday with Phil Peters in "The Old Soldier" to a good week's business "CAP."

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 21.—There appeared on the streets of the city aforesaid, an individual with decided Hebraic features, dressed in a suit of black garb, consisting of an alpaca coat of unusual dimensions, buttoned up to the neck; a la clerical style; originally black pantaloons, but now shining with lustre and gray from venerable age. Whether the toga was worn buttoned from bottom to top to cover "a multitude of sins," notwithstanding the inclement temperature in Charleston during the dog days, your correspondent is not able to say. His title: Its architecture was something on the Mexican mode, and served to shade his sweltering brow in place of an umbrella, like a good and faithful proxy. His gait and carriage, owing to an inclination to obesity, prevented his sacerdotal personality from commanding that peculiar and unknown men characteristic to the theologian. With this meek little introduction, I have the pleasure of announcing to the readers of your Journal no less a person than Rabbi John Sergius Ben Israel, a Christian Israelite, from the Malabar coast of India. He is an Israelite and claims to be a direct descendant of the Christian religion of the Church of St. Thomas, and not a converted Jew. His father, he says, was a bishop advocating the same cause that he advocates. He peremptorily claims to be a true Israelite and prosbyter of a Christian Church. He stated this to the editor of a daily paper here to refute the slander of an article published in the American Israelite, styling him an "Oriental scamp," and will prove to all skeptics that he is what he claims to be, which he means, I suppose, according to the introduction of the pastor of Bethel Church, "A true man of God," and not an impostor and apostate.

Zach Brown, looking a little emaciated, has returned home after a gorgeous time North.

Lewis Israel has returned home much improved in avoirdupois.

In Aldine circles there is nothing startling, except I hear of a new bill shortly to be presented before that honorable body to establish provision for an athletic apartment in their rooms. As the movement seems to meet with general favor, I suppose the bill will be carried.

The Hazel Street Synagogue Sunday School building is being repaired and the interior refitted.

Mr. Goldstein, the popular Soapine man, is in the city.

Joe Casper is a dad and the kid is doing splendid. Massel Top Joe and Cous. Mary more.

Mr. Isaac Marks has returned home after a visit to many fashionable spas.

It was rumored that one of our young ladies was engaged to a young man in New York where she is visiting, but the report is denied.

TROY, N. Y.

A large assemblage of friends gathered at the residence of Miss Jennie Hyams last Monday evening to celebrate that young lady's seventeenth birthday. Music, dancing and an elaborate supper were enjoyed. Miss Hyams was the recipient of a large number of valuable presents, and a feature of the evening was the baritone solo of Mr. Joseph Amendment Number One.

State of New York.

Office of the Secretary of State, Albany, August 1, 1893.

Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article thirteen of the Constitution of the State of New York and section seven of chapter six hundred and eighty of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-two, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators in this State, to be held on the seventh day of November, eighteen hundred and ninety-three.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section twelve of article six of the Constitution, providing for the election of Circuit Judges in the First Judicial District.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur). That section twelve of article six of the Constitution be amended so as to read as follows: Sec. 12. There shall be in the first judicial district twelve circuit judges, who shall be the six judges of the superior court in the city of New York and the six judges of the court of common pleas of the City and County of New York, to be chosen at the adoption of this amendment to the Constitution, who shall hold office for the period for which they were respectively elected, and their successors who shall be elected as such circuit judges by the electors of the city and county of New York, and who shall receive the same salary now paid to said judges of the superior court and the court of common pleas. The said circuit judges may hold circuit courts in the city and county of New York. The general term of the first judicial department shall have power by an order entered on its minutes to designate from time to time one or more of the said circuit judges to hold special terms of the supreme court and courts of oyer and terminer in the first judicial district, for such terms of the said courts as the public interest may require. During the continuance of a term for which any circuit judge is so designated he shall have all the power, authority and jurisdiction of a justice of the supreme court in the first judicial district in or out of court. All actions or special proceedings pending in the said superior court and court of common pleas shall be transferred to the supreme court, and all powers and jurisdiction now vested in the said superior court and court of common pleas shall be vested in the supreme court. The superior court of Buffalo and the city court of Brooklyn are continued, with the powers and jurisdiction they now severally have and such further civil and criminal jurisdiction as may be conferred by law. The superior court of Buffalo shall be composed of the judges now in office and their successors; and the city court of Brooklyn of such number of judges, not exceeding three, as may be provided by law. The judges of said courts in office at the adoption of this article are continued until the expiration of their terms. A chief judge shall be appointed by the judges of each of said courts, from their own number, who shall act as such during his official term. Vacancies in the office of the judges named in this section, occurring otherwise than by expiration of term, shall be filled in the same manner as vacancies in the supreme court. The Legislature may provide for detaching judges of the city court of Brooklyn to hold circuits and special terms of the supreme court in Kings county as the public interest may require. This amendment shall go into effect on the first day of October next succeeding its adoption by the people.

State of New York. In Senate, April 14, 1892. The foregoing resolution was concurred in by a majority of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof.

By order of the Senate, CHARLES T. DUNNING, Clerk. State of New York. In Assembly, March 21, 1892. The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof.

By order of the Assembly, C. R. DE FREEST, Clerk. State of New York. Office of the Secretary of State, ss: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article six of the Constitution with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this first day of August, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

FRANK RICE, Secretary of State.

The foregoing concurrent resolution is published once a week for three months next preceding the next general election in conformity to the aforesaid provisions, in two public newspapers in each county in this State representing respectively the two political parties polling the highest number of votes at the last general election, and in one additional newspaper in each county for every one hundred thousand people in such county as shown by the last preceding State enumeration.

FRANK RICE, Secretary of State.

Amendment Number Two. State of New York. Office of the Secretary of State, Albany, August 1, 1893.

Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article thirteen of the Constitution of the State of New York and section seven of chapter six hundred and eighty of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-two, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators in this State, to be held on the seventh day of November, eighteen hundred and ninety-three.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article six of the Constitution, relating to the election of additional justices of the supreme court.

The people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows: Resolved (if the Assembly concur). That the sixth article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: Sec. 30. The Legislature, at the next session thereof after the adoption of this amendment, shall provide for the election at the general election next after the adoption of this amendment, by the electors of the first judicial district, of not more than two justices of the supreme court in addition to the justices of that court now in office in said judicial district; by the electors of the second judicial district, of not more than two justices of the supreme court in addition to the justices of that court now in office in said judicial district. The justices so elected in the first and second judicial districts respectively shall be invested with their offices on the first Monday of January next after their election.

State of New York. In Senate, January 30, 1893. The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof.

that the following proposed amendment to article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators in this State, to be held on the seventh day of November, eighteen hundred and ninety-three.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article six of the Constitution of this State in relation to county judges and court of sessions in the county of Kings.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur). That article six of the constitution of this State be amended by adding thereto the following section: Sec. 32. There shall be in the county of Kings two county judges, each of whose term of office shall be six years. The county judge in office at the adoption of this amendment shall hold office until the expiration of the term for which he was elected. The additional county judge shall be elected at the general election held next after the adoption of this amendment, and his term of office shall begin on the first day of January thereafter. When the official term of any county judge of said county will expire by the expiration of his term, or the disability of age, the successor of such judge shall be chosen at the preceding general election. Vacancies otherwise occurring in said offices shall be filled in the same manner as vacancies in the supreme court. The salary of said county judge shall be as now established by law for county judge in said county, and his powers and jurisdiction shall be coordinate and co-equal. One or more parts of the county court may be held in said county. The court of sessions in the county of Kings is continued with the powers and jurisdiction it now possesses, and with such additional powers and jurisdiction as may be conferred by the Legislature. It must be held by a county judge of the county and may hold one or more parts.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur). That the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators, and that in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York. In Senate, February 28, 1893. The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof.

By order of the Senate, CHARLES T. DUNNING, Clerk. State of New York. In Assembly, March 22, 1893. The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof.

By order of the Assembly, CHARLES R. DE FREEST, Clerk. State of New York. Office of the Secretary of State, ss: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article six of the Constitution with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this first day of August, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

FRANK RICE, Secretary of State.

The foregoing concurrent resolution is published once a week for three months next preceding the next general election in conformity to the aforesaid provisions, in two public newspapers in each county in this State representing respectively the two political parties polling the highest number of votes at the last general election, and in one additional newspaper in each county for every one hundred thousand people in such county as shown by the last preceding State enumeration.

Amendment Number Four. State of New York. Office of the Secretary of State, Albany, August 1, 1893.

Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article thirteen of the Constitution of the State of New York and section seven of chapter six hundred and eighty of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-two, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators in this State, to be held on the seventh day of November, eighteen hundred and ninety-three.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article six of the Constitution, relating to the election of additional justices of the supreme court.

The people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows: Resolved (if the Senate concur). That the sixth article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: Sec. 30. The Legislature, at the next session thereof after the adoption of this amendment, shall provide for the election at the general election next after the adoption of this amendment, by the electors of the first judicial district, of not more than two justices of the supreme court in addition to the justices of that court now in office in said judicial district; by the electors of the second judicial district, of not more than two justices of the supreme court in addition to the justices of that court now in office in said judicial district. The justices so elected in the first and second judicial districts respectively shall be invested with their offices on the first Monday of January next after their election.

State of New York. In Senate, January 30, 1893. The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof.

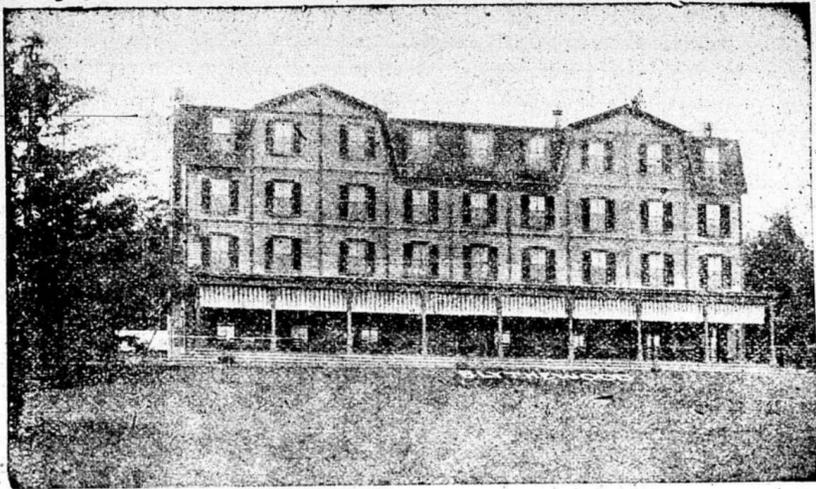

By order of the Senate, CHARLES T. DUNNING, Clerk. State of New York. In Assembly, February 28, 1893. The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof.

By order of the Assembly, C. R. DE FREEST, Clerk. State of New York. Office of the Secretary of State, ss: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article six of the Constitution with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this first day of August, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

FRANK RICE, Secretary of State.

The foregoing concurrent resolution is published once a week for three months next preceding the next general election in conformity to the aforesaid provisions, in two public newspapers in each county in this State representing respectively the two political parties polling the highest number of votes at the last general election, and in one additional newspaper in each county for every one hundred thousand people in such county as shown by the last preceding State enumeration.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD.

For Love's Sake.

Aye love me, sweet, with all thy heart, Thy mind, thy soul, and all thou art And hop'st to be,—love me with love That naught beneath the heavens may move; Yet say not wherefore; say not why, Thou lovest,—since in these do lie The seeds of death to Love, but say, Thou lovest, and must love away! For should'st thou love some witching grace Of word or manner, form or face,— Should thy heart's worship thus be bought By any gift that Time hath wrought, So art thou false to Love's pure creed, And like to fail in sorest need; But love for Love's dear sake, I pray, Then shalt thou love me, sweet, away! Zibella Cooke, in September Lippincott's.

The three hundredth anniversary of the birth of Izaak Walton, author of "The Complete Angler," is noticed in Scribner's Magazine for September by a beautifully illustrated article recalling his life and the rural scenes about which he wrote in his book. Alfred Parsons has made a series of sketches from nature to illustrate this article.

A large part of the contents of the Popular Science Monthly for September is devoted to important topics of the time. The number opens with a paper showing "Why Silver Ceases to Be Money," by Prof. F. W. Taussig, of Harvard University; and pointing out the future prospects of the white metal. Other articles are "The Pilgrim Path of Cholera," by Dr. Ernest Hart; "Anthropology," by Prof. Frederick Starr; "In Reformatory Prisons and Lombroso's Theories," by Miss Helen Zimimern; "Recent Science," by Prince Kropotkin, and other articles well worth reading.

John Bach McMaster, the eminent historian, is preparing for the September Forum a financial and historical review, entitled "A Century's Struggle for Silver." In this review, Mr. McMaster will depict vividly the widespread embarrassment that prevailed among merchants and others in the United States a century ago for want of a small exchangeable coinage, and will insist on the vital importance of an abundant and convenient silver currency medium in everyday mercantile transactions.

"The Brontë Family," by Dr. William Wright, will be published by D. Appleton & Co., with illustrations. This remarkable book contributes absolutely fresh information to the history of the Brontë family, and it presents certain romances of family history almost as strange and thrilling as anything in the novels of the gifted sisters. The complete book will prove a work of absorbing interest, and one which will be indispensable for those who wish to understand the influences which directed the development of the Brontë sisters.

THE MERMAID. The surface of Lake Superior is 602 feet above the ocean's level. The maelstrom is not a whirlpool which sucks ships down into the depths of the ocean. It is an eddy, which in fair weather can be crossed in safety by any vessel. Soupcreek in West Virginia passes a hamlet called Vivian, and about a mile below returns, runs around a tract of land about a half mile wide, and then passes under itself. This freak is caused by the lay of the land, which sinks spirally. The narrowest part of the strait of Florida, through which the gulf stream flows at the rate of five knots an hour, is 50 miles wide and has a mean depth of 350 fathoms. If this were stopped up, the climate of this country in winter would be totally changed.

THE TIPPLER.

In China wine is not considered fit to drink unless it is hot. The word punch is from the Hindoostani five, as aqua vite, sugar, arrack, rosewater and citron were its ingredients. The prohibition town of Portland, Me., uses $75,000 worth of liquor every year for "medicinal and mechanical purposes." The celebrated Johannisberger wine all comes from one comparatively small vineyard, which is guarded with jealous care. Governor Tillman of South Carolina opens his state saloons at 7 a. m. and closes them at 6 p. m. He expects to make $500,000 a year for the state in the saloon business.

THE EXHIBITOR.

A month could be profitably spent in the fine art section of the fair. Thirty thousand tons of "stuff" material were used in the walls of the World's fair buildings. General Lew Wallace says of the World's fair, "Never in the history of the world has there been anything like it, in my judgment, and I doubt if ever again, for a hundred years at least, if ever there be." One of the curious articles forming part of the colonial exhibit at the fair is a carved powder horn etched with the map of New York and the English coat of arms. It was loaned by Mrs. Heinicke of Bay Ridge.

Dobbins' Electric Soap is cheaper for you to use, if you follow directions, than any other Soap would be, if given to you; for by its use clothes are saved. Clothes cost more than soap. This soap cost in 1869 twenty cents a bar. Now it costs nine. It contains precisely the same ingredients, and no others, now as then, and costs less than half. Buy it of your grocer, use it and preserve your clothes. If he hasn't it, he knows that he can buy it of his wholesale grocer. The genuine always has our name on the wrapper. Look out for imitations. There are many of them.

PRESERVATION of clothes by the use of Dobbins' Electric Soap, is an established fact of a generation. It is not an experiment or a wild assertion, but absolutely true. Think carefully whether you prefer to save a cent or two on soap, or dollars on clothes. You can't do both. Buy Dobbins' Electric and look on every wrapper for the name of DOBBINS SOAP M'FG CO., Successors to L. L. Craig & Co., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, by the grant of Governor and dependent, to August Limbert and Frederick Gebhard send greeting:
You, and each of you, are hereby cited and required, personally to be and appear before our Surrogate of the City and County of New York, at the Surrogate's Court of said city and county, held at the County Court House, in the City of New York, on the 26th day of September, 1893, at half past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the final judicial settlement of the accounts of William H. Gebhard and August Limbert as executors of the last will and testament of Frederick C. Gebhard for the remaining interest of Frederick C. Gebhard in said estate, and show cause, if any you have, why William H. Gebhard and August Limbert should not be forever discharged as executors of the last will and testament of the said Frederick Gebhard, deceased; and why the letters testamentary under the said last will and testament of Frederick C. Gebhard, deceased, issued by the Surrogate of the County of New York on the 19th day of September, 1885, to the said William H. Gebhard, should not be revoked as to the said William H. Gebhard, and such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.
In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the City and County of New York to be hereunto affixed.
Hon. Rastus S. Ransom, Surrogate of said city and county, at the City of New York, the 28th day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.
JAMES F. McLAUGHLIN,
Clerk of the Surrogate's Court.

THE CRITIC.

D. A. van der Meer once painted a landscape on the side of a grain of wheat.
Noah Brooks, for nine years editor of the Newark (N. J.) Advertiser, has resigned his position and will devote himself henceforth to literary work.
Mrs. W. K. Clifford, the English writer, was asked to put her autograph in one of her works to be sold at a bazaar. She wrote above her name, "This is a bad little book and was written by me."
John C. Ropes of Boston, the magazine writer, is the owner of what is probably the greatest collection of Napoleonic pictures and relics in America. He is considered an authority on the subject.
St. Seymour Thomas, whose painting, "An Innocent Victim," is on exhibition at the World's fair, is a Texan, formerly of San Antonio, but a resident of Paris for many years. The picture is valued at $10,000.
Of earlier American literarians Halleck was a soldier, Cooper a country gentleman, Paulding a naval agent in New York and afterward secretary of the navy; Irving studied law, but paid court to the muses by preference.

Pierre Loti, the French novelist, having finished his term of service as lieutenant on a gunboat, has decided to write a novel of the Holy Land and will soon form a caravan to start from Cairo over the route taken by the holy family in their flight to Egypt.
The real name of Caran d'Ache, the most popular of European caricaturists, is Emanuel Poiré. He is of Russian descent, and his nom de plume is the Russian word for pencil. He looks like a soldier, but has never smelled powder and is the most peaceable of men.

THE CROWN PRINCE.

Queen Victoria brews her own tea and has a decided fondness for orange pekoe.
Gopal Rao, maharajah guicowar of Baroda, has an income of $7,500,000 a year, out of which he runs his government.

Prince Waldemar of Prussia, the only son of Emperor William's sailor brother, Prince Henry, is deaf and dumb, a fact of which scarcely any one outside of court circles is aware.

Marie Henriette, the handsome and soft voiced-queen of the Belgians, is especially fond of driving and does it particularly well. She also rides well, talks well and is an uncommonly good musician.

King Carlos of Portugal leaped from his carriage recently to interfere with a fight and prevent a probable murder. His majesty overpowered the stronger party and turned him over to the police.

The sultan of Turkey always eats and drinks alone, although he generally has a large retinue in attendance. He uses neither table plates, knife nor fork, but only a spoon and his fingers, with which he fishes out his food from a series of little saucepans.

The shah of Persia has 5 sons and 13 daughters. His three married sons have 21 children. The Persian official year book mentions in the royal family three brothers and two sisters of the shah, while the uncles, greatuncles and the cousins number 140.

Public speaking is the Duke of Teck's greatest trouble in life. It is an extremely modest man and nervous to a degree. He is, however, very gentlemanly, and no one can get better through a public function than he can, provided there is no formal speaking for him to do.
