"After."

After the shower, the tranquil sun;
Silver stars when the day is done.
After the snow, the emerald leaves;
After the harvest, golden sheaves.
After the clouds, the violet sky;
Quiet woods, when the wind goes by.
After the tempest, the lull of waves;
After the battle, peaceful graves.
After the knell, the wedding bells,
Joyful greetings from sad farewells.
After the bud, the radiant rose;
After our weeping, sweet repose.
After the burden, the blissful meed;
After the furrow, the waking seed.
After the flight, the downy nest;
Over the shadowy river—rest.

SOME EAST SIDE RABBIS.

The Rabbis of the East Side of New York have their grievances. As a lot, they are old, reverend men, with long gray beards, long black coats and little black caps on their heads. They are mainly very poor, living in the barest of tenement houses and pursue a calling which no longer involves much honor or standing. In the old country, in Russia—for most of the poor ones are Russians—the Rabbi is a great person. He is made Rabbi by the State and is Rabbi all his life, and the only Rabbi in the town, for all the Jews in every city form one congregation, of which there is but one Rabbi and one Cantor. He is a man always full of learning and piety, and is respected and supported comfortably by the congregation, a tax being laid on meat, salt, and other foodstuffs for his special benefit.

But in New York it is very different. Here there are hundreds of congregations, one in almost every street, for the Jews come from many different cities and towns in the old country, and the New York representatives of every little place in Russia must have their congregation here. Consequently, the congregations are for the most part small, poor and unimportant. Few can pay the Rabbi more than $3 or $4 a week, and often instead of having a regular salary, he is reduced to occasional fees for his services at weddings, births and holy festivals generally. Some very poor congregations get along without a Rabbi at all, hiring one for special occasions, but these are congregations which are falling off somewhat from their orthodox strictness.

The result of this state of affairs is a pretty general falling-off of the character of the Rabbis. In Russia they are learned men—know the Talmud and all the commentaries upon it by heart—and have degrees from the rabbinical colleges, but here they are often without degrees, frequently know comparatively little about the Talmud, and are sometimes actuated by worldly motives. A few Jews coming to New York from some small Russian town will often select for a Rabbi a man among them who knows a little more of the Talmud than the others, whether he has ever studied for the calling or not. Then, again, some mere adventurers get into the position—men good for nothing, looking for a position. They clap a high hat on their heads, impose on a poor congregation with their up-to-dateness and become Rabbis without learning or piety. These "fake" Rabbis—"Rabbis for business only"—are often satirized in the Yiddish plays given at the Bowery theatres. On the stage they are ridiculous figures, a.e. American manners in bad accents, and have a keen eye for gain.

The genuine, pious Rabbis in the New York Ghetto feel, consequently, that they have their grievances. They, the accomplished interpreters of the Jewish law, are well nigh submerged by the frauds that flood the city. But this is not the only sorrow of the "real" Rabbi of the Ghetto. The Rabbis uptown, the rich Rabbis, pay little attention to the sufferings, moral and physical, of their downtown brethren. For the most part the uptown Rabbi is of the German, the downtown Rabbi of the Russian branch of the Jewish race, and these two divisions of the Hebrews hate one another like poison. Last winter when Zangwill's dramatized Children of the Ghetto was produced in New York the organs of the swell uptown German Jew protested that it was a pity to represent faithfully in art the sordidness as well as the beauty of the poor Russian Ghetto Jew. It seemed particularly baneful that the religious customs of the Jews should be thus detailed upon the stage. The same objection was made to the realistic and faithful Ghetto stories of Abraham Cahen. The uptown Jew felt a little ashamed that the proletarians of his people should be made the subject of literature. The downtown Jews, the Russian Jews, however, received play and stories with delight, as expressing truthfully their life and character, of which they are not ashamed.

Another cause of irritation between the downtown and uptown Rabbis is a difference of religion. The uptown Rabbi, representing congregations larger in this country and more American in comfort and tendency, generally is of the "reformed" complexion, a hateful thought to the orthodox downtown Rabbi, who is loathe to admit that the term Rabbi fits these swell German preachers. He maintains that since the uptown Rabbi is, as a rule, not only "reformed" in faith, but preaching as well, he is in reality no Rabbi, for, properly speaking, a Rabbi is simply an interpreter of the law, one with whom the Talmudical wisdom rests and who alone can give it out; not one who exhorts, but who, on application, can untie knotty points of the law. The uptown Rabbis they call "preachers," with some disdain.

So that the poor, downtrodden Rabbis—those among them who look upon themselves as the only genuine—have many annoyances to bear. Despised and neglected by their rich brethren, without honor and support in their own poor communities, and surrounded by a rabble of unworthy rivals, the "real" interpreter of the "law" in New York is something of an object of pity.

Just who the most genuine downtown Rabbis are is, no doubt, a matter of dispute. The writer will not attempt to determine, but will quote in substance a statement of Rabbi Weiss as to genuine Rabbis, which will include a curious section of the history of the Ghetto. He is a jolly old man, and smokes his pipe in a tenement house room containing 200 books of the Talmud and allied writings.

"A genuine Rabbi," he said, "knows the law, and sits most of the time in his room ready to impart it. If an old woman comes with a chicken that has been killed the Rabbi can tell her, as she has explained how the fowl has met its death, whether or not it is kosher, whether it may be eaten or not. And on any other point of diet or general moral or physical hygiene the Rabbi is ready to explain the law of the Hebrews from the time of Adam to date.

"I, myself, was the first genuine Rabbi on the East Side of New York. I am now sixty-two years old, and came here sixteen years ago—came for pleasure, but my wife followed me, and so I had to stay."

Here the old Rabbi smiled cheerfully. "When I came to New York," he proceeded, "I found the Jews here in a very bad way—eating meat that was 'trefa,' not allowed, because killed improperly; literally, killed by a brute. The slaughterhouses at that time had no Rabbi to see that the meat was properly killed, was kosher—all right.

"You can imagine my horror. The slaughterhouses had been employing an orthodox Jew, who, however, was not a Rabbi to see that the meat was properly killed, and he had been doing things all wrong, and the chosen people had been living abominably. I immediately explained the proper way of killing meat, and since then I have regulated several slaughterhouses and make my living in that way. I am also Rabbi of a congregation, but it is so small that it doesn't pay. The slaughterhouses are more profitable."

There are many congregations in the New York Ghetto which have no Rabbis and many Rabbis who have no congregations. Two Rabbis who have no congregations are Rabbi Beinush and Rabbi, or rather, Cantor, Weiss. Rabbi Weiss would say of Beinush that he is a man who knows the Talmud, but he has no diploma. Rabbi Beinush is an extremely poor Rabbi with neither congregation nor slaughterhouses, who sits in his poor room and occasionally sells his wisdom to a fishwife who wants to know if some piece of meat is kosher or not. He is down on the rich uptown Rabbis, who care nothing for the law, as he puts it, who leave the poor downtown Rabbi to starve.

Cantor Weiss is also without a job. The duty of the Cantor is to sing the prayer in the congregation, but Cantor Weiss sings only on holidays, for he is not paid enough to work regularly, the cantor sharing in this country a fate similar to that of the Rabbi. A famous comedian of the Ghetto, Mogolesco, was, as a boy, one of the most noted cantors in Russia. As an actor in the New York Ghetto he makes twenty times as much money as the most accomplished cantor. Cantor Weiss very bitter against the uptown cantors: "They shorten the prayer," he said. "They are not orthodox. It is too hot in the synagogue for the comfortable uptown cantors to pray."

Comfortable Philistinism, progress and enlightenment uptown; and poverty, orthodoxy and patriotic and religious sentiment, with the touch of the material also, downtown. Such seems to be the difference between the German and the Russian Jew in this country, and in particular between the German and the Russian Jewish Rabbi.

CHINESE MASSACRES.

"Just now it would be well to inquire into the causes that have brought about this great calamity. I believe that dispassionate retrospection will reveal that the Chinese crusade against foreigners is not a mere frenzied outburst, but the effect of long standing causes. We must put ourselves in the Chinaman's place and see things from this point of view to enable us to grasp the true meaning of the great war now precipitated upon the nations of the world.

"There can hardly be any two opinions as to the two great causes of the present crisis. They are the aggressive course of the missionaries in China and the unscrupulous conduct of the powers in robbing China at will during the past three years of its empire.

"I hesitate to criticize the well meaning and self abnegating missionaries of the Christians. I have lived nearly all my life in peace among Christians in this city, and number among my best friends ministers of the Christian church, who believe heart and soul in the wisdom of missionary work in China. I am not desirous of entering into a controversy on the subject. And yet I would like to point out that, high as the Jewish race stands as a civilizing power in history, its methods have never embroiled so much as one nation in war with another.

"Prof. Max Müller of Oxford once said the Jewish religion has no missionary purpose, and perhaps it may be argued that no comparison can be made because the Jews do not actively engage in the work of proselytizing. This is false. So far as the spread of religion is concerned the Jewish religion teaches that the belief in one God will, in time, conquer the world. The Jew has never forced his religion upon others with a sword. Imbued with an unswerving faith that His will must be done in His way and in His time, he has tried to preserve it, and let it, on its own inherent merits, conquer the world. The Jewish race has survived to see the idea of one God, enunciated by its prophets, all but circle the globe, and has lived to see the Decalogue given to Moses on Mount Sinai furnish the basis and fabric for the political system of nine-tenths of the world. 'Not by power and not by might, but through my spirit,' said the prophet Zachariah. Two thousand years ago the great Hebrew seer put his ban on forcible conversion. Therefore the Jew has never sent out missionaries to appeal to the masses and endeavor to bring them to the fold either by promises of future bliss or earthly advantage.

"On the other hand," continued Dr. Leucht, "it must not be forgotten that whatever reason the Jew has for refraining from entering the missionary field, the missionary spirit of our sister religion is based on Christian dogma. I refer to the tenet which proclaims that only those with faith can be saved—a tenet which makes it the duty of Christians to endeavor to evangelize those who are not of their faith.

"Incidentally it might be mentioned that the Jewish religion teaches that the good and the true of all creeds will inherit the future world, and that it can be no difference to God Almighty how He is worshiped, so long as the seeker after Him is sincere. A just God would certainly punish no soul for ignorance of which he is not responsible.

"I do not believe there is a Jew in this land," went on the Rabbi, "who does not stand aghast at the terrible atrocities inflicted by the Chinese on the foreigners. I am sure there is no Jew in this country who would not shoulder a musket to-morrow at the call of the President, if necessary, to protect American interests in China. But of all the people of the earth I consider the Jew the best able to see things in this crisis in their perspective." —RABBI LEUCHT, in New Orleans Democrat.

THE TRUE RELIGION FROM THE TALMUD

A heathen philosopher once came to Rabbi Shammai, the principal of an academy, asking wherein consisted the Jewish religion. Rabbi Shammai, in his usually abrupt manner, told him:

"Study our written and oral laws and you will find it."

"As to oral laws, I have no faith," said the heathen, "but teach me the written law and that within the time that I could stand on one foot, and I will immediately adopt thy religion."

Rabbi Shammai drove him from his presence indignantly, and the heathen went to the chief of the other academy, Rabbi Hillel, to whom he spoke as he did to Rabbi Shammai. Rabbi Hillel, in his wonted good nature, told him to stand on one of his feet, and while the heathen thus stood, the Jewish sage, with earnest significance, said:

"That which is displeasing to thee avoid doing to thy fellow-man! That is the Jewish religion; all else is the commentary to this. Now, go and study the commentary."

To supplement this with an elucidation of much later years, we can refer to an incident during the reign of Don Pedro of Aragon. To explain which is the true religion, this monarch summoned before him a learned Hebrew, much thought of by the court, Ephraim ben Sancho, and he explained it thus:

"My religion is the true one to me, for

I sincerely believe that God brought out my ancestors from Egypt and revealed it to them as an everlasting covenant between Him and them; but to thee, O King, there must be true, for thou hast received it from thy parents and ancestors as a God-given creed, and believest it as sincerely as I do mine."

But this was not convincing and satisfactory to the monarch, and he demanded better proof, under threats of severe chastisement in case it would not be forthcoming. The Hebrew begged a day's time in which to prepare the proof, which was granted, and he withdrew.

The following morning Ephraim sought the presence of the King, apparently disturbed in demeanor and evidently forgetful of the important explanation he had to give, and clamored for justice in a certain matter.

"What matter is that?" asked Don Pedro.

"Some time ago," related the Hebrew, "my neighbor departed for a distant land and left to his two sons each a costly jewel as a token of parental affection, but soon they began to dispute regarding the intrinsic value of their respective jewels, each claiming his more valuable. Yesterday they asked my opinion, and seeing how matters stood, I advised them to cease quarrelling and wait peacefully till they would be together with the father who gave them and who knows their value best. Instead of accepting my advice, they fell upon me and beat me. Did my counsel to them provoke such treatment?"

"No, indeed!" exclaimed the King; "thy advice was correct, and the evil doers shall be punished."

"Sire and King, pardon me now if I bring the proof to the question I have to explain regarding thy religion and mine as propounded yesterday. They are the jewels given to us by our Heavenly Father, who alone knows the intrinsic value, and we can but prize them as the precious token of parental affection. Thou, O King, has just now pronounced my advice to those brothers correct; wouldst thou pronounce in this case otherwise? I have the counsel to offer here. Let us wait peacefully—each conscious that he has the Fatherly token in his possession—till we shall appear before Him who gave us the esteemed jewel, Religion, as He alone knows the real value of our faith and creed."

The Hebrew was excused.—RABBI L. WEISS in Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times.

Jews Leaving Roumania.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The arrival recently at the port of New York of two hundred or more Roumanian Jew immigrants will result in an investigation of the cause of this unusual exodus and the probability of its assuming still larger proportions. Mr. Robert Watchorn, Special Agent of the Immigration Bureau, now in England, will be instructed to conduct the investigation and report his findings to the department.

The Jews who have so far arrived from Roumania are said to be, as a rule, strong, able-bodied young men, and really a desirable class of immigrants. It is feared, however, that these arrivals may be followed later by those less desirable, and hence the department's desire to be thoroughly informed on the whole subject. The department assumes that the present movement is the result of religious persecutions.

A new synagogue is to be erected in Danville, Ill.

CITY NEWS.

Congregation Adereth El.

At a meeting of the Congregation Adereth El, held at the synagogue, No. 135 East 29th street, on July 30th, the Rev. Dr. Adolph Spiegel was unanimously elected rabbi of the congregation.

Dr. Spiegel is well known as the organizer of the "First Jewish Congregation of Porto Rico," and was the first to introduce services according to the ancient customs of Israel on that island.

Emanu-El Sisterhood will have a new nursery and kindergarten building at 318-320 East 82d street, to cost $75,000. Plans by Janes & Leo have been filed, through William Einstein, as chairman of the Building Committee.

The new structure will be 42x70, and five stories high. It will be built of brick, with profuse terra cotta ornamentations. The Sisterhood home is now at 223 East 79th street. The new building will supply the need of larger and more modern quarters.

According to plans filed with the Department of Buildings, the Brightside Day Nursery and Kindergarten, of which Mrs. Irene R. Guggenheimer is the president, will erect a five story brick and limestone building. The ground acquired for the purpose is situated on the west side of Cannon street, 175 feet north of Rivington, Manhattan. The lot measures 15x80 feet. The building will cost about $35,000, most of which has been collected by the charitable women at the head of the movement.

OBITUARY.

Blumschen Herzberg.

On Monday last the mortal remains of Mrs. Blumschen Herzberg, mother of Aaron and Leo Herzberg, were committed to earth.

The deceased was a veritable mother in Israel, charitable to a fault and possessed of all those domestic virtues which adorn the true Jewish home.

Though advanced in age, having reached her ninetieth year, she still retained her faculties in their fullest vigor and died lamented by a large circle of friends.

The funeral, which took place from her late residence, No. 117 E. 17th street, was largely attended, religious services being conducted both at the house and grave in Washington Cemetery by Rev. Herman Goldstein.

The HEBREW STANDARD extends sincere condolence to the sorrowing family.

Long Branch Synagogue.

There is a movement on foot to place the synagogue on a firm financial basis. At present expenses are met by means of voluntary contributions and offerings, and it is proposed to create memberships to cost $25.00 per annum which will entitle the holder to two seats in the synagogue for the season. Several of the cottagers have joined in the movement and there is no doubt as to its success. Dr. Jos. Silverman, Rabbi of Temple Emanuel, who is to speak this Sabbath, is one of the leaders in the matter.

The attendance this year has far surpassed that of previous years. The annual meeting has been postponed to this Sunday, Aug. 5th.

Lumber is now being carted for the erection of twenty new dwellings at the Hebrew settlements of Alliance and Brotmansville, near Vineland. These houses and also the proposed Home for Aged Hebrews will be built by the Committee of the Baron de Hirsch Fund of America.

The Johannah Meseritz Lodge, No. 10, I. O. B. B., held an outing last Wednesday at Rockaway Beach. At 9.30 all the members met at the elevated station, Broadway and Myrtle avenue, and then took the train direct to Rockaway. Arriving there, they went to the Imperial Hotel, where Mr. Heifer, the manager, was awaiting them and was prepared with an elegant spread, which they all enjoyed. The day was spent in sightseeing, bathing and gossiping, but very few, if any, gave one thought of the Hebrew Sanitarium, which is only a few blocks away, to see how the children are or how the institution was getting along under the new management, which, by the way, we can inform them is Mr. J. Daugrice, superintendent; Mrs. M. Daugrice, matron; Dr. A. Lustgarten and Dr. A. Machlin. Neither did they go to see the new wing recently added, giving the children more room, neither did they know that the Brooklyn benefit society had three hundred poor children there that had to be attended to, fed, bathed and cared for, neither did they know that there is a book there in which visitors can place their names also another book in which all donations can be entered, so as to assist the good work of the society. No doubt they all know about the sanitarium, also the books, but when we looked over the books not a single name was entered in either of the books from the society. They only thought of themselves, of their own enjoyment and pleasure. But it is never too late to mend. If there are any charitably inclined or too much money left in the treasury, much good can yet be done by sending any donation, large or small, to the Hebrew Sanitarium Rockaway Beach.

Hebrew Infant Asylum.

An entertainment was given at the Arverne Hotel Casino, Arverne, L. I., on Wednesday night, July 25, for the benefit of the Hebrew Infant Asylum of the city of New York. The affair was a grand success, mainly due to the efforts of Dr. and Mrs. Seymour Oppenheimer, Mr. and Mrs. Al Warendorff and Mr. and Mrs. Sam'l King. The military band of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society of New York took part, through kindness of Mr. Sam'l D. Levy, president of that institution.

Through kindness of Mr. Isidore Witmark and Messrs. Hurtig & Semon, the following artists volunteered their services, which were well received by a very large audience: John C. Rice, Sallie Cohn, Lewis and Elliott, Miss Anna Laughlin, Edward Leonard, Miss Eva Mudge, Miss Elgy Bowen, Miss Marie Blanchard, "Judge" Jos. A. as you and I, that gave the shelter to the cows that grazed beneath our boughs, that shaded the weary traveler that stopped for rest and refreshment. Close by me, was a boon companion whose ever merry song ceased not night or day, it was the mountain stream which rolled over stick and stone to the mill. Many a time she was angry at the storm winds which whipped her, many a time, have I bowed my head before that same anger; but years rolled by and I grew straighter and stronger with the coming of each Spring."

Had the Pulpit lost the thread of his remarks, or was he wrapped in thought, it matters not, but it was some while before he began again.

"One day, such a day as one never forgets because it alters the whole life, a stranger passed beside me, and, stopping for a while, looked me over from root to top; I pleased him, for with one swing of the cold steel which had rested on his shoulder, he cut me near the ground. Again and again the axe was raised and fell, until at last with a great crash, I fell full length upon the earth. He left me, but soon returned and tore me from my friend, the brook and all the companions who had stood about me.

"I saw the brook once more when the buzzing saw which it drove, cut me through and through in long, flat, rough boards; but soon the wood-carver spied me and took me with him to his home. There I rested patiently for some years, while with his sharp, little tools, he slowly carved the beautiful patterns which are now my pride. Painstaking he was, an artist in the best sense; he loved me, he patted me tenderly and he grieved to part with me. But strangers came again, and from the quiet workshop of the carver, I was brought and put in my place here."

"Is that all?" asked the Pew.
"Yes, that is all," responded the Pulpit. "That is my proof, and it cannot be controverted. In my beginning as a seed, in my youth as a tree, in my manhood as a Pulpit—I have been fulfilling the command of one Power which I never saw, but Whose laws I have obeyed and Whose purpose I have fulfilled. I say to you that just as the proof of God's existence is in me, so it is in you. Had I voice that men could hear and understand, I would say to them: "Behold in me, the sermon which from this spot God himself preaches to those whose eyes are open."

The Pulpit stopped and the Pew answered not a word. Darkness was joined by silence, and their reign was undisturbed in the sanctuary. H.

AMERICAN ZIONIST NEWS.

The Young Hebrew Zionists, of Syracuse, N. Y., held a public meeting and election and installation of officers at the Hebrew Free School Building, on July 9th.

At a recent monthly meeting of the Ladies' Zion Alliance, of Norfolk, Va., 15 new members were added, making a total of almost 60.

A Committee on Propaganda of the Federation of American Zionists has been organized and is about to begin active work.

The activity of the society, B'nai Zion No. 2, of St. Louis, Mo., is worthy of comment. This society consists of boys between the ages of 12 and 15.

Dr Jacob Voorsanger, editor of Emanu el, published at San Francisco, under the caption "Impressions of New York" writes in the issue of July 13th in reference to the meeting held at Cooper Union in connection with the Federation of American Zionists, on June 10th:

the extent of the Zionist cause, of the numbers that have subscribed to it. We in the West have underrated the number of its adherents. The Jewish Quarter in New York, a round quarter million of souls, is wholly and thoroughly Zionist.

The Vienna correspondent of the Jewish Chronicle, of London, states, "The past week witnessed the arrival here of some emigrants from Roumania. Day by day they come in large and small groups, and often only in couples of families.

The Executive Committee of the English Zionist Federation has already made the following definite arrangements in connection with the Fourth Congress, to be held in London. A great mass meeting will be held at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End, on Saturday evening, August 11th, to be followed by an official reception of the delegates by the committee.

Atlantic City.

The eighth annual Charity Ball in aid of the Jewish Seashore Home for Invalids, held at the Hotel Rudolf last Saturday evening, as anticipated, eclipsed any former function of its character held in this city. From every standpoint the event was a brilliant success. Fully 500 visitors participated, the ballroom, parlors, exchanges and piazzas being jammed with one moving throng of handsomely-attired maids, matrons and their gallants.

The interior of the hotel was specially illuminated for the occasion with hundreds of minute incandescent lights of varied colors, which shed their delicate rays down upon the handsomely-attired gathering, adding beauty and making a strikingly pretty picture. The spacious marine ballroom of the hotel was artistically ornamented with flowers, palms and exotics which emitted a fragrance that scented the entire room. Along the sides of the room were stationed numerous palms.

It was not until nearly ten o'clock that dancing was inaugurated. Over two dozen numbers were on the programme. The hotel orchestra, which furnished music for the event, was stationed at one end of the room, hidden back of a bower of flowers. The gathering as a whole was a fashionable one. Society from nearly all the metropolitan cities of the East was represented, many parties being formed at the various prominent hotels to participate in the event.

Jewish Chautauqua.

The fourth annual assembly of the Jewish Chautauqua closed Sunday in the Synagogue, W. B. Hackenburg acting as presiding officer, Director Hassler reported all expenses paid and a balance in the treasury. The short addresses made were all in praise of the work of the Chautauqua and the gratifying results of the present assembly, the most successful since its organization. There are now 300 circles located in every section of the United States doing active work under the direction of the central body.

Simon Wolf, of Washington, declined a re-election as president, and this honor passed to William B. Hackenburg, of Philadelphia. Other officers elected were: Dr. Henry Berkowitz, chancellor; Mrs. Minnie D. Louis, national field secretary; Isaac Hassler, secretary and director;

Max Herzberg, treasurer. The following Philadelphians were chosen members of the Board of Trustees: David W. Amram, Dr. Charles S. Bernheimer, Penrose Fleisher, Abraham Langsfeld, Mrs. Fannie Muhr, Dr. Lewis W. Steinbach, Benjamin F. Teller and Edwin Wolf.

No Hebrew Tramps.

Referring to the statement made recently that the man killed on the railroad at Landlith last week was supposed to be a Jew, Detective William T. Jones said that in all his experience in the railroad service he never has captured a Hebrew in a raid. "You never see a Jewish tramp stealing a ride on the railroad cars, or at least I have not," said Mr. Jones. "I have yet to get the first Jew in a raid, and I have made many raids since I have been a detective."—Wilmington, Del., News.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LEGAL NOTICES.

(ONE.)

State of New York,
Office of the Secretary of State,
Albany, July 27, 1900.
Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen, of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State, to be held on the sixth day of November, nineteen hundred.

Amendment Number One.—Concurrent Resolution, Proposing amendment to article six of the Constitution relating to the election of additional Justices of the Supreme Court.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the sixth article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section:
Section 24. At the general election next after the adoption of this amendment, there shall be elected, and thereafter as the offices shall become vacant, through expiration of term or otherwise, by the electors of the Second Judicial District three Justices of the Supreme Court, in addition to the Justices of the court now in office in said district. The Justices so elected shall be invested with their offices on the first day of January next after their election.

State of New York,
In Senate, March 27, 1899.
The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof.
By order of the Senate,
TIMOTHY L. WOODRUFF,
President.

State of New York,
In Assembly, April 11, 1899.
The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof.
By order of the Assembly,
S. F. NIXON,
Speaker.

State of New York,
Office of the Secretary of State, } ss.
I have compared the preceding copy of Concurrent Resolution, proposing an amendment to article six of the Constitution, with the original Concurrent Resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof.
Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-seventh day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred.
JOHN T. McDONOUGH, Secretary of State.

The foregoing Concurrent Resolution is published once a week for three months next preceding the next general election, in conformity to the aforesaid provisions, in two public newspapers in each county in this State, representing respectively the two political parties polling the highest number of votes at the last general election, and in one additional newspaper in each county for every one hundred thousand people in such county, as shown by the last preceding State Enumeration.
JOHN T. McDONOUGH, Secretary of State.
