TRUTH SEEKING.

Think not, O seeker after Truth,
Thy path with roses strewn will be;
That friends shall, smiling, grasp thy hand,
And cheer thee by their sympathy.

That souls as eager as thine own
With joy shall hail Truth thou mayst find
And bid long-cherished error flee,
And loose the chains of creed that bind.

Nay, nerve thy soul to meet rebuffs,
To lonely plod thy weary way;
To bear the scorn and bitter sneers,
And all that tries man's constancy.

Truth is a bird of beauty rare
That ne'er hath been by mortal caught;
And tho' it sings a noble song,
But few can hear its heavenly note.

A dreamer may amid the throng,
Above the clamor faintly hear
A few sweet notes that thrill his soul,
And fill with melody his ear;

And, pausing, may bid others pause
And listen to the wondrous song,
But ah! the din of earth is great,
And all unheeding is the throng.

ORTHODOX VERSUS REFORM JUDAISM.

DEBATE BEFORE COLUMBIA LODGE,
I. O. B. B.

We republish from the columns of the Emanuel the following humorous report:

"Despite the fur that was flying fast and furious the gladiators are still in the ring, not a whit disabled and ready to don again the oratorical gloves whenever called upon by their respective constituents. Yet it was a memorable debate, an epoch-making debate. You may have heard of the Treaty of Utrecht, of the Treaty of Paris, of the Edict of Nantes, of the battle of Naseby, of the battle of Waterloo, of the battle of Manilla, some of you may even have heard of the Declaration of Independence. Bah! These affairs may hereafter pale into a well-merited insignificance as compared to the results that would be attained were the world to pay the least attention to the merits claimed for their side gladiators aforesaid.

The affair took place last Monday evening in Columbia Lodge and was participated in by Brothers Jacob Greenebaum and Gerson Nathan, who undertook to prove that Reform Judaism was a good thing, while Brothers Julius Bamberger and Herman Lesser hurled their broadsides in the attempt to show that Reform, or "deform," as Brother Bamberger in dignantly called it, was not what it was cracked up to be.

The audience was large and attentive, as well as patient and forbearing, but, as in political gatherings, the adherents of the principal parties were not the only ones in evidence. There was also the Orthodox middle-of-the-road man, the Reform teetotaler, there was a sprinkling of adherents of the Orthodox no-nothing party, and of Reform mugwumps. Yet it was a good natured mixture and the gladiators were given fair play.

Jacob Greenebaum came up first, hale and hearty, and despite the seventy odd Reform summers he had witnessed, looked for all the world like the gallant knight of old who went forth in battle array decorated with the colors of his lady love. He rapidly traced the history of Reform Judaism in America, described the lives of the noble intellectual giants who came from Germany to plant the seeds of Reform on Yankee soil, and if some of them did develop a taste for oysters (vociferous applause on the Reform side) a generous Providence who created these dumb and innocent victims of Orthodox contempt must be blamed for it. Greenebaum closed with a touching appeal for unity, declaring that, in the language of the Arkansas circuit-rider, "It isn't loud praying which counts with the Lord so much as giving four full quarts of whiskey for every gallon."

Julius Bamberger followed, prefacing remarks by stating that before proceeding to lead the negative side of the case he felt impelled to make a confession. Originally it was intended that he should argue in favor of Reform, and in order to fortify himself he industriously perused Reform literature for some six weeks. At the eleventh hour, however, he was told that all interests would be better subserved by taking the side of Orthodoxy. "And here, I am to-night," he added, "full to the brim with Reform, expected to prove the opposite of that which I believe to be the simon-pure article." The audience expressed its sympathy for Bamberger in his predicament. He reminded your reporter of Ignatius Donnelly, who endeavored to prove by Shakespeare's own plays that Bacon (no offense meant to my Orthodox friends when I mention this name) was the real Bard of Avon. But Reform did receive a roasting at the hands of Bamberger nevertheless, and incidentally paid his respects to what he termed the "home-made philosopher" who had the audacity to advocate the study of the life of the Nazarene in the Jewish Sunday schools. The strongest point he urged was, that when the Jews were held in cruel bondage in Egypt they did not indulge in Westphalian ham, nor in Eastern on the shell, nor in California shrimps, "and for that reason, if for no other, and out of respect for the sufferings of our ancestors," he exclaimed dramatically, "we should abstain from all these things." What all this had to do with Reform or Orthodoxy, Bamberger wisely omitted to state.

Gerson Nathan followed for the Reform side by informing his hearers that Moses was the first Reformer if he only knew it. Nathan volunteered the information that Reform was "vaccinated into him." He failed to state, however, how it was done and what stuff was used. He emphatically denied the allegation of the Orthodox that Reform tried to do away with the Ten Commandments. "Not only do we leave the Ten Commandments intact," he exclaimed with fervor, "but we are willing and ready to add another ten to them."

Herman Lesser closed the debate. He was the pièce de résistance of the orthodox side of the house. He was the card they had up their sleeve as it were. Brother Lesser came up smiling and self possessed. He looked as if he knew what he was going to talk about. At this stage of the debate your reporter was forcibly reminded of the thick headed squire who, being worsted by the Rev. Sydney Smith in an argument, exclaimed: "If I had a son that was an idiot, by Jove I'd make him a parson!" "Very probable," replied Sydney; "but I see your father was of a different mind." But, revenons à nos moutons.

Lesser's peroration was a corker, and thanks to him the Reformers were ignominiously defeated. His boy, he said, could say "Good Shabbas" with a fervor and an inflection of voice such as no boy with Reform predilections would undertake to say. Point one in favor of Orthodoxy. When he was a boy he preferred to look at the mezussa all day rather than listen to selections from Aida in a Reform temple. Point two in favor of Orthodoxy. Stress of circumstances compelled him to speak in the vernacular during business hours, he said, (and no doubt he tried his best), but when he went to school, ah, that was the time Hebrew became the language of his heart. And though he frankly admitted his inability to translate a single Hebrew sentence, he found more eloquence and power and consolation in his Shema Yisroel than in all the works of Schiller, Goethe or Shakespeare. Point three in favor of Orthodoxy. Brother Lesser urged many more similar points, too numerous to mention, and, as stated before, he acquitted himself so creditably that Reform fairly winced.

At this stage of the proceedings your reporter underwent a mental transformation. He fell asleep—just for one moment—lulled by the eloquence of a Lesser, and this is what he dreamt during that brief period: "He saw Emil Hirsch in the stillness of the early morning walking to Schkoome, tallith and tephilim under his arm. He heard Pereira Mendes expressing a sudden fondness for huitres du gratin. The Grand Rabbi of France sat at the dinner table with Max Regis, and the Chief Rabbi of Great Britain issued an invitation to American Rabbis to occupy his pulpit. The HEBREW STANDARD came out with a leader that the "half-baked" of Cincinnati were the real thing and that the imported article couldn't read Hebrew without vowel points. The Jews of Palestine prayed Le Shona Habo b' St. Petersburg, Stephen S. Wise joined the Zionistic Boxers, the Reform lion and the Orthodox lamb were lying down together saying brooge over the millenium, that had come to pass. Here my dream was suddenly interrupted through the loud voice of the chairman announcing that Orthodoxy had carried the day.

In great attempts, 'tis glorious e'en to fail.

FOURTH ZIONIST CONGRESS

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Fourth Zionist Congress was opened to-day with 500 delegates present. After organizing, Prof. Max Nordau, reviewing the situation, gave an appalling account of the persecution in Roumania, and paid a tribute to Emperor William of Germany for his attitude toward the Jews of Pomerania and East Prussia.

Among the Americans present were Prof. and Mrs. Gotthell, D. Blaustein, and A. Fannerbaum of New York, Jacob Maniloff of Brooklyn, Israel Stein of Baltimore, and William Schur of Chicago.

The American delegates are well represented on the committees.

Dr. Hertz, formerly of Syracuse, but now of Johannesburg, is a conspicuous member of the Congress.

An open-air meeting for the evangelization of Jews was held in front of the Established Church, near Queen's Hall, where the Zionist Congress is assembled, and some of the Zionist delegates and Jews who were not members of the congress gathered about the church and hooted and threw pennies in derision at the speakers.

Zionist delegates wearing badges ran out from Queen's Hall and urged the Jews not to interfere and be tolerant to others as they wished toleration themselves. Eventually the crowd, numbering about 1,000 persons, was dispersed, partially through the efforts of the police.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Though the evangelistic opposition meeting was resumed to-day under the porch of All Souls' Church, near Queen's Hall, at which latter place the Zionist Congress is in session, the presence of an increased police reserve force prevented anything more serious than constant "booing" and hooting.

The congress devoted the morning to listening to President Herzl's report and other official reports which showed the marked numerical and financial growth of the movement. Clarence de Sola described the movement as flourishing in Canada.

The recess was devoted to a meeting of the women delegates. Mrs. Gotthell of New York presided, and Mrs. Leon, Miss Bluestone and other New Yorkers spoke. Mrs. Gotthell favored maintaining both the National and religious aspect of the Zionistic movement, but in order to appease the strong Russian sentiment the delegates decided to leave the question free in the hands of the leaders of each nation to act as expediency dictated.

In the afternoon Delegate G. H. Mayer of Philadelphia said the movement would undoubtedly increase, adding:

"I am in a position to know that our General Committee is in possession of diplomatic secrets showing that the scheme is favored by many European governments which might be supposed to oppose our occupation of Jerusalem. These are inclined to believe we might not only solve the Jewish but the Eastern question simultaneously. I do not know that we are yet ready for a charter, but I believe it may come at any time."

THE JEW IN ROUMANIA.

Despite the fact that Roumania grants freedom of religious belief and worship in her constitution, Jews are being expelled from the country by the most arbitrary and vindictive legislation. Of the 260,000 Jews in the kingdom only 900 are now citizens. Jews are denied free education and are not permitted to hold a government office, a position on a railway, in a hospital, in the national bank, or in the Chamber of Commerce, and no Jew may be a lawyer, an architect, a veterinary surgeon, a druggist, a tobacconist, etc. A recent act practically deprives them of the poor privilege of peddling.

It is remarkable that in this liberal and enlightened age such persecution should be permitted. The Powers could let Roumania know in various ways that such a course on her part was not to be tolerated. The Rothschilds have already come to the rescue by announcing that Roumania may find it difficult to borrow funds.

The country that expels a race because it is industrious and thrifty makes confession of its own slothfulness and decadence as well as intolerance.—Nashville (Tenn.) American.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS IN ODESSA

A number of soldiers who had been ordered to the Far East, were selling their superfluous chattels to Jewish dealers on Sunday, when one of them who had realized five roubles for his goods declared that the purchaser had immediately picked his pocket after paying him.

The allegation started a ferocious attack on the Jews which spread throughout the Jewish quarter. A mob joined the soldiers and wrecked and plundered booths and brutally beat Jews wherever they were found. The police were helpless.

Cossacks and infantry were paraded, but it was hours before the rioting stopped. It is stated that many of the troops ordered to protect the Jews joined the looters when not under the eye of their officers. The authorities were energetic. They summarily flogged rioters who were caught in the act, but there were spasmodic outbursts on Monday and Tuesday, July 30th and 31st.

Two soldiers were killed on Sunday. It is stated that five Jews were killed. One hundred and twenty were taken to the hospitals.

THE JEWS.

They are not a new people, who have just got into notice, and who, if you do not recognize their claims, may disappear.

They are an ancient people, an enduring people, and a people who in the end have generally attained their objects. I hope Parliament may endure for ever, and sometimes think it will; but I cannot help remembering that the Jews have out-lived Assyrian kings, Egyptian Pharaohs, Roman Caesars and Arabian Caliphs.—D'Israeli's speech in the House of Commons (Oaths Bill), May 25, 1854.

Zionist Festival.

Three thousand or more men and women completely filled Cooper Union last Sunday night, drawn thither by the exercises of the Zionist festival held under the auspices of the "Lovers of Zion," the oldest Zion organization in the United States, in honor of the Fourth Zion Congress, which opened in London.

The meeting at Cooper Union was opened by Dr. M. Mintz, who presided. Dr. Mintz spoke in Yiddish, and his address evoked much enthusiasm among his hearers, nearly all of whom live on the east side. The other speakers of the evening also delivered their talks in Yiddish with the exception of Dr. Stephen S. Wise. The musical programme was a feature of the evening. It comprised several songs by a choir from the Halsey Singing Society under the direction of J. Margulies and instrumental pieces by the band of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society Orphan Asylum. The Rev. David Cahn also led the audience in Leo Rafael's psalm, "Burden of My Soul," which was enthusiastically rendered.

Dr. Wise followed Dr. Mintz. In the course of his address he said:

"If it be true, as has been said by a noted writer, that the eyes are conquered first in battle, it is truer still that the eyes must be the first to conquer before the victory can be achieved. The eyes of the Zionist hosts foresee the great victory before them when they behold this large assemblage here to-night, the great gathering of Zionist leaders in London, the saddening picture of the Roumanian Jews driven from their long-time home by their merciless persecutors, and finally the fields of Palestine awaiting the magic touch of the Jewish husbandmen which shall restore Zion to its native splendor. This vision will be fulfilled. Zionism is destined to realize the Judean ideals even as it has already idealized the realities of Israel's sorrowful existence.

"We Americans are justly incensed at the infamous conduct of the Chinese Boxers. What has the world to say touching the European Boxers, the anti-Semites? The Boxers of Peking have called down upon their heads the execration of all Christendom. Why is Christendom silent in the face of the Boxerism of so-called Christians who are pursuing to the death the brothers in the spirit and in the flesh of the Founder of Christianity because these have the courage to remain true to themselves and their high religious ideals and scorn to purchase peace at the cost of conviction and self-respect?

"Observe if you will, how nearly parallel are the atrocities of European anti-Semitism and the ferocities of Chinese Boxerism. 'Foreign devils' is the cry of the Boxers leveled against all non-Chinese residents of the Celestial Kingdom. 'Foreign devils' is the miserable excuse, when excuse they deign to offer, of the anti-Semites who would drive the Jews from European lands. Boxers accuse European Christians of ritual murder; European Christians lay the crime of ritual murder at the door of the Jews.

"I appeal in the name of Judaism and in the name of the true Christian faith to Christendom to put an end to anti-Semitic Boxerism; to call a halt to Roumanian's diabolical system of repression; and above all to help the scattered remnants of Israel to find a home of their own in the land of their fathers.

"Touching the Roumanian refugees, the cry has gone up in some European circles, especially German and English, 'The Roumanian Jews must suffer repatriation.' Repatriation means a return to fatherland. Is Roumania, with its hellish persecution, to be looked upon as the fatherland of the Jews?"

Interruptions of many "noes" came from the audience.

"Is Russia?" asked Dr. Wise.

"No."

"Is Galicia?"

"No," in louder chorus.

"No," went on Dr. Wise, "what is?"

"Zion! Palestine!" cried the three thousand voices in a roar that was heard far into the street.

"Zion, yes!" went on Dr. Wise. "We Zionists cry repatriation, the repatriation of the homeless in Israel's true home, the fatherland, Zion."

Dr. Wise was followed by the Rev. Dr. J. Seff, who has been officially delegated by the Executive Zionist Committee of Vienna to undertake a Zionist propaganda tour in this country. Others who spoke were the Rev. Dr. Krausopf, the Rev. Mr. Smulewitz, A. Drucker and the Rev. Dr. Levin.

A message of congratulation was received from the Zionist Congress, to which fitting reply was made. A collection was taken at the close of the meeting for the benefit of the Roumanian immigrants, which netted over $100.

BOROUGH OF BROOKLYN.

Next Tuesday, Aug. 21, there will be a grand celebration at Ridgewood Grove. Rev. M. J. Luebke will give a second grand annual picnic; his first one was greatly marred by the unpleasant weather that always seems to follow him, but this time that difficulty will probably be overcome, as he is very earnestly praying for fine weather, and if any one would only take the time and visit him in his Sunday school, which is situated in Hart's Hall, Gates avenue and Broadway, they certainly would see him there teaching a large class of bright pupils, to have them all to pray for fine weather. What is more of an inducement than the weather, is a promise of a fine souvenir to all of his scholars who will be there. Rev. Luebke's picnics are always well attended, for those who go to one will always be glad to hear of his next picnic.

OBITUARY.

MORRIS NEIMAN.

Mr. Morris Neiman, one of the ancient regime, departed this life after years of patient suffering, on Tuesday, the 14th inst. The deceased was born in Germany, emigrated to Australia and afterward came to America some thirty years ago, and was engaged in the manufacturing of children's knit woolen goods, his firm being one of the most prominent in the trade.

He retired from active participation in the business, leaving its continuance in the hands of his sons.

His modest, unassuming character endeared him to a large circle of friends by whom his loss is severely mourned.

At his oft expressed wish, the funeral services were conducted at the house by the editor of the Hebrew Standard, with whom the deceased had been upon terms of intimate friendship for the past thirty years.

The interment took place in the family plot at Washington Cemetery, on Wednesday afternoon.

He leaves the fragrance of a memory rich in deeds of unostentatious charity, of sincere friendship and domestic tranquillity.

To the sorrowing widow and sons the Hebrew Standard extends sincere sympathy and heartfelt condolences.

Must Reinstate Lodge.

Justice Bischoff, in Special Term of the Supreme Court, yesterday decided that the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Free Sons of Judah must reinstate Jacob Stiller Lodge, No. 23, in the general body. The lodge was suspended on May 21 last for sending out circulars to sister lodges requesting that they join in a convention to reconsider an action taken by the last general convention of the Grand Lodge.

At that convention it was decided to hold biennial elections and to revise the yearly report of the Grand Secretary. Jacob Stiller Lodge opposed both changes and was suspended on the strength of a clause in the constitution that circulars may be sent out by a lodge only with the consent of the General Executive Board. In his decision Justice Bischoff says that if the prohibition in the constitution covered such a circular he would pronounce it unreasonable and not enforceable at law.

F. F. Proctor's Theatres.

Even though Harlem is an integral part of Greater New York, it still has its own individuality in various ways. When Mr. F. F. Proctor secured possession of the theatre on 125th street, between Lexington and Park avenues (and formerly known as the Columbus and Miner's), Harlem grew agitated at the prospect of extraordinarily good shows at small prices. The season of 1900-1901 will open in Harlem on Monday afternoon next, August 20, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when the curtain will rise at F. F. Proctor's 125th Street Theatre, and thus inaugurate the first continuous performance in that section. The opening stars are: The Little Magnet, Lottie Gilson, and J. K. Emmet ("Fritz") in a joint musical sketch. "Colie's Dilemma," in which they will have individual innings in their respective specialties; Sager Midgley and Gertie Corliss, two favorites, will offer their juvenile skit, "After School"; Jennie Yeamans, a pleasing comedienne, will be seen in monologue; Jas. Richmond Gletroy, with his "green gloves"; Bros. Permane, European acrobats; Bates Musical Trio; Max Unger, a Samsonian athlete; Barry and Halvers, farcical sketch, and the ever-popular Kalatechnoscope are among the opening features. At Proctor's Palace (East 58th street), week of August 20, are: Minnie Dupree, a charming actress; in her original monologue, "Cinderella at the Telephone"; Grace Huntington and Co., in the comedietta, "Checkmate"; Chris Bruno and Mabel Russell, cakewalkers par excellence; Manning and Davis, in "The Irish Pawnbroker"; Clemence Sisters, operatic sketch; Brooks Bros., talking comedians, Kalatechnoscope, and others.

Here is a rather curious story from Budapest. The new university in that city has been adorned with a massive sculpture of the Cross and the Christian Redeemer. Owing to the brittleness of some of the material used for fixtures an accident occurred prior to the opening, and the master sculptor of the institution was called in to direct repairs. No one paid any heed to the slight alterations he made, but the Minister of Worship Instruction was, after the ceremony, attacked by Father Molnar. This prelate raised the cry of sacrilege; instead of a cross there was a Mogen David, the symbol of the Jews!

On inspection, it was found that the shield of David did not wholly exist in the imagination of the priest. The sculptor, to prevent his work falling, added certain supports to the rectangular cross, which gave it the appearance of the Jewish symbol. But this explanation was too simple to be accepted by the anti-Semites.

The Minister proved himself equal to a homily on tolerance, but the fanatics stirred up strife, and a number of duels between Jewish and Christian students have been the result of the sculptor's accident. The priest followed this up by demanding that the poems of Kiss, a coreligionist whose genius we had not heard of before, and those of a certain poet named Shakespeare, should not be printed in the reading books used in the state schools. On the lines of a witty Frenchman's saying, we are inclined to ask, If Shakespeare is put on the Index, why Kiss? And, if Kiss is to be tabooed, why Shakespeare? Or has Father Molnar got a new theory on Shylock? Anyway, the coupling of names is to the advantage of Herr Kiss.—Jewish World.

Borough of Richmond

The nuptials of Louis Cohen and Marie Uran were solemnized last Sunday in the Temple, which was beautifully decorated with flowers and plants on the occasion. Rev. Dr. R. Benjamin, assisted by Rev. Irving Walkovics, pastor of B'nai Jeshurun, and the choir, performed the ceremony. After the ceremony a fine banquet was served in the home of the bride's father, which nearly 100 guests participated in. Toasts were said by Dr. Benjamin, Philip Schwartz, etc. The utmost feeling prevailed and the occasion long be remembered by the friends and relatives who had the pleasure to witness it. Among those invited to the marriage feast we noticed the Messrs. G. and Isaacs families; the Messrs. G. with their wives, Mr. Margolies, Mr. Mrs. Susseles and the Misses Susseles. Mr. P. Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. Aberle, the members of the Uran and Cohen families, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. I. Walkovics, Julius Schwartz and many others.

Divine services on Sabbath Nachamod were conducted by the newly elected cantor, Rev. Irving Walkovics, assisted by the choir. The unanimous verdict of the congregation was that the ritual was beautifully and most impressively rendered. It is intended by the president to organize a society for the promotion of a proper choral service in the synagogue. The members who have already signed the paper circulated pledged themselves to contribute so much per month toward the expense of the choir. Thus far all who have been asked have responded. Here are the names of the subscribers up to Aug. 13: P. Schwartz, A. Mord, P. Susseles, M. Mord, A. Isaacs, Dr. Geo. Mord, Julius Schwartz, A. R. Gold. We will publish the names of additional members in the next issue. To worship God with gladness and solemnity was and always will be the aim of the true orthodox. The noisy, disorderly and obnoxious features which distort and disgrace the idea of a divine service are neither Jewish nor orthodox. We don't want reform, but we want progress, and we are going to have it.

MUSIC.

In that most suggestive and stimulating book, "The Prose of Edward Rowland Sill," I find a brief essay on "Management of the Mind While Hearing Music," from which I cull these passages: "We do not need Wagner's aid to obliterate the musicians and fill the stage with impressive scenery. In a moment at will we are reclining in a stately pine forest on a solitary mountain side. Behind us tower great crags with fluted columnar front, like nature's organ pipes. Below and to the left follows a piny gorge, blue with misty depth, up whose slope from round the mountain's enormous flank swells the sound of falling torrents. Beyond the granite ridge to the right goes down a broken footpath to a hidden valley, where some momentous human passion play begins now to be enacted. Or we are drifting on the ocean, and a storm is subsiding. All night we have driven before the tempest, and now at the first glimmer of dawn we strain our sight into the darkness, and listen for the roar of breakers. Suddenly the sound of all sweet and powerful instruments rises and mingles as if from the very depths of the rolling sea. Have the forces of nature become audible in their battling together? Or have we drifted into the midst of a strife of mortal destinies, and is this the prelude to a mighty drama of the nations on the shores of some new world?"

Richard Eckhold, who is to share with Amando Sepilli the duties of conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House during the English season, had control of the first production in English of "Die Meistersinger," "Die Walkure" and "Tristan und Isolde," when they were given by the Carl Rosa Opera Company in 1894. Mr. Eckhold was a violinist in the orchestra of the Royal Opera House at Dresden and played in some of the Bayreuth performances under the composer. It is the intention of the management to give three evening performances a week at the Metropolitan Opera House with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Over five hundred applications for places in the chorus have been received, chiefly from young men and women engaged in the study of music here. The body of the chorus will be composed of the singers with the organization at the American last Winter.

The critic of London Truth believes that "the present impaired condition of M. Jean de Reszke's voice is temporary, but expresses the belief that the organ will never again be what it was when Americans first heard it. The great tenor has been singing in London since 1873, and his career must naturally soon close." Scheint die Sonne noch so schön, einmal muss sie untergehn.'

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
