The World's Great Want.
They are trying to arrange it so that man may safely fly!
They are trying to learn more about the stars up in the sky;
They are digging up old ruins so that each of us may know
Just what people did for pleasure and for profit long ago;
Here and there is some one trying to revive the love of art,
Here and there some poet bravely sings a song that's from the heart.
But away with art and science and the Babylonian brick;
What we want is some sure way in which to get rich quick.
Men are fighting still for freedom, fighting still to have the right
To address their God unhindered when they kneel to pray at night;
They are chafing 'neath oppression as their fathers did before;
They are tugging at the fetters which their luckless parents wore;
Here and there some man arises and attempts to let us know
How to make fair Peace forever the sweet mistress here below.
But we have no time to bother over such affairs; we stick
To the hope of finding ways in which to get rich quick.
The preachers keep on preaching of the glories over there
Where the hoodlers cease from troubling and the prospects all are fair;
The anxious, eager doctors keep on striving to defy
Grim Nature and arrange it so that people needn't die;
But away with all the dreamers and the foolish ones who preach.
Who cares what the stars are made of or what ancient tablets teach?
We are looking for the hero who will show us all the trick,
Who will kindly point the way in which to get rich quick.

Leon Sanders.

The self-made man is the cornerstone of the State, for in his career is exhibited enterprise and endeavor; traits the possession of which is a necessity to success in either the individual or the community.

Leon Sanders, the subject of this biography, is a particular striking example of what a poor foreigner can accomplish, when to his other admirable qualities of heart and mind is added an indomitable spirit of perseverance that nothing seems able to daunt.

Leon Sanders is the son of Nathan Sanders, a merchant of the City of Odessa, Russia, where the son was born on the 25th day of May, 1857. His earliest education was had in the Gymnasium in his native City of Odessa, followed, after his removal to this country, by a course in the public schools of New York City and at the hands of private tutors. After thus preparing himself for classics, literature and the sciences he took a course in the New York Law School, where he gave ample evidence of his possession of the marked talents that have enabled him to rise so rapidly since he entered upon the active practice of his chosen profession. Prior to his legal course, however, he was a clerk in the banking house of Drake, Mastin & Co. and was later bookkeeper with Bauman Brothers and with the Edison General Electric Company, which latter corporation he left to accept a place with the Commissioner of Jurors in New York City.

On his being admitted to the Bar of New York with honorable mention, on the 8th day of November, 1895, he resigned his clerkship in the Commissioner of Jurors's office, where he had served from May 1890 until December 1895, fulfilling the duties of the position with fidelity and satisfaction during the daytime and devoting his evenings to the study of law under the able guidance of George H. McAdam.

Mr. Sanders is well known as one of the leaders of Tammany Hall in the Twelfth Assembly District and as an orator and ready debater has won such renown that his services have been much sought during the campaigns through which his party has passed since he became closely identified with its interests.

He was elected to the Legislature from the Twelfth Assembly District in New York County, serving the people of the State of New York in Legislatures of 1899, 1900, 1901 and 1903. During these four years he has introduced many measures affecting the people of this State and City. In the fall of 1903 he refused to accept a renomination to the Legislature, saying that he could no longer neglect his practice and go to Albany on a salary of $1,500. The Legislature of 1903 created a new court called the 13th District Municipal Court of the City of New York and the Democratic party nominated Mr. Sanders for this office to which the people subsequently elected him for a term of ten years, commencing January 1, 1904.

In social circles too Mr. Sanders has been allied with many of the best known organizations in the city, prominent among which are: Perfect Ashler Lodge No. 604, F. & A. M.; Arcurus Chapter O. E. S.; Script Lodge K. of P.; Emanuel Piske Lodge I. O. B. A.; Leon Sanders Lodge, I. O. F. S. of I.; Leon Sanders Lodge I. O. B. A.; New Social Club; Democratic Club; Thomas Jefferson Association; Columbian Club; First Hungarian Congregation Ohab Zedek; Monte fiore Home; Young Men's Hebrew Association, Mt. Sinai Hospital; Lebanon Hospital; Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society and N. Y. Orphan Asylum; Leon Sanders Association (which, named after him, occupies the handsomely furnished Club House at 166 Pitt Street) and a number of other charitable and benevolent institutions.

On the 10th of November, 1894, Mr. Sanders was married to Miss Bertha Fisher, an estimable young lady of New York, and now finds his greatest happiness in laying aside the cares of business and professional cares of most holy silence in the room, inspiring nature without, everything seemed festive in the eyes of the awakening youth; just as he himself felt. Today he is to celebrate his bar mitzvah, to day at last the day has come, which he so fervently has longed for. Already months, yes years ago he had looked forward to this day with pleasure, to the period which means a turning-point in his life, the first station of his earthly existence. There are more of such important incidents in the life of a Jew, but none is so important, of such consequence as the Barmitzvah-day. It is difficult to describe the Barmitzvah because everyone celebrates it in his own way, according to his circumstances and according to the degree of his and his parents' religious belief. The last point is the most important. Because the Barmitzvah day is the day which means a turning-point in our religious life. From the day following the completeness of his thirteenth year the Jew is obliged to obey all laws prescribed to us. That is why we celebrate a festival. The vows to God, to his parents and to himself, to faithfully fulfill the obligations demanded of him from this day. May he keep his vow! Then he, the hero of the day, is not aware, how difficult this is, he does not as yet know parents who do not deem it worth while to care just as much for the eternal happiness of their children as for the earthly, vicissitous, transitory happiness, who wish to educate them "according to the times," "modern," who allow them to learn everything, but no Torah, who deny them the most necessary, the heavenly fare. The children grow up without any religious belief and resemble thus "the heath in the desert, and shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched plains in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited."—Jeremiah xvii, 6.

Blessed are the parents who intelligently watch over the interests of those entrusted to their care by Him, in whose hands our fate lies, by sowing into the hearts of their beloved ones the costly seed of the Torah, by awaking the noble germs of virtue, by implanting the tree of life; blessed be they, blessed in this and in the world to come. Their deeds will be rewarded by bearing fruit and they will have pleasure from their children. These will resemble a "tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out its roots by the river, and shall not see the heat cometh, but its leaf shall be green and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit"—Ibid, 7. If parents do their duty by their children, those who vow on their Barmitzvah-day to obey God's laws, will be true to their vow. This is not at all so difficult as a prophet in Israel says: "Not alone must thou complete thy work, but thou must also not shun it. If thou hast studied the Torah, thou receivedst a good reward. Thy employer is tried that he will give you the reward of thy labor—and know: The reward of the just is received in the world to come!"

Whoever takes this to heart and acts accordingly, will have fulfilled his vocation as a member of God's chosen people.

Happiness.

The road to home happiness lies over small stepping-stones. Slight circumstances are the stumbling-blocks in families. The prick of a pin, says the proverb, is enough to make an empire insipid. The tenderer the feeling the more painful the wound. A cold, unkind word checks and withers the blossom of the dearest love, as the most delicate rings on the vine are troubled by the faintest breeze. The mystery of life is born of a chance observation. If the true history of quarrels, public and private, were honestly written, it would be silenced by an uproar of derision.

Even a poor man who hasn't a dollar may be well off as long as he doesn't marry.

District of the City of New York.

The Importance of the Bar Mitzvah.

Translated from the German by Dr. Maurice C. Levy.

It was a beautiful summer morning. The sun had already risen on the horizon and was sending its rays from the laughing heaven to the mortals. It penetrated with its golden lance the window of a small room and awakened a dreaming youth, who, raising himself, looked about.

Wonderful, how everything appeared changed to-day! Everything made a solemn impression; the intense, al

the dangers of temptation, he has not as yet become familiar with the conditions of life. Candid and harmless the youth is, he does not believe that he may be placed in a position where he might without scruples deem it proper, to shake off the yoke of obeying the laws.

The greatest influence on the religious feeling of the child the parents exercise. They lead and guide the thoughts, like a driver his team. The following always applies: The conduct, at times the occupation, even the customs of children resemble in small things those of the parents. Some proverbs, for instance,

"Wie die Alten singen,
So zwitchern die Jungen."

and others refer thereto. Woe to the Children's Column.

And I travel far and wide.

Each time I rush upstairs,

I hurry again to the top,
Oh, my, it is such fun!
For this is the train

Once more I am off like a flash

I am sure you would guess

The Rabbi's Advice to Obtain Real Happiness.

The motto of Rabban Ben Zoma, "that man should rejoice with his portion" (ethics of the Fathers, chapter 4-1), was allegorized by one of the Rabbis of old by the following tale:

Rabbi Eliezer, an accomplished scholar and one of those very good natured and benevolent men of the old school, sat one day busily engaged in his study to solve some knotty problems of the Talmud when a lady was announced who wished to see him very particularly. She was admitted and related a most wonderful tale of her great sufferings. There was almost no end to her misfortune. Fate seemed to conspire with her enemies against her. The burden of life was too heavy to bear, and she wished the Rabbi to come to her relief.

The Rabbi listened patiently to her long tale of woe and was soon convinced that her lot was not materially different from that of hundreds of thousands of people, and that her troubles and sufferings were even mild in comparison with the trials of others. That they were mostly aggravated and intensified by her natural melancholy temperament and by the wrong belief that a kind providence should send us only a little of everlasting bliss and sunshine of constant happiness and prosperity.

The Rabbi demonstrated to her that life is to a great extent what we ourselves make it; that, excepting calamities, accidents and unusual occurrences, our lives can be comfortable and happy despite some unpleasant experiences, which seem rather to enhance its value. That we esteem health much more if sickness now and then overtakes us. Likewise, if we enjoy life much more pleasantly, if once in a while privation or hardship step in and disturb us for a while. But all the Rabbi's arguments, all his reasoning, was in vain. She wanted something else to assuage her troubles; she wanted some good and wholesome advice to alleviate her mental sufferings; her heart longed for some remedy to soothe her grief, and for some one to conjure her fate so as to give her the more anxiety or distress.

"That is almost impossible," reported the Rabbi. The lady, however, was very obstinate. She was not so easily put off. Yes, she even intimated that she had surely expected something more from his kindness and wisdom. She believed that he could grant her wish if he would only exert himself a little more in her behalf, and sympathetically begged of him to do so.

"Very well," said the Rabbi, who plainly saw that sound and good reasoning had no effect on her. "There is yet one remedy which you could try. It is a secret I possess, and which I will impart to you. Should you succeed in obtaining what I am about to mention, you would henceforth lead a happy life, and never again meet with any trouble or misfortune. Then you will find only roses in your pathway and never more be troubled by the thorns which so often hurt your weary fingers."

"That is just what I so long wished for my dear and good Rabbi," she exclaimed. "I knew that you could and would give me good counsel. And may I ask what is this great secret?"

"It is very simple," said the Rabbi, "if you could only succeed in your undertaking. You must try to find a very kind-hearted woman who is herself perfectly happy, and never afflicted with any sorrow or distress. Then ask her, as an act of kindness and charity, to make for you an undergarment, which is similar in kind, and happy woman shall have measured and cut, for you. Or, what is still more effective, if that woman would lend you such a garment which she herself was wearing, you would have then obtained the very object you so long sought for. By wearing that garment you would never experience either grief, trouble or sorrow."

"Many thanks, many thanks to you, dear Rabbi," replied the poor and distressed woman. "I fancy that such a simple thing will not be so difficult to obtain." And in this very happy mood she went her way homeward.

On her way, and while she was considering to which of her many friends she would apply for that kind act of benevolence, she passed a little hut. She noticed in front of the entrance a woman that looked the very picture of good health, with rosy cheeks, a cheerful smile, and a kind and benevolent look upon her face, who was playing, singing and beating with her little babe. "Ah, that must surely be a happy woman," our lady friend thought, "and there is no doubt that but what she has and will surely help me." Approaching the happy mother, and after saluting her very politely, she ventured to say, "My dear good woman, could I borrow of you your undergarment for a very charitable purpose? If I can, God will surely reward you a thousand times for it."

"Very gladly would I let you have it, my good woman, if I only could," was the answer, "but I do not wear such a garment. I did so in former years; but for a long, long time I have been obliged to learn to be without it, as well as many and many other things that could be dispensed with. I am indeed too poor to buy such articles, and I find that the less I need the less I feel the lack of the things that I cannot get."

Sadly disappointed, the lady left the hut and went to one of her friends, who was generally considered to be very happy and contented. After explaining to her the object of her visit and the real purpose of her request, she was greatly amazed at receiving the following answer:

"Certainly, my dear good friend, such an insignificant favor I would never refuse to you, or any one else. But I fear very much, may I am almost sure, that my services would not avail you in the least. For I too am many times a prey to sorrow and grief. You look somewhat astonished at my saying to you the very truth, but what good will, or can, come from bothering your friends with a tale of your grievances and disappointments, if they cannot either alter your circumstances, or wipe away your tears? The better plan is to keep up one's spirits, bear with fortitude the unavoidable burdens of life, and find consolation in the thought that there are others whose sufferings are still much greater."

Not yet satisfied, she went to several other friends with the same request, but invariably she received a similar answer. And one lady friend in particular, to whom she had confided about her visit to the Rabbi and the counsel obtained from him, advised her to discontinue any further effort in that direction. "Surely," she said, "it would take a lifetime to find some one who is perfectly happy, without either sorrow, trouble or pain, were it possible ever to find one, which I doubt very much. You had better be reconciled to your lot, submit to the inevitable, and receive with filial love whatsoever comes from the hand of our Creator."

At last the truth commenced to dawn upon her mind. She perceived now, the wisdom of the Rabbi's good advice, which was given to convince her that no one is perfectly happy, so long as he sojourns on this side of the grave, and determined to be no longer dissatisfied with her lot, but to bear the cares and sorrows of this life, with good grace and fortitude.

She again went to the Rabbi, thanked him kindly for his good and noble advice, and from that day she was happy and contented.—Exchange.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY
AND MAKE MONEY
(Economy is Wealth)

We have a credit department where you may deposit as much or as little as you please. You get four per cent. interest as against the usual three or three and a half per cent. You withdraw your money any day—without a minute's notice. There is no banking business, no drawing of cheques to tempt you to spend the money at random.

Whatever you buy at Macy's can be charged up to your account and a monthly statement is rendered to you. Thus you combine the conveniences of a credit system with Macy's low cash prices, and you get four per cent. on your money besides.

R. H. Macy & Co. sell only for cash. You who buy save the money that other stores lose on bad debts and expensive bookkeeping departments. We buy for cash, sell for cash; we buy and sell at the lowest prices made possible by the biggest retail dealings in the world. You get the benefit of our saving, and you get the benefit of the needs of manufacturers who must offer the best inducements to a cash establishment.

Get the details at our credit department in our new great store, 34th to 35th street on Broadway. Write a letter, or better, visit and examine the marvellous and greatest of American retail enterprises, the original department store, and now the greatest retail enterprise in the world.

Let the wise housewife, the conscientious, sensible mother think over this proposition:—

Various sums are received for household use. Sometimes the money comes from rents, mortgages, stocks, in the shape of dividends. More often it comes as wages or salary.

That money can be deposited with Macy's and draw interest from the moment it is deposited. As goods are actually required, they can be purchased and charged to the account. Every dollar that is not spent is always drawing interest.

And at Macy's everything can be purchased, and everything of the highest quality, and at less expense than elsewhere.

We instituted our cash system for the benefit of our best customers, the provident, far-seeing, who pay as they go. Such customers will always be customers, and we think of them in all our plans, giving the best inducements in quality and price. As a further benefit for such permanent custom we have instituted this credit department. There your money draws compound interest; it settles your bills. It literally works for you while you work at home or shop at the world's greatest store.

The speaker at the religious exercises last Friday evening was Mrs. Daniel P. Hays, who spoke on "Religion." Her talk was beautiful, and it is seldom that a Sabbath evening has had so much sanctity and piety in the atmosphere. The girls were enthralled and deeply touched. Many who had not lighted their Sabbath candles heretofore went home pledging themselves to see that it was done or to do so themselves when the loving mother's care was absent from their home life. The speaker this week will be Mr. Eugene Lehman.

A Sunday school has been organized, and any Jewish child in the vicinity is welcome on Sunday mornings at 10 a. m. Next Sunday evening, Jan. 17, a musical entertainment will be given under the direction of the Misses Raphael. It is open to the general public.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.

Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue.
The concert and lecture given on Tuesday evening, Jan. 12, was undoubtedly a great success. The artists who appeared on the music programme preceding the lecture were Mr. Arthur H. Gutman, piano; Miss Fredericke Raymond, soprano, and Mr. Carl Grienauer, cellist. The lecture was delivered by Dr. Lyman Abbott, on "Ideals." Dr. Abbott was enthusiastically greeted and his lecture thoroughly enjoyed.

The family and friends of the late Edward C. Stone, desiring to perpetuate his memory, have asked the association to create a memorial fund, and a considerable sum of money has been contributed, insuring the success of the movement. The income is to be used for the establishment of annual prizes to encourage the various literary societies of the Y. M. H. A.

On Sunday evening, Jan. 31, Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, of Chicago, will deliver an address. A short concert programme is being arranged for this occasion.

The lectures under the auspices of the Board of Education have been resumed. One course consists of eight lectures on art and one course of lectures on European geography. The evenings are respectively Wednesday and Saturday.

On Sunday evening, Jan. 17, there is to be an entertainment for the benefit of the Vacation Camp. The Thesplan Players' Club is to render a dramatic programme. A slight charge will be made for admission.

Lafayette Club.

Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue.
The Lafayette Social Club, the largest club in the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Ninety-second street and Lexington avenue, held their first public debate with the Waverly Club, a very popular and successful debating society. The Lafayette Social Club is essentially a social club, having held numerous entertainments in the building, and their monthly socials for members only has been the talk of the building. Therefore it was quite a surprise when they entered the debating field. While the debate was won by the Waverly Club, represented by Messrs. Newman and Berg, the Lafayettes are proud because Mr. Mitchell, superintendent of the building, in complimenting them on their excellent showing, declared that our club made the best showing of any club of the season. The Lafayettes were represented by Messrs. Cohn and Wattenburg. The subject was: "Resolved, That labor unions are a benefit to the country," and the Lafayette Social Club upheld the negative.

A Tribute to Ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland.

At the down town Sabbath School, 267 Henry street, a pathetic little incident took place last Sabbath afternoon.

When the children, some three or four hundred in number, were assembled for the closing exercises, they were spoken to about the sad bereavement that had befallen ex-President Cleveland and his wife in the death of their little daughter, Ruth. The children had evidently all heard the sorrowful story, and listened with sympathetic interest.

Miss Annette Kohn's poem, "The Epitaph," (published in The Independent a few years ago),
 "An angel up in heaven dreamed,
 Around the throne of God was space
 That not quite full of glory seemed,
 And came to earth to fill the place.

"He looked among the pure and good,
 To find a name of high emprise—
 Then gently, as an angel would,
 He touched her brow and sealed her eyes."

was read to them.
 Then the children were asked to rise and repeat the following prayer:
 "O, Good Lord, take Thou the soul of little Ruth Cleveland into thy safe keeping, forever."

Whereas, We have heard with profound regret of the demise of our honored member, the Rev. Moses Lublinsky, Cantor Emeritus of Congregation Zichron Ephrayim, we herewith desire to give expression to the following sentiments, and to add a few words of tribute to his memory.

The Rev. Moses Lublinsky was an upright man, a modest Israelite, a sincere and true friend and an able and efficient cantor; he was an ideal representative of the "Shleesch Tzibbur," the "Messenger of the Congregation," for, by the purity of his character, his deep piety, his faithfulness and gentleness of disposition, he endeared himself to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance—especially to the members of his congregation, in whose heart he erected for himself a monument which even time cannot efface.

Resolved, That as a tribute of lasting

There is some little truth in the wildest of speculation.
 Bread may be the staff of life, but art is the wing of the soul.
 The children of genius are cheapened by frequent parade.
 Poetic possessions are the richest to one who has a soul.
 Man's first trouble was to lose his title to a garden.

The dinner which was given at the Unity Club on Tuesday last to Nathan S. Jones by the directors of the Jewish Hospital was a great success. The speakers all had something complimentary to say of their honored guest, who had done so much toward the founding of the institution. The next event at the club will be a complimentary dinner to County Clerk Kaufmann, which will be given on Thursday evening, Jan. 21. Among the guests who have been invited are Senator Patrick H. McCarren, Borough President Martin W. Lytleton, Comptroller Edward M. Grout and all of the county officers.

Jewish Charities to Have Monster Benefit.

Arrangements have been completed for the grand charity concert to be given on Jan. 31 in the Montauk Theatre, under the joint auspices of the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum, the Jewish Hospital and the Hebrew Educational Society. The affair promises to outshine, both in excellence of programme and the proceeds, anything of the nature that has occurred here in many years. The advance sale of seats almost assures the latter. All of the boxes have been sold at auction, the sale netting $1,600, while the majority of the seats have also been disposed of. It was originally intended to hold the concert in the Academy of Music, but the destruction of that building by fire necessitated the change to the Montauk Theatre.

Chairman Nathan S. Jones of the committee in charge declared yesterday that the prospects are that the Brooklyn record of $7,000, made at one of Patti's concerts, will be broken at the charity concert, which will take the place of the annual Hebrew charity ball.

The merit of the affair may be known when it is stated that the New York Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, will be heard for the first time in this borough. Mme. Suzanne Adams of the Metropolitan Opera House, and Thibaud, the violinist, who has been setting the musical world astir since his arrival in the country, as well as David Bispham, barytone, will be the soloists, and Andre Benoist will act as accompanist. Several thousand dollars have been expended by the committee, and it is expected that this outlay will be trebled by the receipts.

Beside Nathan S. Jones, chairman, Moses J. Harris, secretary, and Nathaniel H. Levi, treasurer, the committee in charge of the concert is composed of Moses May, Morris Adler, Edward Kaufmann, Abraham Abraham, Louis L. Figuski, David Nusbaum and Simon F. Rothschild.

Cassia's Memorial Service.

That the dead are remembered is attested at Temple Beth Elohim, Keap street, by Cassia Lodge, No. 445, of Free and Accepted Masons. It was a distinctive feature of the tripartite observances of the semi-centennial of the lodge, which was inaugurated Thursday evening in the lodge room and will terminate tomorrow in the feast to be partaken of at Prospect Hall, on Prospect place. The pulpit of the Temple was appropriately decorated with palms, ferns and vines. Seats on the platform were occupied by R. W. Everett E. Wheeler, D. D. G. M. of the Second District; R. W. Horace C. Sawtelle, the Rev. Dr. Leopold Wintner, the Rev. J. D. Kennedy, one of the R. W. Grand Chaplains of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York; R. W. Phillip H. Lustig, W. Brother Max Dreyfuss, Chairman of the Semi-Centennial; W. Brother Herman S. Bachrach and the officers of the lodge. The Chaplain, the Rev. Dr. Wintner, read the 418th Psalm, which referred to the stone rejected by the builders, which became the chief stone of the corner. He followed with an earnest invocation, at the conclusion of which the brethren, who were standing, exclaimed, "So mote it be."

The Master, Worshipful Brother Bachrach, made an eloquent introductory address, in which he declared that the exercises would be meaningless if, while they were thinking of the dead, they did not also give their thoughts to the living, and exercise that charity for which the order of Free and Accepted Masons had ever stood.

Benjamin Wechsler contributed an artistic solo, on the violin, entitled "Largo." The mystic song was solemnly intoned twelve times by Worshipful Brother Dreyfuss, after which R. W. Brother Lustig read the list of deceased members of the lodge who had passed

English Grand Opera Season at the Amphion.

Henry W. Savage's English Grand Opera Company that recently packed the Academy of Music for a month with its attractive repertoire of grand opera in English, is announced for a return engagement to Brooklyn for one week at the Amphion Theatre, beginning Monday, Jan. 18. This organization stirred Brooklyn music lovers during its Academy engagement as they had not been in years, and the coming week will witness a repetition of its great success. The repertoire has been arranged as follows: "Lohengrin," Monday night and Saturday matinee; "Carmen," Tuesday night; "Il Trovatore," Wednesday matinee and Friday night; "Tannhauser," Wednesday night; "Othello," Thursday night; "Bohemian Girl," Saturday night.

Rapid Transit is very slow these days in greater New York.

A pure life is its own reward, as a
noble deed brings its own compensa-

pipes freeze or burst.

There are not so many mixed marriages in America as in Germany among those Jews who figure in the commu-

ties. We are duly thankful for that.

The editor looked in vain for his

an oversight.

That the Russian government should deign to treat at all with an American
newspaper shows that public opinion
counts for something after all, even
with a powerful and cruel and autocratic government.

We are in receipt of several Chanu-
kah plays and sketches, also of a brochure on Zionism by Albert M. Friedenberg, all published by Bloch & Co.
We find in all these an effort to supply needed literature for our people.

It makes a wonderful difference if
one is a "confidence man" on a small scale. If his operations involve a considerable sum of money and the devi-
ous methods tolerated by Wall Street
financiering, they are hard to be reached by the law and its minions.

Does the Chicago horror teach only
that the municipal ordinances safeguarding the public in theatres should be enforced, while other laws are being violated with impunity; subjugating the people at every turn to great risk and danger? Look all around you while you are at it.

The Immigration Commission in England during its recent inquiry discovered that its small Jewish immigrant population far from threatening
the peace and security of the native
industrial classes, increased the means
of cheapening many commodities and introduced new manufactures where
by new fields of labor were opened up
for that general welfare.

וְאַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל הִשְׁמַע לַיהוָה וְלֹא תִשְׁמַע לְפָרְעוֹ

"And Moses spoke before the Lord, saying, behold the children
of Israel have not hearkened unto
me, how then shall Pharaoh hear
me?"—Exodus vi, 12.

We read in the preceding chapters,
how Moses came to Egypt and saw the elders of Israel, telling them, and the people of his mission, how they bowed
to him and heard him with reverence.
But after he had appeared before Pharaoh who repelled him and laid on the Hebrews even heavier burdens, they would not hearken again unto Moses.
Then the Lord sent Moses again to Pharaoh to tell him that the Lord
wanted him to send away Israel that they might serve their God. With what bitterness did Moses protest we can only surmise, as he says, "Behold,
the children of Israel have not heark-
ened to me, how then will Pharaoh
listen to me?"

True, the people were tired and worn out by hard work. Besides, the first attempt of Moses appeared to them as
a failure and added to their burden,
yet had they listened to Moses and
continued in their trust in God, who knows but that they would have been
somewhat sooner redeemed, but suffice
it to say that they did not continue in their faith and refusing to hear Moses,
it was very timely when he said,
"Israel hath not heard me, how will Pharaoh listen to me?"

Pharaoh's standpoint Moses could easily understand. He could well see why the Egyptian king would refuse to let Israel, the people that worked
for him and his state as slaves, go away. But that people from whom he sprang, for whom he had sighed these
forty years and meditated and studied
their condition all the time that he was in self-imposed exile in Midian,
—to whom he came with a message
from the Most High, and in whose behalf he gave his best service and all
his time—that they should not as much as hearken to him, that he could not understand; but the Lord pressed
it upon Moses to go regardless of the people and he went. Eventually Pharaoh yielded, Israel was redeemed and
the mission of Moses realized as God
had willed and designed it.

How do we find Israel now refusing to hear the messengers of God? not because they are held slaves by Pharaoh or any other tyrant, but because
greed and avarice holds them enthralled in their talons. In vain does the Moses of to-day cry that God's will
with respect to man's freedom and Judaism is God's will, it is the covenant between God and Israel, but Israel will not, cannot hear it. Thus we have messengers of God (7) who have
the houses erected and dedicated to the propagation of Israel's religion filled
with non-Jews, speaking to them elo-quently of what? of God and His word? For that the Gentile would not come. If Israel would not hear him, surely the non-Israelite would not give ear to him. Accordingly
Shakespeare, Byron, Pope, Darwin, Huxley, Spencer and such men are ectured about, the latest novel or other sensational literature furnishes the theme. The pulpit that has been consecrated from which to propagate
Judaism is converted into a platform
(we almost wanted to say stage,) having in mind the histrionic style of the

speaker who declaims according to the rules of Delsa le

Our brethren, like Israel in Egypt,
once bowed in deep reverence before
the modern types of Moses—before God's word which he proclaimed, but they think that it does not pay to be
religious, it does not add to their coffers, and accordingly, they will not
hearken again to the message of God.

When Moses proclaimed that message it denoted freedom and liberty, so
is Judaism the same message denoting
freedom—perfect freedom and sweet liberty, but we put the yoke on ourselves and deprive ourselves of that freedom which God has given us. All our time and our labors are taken up
by running and chasing after filthy
lucre, we neglect the religious education of our children, we are faithless
to our own principles, we openly and avowedly violate God's commandments, and yet we are to be the teachers of mankind.

What shall we teach others? The love of God? We do not love Him ourselves. Faithfulness to religion?
We are most faithless ourselves. Shall
we urge them to respect our religion?
We do not do it ourselves. Yes, we can well say: "The children of Israel
have not hearkened unto me, how
then shall Pharaoh hear me?"

Safety of Theatres.

It is certainly commendable upon
the part of our municipal authorities
to see to it that the theatres of this city should be made as safe, from the danger of fire, as possible, and that every means should be applied to pre-tect the audience. We believe that the managers, in most instances, will be glad to co-operate with the public
authorities in effecting this result.

It may true that with ample exit
and egress from the auditorium, the loss of life could be greatly lessened,
but it will be readily admitted by
those who have been observant of
these disasters, that the panic which
seizes an audience upon such occasions
makes it incapable of reaching the very exits which are thrown open for its escape. If any one who is a theatre-goer will, for a moment, call to mind the snail's pace in which an audience moves towards the doors on normal occasions, and how slowly a theatre discharges its occupants, he
will quickly realize what must inevitably happen at a time of excitement.
With a narrow aisle into which those
who are leaving the cross-seats move.
It takes a long while to reach the street
from the centre of the house at any time.

Let there be an alarm of fire, and the women become hysterical and the men lose their heads, many are just
apt to move towards the proscenium
as towards the exit. It is the excitement and the choking of the aisles
with a human blockade that brings
about the large loss of life. If there could be a fire-drill and an orderly
departure things would be different.

People who become frenzied at these
times are, as we have said, just as apt
to run away from an exit as towards
it, and with all the precautions that can be taken, and which certainly
should be taken to bring the loss of life to a minimum, the excitement of
a fire in a theatre brings about a condition that results in a large loss of life which all improvements cannot prevent, but which may minimize the disaster.

A Poor System.

Our congregational schools are exceedingly faulty. At first blush this generalization would seem unwarranted. A great deal of money is being spent on the Sunday Schools of the very large congregations. The best available teachers are brought into requisition and everything looks favorable for the instruction of the children. The value of the impressions gained during the course at one of these schools must be judged and estimated by the influence exercised upon the wards for all future time. And for the average child this is very slight.
Not only are the lessons taught and
learned soon forgotten, but the ethical moral benefit is scarcely perceptible in
the after life of the young man or woman. What is taught in the way
of morals is of such a wishy-washy
nature that a short period renders the instruction almost nugatory.

Much time is wasted in discipline.
The pupils are generally hindered in their work by the constant attention
paid by the teacher to the personal misconduct of a few unruly and insubordinate youngsters, who may be the heirs of some influential and
wealthy members of the congregation.
The results obtained during the very limited hours of instruction are not lasting. It stands to reason that as there is but little earnestness, a very inconsiderable headway can be made in the knowledge that constitutes Judaism. The children grow up spiritually on very weak nutriment, and if
their religious stamina later be found
weak it is not altogether their fault.
They have been taught poorly and insufficiently. We have a right to look for better things in that line
when the people of the congregation
will not regard the showy ceremony
of the confirmation rite the objective
goal of a course of instruction in the religious school.

Leo N. Levi.

A leader in Israel has fallen! One of Nature's noblemen has been called hence! Just as we go to press we learn of the death of Leo N. Levi, the President of the Order of B'nai Berith.
The Jews the world over, lose a great leader. In the full vigor of manhood,
imbued with ambitious desires to better the condition of the persecuted and
down-trodden of our race, and in the midst of his great work Leo N. Levi
has been called away from his busy
scenes of labor.

A man of powerful physique, remarkable mental acquirements, and possessed of all the attributes which
go to make up a man who is to lead
others, he is stricken in the prime of life.

His loss to the Order of B'nai Berith
is a severe one, none the less so to the cause of Judaism. Above all else, he was a Jew, and ever proud to proclaim
it. His writings tended to make our people feel proud of their lineage.

We offer to the Order of B'nai Berith
our sincere condolence, the Order
has gained strength and influence under the leadership of Leo N. Levi, short as that period was. His good works will long abide in the memory of the Brotherhood. May his soul rest in peace!

When asked for an opinion remember that a compliment is really wanted.

The Man in the Observatory.

VII.

Among the Republican district leaders in this city there is none more popular than Samuel Strasbourger, and justly so. Mr. Strasbourger has won his spurs. He has shown that he is possessed of the qualities and qualifications which are essentially necessary
in a man who undertakes to lead
others. In none of the districts of this city has there been a keener struggle for supremacy than in that of Mr.
Strasbourger's, and though many elements in his own party combined to defeat him for the leadership, he com-
bated all of them and was triumphantly elected, and in a manner which confirms his hold upon the district he represents in the Republican County Committee.

It is no easy task to maintain the Republican district organizations in this city, particularly, when the dominant party is in power, and during the recent quasi-Republican administration of Mr. Low, there wasn't a great deal of patronage to help along,
or give comfort to the local Republican organizations. Indeed, it is generally remarked that the Republican organization can always do better
with Tammany in power than with any so-called "Reform" or "Fusion"
party in control.

Recognizing Mr. Strasbourger's
worth, the County Committee has given him the distinguished honor of electing him Vice President of its body, a position which any man may feel proud to fill.

Mr. Strasbourger has also filled with an ability, which has been marked and
generally recognized, the office of Tax Commissioner in this city for the past two years. Those who have come in contact with him in the discharge of the duties of that office, have found
in him a dignified official and a man
who fully understood the task before
him, and who discharged his duties
with fidelity to the city.

No higher compliment could be paid
to him than his retention, by way of
a "hold over," by Mayor McClellan,
which tenure, we feel, will be merged
into an appointment ere long.

Mr. Strasbourger has a handsome presence, is young, modest, and possessed of an amplitude of social traits,
which gain for him a large measure of
popularity with those he comes in contact with.

With a long career of political activity before him, we feel that his present position is but a stepping stone to still higher honors.

Air-Castles.

The average New Yorker lives an entirely different home life from that
which his ancestors and even the last generation enjoyed. The cosy house
with all its attendant work and worry
of a domestic nature is slowly being changed by the advent of countless
apartment houses and modern flats.
These are veritable castles built into the air. The homely garden, tended
by the master of the house in imitation
of rustic pleasure, has disappeared.
The home of yesterday is becoming a
most expensive luxury, and very few people can afford that or the discom-
forts that have been done away with
by the new system. The domestic problem is made somewhat easier of
solution for the mistress of the apartment because there is less work, and
the ordinary servant-girl has a mortal
dread and a decided abhorrence for more labor than is compulsory.

SCIENCE OF SWEEPING.

How to Use and Take Care of a House Broom.

When using a broom don't sweep with your back—use your arms. Sweep in one direction with long light strokes. Sweep the carpet with the pile, not against it. Don't wait to sweep a room until it is dirty and smelly.

To keep an using an old smelly broom, wash it in the hottest kind of soap. Says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Not only does it wear the carpet, but it takes double the time and strength to do the sweeping.

When buying brooms get good firm ones, but as light as weight as possible. If one has a large house it takes time to keep a broom and change on each floor in order to do the carrying the outfit up and down stairs each time it is needed.

When not in use keep the broom hanging up. The hallway, where it is used and damp, is a good place. If there is no way to hang the broom by the handle, hang it through the handle or cut a notch around the upper part of the handle and tie a string around it.

Every woman should have an occasional bath in salt water not only to keep the broom in good condition, but to cleanse of the accumulated dirt and microbes. On this account new brooms are to be especially recommended, as they can be taken apart. The top of the broom is covered with the which serves as the handle. In the top of the broom is a tape of metal, into which water or a disinfecting fluid can be poured to moisten the broom.

A broom comes to slip over the broom when sweeping down the walls or sweeping a dusty piazza will be found a great convenience. Saw up, leg, shaped, canvas flannel and make a narrow belt. Work two buttonholes an inch and a half apart, one on each side of the seam. Stitch an inch wide casing on the underside, and run a stout tape through the buttonholes. When ready to use slip the leg over the broom, draw up the tapes and tie securely. A light weight flannel is easily washed. Keep brooms unbleached for the walls and colored for the porch, and when soiled, wash them.

How to Wash Black Satin. Take the white of an egg, four ounces of honey and a wine-glassful of gin. Blend these ingredients thoroughly and then wash the satin with the mixture, using a rather hard little brush. Next rinse it well in cold water, leave it to drain and while still quite damp iron on the wrong side.

How to Sterilize Drinking Water. Here is the latest recipe for sterilizing drinking water and killing off the typhoid germ: Put four drops of tincture of iodine in half a gallon of water and permit it to stand at least half an hour. By the end of that time it will be as harmless as distilled water. Many persons have not the facilities for making distilled water. Boiling it also entails a certain amount of trouble. In either case the water is flat and unpleasant to the taste. The few drops of iodine impart practically no taste to the amount of water they sterilize, and at the same time they answer every medicinal purpose.

How to Clean Fur. To clean fur take equal parts of salt and flour, mix and beat in the oven, taking care not to color the flour in doing so. With a clean piece of flannel rub this mixture into the fur, which must afterward be shaken and brushed till it is quite free of flour.

How to Make Marking Ink. Dissolve separately one ounce of nitrate of silver with one ounce and a half of good washing soda. Mix the solutions and collect and wash the precipitate in a filter. cupful of milk. Cut over slices of toasted bread.

"Fresh onion and beef, now rich in a week," an ancient dapper poet said. Slice the onions as thin as possible and place between slices of bread and butter. A lot of parsley helps to take away the odor from the breath.

How to Thicken the Eyebrows. To thicken the eyebrows and eyelashes apply vasoline or lanolin in which a small quantity of alumina has been mixed.

CARE OF HOUSE PLANTS.

How to Have a Thriving Garden in Winter.

Raising house plants is not a very difficult thing if one knows certain facts and gives sufficient attention to these, says the Brooklyn Times. Plants are frequently killed, not so much to their detriment and exposed to uneven temperature of drafts.

The room in which plants are raised should not be kept very warm in the day and allowed to become very cool at night. Giving enough water at regular times is of course the first requisite to success in plant culture. Most flowering plants need sunlight and therefore a sunny window protected from drafts is the best place to keep them. On the other hand, a fern needs light, but not sun, and therefore thrives best in windows on the shady side of the house. Coal gas and gas for heating are destructive to all growth of plants, and therefore to protect them these cover the plants with a covering per at night raised by some device, as not to touch the leaves. Magnolia ferns are found to grow best under glass globes.

Every day at as nearly the same time as you can manage water your plants. They will be grateful for the regularity, and as often as you can give the large plants, such as palms and rubber trees, a sponge bath with tepid water. It is most important to keep foliage free from dust. Plants too need fresh air as much as people, and therefore allow the window farthest from the plants to be open a little way at the top, being sure, however, to cover them if the change of temperature will be felt.

With attention to the above facts one may have a beautiful and thriving garden within doors all the year long.

How to Make Honey Muffs.

Take three cupfuls of sifted flour, add two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a small half teaspoonful level of salt; sift these well together, then rub in two ounces of butter, using a flexible knife, not the fingers; beat three eggs light; add to them a cup of strained honey and a cup of milk; mix to a smooth batter and bake in a moderate hot oven.

How to Stand in a Car.

One of the little women whose forbids them to depend on the straps of a trolley car when compelled to stand gives this advice: "If one will stand facing the side windows, with feet well apart to support the body, leaning slightly to the rear when the car starts, one may escape altogether any jerking or even perceptible motion. Recently I noticed when coming uptown in a crowded car the rolling about of the women in spite of the fact that they were hanging on to the straps, and their helpless condition has prompted me to give this little secret for their comfort. My arms are short, and I cannot depend upon the straps, but I can stand without moving, no matter how fast the car is going or how rough the road if I am not pushed out of my place by some one standing next to me."

How to Renovate Craps.

To renovate craps lay it on a table and cover it with a damp cloth; then pass a hot iron over the cloth as closely as you can without actually touching it. This treatment will freshen up the craps beautifully, for the steam will cause it to wrinkle just as it does when new.

How to Cure Dandruff.

Strong hair oil is recommended as a dandruff cure. It is said that shampooing the hair every two days with this and stimulating the hair by thorough brushing both before and after will cure the most obstinate cases of dandruff if used persistently.

How to Make Peppermint Cordial.

This cordial will keep for any length of time. Take one gallon of water, four and a half pounds of loaf sugar, two drams of the best oil of peppermint and a pint of gin. Boil the water and sugar together for twenty minutes, let stand till nearly cool, then add oil of peppermint and gin. Mix all together. When given cold pour into bottles and cork tightly. Smaller quantity may be made by halving the measurements.

How to Take Rust Out of Steel.

To take rust out of steel cover the steel with grease oil well rubbed in, and in forty-eight hours well polished lime they powdered and rub until all the rust disappears.

How to Make Borax Water.

Borax water is a good thing to have about the wash-tub. It is easily made. Pour a pint of boiling water over six tablespoonfuls of powdered crystallized borax and let it set cold. Then strain and bottle. The water will take just about the amount of borax, this being a saturated solution. Keep well corked so no dirt can enter.

How to Clean Vegetables.

A small scrubbing brush is unexcelled as a vegetable cleaner. The water in which vegetables are washed should be lukewarm, not icy cold, as many housekeepers think. There is no advantage in very cold water, and it is hard on the hands of the washer.

How to Make a Good Face Wash.

A prominent beauty expert recommends a woman whose skin is fine in texture and rarely roughened and irritated to use the following wash in place of soap and water on the face: Tincture of myrrh, five grains; rose water, 500 grains; tincture of benzoin, five grains; tincture of quillina, sufficient for emulsion. This, he says, should be applied to the face with a piece of fine linen. The face should be dried with a circular, upward movement, with a piece of fine, dry linen.

How to Clean a Blackened Ceiling.

When a white-washed ceiling has become blackened by the lamp, apply a layer of starch and water to it, allow it to dry, and when brushed off lightly the black will practically have disappeared.

How to Choose Furs.

Furs should be chosen according to the age of the wearer, so declare Parisian fashionable authorities. Thus Miss Baky should be wrapped in pure swan's down, while the maiden in her teens looks charming in soft chinchilla. Bands of ostrich feathers and dark beaver suits coquette young married women, while sable gives dignity to ladies of an "uncertain age."

How to Clean Brown Shoes.

Rub all over with a piece of clean white flannel wet in ammonia, do it once more, then polish with the usual brown liquid. They will look nicer than ever.

How to Cure Gout.

Nowadays doctors forbid gouty patients to eat any kind of sweet food, but recommend them to eat at least a dozen walnuts a day. There is no doubt that walnuts are most useful to gouty subjects or in cases of chronic rheumatism. The swelling goes down and pain decreases.

How to Make Invalids' Tea.

Make tea for an invalid with boiling milk instead of boiling water. It is much nicer and much more digestible if the milk really boils.

IN THE THEATRES.

Irving Place Theatre.

Some thirty years ago there was a German authoress of the name of Louise Muhlbach, whose so-called "historical" novels were the rage in Germany and America. Her stories contained a little history and a great deal of scandal, and you never knew where the former ended and the latter began. The author of "Liselott," the play produced in sumptuous style by Mr. Conried on Tuesday night, must have gone to the "Selige Muhlbach" for his main source of inspiration, though Sardou furnished him with a few ideas. Liselott is a simple and good little German princess, married to Phillip of Orleans, brother of the Grand Monarque, and when surrounded by the corrupt environment of the French court, her virtuous sentiments appeal with irresistible force to the galleries, while her outspoken preference for sauerkraut and fried sausages touch a responsive chord in the breasts of many of the worthy patrons of the Irving Place.

"Liselott" is superbly costumed, and is written by one Herr Stobitzer, to whom I am grateful for having given Hedwig von Ostermann a part which, in theatrical parlance, is "full of fat," and which she plays with infinite humor and abundant charm. This young actress, whom Berlin takes from us after this season, has grown greatly in the technic of her art, and her appearance was never more radiantly beautiful. For her sake, "Liselott" is perhaps worth while. That it will prove a popular success seems probable. It is very well acted.

Mr. Conried may soon produce Beyerlein's military drama, "Lappenstreich," in which certain phases of German army life are depicted so truthfully, that in many garrison towns the officers are not allowed to witness it. On Sunday night the play will be "Der Pfarrer von Kirchfeld."

Metropolis Theatre.

"Our New Minister," comes to Harlem after a two months' run at the American Theatre to the biggest business known in the history of that playhouse. The fun in this play is a sure cure for all the ills that flesh is heir to. It is as breezy and jolly an entertainment as has been seen at the Metropolis in many a day. The play is in three acts, and the scene is laid in Hardscrabble, N. H. In the cast are Ernest Hastings, Charles Stedman, Joseph Conyers, John Barker, Louis Pierce, John P. Brown, Fred Mower, Ethel Brooke Ferguson, Clara Rainford and Phila May.

Proctor's 23d Street Theatre.

At the head of a most attractive bill this coming week is the sketch entitled "The Smart Set," enlisting the services of the Four Otts, including Phil and Matthew Ott, of the famous Ott family. They have in their sketch, which is by "Foxy Grandpa," Joseph Hart, twenty minutes of rapid fire fun and brisk action. James B. Donovan, one of the old-time Irish comedians, has an entirely new collection of jests, with which to entertain the audience. McWatters and Tyson, two decidedly enterprising young people, appear at the head of a company of several players in an elaborate production that includes glimpses behind the scenes. Canfield and Carleton appear in a screamingly funny comedy sketch, based upon superstition, and entitled "The Hoodoo."

Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre.

"Lady Windermere's Fan," one of the smartest society dramas of the present day, has been selected by Mr. Proctor for presentation by the excellent stock company located at his Fifth Avenue Theatre. It will be the first time in some years that this play, with its scintillating comedy and careful dissection of human nature, has been presented in this city. Recognizing the value of the production, Mr. Proctor has provided an entirely new set of scenery, thoroughly in keeping with the ultra fashionable tone of the play. It will be excellently interpreted by Mr. Malcolm Williams, Miss Lotta Linthicum (who has made a decided success), Mr. Charles Lane, Miss Rose Stuart, Mr. Gerald Griffin, Miss Loretta Healy, and others.

Star Theatre.

Joe Welch, the famous delineator of Jewish character, whose name is known throughout the country, is being starred by Sullivan, Harris and Woods in a new play by Hal Reid, with the suggestive title of "The Peddler." It will be the attraction next week.

Israel Mandelkern.

Quite a number of our co-religionists are engaged in photography, many of whom are interested in the business less for art's sake than from a commercial standpoint.

Among these is Israel Mandelkern, portrait and illustrating photographer, who has recently opened one of the finest studios and galleries in Harlem at the corner of 111th street and Madison avenue.

Mr. Mandelkern loves the work and has produced some fine specimens of photographic illustrations of Hebrew characters taken from life and which have received the well-merited praise of recognized artists and publishers, among whom we mention the World's Work, Harper's Weekly, Harper's Monthly Magazine, Christian Herald, New York Tribune and the Hebrew Standard. As an illustrating photographer his work in delineating Jewish life and Jewish historical characters is unsurpassed, and a collection of these have been placed on exhibition permanently by the University Settlement.

Mr. Mandelkern is deeply absorbed in the portrait branch of the art and makes a specialty of children's portraits, having devoted considerable study to that particular branch.

He was born in Dubno, Russia, December 10, 1861, and is the son of Dr. Solomon Mendelken, a celebrated Orientalist and Hebrew scholar. He was educated and became a public school teacher in Odessa, where he attended the school of fine arts, and after teaching for two years came to America, locating in San Francisco, where he adopted photography as his profession. In 1889 Mr. Mendelken came to New York and worked in first class establishments such as those of Pach Bros., Aime Dupont, Sarony, learning the technical points of their work. In 1895 he opened a gallery down town, which became the art centre of the East side; this gallery is owned and is being conducted by his son, Robert Owen Mendelken, who has inherited his father's artistic temperament.

Third Avenue Theatre.

It only requires the name of Lincoln J. Carter to pack the Third Avenue Theatre next week to witness his "Eleventh Hour" company. The piece is said to be the author's masterpiece. "The cast is by far this season the best that has been sent out and the scenery and effects are said to be excellent. Some of the scenic settings include the old mill picturesquely set among the sturdy oaks and weeping willows, the Bismarck Garden at night, a railroad track scene and the drawing room of a millionaire. Miss Florence Willis does a very petite song and dance during the run of the play.

Proctor's 125th Street Theatre.

The capital farce, "Champagne and Oysters," adapted from the French by the late J. W. Shannon, is the main attraction at Proctor's 125th Street Theatre the coming week. The play was originally produced in this country at Daly's Theatre some years ago. Among those appearing in the company are Mr. Paul McAllister, Mr. Verner Clarges, Mr. H. Dudley Hawley, Miss Jessie Bonstelle, Miss Florence Reed, Mr. Sol Aiken, Mr. Charles M. Seay and a dozen others. Harlem audiences have taken very kindly to the "Proctor Plan."

No self-respecting man cares to make love to a girl who makes love to a pet dog.

Poet's Columns.

Time's Warning.

I am Time. Though men abuse me,
I that sin will lightly scan
If at last they only use me
For the common good of man.

Though for years they may be idle,
Though awhile they doubt or dream,
I my righteous wrath will bridle
If their folly they redeem.

Let them have a while of pleasure,
Let them have a time of rest;
But, remember, I will measure
Every soul—the final test.

Let them sin if sin be pleasant;
Let them dream instead of toil,
Wasting all the golden present,
Storing not the wine and oil.

Let them rest while others travail,
Play while others agonize
Over truths they would unravel
That the truth may make them wise.

But remember that disaster
Will attend their fatal lack;
I am Time, and I am master;
None can turn the dial back.

Be they Adam, Cæsar, Hector,
Be they Xerxes or St. Paul,
I of men am no respecter;
I am ruler of them all.

Dream you dream if dreams delight you;
Sin you sin, but only know
That my wrath at last will smite you
If a single hour you owe.

—Willis Leonard Clanchan in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

My Mother's Bible.

Though relentless time has faded
And the clasps are tinged with rust,
Though the leaves are worn and yellow
And its gilding dimmed with dust,
'Tis as sacred and as holy
As the night she placed it there,
With a blessing for its guidance
And a softly muttered prayer.

'Tis a relic fraught with sadness
For my heart, but yet I see
In its dim, discolored pages
Solace that was meant for me.
Yes, it seemed that mother spirit,
Lowering gently, hovering near,
And in sacred language whispered
All its sweet truths in my ear.

There it lies, where last she laid it;
Years have come and flown since then;
Memory's sadness fell and lingered,
By its truths dispelled again.
'Tis the same beloved Bible
That she cherished; it can fill
All the sad hours with its halo
And bring comfort to me still.

—Guy B. May in Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Small Things.

The smallest thing may often cost thee
dearest;
The smallest thing may often most entice.
Think on the pearl, which thou so gladly
wearest,
How small it is and yet how great the price.

Think on the olive, tiny in thine eyes,
Yet men esteem it as a worthy prize.
Think on the rose; it hath a scent so rare
The smallest blossom doth enrich the air.
—J. Douglas Hoare.

Continuities.

Nothing is ever really lost or can be lost,
No birth, identity, form, no object of the world,
Nor life or force nor any visible thing.
Appearance must not fool nor shifted
space confuse thy brain;
Ample are time and space, ample the
fields of nature,
Thy body, sluggish, aged, cold, the em-
bers left from earlier fires,
The light in the eye, grown dim, shall
duly flame again;

The sun, now low in the west, rises for
mornings and for noons continual,
To frozen clouds ever the spring's invisible
law returns
With grass and flowers and summer fruits
and corn.
—Walt Whitman.

My Critic.

When'er he speaks of what I write
In ardent words of praise,
And to the various songs I sing
Obsequious homage pays,
I say he ranks above them all,
And glad am I to know
That so supremely wise a one
Dwells with us below.

But when he finds in what I write
Not a word to praise
And calls the various songs I sing
Most ordinary lays,
I say he ranks beneath them all,
And glad am I to know
That there's a place for such as he Much farther on below.
—Thomas Holmes in Trenton State Gazette.

Giving.

He gives only the worthless gold
Who gives from a sense of duty,
But he who gives but a slender mite
And gives to that which is out of sight,
That thread of the all sustaining beauty
Which runs through all and doth all
unite,
The hand cannot clasp the whole of the
aims;
The heart outstretches its eager palms,
For a god goes with it and makes it store
To the soul that was starving in darkness
before.
—Lowell.

misunderstanding in her head.

VALUE OF LEMONS.

How This Fruit May Be Used For Beauty and Health.

It is now timely to administer to all women a little sermon on the value of lemons on the dressing table, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. If you appreciated its many uses you would have a lemon always at hand. In the morning, before you are out of bed, its usefulness begins not merely as a beautifier, but as a medicine, for the juice of half a lemon squeezed into a tumbler of water (no sugar) is a most excellent cure for bilious complaints.

The fingers or finger nails may have stains that refuse to yield to soap and water, in which case a little lemon juice will usually prove successful. Before manicuring the nails you should always soak them for at least five minutes in a basin of water in which are a few drops of lemon juice. The skin which grows so offensively around the nails is pushed back by orange wood sticks first dipped in lemon juice. And as for the teeth, no more effective cleanser or purer mouth wash can be found than half a dozen drops of lemon juice in a wineglass of water.

After washing the hands lemon juice and water make a splendid bleach, but it is a fact that lemon juice pure darkens the skin, so do not make the mistake of rubbing in plain lemon juice instead of diluting it with water. Lemon juice and glycerin are good for chapped hands.

If you have a hoarse voice in the morning lemon juice squeezed into soft sugar till it is like a sirup and a few drops of glycerin added relieves the hoarseness at once, while a cold on the chest or consumption itself finds a formidable enemy in the following prescription: Squeeze the juice of three lemons over three whole eggs, shell and all. In two or three days' time the shell will have softened because of the effect of the lemon's acid on the lime composition of the shell. Then add a pint of rum and a pound of pulverized brown sugar candy. You can bottle this and take a spoonful every morning upon rising. It is simply wonderful as a tonic.

How to Cure Insomnia.

One of the best and simplest cures for insomnia is said to be the odor of raw onions. They should be crushed to a pulp in order to free all the juice. Smell this substance for ten minutes after retiring. It is said to quiet the most nervous person and relax the most overwrought nerves. It is hardly pleasant, but is said to be efficacious.

How to Make the Hair Fluffy.

To make the hair simply fluffy without curling it moisten it with a preparation of two grams of alcohol or rectified spirits of wine, one ounce of cologne, half an ounce of bicarbonate of soda and four ounces of rose water. Every night rub every inch of the scalp with cold water, using a clean nailbrush, if you want to keep your hair in good condition. Once a week use a tonic. An excellent one is made of alcohol, one pint; sweet oil, one ounce; tincture of cantharides, one dram. Use a few drops of any essence you prefer to perfume it. A good way to apply any lotion to the head and hair is by means of a nailbrush or the finger tips.

What Boys Should Know.
 A philosopher has said that true education of boys is to "teach them what they ought to know when they become men."
 First.—To be true and to be genuine. No education is worth anything that does not include this. A man would better not know how to read and be true and genuine in action rather than be learned in all sciences and in all languages and be at the same time false in heart and counterfeit in life.

Second.—To be pure in thought, language and life—pure in mind and body.

Third.—To be unselfish; to care for the feelings and comforts of others; to be generous, noble and manly. This will include a genuine reverence for the aged and for things sacred.

Fourth.—To be self reliant and self helpful even from childhood; to be industrious always and self supporting at the earliest possible age. Teach them that all honest work is honorable; that an idle life of dependence on others is disgraceful.

When a boy has learned these things, when he has made these ideas part of him, however poor or however rich, he has learned the most important things he ought to know.

Barnyard Circus.

Here is a good indoor game for fun which is called "barnyard circus." Some one will tell the girls and boys that she will give each one the name of an animal, and then she will count three, and when she says three each one is to imitate the sound that the animal whose name she has received makes, as, for instance, if one has been given cow he would say "Moo-oo" or rooster "Cock-a-doodle-doo!" They are told to imitate the sound as loudly and clearly as possible. But whoever gives the names must tell every person except one to keep quiet. Then to the one person whom she has not told to keep quiet she gives the name of an animal, and when she says three the one person only will shout whatever sound he is to make.

My Grandmamma.

Grandmamma wears a soft gray gown; It's silky when I smooth it down. I hope I'll wear a soft gray gown When I am old like her.

Grandmamma's hair is snowy white; It always sparkles in the light. I hope my hair will be as bright When I am old like her.

Grandmamma's smile is very sweet; My papa says it "can't be beat." I hope my smile will be as sweet When I am old like her.

Grandmamma knows I love her well; I love her more than I can tell. I hope little girls will love me well When I am old like her.

—Eva March Tappan in Youth's Companion.

Her Dollies.

"What are you going to do with your dollies, Sallie?"

"I'm going to give them to a poor little girl I know so's papa will buy me some new ones."

Evidences of Riches.

"Isn't her display of diamonds magnificent?"

"It is undeniably lavish," replied Miss Cayenne, "and in so much better taste than it would be to ornament herself with real money and government bonds."—Washington Star.

Delays Are Dangerous.

Lover—And so your mother does not believe in long engagements? I am delighted.

Miss De Broker—Yes; mamma says ever so many girls' fathers have failed during long engagements, and the poor things never got married at all.—New York Weekly.

Honesty in Others.

"Honesty is the best policy," quoted the hypocritical deacon, "and I wish I could make everybody realize it."

"I reckon ye do," replied the hard headed farmer. "Ye'd git the best of everybody in a horse trade then, wouldn't ye?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

How to Make Good Wine Sauce.
 An excellent wine sauce calls for one cup of butter, creamed with two cups of sugar. For Hands and Arms.

For "relaxing exercises" for hands and arms let the hands hang lifeless from the wrist and shake them as though there were no life in them. Hold the elbows out to the level of the shoulders and shake the forearms; move them back and forth in a lifeless way. Stand erect, with the arms at the sides, and twist the trunk right and left, swinging the arms lifelessly. For a fourth movement raise the hands slowly above the head and then drop them suddenly as dead weight.

The Nurse's Dress.

A child's nurse should always wear wash dresses, and this is especially necessary if she is to care for a young infant. If the conventional black dress is to be worn it is best to have it made of sateen or other washable material; also it is very necessary that no pins should be about the waist or belt. Many an ugly scratch on baby's soft little cheek is due to a pretty pin in the nurse's collar.

For the Ironing Board.

The so called, charity blanket makes an excellent cover for an ironing board because it is hard. The ironing sheet which goes over it should have tapes at each corner, if it is to be used on a table, to tie around the four legs; if on an ironing board it should be tightly tacked or sewed to the blanket.

Sweeping and Dusting.

Never sweep dust from one room to another nor from upstairs to the lower part of the house. Always take it up in a dustpan where you have previously placed some tea leaves. This prevents the dust from scattering again and returning to its old haunts.

What does a woman need more than anything else? Sympathy. Having sympathy, a woman is strong for all the battles of life; without it she is easily vanquished.

Do not give way to nerves, emotions or tears; they ruin good looks. No emotions, no wrinkles, is an old and tried beauty recipe.

Don't be jealous of the beauty, youth and success of others. Jealousy plants ugly lines in the face.

The habit of fussing is of all minor errors the one most to be deprecated in woman.

How to Restore Creased Ribbons.
Restore creased ribbons by laying them evenly on a board or table and dampen them with a clean sponge and a little clear water. Then roll them tightly and smoothly around a good sized bottle—a wine bottle will do.

How to Polish Finger Nails.
Lemon acts on the finger nails with a wonderful effect. It seems to polish them, at the same time softening the skin around them marvelously and removing any traces of ink, fruit or stain. Brushing is said to roughen the nails, and the brush should be used only when necessary.

How to Keep Cake Moist.
To keep a fruit or seed cake moist place it in an airtight tin with a good sound apple, renewing the apple if it become in the least decayed.

Audubon and His Hair.
Audubon, the great naturalist, early in his career wore his hair very long. He wrote in his diary one day: "I wear my hair as long as usual. I believe it does as much for me as my paintings." However, in 1827 his friends succeeded in persuading him to get his hair cut according to the prevailing fashion. On March 19 of that year he wrote in his diary: "This day my hair sacrificed and the will of God usurped by the wishes of man. As the barber clipped my locks rapidly it reminded me of the horrible times of the French revolution when the same operation was performed upon all the victims murdered by the guillotine. My heart sank low." Further to express his grief the margin of the page on which this entry was made he painted black about three-quarters of an inch deep all around.

Obeeyed Instructions.

The city editor summoned the photographer of his staff. "Colonel Welligan's house is burning," he said, "and I want a picture of the fire. Get out there as quick as you can with your camera and take a view of what's left of the building from the inside of the fence corner."

"But," said the photographer, "if—" "That's the point I want it taken from—right in the corner."

"But I think there's"—

"I don't care whether there's a better point or not. You know what I want. Hurry up. You are losing time."

The photographer took his camera and departed. A few hours later he came in with the proof of a picture he had taken from the desired point of view.

"What is this?" said the city editor. "That is a photograph of the ruins of Colonel Welligan's house from the inside corner of the fence near the street." "I can't see anything of the house."

"I couldn't, either," responded the photographer. "I tried to tell you there was a big tree standing between that corner and the house, but you wouldn't let me."

Tibet, the Strange Land.

It is a wonderful country and a strange people. Think of a tract of land where hot springs abound, round which the deposits are of such rainbow tints as blue, purple, green, red and yellow. It is easy to imagine that the landscape effects of such coloring are wondrous. The social customs of the people are scarcely less astounding. Polygamy is common where the men are rich enough, for wives seem to be a question of wealth. When poverty compels them, several men will have one wife in common. Brothers usually enter into those strange partnerships. The people rarely wash, finding it warmer to be dirty. The men anoint their faces with butter, while the women stain their countenances mahogany color with wood chips and lacquer the bridges of their noses jet black. Cleanliness is an unesteemed practice.—London Outlook.
