God's Love Above All.

Each shape of beauty charms my heart and mind,
As Phoebus charmed Iorn Clytis till she turned Into a flower of love and wide fame earned,
For Faithfulness to love that proved unkind.
Ay, never, never can I have enough
Of looking at Apollo, when his eyes
With dreams of dawn are dewy in the skies,
Or when, like a brave chief, the fray
being off,
All bleeding from his breast he leaves
the din
Of day to take his earned rest far West.
Majestic mountains where the eagles nest;
The ocean awful and sublime, his kin.
The sky, the waterfall, my heart enthrall,
Yet Thy large love, O God, I prize above them all.

ALTER ABELSON.

In the Jewish World.

The emigration movement in Roumania has somewhat slackened; nevertheless, on an average, five hundred persons leave the country every month. The latest statistics of the population of Roumania show a reduction in the number of births among Jews in consequence of the emigration movement which takes away from the country many young able-bodied Jews.

The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph sent the following telegram:

I am in a position to confirm the statement that the Franco-Belgian bankers' syndicate recently made a new offer to Russia concerning a three and a half per cent. loan of 2,000,000,000f, but on the condition that Russian legislation respecting Jews may be improved in the direction of conferring upon Jews the same rights as other subjects of the Czar. The syndicate is ready to pay the sum mentioned into the State Bank at St. Petersburg before the end of the year without charging any commission.

In visiting the beautiful new synagogue in Rome, Victor Emmanuel III. has created a precedent, for never before has a King of Italy recognized the old, pure faith. His Majesty was received, on his arrival at the Lungo Tevere Cenci, by Signor Serena, President of the Jewish community; by the Chief Rabbi and by all the dignitaries of the community. He was acclaimed by the thousands of Jews, who were delighted at their Sovereign's gracious act. The King was much interested in the details of the building, and asked many questions about the ceremonies and the inscriptions round the edifice. On leaving, His Majesty stated that his visit had given him much pleasure. The synagogue will be dedicated on the 29th inst.

The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Telegraph (London) states: Reports from Russia state that Jewish emigration from the Western and Southern Provinces is largely on the increase, especially since the beginning of the war. During the past twelve months it is computed that nearly 50,000 Jews left Russia, of whom four-fifths sailed for the United States, as the commercial conditions in the Russian Empire are rapidly growing worse. The leaders of the Russian Jews anticipate that in the present year the emigration will probably reach 100,000. They are organizing central stations, at which intending emigrants may apply for information, and be no longer at the "obscure parentage, of German blood with a Jewish strain, of uncertain religious denomination." The massacres of Jews are suggested by this minister and heartily approved by the Czar. The was furnished by the Vienna Zionist Federation. Dr. Herzl's remains were deposited in his study. An hour before the funeral, ward was kept by members of the Actions Committee and the intichief cantors, Gutman and Schor, recited the prayers for the dead, assisted by an augmented choir, the crowd burst into tears, and the weeping became general as the body was being conveyed to the hearse, which was followed by the grief-stricken mother, widow and family. The bulk of the procession, numbering over 5,000 persons, marched on foot through the rows of Zionist students and workers who lined the route.

Early next year, writes the Paris correspondent of the Daily News, there will be inaugurated in Paris an Ophthalmic Hospital and Institute, for the building, equipment and endowment of which the late Baron Alphonse de Rothschild bequeathed several million francs. It has been designed chiefly for the relief of the working classes and the poorer classes generally. It deserves to be particularly mentioned that, by the Baron's wish and that of his widow, who has been taking a very active part in this work, architectural beauty no less than practical utility should be considered in the designs of the building. Not for the first time, adds the correspondent, have these generous donors signified their conviction that the cultivation of the sense of the beautiful is needful, above all in a democracy. The new building will be one of the capital's architectural ornaments.

The Portuguese community at Tunis has sustained a severe loss by the death of its spiritual head, Chief Rabbi Jacob Silvera. He enjoyed general esteem, and his funeral was attended by several thousand persons of various nationalities and denominations. Rabbi Daniel Lumbroso was elected to fill the vacancy, but the Tunisian Government has vetoed the election on the ground that he is an Italian.

Hassan Fehmi Pasha, the Governor-General of the province, recently visited the School of the Alliance Israelite Universelle in Salonica. On his Excellency's arrival the Imperial Ottoman Hymn was played by the school band. The Governor-General, who stayed two hours, inspected every class and questioned the pupils, and he expressed great satisfaction at finding that instruction in Turkish occupied so large a place in the curriculum.

The committee in charge of building the new synagogue at Fitchburg, Mass., have accepted the plans of the building and work on it will begin at once. It will be erected on Lunenburg street, near Prescott street. It will be a wooden structure with a frontage of 25 feet on Lunenburg street, and running back 50 feet. It will contain the auditorium on the main floor and a basement divided into a Sunday school room and a banquet hall. The building will cost about $5,000. The synagogue will seat about 350 people and be ready for use about Nov. 1. The people of the congregation have already subscribed about $1500 and it is the intention of the committee to raise about $1000 from the business men of Fitchburg.

The dedication of the new Jewish synagogue at Woonsocket, R. I., took place last Sunday afternoon. The speakers included Dr. Blaustein of New York, Rabbi Hausmann, Rabbi Bachrach of Providence, and Rev. Charles J. White, pastor of the Universalist Church of that city. Mayor Alphonse Gaulin also delivered an address.

mercy of those German agents who have hitherto plundered them.

The Quarterly Review (John Murray) has a severe notice of the Czar by a Russian official of high rank. According to this authority, Nicolai Alexandrovitch

Grand Duke Sergius, the Governor-General of Moscow, a man addicted to Jew-baiting, is the Czar's mentor in questions of religion. As an instance of the administration of justice, the writer mentions the prosecution of the murderers of the Kishineff Jews, whose counsel in the

THE REB YANKEV PINOCHLE CLUB.

THE ORIGIN

There are so many associations, societies and clubs in our famed metropolis, that I scarcely wonder that the "Reb. Yankev Pinochle Club" is somewhat unknown outside of its members and their families.

We have been in existence for quite a number of years. There has always been something of interest transpiring at our meetings in the discussion of a variety of social topics, and as the secretary of the club since its organization, I have carefully jotted down the sayings of its members, believing that these reminiscences would be worthy of publication.

The primary object of our gathering is, as you may readily comprehend, to play pinochle.

Pinochle, as you doubtless know, is a game of cards which occupies a middle ground between poker and sola. It is not as hazardous as the former, nor as intricate as the latter, and while it requires skill in the development of the game, it has none of these elements of gambling about it, which bring card-playing into so much disfavor.

The causes which led to the organization of the "Reb. Yankev Pinochle Club" are very simple.

We were accustomed to meet once or twice a week at the house of one of our members, changing the place of each gathering, so as not to become a burden upon the individual hospitality of any particular member.

After indulging in a few games, for stakes just light enough to make the play interesting, we would partake of the slight refreshment our host had provided, and while smoking our cigars would speak of various matters in a haphazard sort of way, without selecting any particular topic for discussion.

It happened one evening that we were at Mr. Kalbsbraten's house, and while we were just dealing for the last game we heard the wife of our host calling in a tone of voice which jarred, somewhat unpleasantly on our ears: "Myer, come up here, I want you." Mr. Kalbsbraten, excusing himself for a few minutes, left the room, and, as he forgot to close the door after him, we could not avoid overhearing the following interesting conversation:

"You have got that horrid 'chavroosah' here again, and my curtains which I only put up last month, are as yellow as wax from tobacco smoke, and my dining room with their ashes and cigar stumps will look to-morrow like a 'chazzershtall,' and Lena says she's not going to clean up that muss any more."

"S—h, Rachel!"

"And here I am dressed up to go and see your sister, Babette, who is sick abed with her nerves, and I suppose I must stick in the house again because you've got those men here. What do you care for your sister or your wife, either, for that matter, as long as you can play your cards?"

"But, Rachel, don't talk so loud."

"I'll talk just as loud as I please. There's that red-nosed Gumpelstein, who almost emptied my brandy bottle last week, and your friend, Isaacs, whose father was a Rav., wanted buttered bread with his tongue sandwich, and I must be poked up in the house because they are here. Where do I go? When do you ever take me anywhere? What with your Masonic Lodge and your B'nai Brith and your Chapters and your Shriners and your Royal something and your societies, you are never home except when you play cards. It's really a 'mazzol' that you keep 'shabbas,' or the poor children would never get a sight of you from one week's end to the other!"

"Rachel! Just keep still a moment."

"I won't! Where's that check you promised me? I have to pay the dress-maker, and the Lord knows how much her bill will be, and there's the money for Rosie's music teacher and Maxie needs a new suit, and I have to go to-morrow and buy a wedding present for the Cohn's, and Jakey will soon be Barmitzvah."

"But, Rachel, I gave you fifty dollars only the other day."

"Oh, yes, a great deal one can do for fifty dollars. Look here, Myer, when are you going to give me that dolman you promised me? I'm ashamed to go out in that old yellow thing of mine. You had your measure taken at Boos's a month ago, and you've been telling me that they are too busy with extra orders to make it. I don't believe a word of it. I'm tired of this slaving from one week to the other. There's Jonas Rosenbaum, gave his wife $200 for her birthday, and she had an elegant kaffee klatsch; and what did you give me? A new carpet and lambrequins. I can't pay my butcher with carpets nor my milkman with lambrequins."

We heard some incoherent mutterings about a hundred dollars, and the faint echoes of a smothered kiss, when Mr. Kalbsbraten returned to the room looking somewhat flurried, and apologized for his absence by saying that one of his children was not feeling well. We concluded the game in a somewhat heartless manner, when Mrs. Kalbsbraten came into the room wreathed in smiles and as sweet as pie.

Mr. Gumpelstein resolutely refused to take a drop of brandy, and Mr. Isaacs positively declined to touch a sandwich. A pall seemed to have fallen on the "Chavroosah."

We soon bade our host good night, and on our way homeward talked the matter over between us, and found that nearly all of us had had a similar experience at home. This was the first step that led to the organization of the "Reb. Yankev Pinochle Club."

CHAPTER II.
The Organization.

A few days subsequent to the Kalbsbraten episode, I accidentally met Mr. Moses Gumpelstein, and after talking matters over, at his request, I invited our friends to meet at his house.

Gumpelstein is a native of Posen, a bachelor and a philosopher. He came to this country in the 50's, when quite a boy, went to California, made some money, came back to New York, lost everything he had in the financial crisis of 1857, made a fortune in the whiskey business during the war, went into a real estate pool, was "wiped clean out," as he terms it, went West, struck the "boom" in Kansas City, Omaha and San Bernardino, amassed a competency, invested it in New York flats, and now lives from his rentals.

He occupies elegant apartments in one of his own flats, where an old Jewish widow lady, keeps a strictly kosher house for him, although he is an active member of the Ethical Culture Society. There was quite a goodly gathering in response to the invitation. Gumpelstein was selected as chairman, and briefly stated the object of the call—"to provide suitable quarters for the playing of Pinochle, without encroaching upon the domestic arrangements of any of the members."

The meeting resulted in the adoption of a set of by-laws, condensed into one chapter, the election of a president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary, and the appointment of a Committee on Room and Refreshments.

Mr. Sullivan A. Johnson, who is a great "lodge man," suggested that "the child ought to have a name," and made a speech, interspersed with Talmudic quotations in support of his motion. Mr. Johnson is a necktie manufacturer, a Lithuanian by birth, a good Hebrew scholar and liberal in his religious views. When he landed at Castle Garden, his full-fledged name was "Orky," or "Aaron Salivonsky." ("Orry," "Orchek," "Orky," "Orchikel" and "Orkily," as he explained, being diminutive pet derivations of Aaron.) At the outset of his mercantile career he received a letter from Messrs. Gundelheimer, Ochs and Minzerstein, alleging that they were "not opening any new accounts at present," and finding that they refused to sell on credit to any one whom they designated as "key winders" or "stem winders," that is those whose names ended in "itz" or "ski," he thought it useless to combat against a foolish prejudice, and concluded to Americanize his name.

He went about it in a jovial manner. His father's name, he remarked, was "Yonah," which in English is "Jonah," or "John," and he was John's-son. Sullivan stood good for Salivonsky, and when his cards were printed "Sullivan A. Johnson," and he moved from East Broadway to West Broadway, Messrs. Gundelheimer, Ochs and Minzerstein, who were unaware of the patronymic transformation, were only too glad "to open a new account."

We unanimously coincided with Johnson's suggestion "that the child ought to have a name," but in the selection of the proper designation difficulties arose.

Mr. Kalbsbraten suggested the name "Independent Pinochle Club," to show that we were not under the control of our "better halves." Mr. Isaacs, who is an ardent admirer of Beaconsfield, thought that we ought to adopt his flower and call it the "Primrose Pinochle Club," and said the happy idea presented itself to him because he had just received a card with P. P. C. in the corner. Mr. Gumpelstein suggested the title "Ragged, Sassy, Vicious Pinochlers," ironically remarking that he had just received an invitation to a dinner with R. S. V. P. in the corner.

Mr. Sim Levy thought we owed a meed of recognition to the country, whose palladium of liberty gave us the inestimable privilege we enjoyed, of playing pinochle without let or hindrance. He believed it ought to be our bounden duty as citizens of a glorious and enlightened Republic to call it "America," "Columbia," or "Washington," he was not particular which, as long as the name inspired us with that devotion to the Flag and Constitution, which should fill the heart of every free American.

Sim Levy is an active politician, his services as a cart-tail speaker are brought into requisition about election time, and, "a la Kirby," he always wraps himself up in the American flag.

We took several votes, but without any definite result. Finally Nate Mendoza proposed that the privilege of giving the club a name be put up at auction to the highest bidder, and the proceeds devoted to providing an inaugural supper. The motion was unanimously adopted.

Gumpelstein acted as auctioneer. The bidding was spirited, and there was quite a lively contest between Kalbsbraten, Isaacs and Jake Cohn, who runs a department in one of our large retail houses, until finally it was knocked down to Jake Cohn for forty-three dollars. You can imagine our eager curiosity to know "what name the child would bear," when, to our astonishment, he remarked that he remembered, when a boy, his father subscribing fifty guineas toward a Chevrah Kadisha, upon condition that it bear the name of his father "Mosheh," and he thought it an act of filial duty to follow the praiseworthy example, and he therefore took great pleasure, pride and satisfaction in naming it after his father, and thus perpetuate his memory by the title "The Reb. Yankev Pinochle Club."

We emptied quite a number of Gumpelstein's bottles of wine to the success of the new undertaking, and thus the "Reb. Yankev Pinochle Club" was launched upon the social waves, to sail beneath the bright skies of true friendship.

The Reward.
 A true account.
 "Hush, Rivkeh, hush, be calm. Hashem Yisborach will surely not forsake our son, though he went into the field. Why, do all bullets strike? And if one happens to strike, must it needs hit our M-shke? The "Little Father" has summoned him, and he must obey."
 Rivkeh, Avrohom Gluecklich's help-mate, listened skeptically. "What should he have answered? Her heart was heavy with pain, ah, so heavy. What did Life yield unto her? Drudgery and toil, starvation and tears. Her Moshko was her only joy, happiness and bliss. When speaking of him, her grief-worn countenance was beaming with maternal satisfaction. How handsome he was, how sturdy and tall, so that she had always to look up at him. And then how he loved her, both her and his father.
 "Once I am back from the army,"—he said the only time he was allowed to visit his parents home,—"I'll show you what I can do! I will work with both my powerful fists, and yours shall be the benefit of my industry. You shall live free from sorrow, toil and drudgery. I am here, your Moshko, and I will take care of you." Thus he spoke, and Avrohom and Rivkeh blessed their noble son when he bade them goodbye weeping bitterly, ah, so very bitterly.
 But then suddenly the rumour was spreading, that war is going on. The Little Father is waging war with Japan. Where is Japan situated? Who can tell? Far, far where the sun rises. Who cares to inquire much about that? War is raging and many will fall. They will be buried—perchance not—who will bother about it! And Moshko had to go into the battle, too. He wrote about it in a brief note, adding down below: "Have no fear, I shall return."

 Avrohom held the letter in his trembling hand and read it to his wife. And now it was incumbent upon him to comfort her,—upon him whose heart was not less pierced with evil forebodings and deep sorrow.
 What does the Little Father need war for? Why? It doesn't enter his head at all; what does he care for the squabbles of the powers, anyway! Moshko is in the fight,—there's the rub. Moshko, his beloved son is there where the sun rises to shed its golden light upon pools of human blood.
 His letters came in frequent succession. Just short notes. He lives—and his parent feel relieved. If he should return, what joy, what happiness that will mean! But no tidings came for the last few weeks. What's up?
 There is a mute inquiry in Rivkeh's sad glances.
 "The letter may have gone astray" said he soothingly.
 "Why just Moshko's letter?"
 He remains silent and toddles off to Shule "to learn." What else should he do? His wife weeps, weeps on and when she ceases, it is all the worse.

He suffers doubly; the worry on account of his wife crushed the last remainder of his failing strength.
 Two long, weary months rolled by. No letter came yet.
 "Who wants to come in?" wondered Rivkeh one day, as there was a knock at the low door early in the morning. She hastened to open the door. An officer was standing outside.
 "Avrohom Gluecklich is to come right away to the police-station," he said.
 "For mercy's sake! what might have happened?" exclaimed Rivkeh in her anguish. But Avrohom was already far off, running as he never ran before.
 He enters the office. The Chief is holding a telegram. Avrohom is frightened, he is scared to death—Moshko is the only thought that flashes through his wildly throbbing heart. He would grab up the telegram.
 "Not until thou hast paid 20 rubles!" says the Chief rudely.
 How should he hunt up 20 rubles? He can't call 20 kopeks his own. Yet he has got to get them, the 20 rubles. Moshko, Moshko—he muttered unceasingly. He refused to make up his mind to anything definite, in spite of the overwhelming doubts that threatened to turn soon into grim certainty. Why, he doesn't know what happened to Moshko! And he breathes all his grief, all his perplexities and all his bewilderment into the name that his quivering lips utter falteringly.

 He goes home hurriedly. Rivkeh fails to understand him at first, but finally she catches on. Her face becomes ghastly distorted. She, too, will sally out for money. 20 rubles,—a whole fortune! For 8 hours they go about from house to house, running like madmen, as if they were fey, as the Scotch say, acting under the irresistible pressure of a dreadful doom. Moshko—they whisper softly and woefully. It is heart rendering. At last they meet; he got twelve,—she has seven rubles. One hour later the last ruble was hunted up. They go together to the Chief, but he keeps them waiting, being at the time plunged in his postprandial slumber. Ah, these were moments of fell torture for the parents in despair.
 At last the door opened.
 "Put down the 20 rubles first!"—he commands them roughly. Avrohom obeys, and the Chief fetches the dispatch with a laggard a W why don't you say Thanks to me?" the Chief shouts at them.
 Avrohom thanked him and Rivkeh too, then they staggered out of the room. Avrohom muttered something as he opened the dispatch. The woman understood but one word—the last—hoemes— She knew presently that her husband had said the bless-ng customary when receiving the news of somebody's death.

 "Moshko!" she screams, swoons and drops down.
 "Yes, Moshko, our Moshko is dead."
 "Chase those people out of the building" the Chief says, putting i.w.y the twenty rubles. "They have no business to be here any more".
 This was the reward of Moshko's death,—the death of a hero. . .

Dr. Albert Frankel, one of the leading German clinicians, who has been for twenty-seven years a cent in the University of Berlin, has resigned. It is believed that his promotion to a professorship was withheld owing to the fact that he is a Jew. Dr. Hermann Oppenheim recently resigned under similar circumstances. He was unanimously recommended by the faculty for promotion, but the recommendation was not confirmed by the ministry.

BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN.

Congregation Beth Miriam.

of Long Branch, N. J.
The Rev. T. Schonfarber, of Chicago, occupied the pulpit of the congregation last Saturday. He took as a theme "The Apparent Decay of Israel as Viewed Within Its Ranks and Without." Next Saturday Rabbi Solomon Foster, of Newark, occupies the pulpit. The membership list of the congregation has recently been increased by the following names: Messrs. Henry Rice, Uriah Hermann, Sidney M. Sternbach and S. Barnard. Seats are being rapidly rented and it is doubtful that sufficient accommodation will be had for the holy days.

North American Relief Society.

The North American Relief Society for the Indigent Jews of Jerusalem, Palestine, has been in existence over sixty years. It was founded by Sampson Simon, who was its first president.

During all this time it has been a recognized agency for extending American help to the Jews of the East, with Sir Moses Montefiore, and later up to the present hour, the Chief Rabbi of England, Dr. Adler, as its distributing agents.

Of late years the society has not had sufficient recognition among the charitably inclined. Its work, however, has been constantly and systematically done, and during the recent cry for help for Palestine, when the holy land was ravaged by disease and suffering from failure of crops, it came forward at once with substantial aid.

As the funds of the society, owing to frequent and urgent demands, have decreased of late, the directors take this means of interesting the public in its work and asking it for substantial support. Contributions are earnestly solicited.

Relying on the generosity of their brethren, the directors respectfully submit this appeal.

Please send donations to the president, H. Kohn, 3 West 39th street.

Masque Ball at Pine Hill.

A masque ball for the benefit of the employees of the Wellington Hotel took place at Hill's Hall on Saturday evening, Aug. 6, and was attended by the two hundred resident guests, and visitors from other hostelries.

It was a great success, the committee having charge of its management are deserving great praise for the able manner in which it was conducted. Mr. Henry Berlinger and Mr. Max Loewy each donated a handsome prize, consisting of a set of cut glass boxes and a leather traveling bag, to be presented to the two most original costumes. Although all the costumes were very unique, the committee awarded the first prize to Mrs. H. Berlinger and her sister Miss Edna Heimber, the former disguised as an Italian and the latter as a dancing bear. The second prize was awarded to Mrs. M. Einstein, whose make-up as Buster Brown could not be excelled. Among the many other masqueraders present the following deserved special notice: Mrs. B. Lowry, as a coon; Mrs. S. Kahn, as a "tuff goll"; Mrs. Chas. Kaufman, as "Pee-ee"; Mr. H. L. Lederer, as a rabbi; Mr. Ruth Tread, as a Columbia College student; Mr. Cyrus Straup, as an Indian; Miss Lillie Rapp, as Lady Pompadour; Mr. Daniel Pall, as "Biddy"; the Seryant Girl; Mrs. M. Morris, as a "Bretzel Girl"; Miss Bertha Lipman, as a rough rider; Mrs. Totcheck, as a chorus girl; Mrs. A. Wirth, as a peasant girl; Miss E. Kahn, as a guardian for Mr. Geo. Warner; Miss Cora Sachs, as Dolly Varden; Miss Hannah Greenbaum, as the Wellington Hotel bellboy; Miss Adella Rapp, as a snow girl; Miss Annie Levy and Miss Rose Greenfield, as fencing girls; Mr. Max Bernstein, as ballet dancer; Master Ellie I. Fried, as a Scotch boy; Miss Rebecca Hirsch, as a zuave; Mr. L. Erlich, as a Sister of Charity, looked as if he had lost his prayer book, while Mr. M. Bach, the chairman of the committee, as Daniel Webster, looked like Pat Rooney; Miss Florence Levy and Miss Ethel Kuhn represented two young ladies looking for a husband, and Mr. Philip Abrahams and his friend Mr. Freedman looking for a wife; Mrs. Rachael Strauss, as a little school girl going to school, with her father, Mr. V. Heimberger was a great success. The affair did not come to a close until after midnight, when all the guests were invited by Mr. A. Strauss to partake of an elegant lunch, which was served at the Wellington Hotel.

At Esopus.

Among the guests invited by the Democratic National Committee to witness at Esopus the notification to Judge Parker of his nomination for President of the Democratic Party, on Wednesday last, were: Jacob A. Cantor, Mitchell Erlanger, Eugene Galland, Henry M. Goldfogel, Henry S. Herman, N. Taylor Phillips, Joseph E. Newberger, Leo Schlesinger, Abm. Schwab, Jerome Siegel, J. P. Solomon, Isidore Strauss and H. W. Unger.

Will of Simon Lavanburg.

Simon Lavanburg, whose death occurred at Heidelberg, Germany, on July 5 last, leaves a large fortune to his wife, Amelia, by the provisions of his will, which was filed last Monday for probate, but upon her death he directs that $5,000 each be paid to the Mount Sinai Hospital, the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids and the Hebrew Benevolent and Orphan Asylum Society and $2,500 to the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews.

The will has a provision that the income of the widow shall at least be $25,000 yearly. Another bequest that takes effect on the death of the widow is $25,000 to his niece, Sarah Straus, wife of Oscar S. Straus.

Mr. Lavanburg resided at No. 18 East Forty-ninth street. The widow, A. B. Frank and Julius J. Bach are named as executors. The will was executed on May 19, 1902.

The reading public is familiar with the origin, growth and processes required in the production of the wine familiarly known as "champagne"—derived from the district where it was originally produced. As in all other products of this nature, the best is recognized by its merits, and always finds its way to public favor.

Among bon vivants and connoisseurs the brand of champagne known as the "Piper Heidsieck" has for decades been a household word, and is recognized by judges as the best in the world for the simple reason that the grapes are carefully watched during growth and are culled from a particular district, which yields that fine quality of wine peculiarly required for its production—is carefully guarded through the various processes and skillfully prepared for bottling; besides being absolutely pure, without any deleterious adjuncts or chemical blendings. It is because all its properties are purely natural that it has gained such a world-wide reputation.

From a Jewish dietary standpoint it can be freely used by the most orthodox at all banquets and upon all festive occasions on account of the clarity and purity of the wine, the extreme cleanliness of all the processes connected with its surroundings and the fact that only new bottles are used.

A Silent Pilot.

Nothing helps so much in the enjoyment of your vacation than a good map. It shows you the streams and lakes you can fish, the mountains you can climb, the places of interest you can visit and the roads you can wheel or tramp. The Lackawanna Railroad has just issued a set of colored maps on a large scale, showing the territory reached by its lines in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. These maps give every highway, postoffice, trolley line and railroad and are so bound that they can be conveniently carried in the pocket. They are invaluable to automobile tourists and travelers, and should be owned by every one who wishes to be informed on the geography of these three States. The entire set in a neat cover may be had by sending ten cents in stamps to T. W. Lee, General Passenger Agent, Lackawanna Railroad, New York city. The edition is limited—write to-day.

Mutual Benefit and Burial Society.

This is one of the oldest Jewish benevolent societies in the City of New York, and for the annual dues of $7 its members receive a weekly sick benefit of $7. In case of distress additional relief to the amount of $200 furnishes burial and funeral expenses, and pays a death benefit to the family of the deceased of $250. It has $16,000 in invested funds and will receive members under thirty-five years of age without an initiation fee. For blank applications apply to any of the undersigned: Harris Solomon, president, No. 459 West Twenty-third street; I. S. Isaacs, treasurer, No. 52 William street; I. Schachne, secretary, No. 163 East 94th street; J. Finkelstone, sexton, No. 414 East Fifty-seventh street.

ZUCKERMAN-LEVY.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Levy, of 2276 Sixth avenue, Troy, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter Esther to Mr. Harry Zuckerman, of New York. At home Sunday, Aug. 14, from three to six p. m. No cards.

The engagement of Miss Blanche Hartman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hartman, to Mr. Harry Haar was celebrated last Sunday, Aug. 7, at her residence, 185 East 75th street. Miss Hartman was the recipient of many costly gifts. An enjoyable evening was spent by the many guests present, who afterward partook of an excellent repast. Rev. Dr. Weinberger delivered an impressive address suitable to the occasion.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah Kraker.

The funeral of the recently deceased Mrs. Sarah Kraker took place from her late residence, 20 Morriside avenue, Wednesday, Aug. 10, Rabbi Samuel Greenfield conducting the services. The departed wife and mother was but 45 years of age.

Marcus Goldman's Public Bequests.

The will of Marcus Goldman was filed for probate in the office of the Surrogate. Bequests of $1,000 each were left to the Hebrew Benevolent and Orphan Asylum Society, Mount Sinai Hospital, the House for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, the United Hebrew Charities Society, the Hebrew Technical Institute, the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, the Hebrew Technical School for Girls, and the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society. The residue of the estate goes to the family of the testator.

Hunter, N. Y.

The event of the season was the professional entertainment and ball which was held at the St. Charles Casino, in Hunter, N. Y., on Saturday evening, Aug. 6, 1904, for the benefit of the Beth Israel Hospital, under the auspices of Mr. Harry Fischel, who succeeded in procuring the best talent from the Grand Theatre, New York city, to volunteer a theatrical performance, which proved a social as well as a financial success. Mr. Israel Levy, Joseph Zelenko and Dr. Levinton assisted Mr. Harry Fischel in the disposition of the tickets.

Falke and Seamon, the original "instrumental coons" who have outlasted a legion of imitators, are playing four Witmark favorites: "Kate Kearney," "Follow the Crowd," "In Milwaukee" and "My Alamo Love" in their act this season.

Bar Mitzvah.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Brand celebrated the Bar Mitzvah of their son, Harry M. at their residence, 47 Seventh street, last Sunday evening, where many friends gathered to do the young lad the honors usually accorded confirmants. On Saturday, the 6th inst., the confirmant appeared in the new synagogue of the Congregation Sons of Israel, at 13-15 Pike street, and there read passages from the week's Sedra, besides delivering an appropriate speech, both in English and in Hebrew.

Among those who were present may be mentioned Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Scharlit, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel I. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Werbelowsky, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Friedberg, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brand, Mr. and Mrs. Sol. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Ignatz Welles, Mrs. Margaret Bleber, Mrs. Mary Werbelowsky, Mrs. J. Friedlander, the Misses Rose Gordon, Annie E. Brand, Cella Thorn, Annie Robbins, Lena Robbins, Gussie Welles, Rose Baitler, Hannah Friedlander, Essie Bernstein, Bessie Chambers, Sarah Levine, and Estelle Chambers, and Messrs. M. L. Sack, Herman A. Schoenfeld, Nathan Lamose, Joseph Kavalier, Harry Bernstein, Henry Brown, Bernard Chambers, Jacob C. Brand and Joseph Schwartz.

Third Avenue Theatre.

The attraction at the Third Avenue Theatre next week will be the favorite melodrama "The Span of Life," with its thrilling, sensational effects, strong situations, beautiful heart story, brilliant scenery, marvelous mechanical effects, its great lighthouse scene and the daring and skillful formation of the human bridge, by the famous Donazetta trio of acrobats.

The English edition of Stall's Books in the Purity Series, published by the Vir Publishing Company, Philadelphia, has attained an unusually large circulation in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and even in India, China and Japan. Missionary Societies are translating them into seven languages in Asia, and in Europe they are being issued in the Swedish, Dutch and French language.

MUSIC.

It is extremely doubtful if any team of song writers, or even operatic collaborators, receive the amount of favorable newspaper comment that is accorded to the three authors, Bob Cole, Rosamond Johnson and James W. Johnson.

The writer of this has at various times seen columns and on more than one occasion half pages of the leading dailies in the largest cities of the United States devoted to the work of these brilliant young writers. The press clippings of the past three years have filled a couple of enormous scrap books, any one of which would be as much as any able-bodied man would care to carry.

In the case of these numerous articles that have appeared in almost every newspaper of note, it is a most difficult matter to get an interview for publication; and either of the three will have succeeded in switching the conversation on a subject foreign to the mission of the interviewer, rather than talk of themselves. Nevertheless, their song successes of the past thirty months stand out like cameos from among the thousands of songs published during that time.

One has but to remember such salient successes as "The Maiden With the Dreamy Eyes," sung by Anna Held in "The Little Duchess," their great "Ramble" song, popularized by the well-known minstrel, George Primrose, to place them high in the list of successful song writers. These were followed by their universal song hit "Under the Bamboo Tree," which was interpreted in "Sally in Our Alley," and sung by Marie Cahill, which gave the public one of the most notable song hits of the year. Then came their famous "Congo Love Song," and "Big Indian Chief," both of which are now being sung from Maine to California.

This Summer they gave Fay Templeton her great "Fishing" song, and to crown their efforts, succeeded in having a campaign song, "You're All Right, Teddy," adopted by the Republican Campaign Committee as the official campaign song.

This latest song was made the subject of a column editorial in the Washington Post.

Their exclusive services as song writers have been vested with Klaw & Erlanger for purposes of production, and the publishing rights with the well-known firm of Jos. W. Stern & Co.

Proctor's Twenty-third Street.

(Week of August 15.)

Another altogether interesting programme is announced for Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre next week. A prominent position is occupied on the bill by Powell, the magician, who has recently returned from a European tour. Another interesting event is the first appearance here of James Clarence Hyde's clever comedy "Her Busy Day," which is interpreted by an excellent cast. The Bachelor's Club Quartette in a musical sketch offer not only good singing but a pretty little comedy.

Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre.

(Week of August 15.)

So successful was the revival of "The Lady of Lyons," at Mr. Proctor's uptown house that a repetition of the performance at the Fifth Avenue Theatre has been decided on for the coming week. W. S. Hart and Adelaidé Keim sustain the principal characters, supported by the members of the Stock Company. Wood and Berry lead the vaudeville programme with a capital singing and dancing specialty of greater attraction than the average. Tiddlewinks and Dugan, miniature Irish comedians, offer a comedy conversation.

Proctor's 125th Street Theatre.

(Week of August 15.)

Robertson's always popular comedy "Caste" will be revived at the 125th Street Theatre next week by the Stock Company stationed there. Hugh Ford will repeat his performance of "Old Eccles," in which he gained much favorable comment last Fall, and Jessie Izette will be seen as Polly. Special scenery has been painted for the production. Perry and Randall, singers and dancers, offer an interesting little specialty, while Fred Dunworth will manipulate airs and cards.

Metropolis Theatre.

"Alone in the World" is the title of the new Hal Reid play, which is announced for presentation at the Metropolis Theatre for opening, Saturday, Aug. 13. The play is said to be one of more than passing interest, and to contain many features that will make it one of the successes of the present season.

BROOKLYN N. Y.

Congregation Shaari Zedek.
Rabbi G. Taubenhau has been elected rabbi by the above congregation, and will deliver his first lecture this evening.

Einhorn-Simon.
More than four hundred guests were present last Sunday evening at the marriage of Miss Annie R. Simon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Simon, of 126 Myrtle avenue, to Samuel Einhorn, a Capital Hall, 18 Manhattan avenue. The affair was notable because of the fact that the groom is the first member of the Julian T. Hertsberg Social Club to become a benedict. This organization was formed two years ago, and includes in its membership of 290 some of the most prominent young men in the Eastern District. When the engagement of Mr. Einhorn and Miss Simon was announced it was decided to make the wedding a memorable event. Capital Hall was selected as the proper place for the ceremony the large ballroom was tastefully decorated, and a large orchestra engaged to furnish music for dancing. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Solomon E. Jaffe. The bride, who was attired in white mulle, was attended by Miss Annie Einhorn and Miss Mulstein; Max Korman and Julian T. Hertsberg attended the groom. The ushers were Mark G. Mulstein and Samuel Rosenberg. At the supper which followed the ceremony Mr. Hertsberg acted as toastmaster. Mr. and Mrs. Einhorn left on a trip to Atlantic City and other points of interest.

Van Baar's orchestra gave a "Witmark Programme" at Far Rockaway recently with such success that it was repeated by popular request. Selections from "Babes in Toyland," "The Yankee Consul," "The Prince of Pilsen" and Car. & Bowers' latest musical comedy, "The Maid and the Mummy," now running at the New York Theatre, proved especially popular.

EVERYWHERE.

The Mt. Sinai Association, of Philadelphia, will make extensive alterations and additions to a building at Fifth and Wilder streets, recently bought for the association for a temporary hospital. The work will be done at a cost of $20,000.

The Northwest side Talmud Torah, of Chicago, was dedicated last Sunday. G. Rosenzweig has been called from New York City to act as principal, and it is expected that the institution will become one of the most foremost of the country in its line.

Rabbi Charles I. Hoffman, a recent graduate of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and for many years editor of the Jewish Exponent, has accepted a call from the recently organized United Hebrew Congregation of Indianapolis, Ind., and will enter upon his ministry this month.

Rabbi Leopold Helman, formerly of Syracuse and of New Haven, Conn., has been elected Rabbi of the Orthodox Hebrew Congregation Bethel of Norfolk, and has accepted the call. Doctor Helman is a graduate of the University of Koelnburg.

The Hebrew Benevolent Association of Roxbury, Mass. held its annual picnic last Saturday in Armory Grove, Roxbury. The event was greatly opposed by the old and orthodox Jewish people of the district, on account of its being regarded as a desecration of the Hebrew Sabbath. There was an attendance of about 150, all being young people.

The Russian regiment, with which Dr. Orshowski, a Jew, is serving in Manchuria, has more than 100 Jewish soldiers. The doctor writes, through the Budushchnost, a Jewish-Russian publication, that congregations will be organized in every regiment now in the Far East, and appeals to the people to send on prayer books and Bibles. Dr. Orshowski is of the opinion that regimental officers will give all assistance to the Jewish soldiers in their congregational undertakings.

The bye-election recently held for a successor to the seat in the House of Commons for Reading, made vacant by the retirement of Mr. George William Palmer, Liberal, of the biscuit manufacturing firm, resulted in the choice of Mr. Rufus Isaacs, the Liberal candidate and well known barrister, who received 4,770 votes, against 4,540 cast for Mr. Charles E. Keyser, his Unionist opponent.

The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Express says that Dr. Emil Rothmann, a German Jew, has been raised to the rank of Marquis by the Emperor of Japan, and is thus the first Jew who has ever attained that rank. Dr. Rothmann has been principal medical adviser to the Mikado and the Imperial Family for some years past, and the title now conferred on him is a token of the Japanese Emperor's gratitude.

Representatives of the B'nai Israel Congregation, Cincinnati, Ohio, applied to the building inspector last week for a permit to build a temple to cost $200,000, at the intersection of Harvey and Rockdale avenues, Avondale. The plans will shortly be placed on file. Mr. Marcus and others are named as the contractors. B'nai Israel congregation has for some time past been discussing the project of building a new temple and secured the property for this purpose several months ago. When completed, it will be one of the most handsome modern places of worship in the city.

The new Jewish synagogue which is being built on Shapley street, New London, will be one of the most modern buildings in the city when completed, and a decided ornament to that thoroughfare.

The building will be two stories in height, constructed of brick, and planned to seat 750 people. In the auditorium will be accommodations for 500 people, and 250 more can be seated in the galleries.

This will be a decided improvement over their present quarters, in which the Jews are placed at present, in the Bishop block, on Bradley street. The building is known in the neighborhood as the Beehive, and the accommodations of the society at present are meager. With the new synagogue the society will be benefited in very way.

At the conclusion of a meeting of the Committee of Arrangements of Philadelphia, Pa., announcement was made that the charity ball recently given in aid of the Jewish Seaside Home in Ventnor realized over $800. Two new memorial rooms were opened at the home recently. One was the result of a gift of $500 by Mrs. Emanuel Dreyfus, the room being a memorial to her daughter, Miss Janet Loeb Dreyfus. The other room is dedicated to the memory of Carolyn Parant Nirdlinger, of Philadelphia, and was given by Samuel F. Nixon, well known as a theatrical manager in that city. Beds are also being maintained in memory of Mrs. Simon Pfalzer and by Mrs. H. H. Ginsburg in memory of her husband.

The congregation Adath Yeshurin of Houston, Texas, has entered into a contract for their new temple building to be erected on the corner of Preston and Hamilton streets. The building will have a frontage of fifty-eight feet on Hamilton and a depth of eighty-five feet on Preston. It will be two stories in height, faced with press brick and trimmed in imitation of stone, and will have a slate roof. The building will be finished on the interior in natural yellow pine and will have a balcony in same, with two flights of stairs leading from towers in front of the building to the balcony.

The building will be of a Moorish design, and when same is completed it will be the finest temple of its kind in the State.

Harold Straus, son of Samuel Straus, of Franklin, O., is among those recently admitted to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. The young man is a grandson of Raphael Straus, of Lexington, Ky., who is already represented in the navy by his son, that brilliant young officer, Lieutenant Commander Joseph Straus, of turret fame. The appointment to the young cadet came through Congressman Hildebrandt, of Ohio.

Harry Levene, of Detroit, Mich., passed his examination for the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, making the highest percentage of any cadet admitted from his State. Young Levene was born in Oswego, N. Y., 17 years ago. He was a sophomore at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, when he went up for his naval academy examinations.

Anna Lear Fox, daughter of Joseph Fox, Fall River, Mass., is the first woman to receive the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy in three years from Brown University, Providence, R. I. Miss Fox is also the first Jewish graduate, and the youngest of her class, having graduated at the age of twenty.

Thirteen Jews in Mohilew, Russia, have been imprisoned since September, 1903, charged with having attempted to liberate forcibly a number of Jewish prisoners who were being conveyed to the railway station. The matter aroused a good deal of attention at the time, and, by order of the Minister of Justice, the proceedings were conducted with closed doors. It has now, however, been found that all the accused were innocent, but they were, nevertheless, sentenced to three months' imprisonment for having insulted the police.

The Ezras Noshim Society, of Columbus, O., composed of Jewish ladies, decided at a recent meeting to give more attention to the Jewish prisoners at the Ohio Penitentiary.

Hereafter on each visiting day at the institution, on the first and third Sunday in each month, a committee of the society will give the Jewish inmates a treat in the form of a special dinner,

WHY TAKE CONSTANT CARE of your mouth, and neglect your pores, the myriad mouths of your skin? HAND SAPOLIO does not gloss them over, or chemically dissolve their health-giving oils, yet clears them thoroughly, by a method of its own.

HAND SAPOLIO CLEANSSES stained fingers absolutely, removing not only every suggestion of dirt, but also any dried, half-dead skin that disfigures the hands, and this in so gentle, wholesome a way as to materially benefit the remaining cuticle.

A delicate preparation of the purest ingredients. Its cost is but a trifle, its use a fine habit.

to be carried to the penitentiary in baskets.

It is probable that several other reforms may be advocated by the Jewish women, and it is possible that among them may be a request for a separate worship, on the same line as that now enjoyed by the Catholics.

In this case it would be asked that a Rabbi be permitted to conduct services and administer to the spiritual needs of the prisoners of the Jewish faith.

The Zionist council of Pittsburg, Pa., has purchased the old McCandless homestead at Center avenue and Green street for $15,000. Title to the property was secured from I. B. Braveman, of Reading, Pa. The lot faces 45 feet on Center avenue and runs back 178 feet along Green street to Linton street, where the frontage is 46.5 feet. A ten-room brick house standing in the middle of a large lawn and a brick stable and carriage house are the improvements. The property was bought for a Jewish institute combining educational, social and economical features. The present building will be used for library, class and meeting rooms and will be furnished by the societies belonging to the council. The stable and carriage house will be razed to make room for a modern auditorium. This building will face in Linton street, running along Green street to join the present building. A main assembly room, 46x139.5 feet, and including a gymnasium, shower baths and lockers will be provided. The property, which is in the heart of the Jewish district, has been occupied by the council since May 15 and the work of improvement is already well under way.

Order B'nai B'rith

District No. 1.
Office B'nai Berith Building, N. E. cor. Lexington Ave. and 68th St.

J. B. Klein, President, Franklin Block, Bridgeport, Conn.

Charles Hartman, First Vice-President. Adam Wiener, Second Vice-President. Sol. Sulzberger, Treasurer. S. Hamburger, Secretary.

The Independent Order of B'nai B'rith has taken upon itself the mission of uniting Israelites in the work of promoting their highest interests and those of humanity; of developing, elevating and defending the mental and moral character of our race; of inculcating the purest principles of philanthropy, honor and patriotism; of supporting science and art; alleviating the wants of the poor and needy; visiting and attending the sick, coming to the rescue of victims of persecution; providing for, protecting and assisting the widow and orphan on the broadest principles of humanity.

Johnstown Lodge No. 582, I. O. B. B.

Brother Louis Sulzbacher, of Brad-dock, who has done such excellent service in behalf of the I. O. B. B. of this district, again demonstrated his value as a worker by establishing and instituting a new lodge in Johnstown, Pa.

Representatives were present from Pittsburg and Altoona to assist in the exercises, which were held in the synagogue. The institution took place in the morning and was conducted by Brothers L. Sulzbacher and L. Newman, of Brad-dock, Charles H. Joseph and David H. Goldman, of Pittsburg, and I. Sheeline, of Altoona.

There were about twenty members initiated and the outlook is promising for a large increase. The following officers were installed: President, H. Silverstone; vice-president, Louis Cohen; secretary, A. Lichten; treasurer, M. Berney; outside guard, Henry Janowitz; inside guard, J. Neafach. Trustees—S. Holzman, H. Kaminsky and S. Middleman. Past president, Meyer Rothstein.

The session was resumed in the afternoon, when speeches were delivered by the visiting brethren and a few of the local members. Much enthusiasm prevailed, and if the proper amount of work is done there is no reason why Johnstown Lodge should not develop into one of the leaders.—Jewish Criterion.

Catskill Mountains.

During this warm month, the season at the Catskill Mountains is at its height. The hotels are crowded with guests. The visitors are enjoying themselves and the young people are participating in the social dances and other amusements, given at the various hotels and are having an enjoyable vacation. As a health resort the salubrity of the atmosphere cannot be excelled, and with each recurring year the hotels are unable to provide for the additional guests who flock to the mountains in such large numbers.

We append hereto the names of a few of our well-known coreligionists who are enjoying a well needed summer rest.

New York Central's Fleet on Lakes.

The Western Transit Company, which is the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad's freight connection on the Great Lakes, has recently put into commission their new steamer Duluth, which is the largest and most modern package freight vessel on the Great Lakes. She is 401 feet long, 50 feet beam and 30 feet depth, with a carrying capacity of 6,000 tons.

This makes seven modern steel steamers in the Western Transit Company's fleet, six of which have been added since 1898, it being the company's policy to add a new steamer each year. In addition to these steel steamers, the company has nine iron and wooden steamers, which, while not quite as modern as the steel boats, are still admirably adapted for lake freight transportation. This fleet of sixteen steamers enables the New York Central to give a daily freight service from Buffalo to Milwaukee, Chicago, Duluth and Portage Lake.—N. Y. Evening Mail, July 27, 1904.

Greenpoint, L. I.

Work has been begun on the new synagogue for the orthodox Jews of Greenpoint. The plans have been filed for a brick structure, to cover the site where the present building now stands, on Noble street. It will be 25x85 feet, and will consist of a basement, with an entrance two feet below the sidewalk, which will be used as a school, the main floor to be used for worship. This will have a floor gallery, and will seat 500 persons. The estimated cost will be $14,000, and it will be ready for use during the holy days next September.

The name of the organization which will worship in the new synagogue is the Congregation Ahavass Israel, and is composed of what was formerly the Congregation Ahavass Acham, which met in Germania Hall, and the Scharah Israel, which met in the Keramos building. The officers of the congregation are: J. Gottlieb, president; M. Barol, vice-president; J. Frank, treasurer; Max Brody, secretary. A. Spellman and P. Shoshelm compose the committee in charge of the new building.

Woonsocket, R. I.

The new synagogue of the Congregation B'nai Israel of Woonsocket, R. I., was dedicated with impressive services on the afternoon of the 24th inst. The building is at the corner of Greene and Bernon streets and was formerly the First Presbyterian Church. It has been renovated and remodelled by the Jews of Woonsocket and now presents a splendid appearance.

An attendance of some 600 persons graced the occasion and many prominent faces were noted among them. By 2 o'clock the seating space in the new synagogue was fully taken up.

The exercises opened with a selection by the Y. P. H. A., orchestra, led by S. J. Freitel. This was followed by a recitation, "Let There Be Light" (First Genesis), by Master Herbert Moses Tellman. Rabbi David Blanstein of New York, superintendent of the Educational Alliance, gave a Scriptural reading, a chorus of boys sang the chant "Open Ye Gates," and a procession of elders and bearers of the Torah proceeded to the altar and deposited the scrolls within the ark. After a chant the perpetual light was lighted, the ceremony being most impressive. The key of the church was presented to the chairman of the building committee, A. Colitz, by Miss Agnes Gorowitz and was in turn given by him to Solomon Treitel, president of the congregation.

The exercises concluded with felicitous addresses by Harris Tellman, Rev. C. J. White, D. D., of the Universalist Church and several distinguished visiting rabbis. The ushers were S. Harris, I. Levin, Benjamin Fellman, Oscar Talpofsky, Simon Newman, E. Kramer, Charles Colitz. To Louis Darman was awarded the privilege of opening the church door before the exercises. The bearers of the Torah were Nathan Schlansky, Louis Shapiro, and Max Goldfein, who brought the scrolls from the basement to the church, and H. Kramer, Jacob Goldstein and I. Shatter, who placed them in the ark.

A federation of Gallican societies has been formed of representatives from about seventy-five organizations representing about 12,000 members. The object of the federation is to assist Jews who are natives of Galicia. J. Pfeffer, a Yiddish journalist, upon whose initiative the organization was called into existence, has been chosen president.

Saul Among the Prophets.

Editor Hebrew Standard.
The Philadelphia Jewish Exponent, by a sort of journalistic telepathy, in referring to the various claimants to the honor of having the "Goldfogle plank" inserted in the platform of the Republican and Democratic parties, also asks the question, as you did in your last issue, "Who killed Cock Robin?"

I was somewhat amused to find among the list of distinguished and extinguished workers in political fields, who are mentioned there, the name of Nissan Behar. I cannot believe for a moment that the Alliance Israelite Universelle is stretching out its hands with a view of dabbling its fingers in American politics, for if it has any such intention the curt reply of the Jews in America will be "mind your own business." Mr. Nissan Behar, its accredited agent, whose mission, I believe, is to obtain support for the alliance, like Nadab and Abihu, is playing with strange fire, and as he certainly knows the tremendous catastrophe which followed and the untimely fate which befell these meddling interlopers, it should be a warning to him not to attempt a role which illy befits him, and which will impair his usefulness to the Alliance. Mr. Nissan Behar is not even a naturalized citizen, and if he, by meddling in American politics, imagines that he can buoy up the fortunes of the Alliance in the United States, or carve out for himself a great name in American Israel, he is woefully mistaken.

MOSHER BEN AVIGDOR.

(For the Hebrew Standard.)
Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

The second section of the Apocalyptic portion of the Talmudic treatise of Sabbath, has been incorporated in the liturgy, among meditations and adorations for Divine services, on Friday night. A clause thereof reads as follows: "It is incumbent upon the individual to call the attention of his household, on Saturday's eve, at twilight, to the subsequent triplet, namely, the tithing of anise, stringing of wires, and kindling the candles. On a cloudy evening, the sun having been eclipsed, its setting obscured and the day's close uncertain, the mint shall not be tithed, neither the utensils immersed, nor the candles lit. The umbelliferae, however, may be taxed, the Erub-wires strung and the preserves reserved." Nowadays, when the charity institutions assume the distribution of tithes and offerings, the telegraph and telephone companies monopolize the public streets and thoroughfares, pillars and posts, ground and air, and gas and electricity surpass the candles and torches, after all these innovations have been inaugurated, the Apocalyptic recital appears to be an anachronism, which should rather have been erased from the prayer book, excluded from the liturgy and passed in oblivion, like the remaining anthologies of the Talmudic fame. As the Friday evening services, owing to recent aesthetic developments and current psychic forces, comprise a sermon, the passage under consideration may be used for the purpose.

Thus, Saturday signifies eternal rest, after expiration. Now, since darkness prevails as to the last day, which is likely to be in the morrow, repentance is urged on this preceding day (Sabbath 153, a), the nature of which is the posterior pursuance of the Patriarchic virtue, justice and right.

Like Abraham, who (Genesis. XIV, 20) "gave him tithes of all," without any intermediary agency, transacting factorage and potential proxy.

Like Isaac, who (Ibid. XXIV, 63) "went out to meditate in the field at the eventide," the Hebrew of the latter being "ereb," similar to the "Erub" in the subject at issue.

Like Jacob, who (Ibid. XXXI, 36) said to Laban, "what is my trespass, what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me;" "hotly" corresponding with the "kindling" and the Biblical "dalkato" resembles the Talmudical "hadliku."

Thus, the generosity of Abraham, piety of Isaac and self-sacrifice of Jacob are being imparted to the progeny for emulation. The scoffer, the epicurean, the infidel, as a matter of course, will ridicule the idea of an approaching end, and speculating upon the uncertainty thereof, utterly declare his refusal to follow Abraham, the giver of tithes, Isaac, the plunger into the well (Ibid. XXV, 11), and Jacob, the hot-headed and pursued.

Nevertheless, confute the sceptic and correct his fallacies, inasmuch as there is an obligation to succeed the ancestral commandments of benevolence, devotion and conception of higher ideals, (Ibid. XXX, 41).

Better Late Than Never.

Isaac Stanub, a famous commentator, exegete and scholar of the Mendelsonic epoch, dwelling upon the Psalmody (Psalms. CXXXIII, 3). "As the dew of Hermon that descended upon the mountains of Zion," renders the latter into "Slon," which had been identified with Hermon in last Saturday's allotted portion (Deuteronomy. IV, 48).

Rabbi Nathan Adler, father of Dr. Herman Adler, the present incumbent of the British, Canadian and colonial Rabiniate, in his Pentateuchal commentary under the investment of N'thinah-l'ger repels the hypothesis of Stanub, on the ground of the Deuteronomic Slon taking a singular form, whereas the Psalmody Zion is granted a plurality.

I, for one, am inclined to accept the theory of Rabbi Stanub as an established fact, Adler's repudiation notwithstanding.

Though the translators, whose course Adler irreproachably followed, assumed the authority of turning it into "mountains of Zion," Stanub, presumably, classified the Hebrew with another one of its ilk (Jeremiah. XVII, 3). "O ye mountain," signifying oneness, the consequences of which brought about the immutation of Zion into Slon.

The horse sense, the business acumen, the acquirement of the spirit of the country, the rapid assimilation of American ideas, etc., etc., are well exemplified in the following true police court story, told by a distinguished visitor from the State of Oregon, about a recent immigrant from Eastern Europe. In a city in that State a peddler's license is accompanied by two tin plates bearing upon them the number of the license. These plates are to be attached on either side of the wagon or truck of the peddler. A recent immigrant applied for a license and received a receipt for the fee together with the plates, bearing the number 19. "Our ingenious friend fixed one of the plates to one wagon, which thereafter proudly bore the number 19. He affixed the other plate upon another wagon, but took the precaution to turn it upside down. This wagon apparently bore the license number 61. An arrest of a peddler whose wagon bore no plates, but who carried in his pocket the receipt for the license fee showed that the "spirit of the country" had induced our friend to use the three separate proofs that he was a licensed peddler for three peddlars, but upon the payment of only one fee. A trial in the police court and exemplary punishment only served to further convince these people that America is not what it is cracked up to be. It is a treyfa medinah and a poor man has no show.

A Silent Pilot.

Nothing helps so much in the enjoyment of your vacation than a good map. It shows you the streams and lakes you can fish, the mountains you can climb, the places of interest you can visit and the roads you can wheel or tramp. The Lackawanna Railroad has just issued a set of colored maps on a large scale, showing the territory reached by its lines in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. These maps give every highway, postoffice, trolley line and railroad and are so bound that they can be conveniently carried in the pocket. They are invaluable to automobile tourists and travelers, and should be owned by every one who wishes to be informed on the geography of these three States. The entire set in a neat cover may be had by sending ten cents in stamps to T. W. Lee, General Passenger Agent, Lackawanna Railroad, New York city. The edition is limited—write to-day.

M. Witmark & Sons have bought the music publishing business of Cobb and Edwards, and added both these popular song writers to their ever-increasing staff. Their latest hits are "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye," which bids fair to be as popular as "Dolly Gray," "Louisiana Anna" and "The Girl Who Cares For Me." This purchase includes the publications of Leo Edwards, brother of Gus, who wrote "Pretty Kitty San" and the lively march two-step, entitled "Broncho Buster." He also joins the Witmark staff as composed and demonstrator.

The Tree and Life.

לא תשחית את עצה... כי האדם עץ השרה. "When thou shalt besiege a city a long time, in making war against it to take it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an axe against them; for thou mayest eat of them and thou shalt not cut them down (for the tree of the field is man's life) to employ them in the siege."—Deuteronomy xx, 19.

In selecting this passage for the contemplation of our readers we might be acting in strongest defence and vindication of our Torah. The most violent critics of our day with whom it is both fashion and habit to denounce the Torah, picture the Conquest of Canaan by our forefathers as a scene of pillage, carnage and vandalism, rampant and without equal, except among barbaric tribes. Yet how infinitely tender is the command which calls attention to the use and value of the tree, especially the one that bears fruit! And how able a defense is set up against demolishing even for purpose of warfare that organism of the world of vegetation, the living tree! For the tree of the field is man's life. The latter is sacred, and the other contains some of the same elements taken direct from the womb of the earth. Poets have been inspired to sing of the tree with its spreading branches and the blessings of fruit and shade which it directly shared with tired, hungry man.

Our very critical opponents may have their attention called to the fact that in the history of the triumphal march of the hosts of Israel to obtain and hold the Land of Promise many such wise and thoughtful provisions are made for the future. Our own high and boasted civilization is far less thoughtful. While the lawgiver seeks to soften the asperities of warfare and place life human upon a level that should be above petty considerations, our own methods are far different.

On account of the prospect of greater dividends, our corporations and vast millionaire company of stockholders will sacrifice the lives of thousands of their employees, men, women and children, in times of peace to the ravages of a civilized system of mining or an up-to-date grinding mill, or a latter day factory. Owing to the high estimate placed upon commercial gain and to the low regard for the value of human life, such accidents as that of the "General Slocum" recently, are made possible, and the only wonder is that such terrible calamities do not occur more frequently since the policy of profit at any risk rules and prevails everywhere. And as for our trees and forests, we recklessly and with ruthless hands denude our hill-sides and whole strips of land to the detriment of the natural conditions of the climate, changing the rainfall and other beneficent and needed natural phenomena. And all for commercial reasons.

The dollar is the most conquering warrior of these days, and nothing is safe from its ravages, families, communities, nature, land and water. All must yield to this potent and almost magical object that blinds the eye of the legislator and changes the appearance of the surface of the earth and its denizens. Destruction is everywhere. Tales of it are borne to our ears daily and all are accepted as a commonplace inevitable. This is in our civilization.

Moses spoke and acted differently. Wherever conditions were such as to permit it, the greatest consideration was had by him for all life, human, animal and vegetable. He respected God's handiwork and nature's products. He accepted everything as coming from a workshop in which a Supreme Intelligence was a Master Architect.

May we, of this new century, be inspired to similar views and consequent activity!

The Shofar Month.

The month of Ellul is characteristically a month that leads up to more important occasions, the most important holidays of the Jewish year.

Tradition has associated with this month a cluster of fancies which find their climax in the coming holy-days. It may justly be termed the Shofar month, because rabbinical ordinance has rightly connected its days with the ancient custom of Shofar blowing from the beginning to the end thereof. The crude sounds of this instrument are calculated to awaken in the pious and devoted followers of our faith a feeling of dread. They convey the admonition to prepare for the critical period to come when spiritual lessons are taught and the souls of all stand on trial for committed offences or neglected duties.

The term of preparation is at hand. A call is sounded for each one to join the ranks of Israel as a confessed penitent regretting his sins and determined to meet the approach of the Yomim Noraim with the proper sense of what they stand for annually in the life of man.

Modern taste may disapprove of the shofar as a musical instrument. It is condemned as not appealing to the æsthetic demands of the day. It may be ruled out as no fitting accessory to worship in our fashionable temples. But the Shofar still means much for the house of Israel and will continue to symbolize the serious import of the most sacred portion of the year for the Jew.

With each day bringing us nearer to Tishri let us feel assured of the love which the Almighty bears to His erring creatures and of the forbearance with which the Creator regards His feeble and mortal children upon earth, so that they may prepare themselves in Ellul for a life of amendment.

Child Thieves and Their Ways.

XIV. BY THE SENTINEL.

Stocking the Commissariat.

The short morning service over and the little ones left behind, to be cared for for the day, we proceed to carefully see to their cleanliness. Those who are old enough to be taught to wash themselves, should be made to do so under the supervision of a young lady, who will make it her business to see that every child is in perfect hygienic condition. They must be taught that "Cleanliness is the road to Godliness."

The number of helpless little ones, that can be taken in charge, for the whole or part of the day, will depend entirely upon the size of the rooms devoted to this purpose and the number of assistants and quantity of proper furnishings that are available. But, we will not believe, until the experiment has failed, that the Ghetto will not provide all the womanly women whose skilled help is required, to help their less fortunate sisters, by caring for the little babes, while the mothers are working! The babies will of course be fed when necessary.

The toddlers will be given a simple meal and be all ready for the kindergarten's "instruction" by nine o'clock. We do not propose to go further into this. We have shown how to start the day. The remaining hours will be spent in the manner most likely to make the children feel that "God is love." That Jewish women are as sweet as Christian women. That the Jewish Bible stories tell of the care of God for all his creatures. That not even a swallow is beyond His care and much more therefore—a little child.

So far we are dealing with children below school age. Some of them, perchance, are the children of recent immigrants and have not yet learned English. So much the better. The earlier we instil habits of cleanliness, neatness, prayer and mutual forbearance, all springing from a consciousness of the universal dependence of all creation upon God, the more likely are the children to become impregnated with the spirit of Religion. As the atmosphere of our Settlement will be so genuinely Jewish, and so absolutely American, we shall send these children to the Public Schools, better able to withstand the temptations to stray away from the Faith of their parents. We must not fall into a common error. The habits of many of our immigrants are their national habits, colored of course by the fact that they have lived pseudo Jewish lives in their old homes. But to a great extent it is the habit of "Liking the pies, like mother used to make them," rather than any convictions as to the right or the wrong of anything; that impel so many of the parents to pursue as nearly as possible in the Ghetto of New York, a life that would pass as normal in the Pale.

In the midst of our writing, we are called to the Phone to hear another instance—to listen to another tale of perfidy,—to be asked to immediately see what can be done, to prevent a recurrence of what has shocked our informant to his very heart's core. To us the story is not new. We have known for a long time that the Church of the Transfiguration in Henry Street, was the resort of Jewish boys and Girls. This is the first time that we have mentioned by name, one of the places, where the "Child Thieves" are located, but while we mention this one, we add that we do not feel that all the blame is attachable to the Holy Fathers in charge. The place is a church. The Cross is in evidence. It preaches and teaches Christianity, of course, and if Jewish children, aye, and Jewish men and women too, go there, they go there with their eyes open. This is nothing but an example of sordid materialism on the part of those who go there. They hanker after the onions and flesh pots of Egypt, and are not to be debarred from partaking of them, even by the necessity of their wearing the badge of their treason.

About twenty Jewish boys accompanied by a priest, were taken for an outing the other day, says our informant; and every boy with a physiognomy that could not be mistaken; and with the seal of Abraham in his flesh, we do not doubt; and with a cross of his breast displayed for all the world to see; showed at how cheap a price they held their Judaism. We wonder, whether beside the crosses on their breasts, outside, they wore the Arbakon's next their hearts, inside? We do not forget the story of the apostates, who hoped the Holy Father would hurry up and baptise them, or else they would be too late to Davan Minchah.

One of the most successful managers and playwrights of the present day is David Belasco. His success has been quite phenomenal. It seems that he must be in possession of some magic wand, the touch of which brings success to his every effort.

Of course, the fortune which has crowned the efforts of Mr. Belasco has not come without hard work. Mr. Belasco is known to be a very strenuous worker, and a close applicant to his undertakings. He is a man of nerve and courage also; his fight against the theatrical syndicate gives the strongest evidence of this. Few men would have held out against so powerful an organization. Only a few days ago the New York Herald made a statement that a fabulous sum was offered to Mrs. Leslie Carter, his principal star, to desert him, which offer was promptly rejected.

Mr. Belasco has brought out some stirring plays in which Mrs. Carter interpreted the principal part with extraordinary success. Mr. Belasco has also acquired a theatre of his own, and is likely to follow this up with another. Altogether, Mr. Belasco has good cause to be satisfied with himself and the theatre-going public, which, by its generous attendance at his plays, has so strongly seconded his efforts.

His new play in which Mrs. Carter is again to assume the leading role, it is said will excel his previous efforts, and give his star an opportunity to display the versatility of her ability as an actress.

Reb. Yankev Pinocle Club.

We re-publish at the request of a number of our old subscribers a revised edition of the "Reb Yankev Pinocle Club," which, when it originally appeared, attracted so much attention. Our readers will find the various sketches of the series amusing, instructive and entertaining.

Serious Thought.

In our memories there is more storing up than we can tell. And God is so wonderful that what is nothing as a sight, or an event, may prove very precious as a recollection.—William Mountford.

The reason why men are so often disappointed in their search for God is that they do not look for Him first of all where He chiefly should be sought—in the manifestations He makes of Himself in their own minds and hearts.—David Swing.

The peace of him that has lived near to God is like the quiet, steady lustre of the lighthouse-lamp, startling no one, ever to be found when wanted, casting the same mild ray through the long night across the maddest billows that curl their crest around the rock on which it stands.—F. W. Robertson.

Sad will be the day for any man when he becomes absolutely contented with the life he is living, and the thoughts he is thinking and the deeds that he is doing—when there is not forever beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger which he knows that he was meant to do because he is a child of God.—Phillips Brooks.

We are not Puritan enough. We excuse when we ought to reproach ourselves. Are we waiting for God to bring into judgment our compromises and conformities and insincerities—waiting for the refiner's fire and for the fuller's soap, bowing the head like a bulrush instead of breaking every yoke? only sorry enough for our sins to confess, but not sorry enough to forsake them?—Rufus Ellis.

The just man is the happiest. His life glides on as peaceably as the undisturbed waters of a clear rivulet flowing slowly through meadows enameled with flowers. As they do, the just marks his paces by benefits, and leaves after him felicity, plenty and joy; as they also, he is thirsted after, desired, cherished and regretted. Wherever he goes hearts seem flying to attend upon his steps. The father shows him to his son, and dies content to see him so well replaced, like unto the rays of the sun, which after a gloomy storm, break out to recreate with their presence, and animate by their warmth the languid and lifeless fields. The just brings everywhere along with him happiness and comfort.—Great Thoughts.

The effective life and the receptive life are one. No sweep of aim that does some work for God, but harvests also some more for the truth of God and sweeps it into the treasury of life.—Phillips Brooks

Cheered by the presence of God, I will do at the moment without anxiety, according to the strength which He shall give me, the work that His providence assigns me. I will leave the rest; it is not my affair.—Fenelon.

Love, it has been said, in the common acceptance of the term, is folly; but in love, in its purity, its loftiness, its unselfishness, is not only a consequence, but a proof of our moral excellence. The sensibility to moral beauty, the forgetfulness of self in the admiration engendered by it, all proves its claim to a high moral influence. It is the triumph of the unselfish part of our nature.—Dr. Smiles.

Manhattan Beach.

The glory of Manhattan Beach seems to be passing away. This once fashionable and bustling seaside resort is not what it used to be. Is the blight of Corbin upon it? It may be so. One after another the hotels and resorts which excluded Hebrews have either passed into the hands of Hebrews, or have gone out of business.

We are not exulting over this; we are merely stating a truth which is capable of corroboration. To those familiar with the former glory of Manhattan Beach, the present dullness which pervades at this resort presents a remarkable condition.

It may be said that resorts like Luna Park and Dreamland in Coney Island, have done much to rob Manhattan Beach of its patronage. The elite will now be found in these two great shows. The attractions in each being of such a nature and the surroundings of so respectable a character, that the very best element of the public has been drawn to these places and has become its best patrons.

The City Directory.

The Directory of the City of New York which has just been issued, has assumed larger proportions than all its predecessors. The number of names added to the same, since last year, is fifteen thousand. This addition would in itself constitute quite a directory. The number of pages contained in the current number is about two thousand. What it will be in twenty years from now and later on can only be conjectured. We presume it will have to be issued in volumes. Considering the magnitude of the work, it may be said that the errors are scarcely worthy of note, and the omissions are but few. The work is worthy of commendation.

What I must do is all that concerns me, and not what the people think. This rule, equally as arduous in actual as in the intellectual life, may serve for the whole distinction between greatness and meanness. It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after your own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowds keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Alexander von Humboldt and Slonimski.

It is well known that the recently deceased Ch. S. Slonimski, mathematician and astronomer, was on friendly terms with Humboldt. His biography of the latter in Hebrew, was published on Humboldt's eighty-eighth birthday at the expense of the chief synagogue in Berlin. When the aged scientist read the book, it gave him great pleasure, and he wrote the following letter to his Hebrew biographer:

My dear Mr. Slonimski:—I am deeply in your debt, in not acknowledging long before this, the hand which you have so kindly extended to me. The disturbed condition in which I live and the political and social-unquiet circumstances hardly justify me. A stranger unfortunately to Hebrew literature, but from earliest youth intimately connected with the noblest of your coreligionists, and an untiring and active contestant for their just rights, I surely am not indifferent to the honor you show me. Such a distinction can only be increased by the testimony of the profound orientalist, Dr. Michael Sachs, a savant of varied learning. For the subject of the biography it is almost a source of satisfaction not to know the old tongue. From Tuesday on I shall again remain for a few weeks in Berlin, and if Mr. Slonimski, has not returned to Warsaw, I shall be glad to receive him any day between one and two, and to express to you personally the high regard to which your scientific work entitles you.

Your well-born most respectfully,
ALEXANDER VON HUMBOLDT.

Giving What Comfort One Can.

Comfort is often mistakenly withheld because he who would offer it cannot say or do all that he thinks the occasion demands. Just because the perfectly apt phrase or the ideal manner is not forthcoming, it is so easy to miss an opportunity to strengthen a burdened soul. When you were in sorrow, did you scorn the timid word of that humble sympathizer who longed, as you could easily see, to say and to do far more? Have you forgotten the deep and understanding look on the face of one who said nothing to you, but only looked his longing to help? Each in his own way can give more comfort to a sorrowing friend than he can by proffering an imitation of another's gift. One is not likely to give comfort at all if he waits until he is sure he can do it just as it ought to be done.

Kurrus' Confections.

As the season advances at the seaside the demand for confections and ice cream increases. Mr. L. Kurrus, the well known confectioner of Ocean Avenue, Long Branch, N. J., who has been established since 1873, is kept busy these days supplying his many customers with plain and fancy ice cream, water ices and fancy, ornamental confections, etc.

Mr. Kurrus is the pioneer of the seashore in his line and manufactures everything in its purity for high-class trade, using only the finest flavors and pure cream. He has a well equipped factory, and supplies the trade from Atlantic Highlands to Asbury Park. He makes a specialty of catering to birthday parties.

Mr. Kurrus has been engaged in the confectionery business since 1864, when he first opened a store in New York.

Keller's Modern Building.

Keller's market at West End is in a new home this year. Mr. Wm. C. Keller, the enterprising proprietor, has erected on Brighton Avenue an elegant four-story brick building on strictly modern lines. The building in its entirety is a New York apartment house, with all that is implied thereby. On the main floor is the market, fitted up in the latest manner, and the next two floors contain apartments, with rooms single or en suite, while the top floor contains a commodious restaurant.

Everything about the building is first class and substantial. Sanitary plumbing and elegant bathrooms throughout. It is the first modern apartment house at the seashore, and will prove a profitable venture, in which case it may be expected that other similar structures, so much needed in this section, will be erected.

Shaw Cottage.

The Shaw Cottage on Chelsea Avenue is filled with satisfied guests. This is the fifteenth season under the management of Mrs. Gutman, who is conducting the house jointly with Mr. D. Miller, proprietor of Miller's restaurant, in Nassau Street, New York. The Shaw Cottage accommodates 100 guests. The cuisine is Hungarian and first class.

Kellerman's Market.

August Kellerman, who has had a meat market for years at 809 Columbus Avenue, New York, has purchased the Washington Market of M. F. Kahn, 163 Broadway, Long Branch, and will conduct the same on broad, liberal principles, serving the people of this section with the best the market affords, and with promptness. Mr. Kellerman handles all kinds of meats, provisions and vegetables. He employs competent help and has five delivery wagons in constant use.

Professor Dr. Galland, of Berlin, has been decorated with the Knight's Cross of the Dutch Order of Orange-Nassau.

At the University of Leeds, England, Dr. J. B. Cohen and Mr. Percy F. Kendall have been appointed professors of organic chemistry and of geology, respectively.

According to the latest census the Jew of Italy numbered 35,617 in a total population of about 34 millions. The Jewish community in Rome, the largest in the Kingdom, consists of 7,121 persons. There are 173 Jewish officers in the Army.

Mrs. Reuben Moss died at Melbourne on the 13th June, having survived her husband, a respected communal worker, only a few months. She was granddaughter of the celebrated Chazan, Simon Ascher, of the Great Synagogue in London. Her brother, Mr. Samuel Leon, is one of the Crown Prosecutors for the State of Victoria.

While the Queen Mother was driving last week at Soestdijk, the horses of the carriage took fright at a motor car and rushed off at a great speed. A Jew, Herr E. J. Loterijman (who rendered valuable services to the late President Kruger during the last South African war) happened to witness the incident and with great sang-froid he ran after and stopped the horses. The same evening he was invited to the Palace, where the Queen Mother warmly thanked him for his services and expressed her admiration of his intrepidity.

Curious Contest For a Bride in Tibet.

Among some of the wilder Tibetan tribes in the Koko-nor there is a curious marriage ceremonial function.

The groom, when these preparations have been completed, rides up and announces his intention of seizing the bride.

Which Eye Is Stronger?

Here is a little test for your eyes that will soon show you which of them is the stronger.

Try sighting with both eyes open first. Then look with first one eye and then the other and see how far out of line each makes the object appear.

Bumps on the Head.

The lump raised by a blow on the head is due to the resistance offered by the hard skull and its close connection with the movable elastic scalp by many circumscribed bands of connective tissue.

The result of a blow, when the scalp is not cut, is the bruising and laceration of many of the small blood vessels or capillaries.

The Largest Cities of Antiquity.

The greatest cities of ancient times were Babylon and Rome. The former is said to have had an area of 100 to 200 square miles.

Saved by a Bullet Wound.

A soldier who served under General Wolfe in the campaign resulting in the fall of Quebec was dying of an abscess in one of his lungs.

MODERN VERSE.

The Heart of the Woods. I hear it beat in morning still...

I hear it throb in sprouting May— A muffled murmur on the breeze...

In daisied June I catch its roll, Pulsing through the leafy shade...

Or when the autumn leaves are shed, And frosts attend the fading year...

I feel its pulse mid winter snows, And feel my own with added force...

The startled birches shake their curls; A withered leaf leaps in the breeze...

Compact of life, of fervent wing, A dynamo of feathered power...

Love has her temple on the shores of Time, And, like a siren, by her sweet bell's chime...

Who sail upon life's stormy, beaten sea, All come at last unto Love's sunny lea...

Love's hands are soft, yet can they smite like steel, Love's eyes are bright, yet they can make you feel...

Love is a goddess, giving endless peace, Love is a fickle vixen of caprice...

Love breathes on one a warm, immortal breath, And smites the next one with the bitter death...

The Light That Never Fails. Far down the somber shaft, where scarce a gleam...

Of plain sound sense life's current coin is made, With that we drive the most substantial trade...

Little Kindnesses. If you were toiling up a weary hill, Bearing a load beyond your strength to bear...

If you were breasting a keen wind, which tossed And buffeted and chilled you as you strove...

There is no little and there is no much, We weigh and measure and define in vain...

NOT IN HER CLASS.

There's a maiden fair and slender,
With an air just like a queen.
Oh, to see her eyes grow tender
I would bow with abject mien!
I would humbly kneel before her
Might I whisper I adore her.

But I hardly dare address her,
Hardly dare to press my suit.
Though I gladly would caress her,
Eyes and voice alike are mute.
I can only gaze and wonder,
While I keep my passion under.

Ah, I see her very often
As she lightly comes and goes!
Would sometimes her eyes might soften,
Somehow showing that she knows
Something of my passion sleeping
Underneath the calm I'm keeping!

But, alas! there isn't any Chance at all to get in work.
She is 'hress to millions many;
I am just a ribbon clerk.
I've no chance to go a-wooing,
So, you see, there's nothing doing.

The Dimple.

Science may point out that a dimple is a blemish and that it has no business on a perfect face, but science could not write books enough to convince doubting man of this great truth.

In fact if a young lady has a couple of dimples mixed in with her other features the average man will overlook several other faults. She may perhaps be a trifle shy on education and not have money enough to buy a slightly damaged duke, but if a girl has a few dimples as her stock in trade she can come pretty near taking her pick of the young men of the neighborhood. She may marry for love or money, whichever she sees fit.

It is mighty easy for a man, if he is convinced that a dimple is a blemish, when he has won the favor of a girl who is afflicted with them to console himself with the thought that none of us are perfect anyway.

Sweet Words.

There is no sweeter word than home.
You think so when afar you roam
And drain at times a bitter cup
In hunting joys that don't turn up.

But some folks take a different view
And, looking out, can find a few Words that are sweeter to their ears
Than home, if rent is in arrears.

He who the tinker's tick attends
A sweeter word finds dividends,
And some men who for power aspire
Think office more to their desire,
But for your little household lamb
There is no sweeter word than jam.

Cameo Cutting.

Before the discovery of onyx as the material specially adapted for cameo cutting the ancients cut them on soft stones, eggshells and other materials. The Greco-Roman, and especially the Augustan, period was rich in cameos, and almost every great Roman wished to have his portrait cut in onyx. One of these, an exquisite portrait of Emperor Augustus, Caesar himself, is perhaps the finest existing cameo. Such portrait cameos were practically indestructible, except by accident. Some large cameos—the "Triumph of Bacchus" at the Vatican, the "Agate de Tibere" at Paris and the "Gemma Augustea" at Vienna—are splendid works of art.

There was a change from the classical and mythological designs of Greco-Roman times to Christian themes in the fourth century, when Constantine the Great became a Christian.

At the renaissance classical art recovered its lost position. Renaissance cameo cutters were very skilled workmen, but in spite of their general high level they did not succeed in making any very important cameo, although the "Hymeneal Procession of Eros and Psyche" realized a high price.

Horseflesh and Beef.

"Here are some means of distinguishing between horseflesh and beef," said a meat inspector.

"Raw horseflesh is a brownish red in color, whereas in raw beef there is no brown. Raw horseflesh is soft and tenacious. Touch it, and the finger sinks in, while as you withdraw the finger the tissues rise with it and cling to it, as though intermixed with glue. But raw beef is not soft nor tenacious in this way. Raw horseflesh, furthermore, has an odd, metallic smell.

"Cooked horseflesh is denser than beef. It is as dense as a lump of cheese. In taste it is sweet—a sweetness sickening, to my mind.

"The best test for horseflesh is to take a piece of the fat and melt it. Horse fat will melt to a clear oil at so low a temperature as 70 degrees F., beef fat won't melt to a clear oil under a temperature of 112 degrees."—New York Telegram.

The Work of the Heart.
 Whether it be true or not that the Egyptians 4,000 years B. C. discovered the true functions of the heart and thus anticipated Harvey, it certainly is true that Michael Servitus, whom John Calvin burned to death at Geneva in 1553, in his treatise, "De Trinitatis Erroribus," published in 1533, first maintained the imperviousness of the septum and the "transition of blood from the right ventricle by the pulmonary artery to the lungs, thence by the pulmonary vein and left auricle and ventricle and the aorta to all parts of the body."
 More than eighty years later Harvey, taking up the work of that great physiologist, completed it, and in his work, "Exercitatus de Motu Cordis et Sanguinis" (1628), promulgated to the world his discovery of the true functions of the heart and of the regular and periodic circulation of the blood, and it in nowise derogates from his fame or the merit of his discovery to say that it was Michael Servitus who pointed the way to this discovery for him.—New York Times.

The Desert of Sahara.
 The greater part of the desert of Sahara is from 6,000 to 8,000 feet above the level of the ocean. The desert is not rainless, but showers cover it with grass for a few weeks in the year, large flocks and herds being mainly upon its borders, and the oases are depressions in which water can be collected and stored. It was at one time believed that the whole of the desert was below the sea level instead of only a comparatively small part of it.

How to Massage the Skin.
 Rubbing a cream into the skin, either of face or hands, wash with tepid water and a pure soap. After this a warmer lather is made until the water is about as hot as can be borne. The face, being thoroughly cleansed and heated, is ready for the treatment. A soft emollient cream is gently rubbed into the skin with the fingers. In massaging the face rub out from the center, beginning below and working up. A woman can massage her own face after a little practice, but if a friend will do it for her so much the better if the friend has strong, firm fingers.

How to Keep Hincement Fresh.
 Pour over it golden sirup to the depth of half an inch. This will exclude the air and keep it fresh any length of time and at any time of the year.

So Annoying.
 The rubbernecks annoyed her so
As on the sidewalk in a row
They waited for the maiden shy
And ogled her as she passed by.

But truth to tell I'm quite afraid
It much more had annoyed the maid
If as she passed from day to day
No man at all had looked her way.

What Other Object?
 "When I married you you did not have a cent to your name and hardly more than one dress, and now you must have a new gown every month."
 "Goodness, don't I know it. Do you suppose I would have married you if I had had money of my own?"

The Afterclap.
 To sit and spoon is very sweet
With some young girl demure and neat.
But when you have to buy her clothes
And pay for all she wants to eat,
It isn't, as you may suppose,
So great a treat.

Cautious.
 "Do you think it is right to kiss a girl you are not engaged to."
 "It may be right, but it isn't safe. She is liable to land you before you get away."

Stood the Test.
 He loved her. Who could doubt it?
He proved it sure enough.
He listened to her poems
And said they were great stuff.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Buy and ask for MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.
