"THE JEWS."

By Edwin Markham.

Once verily, O mighty Czar, your crown was justified,
When from your place among the thrones your lifted spirit cried:
"Let there be no more wars on earth, let weary cannons cease."
Well was it, Ruler of the North, that Caesar should say, "Peace!"
But yet from Russia comes a cry of souls that would be free;
A cry from the windy Baltic runs down to the Euxine Sea.
It is the cry of a people, of a people old in grief,
A people homeless on the earth and shaken as the leaf.

Listen a moment with your heart and you will hear, O Czar,
There in your clear cold spaces under the great North Star—
There in your Arctic silences swept clean of base desire,
Where the unseen watcher reaches up the awful Fan of Fire.
Around you is the vastness and the wondrous hush of snow,
That you may hear their cry in the night and let the captives go.
Have they not kingly lineage, have they not pedigree?
Are they not wrapt with wonder, like the darkness of the sea?

They come out of the night of years with Asia in their blood,
Out of the mystery of Time that was before the flood.
They saw imperial Egypt shrink and join the ruined lands;
They saw the sculptured scarlet East sink under the gray sands;
They saw the star of Hellas rise and glimmer into dream;
They saw the wolf of Rome draw suck beside the yellow stream,
And go with ravenous eyes ablaze and jaws that would not spare,
Snarling across the earth, then, toothless, die upon his lair.

And have they not had grief enough this people shrunk with chains?
Must there be more Assyrias, must there be other Spains?
They are the tribes of sorrow, and for ages have been fed
On brackish desert-wells of hate and exile's bitter bread.
They sang the elegies that tell the grief of mortal years;
They built the tombs of Pharaohs, mixing the bricks with tears;
They builded up fair cities with no threshold for their own;
They gave their dust to Nineveh, to Babylon their moan.

After tears by ruined altars, after tolls in alien lands,
After wallings by strange waters, after lifting of vain hands,
After cords and stripes and burdens, after ages scorched with fire,
Shall they not find the way of peace, a land of heart's desire?
Shall they not have a place to pray, a place to lay the head?
Shall they not have the wild bird's rest, the fox's frugal bed?
Men's eyes are on you, mighty Czar; the world awaits the word;
The blood-splashed gates are eager, and the rusted bolt has stirred!

sia, whenever business, family claims or other legitimate causes require their presence there. This question has been powerfully agitated by Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle, and great credit is due to that gentleman for the energetic campaign he has entered upon, and maintains so ably.—[Ed. Hebrew Standard.]

issued by this government to such citizens. These discriminations are unjust, undeserved, un-American, and contrary to our policy of international comity and courtesy, and in my opinion the government of the United States should take decided and immediate action regarding the matter.

I believe if this government would that the government of Russia treat all American citizens the same. This is the question.

In my opinion the proudest boast of a human being is to say "I am an American citizen," and this great Republic should insist that every other country treat every American citizen just the same regardless of race, religion or previous condition.

zens, traveling abroad and wishing to visit that country, without discrimination on account of race. The President promised to do what he could in the matter, but apparently nothing has come of it, and Russia, to-day as heretofore, declines to recognize American passports issued to Jewish citizens.

It is only fair for me to say that much credit is due my colleague, Judge Goldfogle, for his zeal and untiring efforts in and out of Congress, to secure these rights for our fellow Jewish citizens: I have helped him all I could, and will continue to do so.

I am inclined to think that if the good offices of the United States were properly exercised, the Russian government would gladly accede to this fair request, and make no distinctions between American citizens on account of race or creed.

I am in favor of the government doing everything it possibly can, diplomatically and constitutionally, to compel Russia to treat all citizens of the United States alike, and recognize American passports no matter to whom issued.

As an American citizen, and a Democrat, of the school of Jefferson, I am opposed to class distinctions, and abhor legal, political and governmental discriminations on account of race or religion. The Russian treatment of her Jewish subjects has been one long, unending outrage, that has invoked the sympathy of humanity with the oppressed Jews of that benighted land, and called down on Russian racial barbarity the condemnation of every enlightened government in the world.

The government of the United States can do much to stop these Jewish outrages in Russia, and at the same time insist on equal and exact justice and the same kind of treatment to all American citizens who visit abroad and desire to sojourn in Russian territory. Our diplomacy should insist and demand that our passports to every citizen be recognized by every country.

VIEWS

HON. WILLIAM SULZER.

As a citizen of the United States, and a Representative in the Congress of the Republic, I have given considerable thought and study to the attitude of the Russian government in excluding certain American citizens on account of race and religion, and arbitrarily refusing to honor and recognize American passports, duly demand and insist on its inherent and fundamental treaty rights, these discriminations by Russia and other countries against the Jews would cease, and all American citizens whether Jews or Gentiles, would be admitted to all foreign countries with whom this government is at peace—on presentation of their passports.

For Russia to say she treats all Jews of other countries the same is begging the issue. The government of the United States should demand

About two years ago, Judge Goldfogle and myself, accompanied by several other members of Congress, called at the White House to see President Roosevelt to urge him to take some action in this matter, and to use the good offices of the Great Republic of the United States with the Russian government to bring about a change for the better treatment of the Jews in Russia, and to get the Russian government to recognize the rights of all American citi-

At the request of the Hebrew Standard, a number of leading public men have kindly consented to express their views on the question that passports furnished to American citizens should be honored by foreign governments regardless of the religion of the holders, and that American citizens of Jewish faith should be permitted free entry into the domains of Rus-

LITERARY.

THE PICTURE SCREEN. By Emily Goldsmith Gerson. Philadelphia: George W. Jacobs & Co. 1904.

Mrs. Gerson has written a nice little book of stories for children, dedicated to her own two daughters. The twenty-two stories in the book are supposed to be told by a mother to her little girl, day by day, to while away the tedium of a detention to her room caused by a sprained ankle.

The little stories will doubtless be greatly admired by all good little girls to whom the book is given. Only good little girls whose clothes are tidy and whose hair is well brushed, who never lose or mislay their gloves or ribbons and never get bad reports at school should receive this book as a birthday present. They should not be older than ten or eleven or younger than seven or eight years. Hoydenish, noisy, untidy, wicked, poke-out-their-tongue and be-fresh-to-teacher little girls do not deserve so nice a book, so well printed and bound and containing such pretty pictures all about the things told in the stories.

Boys would scorn the book and, any way, boys don't count.

THE INTERNATIONAL QUARTERLY. October, 1904. Fox, Duffield & Co., New York.

The International Quarterly for October, the second issue of this journal to appear with the imprint of Fox, Duffield & Co., contains a variety of interesting papers. The Russo-Japanese war is covered by articles on "Russian Autocracy," by Professor Simkovich, of Columbia University, and another on "The Slav," by the Rev. Peter Roberts, of Mahanoy City, Pa., who has made a special study of the Slav immigrant in the anthracite coal region of America. The Japanese point of view is given by Baron Keitaro Kaneko in a study of the causes of the present conflict. The Rev. Edward Everett Hale contributes a characteristic article on "Religion in America." Professor Brander Matthews writes on "A Study of the Drama," and Harper Pennington on "Whistler." A timely essay, in view of the forthcoming publication of Renan's Letters, is that of Georg Brandes on "Renan as a Dramatist." Other contributors are Wolf von Schierbrand, Charles M. Gayley, William Morten Payne and Hillaire Belloc.

A contributor sends the following preliminary notice:

"The first number of volume 10 of the International Quarterly is before us. From its very inception this periodical has aimed high, ranking with the best of English monthlies and quarterlies. Its contributors are authorities on the questions treated and the subjects discussed and elucidated touch the most vital questions of the time. Every one of the articles is a gem and affords interest to the most fastidious student. The articles open with one by Professor Simkovich, of Columbia University, entitled 'An Interpretation of Russian Autocracy.' It is a revelation. It demonstrates why Russia ruled by the principle of 'Byzantinism' is bound to keep its working population in a state of utter ignorance and superstition in order to prop up 'autocracy,' and which, nevertheless, is bound to break down and collapse—in fact, is nearing collapse now. The information imparted is of special interest at this time. The next article, by that able writer, Wolf von Schierbrand, depicts the growth and development of Socialism, which seems to have arrived at its zenith and is on its decline, after having attained an eminence which enabled it to cast 3,000,000 votes and send 82 Deputies to the German Parliament. Not less interesting are the articles by Edward Everett Hale, on 'The Religion of America,' and that of the eminent critic and literary historian, Georg Brandes, the modern St. Beuve, on 'Ernest Renan as a Dramatist.' We can only point out one more article, that by Edward Hitzig, on 'The World and Brahm.' The Quarterly is full of 'brain' from cover to cover and affords the richest garnering."

THE HEBREW ALBUM. New York. 6665.

This is a little book of biographical sketches of prominent New York Hebrews and contains portraits of everybody mentioned. The sketches are all of the briefest and are most simply and artlessly written in Hebrew and English. The editor of The Nation, a Hebrew periodical, acted as editor and compiler of the Album. It is dedicated to Joseph S. Marcus, "the patron of Hebrew literature in America."

NIVER'S SCHOOL HISTORY OF ENGLAND. By Harmon B. Niver, A. B., teacher in New York city public schools. Cloth, 12mo., 422 pages, with maps and illustrations. Price, 90 cents. American Book Company, New York, Cincinnati and Chicago.

This book furnishes a narrative history of England for the higher grades of elementary schools. It traces not only the growth of those principles of liberty and self-government which are the common heritage of the Anglo-Saxon race, but also the gradual development of the British Empire and its rise to the front rank of the world's manufacturing and commercial powers. It is written in a clear and simple style, and lays especial stress upon the progress of civilization as exemplified in literature and the arts. Questions and topics for home reading follow each section, and will encourage independent thought and supplement the work of the class room. In the appendix are given lists of books easily accessible and especially suited for reference. The illustrations are numerous, appropriate, and attractive, and the maps helpful and not over crowded.

WALKER'S OUR BIRDS AND THEIR NESTLINGS. By Margaret Coulson Walker. Cloth, 12mo., 222 pages. With numerous illustrations. Price, 60 cents. American Book Company, New York, Cincinnati and Chicago.

Short chapters or essays on twenty of our best known birds, describing their nesting habits, the care taken of their nestlings, their food, their songs, etc., with an occasional anecdote or incident from personal observation. These chapters are written in a simple and interesting style. There are included a number of poems or brief legends in connection with each of the birds described, thus lending interest and variety to the work. All technical details are avoided in the text, but an appendix of sixteen pages gives detailed descriptions in brief of the various birds, their nests, eggs, songs, range, food, and other matter necessary to their identification. A prominent and attractive feature of the book is its illustrations. Besides fourteen colored full-page plates, there are fifty-six black and white half tones from photographs by such well-known bird students as Frank M. Chapman and A. R. Dugmore. These aid in giving the work a value superior to any other school book of its class. It should be widely used for nature study.

POTTER'S GRAMMAR SCHOOL ALGEBRA. By A. W. Potter, formerly Superintendent of Schools, Wilkes-Barre, and Instructor in Mathematics, University of Michigan. Cloth, 12mo., 152 pages. Price, 50 cents. American Book Company, New York, Cincinnati and Chicago.

Intended for a year's work, this book is well adapted to open up the subject in a simple and comprehensive manner, arouse the pupil's interest, and lay the foundation for more extended work in later years. The development of algebraic principles is closely correlated with those of arithmetic, with which the pupil is already familiar, and the transition from one study to the other is therefore much more easily effected than by the ordinary method. The plan provides for the introduction of the various subjects in the first half of the year, with a review and an extended development in the second half, seventy-five lessons being allotted to each half year. Intricate problems have been avoided, though optional lessons are given for more advanced pupils or for review work.

The Comedy of Protection.

Something of how the tariffs are made was told the other day by Col. Wilkinson, formerly a United States General Appraiser. The Dingley bill was largely written by the late Col. Tichenor, then the President of the Board of General Appraisers and one of the leading tariff experts in the country. When he came to revise the free list he found a provision on it for "brime." He went with it to Congressman Dingley.

"Dingley, what's brime?" he asked. "I never heard of it, and I can't find it in any of the dictionaries."

Dingley could not tell him, but reminded him of the axiom of tariff makers that the free list was sacred, and advised him to let it alone. Col. Tichenor was not satisfied, but hunted up the law preceding the McKinley law, and found that "brime" was on the free list there. It did not appear, however, in the law preceding that, and Tichenor finally started out to canvass the Congressmen to find out, if he could, what "brime" was and how it got on the free list. Finally he discovered that it was included in the list at the request of a former member of Congress, and Tichenor, whose curiosity was now aroused, went to see him.

The statesman didn't know what "brime" was, but he did remember that it was included in the free list at the request of one of his constituents, and the two went to see the constituent. They found that he was interested in the salt-fish trade, and they asked him what "brime" was.

"Why brime is what we pack the fish in," he replied, and the two tariff makers looked mystified. They asked to see some, and the man knocked the head off a cask and showed them a barrel of brine.

"But that's brine, salt and water," said Tichenor.

"Brine or brime, I don't care what you call it, but don't you go and make us pay duty on it," was the reply of the fish dealer.

During the framing of the same law Col. Tichenor was bothered a great deal by the representatives of special industries who wanted a good stiff tariff on goods competitive with the products of their friends. One of the most active of these was Nelson Dingley of Maine, whose name the bill bore. One day he walked in on the man who framed the bill.

"Tichenor, fix me up a good stiff tariff on kindling wood," he said.

"Why, who in the world cares anything about kindling wood?" asked the tariff maker.

"Three hundred people in Maine make their living by cutting kindling wood," Dingley said, and the result was a provision in the law for a tax of 3-10 of a cent a cubic foot on kindling wood.

A few days later Dingley visited him again and said:

"I want a good, heavy tariff on toothpicks."

"Who in the world is interested in toothpicks?" asked Tichenor.

"Five hundred people in Maine make their living by making toothpicks for the New York market," said Dingley, and the Dingley law carries a provision for a tax of 2 cents a thousand and 15 per cent.

Just before the bill was completed Dingley appeared again. This time he wanted a tax fixed up on skewers. In reply to the usual question, Dingley informed him that fully a thousand people in Maine made their living by making skewers, but after talking the matter over it was decided that as skewers were manufactures of wood, anyway, they would be dutiable at 35 per cent., and Dingley let it go at that.—N. Y. Times.

The Bright Side.

We may not always see it,
 The other side of pain,
 The other side of trial,
 And the sun above the rain,
 But in this world are mingled
 Forever, shine and shower,
 And both are bringing gladness,
 Each in its own good hour.

The side that covers over
 Our path may not be bright,
 But somewhere nearer heaven
 It glows with glorious light;
 The lowlands may be misty,
 And steep and rough the way,
 But in God's uplands ever,
 Abides the perfect day.—Selected.

A New Version.

A considerable stir has been occasioned by a book published by a Russian traveler, Nicholas Notovitch, and purporting to be a translation of an ancient document discovered by him in a Buddhist monastery, in Thibet. The book is a history of the life and teachings of Issa, or Jesus, and differs in many old Latin word comes our English word very material points from the account given by the Christian records. According to this narrative, Issa, between the ages of thirteen and twenty-nine, traveled through India, and there endeavored to turn away the people from their idolatrous practices and to convert them to monotheism and the exercise of a pure morality. It was only subsequent to this that, having returned to Palestine, he began his mission among his own countrymen. A most important deviation from the usual version occurs here, for the Jewish elders and priests are represented as being friendly to his preachings, rather than hostile. The Roman authorities, indeed, suspected Issa of the design to stir up the Hebrews to revolt against the Imperial domination, and, having arrested him, delivered him over to the Jewish tribunal for judgment. This court, although strongly urged by Pilate, refused to condemn the accused. "The judges took counsel among themselves, and then said to Pilate: We cannot take the great sin upon ourselves to condemn an innocent man that is against our laws. Do thou what thou thinkest best." And the priests, the learned men and the wise elders went out, washed their hands in a holy vessel, and said, "We are innocent of the blood of this just man." The Roman Governor, however, ordered the execution on his own responsibility, and the crucifixion took place amid the lamentations of the people. There is no mention whatever in this history of a resurrection, and nowhere does Issa lay claim to be more than a human being.

The value of Notovitch's book depends, of course, entirely upon the genuineness of the document which he says he has found. Although the first edition of his translation was published in 1894, we are not aware of any steps that have been taken to establish the authenticity of his material.

Good Pulpit Themes.

A pastor, in exchanging confidences with a friend the other day, made the significant remark that in all his pastorates he had had confessions from parishioners, of the best of standing in their respective communities, that were, on account of the enormity of the sins which these persons had committed, positively shocking. It would not be surprising if every pastor could duplicate this experience. One thing every preacher can assume—that he has to speak every Sunday to sinners, and that every one, whatever he lacks, does not lack trouble. Here, then, are suggestions for themes which, presented with sincerity, earnestness and clearness, cannot fail to interest every congregation. It is frequently said that the modern congregation is hard to please; much harder, indeed, than the Church has ever yet been called on to instruct and lead. That complaint would not be so general if preachers would take the living themes of the gospel and apply them to the world's great needs. The congregation that has had an experience with lectures on every conceivable theme is naturally hard to please. The point of view is wrong. It has been led to think that a sermon should entertain rather than instruct, comfort, and warn. When this is done in the fear of God and with a consuming desire to save men, there will be no lack of interest on the part of the average congregation.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

An Earlier Generation.

A Russian immigrant of tender age was being registered in a downtown Philadelphia school. The teacher questioned, "What is your name?" "Katinka," replied the child. "And your father's name?" "I never had one," came the quick response. "Then tell me your mother's name," again said the teacher kindly. "I never had no mudder neither," answered the little child seriously. "I was born off my gran'mudder."—October Lippincott's.

"Papa, what is the National Bird?" "It used to be the eagle, my son; but since Roosevelt came in, it's the stork." "De Bible tell de sluggard to go to de ant; but in these days the most er dem goes to de father-in-law."—Atlanta Constitution.

Bar Mitzvah.

Master Jeffe Blumenthal, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Blumenthal, celebrated his bar mitzvah at the Synagogue Beth Israel Bikur Cholim, Seventy-second street and Lexington avenue, on Saturday, Oct. 1. A reception was held on Sunday, Oct. 2, at Vienna Hall, Fifty-eighth street. At the dinner the confirmand delivered an address and was followed by Rev. Joseph Segal and many others.

Last Sunday evening the Bar Mitzvah reception of Jesse Roberts, son of Joseph Roberts, was held at Victoria Hall. A large number of representative business men of New York were present. After a very hearty dinner, toasts were delivered by the Confirmand; also by Rabbi Aaron Elseman, Mr. Abe Kassel, and Samuel Levy, who was toastmaster of the evening. Among the guests present there were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jacoby, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Simon, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lese, Mr. and Mrs. Prager, Mr. and Mrs. Lowenfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Kassel, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Katz, Mr. Arnstein, Mr. Slumenthal, Mr. Loenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Loewenthal, Mrs. Harowitz, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Goldberg, Mr. and Mrs. Isador Selbtrunk, Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Moses, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, Mr. Jacobs, Miss Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Rosenbaum, Mr. and Mrs. Adelstein, Mr. and Mrs. Avrutine, Rev. and Mrs. S. Baum, Rev. and Mrs. Marx Cohn, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weinberg, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peiser, Miss Peiser, Miss J. Kassel, Mr. David Kassel.

A large reception was held at Vienna Hall on Sunday evening, in celebration of the Bar Mitzvah of Master Blumenthal, son of Mr. Mark Blumenthal, who was confirmed at the Beth Israel Bikur Cholim Synagogue the day before. A very large number of guests were present, some of whom are the leading real estate dealers of this city.

A Handsome Sefer Torah.

Was presented to the Synagogue Shearith Israel on Saturday last by Mrs. Lewis Lyon. The Sefer, with its mantle of satin and silver appointments, was owned by Mrs. Lyon's uncle, the late Henry Hart, who in his lifetime controlled the Third Avenue Railroad stock. The Sefer was carried in the synagogue by a member of her family. The minister, the Rev. Dr. H. P. Mendes, who officiated, read the appropriate psalms.

Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

Memorial services for the late Dr. Herman Baar, who, for twenty-three years, was the superintendent of this institution, will be held on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 9, at 3 p. m. The speakers will be the Rev. Dr. K. Kohler, president of the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, O., who has kindly consented to deliver the oration; Mr. Edward Lauterbach, who will speak on behalf of the Board of Trustees of the institution; Rev. Samuel Langer, a former inmate and pupil of Dr. Baar, and Rabbi Rudolph I. Coffee, superintendent of the institution. The exercises will be open to the public and the members of the asylum, the Ladies' Sewing Society and the Seligman Solomon Society are especially urged to attend.

The Sukkah, which had been erected for the Feast of Tabernacles, proved quite an attraction to the large number of visitors who came during the week. All expressed their admiration, both as to the size and the tasteful manner in which the decorations had been arranged. The holiday season closed with a happy Simchas Torah gathering on Saturday night, when some of our younger boys were called to recite the blessing over the law.

Congregation Atereth Israel.

The installation of officers of this congregation took place last Sunday night in the large assembly room in presence of a large gathering of ladies and gentlemen. Dr. Krauskopf, the rabbi of the congregation, was unanimously selected as installing officer. He urged not only the officers and members, but also all those present to make the coming year one of activity and success—one which not only should be a credit to the congregation itself, but to the community. The following gentlemen assumed their stations in their respective offices: Mr. Aaron Wolf, president (re-elected for the twelfth term); Emanuel Daub, vice-president; G. S. Schlessinger, financial secretary; Julius Hirsch, recording secretary; Morris Zucker, treasurer. Messrs. H. Morgenstern, Aaron May and Henry Adler, trustees; Morris Lewis, sexton. Mr. Wolf addressed the assemblage in well chosen words, thanking the rabbi for his efforts and for the good work he has done during the eleven years of his administration. Mr. Wolf invited all present to a repast, which was served in an adjoining hall.

The Hebrew Infant Asylum

Has purchased the tract of about eighty lots on the south side of King's Bridge Road, between Tee Taw and Aqueduct avenues, as a site for modern fireproof buildings. The asylum has outgrown its present building at 907 Eagle avenue, near One Hundred and Sixty-first street.

Jewish Endeavor Society.

The society will reopen its Sunday schools Sunday morning, October 9, at 9 o'clock, and requests the parents and guardians of its pupils and those desiring to become pupils to see that the children are present on the opening day. The society will conduct and maintain the schools at the following places: School No. 1, for girls, at 186 Chrystie street, Miss Ida C. Mearson, principal; school No. 2, for boys, at 257 Division street, Mr. H. P. Goldstein, principal; school No. 3, for girls, 11 Montgomery street, Mr. Gabriel Davidson, principal. The teachers are Messrs. Diamondstein, Grossman and Birnkraut and Misses Celia Poltrowitz, Jeannette Lippman, Rose Wolbarst, Irene Marion Stern and Jennie Lewis.

The society is opening its activities with a members' reunion and dance at the exhibition rooms of the Educational Alliance, Saturday evening, October 8, and requests the attendance of as many of its members and friends as possible. A very enjoyable time is promised by the Entertainment Committee, who extend a free and cordial welcome to all.

Fall Opening at the Paris.

There is now on exhibition at the Paris, Third avenue, between Sixty-first and Sixty-second streets, the annual fall display of imported French pattern hats and millinery novelties. To the old patrons of the Paris this statement means much, and those who have not yet visited this millinery emporium we would advise them to do so immediately for there they will find a wonderful range and selection of everything pertaining to the millinery life. The Paris has always made a specialty of trimming hats and bonnets from ladies' own material, and their corps of expert milliners is second to none in the city. A complete line of mourning goods is also carried in stock. An inspection will be well worth while.

Miriam Barnert Memorial Formally Dedicated.

The handsome and complete Hebrew Free School, known as the Miriam Barnert Memorial, was formally dedicated on the afternoon of the 27th ult., with impressive services. The building was crowded to its doors with many of Paterson's most prominent and influential persons. The programme for the occasion opened with the overture Nabucodonogor by Verdi. A fervent prayer was then offered by the Rev. A. S. Isaacs. This was followed by a song "Ma Tovu" by the children of the Hebrew Free School, under the direction of Superintendent Hess and the Rev. A. S. Kleinfeld.

The address of welcome was then delivered by Mr. Nathan Fleischer who, in well phrased sentences, made all feel comfortable.

"Etolle du Nord" by Meyerbeer was rendered by the orchestra, after which the Hon. Nathan Barnert, whose noble gift the school is, presented the keys and delivered the deeds. Mr. Barnert spoke feelingly and all present mourned with him for the good woman whose earthly memory is to be enshrined in the brick and iron of the elegant school building.

The address of acceptance on behalf of the trustees was delivered by Mr. Marcus Cohn, after which Psalm xxx. was rendered by the children of the school.

Counsellor David H. Bilder at this time read a very interesting history of the Hebrew Free School Association, outlining the work that had been done. The remainder of the programme follows:

Address, Solomon Schechter, M. A., Litt. D. (Cantab.)
Consecration Sermon, Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes.
Children of Hebrew Free School and Assembly

Dedication Ode,

Composed by M. Shinedling
Translated by David Cohn.

Children of Hebrew Free School, under direction of Superintendent Julius Hess and Rev. A. S. Kleinfeld.

Address, Rev. David Blaustein.

Address, Rev. Dr. R. M. Radin.

Music—Coronation March—Le Prophete

Meyerbeer, Robinson's orchestra.

Mincha and Memorial Service, Rev. A. S. Kleinfeld.

Memorial sermon, Rev. Raphael Benjamin, M. A.

Prayer, Rev. Dr. A. S. Isaacs.

Hymn, "America," children of Hebrew Free School and Assembly.

The life trustees of the Miriam Barnert Memorial are: Nathan Barnert, Marcus Cohn, Boas Barnert, Leopold Meyer, Hyman Salzberg, Simon Opet, David Cohn, Nathan Fleischer, David H. Bilder.

The officers and directors of the Hebrew Free School Association of Paterson follow: Nathan Barnert, president; Marcus Cohn, vice-president; Joseph Krulansky, treasurer; Hyman Salzberg, financial secretary; David H. Bilder, recording secretary; Nathan Fleischer, Leopold Meyer, Simon Opet, David Cohn, Boas Barnert, Lazar Lapat, Isaac Surnamer, M. D., Adolph M. White, Isidore H. Levine, Moses Shinedling, Rev. Dr. A. S. Isaacs, honorary director.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Active Workers.

Have organized the Hebrew Ladies' Charity Society of Brooklyn and collected at the first meeting more than $300.

A slick looking young man is making the rounds of the Eastern District, Brooklyn, soliciting subscriptions for the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum. He claims to be a Dr. Horn, and offers merchants a membership in the orphan asylum for $3.50. He visits his prospective victim, promising him that the asylum will buy goods at his store and later sends a messenger for the fee. Membership fee in the asylum is $10, as a dressmaker in Graham avenue, who expected to get the contract for making the children's dresses, found out.

The election of officers of the Congregation B'nai Jeshunan was held Sunday last. Joseph Goldstone was unanimously elected president. Mr. Goldstone is an active member of the Jewish community and, under the presidency of Julius Schwartz, filled the positions of financial secretary and treasurer. He is also secretary of the Hebrew Benevolent Society and was appointed by the president of that society treasurer of the loan fund. We wish Mr. Goldstone prosperity and success and trust that under his administration the congregation will still further improve in every direction. The other officers elected were: Michael Isaacs, vice-president; A. Isaacs, treasurer; M. Mord, financial secretary; Ch. Schwalbe, recording secretary. Among the trustees elected are A. Mord, I. Kutscher and others.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Society will be held Thursday, October 17, at the home of Trustee David P. Schwartz. The society is a credit and honor to Judaism and has the good-will of the best citizens of Staten Island, irrespective of race and creed. Park Commissioner Julius Schwartz is its president; Mrs. G. Strauss, vice-president; Mrs. George Sander, treasurer; J. Goldstone, secretary; A. Mord, D. P. Schwartz and H. L. Bodine, trustees. Mesdames A. Mord, J. Goldstone and A. Mendelson, relief commissioners.

Miss Martha Witepsky, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Witepsky, is one of the recent appointees as school teacher. She is at present teaching school in Manhattan.

An ambulance was presented to the Jewish Hospital of Philadelphia on the 28th inst., by the citizens of Olney.

The Industrial Home for Jewish Working Girls, donated by Mrs. Cecelia Kirschbaum to the Philadelphia section of the Counsel of Jewish Women, was opened last Monday a week.

Son is Judge of Father's Assaults.

Four powerfully built men were taken before Recorder Hyman Lazarus, of Bayonne, N. J., charged with murderously attacking Louis Lazarus, the aged father of the Recorder. So great was the jurist's rage over the crime, which had been committed in revenge for having previously been punished by the Recorder for crimes, that he could scarcely contain himself. Committing them for examination, he said:

"You should consider yourself fortunate in living in a community where the people respect the laws. Otherwise your work of this morning would have been summarily punished."

Mr. Louis Lazarus, who is a prominent member of the Congregation Beth Abraham, in West Twenty-first street, had finished his religious duties and was on his way from the synagogue to his home, in No. 464 Avenue D. He had scarcely left the church when four men, who had been in hiding, rushed upon him. One of them cried, "So you're the father of Judge Lazarus, eh?" and dealt the old man a stinging blow on the face that knocked him down. The four men kicked and beat Mr. Lazarus until he lost consciousness. Then they fled.

Mr. Lazarus was carried home, apparently dying. He was attended by a physician, who found his face frightfully injured and his body cut and discolored from his head to his feet.

Detective Gallagher and Policeman Harris arrested Eugene Robinson, Elijah Burns, Lester Jackson and John Park, who are charged with having assaulted Mr. Lazarus. They were also charged with having assaulted two Poles, whom they had beaten into insensibility.

Jewish Chautauqua Society—Work of the Educational Council.

The first meeting for the organization of the Educational Council of the Jewish Chautauqua, elected at the Eighth Assembly, took place in Philadelphia on the evening of September 21, 1904.

The resolutions adopted at the annual meeting of the Assembly, which referred to the strengthening of the plans and methods of work for the ensuing year, were taken up serially. On motion it was resolved to recommend to the Board of Directors that the Ninth Summer Assembly shall be held in the summer of 1905, but that the sessions be limited to two weeks.

On motion it was further decided to appoint special sub-committees to map out the work of the next Assembly in its several departments. The Summer School of Religious Pedagogy for teachers in the Jewish schools was in accordance with the resolution of the Assembly to be definitely formulated into class work. In addition to the Hebrew class, also primary, intermediate and advanced illustrative lessons were to be given in the presence of teachers and parents. These to alternate with round table conferences, limited to the teachers. Miss Ella Jacobs was appointed chairman of the special committee having this in charge. The creation of a traveling library of books, charts, maps, ceremonial objects, models, etc., for the use of religious schools throughout the country received serious consideration.

The resolution of the Assembly recommending for next session a series of popular lectures on biographical themes from Jewish history was thoroughly discussed. It was decided to follow the Jewish Chautauqua "Course Books" as a basis and conducting the work on the plan of University Extension Lectures. Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris, of New York city, was appointed chairman of the committee for the arrangement of this portion of the programme.

The chancellor reported that he had carried out the resolution of the Assembly instructing him to appoint a committee of five to undertake the task of preparing a series of lessons for religious school teachers and classes, embodying the results of the papers and discussions on the curriculum presented to the Assembly. Preliminary work had been done of a practical kind, and the committee was to meet on the 4th of October for the purpose of definitely outlining and assigning the lessons. The committee had received proposals from Dr. David Phillipson, president of the Hebrew Sabbath School Union of America, and Rev. Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, looking to a co-operation on the part of these two organizations with the Chautauqua in the preparation and publication of the proposed lesson series.

A NEW B'NAI BRITH HALL IN HAMBURG.

A few weeks ago a B'rith Hall for the accommodation of the members of Henry Jones Lodge and other public institutions was solemnly inaugurated at Hamburg. It is an elegant structure, with five halls for public meetings, a reading room, the library of the Society of Jewish Folklore. It was erected by the liberality and generosity of the members of the lodge, and is a triumph of that remarkable lodge, which is intimately associated with all public institutions in Germany. A large number of delegates from sister lodges near and far came to join in the festivities and the exchange of joyous congratulations. The principal oration was delivered by Brother Gustav Tuch, the president of Henry Jones Lodge, who dwelt eloquently upon the achievements of the Order in the past and the benefactions it has wrought. The ladies of the members had also a lion's share in the success of the enterprise. They presented to the lodge the furniture for the lodge room and a number of painted window glasses, designed by that genial, greatly reputed artist, E. M. Libeu. This is only partly an evidence of the progress the Order is making in Germany and the enthusiasm of its members. Such acts as these cannot fail to make the influence of the Order felt and bring recruits to its ranks. The Hamburg Jewry, as well as Henry Jones Lodge, must be congratulated on this demonstration of their loyalty to Judaism.

At Sea with the Alien Immigrant.

Mr. Albert Kinross, himself of Jewish birth, desirous of obtaining as close as possible an acquaintance with the alien problem, determined to travel on an immigrant ship from Libau to London. The impressions he obtained on the journey he communicates to the readers of the Fall Mall Magazine. The passengers on board the vessel were, with very few exceptions, Russian Jews, and Mr. Kinross mentions a few points in connection with them that are of interest. For instance, once safe out of Libau harbor a party of emigrants commenced singing Russian revolutionary songs. The writer also noticed the democratic spirit prevalent among the Russian Jews. Whether traveling first class or third, they were all companions, the only difference between them being one of accommodation. Mr. Kinross reports a conversation with a Jewish girl of 18, which illustrates the Russo-Jewish view of liberty and government. The existence of a Parliament and free press in England assured her of the existence of liberty in this country. "A Parliament and a free press were the two things that would set everything straight. The Russian, deprived of both, and conscious of a somewhat too patriarchal government, feels that everything would be right if he had a constitution and liberty of criticism." The Jews on board the vessel were of three classes. The first consisted mostly of young people eager to begin life in a young country that would furnish them with opportunities greater than those offered in Russia; where they could live in whatever city they chose, work at any trade or craft they were best adapted to, and escape the constant pressure of living under the aegis of a hostile government. The majority of the young men, too, were liable to military service, and all were anxious to get out of Russia before they should be called upon to take arms in an unpopular war. They had no quarrel with Japan, and no great love for the Czar or his government; and, as for M. de Plehve, they would all much rather have fought against him than for him. The second class of immigrant consisted of families who were leaving Russia for the sake of their children. Men and women close on the forties had relinquished satisfactory positions and prospects so that the new generation might have the advantages that had been denied their parents; a good education seemed the foremost of these, and a removal of the many irritating restrictions that have made the Jew figure so prominently in the Russian revolutionary party. The third class of immigrant was inexplicable, and would have done better to stay at home. Men verging on middle age, without any special qualifications for adding to the wealth or enlightenment of the nations for which they were bound, were also on board, indescribably shabby, and indescribably pious for the most part; bearded, long-coated figures who seemed destined to fall with some weight on the Jewish Board of Guardians, and to add to the gayety of the numerous minor synagogues and seats of rabbinical learning that, strewn in certain odd corners of Whitechapel, occupy the leisure hours and the devotional faculties of its more strictly orthodox citizens.

The third class would, perhaps, not be so inexplicable if Mr. Kinross were to remember Kishineff and the May Laws. —London Jewish Chronicle.

Lakewood's Opening.

The season at Lakewood, beginning gradually after October 1, is in full swing a month later and extends to the first of June. Situated in the pine belt of New Jersey, Lakewood is noted for the warm and healthful atmosphere tinged with the aromatic odor of the woods which renders its autumn and winter climate so delightful. Although nine miles from the ocean the climatic influence of the Gulf stream is readily discernible, and a uniform stratum of beach sand which underlies the soil affords a perfect drain for the surface water, so that dampness is never to be encountered. The character of the soil also makes the roads well adapted for horseback riding, which is one of the most popular of the many out-door recreations. The principal driveway girds the banks of Lake Carasajo. A line of beautiful villas commands one side of the lake while on the other the forest is supreme, and throughout the entire drive one catches glimpses of enchanting stretches of water between the pines. The famous Cathedral Drive is a narrow path through the silence of the "druid wood." The excellent railroad service brings Lakewood within easy reach of New York, so that the distance of sixty miles from the metropolis is no more than a requisite insulation against the Wall street atmosphere. An interesting booklet on Lakewood recently published by the Central Railroad of New Jersey may be had free of charge by applying to C. M. Burt, G. P. A., New Jersey Central, 143 Liberty street, New York city.

The World's Desire.

It is a singular coincidence that two Peace Congresses should be called to meet at this time in the United States, and within a month of each other. In the proceedings of the Inter-Parliamentary Peace Congress, held in St. Louis, there are several points that may be very profitably considered by the Peace Congress which meets in Boston next week.

We believe this country has a high mission among the nations, which it is destined to fulfill, and that this mission lies in the direction of international fraternization. Ours was the first government to take a stand in favor of arbitration treaties, although France, having quickly adopted the idea, has won the honorable distinction of having concluded three such treaties within a little more than a year ago. But, notwithstanding The Hague Congresses, Arbitration Courts, and Peace gatherings, the truth must be admitted that the real plane of peace negotiations has not yet been reached by any modern effort. It does not consist in the safeguarding of commercial interests, the production of concessionaries, the defense of citizenship, or the elevation of national pres-children of our Heavenly Father, whose will it is that we should dwell in unity; until we learn to regard war and its horrible accompaniments as unworthy of the toleration of human beings, and are convinced that no principle can ever be settled by violence—in a word, until we have the true spirit of Christ in our hearts, with love for all human kind, peace will stay on her inaccessible height with folded wing.

This is the lesson for our Cabinets and peace congresses. Ultimate peace must think she would be timid, for it is almost twilight, always a homesick time for the little ones, and the tunnel is just ahead," and bending forward, she said:

"You seem to be quite alone, my dear; I hope you are not afraid?"

"Afraid?" queried the child in surprise, "oh, no. We are all right. You see, my papa is the engineer; he's running the train; we are all right."

The lady glanced at her husband, who was also leaning forward to look over at the child and had heard her trustful words.

"What a rebuke to our lack of faith!" he said, gently, in reply to his wife's eloquent glance.

"Our Father in Heaven has us in His keeping; how useless and how wrong for us to be so anxious and troubled. Let us take a lesson from the engineer's little daughter and be content."

M. Samuel Stern.

Mr. Samuel Stern has been appointed by Mayor George B. McClellan as a member of the Board of Education of the City of New York, one of the most coveted of the honorary positions at the disposal of the Mayor. Mr. Stern becomes the successor of the tige, though all of these are, in their proper relation, entirely appropriate as subjects of international agreement. The nation which indulges the hope of world-peace, must take the larger view—the higher ground. Even at the risk of being misunderstood, it must urge, with the utmost unselfishness, the doctrine of universal fraternization, of peace and international friendship for their own sake alone, and not for the benefits they will assure to trade, or the new fields they will throw open to commercial exploitation. Industry is the friend of peace, because under its protecting wing it thrives best and is happy and contented. Commercialism has made its pathways with the sword and cannon, and would not hesitate to do so again if war would assure it ampler profits and better markets. Almost all of the world's recent wars have had their root in bitter commercial competition and the selfish rivalries of trade.

However strong the desire of the nations may be for peace, that desire will never be gratified while the purely commercial spirit governs the deliberations of peace congresses and the councils of those statesmen who seek to avert future wars. Until we love peace for itself, as a divine messenger deserving the world's best welcome; until we recognize the great truth that all men are brothers, come through sacrifice, through renunciation, through brotherly love. And the nation which has the courage, born of supreme confidence in God, to show the way and to take the initiative, will achieve such honor and glory as no other nation has ever known—The Christian Herald.

A Lesson in Trust.

It was only the other day that a gentleman and lady on a fast express train on their way to a large, and to them strange, city were taught this beautiful lesson.

Their errand was unpleasant, and promised to be difficult.

The train plunged forward through deep rocky gorges, over viaducts and bridges, past deep forests and black gruesome swamps, always at such a tremendous rate of speed that the danger of catastrophe added its weight of terror to their already greatly depressed spirits. In the seat directly in front of them was a beautiful little girl amusing herself with a dainty child's book, with its exquisite pictures, or in looking from the windows as the train sped onward in its rapid flight.

At length, the lady's own nervousness impelled her to say to her husband: "That child is quite alone, and I should

The Mirror.

If all accounts are to be trusted, Prince Sviatopolk Mirsky the successor, as Minister of the Interior, of the late unlamented Von Plehve, should inaugurate a new era for our brothers in Russia. He is described as being an honest, sane minded student of the art of government. He believes in local representative bodies, and liberty of conscience, and is said to be earnestly desirous of giving the "lower classes of Jews larger opportunities for life and work."

This is almost too good to be true, and even if true, experience shakes her head at the thought of there being any possibility of such a man receiving a free hand in Russia to carry out his projects. The picture of the man and his ideas is a most attractive one. All of us must say: Allavai!

The East Side City Club seems to be doing good work in the district after which it is named. I understand that the Club is a Jewish or almost wholly Jewish organization, and therefore feel deeply gratified to know how careful the Club is of the sensibilities of the East-Side Jew. It is taking up the cause of the pushcart peddlers—all Jews—and therefore was careful to hold its meeting on last Friday night, at eight o'clock, thus assuring itself of a double averah. It is mechalel Shabbas and Yomtov at one and the same time. Oh, they know how to do things properly on the East Side!

A paragraph in a contemporary daily newspaper relates how, in the Chinese quarter in San Francisco there has arisen a regular industry in fake opium joints. Speculators provide every requisite and hire Chinese to pose as victims of the opium habit. Then visitors to the city are induced to pay handsomely for the privilege of being 'personally conducted' through China-town and of seeing the artless Celestial kissing his deity—the opium pipe.

The story is, very probably, quite true. Wherever travellers gather these imitation haunts of vice are prepared for their entertainment or horror. Either sensation is worth paying for; and the greater the pretended mystery and danger, the higher is the price demanded,—and cheerfully paid.

This is especially true of Paris. The Parisian himself never visited the unlamented 'Moulin Rouge', nor the Cabaret d'Enfer &c. Their habits were always foreigners or soldiers and sailors or Provincials on a flying trip to Paris. Even the vice was a fake. Thus does hun an ingenuity make capital out of the credulity of the unsophisticated, especially of those who have "a leaning-to—who do something smack of" viciousness when away from home.

The late Max O'Rell used to say that whenever ultra-pious Britons would taunt him about the Moulin-Rouge and 'Parisian Vice', expressing particular horror at the fact that these haunts of iniquity were in full swing on Sunday nights he would deny the fact. The Briton invariably fell into the trap. "I saw it with my own eyes," he would cry. "Did you", O'Rell replied. "Then you must be very vicious yourself. Why did you go there on Sunday night when all the churches were open to you? I never went to the place, myself, at all!"

I hope that there is no truth in the story that Congregation Kehillath Jesurun of East 85th Street, forbade its rabbi to preach in English during the recent Yomim Noraim while it permitted the "Slutzker Rav" to preach in Yiddish, because English is 'profane' and Yiddish "sacerdotal." The story is incredible! Possibly it arose from the fact that the 'Slutzker Rav' was engaged to preach, and, as the Congregation did not need a double d'vosh, it requested its regular Rabbi to refrain from preaching.

Of course, the Slutzker could not speak English. He is a Hebrew scholar with a great reputation both for scholarship and saintliness. It does no harm for Americans to pay honor to such a man. It was, of course, a 'slap in the face' to the Rabbi—if he did not fall in with the idea willingly.

But if there be any truth as to the preference of Yiddish over English on religious grounds it is a great Chillel Hashem. I cannot, however, bring myself to believe it to be true!

Brother Nachman Heller pitifully snatched a moment's reprieve from his pedagogical labors and intermitted for the nonce his shlogging hoshannos—and they are not his pupils—in order to set me right on that question of Brother Glueck's shofar blowing. His intimation that I am one מורה הלכה בזני רבו has been excised from his letter to sparkle in this column. He quotes a well-known passage from the Talmud to the effect that the ancients blew the shofar in the Temple on a Shabbas.

Now that's all very well for brother Heller. The quotation is no news to me. But the question involved is one for to-day. Certain congregations argue that the whole question of one or two days Yom-tov hinges on the question of Sod Ho-ibbur. During the troublous last period of the Second Temple this was not known exactly. Hence two-days-Yomtov. Later, when astronomical science enabled us to fix the period of the New Moon anywhere, with exactitude, the practice of keeping two days had become recognized as a מנהג אבותינו בדינו and no attempt was made to revert to the one day Yom tov.

Again if bizman Beth Hamikdash they blew the Shofar in the Temple even on Saturday, that would be sufficient grounds for a half-way Reform Congregation to do so now-a-days. They might argue, with a good show of reason, that since they only keep one day Rosh Hashonah the command in Numbers xxix, 1, is imperative on them, whatever may have been the practice of our ancestors.

So if such a congregation decides on one day Yomtov it is the business of that congregation and its rabbi and neither I nor brother Heller have any say in the matter. I do not allege that I approve of a one-day Yom-tov. That's another story and I'm not telling it now.

Therefore, my contention is quite the only sensible view of the situation; and I maintain, unflinchingly, that I was right in my argument—which, be it remembered, by no means maintained that one day-Yom-tov or Shabbas-Shofar-blowing was commendable. It is very nice of brother Heller to soften his animadversion by suggesting that it is a case of "Homer nodding." But I didn't nod a blink! I was fully wide-awake! One last word for brother Heller. By what imaginable translation did he arrive at the extraordinary phrase "the shofar was put in operation." Such a richness, such a Yeshivah-bochurishness in his English!

Talking of the Shofar reminds me of Le Joyeux Bagueur's humorous parable about the cornet-a-piston replacing the shofar in the Detroit Reform Temple. The same thing is true of many other Reform Temples. To my mind the man who thinks that the finest silver cornet ever made can be used as a substitute for the ancient and, if you will, uncouth, rams-horn is lacking in all senses of poetic imagination just as truly as the deaf man or the blind man is lacking in a sense which the rest of humanity possesses.

The very primitiveness and uncouthness of the shofar form its charm. What would we think of the collector who gave away a priceless Etruscan vase because of its rude shape and replaced it in his collection by a gaudy nick-named utensil purchased at the bargain counter of a department store? Such is the man who rejects the Shofar as an instrument for us during Worship. Such a man would prize a cheap gilt-edged "Haml-t" published yesterday far above a genuine rugged first-quarto. He would put a straight-front corset on the Venus of Milo and clothe the Apollo of the Belvedere in a two-piece outing-suit, a straw hat and "sand-sneakers."

And now we learn that General Stoess-I, the defender of Port Arthur is the son of a Jew. It is probably quite untrue but, nevertheless, the story will go the rounds of the Jewish press. A few weeks ago, our credulous contemporaries, were circulating the entirely baseless story that Richard Wagner was a Jew.

Can any one tell me why we Jews are so absurdly fond of claiming Jewish descent for everybody who attains prominence of any kind? Take the case of Melba. She happens to be of plump proportions. One proof that she must be a Jewess! Her father's name is "David Mitchell." Melba must be a Jewess. Sure Mike! But David Mitchell, is well known to hundreds of Jews in Melbourne, Australia. He is a Scot of the Scots and a pillar of local Presbyterianism. It took a long time nevertheless to convince the American Jewish papers that Nellie Mitchell is not a Jewess.

There are many Jews whom we cannot repudiate; who have attained prominence; but whom we are not at all anxious to claim. Take Arthur Mayer for instance, of Le Gaulois, Paris. He is a renegade Jew who became the tool of the Clerical party because it paid him. He was strongly anti-Dreyfus though few men were in a better position to know the truth. Even the Anti-Dreyfusards themselves, cried "shame!" on him, seven years ago. Perhaps it is as a counterpoise to such reptiles that we advance the absurd claims I refer to.

If the Jewish Press really seek Jewish heroes, they will find them by the scores "mute and inglorious", in our ghettos, valiantly fighting the battle of life and gaining good reputation and a living for themselves and their families. Suppose we take off our hats once in a while to the Avrombeles, Chaimels, and the Mosheles who are suffering and striving so manfully down there in the noisome, wretched ghettos of our large cities.

If we did that we might gain a certain amount of Kudus for true insight and independence of outlook. Isn't it a somewhat evil and snobbish trait to be so ready to claim people as our own, merely because they are prominent and who, perhaps, are indignant at the imputation that they Jewish blood in their veins? For myself, I prefer to shake hands with Reb Itzhak who sells me shoe strings and is saving up for a Nadan for his daughter, who belongs to a Chevrach and never wronged a soul in the course of his harmless life of self denial and hard work.

Wm. Sulzer---The Man---A Friend of the Oppressed.

On another page we publish an article from the gifted pen of Congressman WILLIAM SULZER in regard to the Russian-American passport controversy. It speaks for itself in eloquent, emphatic and patriotic words, and presents the whole subject in a masterly way. We commend it to all our readers to study and digest.

Congressman Sulzer is now, and always has been, a true friend, the eloquent advocate, and the courageous champion of the oppressed of every land and in every clime, without regard to race, creed or religion. He has been, and is now, the sincere friend and sturdy champion of the Jews whether the outrages committed were perpetrated in Russia, Turkey, Roumania, or at home. Mr. Sulzer is our friend. He has a big heart, and a warm, sympathetic nature. He knows no race, or creed. He is a true disciple of Thomas Jefferson, and believes in equal rights to all, and special privileges to none. He is a man of the people and for the people, and an intense, liberty-loving, patriotic American.

It is a fact not known to many that Mr. Sulzer was instrumental in getting the Administration to take action regarding Jewish persecutions in Roumania and Turkey. He also was the eloquent spokesman of the Congressional Committee that waited on the President to urge him to take immediate and forceful action regarding the Russian outrages against the Jews, and discriminating against passports held by American citizens, on account of their race and creed. Mr. Sulzer also materially aided Judge Goldfogle in getting the "Goldfogle Resolution" favorably reported from the Committee on Foreign Affairs and passed in the House of Representatives.

In Congress, and out of Congress, Mr. Sulzer has demonstrated that he is a true friend of our people, and they should show their appreciation of all that he has done for them by giving him their votes in his Congressional District and rolling up for him the largest majority he has ever received.

As a Representative in Congress Mr. Sulzer is a credit to the City and State of New York, and has made a world-wide reputation as a legislator, and a friend of humanity. He has made a splendid record for usefulness in the great arena of the House of Representatives, and to-day he is one of the best known and most popular men in the country. Honor to whom honor is due.

"And the Eternal said unto Cain: 'Wherefore art thou wroth—and wherefore is thy face fallen? Is it not thus—if thou mendest, there is repentance, and if thou dost not mend, Sin croucheth at the door?'"—Gen. iv, 6 7.

How simply and tellingly runs the story of the first murder! In its plain surface meaning it is a story of the deepest significance, one which had its counterpart in every age. And how very human it is! The offering of one is 'accepted'; that of the other 'rejected.' The disappointed one does not stop to examine his own acts, but casts all blame on the other. Jealousy and envy canker the heart and soul of the unsuccessful one and the blood of his more prosperous rival—even tho' his own brother—stains the earth. Is it not a common story? Do we not find the same broad outlines in almost every murder-case tried in our courts to this day?

As if to mark their instinctive sense of the human meaning of this drama, told with such simple brevity in the Bible, our fathers let their fancy play about the story, and many legendary additions have grown around it. Cain and Abel were both married. Cain envied his brother the beauty and charm of his help-mate and claimed that, as elder born, his was the right to the more beautiful partner. Therefore his heart was already corroded with the evil passions of lust and jealousy when he brought his offering and therefore God did not 'regard it.' Cherchez la femme was evidently a principle recognized by our forbears.

Another imaginative addition is that Cain brought the worst of Earth's fruits to God, but Abel brought the choicest of his flocks and herds. There was already in the heart of the first murderer the germ of that unwillingness to accept the softening burden of gratitude which characterizes frail humanity of our day. Greed, and parsimony are full-brothers to envy and lust in the souls of the more debased and vicious among us—as they were in that of Cain.

And when his "face fell" he received that wonderful warning, containing, in half-a-dozen words, a whole code of morals—a complete system of betterment for erring human beings. "If thou mendest, there is forgiveness." The entry into the soul of the passions of envy and jealousy and lust and chagrin are often beyond our power to prevent. But when we first feel their poisonous sting, goading us to revenge and violence, it is our duty, if only in self-protection, to strive for betterment. If we so strive there is for us שָׁמַח—a word which is variously rendered by "acceptance," "forgiveness" and so on; but which, apparently, would be best translated by the word tolerance. The burden becomes tolerable and the evil promptings are overcome.

But if we strive not for moral betterment:—"at the door sin croucheth." Does that mean at the door of our souls, or as the old commentator hath it:

לפנה קברך המאך שמור
"At the door of thy grave thy sin keepeth guard." Perhaps both meanings are fully intended. The seeds of ill thought and evil desire once sown in the soul there grow very rapidly indeed the plants of misdeed and crime. Our only hope is to uproot the seeds before they fully germinate. Tithing of the soul—self-discipline, severe and continuous—is the cure. Otherwise Sin acquires the mastery and the crime that follows leads to the sin guarded grave of the dishonored criminal.

ואליך השוקתו ואחה המשלב
"And unto thee is its longing, but thou mayest rule over it." 'Tis a bold poetic figure! The crouching wild-beast, "Sin," lies at the door of every soul which has opened its portal to lust or envy or even groundless chagrin. Sin hungers for the mastery of such a soul. Nevertheless if there be an attempt at self-discipline and earnest effort at self-tithing it may be overmastered and the terrifying wild beast vanishes, overpowered. It is not an easy task! That much is granted.

איהו נביר, הכובש את יצרו
"Who is a hero? He who subdues his evil inclination," is the saying of one of our teachers. But if the task be a hero's, neglect to undertake it is the part of a madman. "At the door—of thy life and thy death—Sin, eager Sin, awaits thee. Overcome it by self discipline or it shall master and destroy thee." That is the lesson for us all in the story of Cain—the first murderer—as in the story of all murders down to him or her who was arrested yesterday.

Hon. Martin Emerich, M. C.

Our sanctum was invaded this morning by the genial person of Hon. Martin Emerich, Member of Congress from Illinois. The readers of the HEBREW STANDARD will remember the excellent speech delivered by him in Congress upon the Goldfogle resolutions, having reference to Russia's refusal to honor American passports held by our citizens of Jewish faith, which was re-published in our columns, and which attracted considerable attention both in the House of Representatives and throughout the Union. It was an excellent address, replete with information and its tone was dignified and conservative.

He received a warm welcome at the headquarters of the Democratic Committee and it is confidently expected that upon return to Chicago his efforts will be directed to the success of the Democratic party. Congressman Emerich represented his district faithfully, at all time proving himself a broad-minded American, who, at the same time, manfully championed the cause of our co-religionists. While loyal to his party his activity as a representative of the people was such that we are sure his constituency, without regard to party lines received the benefit of his public service. For this reason we regret that he was refused renomination by the leaders of his district.

Leaders have yet to learn, if they have not already learned, that the longer a fit representative remains in Congress the more useful he necessarily becomes to his party, his constituency, and to the country at large. Mere whim and caprice on the part of party leaders who have the physical power to "turn down" anyone they may choose to set aside, is to be severely deprecated from the standpoint of honest citizenship.

We watched Congressman Emerich's course with interest because he was one of the very few Jews holding a seat in the Congress of the Nation, and we have yet to learn of a single act which would reflect upon him, morally or politically. It is therefore to be hoped that at no distant day, his constituency will see to it, that the services Congressman Emerich has so patriotically rendered, oft-times at a great sacrifice to himself, will be properly recognized.

Wanted: Public-Spirited Jews.

An orthodox Hebrew, who lives uptown, wishing to attend Divine Worship on Sh'mini Atzereth, walked thirty-five blocks to an Orthodox Synagogue but found it so crowded that he could not gain admission. He walked twelve blocks further to a Reform Temple and there, also, strove in vain for entrance because there, also, there was not even standing-room. He went home.

Now he had been able to attend service on Rosh Hashouah, Yom Kippur and Sabbath Shuvoh in his own neighborhood because he had not only joined a minyán, but had participated in the services. The orthodox Jews in his neighborhood, having paid a couple-of-dollars apiece and worshipped for four days with great Kavanah, clad in long t'cheles tallisim and, for the greater part, in cap and kittel, had no further use, for the rest of the year, for God or for God's Worship. The Reform Jews either took the car to the down-town Temples or remained at home. But for Succoth, both kinds, apparently, either attended to business or crowded into Schul and Temple, the burden of the maintenance of which fell upon the shoulders of others.

These casual visitors are, of course, the severest and most exacting critics of cantor, rabbi and form of service who entered the doors of those places of worship—whose cost never entailed upon them one cent of expense. That is human nature!

These are the class to whom the advice of Rabbi Zadok applies: אל-תפרוש מן-הצבור "Separate not thyself from the congregation!" In the neighborhood referred to, a central point can be found, within a radius of five blocks from which at least 500 hundred Jewish families reside. Every one of them has "separated itself from the congregation." Neither they nor their wives nor their children attend service. The last-named never receive any instruction in Hebrew and Jewish religion—not even that pretence at instruction which the visiting melamed proffers in the homes of the orthodox, nor that equally hollow pretence which the Sabbath School offers to the family of the Reform. A few years more and the children of the Orthodox and Reform alike will be lost to Judaism.

A couple of years ago an attempt was made in this neighborhood to establish a congregation. The Orthodox and Reform residents could not be induced to compromise so that a congregation might be formed. The Orthodox were the more numerous; the Reformers the more wealthy and generous. Neither party, it would seem, could do without the other; but neither would yield to the other in the least. A good deal of bitterness and heart-burning was the only immediate result.

Every man, almost, among either party, was looking for honor, Kovode. Many were also looking for money, if there were any to be made. Small jealousies and the pettiest of emotions ran riot. Meanwhile there is no worship of God; there is no training of the young. And this state of things is by no means confined to the particular locality we have in mind. It is to be found all over this great city, with its 600,000 Jews.

The truth is that our public spirited fathers left no successors. The spirit of devotion to Judaism and of self-sacrifice for the public weal which animated the founders of the existing congregations died with them. Their spirit would seem to be extinct both in the laymen and the Rabbinate of the present generation.

"WANTED: A number of Public-Spirited Jews. Apply, IN PERSON, wherever there is a Group of Jewish Families Unaffiliated with a Congregation. Salary: The Blessing of God and the Thanks of Generations yet Unborn!"

An Extraordinary Proceeding.

Latest cabled news from Germany contains the account of a step taken by the Imperial Authorities, apparently in the interest of the government-subsidized North German Lloyd Line of Steamships, which is without parallel in the history of commerce. The force of short-sighted tyranny could not go further.

Merchants and others from Eastern Europe, with tickets for any other than German subsidized lines, are turned back at the German railway stations and refused the privilege of traveling on the German lines unless they buy tickets for passages on the German Steamships. The case, reported below, of the two Russian timber merchants, bound for London, who were forced to buy tickets on the German line for New York shows the effect this new act of inexplicable Government tyranny will have on commerce. Doubtless the British Government will make due representations.

What interests us more nearly is that the effect on the Jewish emigrants will be disastrous. They cannot deplete their funds by the twofold expenditure and they will not be allowed to re-enter Russia. Whether the move is really in the interests of the German Lines only, or whether there is not also an underlying political intention must remain an open question until the receipt of further information.

The following cabled telegram, dated Oct. 4th, was received by Mr. JULIUS BIEN, Chancellor of the Order B'nai B'rith, from a prominent co-religionist in Germany:

"Wegen Kampfes deutscher Schiffs-linien mit Cunard, allen von Ostenauswandernden Glaubensgenossen mit Cunard-Billets Durchreise Deutschland unmöglich. Reueckweisung an Deutschen Centralstationen Groesste Calamitaet oft Wiedereintritt Russland Undurchfuehrbar unsere Verhandlungen Schiffslinien bisher ergebnislos da viele Billets aus Amerika mit Reiseanweisungen gesandt werden, erbitte durch Amerikanische und Juedische Presse eindringliche Warnung fuer Auswanderer mit Cunard Billets Deutschland zu passieren muessen ueber Libau oder Fiume gehen."

TRANSLATION.

"On account of fight between German and Cunard lines, all emigrants from East with Cunard tickets cannot pass Germany. They are turned back at all German Central Stations. Great calamity. Re entrance-into Russia often impossible. Our negotiations with steamship lines failed. As many tickets are sent from America with directions for travel, warning should issue, through American and Jewish Press, against passing Germany with Cunard tickets. They must go by Libau or Fiume."

In addition to the foregoing, we reproduce the following cabled item from the N. Y. Herald, of 5th inst.

The New York Herald's European edition publishes the following from its correspondent:
Berlin, Tuesday.—A peculiar incident is reported from the Russian frontier. Two Russian timber merchants had crossed the frontier, bound for London, where they were detained by the German authorities, who refused to allow them to continue their journey unless they bought tickets on the North German Lloyd for New York.

The Berliner Tageblatt expresses indignation at the incident and says that such means of fighting the competition of the Cunard and other lines is not creditable to the German authorities.

Dr. Paul Nathan, president Jewish Aid Society, Berlin, has sent the following cable dispatch to friends in this city:

"On account of the fight of the German steamship lines with the Cunard line traveling through Germany has been made impossible to all co-religionists, emigrating from the East and provided with Cunard tickets. Refusal at the German control stations proves great calamity, re-entering Russia being frequently impracticable.

"Our negotiation with steamship lines is so far without result. As many tickets are sent from America, accompanied by traveling directions, we request most urgent warning through American and Jewish press for emigrants with Cunard tickets not to pass Germany. Must go via Libau or Flume."

XLIV.

Mr. Adolphus S. Solomons who, for many years, has been the head of the Baron de Hirsch Fund, though 78 years of age, is still an active man. Mr. Solomons has had a very busy life. He has done much good work for the Baron de Hirsch Fund as its Honorary Trustee and General Agent.

Mr. Solomons was born in the City of New York and is a graduate of the University of the City of New York.

As far back as 1851 he was appointed by Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State, as a "special bearer of despatches to Berlin." Mr. Solomon was also a member of the first local legislature of the City of Washington, in which city, for many years, he has made his residence. He was also one of the members of the Committee which projected and began the improvement of Washington, now one of the handsomest capitals in the world.

He was for many years a representative of the Alliance Israelite Universelle. He was largely instrumental in bringing into life the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids. He was also identified with the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and took an active part in its re-organization in 1902.

For twenty years Mr. Solomons was a member of the National Red Cross Society, and was appointed by President Arthur to represent the United States at the International Convention of the Red Cross Societies, which was held in Geneva in 1881.

Mr. Solomons has been identified with many other philanthropic and educational societies, in all of which his practical knowledge of affairs was turned to useful account.

Mr. Solomons was always a man of handsome presence, most genial in manner, and, at all times, ready to give fluent expression to his thoughts. He has a wide circle of warm friends, and he never fails to send these annually his Rosh Hashonah greetings.

The daughter of Mr. Solomons is married to the Hon. N. Taylor Phillips, the Deputy Comptroller of the City of New York.

A Gap in the Fence.

The Jewish citizens of New York pride themselves on their well-organized circle of public charities. It must be admitted that they are not without considerable justification for this self-contentment.

But there are breaks in the chain—gaps in the circle. To one of these it is the intention of this article to direct public attention. There are hundreds of poor, orphaned and destitute Jewish children for whom there is no place in our Orphanages and great Homes because they are affected with contagious diseases. The exact figures are not available, but the term "hundreds" we are satisfied, understates the truth, as a visit to the Rands Island Home would prove.

We do not refer to such contagious diseases as are acute in their nature and demand constant medical attendance in properly-equipped hospitals. We have in mind certain disorders, highly contagious, though not dangerous, which necessitate the segregation of children attacked by them. One of these, ringworm of the scalp, is a disorder to which children are peculiarly liable. It may be said to be always present, more or less virulently, in all institutions, Christian or Jewish, for housing children.

Every now and then it becomes widely prevalent. Its victims suffer no loss of vigor, mental or physical, but, as the disorder, if unchecked, is apt to leave unsightly bald patches on the head of the sufferer, and as it is readily communicable they must be excluded from schools and, in fact, must be segregated from all other children. The experience of that well-managed and noble institution, the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, some two or three years ago, offers a "leading case."

Its managers, unwilling to relinquish the control of their little wards, made special arrangements for their treatment. Special annexes with highly trained physicians and nurse's staffs were secured, and for over twelve months all the forces of skill and kindness combated the disorder. Its spread was eventually checked, but at a total cost, which can be fairly estimated at $50,000. During all this time no new children could be admitted.

Another disorder is trachoma, a granular inflammation of the eye-lids which, if neglected, will, at times, induce blindness. It is highly contagious. It is a disease to which Russian Jewish Immigrants are alleged to be peculiarly liable. It often requires prolonged periods of treatment to eradicate.

Now there are hundreds of Jewish children affected by these two disorders, who are reluctantly excluded from Jewish institutions. Something should be done to house these little ones in a Jewish Home and to surround them with a Jewish atmosphere and a Jewish training while under treatment, until a cure can be effected.

We all hope to see the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society in a position shortly to lay the foundation stone of its new Home, which is to be built, we are informed, on the Pavilion System, or Cottage Home plan. Our suggestion is that the Boards of that institution and its Sister Organization, the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, appoint a joint committee to take over the present building at 150th Street and Broadway and turn it into an institution for Jewish children, affected by "trachoma" and "ringworm of the scalp." The greater part of the cost of maintenance, it must be remembered, will be defrayed by the City. Have any of our readers a better suggestion to make? We invite correspondence on the subject.

The B'nai B'rith Hall in Hamburg.

It is not the first Hall which the members of the Order B'nai B'rith have selected as a Home for fraternal gatherings, for furthering a higher spirit of education and establishing a centre for Jewish religious activity. Frankfort has its B'nai B'rith Home, so has Berlin, so has Breslau and others are building. Instead of Clubs for entertainments, of which some are of the most frivolous character, as they are built here, these brethren of ours devote their energies and their ambitious to build centres in which nobler objects of life are pursued, education and refinement encouraged and benevolence inculcated. The work done by the Order in Germany and Austria is commendable in the highest degree. It is not endowment the members are after, they spurned it. They do not look for any material advantage; they do not labor for themselves, they work for the benefit of their fellow men, for the uplifting of the Jewish race, for establishing education and culture. Consequently, they succeed. They draw to their ranks the cultured, the high-minded members of the race and nurse that sentiment for Jewish brotherhood which alone will emancipate Jews, something which the law nominally does, but cannot accomplish. What the Order has taught since the beginning, these brethren of ours across the ocean, translate into practice. We grow old, become apathetic. They are young and full of youthful energy and enthusiasm. There, no man is possessed of too high an education to belong to the Order. No man is of too high a station in life to grant co-operation with his fellow religionists in uplifting the Jewish race. We have given them instruction,

MORITZ ELLINGER.

"Modern Women."

There are it seems to me too many married women who are busy with all kinds of schemes, and fads. These women are around addressing audiences on how to maintain a home, and bring up children.

It is a sad day for the household of any man when his wife begets a reputation as a speaker or talker, and when she takes to the platform to lecture; when she attends all kinds of meetings and councils, and gets up and reads papers and neglects her own household, to discharge the duties as a member of all kinds of Committees working for the welfare of mankind.

I repeat that there are many such women. Any one of an observing turn will have noticed this. Many of these ladies in attending gatherings for the betterment of others, fail to get home, even in time for supper, to say nothing of being there to greet their children on their return from school.

A HAIR TONIC.

One That, It is Claimed, Will Cure Premature Grayness.

The question of "how to keep hair from turning prematurely gray" has been asked so many times in journals, as well as daily papers, that I take this way of answering some of those thus affected, for surely it is an affliction for one to turn gray before one is thirty. The tonic I herewith give has been used successfully by many whom I know personally with very gratifying results. It was given by an elderly lady of seventy years, who had used it for a long, long time. When she died she had a lovely head of hair, and it still retained its original color. When asked how she kept it so, she would laugh and reply: "Why, it is easy enough. Just keep the hair good and healthy by cleaning it thoroughly every two weeks and using the tonic I will tell of." Of course, to those who have many gray hairs it will take longer to bring the color back, but it will do it if you only persevere. Then, too, it prevents the hair from getting thin by falling out; in fact, it is generally beneficial to the hair or scalp. When the "basting threads," as my girlie calls them, begin to come in my hair, I shall surely use it and keep them away as long as possible. Hair tonic: One-quarter ounce of sax sulphur, one and one-half drams of sugar of lead, one ounce best brandy, one-half ounce glycerin, two ounces rose water, one pint of soft water. Mix all, adding water last. Let it stand a week before using, being careful to shake it well every day, also shake well before using. Wet only roots.—Designer.

WINDOW CURTAINS.

Inexpensive, Pretty Material Best Answers the Purpose.

The question of curtains is always rather difficult to solve unless the young housekeeper cuts the Gordian knot at once by shunning the upholstery departments and haunting the devious byways of the basements. Thanks to Old Sol, the finest and most expensive curtains in the world will only hold their color and strength for a limited time, so it is, by far the best policy to buy pretty, inexpensive materials which may be discarded without a qualm of conscience when they become shabby.

For bedroom curtains, sprigged dimities, such as are sold for summer gowns, may be bought for from 8 1/2 to 15 cents a yard, and when daintily made and hung they are refreshingly pretty to look at.

The so called "cretonnes," which can be bought for from 15 to 25 cents a yard, make a somewhat heavier curtain, and if they are wanted still heavier they are quite charming when lined with cheesecloth of some bright color, some tone of which appears in the pattern.

I once saw some curtains made of unbleached muslin, lined with turkey red, the muslin being bordered with an oriental striped cotton in which red predominated. The effect of the sunlight streaming through these curtains was so bright and cheerful I have never forgotten it.—House Beautiful.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

In cooking rice use a teaspoonful of salt to a heaping cupful of the rice.

Before boiling milk or making any sauce with milk always rinse out the saucepan in cold water.

Lemon juice improves the flavor of scrambled eggs if a few drops are added while they are cooking.

Never use water for cooking in which potatoes or cucumbers have been boiled, as it has been found to be extremely injurious.

Orange juice with a little water forms an excellent substitute for milk in mixing tea cakes. A little more sugar should be used and not so much acid or cream of tartar.

When cooking turnips, cook them first for twenty minutes in boiling water to which a little baking soda has been added, then drain and cook in fresh water until tender. The flavor will be much improved.

Old Cuffs.

Wash out the starch from discarded colored cuffs. Sew a loop on one side and use as kitchen holders, hanging some near the stove, others by the table. Rip open the side of some, put in a layer of cotton, sew up, and you will have a flatiron holder that will hang up. Save the freshest to rip up for quilt pieces. Rip out the linen bosoms of white shirts, cut into squares, hem and use for baby's wash-cloth. As the skirts of colored shirts are usually good when the upper parts are worn out utilize them for the little folks' aprons. Cut the skirt off at the right length, allowing for a hem. Cut a loose band to slip under the arms of the child. Put straps across the shoulders, gather the skirt to the band, and as the apron has no front or back it will wear longer.—Housekeeper.

Sour Milk and Silver.

Here is a new use for sour milk: Put your silver into the milk when it is thick; let it stand for half an hour; take the pieces out and wash them in clean hot soapsuds; wipe dry, and you have clear, bright silver. It would pay a busy housekeeper who has to do her own polishing to buy two or three quarts and let it sour for the purpose.

That Kitchen Stool.

Don't forget to have a high stool in the kitchen and thus save yourself a great deal of unnecessary strain of back and limbs when ironing, washing dishes, cleaning silver, preparing vegetables, etc. Not only will your back be less tired, but your brain will grow less weary. What strains the back over-works the nerves.

Physical Culture.

The body motions are necessary to beauty. Learn how to sway your body prettily and you have conquered the dreadful bugbear of awkwardness. You must learn to bend and sway, to move this way and that way, to stand up and sit down, without acting as if hinged. There are women whom it is a delight to watch, and there are others whose every movement is painful to the eye. Don't be one of the awkward sisterhood when you can just as well be graceful. Physical culture exercises will make you graceful. Practice them early and late, and if you have a few minutes in between times practice them again. Stand erect and, with your arms, go through with the callisthenics which will transform you from an ugly duckling into a charmingly pretty swan.

A Business Woman's Wardrobe.

A business woman must be economical. She has not hundreds of dollars to spend upon her wardrobe, consequently if she is wise she finds out what color is the most becoming and buys an office gown of that color and uses it as the foundation upon which she builds her system of dress. This color scheme makes it possible to wear one hat with various articles of clothing without appearing radiantly dressed like a bird of paradise, and nothing in a business woman's office dress is more detestable than finery. Simplicity, cleanliness, harmony, are the three qualities essential to the business woman's wardrobe. It is not so much how many clothes the business woman possesses as it is the kind of clothing she wears and her general appearance.

The Rabbi.

"You have been giving us some instructive data about the evolution of the Reform idea," said Baruch Spiegelberger, addressing Gumpelstein, "but, while it has been very interesting to all of us, we have not seen its bearing upon the questions whether Sollie should become a rabbi or not?"

"I referred to it merely as an introduction to my opinion of Reform rabbis in particular, to show what bearing it would have upon his future religious life and moral principles if he embraced the ministry, as a profession," answered Gumpelstein.

"Don't you believe," said Joe Meyers, "that there are reform rabbis who are honest in their profession and sincere in their convictions?"

"Certainly," answered Gumpelstein, "but their religious ideas the moment they let go of their sheet-anchor the Torah becomes so vague, uncertain and philosophical that you don't know whether they are Jews, athelists, agnostics or what."

"Like the Irishman's flea," said Nate Mendoza, "you put your thumb on it and it's not there."

"Their vagaries," continued Gumpelstein, "have made them not only the butt of ridicule of their orthodox colleagues, but the laughing stock of every intelligent Israelite."

"V'solachto kee 'Rav' hoo," interrupted Sullivan A. Johnson.

"As long as reform confined itself to a change of service productive of decorum, even to the elimination of certain formulae of belief antagonistic to the spirit of the age it was all right, but when it came to the performance of a marriage ceremony between an Israelite and a Christian girl on the first night of Pesach—"

"Do you object because she was chometzdk?" asked Nate Mendoza.

"The plan to change the celebration of Chanukah to Christmas, the abolition of the Abrahamic Covenant, the giving of a trefa banquet by a Rabbinical College, the advocacy of the abandonment of the Feast of Succoth—"

"Maybe," said Nate Mendoza. "esrogim were too dear, out West."

"The assent to intermarriage, the excision of Hebrew from the prayer book, and the transfer of the Jewish Sabbath to Sunday—it became simply disgusting, and it is no wonder that the rabbis forfeited the respect and confidence of the people."

"Then you wouldn't advise Sollie to become a rabbi?" said Kalbsbraten.

"Under certain conditions—yes," answered Gumpelstein.

"I think it is a very easy life, compared with other professions," said Isaacs; "just preach one sermon a week, for which he draws a good salary, and attend weddings; funerals and bar mitzvah parties, for which he gets extra pay."

"In my opinion," remarked Sullivan A. Johnson, "eating Judische brod. is very indigestible, and is what you really might call lechem eene—bread of affliction."

"Oh, not as bad as all that," said Joe Meyers.

"I consider it a very hard, disagreeable life," said Sullivan A. Johnson, "especially to a sensitive, cultured gentleman, who has not any mercenary traits about him."

"How is that?" asked Isaacs.

"In the first place," replied Sullivan A. Johnson, "a preacher doesn't shake a sermon out of his sleeve; he has to be an omniverous reader to keep up with the current literature of the day, a diligent student in philosophy, science and theology; he must be au fait with the social questions of the times; it takes him a couple of days, at the very least, to write his sermon; then he has to memorize it, then, to practice its delivery, and right in the middle of his work he is suddenly called upon to preach at a funeral, or perform a marriage ceremony."

"For which he gets well paid," said Isaacs.

"Not always," replied Sullivan A. Johnson; "you would be surprised at the mean conduct of some people, and it is remarkable that some of our wealthiest men are the biggest screws in that particular; where one would naturally suppose that the rabbi would receive at least $50, a five or ten dollar bill is sent him. If he should return it he gains looks like receiving charity, and he is in a quandary."

an enemy; if he complains, he is called grasping and mercenary; to accept it "On Sunday he must be at the religious school; upon all public occasions he has to put in an appearance, and he must lecture here and preach there, all for nothing. He may get an occasional framed set of resolutions, or a beautiful letter of thanks; but they do not pay the butcher's bill. But that is not all—"

"Worse to come?" asked Nate Mendoza.

"No matter how laborious his professional work, nor how poorly recompensed he may be, the rabbi will not complain; it is a labor of love with him. But when his board of trustees are a set of ignorant men, void of consideration for his position, criticising his every action, and looking upon him as a necessary evil—the Lord pity him," said Sullivan A. Johnson.

"Yes," remarked Gumpelstein, "that is the worst feature of Jewish congregations. The president is generally elected on account of his wealth, acquired, perhaps, by lucky real estate speculation, or a fortunate rise in oil. All of a sudden he is graced with sufficient musical taste to criticise the cantor and the choir, and gifted with learning and education sufficient to pass a verdict upon the literary merits of the sermon. And you can imagine how humiliating it must be that to him the rabbi must be korim umish-tachavim."

"What's korim umish-tachavim?" asked Sim Levy.

"Bending the knee and bowing down," answered Sullivan A. Johnson.

"Just think how absurdly ridiculous it is," said Gumpelstein, "for a board of trustees, not one of whom can translate a line of Hebrew into the vernacular, dictating to the rabbi that he must desist from citing Talmudical passages and interspersing Hebrew texts in his sermon."

"And imagine," said Sullivan A. Johnson, "the delicate ground he treads on when lecturing on Sabbath observance, to know that all the trustees are Sabbath breakers, and he dare not offend them because the election is close at hand."

"Or," said Kalbsbraten, "if the wedding dinners of the president's daughters takes place at Delmonico's, and though he does not partake of forbidden food, he is asked to say 'grace' after meals."

"And if," said Isaacs, "the rabbi's wife does not talk sweetly to Mrs. Parckkopf at the fish store, her husband keeps an extra vial of wrath corked up for election day."

"It seems to me," said Baruch Spiegelberger, "that Sollie's prospects of becoming a rabbi are very shadowy."

XIII.

Jewish Lawyers.

"Don't you think," said Joe Meyers, "it would be a good idea to put Sollie in a law office and let him study for the legal profession?"

"From a business point of view, I should say not," said Kalbsbraten; "there are more schochtim than huehner."

"What's that?" asked Sim Levy.

"More killers than chickens," answered Sullivan A. Johnson.

"The simile is rather rude, but there is much sound sense in the application," said Sim Levy; "but, of course, the choice of a profession is a very difficult one to make, and the boy's educational training, his general aptitude, his surroundings, his moral character, his financial circumstances and family influence are all important factors to be taken into consideration; and from my general observance of the legal profession as it exists in New York, I wouldn't advise my son to study law."

"I differ with you," said Baruch Spiegelberger. "Why, there are lawyers who are literally coining money."

"And there are merchants, and plumbers, and newspaper men, too," said Sim Levy.

"And they all dress well and live well," continued Baruch Spiegelberger, "and don't kill themselves with hard work, and have no notes to meet."

"And a skeleton in their closet, too," said Sim Levy.

"Why, there are lawyers," said Joe Meyers, "who are making their ten and fifteen thousand dollars a year as easy as anything."

"Yes," said Kalbsbraten, "Baron Rothschild said the best business to go into to make money is to sell matches, if you only sell enough."

"Exactly," said Sim Levy; "and the law is an excellent profession for making money if you have a good clientele."

"There is nothing so successful as success. It is true, but there is nothing so disastrous as failure."

"You know lawyers thrive by failures," said Nate Mendoza.

"Before we talk about Sollie's aptitude or fitness for the profession," said Sim Levy, "let us discuss the question solely upon its financial merits. There are in New York about ten or twelve thousand lawyers, or, to speak justly, members of the legal profession. There are hardly five hundred who are making money, about a thousand who are able to lay something aside for a rainy day, about two thousand who are making a comfortable living—"

"And the balance?" asked Joe Myers. "I give it up," said Sim Levy. "And let me tell you something as a fact; that from the pure simple practice of the law my estimate could be very much reduced."

"How is that?" asked Baruch Spiegelberger.

"Well, you see," continued Sim Levy, "their acquaintance with their clients gives them opportunities for going into various things. Some speculate in real estate, others are in stock companies, some dabble in politics, and you can scarcely find a lawyer who has not his finger in some pie or other, especially the Jewish lawyers, of whom there are about twelve hundred in New York city."

"Twelve hundred candidates for judicial nominations," said Nate Mendoza; "what a blessing to the community!"

"Now, arguing the matter solely from a financial standpoint," said Sim Levy, "the profession is not as remunerative as one would imagine. When you take into consideration the office rent, clerks, stenographers and incidentals, you will find that it affords a bare living for a respectable family, and taking three summer months' vacation, it all has to be made in nine months."

"And five days a week, for I suppose that our Jewish lawyers," said Kalbsbraten, "keep their offices closed on Shabbas."

"I regret to say," answered Sim Levy, "that there are scarcely a dozen Jewish lawyers who observe their Sabbath, and the violation is more flagrant because the trial terms are all closed on Saturday, and the courts are closed at 12, and the judges invariably respect a person's convictions."

"That's what might be termed an illegal worship of the golden calf," said Nate Mendoza.

"And the more reprehensible because it subjects them to the sneers of every intelligent Christian," said Kalbsbraten.

"Don't be too hasty in your judgment," said Gumpelstein, "but attribute this religious indifference to its proper cause—the indifference of our Rabbis."

"The Talmud tells us," said Sullivan A. Johnson, "that Jeroboam's offense was a grievous one, for not alone did he sin himself, but he caused others to sin."

To be continued.

50,000 SHARES AT $10 PER SHARE.

Pursuant to order of the Directors of the Greene Consolidated Gold Company, 50,000 shares of the TREASURY STOCK of the company are offered for sale at par, $10 per share, payable one-half cash with subscription, balance on October 1, 1904.

The property of the Greene Consolidated Gold Co. is situated thirty miles southwest of Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, and consists of 2,559 pertenencias, or 6,320 acres, running fourteen miles along the channel of the San Domingo River, together with the bench gravels adjacent, and is one of the largest and richest gold deposits in the world. A complete plant, with capacity for handling four thousand cubic yards of gravel per day, is now on the ground and being erected. The plant will be in operation in October, 1904, and should show net earnings of at least one hundred and fifty thousand dollars per month. The property is entirely paid for. Titles are direct from the Government, and are perfect. No bonds or preferred stock, and no indebtedness outside of current monthly expenses.

The sale of this block of Treasury stock will furnish funds sufficient to finish the erection of the plant and leave fifty thousand shares of stock in the treasury for reserve. The capitalization is very low in proportion to intrinsic value, as the extent and value of the property will enable it to pay large and continuous dividends for many years to come. The management is in the hands of conservative, practical business men of the highest standing.

The President of the Company, Mr. Wm. C. Greene, is a practical miner of many years' experience in actual mining, knowing what to do and how to do it, who has personally owned the property for many years, and who is entirely familiar with all the conditions to be encountered. The management guarantees that the property will be worked as a legitimate investment proposition for the benefit of stockholders, and full information to stockholders will always be given, as has been done by the Greene Consolidated Copper Company—which is under the same management.

Subscription Blanks, Prospectuses, maps and further particulars will be sent on application. Subscription books will be opened at the offices of the company, 24 Broad street, New York; Mechanics' National Bank Building, St. Louis, Mo., and at the French-American Banking and Development Company, 37 Boulevard Haussman, Paris, France, at 10 o'clock A. M., on Monday, the first day of August, and close at 3 o'clock P. M. on Wednesday, August 10. Subscriptions will be allotted pro rata in case of oversubscription. One-half of the amount of subscription must accompany application, balance payable on October 1, 1904.

THE EDITOR HEBREW STANDARD
Commenting upon the action of Rev. Dr. Glueck of Temple Ohel Shalom of Newark, in blowing the Shofar on the recent first day of Rosh Hashannah, which fell on Saturday, Aspuklarya is inclined to look upon it favorably, if the congregation adopted the radical course of celebrating only one day of New Year.

Thus says the Mishnah (Rosh Hashannah III, 1): "When the Feast of New Year fell on a Saturday, the Shofar was put in operation in the temple only, but not in any other place of worship."

NACHMAN HELLER,

Philadelphia Osanna Rabba, 5665.

Rev. Dr. Silverman's Views on Higher Criticism.

THE EDITOR, HEBREW STANDARD.
In last Sunday's Herald, there appeared a compilation of opinions by various ministers and others on the subject of "Higher Biblical Criticism." Among them the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman is also quoted.

In this article Dr. Silverman says: "It is very important to know that the Jewish students are not compelled to substantiate alleged miracles, nor is it vital to the devotion of the Jew to his religion, that he should believe in the letter of the Scriptures, or in the interpretation of certain events like the crossing of the Red Sea and the revelation of Sinai, etc., etc., that causes them to appear as miracles."

Allow me, Mr. Editor, to ask you, to which Jewish students of the Bible does Silverman allude? Does he mean the modern Reform Rabbis? Or does he refer Solomon Jzchaki (Rasbi), Moses Maimonides (Rambam), Abraham Ben Ezra, Jehuda Halevi, Solomon Ben Gabiral, Abarbauch and innumerable others like them? Those great lights in Israel firmly believed in a literal interpretation of the division of the Red Sea, and of God's revelation on Sinai. Of course, all reformers like Rev. Dr. Silverman have not taken the same view of the Thora and the Talmud as they.

I think that it is high time that other Rabbis of this city should publish their standard of Judaism and thus let the world judge between them and Dr. Silverman.

אדם יצחק

The following is the contribution by Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, to the New York Herald's symposium on the question "Is the Bible in Danger?"

(Ed. H. S.)

"The Jewish students of the Bible have all been the severest critics. They have never accepted the Bible in a particularly literal sense, but have differentiated clearly between what they have regarded as allegory and historical narrative. Jewish students have never believed that the Bible was one book, but have always read, studied and interpreted it with the understanding that it was a collection of books, written by different men, at different times, under different circumstances and for diverse purposes. Not only is this true of modern students of the Bible, but it was also the view of the ancient Jewish commentaries, many of whom were very radical in their interpretation of the Scriptures.

It is very important to note that the Jewish students of the Bible are not compelled to substantiate alleged miracles, nor is it vital to the devotion of a Jew to his religion that he believe in the letter of the Scriptures, or in the interpretation of certain events, like the crossing of the Red Sea, the revelation at Sinai, and the standing still of the sun and moon on Ajalon, causing them to appear as miracles. He still remains a Jew whether he believes in the letter of the Scriptures or whether he takes a broader and more liberal view thereof. Judaism is not based upon any miracle, and therefore higher criticism of the Scriptures, even though it destroy some of the former beliefs, does not invalidate the essential teachings of the faith."

In The Theatres.

Proctor's One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Theatre.

"A Gentleman of France," which scored an emphatic success at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, will be presented next week by the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street section of the Proctor stock company.

William Ingersoll will assume the role originally played by Kyrie-Bellew. In addition to Mr. Ingersoll, who gained favor last week through his performance in "Captain Lettarblair," all of the popular favorites will be seen, including Beatrice Morgan, Frank Sheridan, Julian Reed, Marion Berg, George Howell and many others. Some clever vaudeville specialties will entertain between the acts and before the presentation of the play.

New Star Theatre.

What promises to be without a doubt the real dramatic treat of the season for the patrons of this theatre will be the presentation next week of Messrs. Forrester and Mittenthal's massive melodramatic scenic production of "A Prisoner of War," the work of Theodore Kremer. The story of "A Prisoner of War" tells, in a clear and forceful manner, the scenes and incidents attending the conflict between Russia and Japan, portraying all the events in a vivid and realistic way.

West End Theatre.

"David Harum" will be presented at the West End Theatre next week, with W. H. Turner as the shrewd, sharp and witty old countryman made famous by Edward Noyes Westcott's widely read book. Those who witness the play will find in it three scenes that are likely to be remembered for many days. Mr. Cain has given the play a thoroughly adequate production, and the company is described as being one of much strength and cleverness, it being identical to the one seen at the Garrick Theatre, New York City.

Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre

An all-star bill is announced for Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre next week, where Odette Tyler heads the cast with a strong sketch enlisting the services of Robert Hickman and James Spottswood. The sketch itself is a comedy of marked humorous interest, entitled "The Maid, the Mouse and the Man," and presents a capital little love story told in original fashion. Another capital head-line act is "Very Much Grand Opera." The marvelous Webbs a family of acrobats of unusual cleverness, offer some tricks not copied into other specialties.

Stanhope-Wheatcroft Dramatic School

Mrs. Wheatcroft takes pleasure in announcing the first students' matinee of the Stanhope-Wheatcroft Dramatic School for the season of 1904-5, to be given by the students of the summer class, at the Garrick Theatre, on Friday, October 7, at 2.15 p. m. The following plays will be presented: "Dolly's Accomplishments," by Sydney Grundy; "Hortense," by W. S. Armand; "Frank Glynn's Wife," by Maurice Hageman, and "Love in Idleness," by Evangeline M. Lent.

Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre.

"The Altar of Friendship," a four act comedy of sentiment by Madeline Lucette Ryley, which served Nat Goodwin as a vehicle several seasons ago at the Knickerbocker Theatre, is the forthcoming offer at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre. Edwin Arden, who has scored a tremendous success as the leading man of the stock company, will have the opportunity to play an unusually congenial role. Wallace Erskine, H. Dudley Hawley, Peter Lang, Albert Howson, Isabelle Evesson, Miss Whitman, Gertrude Berkeley, Bessie Barriscale, Lilla Vane, and others will also appear. In the vaudeville section the leader is George H. Wilson, the famous minstrel-comedian.

Hudson Theatre.

We should always be grateful to the manager who has the courage to import one of Pinero's plays. The great English dramatist is as fond as any Frenchman of risque subjects, and a risky speculation it is indeed, to offer to an American public "Letty," which is a brilliant but mercilessly truthful portrayal of shady people in high life and low life. To be sure the same American public will encourage and laugh at any amount of vulgarity in a burlesque or musical comedy; but let a master of the stage attempt to deal seriously with social conditions whose existence no one doubts and the chances are that people will stay away from a play where they may possibly be compelled to think for perhaps at least a half an hour in the course of an evening.

This attitude of our public may account for the not very large audiences gathered this week at the beautiful theatre in Forty-fourth street, though the assumption of the chief male role by Mr. Favensham must also be taken into consideration. This actor's hard, inflexible style, and his feeble powers of characterization were never so clearly in evidence. To be sure in the powerful climax of the fourth act Mr. Favensham's art is so supreme, and your attention so absorbed that not even Mr. Favensham could "kill" the scene.

Aside from the "star's" participation in it, the performance of "Letty" is quite complete, well rounded and satisfying. As the pretty voluble, capricious "clerk" (pronounced clerk) in a bucket-shop at five and twenty shillings a week, Miss Charlotte Nilsson acted with keen intelligence uncommon charm, and repressed intensity where emotion was required. The part is a very difficult one but Miss Nilsson brought out its possibilities with unerring skill. In the scene where Letty discovers that the lover who has kissed her is a married man, the denouement of shame and indignation could hardly have been bettered. As a fashionable milliner's assistant, Miss Julie Opp looked the part of the cockney shop-girl to the life. Her bearing, her dialect, and her display of fine lady airs were simply delicious. A companion picture was the Mandeville ("his original name was probably Cohen or Myers or Mendelssohn," says another character in the play) of Mr. Arthur Playfair, an amusing representation of a rich, vulgar and cheeky bounder. The minor roles were very well played by Katherine Florence, Olive Oliver, Fritz Williams, Ivo Dawson and others.

"Letty" ought to hold the boards for at least a month to come. It is far and away the best play now on view.

J. M.

Metropolis Theatre.

The greatest melodramatic attraction of the season will be seen at the Metropolis Theatre next week, when the much heralded problem and psychological melodrama, "Dealers in White Women," will be given in four acts and eight scenes.

Third Avenue Theatre.

"Down by the Sea" is the attraction announced at the Third Avenue Theatre for next week. It is a high grade melodrama free from all unnatural climaxes and exaggerated characters. It does not depend on horse play nor maudlin sentiment for its success, but on its quiet and charming story and the entirely human manner in which the actors interpret their respective roles. It nevertheless contains some of the most powerful situations ever introduced into melodrama, and the audience is thrilled more by the natural thread of the story than by the conventional tricks of the stage. The scenic effects include some startlingly realistic novelties and the company is one of the best that has ever been seen in plays of this class.

New War Pictures at the Eden Musee.

The Eden Musee has a representative in the Far East who is making every possible effort to secure new and interesting moving pictures of the struggle between Japan and Russia. The new pictures just received from Paris contain many interesting examples of mysterious pictures, and a number of new groups have been added to the Musee's collection. The new figures of President Roosevelt and Judge Parker are attracting much attention, and there is always a crowd of admirers before each. The afternoon and evening concerts are becoming more popular each week.

Wise Words to Sufferers

From a Woman of Notre Dame, Ind.

I will mail, free of any charge, this Home Treatment with full instructions and the history of my own case to any lady suffering from female trouble. You can cure yourself at home without the aid of any physician. It will cost you nothing to give the treatment a trial, and if you decide to continue it will only cost you about twelve cents a week. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it—that is all I ask. It cures all, young or old.

If you feel a bearing-down sensation, sense of impending evil, pain in the back or bowels, creeping feeling up the spine, a desire to cry frequently, hot flashes, weariness, frequent desire to urinate, or if you have Leucorrhoea (Whites), Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, address MRS. M. SUMMERS, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A. for the FREE TREATMENT and FULL INFORMATION.

Thousands besides myself have cured themselves with it. I send it in plain wrappers. TO MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS I will explain a simple Home Treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in young ladies. It will save you anxiety and expense and save your daughter the humiliation of explaining her troubles to others. Plumpness and health always result from its use. Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies of your own state or county who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all diseased conditions of our delicate female organism, thoroughly strengthens relaxed muscles and ligaments which cause displacement, and makes women well. Write today, as this offer will not be made again. Address

Best Place for Horse Goods.

The largest establishment in the world devoted to horse goods exclusively is the firm of C. M. Moseman & Brother, 126 and 128 Chambers street, New York, established in 1867.

They have a manufactory in Walsall, England, where all their imported harness is made and originated, so that while they are importers of harness ostensibly, they manufacture their own goods "made in England," sold in America and elsewhere.

C. M. Moseman & Brother are known throughout the world, and became famous by advertising the characteristic unharnessed horse "with no time here" as their trade mark.

They direct particular attention to their elegant establishment in the Windsor Arcade, 571 Fifth avenue, where the choicest horse goods are to be found at surprisingly low prices for the superior goods offered.

Order B'nai B'rith

District No. 1. 1000 B'nai B'rith Building, N. E. cor Lexington Ave. and 58th St.

J. B. Klein, President, Franklin Block, Bridgeport, Conn.

Charles Hartman, First Vice-President. Adam Wiener, Second Vice-President. Sol. Sulzberger, Treasurer.

S. Hamburger, Secretary.

The Independent Order of B'nai B'rith has taken upon itself the mission of uniting Israelites in the work of promoting their highest interests and those of humanity; of developing, elevating and defending the mental and moral character of our race; of inculcating the purest principles of philanthropy, honor and patriotism; of supporting science and art; alleviating the wants of the poor and needy; visiting and attending the sick, coming to the rescue of victims of persecution; providing for, protecting and assisting the widow and orphan on the broadest principles of humanity.

INDEPENDENT ORDER B'NAI B'RITH. The following circular letter has been issued:

To Our Esteemed Co-Religionists: District Grand Lodge, No. 1, of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, ever mindful of the welfare of our brethren in the faith, and conforming with the mission of our Order, enjoining its adherents to promote the interests of humanity and come to the rescue of those whose needs we may alleviate, has opened an employment and labor bureau at 106 Forsyth street, New York.

The want of such an institution has long been felt in this city, with its manifold commercial and manufacturing enterprises and with a vast population, subject to the ever-changing vicissitudes of life, causing large numbers to search for work wherewith to support those depending upon them, either by their mental or physical capacities. It is, however, a daily occurrence that many persons willing to work are unable to secure the same unless aided by others, and it is for this class of our co-religionists that the "East Side Bureau" has been called into life.

Although it is but a short time since the same has opened its doors, a large number of applicants have already been taken care of, free of any charge whatever, and it is in behalf of these deserving people that we respectfully request your esteemed minister to kindly announce from the pulpit the existence of an institution that is destined to become a blessing to the dwellers of many a humble home who might otherwise become objects of charity. We herewith transmit to you a number of circulars, which kindly have distributed among those of your members who may desire to avail themselves of the services of the bureau when looking for any kind of "help" to be employed in their respective establishments.

Hoping that you will be pleased to grant our request, thus beginning the New Year with a most worthy and benevolent act, we bespeak for you the blessings of our Heavenly Father and subscribe ourselves, yours faithfully, J. B. KLEIN, President.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, BUREAU FOR THE COLLECTION OF TAXES, NO. 57 CHAMBERS STREET, BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN, NEW YORK, OCT. 1, 1904.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Assessment Rolls of Real Estate and Personal Property in the City of New York for the year 1904 and the warrants for the collection of taxes have been delivered to the undersigned, and that all the taxes on said Assessment Rolls are due and payable on MONDAY, OCT. 3, 1904, at the office of the Receiver of Taxes in the following in which the property is located, as follows:

- BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN, No. 57 Chambers street, Manhattan, N. Y. BOROUGH OF THE BRONX, corner Third and Tremont avenues, The Bronx, N. Y. BOROUGH OF BROOKLYN, Rooms 2, 4, 6 and 8 Municipal Building, Brooklyn, N. Y. BOROUGH OF QUEENS, corner Jackson avenue and Fifth street, Long Island City, N. Y. BOROUGH OF RICHMOND, corner of Bay and Sand streets, Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y.

In case of payment during October the person so paying shall be entitled to the benefits mentioned in section 915 of the Greater New York Charter (Chapter 378, Laws of 1897), viz.: A deduction of interest at the rate of 6 per cent, per annum between the day of payment and the 1st day of December next.

ALL BILLS PAID DURING OCTOBER MUST BE REBATED BEFORE CHECKS ARE DRAWN FOR PAYMENT.

When checks are mailed to the Receiver of Taxes they must be accompanied by addressed envelopes with the necessary stamps to ensure return of receipted bills by mail.

Checks dated Oct. 3 should be mailed to the Receiver as soon as possible after bills have been received by the taxpayer.

DAVID E. AUSTEN, Receiver of Taxes.

SELECTIONS.

Kossuth's English.

Kossuth had a remarkable mastery of English. This story shows how he strengthened his knowledge of our difficult tongue. Speaking at Concord, Mass., Kossuth wished to express the figure of the Austrian eagle rending the young freedom of Hungary. The word escaped him. Stopping for a moment in the full flight of eloquence, he asked a matter of fact American who sat near him, "What you say when man tear his coat?" "Hole," was the reply. That word did not satisfy him, and Ralph Waldo Emerson, who had overheard the question, whispered "rent," with poetic sympathy for euphony, and the stately sweep of the sentence was completed. He learned the language after his arrest in 1837, when he was sentenced in 1838 to three years' imprisonment, during a part of which he was cut off from all communication with his friends and was denied the use of pen and ink and even of books. In the second year he was allowed to read, but as all political books were interdicted he selected an English grammar, Walker's pronouncing dictionary and Shakespeare. Without knowing a single word he began to read "The Tempest." He was engaged for a fortnight in getting through the first page.

Why Japan Has No Fence Posts.

In Japan when a farmer permits a telegraph or telephone pole to be erected on his land he has made a great concession to modern reform. Only the exceedingly rich have fences around their farms in Japan, not because of the cost of the fence, but because of the value of the square inches the posts and pickets would consume. If a border is desired around a field it is customary to plant mulberry trees. The total area of ground in Japan thus devoted to the silkworm tree, which otherwise would be taken up with fences, amounts to about 100,000 acres. This has no reference to the mulberry farms and groves, the area for which is over three times as much. The fact that a Japanese farmer is forced to figure on the amount of ground a fence post would occupy and the interesting fact that the government in its statistical enumerations has had the areas covered by individual mulberry trees on farm boundaries carefully computed demonstrates the great value of arable land. —Booklovers' Magazine.

The Kaiser Off Duty.

Perhaps an insight into Emperor William's character can be better gained during his long cruise to Norway than at any other time, for it is then that he throws off all the restraints imposed on him by custom and lives as he would really like to live. That the emperor is the "boss" of the yacht there is no doubt. It amuses him to go poking about among the machinery, and he even pays frequent visits to the kitchen to watch the cooks and perhaps take a hand himself in the preparation of the food. Those who have had the privilege of being present on such an occasion say it is a great sight to see his majesty ascend from the kitchen to the upper deck with a plate of pork and beans and mashed peas, sit down on a little chair with the plate between his knees and proceed to polish off its contents with evident relish and a tin spoon.—Everybody's Magazine.

Albinos.

The human species offers frequent examples of individuals attacked by albinism. It is found oftentimes among men of the black race. White albinos have skin of a peculiar paleness, blond hair, white or colorless beard, pink iris and red pupils. The negro albino has skin of variable aspect. In some cases it is white as milk, and in others it is like wax, or, rather, resembles the hue of a corpse.

An Eighty Year Humorist.

Lord Kelvin, who has just celebrated his eightieth birthday, is not above having a joke. One day he asked a distinguished scientist this apparently simple question: "What is blotting paper?" The professor said: "I give it up. Tell me." But Lord Kelvin, with a twinkle in his eye, cried with glee: "Never! You must find out for yourself." Walking through a great electrical works, he said to a workman quite casually, "What is this electricity of which I hear so much?" The man, not recognizing his questioner, answered, "I am sure I don't know, sir." "More do I," replied Lord Kelvin. And that expresses his humility in discussing a subject on which he knows probably as much as any living man. It is this Newton-like humility which has endeared him to his colleagues.—London Chronicle.

To Avoid Sunstroke.

A wise person writes that a few hints as to how to avoid sunstroke may not be amiss at this season even though we may have passed the tropical point.

One's object must be to protect the central nervous system from the solar rays. Now, a hat protects the brain, but many a fatal case of sunstroke has resulted from the fact that the spinal cord is almost as vulnerable. The back of the neck should be protected. In India a double layer of cloth is often inserted along the middle line of the jacket behind. Young women who button their shirt waists at the back, take notice! A double row of buttons may prevent sunstroke. —Boston Herald.

Russian Students.

A Russian named Ivanhoff has written a book on the students of the University of Moscow. He asserts that most of them are dolts and good for nothing. The average amount each one has to spend is $13 a month; 11 per cent have no income at all and depend on charity or help themselves along by giving lessons at $1.50 a month or reading proofs in printing offices or serving as choristers in the theaters.

What's In a Man.

It has been shown by analysis that a young person weighing 154 pounds is composed of 90 pounds of water, 3 pounds of white of egg, a little less than 1 pound of pure glue, 34½ pounds of fat, 8½ pounds of phosphate of lime, 1 pound of carbonate of lime, 3 ounces of sugar and starch, 7 ounces of fluoride of calcium, 6 ounces of phosphate of magnesia and a little ordinary table salt.

A Loss to Literature.

Many of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu's letters were destroyed by her daughter, who imagined that her family name was impaired by connection with literature.

Invention of the Piano.

It is not known who invented the piano, the credit being variously given to Christopher Gottlieb Schroeter of Saxony, Marius of France and Bartolomeo Christofall of Italy. The latter had completed four instruments in 1709, and two dated 1720 and 1726 still exist.

Gem Engraving.

Gem engraving flourished as an art among the Chaldeans 4000 B. C., and specimens of their castings in bronze have come down through the ages since 8000 B. C.

The Eye in Death.

The retina becomes of a pale white color soon after death, and the pellucid fluid in the cornea, which does not exude in the living state, but is constantly absorbed and renewed, oozes out gradually after or a short time before death and forms that obscure film before the cornea which destroys its transparency.

Lightning and Forests.

Lightning seldom strikes in a forest where the trees are dense and of about the same height. Danger exists only where isolated trees rise above their surroundings.

Ancient Tools.

A collection of tools used by workmen in building the pyramids of Egypt that is owned by a famous Egyptologist indicates that many tools credited to modern ingenuity were in use when Moses was troubling the pharaohs.

Monte Carlo.

The winnings of the bank of Monte Carlo are said to average nearly $25 a minute, or about $6,250,000 a year.

Religious Novelties.

In the fifteenth century religious novelties were fashionable. Some of them abounded in absurd anachronisms. In one Abraham is represented as about to sacrifice Isaac by shooting him with a blunderbuss.

Chinese Words.

There are words in the Chinese language which have as many as forty different meanings.

India's Government.

India is in every sense of the word a crown colony. The governor general in council has power to make laws for all persons—British, natives or foreigners—in the Indian territories.

Horseradish.

Horseradish promotes appetite and stimulates digestion. It is said to be good for rheumatism.

She Wanted to Borrow.
An old woman whose husband was ill in bed sent for the doctor, who came and saw the old man.
"I will send him some medicine," he said on leaving, "which must be taken in a recumbent posture."
After he had gone the old woman sat down greatly puzzled.
"The recumbent posture—a recumbent posture!" she kept repeating. "I haven't got one." At last she thought, "I will go and see if old Mrs. Smith has got one to lend me."
Accordingly she went and said to her neighbor:
"Have you a recumbent posture to lend me to put some medicine in?" Mrs. Smith, who was equally as ignorant as her friend, replied:
"I had one, but to tell you the truth I have lost it."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Smart Man.
"Is it a fact that you kiss your mother-in-law, Jonesey?"
"Yes. Do it every morning. Do it for luck!"

"And where do you come in?"
"At the front door as late as I like every night. Even if the hot weather dazes my brain and I have to crawl up to bed playing with the stair rods, there's not a bit of fuss, and the old lady tells my wife that boys will be boys, and she must learn to value a good husband now she's got him. Ah, it's better to be lucky than rich!"—Pick Me Up.

In the Deepest Mourning.
"Who was at the party, Aunt Jenny?" we asked of an old colored woman who came by not long since.
"Wellum, dey 'uz a lot o' folks. Dar 'uz Billie an' Nez an' Kate an' de Widder Jones."
"The widow? Why, her husband has just died."
"Sholy, marm, an' I fell yo' her mo'nin' hit 'uz mighty black."—Nashville Banner.

In Summer Too.
"Where is Boxom?"
"He's acting as clerk in a summer hotel."
"How does he like it?"
"Not at all."
"Why not?"
"Says it's too hot work."
"Hot work?"
"Yes, he has to stand over the register all day."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Long Memory.
"What's the matter?" asked the peevish landlord.
"The plaster's fallen off the ceiling," said the tenant's son.
"Well, I hope you're satisfied. The first thing you did when you moved in was to complain that the ceilings were too low."—Washington Star.

Caught Himself.
Jiggins—The last time I saw you your neighbor wasn't well. You remember you were telling me about his illness.
Bertram (the undertaker)—Yes; it terminated favorably—as I was saying, alas, it terminated fatally.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Matchless Beauty.
Her mamma tried to make the match; She thought it her plain duty. But soon she found her daughter was A matchless kind of beauty.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Comet.
The following whimsical account of the nature of a splendid comet is given in an old French military journal: "It is a parcel of old stars who, being no longer fit for service, have been discharged on half pay and, to save expense, have agreed to mess together."

The Test.
Adorer—You still doubt me? Test my love. Bid me attack wild beasts, defy savages, find the north pole, descend into a volcano—anything, no matter what, I will do it. Doubting Girl—Go ask papa.

The Cynic.
"Married yet, old man?"
"No, but I'm engaged, and that's as good as married."
"It's better, if you only knew it."

No Hustler.
"He has a head for business, and yet he doesn't succeed."
"That's because he has no feet for it."—Cleveland Leader.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

No man ever discovers he is being flattered, no matter how bungling the flatterer may be.

The credulity of the newly married woman is so beautiful in its simplicity that it ought to be a joy forever—but it isn't.

The heavy coal bill will crowd so closely the heavy ice bill that we will by again reminded that extremes meet.

When people suddenly become very polite to you the chances are either that you have inherited a fortune or that there is trouble brewing.

Oftentimes the only difference between a decent man and a scamp is a clean shirt and a shave.

Any girl who can plan a dinner and cook it can investigate matrimony whenever she chooses.

Alas, there is much difference between knowing a good thing when you see it and seeing a good thing when you know it.

A rich widow has more fun than two unmarried girls would know what to do with.

It is considered unlucky to take a diamond ring out on Friday if the owner sees you.

Trouble is generally twins if it isn't triplets.

Some women tame their husbands so well that they can take them shopping.

The girl who spends her time reading "Musings" before marriage is apt to leave the dishes to wash themselves after marriage.

An old bachelor says that there are some people who can get into difficulty without getting married, but nobody can get married without getting into difficulty.

You can't always tell whether a man is able to raise the wind by the amount of blowing he does.

A man can't help taking chances sometimes, because some folks are such easy marks.

The chronic toucher loves to keep his hand in—the other fellow's pocket.

It takes a lot of faith to make a woman feel humble when she is wearing a new dress.

When a man is in love he is either too miserable to care what he does or too happy to be of any use.

Predictions won't bring rain in dry weather.

A man does not need to take a course in music to be able to blow his own horn.

Never try to borrow money of the man who gets up early in the morning when he doesn't have to.

Twin babies can do more to convert a man to the gospel of industry than twin sermons.

Age cannot wither the conceit of some men.

We are no sooner through with nursing our mosquito bitten skin till we are called on to lament our moth eaten flannels.

Women don't care how untrue the things may be that a man says, as long as they are pleasant.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.
