Playing the Game.

A number of urchins were romping one day,
One afternoon out in the street.
Their spirits were high and joyous their play,
And tireless their tongues and their feet.
Yet they wearied at length, for each game that they knew
Lacked freshness and so made them tire.
They long'd for some sport that was pleasant and new,
And loudly discussed their desire.

A big boy at length on the head hit the ball—
"Let's play there's a fair on these rocks!
I'll play I'm a farmer with oxen for sale,
And you, Jim, shall play you're the ox.
I'll lead you up here by a ring thro' the nose—
You'll strain and you'll pull to get free;
I'll haul and I'll swear, and I'll lay on the blows—
We'll find it no end of a spree!"

Bill soon got a rope, made a noose at one end,
And Jim, by his teeth, gripp'd the noose.
Bill tugg'd and he swore, and laid on with a stick—
Jim's shoulders showed many a bruise.
For mercy he cried, but held fast all the same,
Tho' he felt his poor jaws nearly broke.
Bill said: "Never mind, for you're gaining great fame,
And you know it is only a joke!"

A bystander cried out: "Let go of the noose,
You're not bound to submit to such knocks!"
Jim answered: "You know that I dare not refuse,
Or some other will soon play the ox.
I might let go the rope and get quit of the blows;
If I don't, do not hold me to blame:
An ox must expect to be led by the nose—
As for bruises, they're part of the game!"

MORAL:

The moral of this, when to Politics applied,
All observers the aptness proclaim:
The General Public, it can't be denied,
Is like the small boy in that game.
(There are men who are proud of the hardest of knocks;
They really rejoice in the blows.)
Oh, the General Public is much like an ox,
And it loves to be led by the nose!

Aphorisms.

BY EZEKIEL LEAVITT.

Translated by Dr. Louis A. Alexander.

(These aphorisms, the English version of which is given here for the first time appeared originally in the Russian language and caused great interest in the literary world. It is hoped that the interest will not be lessened in the English version.—THE TRANSLATOR)

Ye a's ag), I read in Mythology—that in xture of truth and fancy, of art and absurdity—that Orpheus (Apollo's and Calliope's son) possessed a wonderful, seven-stringed lyre, and as soon as he began playing upon it, the birds became mute; the woods were enchanted; the trees applauded with their green hands; the river ceased driving its waves; and the most dangerous beasts grew still and quiet as lambs while listening to Orpheus' divine music.

O God! I do not ask you for riches, nor fortune, nor pleasure. Give me only Orpheus' lyre! Give it to me—and I shall be happy and satisfied. I shall wander from town to town, from place to place, and I shall, by my playing, console poor men persecuted by fate. I shall play—and the petrified hearts of two-legged animals will become softer and better, and the beasts cease devouring the best and the most beautiful; not to mention the great, weak crowd which also wants to enjoy something.

The ancient Graces, who were more beautiful than all other women upon whom the sun shone, selected a steady place near the Muses, not far from Mount Olympus, in Greece. How the times have changed! The modern Graces withdraw from the Muses, Olympus, art and poetry. And do you know what they change for? For a bag of gold.

Hercules bound the terrible dog "Cerberus" and subdued him. O, how many Herculeses we need now to subdue the new-born "Cerberuses" who almost fill the whole Globe!

Prometheus stole fire from heaven and brought it to men on earth. The great Jupiter grew angry with him and commanded Mercury to catch the thief, bind him with iron chains to Mount Caucasus, and bring a vulture to eat out Prometheus' heart.

Years ago, when I read this legend, I regretted Prometheus' sentence. I am older now. Time has given me many a lesson, and I do not regret Prometheus' position. I rather say, how happy was the unhappy martyr! He forgot his great pain, remembering, that he made humanity happy by giving it fire, light, sunshine. A man who suffers for an idea, a noble deed, which brings profit to the world, certainly looks with immense pride at the gallows, and drinks, as an ordinary beverage, the poison given him by his murderers.

Literature is a field. Bad books are the manure which a field needs to improve it.

Many writers think that they have great talents, because they have blackened much paper with their pens. Fools! The poem "Magabgaratta" contains 120,000 couplets, and with all that, we do not even know who was its real author. And had we known him for sure, we would never have called him by the name of "poet" or "artist." But if Shakespeare had only written his "Hamlet" and nothing else, his name would live for ever, and remembering him, we may all exclaim: "Great is Shakespeare, and sublime his art!"

The great pessimist, Schopenhauer, refused to marry, so that his pessimism should have no posterity.

Though the poet sometimes wallows in the swamp like ordinary mortals, yet the poet is an eagle. Of a sudden he shakes off earthly dirt and flies up to the blue sky, where the sun with his glowing rays dries up the humidity which he, the poet, carries from the swamp. The angels cleanse him, and the Almighty God kisses him with love and hypnotizes him with His kiss, and the poet becomes part of the Divinity.

When a young lady favors me with a smile, rolling up her eyes like Raphael's Madonna and whispering to me: "My poet, I really love you!" I remind myself that there are stereotypes in the world.

The worst women are good, mild and tender when asleep.

In almost every woman there dwells a Mephistopheles, who, by his laughter, takes away from us our soul, our life.

My enemies did me oftentimes more good than my "good friends." With the former I used to be careful. The latter used to be careful with me, and did not show me their "true friendship."

When a woman promises to love, I am quite sure she will forget her words in 48 hours.

The theatre is a mirror, therefore we have to guard that flies should not soil it.

Many small men, with little souls, throw their search-light on the sins of greater men (poets, artists, etc.) thinking, thereby to lower the latter's greatness. O dwarfs! A nightingale will remain a nightingale even though stains be found on its wings. But a rooster can only crow; though its wings be well washed and made clean as snow.

MUSIC.

The season has begun, and to Mrs. Bloomfield Zeisler, of Chicago, belongs the honor of having inaugurated it. The brilliant pianist has a legion of admirers, mostly women, in this town and they gathered in such great numbers last Saturday afternoon that Mendelssohn Hall was much too small to hold them. There was "frenzied" enthusiasm all the time, and Mrs. Zeisler's playing frequently, though not all the time, deserved it. The E minor pastorale and E major capriccio of Scarlatti were played with rhythmical clearness and enchanting variety of tone-color. The interpretation of Beethoven's E flat sonata was novel, to say the least, and hardly to be recommended to students. The scherzo was admirably done, but why the minuette should have been taken at so slow a tempo as to quite distort it we cannot understand at all. In Chopin's F minor fantasia opus 49, a lack of breadth was not atoned for by a mellow warmth of tone and fine technic. The artist here gave us the Chopin of the Parisian salon, but not the poet voicing the revolt and the anguish of down-trodden Poland. Very charming indeed was Mrs. Zeisler in a group of modern pieces—Moszkowski, d'Albert, Schuett and—why, oh, why—Joseffy's "At the Spring." In addition to the regular numbers on the programme, the artist was compelled to give some five or six encores.

GOTTHOLD FREIBERGER.

Madame Gadski's first appearance will be at Carnegie Hall next Thursday afternoon, when she will give a recital made up of arias from many of her operatic roles and songs by German, French, English and American composers. Selma Meyrowitz will be the accompanist and also contribute two piano solos to each programme.

The first of this season's People's Symphony Concerts takes place at Carnegie Hall to-night. The demand for subscription tickets for the course has been so great that even now there is good reason to believe that the great hall uptown will prove too small for all the students and wage-earners eager to attend, just as Cooper Union was too small.

A new overture, "In the South," by Elgar, is to be introduced to our public at the first concert of the New York Symphony Orchestra next Sunday afternoon. The work has been enthusiastically received abroad. With the premiere of two new works—Mahler's fourth symphony being the other—and the debut of a new soprano, Mme. de Montjau, this concert should be important.

Aida, Carmen, L'Elisir d'Amore and Don Pasquale will be sung at the first four subscription performances at the Metropolitan Opera House. On Thanksgiving Day, "Parsifal," with Mme. Nordica as Kundry, the other roles being intrusted to the same singers who interpreted them last season. On the second Monday of the season Mr. Conried will present Ponchielli's "Giocondo," with either Mme. Nordica or Mme. de Macchi, the new soprano, in the title part. Mme. Louise Homer will sing the part of Laura, Miss Edyth Walker will appear as La Cieca, Sig. Giraldo as Isepo and Sig. Caruso as Anzo Grimaldo.

Vladimir de Pachmann will give his first recital at Mendelssohn Hall next Tuesday afternoon. He will play compositions by Mozart, Beethoven, Schumann and, of course, a group by Chopin.

Musical Notes.

"Der Rastelbinder" (The Mouse Trap Peddler), the comic opera which has just made a hit in San Francisco, is duplicating its foreign success. It ran simultaneously in seventy playhouses in Germany, Austria and Hungary, and the score received special commendation in those unusually critical music centres. In the American cast presenting the opera in San Francisco are Miss Kate Condon, Miss Edith Mason, Mr. Thos. Perse, Mr. Willard Simms and Mr. Ferris Hartmann, all of whom scored personally. The book of "Der Rastelbinder" is by Victor Leon, the score by Franz Lehar. M. Witmark & Sons own the American rights to the opera.

Grace Cameron, the little Doty Dimples of "Puff, Puff, Puff," who was married recently during her Casino engagement, has gone into vaudeville. Miss Cameron is earning coin and encomiums with her two bright songs, "Lolita" and "Bessie, I Love You."

The popular Nickoll Sisters, who are always favorite headliners with their clever blackface work, have three new songs hits in "Listen to the Big Brass Band," "Bessie, I Love You" and "You'll Never Mount to Nothin'," all of them Witmark publications.

Among the illustrated songs which seem to hold the crowd, "Because You Were an Old Sweetheart of Mine" is a big favorite. Miss Gertrude Holmes, one of the headliners in the Theatre Jose, San Jose, is making it the feature of her repertoire, and the Western press praises both her choice and her work.

Mr. A. Baldwin Sloane, the composer of so many operatic and musical comedy successes, has placed with his publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., a new opera, entitled "Lady Teazle," written for Lillian Russell, who will star in this production at a salary of $2,000 a week. Mr. Sloane declares it will be one of the most sumptuously staged productions ever presented to the American theatre-going public. The music he has written for the production is of the same flowing, melodious type as in the "Mocking Bird," and he considers it to be one of his best efforts.

Amelia Summerville, one of the principal headliners in vaudeville, is featuring Clare Kummer's clever song entitled "Egypt" with great success. This song is one that runs far out of the ordinary, both in originality of ideas and melody, and is also a big hit in the "Girl from Kays."

Thomas Q. Seabrooke, who is to star this season with the "Billionaire" company, is singing the "Lives of Famous Men" as his principal comedy song with immense success. He will introduce A. B. Sloane's clever song satire "There's a Little Street in Heaven That They Call Broadway" later, this being the song he sang with so much success in "Red Feather."

LITERARY.

"MORAL EDUCATION," a new book by Edward Howard Griggs, is announced for publication early in November, by B. W. Huebsch. (New York.)

The book is a discussion of the whole problem of moral education, its aim in relation to our society and all the means through which that aim can be attained. Prof. Griggs is widely known throughout the country, not only through his two former published works, "The New Humanism" and "A Book of Meditations," but as one of the most successful lecturers on literary and philosophical topics. Since relinquishing his post at Stanford University a few years ago, his work has been mainly in the East, and it requires but the announcement of his name to draw large audiences to his lectures. With such a following as he has the new book is certain of success. It is expected that the work will serve to introduce the author to thousands of thoughtful people, parents and educators, who have known him before only by reputation.

Success never waits on leisure.

Self-confidence is the mother of power.

Present State of Zionism.

Speculation and conjecture have centered largely around the future of Zionism. The rumors of sharp dissensions among the followers of the lamented leader were rife before his demise. Since Dr. Herzl's death they have become subjects of common knowledge, and may be said to menace the vitality of the whole movement. The situation is one which is likely to tax to the utmost the capacity and diplomacy of those at the head of affairs. The London Hebrew Press gives full particulars of some new organizations which have been recently started in Warsaw and Hungary. To put the matter briefly, there are at present five Zionist bodies, all of which are more or less opposed to each other. Official Zionism naturally stands first. Dr. Gaster's strong opposition to the East African scheme is also obtaining a powerful following. A third movement, which emanates from Warsaw, and whose members call themselves Territorialists, is securing adherents in Russia and Poland. At their first meeting a resolution was adopted, recognizing that "Zionism is a rejoinder to the abnormal condition of the Hebrew people, being a nation among the nations, without a territory; that all endeavors to obtain territory are impossible without autonomy," and declaring "that the object of Zionism must be the obtaining of land with autonomy for the Jewish nation." The resolution concludes by asserting that "acting on this view, we call upon all our brethren to unite themselves into a camp on behalf of the territorial principle in Zionism and into war against any attempt at colonization without safeguards in whatever form and in whatever place." The association has issued an appeal in this sense to Zionists all over Europe. A fourth division, the Mizrachites, stands for the religious as opposed to the racial element in Zionism, and members pledge themselves to approve only of a state founded on orthodox Jewish principles. The Mizrachites met in great force at Pressburg last week, but they are winning recruits both in Germany and England. To the lay mind, not learned in the varied shades of difference under the Zionist banner, the Mizrachites would appear to hold the views set forth by Dr. Gaster. Another sect of Mizrachites, supported by the ultra-orthodox rabbis in Hungary, has also been formed, whose supporters disapprove of the Pressburg Mizrachites, and who urge on their followers a yet more rigid standpoint of ceremonial Judaism. The Mizrachite movement is in reality a revolt against the purely racial aspect of Zionism advocated by many of the best-known leaders, in which the religious ideal occupies a merely secondary place. Moreover, the more orthodox Mizrachite frankly fears the domination of men who have little knowledge and understanding, and possibly too scant sympathy with Rabbinic traditions. Mr. Zangwill's marriage has undoubtedly been a determining factor in the attitude adopted by those to whom Zionism is a religious rather than a political aspiration. It is, however, too early as yet to forecast the eventual result of these various sectaries. But they certainly show that Zionism has not yet learnt that first lesson of political solidarity, the fact that in union alone lies the strength that will attain.

A Bird's Elegy.

He was the first to welcome Spring;
 Adventurous, he came
 To wake the dreaming buds and sing
 The crocus into flame.

He loved the morning and the dew;
 He loved the sun and rain;
 He fashioned lyrics as he flew
 With love for their refrain.

Poet of vines and blossoms, he;
 Beloved of them all;
 The timid leaves upon the tree
 Grew bold at his glad call.

He sang the rapture of the hills,
 And from the starry height
 He brought the melody that fills
 The meadows with delight.

And now, behold him dead, alas!
 Where he made joy so long
 A bit of blue amid the grass—
 A tiny, broken song.

The Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews.

105th St., bet. Columbus and Amsterdam Aves. Presentation to Mr. M. Helm.

Last Sunday morning the closing chapter in a very sad episode transpired at the above institution. At noon Mr. Julius Ballin, President, Mrs. J. Z. Coblens, First Vice-President, Mr. A. Cohn, Second Vice-President, Mrs. E. Einstein and Messrs. Solomon Plant, Morris Sternbach and Isaac Kubie of the Board of Trustees, had Mr. M. Helm ushered into their presence when Mr. Kubie, acting as spokesman in behalf of the committee, in a few well-chosen words, presented to Mr. Helm a set of resolutions in which were inscribed the deep sense of sorrow felt by the Directors of the Home at the untimely and tragic event which caused the death of the much esteemed and dearly beloved late lady Superintendent, Mr. Helm, the husband of the deceased, was very sensibly affected and with words choked by emotion expressed his thanks.

Previous to this, President Ballin addressed the inmates announcing that it had been hoped to retain the services as Superintendents of Mr. and Mrs. M. Helm for many years, and expressing his deep regret that any change should have been made necessary. He also took occasion to introduce, as successors, Mr. and Mrs. M. Pollatchek.

Mr. M. Helm retires from the position which he has so well and ably filled for the last sixteen years, taking with him the best wishes of all connected with the charity.

The resolutions embody the sense of the Committee at the irreparable loss sustained, and recount the services and admirable traits of character which marked the official career of the departed.

The New Era Club.

The fourth anniversary of the New Era Club was celebrated by a banquet and ball held at the Progress Assembly Rooms, 28 Avenue A, last Sunday evening, October 30. It was very well attended. Rev. Hudolph I. Coffee said grace. After the meal, which was an elaborate one, Dr. Wolbarst started the speech-making. He said that this was the first time that the New Era Club had celebrated its anniversary in such an elaborate fashion, and he considered it a good omen, for it showed that the boys had become men. Mr. Ferdinand Kuhn was then introduced as the toastmaster. Cyrus L. Sulzberger spoke on politics in New York. He said that if one made an appeal for votes because he belonged to a particular class of people or religion, he should be ignored and defeated. In this great country, one must be above sectarian, religious or social prejudices. Mr. Michaelson, general secretary of the club, spoke on the New Era Club. He pointed out its importance, and said that it was his hope as well as the hope of all the friends of the club to make it the leading and model club in the city of New York. The Hon. A. S. Solomons, who came from Washington to attend the banquet, spoke on "Social Purity Among Young Men." He paid a tribute to the club. Messrs. Lucas, Levinson, Aaronson and others also spoke. Dancing followed, and the banquet was voted by all to be a success.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.

On Sunday, November 6, the first monthly social is to be given to the members of the institution. It is to consist of an entertainment by professional talent and a talk which Miss Julia Richman has been asked to give. The class of "First Aid to the Injured" started on Wednesday. It is to continue for five weeks. It is open to all young men.

The Public Lectures still continue to be interesting and well attended. On Saturday, November 5, Mr. Makepeace speaks on "Personal Economics, or How to Get the Most Out of Life"; and on Wednesday, November 9, Dr. Henry G. Henchett lectures on "Materials of Musical Composition." This talk is the first of a series of six on "Studies in Musical Art." The public is invited.

To prevent the elements from interfering with the enthusiasm on election night, the election returns are to be received on a special wire at the institution. They are to be read at an entertainment given by professional talent.

At our Friday evening services the speaker this week is to be Mr. Marvin Nathan.

Young Women's Hebrew Association.

(1584 Lexington Ave.) The speaker at the Friday evening services last week was Mr. Solomon Prokesch. This week Mr. Arthur Gintzler, of the Jewish Theological Seminary, will speak.

The monthly social of last Sunday was a most pronounced success. The first number on the programme was Mrs. Pereira Mendes, who gave an ethical discussion on woman and her vicissitudes in life, which was most interesting and left a lasting impression on her audience. The next number on the programme was a piano solo beautifully executed by Mrs. Hahn. It was followed by scenes from the "Merchant of Venice," rendered by Miss Josephine Gintzler, teacher of the elocution class. A most entertaining number followed: that of Miss Mary Leech, who sang negro melodies to her own accompaniment on the banjo. Miss Leech was recalled many times. The last number on the programme was a violin solo by Master Offenbach. Refreshments were served at the close of the programme.

The Piano Class, which meets on Sunday afternoons, for adults, has still a few vacancies. Those wishing to join can inquire at the institution for full particulars.

The Penny Provident Fund is again in full swing and has secured a great many new depositors.

On file in the Reference Bureau are the addresses of several ladies with good homes, who will accommodate young women with board and room.

The Dancing Class has been opened in connection with the Physical Training Department. This class is in session on Monday evening.

Pauline Levine.

Mrs. Pauline Levine, beloved mother of the Rev. Dr. David Levine of Spokane, Wash., and of Carrie and Louis Levine of New York, died Friday, October 28, 1904.

Zadie Strauss.

Zadie Strauss died at the age of 71. He was the grandson of the great renowned Bal-Shem of Michalstadt, Germany. He leaves a widow, one son and one daughter, and several grandchildren, who deeply lament their loss. His funeral took place from the residence, 229 East Forty-eighth Street, on Tuesday, November 1st, and the interment was at the Union Fields Cemetery. A large assemblage of relatives and friends attended, and the officiating minister was the Rev. Bernhard Haas.

In Memory of the Late Myer S. Isaacs.

Immigrant children joined with men prominent in business and philanthropic work yesterday afternoon in the Educational Alliance to pay tribute to the memory of Myer S. Isaacs, who died on May 24 last. Hon. Jacob H. Schiff, in his description of the untiring efforts to Judge Isaacs to benefit the immigrant Jewish children, gave him the credit of having conceived the plan and then having aided mightily in making a practical and useful reality of the Educational Alliance, which had since proved so useful to thousands of children in this city.

"Other men," Mr. Schiff went on to say, "may claim credit for having worked hard in the interest of this institution, may claim to have stood by it in its early history, and rightly so, but the plan, the idea itself, originated in the mind of Myer S. Isaacs."

The chairman of the meeting was Hon. Isidor Straus. He reminded the audience which filled every seat in the auditorium, how fitting it was that the memory of Mr. Isaacs should be honored, addressing himself chiefly to the children who are connected in one or the other of the various schools housed in the Alliance Building, and who comprised one-half of the audience.

The children's tribute to their benefactor was contributed by anthems, the reciting of a Psalm, and the reciting of a poem in English and of considerable length by Abram Pislitz, a ten-year-old Russian immigrant, who arrived here six months ago, and who is a pupil of the Baron de Hirsch Preparatory School for Immigrant Children, maintained by the Baron de Hirsch Fund, of which Judge Isaacs was for many years the president.

A eulogy of Judge Isaacs was delivered by Judge Samuel Greenbaum, who, Mr. Straus said, was best qualified to give it. He began by reminding his hearers that Myer S. Isaacs was a product of New York, born here and educated here. "He took life seriously," he went on to say. "There was little frivolity in it."

"There was scarcely a serious movement that had for its object the improvement of the Jew that he was not in one way or another identified with. Though much has been said in his praise, I feel that justice has not yet been done him. When the great tide of Russian immigrants flocked to this country some years ago he was one of the first to recognize the responsibility which rested upon us here in this city toward them, and he it was who some fifteen years ago projected the fair out of which was realized $125,000, the financial start of this splendid work."

"He was as faithful a Jew as he was a good American."

Others who spoke were Messrs. A. Abraham of Brooklyn, William C. Popper, and Augustus S. Solomons.

Emanuel M. Friend, the Lawyer, Dead.

Emanuel M. Friend, who was one of the best-known criminal lawyers in this city, died suddenly at his home, 28 Hamilton Terrace, yesterday. "Manny" Friend was the way his associates referred to him, and he was known all over town as "Manny."

He went to his office in the Pulitzer Building as usual yesterday morning, and after attending to a matter for one of his clients, called the attention of one of his clerks to the fact that there was a payment due on his life insurance. He signed a check for the amount due and asked the clerk to take the check to the insurance company's office. The clerk remarked that it might be just as well to send the check by mail, whereupon Mr. Friend jokingly answered:

"No, you'd better take it now, as I might drop dead this afternoon."

About noon he complained of feeling ill, adding that his health had been poor ever since he participated in the army manoeuvres at Manassas with his regiment, the Fourteenth. He left his office and went directly to his home and to his bed. His wife was about to send for a physician when he became unconscious. He died before the family physician arrived. His death, it was said, was due to heart disease.

Mr. Friend was born in New York fifty-one years ago. His parents were Bavarians. He was educated in the public schools here, and was graduated from the University of the City of New York. In 1879 he was admitted to the Bar, and practiced here ever after that.

Mr. Friend took an active part in politics, and at the time of his death was a member of the Tammany Hall General Committee. He was also a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Elks, B'nai B'rith, Free Sons of Israel, and several other societies and clubs. He leaves a wife and four children.

Alexander Newburger Dead.

Alexander Newburger, well known to followers of harness racing throughout the country and to members of the theatrical profession, died on Saturday at his home, in West Thirty-sixth street, after an illness of several weeks. His devotion to harness racing undoubtedly brought about his death, for on October 8, in the face of the protests of the members of his family, he started the trotters for the different events held on the Speedway under the auspices of the Road Drivers' Association, and as a result of the exposure contracted a cold, which proved fatal.

Mr. Newburger was born in Albany in 1840. He enlisted in the Fourth New York Cavalry at the outbreak of the Civil War and served throughout the struggle as a private. He was devoted to the sport of trotting horses.

His jewelry store in Broadway was much patronized by members of the theatrical profession. He owned a large diamond, which for years it was his custom to place on the picture of an actor or actress in the front window of the store on Broadway.

Borough of Brooklyn.

Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

Rev. Dr. Godfrey Taubenhau delivered a beautiful address to the children of the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum last Sabbath. He spoke touchingly of Abraham's grief at the death of Sarah, and exhorted those who had lost parents to put their trust in the Almighty.

Rev. Dr. Max Fried will preach at the Asylum to-morrow. Service begins at half-past three o'clock, precisely.

Ladies' Benevolent Society.

The Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Society of the Eastern District of Brooklyn celebrated the thirty-fourth anniversary of their organization by a sumptuous luncheon at Willoughby Mansion on October 27th. President Mrs. Julia Bacharach welcomed the one hundred and seventy-seven guests at 2 p. m., and the festivities lasted until five o'clock. Mrs. Fanny Dreflus, Chairman of the Investigation Committee, read a very gratifying report, from which it appeared that the society had 250 members, and had assisted 803 families during the past year with coal, unleavened bread, and $1,865 in cash. Much more money was needed, as there are 50,000 Jews in the Brooklyn Ghetto. Rabbi Benjamin, of Keap Street Temple, made an encouraging after-dinner address. Music and recitations were furnished by Miss Edna Rascovar, Miss Vaneer, and Miss Flora Phillips. Mrs. Ida Feldblum, President of the Hand-in-Hand Benevolent Society of Greenpoint, who was present as an invited guest, delivered an appreciative speech. All who were present were delighted with the excellent arrangements and with the artistic beauty of the Willoughby Mansion.

Temple Shaari Zedek.

At the Temple Shaari Zedek Dr. Taubenhau will speak this Friday evening on "The Jew in Politics," and Sabbath morning on "Abraham a Mourner."

Sisterhood of Shaari Zedek.

The banquet in celebration of the second anniversary of the existence of the Sisterhood of Shaari Zedek was very much enjoyed by all who attended it. The food, strictly Kosher, was relished, and the speeches were favorably received. Mr. Julius Levy, the Secretary of the Congregation, was toastmaster, and in suitable words he introduced the youthful president of the Sisterhood, who spoke sweetly and charmingly. She was followed by Dr. Taubenhau, who made a brief speech. Mr. M. Reiss, the President of the Congregation, then delivered an address in which he drew a picture of the woman in the Bible, and was favorably received. Mr. Saul, who represented the Young People's League, agreeably surprised the festive gathering by the statement that the League has in a short time acquired a large membership and that new applicants are continuously coming in. Mr. Dresner was very humorous and at times stirring in his remarks. Mr. Nussbaum, Mr. Benjamin, Mr. Frank and Mr. Brown made remarks which deserved the applause accorded to them; and Mr. Julius Levy closed the exercises with an oration that was classic.

After the banquet dancing was indulged in, in which the members of the Young People's League figured splendidly.

LAKEWOOD, N. J.

The Lenox Hotel under Jewish Management.

The Lenox, one of the noted hotels at Lakewood, N. J., is now owned by Mr. S. Weisskopf, who will conduct it in first-class style.

Mr. Weisskopf is well known to the public, having for many years managed a hotel at Rockaway Beach, where his reputation is firmly established. His many friends and patrons whom he has so hospitably served during the summer months will be glad to know that he has joined the hosts of the celebrated winter resort among the pines in Lakewood.

The Lenox is now open for the season, and, under Jewish management, bids fair to become more prominent than ever. The Lenox contains fifty rooms, single and en suite, elegantly furnished, many having steam heat, while others have open fireplaces. The hotel has been remodeled and renovated, and is now a model for comfort and recreation. There are baths, and all the conveniences of a city hotel.

The Lenox is located on the corner of Second Street and Lexington Avenue, and is built with the halls on the north and west sides, thus giving all the rooms a southern exposure.

With the sun parlors, music, billiard and reception rooms, and other attractions, The Lenox makes a perfect winter home.

The new management is noted for its cuisine and service. Guests may be assured of an excellent table, and such other accommodations that make a sojourn a perfect recreation and pleasure at most reasonable terms.

The Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of the United States and Canada.

A meeting of the Executive was held on October 26, at 99 Central Park West, President Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes in the chair.

The President reported that he is co-operating with Bishop Potter in an effort to induce the authorities to increase the moral teaching in the public schools. He also lent his support to an appeal to Secretary Hay, looking to the intervention of this government in behalf of peace between Russia and Japan.

Dr. Mendes' communication to the Conference of Orthodox Rabbis, together with their reply was carefully considered, and it was decided to arrange a series of meetings between the trustees of the downtown synagogues and this executive, in order that a closer union may be effected.

The Secretary's report dealt with the difficulties of our immigrant co-religionists in satisfying the Board of Health as to the ages of children prior to their employment in mercantile establishments, especially with reference to filing of certificates of birth, etc. An attempt will be made to have the synagogues keep a register of vital statistics.

The National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives at Denver, Col., having requested the Union to try to obtain a Sepher Torah for the use of the hospital, the Secretary was directed to endeavor to comply with this request, by addressing himself to the various synagogues, etc.

The disabilities under which Jewish students are continually laboring, through the setting of examinations, for dates which are Jewish holy days, was again considered. The Union has for several years sent out calendars giving the dates of our holy days. In spite of this some institutions have set examinations on those days. A serious difficulty occurred on last Yom Kippur. The Secretary was instructed to print an appeal and address it to the faculty of every institution, notifying them of the dates of the Jewish holy days, for the next ten years. Copies will also be sent to anyone interested upon application.

The donation of $25 towards the relief fund in aid of the sufferers through the Slocum disaster was approved.

Mr. Lucas reported his visits to Ellis Island and his investigation of the Immigration Bureau there, and also the successful result of his efforts in behalf of the family Sampan, for which the executive tendered him a special vote of thanks.

Jewish Endeavor Society.

The Society's Bible Classes are being conducted at the Educational Alliance, rooms 22-24, under the leadership of Mr. Abraham Hirschman of the Jewish Theological Seminary and Mr. Jacob Dolgenas, every Saturday evening at 8.30 p. m. The course is free of all expense to those who wish to take advantage of it. At the last directors' meeting, Mr. Henry P. Goldstein, chairman of the Lecture Committee, reported that the course of lectures for the season was arranged. The first lecture of the season will be held Sunday evening, November 6, at 8 p. m., at the Educational Alliance, room 42, Rev. Dr. Harris of Brooklyn lecturing on "Man, the Bible and the Jew." The society extends a cordial welcome to all who desire to attend.

The Sunday Schools are progressing. Miss Ida C. Mearson, principal of 186, Chrystie street, and Mr. Abraham Schepfer, principal of the other schools, gave very encouraging reports.

A members' meeting will be held Saturday evening, November 5, at 8 p. m., at the Educational Alliance, room 27, and as special and important business is to be discussed, the society requests all its members to attend.

Russian Passport Question.

The State Department at Washington has received a cablegram from the American embassy at St. Petersburg which warrants it in the assumption that the Russian government will soon agree to recognize passports of American Jews travelling in Russia.

Jews in the Russian Army.

M. Trepow, Governor of Taurida, recently attended the service at the Synagogue in Theodosia. At the close of the service he addressed the congregation to the following effect: In the ranks of the Russian Army there are Jews who, like the Russians, shed their blood and die for the fatherland. Many Jews have already distinguished themselves. Especially noteworthy is the heroic deed of the Jewish musicians of the 11th Regiment, who, during the fighting, did not cease playing, and when the chaplain of the regiment fell on being shot, assisted him until the regiment succeeded in breaking through the lines of the enemy and retreating. The Jewish musicians thereby saved the chaplain and the regiment from certain disaster. Continue to bring up your children in this spirit, and I shall be very glad if the rights of the Jews are more and more extended.

A Jewish Mayor of Cape Town.

Mr. H. Liberman, of the firm of Liberman & Buirski of Cape Town (South Africa), was elected Mayor of Cape Town for the current municipal year. He is the first Jew to whom that honor has been extended in the Cape Colony.

A New Musical Prodigy.

Musical critics in Berlin have been greatly stirred by the remarkable performances in that city of a boy violinist named Mischa Elman. The lad, who is twelve years old, says the Morning Leader correspondent, is the son of a poor Jewish schoolmaster, living at Stalnoje, in the Government of Kieff. His father gave him his first lesson on the violin, and discovering that he had talent, took him to Odessa, where, after enormous difficulties, he secured the boy's admission into the Imperial School of Music. Mischa made astounding progress, and renowned violinists who heard him play recognized that he was gifted to an extraordinary degree. He won laurels at St. Petersburg last winter, and has now come to Berlin to obtain the means of continuing his studies.

Death of M. Alphonse Hartog.

The death is announced in the nineteenth year of his age, of Alphonse Hartog, for nearly seventy years famous in London as a teacher of French, German and Hebrew. His eldest son was the famous Nunaa Hartog, first Jewish Senior Wrangler of Cambridge, England. His second son is Prof. Marcus Hartog, of Queen's College, Cork. One of his daughters is Madame Arsene Darmesteter. All his children have shown the possession of great artistic and literary talent.

Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Most acceptable is the announcement that "The Henrietta," the most famous of the Robson and Crane successes, is to be revived by the Proctor Stock Company at the Fifth Avenue Theatre next week.

Proctor's Twenty-third St. Theatre.

Plenty of good entertainment is promised for Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre for next week, where Edward Harrigan makes his vaudeville reappearance in a new sketch, D'Arcy McGlone John C. Rice and Sally Cohen offer a new sketch by Brandon Hurst, "All the World Loves a Lover."

Third Avenue Theatre.

The devotion of a mother to her son forms the groundwork of a graphic story that is depicted in the new comedy-drama, "The Wayward Son," which will appear at the Third Avenue Family Theatre next week.

No play dealing with melodramatic incidents ever "held the mirror up to nature" more accurately than does "The Wayward Son." A handsome and realistic stage equipment has been provided; also a splendid company, headed by Nell Twomey, the author of the play.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The Mellah of Marrakesh.

Mr. S. L. Bensusan, a co-religionist, recently published a very interesting work on Morocco. The immediate Jewish interest of the volume lies in the interesting description given of the Mellah (literally "salted place") of Morocco City.

"It is the dirtiest part of Marrakesh," says the author, "and, all things considered, the least interesting. The lanes that run between its high walls are full of indescribable filth; comparison with them makes the streets of Madinah and Kasbah almost clean.

"Being of the ancient race myself," says Mr. Bensusan, "I was received in several of the show-houses of the Mellah—places whose splendid interiors were not at all suggested by the squalid surroundings in which they were set."

The approaches were in every case disgusting, but the synagogues themselves were well kept, very old, and decorated with rare and curious memorial lamps, kept alight for the dead through the year of mourning. The benches were of wood, with straw mats for cover; there was no place for women, and the seats themselves seemed to be set down without attempt at arrangement.

The heads of the Mellah, says Mr. Bensusan, seem to be reluctant to lay out even a few shillings daily to have the place kept clean. The price paid in human life for this shocking neglect of the elementary decencies must, he thinks, be a heavy one.

tending to buyer or seller, can take note of all his servants are doing at the stores, and what is going out or coming in. Your merchant of the better class has commercial relations with Manchester or Liverpool, he has visited England and France; perhaps some olive-skinned, black-eyed boy of his has been sent to an English school to get the wider views of life and faith, and return to the Mellah to shock his father with both, and to be shocked in turn by much in the home life that passed uncriticized before.

Mr. Bensusan, to whom we should be grateful for this glimpse into what is the darkest Africa on the Jewish map, tells us that the best class of Jew in the Mellah has ideas and ideals, but outside the conduct of his business he lacks initiative. His case, Mr. Bensusan fears, is quite a hopeless one. But the attention of philanthropy, he adds, might well turn to the little ones. "For their sake, (Continued on page 11.)"

Calf of the Quartier Latin.

This is the legend of the Calf of the Latin Quarter, as it was told me one day, after a good dinner, by a most respectable, old Jewish gentleman. The legend refers to the days when there were to be found students who studied—days long since gone by:

"In those days there were students who really studied—I am not humbugging you—and who were happy enough to be really poor. On Sunday they went, in a body, to the country—then really in existence—or to the various fairs in the neighborhood of Paris. Thus it was that one day, five students and one grisette found themselves standing before a "try-your-luck" table at the fair of Saint Cloud.

"They had clubbed all their money—which amounted to exactly three francs and three sous—and had been, for four hours, wandering about the fair, undecided what to do with their united capital, when the grisette proposed that they should buy a ticket in the lottery.

"The ticket cost ten sous, and the first prize was a young calf, whose white hide was the symbol of his innocence and whose face looked sweetly intelligent.

"A great discussion ensued, during which two of the students—those who had contributed the three sous—very nearly left the rest. At last all was arranged. They bought the ticket and, after ten minutes of anxious suspense, the grisette won the calf.

"The first wild moments of joy having passed the students found themselves somewhat embarrassed, but the grisette undertook to lead the calf. The weather was warm and she had tied over her arm her straw bonnet ornamented with imitation wild-flowers. The calf followed her docilely, nibbling the bonnet.

"At six that night they reached the Latin Quarter, which in those days was a district where students lived. The band politely introduced the calf to all their friends who were at that moment taking their evening absinthe.

"It was a triumph! They escorted the animal to all the various monuments of the Quarter. It was too late that night to mount the cupola of the Pantheon, but they promised to take him there next day. He was obviously touched by their kindness.

"Then they organized, at a cook shop in the Rue Saint Jacques, a feast in honor of the calf, who presided, seated next to his mistress. He ate salad, while his friends chanted the national air: "Lo, the Veal and the Salad!" Then they invited him to drink wine. At first he refused energetically, but at the end of a quarter of an hour of argument and persuasion he was observed to cast amorous glances at his neighbor. Then he was plied with toasts. In the end, losing his equilibrium and all his dignity, he slid under the table and slept.

"To freshen him up a bit they gave him strong coffee to drink and he sucked up about two quarts. He then behaved very well, but for the fact that when he got outside he noticed a stout old gentleman who was smiling dierespectfully. He butted that old gentleman in the stomach and knocked him down. A tall, lean lady (who accompanied the stout old gentleman) uttering piercing cries, fell on the calf, and dealt him violent blows with her umbrella. The grisette threw herself on the group to defend the calf, and the students joined to defend the grisette. It was a horrible melee; they writhed in a great struggle.

"To soothe the injured feelings of the calf they made him drink, successively, absinthe, lemonade, rum-punch and aniseed-liqueur, to such an extent that the unhappy calf was unwell on the public highway. The grisette, who had vainly striven to induce him to drink temperately, fled home, veiling her face. A young art-student took the calf to his lodgings and put him to bed there.

"During the following days the calf, restored to his original sobriety, posed in the atelier of the art-student and soon became one of the most popular personages in the Latin Quarter.

"When he had finished his day's work—for he had definitely chosen the career of a model—he went down to Boulevard Michel, accompanied by his friends and his master. It gave great joy to the hoodlums, but perplexed the peaceable citizens, to see the calf in company with the joyous art students, take his absinthe on the pavement outside a cafe, whence he regarded, with melancholy abstraction, the laughing grisettes passing by. Perhaps they revived vague memories of the heifers gambolling on the green.

"He soon acquired the reputation of a past master in the art of tipping and of an inveterate smoker. Often, about five or six o'clock in the morning, after a riotous night, he mounted up stairs with the students, whom he never quitted, to visit their friends. One of the painters would knock sharply.

"Who's there?" the drowsy inmate would ask.

"Open the door. Quick!"

"And the friend, half-asleep, would open the door. Then would the calf bound in, upset the furniture, tear the clothes, and wind up by jumping on the bed to caress the frightened friend.

"Sometimes they stopped an omnibus and tried to make him mount to the imperial, to the great alarm of the passengers and the stupefaction of the conductor who would go into blue rages; while the calf, who could not approve of such unfair ostracism, looked placidly and resignedly at the angry official.

"One night, at two in the morning—what funny things are said in English!—the art students who bore a natural grudge against all the janitors in the Rue Monsieur le Prince, shut the calf up in the corridor of the house. The too-confiding animal, finding himself deserted in that unknown and dark place, set himself to weep and lament with so much power and persistence that, next morning, the janitor's wife was found dead from fright in her bed. Her husband was so stupefied with terror that the police naturally concluded he had murdered his wife. So he was guillotined. So there were two concierges less in the world.

In short, the life of the calf would have been the pleasantest and most useful in the world if he had not felt himself forced to sustain his reputation as a toper. This made him ill. He knew it well and strove to restrict himself in the matter of drinks—but how could he refuse to take a glass with his friends? This was all the more difficult since, when he refused, they poured the liquor down his throat in order to have the pleasure of watching him roll his eyes in astonishment and bob his handsome head up and down.

"So he drank more and more until he lost all appetite. His muzzle grew wine-colored; his physiognomy grew brutal. He became as lean as the customers of a cheap restaurant. Thoughts of suicide haunted him, and he tried several times to smash his skull against the trees of the Boulevard Michel. But his skull was hard and the trees broke or bent. The frightened police dared not arrest him as they should have done according to Clause 445, Section 446, of the Code.

"At last the long-foreseen end came. The calf was seized with nervous trembling and his shaking legs refused to support him. He had to remain in his straw bed where the painters left him in quiet. Following the advice of a young medical student, who recognized the first symptoms of delirium tremens, they gave him only pure water to drink. But the calf, consumed by thirst, crawled about in search of liquor; and, having found a can full of turpentine, he upset it and lapped the strong liquid from the floor.

"When the students returned they beheld a horrible spectacle. Crouched in a dark corner of the studio—all his four legs shaking; his eyes, enlarged by mad terror, staring wildly; his imagination doubtless producing all the frightful apparitions which druggards see defile before them—was the calf. Suddenly he strove to stand on his hind legs as if to ward off the bite of some frightful monster. Then he cantered around the atelier as though trying to escape pursuit or, perhaps, trampling on some enemy. Anon, he stopped before the passage, his eyes wet with tears. One could guess that he reviewed sweet and placid scenes of his infancy—meadows watered by rippling streams under the shadows of branchy trees in which the nightingales sang. His features assumed a look of angelic sweetness; he lay down as he used to do in the green grass, and rolled, with eyes half-shut in enjoyment.

"All at once a spasm seized him; he remained there (his legs in the air) shaken by rapid tremors. Then he reeled, motionless, his head fallen back, his tongue hanging from between his smiling lips, his limbs stiff. He was dead.

"The students were overwhelmed. Nevertheless, one of them made a rapid sketch of the departed one as he lay, beautiful in death. In a corner, the conciierge wept, while a little Italian model crossed himself and piously said his prayers.

"Thus died, in the flower of his youth—primavera della vita—the victim of intemperance and bad advice, that calf whom the chances of life had set in a proud position rarely attained by his species.

"The police forbade the public and solemn funeral his friends wished to give him. So his flesh was sold to a keeper of a cheap cook-shop and his hide was made into satchels which were given as souvenirs to his friends."

Tribute to the Jews.

The Keokuk (Ia.) Gate City of the 11th Inst. reports the following reference to Jews by Evangelist Sunday in the course of a "revival" series of meetings held in the Tabernacle of that city:

The highest mark of eloquence of the whole series of meetings was reached Sunday afternoon in a tribute to the Jews. It was made more emphatic by Mr. Sunday turning to the press table and saying:

"Get all this down; I want everybody to know I believe it."

The direction to take down verbatim what Mr. Sunday says when aroused to the top notch reminded the press table of Mark Twain's setting a dog on a jack rabbit—but a taste of this special thing is as follow:

"I want to pay my respect to the Jews. Every drop of blood in my body boils when I hear a Jew called a 'sheeny' or other opprobrious epithet. The Jews are the greatest and oldest nationality on the face of the earth. Other nations have risen and fallen and changed, but the Jews are the same now as six thousand years ago, and they will remain for a thousand years more, because they are God's chosen people. You never saw a Jew among the hoboes and weary Willes. There are fewer criminals among the Jews than any other race or nation. * * * Where is the soil or nation not reddened with their blood? But I thank God that I am an American and the hand of America has never been turned against the Jews, but beneath the Stars and Stripes he can find a home and a resting place.

"The hand of God has written the doom of many a nation because of their persecution of the Jews. That little Japanese nation is to-day writing the Mene Mene, Tekel, Upharsin of Russia because of the persecution of the Jews there."

There is the most remarkable strike now being carried on against the Macbeth-Evans Glass Company, the chimney makers of Pittsburgh, probably not equalled by any in folly and so against the interest of their men. The company have employed a large force, many of whom have been with them for twenty to thirty years, but in this time the union has fallen into the hands of the worst element, and the most odious forms of limitations put on the company's plants, and the earning capacity of the men kept down in the most amazing manner by the iron heel of "persuasion." Men in these factories have been earning from four to six dollars per day, "limited"—they are capable of earning five to nine dollars per day. The company have had all of their improvements, which are very extensive, nullified by the "limiting" process—until the limit of their forbear-

So it has gone on and on until the product is increased in cost beyond what it should be; every new facility nullified, if possible completely; the best equipped plant in the world is pulled down to the level of the poorest; every improvement is fought over; the best workman is kept down to the level of the poorest, his freedom gone, he must not even talk to employers.

The Late Emanuel M. Friend.

We have to record, with the greatest regret, the sudden death of Emanuel M. ("Manny") Friend, one of the most prominent and successful of the members of the New York Bar.

His name was synonymous with all the good qualities which are peculiarly characteristic of the Jew. His ability and shrewdness won him a high place in his profession. His good-humor, kindness, ready sympathy and bonhomie gained him hosts of warm friends and admirers!

For many years, he has been a prime favorite with the readers of this paper. He was the author of the amusing and characteristic series of letters known as the "Yokefle Possemacher Breefe" which depicted, in the most humorous way, the inner life and thoughts of the large circle of old-fashioned foreign Jews of the last generation which emigrated within the memory of all of us, from the East Side to the more fashionable residential quarters. They bore with them their old point of view, and the contrast between their new environment and their old habits of thought was always limned with the most refreshing wit and humor. The letters were written in the Bavarian Jewish dialect which was admirably handled by the deceased humorist.

His latest contribution appears in this issue. THE HEBREW STANDARD unites with his many admirers in respectfully tendering to his sorrowing widow and children the assurances of its profound sympathy and heart-felt condolences.

Trust Magnates Raise Their Old Parrot Cry.

"We now hear again the same old parrot cry that the business interests of the country cannot be entrusted to the keeping of one-half of its people, and that their chosen representative, whoever he may be, is the enemy of thrift and industry."

"And that cry wells up from the throats of men whose interest it is to preserve untouched the statutes which permit them to collect tribute from the people, or who are interested in combinations organized to prevent competition."

-Alton B. Parker.

NO PARALLEL IN WORLD FOR SKILL OF WORKMEN.

"The world does not furnish a parallel for the skill of our workmen. The inventive genius of our people is unequalled. It has so developed labor-saving machinery as to cheapen the cost of production. What we need to do is to cultivate foreign markets for manufactured products, thus enabling our mills to run to their full capacity, thereby securing steady employment for our workmen."-Alton B. Parker.

The Jewish Wife.

ויבאה יצחק האהלה שרה אמו ויצחק אחרי אמו

"And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent and took her to be his wife; and he loved her; and Isaac was comforted after his mother."

Genesis xxiv, 67.

In the Midrash, Bereshith Rabbah, there is a famous comment on this passage which shows how homely good sense and quiet poetical feeling were ever present in the speculations of our fathers on the teachings of the Bible. The comment runs thus:

"And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent." During all Sarah's life-time the Cloud of Glory was bound to the door of her tent; when Sarah died, the cloud disappeared, but when Rebekah came it returned. During all Sarah's life-time there was always a blessing on the dough; when Sarah died, this blessing disappeared; but when Rebekah came it returned. During all Sarah's life-time the lamp burned from Sabbath-eve to Sabbath-eve; when Sarah died, this lamp disappeared; but when Rebekah came it returned."

So Isaac took Rebekah to his mother's tent, and she was his wife, and he loved her and was comforted for the loss of his mother. That is the true place for a Jewish wife—in the tent of her husband's soul where his mother dwelt. It is not merely the spouse that the Jewish husband honors, it is the womanhood and motherhood, as well as the sweet-heart, that he loves in her. No Jewish wife occupies her true place in the home unless the husband sees more in her than the beauty and grace of the young girl whose winsomeness first fixed his roving bachelor gaze.

But when the wife occupies her right place, then shall the Glory of God cling to the door-posts of her home. Outside are the world and its strife and bitterness and falsity; inside are the peace of God, the glory of domestic purity, the tenderness and charm of paternity. The Jewish home is a Temple of love and self-sacrifice, and the Jewish wife is the adored priestess of that temple.

Then a "blessing rests on the dough." From the dry handfuls of flour is fabricated the large, wholesome, life-sustaining loaf. With the little at her disposal the Jewish wife produces the much that is sustaining and health-giving. Her domestic knowledge, her watchfulness, her economy, her deftness make the family income sufficient. She is the Magician who performs the daily miracle of clothing, feeding and nourishing the family on the income that would scarce suffice for the bachelor extravagances of the man.

And "the Lamp burns from Sabbath-Eve to Sabbath-Eve," in the home where dwells the Jewish Wife. The Light of Religion—i. e., of purity and modesty and love—burns all the time in such a home. Every day is as the Sabbath; every hour is a prayer to God. Speech is clean and thought is pure; the home is clean, materially, morally and spiritually. There are no evil corners; there are no noxious vermin; there is no untidiness, no discomfort in the home where a Rebekah takes a Sarah's place. It is of such a Jewish wife that our Sages thought when they said:

אשת טובה ביתה ליהיה אשת טובה ביתה ליהיה "A good wife is God's good gift to her husband."

Next Tuesday's Task.

בחרו לכם היום את מי תעבדון... ואנכי וכיתי נעבד את ה'

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve: whether the gods that your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the Eternal.—(Joshua, xxiv, 15.)"

This quotation is from the last charge of Joshua to the tribes of Israel when he gathered them all in Shechem to deliver his farewell admonition before his death. Without irreverence it may be said that the dying leader's adjuration applies literally to every Jew who will cast his vote next Tuesday. The casting of a ballot at a Presidential election should, by every sane, reputable American be regarded as a solemn, portentous—nay, a holy—act. For you thereby choose the side you will espouse for yourself "and your house."

Will you vote for the gods of your fathers "on the other side of the ocean?" Will you cast your ballot in favor of the gods of the "Amorites"—emori in Hebrew seems to be etymologically connected with the tribe of "babblers" or "spouters"—among whom you dwell? Or will you select the Eternal God of Justice and Right? You will vote for "the Eternal?" Good! Here are the two parties. With which, think you, stands Eternal right?

THE PARTIES.

The Republican party stands for extravagant National expenditure.

It is responsible for a horde of leeches sucking the blood of the nation.

It stands for corruption—if only the corruption bred of long-continued tenure of office and of the desperate desire to retain office.

It stands for that immoral policy of national spoliation called a High Tariff.

It stands for that absurd and mischievous outcome of childish national vanity known as Imperialism.

It stands for that menacing product of our local conditions known as The Trusts—the worst and most dangerous instrument of tyranny and oppression a republic can encounter.

The Democratic party stands pledged to a reduced and reasonable national expenditure.

It stands strenuously and radically opposed to Imperialism and the race hatreds and national enmities the word implies.

It has ever been opposed to a high tariff and all the national and social evils the monster brings in its train.

It is dignified by the unrelenting hatred of the trusts and has thoroughly earned that animosity. It can be trusted to add fuel to the fire of that feeling if the chance be afforded it.

It will bring to office a determination to reform abuses and to give this country a clean administration. It has stood before the people so long for these reforms that it can be trusted to enforce them.

THE MEN.

Now, regard the two men who are the nominees of these two parties for the Presidency of this country. Each is a fitting representative of his party, and it is only in that capacity that I contrast them. I verily believe that each, in his private capacity, is a true man, a worthy specimen of the American citizen.

THE REPUBLICAN.

Roosevelt is now the creature of the Trusts. They opposed him bitterly when he was in active politics. They were afraid of him and "kicked him upstairs" into the harmless obscurity of the Vice-Presidency.

The act of a crazy assassin gave him the chief office of this country. He created the Department of Commerce and Labor and put his private secretary Cortelyou at its head. The new department gathered all the information that would enable it to prosecute the trusts. Roosevelt did not prosecute. But Cortelyou is now managing his electoral campaign, the funds for which are notoriously supplied by the trusts. Is it necessary to put the charge here implied in plain terms?

Well, then, here it is: Roosevelt is believed to be politically blackmailing the Trusts in the interests of the Republican Party!

Roosevelt is the champion, almost the inventor of Imperialism. Remember how he manœuvred that canal business!

Roosevelt's administration has been the most extravagant this country ever had.

Roosevelt at one time was a Cobdenite free-trader. Now he stands for the high tariff. Think, for a moment, what a high protective tariff means!

A High Tariff is the Favorite Weapon of Uncivilized and Tyrannous Governments.

You know this to be true. For most of you have fled to this country to escape the evil government of the lands of your birth. But did you ever ask yourself why Russia, for instance, is so fond of a high tariff? It is because: The government can bleed the workers and producers at a hundred pores so deftly that their victims scarcely know what ails them. They only know that life is robbed of all real joy for them.

A High Tariff is Unprogressive.

The most "protected" country in the world was China. The Chinese were logical. They excluded all foreign persons as well as foreign products. We are not so logical. We keep out the Chinese, but we hug to our hearts the ideals of the Chinese. The Chinese are noted for their contempt of human life. So are we. The Chinese got to fancy that all the civilization and enlightenment in the world were centered in their own country. We have nearly the same notion. The Chinese thought that all other nations regarded their country with awe and admiration. We think the same of ourselves. It is true we have not yet attained to the sublimity of many of the Chinese ideals, but there is always hope that, with the aid of high tariffs, we shall yet reach those "Celestial" heights.

A High Tariff is Wasteful.

It means that the actual cost of conducting the government of this country is concealed from those who provide the money.

It means that the goods produced by favor of a high tariff are sold much more cheaply abroad than you can buy them here. You know this is true. It has often been proved.

Its final effect is to reduce the purchasing power of your dollar by one-half. If you earn $20 a week and can only buy $10 worth of goods with your wages, are you better off than if you earned $16 a week and could buy to the full value?

A High Tariff is Immoral.

It means the robbing of the masses of the people for the benefit of a few, sharp, unscrupulous despoilers of the poor.

It means a premium on perjury and smuggling, and, in consequence, necessitates the maintenance of a horde of customs officers and examiners, with their inevitable satellites, armies of detectives, spies and informers.

It means not only an army of spies and informers in our own land, but in every foreign country where an American consulate exists.

It is an admission by all of us that "robbing Peter to pay Paul" leads to the Penitentiary when it is the act of one man; but that a whole people may perform that financial operation and go unpunished.

It is an impious denial of God's best gifts to all in favor of a few.

THE DEMOCRAT.

Parker is a man of unblemished public career. What he stands for today he has always stood for. His record is clean, consistent and honorable. He was Chief Justice of New York State. The nomination for the Presidency sought him. He did not seek it. He is the deliberate choice of a great party seeking for a man whose character, career and attainments would recommend him to a majority of electors as fit to be President over seventy millions of free people.

No temptation has induced him, or can induce him, to utter an undignified or even an exaggerated word against his opponents.

He has brought the rudder of a gentleman, the scholar and the religious man into the turbid stream of politics and is steering his bark in a way that leaves a clean, clear wake behind. He stands for God's Justice and Righteousness in a dignified and worthy man.

Surely, the DEMOCRATIC PARTY and ALTON B. PARKER should receive the vote of every Jew Next Tuesday.

How Foreign Trade Cannot Be Acquired

"Foreign trade cannot be won by a people which consent to put itself into the leading strings of second childhood."

"It cannot become the heritage of manufacturers who must be paid a bounty in order that they may oust their own countrymen. It is not to be won by selling at home at prohibitive prices which check consumption and thus lessen production, merely that products made by the same workmen in the same factories may be sold, with freight paid thousands of miles away, for a fifth, a quarter or a third less."

-Alton B. Parker.

THAT MIGHT MAKES RIGHT

THE REPUBLICAN IDEA.

"The Republican party record for the past few years has been the embodiment of the idea that might makes right and that the end justifies the means whatever they may be—a record which has represented a complete departure from cherished traditions and precedents and which has indicated complete intolerance of legal and constitutional restraint."-Alton B. Parker.

The German Theatre.

Mr Heinrich Conried, the manager of the Irving Place Theatre, is certainly deserving in the highest degree of the approbation of his German fellow-citizens in this city. His efforts in behalf of the maintenance of a high standard of the German drama in this country have won for him the unusual distinction of marked appreciation of the German-speaking population of Europe, who have recognized his efforts by the conferring of distinguished honors upon him. The Germans of the city of New York should not lag behind in their appreciation of the excellent efforts of Mr. Conried, and it seems to us that it behooves them to see to it that the German theatre of this city should be placed upon such a footing as will ensure its permanence.

Mr. Conried has devoted himself with an energy almost unique, and a zeal most remarkable, to maintain a theatre for the Germans in this city. If it had not been for his efforts, it is not too much to say that the German Theatre in New York would long since have been a thing of the past. Of all the directors who have had charge of the various German theatres, Mr. Conried has shown himself to be the most able, the most capable, and the most responsive to the demands of those who are devoted to the German drama. He has brought over to his theatre the best talent which the theatrical market of Europe affords, and on his part has shown himself to be a man thoroughly understanding the wants of a high class German playhouse. It behooves the Germans in New York—who in numbers nearly equals the population of the largest cities of Germany and Austria—to come forward and build a theatre for Mr. Conried in a location more central than the present one, and endow it in some way that its permanency may be assured. The Germans of New York ought to take a pride in securing the establishment and success of at least one Temple of the Drama devoted to so high a degree as the Irving Place Theatre has been to the presentation of German plays. Besides, Mr. Conried deserves at least this recognition from so large a community of his German fellow citizens in the greatest city of the American Continent.

W. A. G.

PRESENT PATH IS FULL OF DANGER FOR FUTURE.

"Our return to old-fashioned ways cannot, in my opinion, be too precipitate, unless we are prepared to shut our eyes to the consequences that will follow if we proceed further along a path that is full of danger to our future."

"We need what patriotism, devotion to principle and high moral ideals have until late always given us—a government of law and constitutional restraint and not of caprice or reckless adventure."—Alton B. Parker.

Man in the Observatory.

XLVIII.

Mr. Oscar S. Straus is a man who is always in the "public eye." He is held in high esteem, and is generally sought by newspaper interviewers upon the happening of any important event for an expression of an opinion.

Mr. Straus was educated in Georgia, his parents having for a long time resided in Alabama before they came to New York. His father, LEONARD STRAUS, established in this city many years ago, the firm of L. Straus & Sons, probably the largest China and Glass-ware house in the world, of which firm Mr. Oscar S. Straus is a member and actively engaged in its business.

Mr. Straus enjoys the unique distinction of having been appointed Minister to Turkey by a Democratic Administration, and by reason of the excellent manner in which he discharged his duties, was again appointed to the same place by a Republican Administration. Not only did Mr. Straus discharge his duties and care for the interests of his country so well as to merit the approbation of both the administrations under which he served, but he enjoyed, as well, in the highest degree the confidence and esteem of the Turkish government.

Mr. Straus is a man of high intellectual attainments. He entered Columbia College and received the Degree of LL. B. in 1873; Brown University conferred the Degree of LL. D. upon him in 1896; Washington and Lee University in 1897, and the Pennsylvania University in 1898.

Mr. Straus also enjoys the distinguished of being a permanent member of the Court of Arbitration at the Hague, to which he was appointed in place of the late President Harrison.

Mr. Straus has been a member of many important Committees and Commissions, among which was that of the Indian Commission, appointed by Mr. Roosevelt while Governor of the State of New York; of the Commission to Investigate New York Public Schools; of the Commission to investigate Pauper Insane Institutions, in all of which he rendered valuable services.

Mr. Straus has also found time to devote himself to literary work, and amongst those published are: "The Origin of the Republican Form of Government in the United States," 1885; "Roger Williams, the Pioneer of Religious Liberty," 1904; "The Development of Religious Liberty in the United States," 1896; "Reform in the Consular Service," 1898; "The Protection of Naturalized Citizens," 1900; "Our Diplomacy," 1902; "The American Doctrine of Citizenship," 1904.

Mr. Straus is also identified with many philanthropic and communal organizations.

The Mirror.

I clip the following startling item of news from the columns of a Springfield, Mass., paper of 25th ulto:—

Samuel Jacobson, another Jew peddling without a license, had his case placed upon file in the police court yesterday. This is the second Jew peddler caught in unlawful peddling within a week to be released. John Kelliher, for assault upon Walter Hetzler, was fined $5 and also $3 for drunkenness. Walter Hetzler was fined $5 for assault. Bartholomew Campbell was sent to jail for one month for assaulting his wife and fined $1 for drunkenness. For a similar offense Wesley Dumas was sentenced to three months, and Vincent Rabish and James McCormick to one month each in jail, two were fined $11 each and three $5 each. One assault case was continued.

It is obvious that the worst case tried at the Springfield police-court on last Monday week was that of Samuel Jacobson the "other Jew peddler" caught peddling without a license. It must have been the gravity of the offense which forced the editor reluctantly to mention the offender's religious belief.

It is to be noted that John Kelliher was fined $10 for drunkenness and assault. His name sounds Irish and he may be a Roman Catholic. Walter Hetzler, who was fined $5 for assault, has a German name and may be a Lutheran. Bartholomew Campbell may be of Massachusetts breed and Wesleyan or Baptist. He 'hammered' his wife and had both to pay a fine and go to jail.

Wesley Dumas, whose names should be 'mutually exclusive,' had to serve three months for wife-beating, but we are left to guess his religion. Vincent Rabish may be a Slav or Pole and, consequently, Roman Catholic. James McCormick may be Scotch or North-Irish and consequently Presbyterian. These last two were also wife-beaters. Five others, unnamed, were fined.

Now, since the Springfield editor felt impelled to mention religion only in the case of the unlicensed peddlers, it is evident that he regards the offense, comparatively, as of so serious a nature as to reflect on the moral and ethical value of the religious tenets professed by the offenders. A Massachusetts editor ought to know what he is about!

Drunkenness, assault, and wife-beating are misdemeanors. True, they may lead by imperceptible gradations to burglary, arson, rape, murder and so on, up to 'peddling without a license.' But until the latter enormity has been perpetrated, the Massachusetts editor refrains from all reference to religious belief. By the way, what I am really curious about is the religion of that Springfield editor. Will he oblige me by informing me what is the faith professed by so liberal, unprejudiced, judicious, and fair-minded a man?

What a noble use Rabbi Leonard Levy is making of his recently increased salary of $12,000 per annum. He is reported as contributing $100 per annum, to the "Pennsylvania Sabbath School Fund." Let not my readers start in alarm and amazement! These are Christian Sabbath Schools, and their pupils will be carefully taught the Christian view of "Jesus and the Jews." Rabbi Levy should at once get another increase in salary from the Pittsburghers.

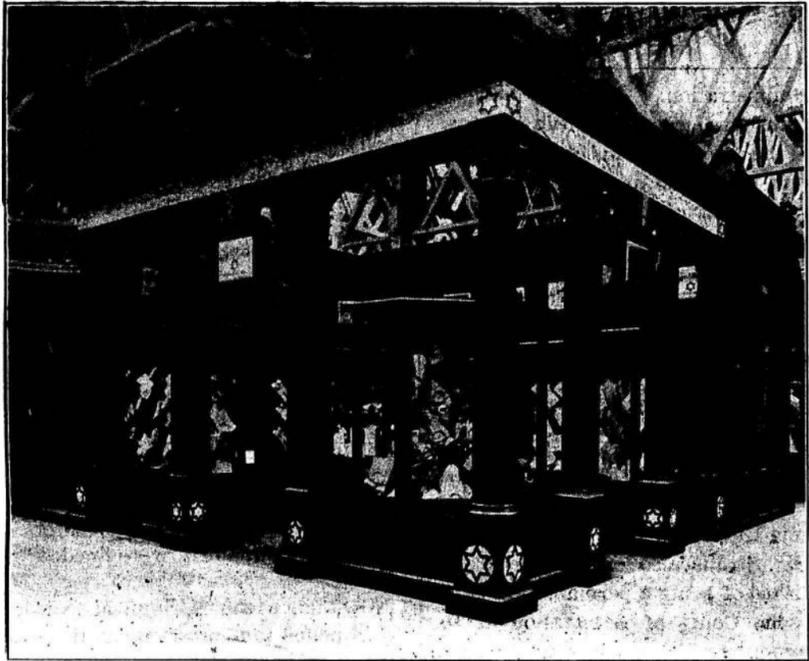

I am half reluctant to give Brother Levy the recognition that is his due for this noble act of self-denying generosity. I fear that Rabbi Levy will be swamped with applications from every form of Christian, Mohammedan, Buddhist, and other religions for subscriptions in aid of their missionary or teaching activities. Doubtless he will respond cheerfully, or be amenable to the charge of inconsistency.

Of course no Jewish movement for educating Jewish children will apply to Levy for aid. All the necessary Jewish Schools have long ago been established and are amply endwed and generously maintained. Otherwise, it is inconceivable that a Jewish rabbi, even a Reformer, would deem it his duty to support a Christian missionary movement! Can it be that Levy approves of the teachings in Christian Sabbath Schools? He is not likely to

A Star Exhibit at the World's Fair.
 One of the most interesting exhibits at the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., is the display of Hutchinson, Pierce & Co., manufacturers of the celebrated "Star" shirts, etc. It is located in the Manufacturers' Building and has evoked admiration from all who have seen it. We reproduce in the accompanying illustration the elaborate show case in which the exhibit is made as it appears in the World's Fair, and which will be placed selected materials, many being of the finest Parisian silks which were purchased for the purpose by Mr. George S. Brown, who has been with the firm for thirty-five years and who procured the finest goods in the markets of Europe, which he visited, and chose the products of the best looms in America for this remarkable exhibit of the shirt manufacturer's art.

 The exhibit appeals to every visitor to the World's Fair—to the men and boys in the spacious show rooms of the Hutchinson, Pierce Co. at 842 to 846 Broadway, N. Y., after the close of the Fair.

The exhibit consists of an elegant variety of "Star" shirts, including dress shirts and negligees, "Star" waists for boys, blouses, etc., all made from especially who wear "Star" shirts and "Star" waists and to the women who have purchased them and know their intrinsic values, and who appreciate the beauty of the array of the rich fabrics that are manufactured into such admirable garments as "Star" shirts have always been for the last sixty years, representing the highest development of shirt-making, and which have never been surpassed either in this country or foreign lands. The exhibit at the World's Fair attests the popularity of not only "Star" shirts, but has proclaimed the manufacturers as enterprising, public spirited, and proud of their record of more than a half century in making "Star" shirts famous as they are in every section of this great country.

The Brooklyn Valet.
 "The Brooklyn Valet" is not an opera or a melodrama, but it is a practical, successful business institution, a blessing to mankind.
 "The Brooklyn Valet" is the name of an enterprise established in 1894 in Brooklyn, and has recently opened a branch in Manhattan at 204 West One Hundred and Sixteenth Street. "The Brooklyn Valet" takes care of your wardrobe, its purpose being to give particular attention to gentlemen's outer wearing apparel; in other words, you may have your clothes cleaned, pressed and repaired as often as you please for $16 a year, payable in quarterly sums of four dollars.

A boy in livery will call regularly or by special request for clothing, and in the quickest possible manner your trousers, overcoat or suits are sponged cleaned, repaired and pressed, being delivered as called for promptly and in order.

Special attention will be given to see that garments are returned in proper and orderly shape. Not dishevelled and wrinkled as tailors often deliver goods.
 "The Brooklyn Valet" employs only the best and highest priced tailor help. Its quarters are clean and free from odors and other disagreeable elements found in cheap tailoring establishments.

Customers of "The Brooklyn Valet" are supplied with a case for their clothes, which will be called for at their residence every week and returned the same day, if necessary, in good condition.

In short, "The Brooklyn Valet" represents the modern methods of business applied to tailoring. It embodies all the advanced ideas of respectability, gentility and style, and combines these with the extra advantage of superb service, and effecting a decided economy.

At the prices you have formerly paid tailors for such work, you will readily see the advantage offered by having your name placed on "The Brooklyn Valet's" books. It is no experiment, but a successfully demonstrated system of business that has the approval and commendation of four thousand customers in Brooklyn—business men, professional men, and men in all trades who are particular about the appearance of their clothing.

 Testimonials from the most prominent men in public and commercial life are furnished by "The Brooklyn Valet," which is now at the service of New York's citizens. Their handsome store at 204 West One Hundred and Sixteenth Street is open for inspection, and where courtesies will be extended in explaining in detail the advantages offered by "The Brooklyn Valet"—whose three stores in Brooklyn are located at 109 Montague Street, Flatbush Avenue and Sterling Place, and Bedford Avenue, corner Fulton Street.

We present to our readers the portrait of Samuel Cohen, the proprietor of "The Brooklyn Valet."

Mr. Cohen is a graduate of Public School No. 4 of this city, and was for many years in the employment of A. H. King & Co., 627-629 Broadway, and, later, with the London and Liverpool Clothing Company.

On January 7, 1894, he married Miss Sarah Levy, of Brooklyn. Mr. Cohen then decided to embark in business for himself. A native of New York City, he determined to establish a business in Brooklyn. A friend advanced him $200, and with that amount he opened a tailoring shop at 47 Sands Street, Brooklyn. "While you wait" became the watchword of the business. The expression was new in Brooklyn, as it was elsewhere—Mr. Cohen having originated the phrase. It brought trade. One customer introduced another. His business increased rapidly; and the idea of keeping clothes pressed and in condition for wear, by the year, without trouble to the customer, occurred to him, and "The Brooklyn Valet" was born.

"The Brooklyn Valet" is a healthy infant. Three thousand customers are regularly served in Brooklyn. It is no exaggeration to say that it is the most popular business in the City of Churches.

Mr. Cohen is prominent in social, religious and fraternal circles, being identified with the following societies: Cambria Lodge F. & A. M. No. 622, F. & A. M. Cassal Lodge F. & A. M., Brooklyn Lodge No. 22, B. P. O. E., Harlem Lodge, K. of P. He is a member of Beth Israel Congregation, corner Boerum place and State street, and Superintendent of the Sabbath School; the Hebrew Benevolent Society, Brooklyn Jewish Hospital, the Chevra Novi Zadek, Beth Israel Literary League, and the Independent Order Sons of Benjamin.

some of the material benefits of modern knowledge should be brought to Jewry in Marrakesh. Schools are excellent, but children cannot live by school learning alone."

Mr. Bensusan once asked a Moor why the Jews were so despised and ill-treated all over the country. "The worthy man explained that the Koran declares that no True Believer might take Jew or Christian to be his friend, that the veracious book also assures the Faithful that Jews will be turned to pigs or monkeys for their unbelief, and that the metamorphosis will be painful." There was another reason, viz., that "one of these cursed people tried to seize the throne in the time of the great Taflatta," and the Moor proceeded to narrate how a Jew, who had been Wazeer to the Sultan Mulal Rashed II., concealed the death of his master, and seized the throne, and how the scribes (Tolba) murdered him for his usurpation. In commemoration of this event the Feast of Scribes is said to be held at Marrakesh and Fez. But Mr. Bensusan remarks that he cannot find any confirmation of this story in Moorish historians. No record to which he had access tells of a Jewish King of Taza, though there was a Hebrew in high favor there in the time of Rasheed II.—London Jewish Chronicle.

A Chief Rabbi Knighted

The King of Roumania has conferred a knighthood on Chief Rabbi Tauber, of Bucharest, in recognition of his services in the furtherance of science and education.

Simon Not a Peer.

From Berlin comes the statement that the rumor that the Emperor has called Herr James Simon to the Herrenhaus (House of Peers) is unfounded, and that Herr Simon has received the Wilhelm Order. This Order, according to the Times correspondent in Berlin, was recently instituted. Herr Simon has presented to the Kaiser Friedrich Museum in Berlin, which the Emperor (who holds him in high esteem and has met him frequently) opened on Tuesday, works of art of the Renaissance period to the value of about £75,000. In the reports which were sent to some of the London papers, announcing Herr Simon's elevation to the Prussian Upper House, it was stated that "he is the first Jew who has ever been a member of the Herrenhaus." This, however, would not have been the case, for the late Baron Mayer Charles de Rothschild and Herr Dagobert Friedlaender (whose death we recorded on the 2d. ult.), were members of that body.

Danish Jew Re-elected President of Local Parliament.

Herr Hermann Trier has again been elected president of the Folkething (the second chamber of the Danish Parliament). He is a native of Denmark, and belongs to a family of German origin. His great-grandfather was naturalized as a Dane in 1774. President Trier, who is in his sixtieth year, is highly esteemed by all political parties for his strength of character and rigid impartiality. He is a man of fine appearance and is gifted with a splendid voice.

Count Buelow and the Zionist Movement.

The Vienna writer, Siegmund Muenz, has published in the "Neue Freie Presse" an account of a conversation which he had a month or two ago at Norderney with Count Buelow, the German Chancellor. The conversation turned on the death of Herzl, and from that on the Zionist movement generally. The following version is given of Buelow's utterances on the subject:

The Chancellor remembered to have seen the late Dr. Herzl on two occasions—once in the Emperor's camp in the neighborhood of Jerusalem, and again in Berlin. On both occasions Dr. Herzl tried to win him over, both as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and as Chancellor, for the furtherance of the Zionist idea. Count Buelow was, however, by no means in a position to support Dr. Herzl in his propaganda or to offer him any promise whatever of assisting him in his project. While recognizing Herzl's eminent literary talents, the pleasing and expressive outward manifestation of which the Chancellor retained in lively recollection, Buelow never found Zionism greatly to appeal to him. The Count frankly recognized the misery in which the congested masses of Jews in Eastern Europe lived, and he even tried, in the course of conversation, to investigate the causes which had brought about the creation of a Jewish proletariat in Eastern Europe in such sad conditions; but he could never be convinced that a panacea for this situation might be found in an emigration en masse of Jews to Palestine. If this took place, the poor Jews, whose distress Count Buelow, during his several years' activity as German ambassador in Bucharest, had an opportunity of sympathetically investigating on the spot might escape Scylla to be dashed against Charybdis, "I have never," remarked the Chancellor, who, in the autumn of 1898 accompanied the Kaiser on his visit to Jerusalem, "seen such a barren land as Palestine. This is, at the outset, against the Zionist Utopia. Moreover—and I did not conceal the point from Dr Herzl, who had not much to urge against it—there is the consideration that Zionism at the most would only be able to emigrate the Jewish proletariat to Palestine, but not the wealthy and educated European Jews. But beggars do not lend themselves to the foundation of states, let alone colonies. The German Jews, by their whole history and the exceptional talent and assiduity with which they have identified themselves with the German economic, spiritual and artistic life will never feel impelled to plunge into a Palestine experiment, which is as much without prospects as it presents no limitations." Naturally, he could not and would not, stifle the opinion that the distress of the Jews of Eastern Europe might be alleviated—and that primarily by the Jews themselves—but he adhered to the view that more advantage was likely to accrue from colonization in the Argentine, in spite of previous failure than by a scheme, based on sentimentally romantic, and not on practical, considerations, which found its goal on the shores of the Dead Sea.

An Australian Jewish College.

A donation of £5,000 ($25,000) has been promised toward the foundation of a Jewish college in Melbourne, Australia.

The Late M. Lazar Brodsky.

All the military and civil authorities of Kieff were present at the funeral of M. Lazar Brodsky, whose death was recorded last week. The Town Council has held a special meeting to consider the best means of honoring the memory of the deceased philanthropist. It is stated that this is the first time a Municipal Council has adopted such a course. The Nationalist paper, Kiewljanin, in an obituary article, warmly praises M. Brodsky's benevolent spirit and his eminent qualities as a man and philanthropist.

Jews in the German Army.

A Reuter telegram from Berlin states: Dr. Lachmann, staff surgeon of Reserves, has sent in his resignation to the Minister of War, who has accepted it. In a statement published in the Press Dr. Lachmann says he resigned because the Minister of War did not repudiate the accusations of cowardice made in the Reichstag recently against Jewish soldiers in general and those who took part in the campaign of 1870 in particular. Dr. Lachmann, who has fifteen years' service behind him, considers that in the circumstances further service is for him incompatible with honor, as no notice was taken of his representations concerning the above-mentioned remarks in the Reichstag.

The Kishineff Riots.

A Reuter telegram from Kishineff, dated October 13, states: A number of persons accused of being concerned in the murder of four Jews during the anti-Semitic riots here last year were acquitted on that charge today. One man was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment for rioting, while the other accused persons received sentences ranging from eight to sixteen months for the same offense.

The Russian Minister of the Interior.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Times states: According to the Polish Conservative organ Czas, an unsuccessful intrigue was recently set on foot by a Court clique against the Russian Minister of the Interior, Prince Sviatopolk-Mirski, whose utterances were represented to the Tsar as incompatible with Russian administrative traditions. The Minister succeeded, however, in justifying himself, and his position is now stronger than before.

Order B'nai B'rith

District No. 1.

Office B'nai Berith Building, N. E. cor. Lexington Ave. and 58th St.

J. B. Klein, President, Franklin Block, Bridgeport, Conn.
Charles Hartman, First Vice-President.
Adam Wiener, Second Vice-President.
Sol. Sulzberger, Treasurer.
S. Hamburger, Secretary.

The Independent Order of B'nai B'rith has taken upon itself the mission of uniting Israelites in the work of promoting their highest interests and those of humanity; of developing, elevating and defending the mental and moral character of our race; of inculcating the purest principles of philanthropy, honor and patriotism; of supporting science and art; alleviating the wants of the poor and needy; visiting and attending the sick, coining to the rescue of victims of persecution; providing for, protecting and assisting the widow and orphan on the broadest principles of humanity.

Presentation to Moritz Ellinger.

At Washington Lodge No. 19, Wednesday, October 19, 1904.

Bro. Herman Cantor announced that he, together with the brothers M. Thalmessinger and the Vice-President, A. S. Gans, who had been appointed a special committee to consider the distinguished services of Brother Moritz Ellinger, in compiling the fifty years' history of Washington Lodge and to provide for some suitable recognition of the same, had given the matter their undivided attention and were now ready to report. Bro. M. Ellinger being present at the meeting, the President, Bro. A. U. Zinke, asked the committee to proceed, whereupon Bro. Thalmessinger (occupying the Monitor's chair) addressed Bro. Ellinger in the following terms:

There is a popular saying that "Life is but a dream." I cannot subscribe to the truth of this adage. Life, far from being a dream, means a field full of duties and activity for him who is endowed with a stout and feeling heart, and a mind that seeketh wisdom and spreads knowledge and truth among his fellowmen. Knowledge is like the majestic ladder in the dream of the Patriarch. Its base rests on mother earth—its crest is lost in the splendor of the heavens. The thinkers and leaders of all nations and ages are the spiritual supporters of that celestial ladder, by contributing to science and philosophy, to poetry and philanthropy, thus becoming the angels ascending and descending the sacred scale and maintaining as it were, the communication between earth and heaven. Hence they deserve to be remembered with gratitude from generation to generation. And no less recognition is due to those benefactors of mankind who, while sharing with others peace, plenty and freedom, proclaim by their example of real benevolence that a common interest binds man to man, by which, in the degree we love our contemporaries we make their joys our joys, their sorrows our sorrows.

You, my dear brother, have long since joined the ranks of the merited. Long since you have taken upon yourself the humane mission to elevate man's mind, by bestowing on others oil from your oil, light from your light, while teaching at the same time, by a heart that is true and by love that is strong, the children of one common Father, and that all Israelites are brethren! All this and much more you have practiced in the sun of your prosperity and in the night of your adversity; your watchword was ever: "Onward, upward, forward!"

Let your beautiful words seem to have hovered you, throughout your life, as an unchangeable beacon light: Behind the clouds the sun is shining; My fate is the common fate of all; Into each life some rain must fall; Some days bring light and some are dreary! "To the brotherly teachings you have imparted to the sons of the Covenant," to the words of wisdom and encouragement you have given utterance to, you have of late added a work of love and dedication to your faithful brethren (both living and departed), to your Washington Lodge, No. 19, I. O. B. E., in the form of its history, covering a period of half a century, a "chef d'oeuvre," which (like that written by the late beloved Bro. Abner Ben-Zion, 25 years ago) will stand the test of time, testifying to the noble deeds of friendship and philanthropy of our own time-honored lodge, and no less to your personal attachment to the same and to the distinguished talents nature has so richly endowed you with.

May I therefore please you, my friend and brother, to accept the sincere and heartfelt thanks of one and all, which this committee of three in the name and on behalf of Washington Lodge No. 19, is deputized to offer you on this happy occasion. And may it please our Heavenly Father to hearken to the words of the priestly blessing I will now proceed to implore upon your venerable head, with which you, as monitor, so feelingly welcome the candidate when entering the portals of our brotherly tent. "May the Lord bless and preserve thee; may the Lord let His countenance shine upon thee may the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee and give thee peace. Peace in your home, peace with your brethren and all mankind now and forever. Amen! Amen!"

At the conclusion of this address, which had been listened to with great attention by those present, the committee conducted Bro. Ellinger to the chair of the President, who took occasion to dwell in a most feeling manner on the universal love and esteem in which Bro. Ellinger was held by the brethren of Washington Lodge, who recognized in him a true teacher and exponent of the noble mission of our Order.

And thereupon the President, on behalf of all the members of the lodge, presented to the brother a most beautiful token, consisting of an artistically made silver inkstand, sponge cup and pen-tray of like material, and then cited aloud the inscription upon a card written in fine calligraphic style by Bro. Ellinger's son Edgar (a member of the lodge), attached to the gift, as follows:

To our Esteemed Brother M. ELLINGER, as a token of love and respect and in recognition of his valuable services to our Order, and for the signal ability displayed in the authorship of the history of Washington Lodge No. 19, I. O. B. E. at its Fiftieth Anniversary, February 22, 1904.

Brother M. Ellinger, deeply moved by what he had witnessed, expressed his acknowledgement in words both eloquent and modest.

DEATH OF EX-PRESIDENT SEWARD

Samuel D. Seward, at one time President of District No. 1, died last week. The funeral took place from his home in the Bronx on Sunday morning last and was attended by a number of officers of the District and General Committee, besides many members of his own lodge. Mr. Seward joined Lebanon Lodge No. 9 many years ago, and until within a few months of his death took most active interest in the affairs of this District.

LABOR & EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

At the present ratio the Free Labor and Employment Bureau on Forsyth Street, under the management of District No. 1, will in a year's time provide places for deserving persons sufficient to let them earn aggregate wages of $875,000.

DOWNTOWN CLUB ROOMS.

Under the direction of the Chairman of the Downtown Board, Mr. M. Thalmessinger, the large club room at 106 Forsyth Street is daily being made more interesting. A number of select books are being provided, any number of newspapers, magazines, etc., are daily at the disposal of the visitors to the building.

MEETING OF GENERAL COMMITTEE.

The General Committee of the District met last Saturday night and in a long session disposed of the large amount of business which had accumulated since their last meeting.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 248, Notre Dame, Ind.

50,000 SHARES AT $10 PER SHARE.

Pursuant to order of the Directors of the Greene Consolidated Gold Company, 50,000 shares of the TREASURY STOCK of the company are offered for sale at par, $10 per share, payable one-half cash with subscription, balance on October 1, 1904.

The property of the Greene Consolidated Gold Co. is situated thirty miles southwest of Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, and consists of 2,559 pertenencias, or 6,320 acres, running fourteen miles along the channel of the San Domingo River, together with the bench gravels adjacent, and is one of the largest and richest gold deposits in the world. A complete plant, with capacity for handling four thousand cubic yards of gravel per day, is now on the ground and being erected. The plant will be in operation in October, 1904, and should show net earnings of at least one hundred and fifty thousand dollars per month. The property is entirely paid for. Titles are direct from the Government, and are perfect. No bonds or preferred stock, and no indebtedness outside of current monthly expenses.

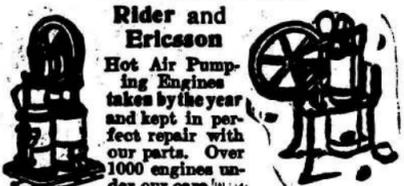

The sale of this block of Treasury stock will furnish funds sufficient to finish the erection of the plant and leave fifty thousand shares of stock in the treasury for reserve. The capitalization is very low in proportion to intrinsic value, as the extent and value of the property will enable it to pay large and continuous dividends for many years to come. The management is in the hands of conservative, practical business men of the highest standing.

The President of the Company, Mr. Wm. C. Greene, is a practical miner of many years' experience in actual mining, knowing what to do and how to do it, who has personally owned the property for many years, and who is entirely familiar with all the conditions to be encountered. The management guarantees that the property will be worked as a legitimate investment proposition for the benefit of stockholders, and full information to stockholders will always be given, as has been done by the Greene Consolidated Copper Company—which is under the same management.

Subscription Blanks, Prospectuses, maps and further particulars will be sent on application. Subscription books will be opened at the offices of the company, 24 Broad street, New York; Mechanics' National Bank Building, St. Louis, Mo., and at the French-American Banking and Development Company, 37 Boulevard Haussman, Paris, France, at 10 o'clock A. M., on Monday, the first day of August, and close at 3 o'clock P. M. on Wednesday, August 10. Subscriptions will be allotted pro rata in case of oversubscription. One-half of the amount of subscription must accompany application, balance payable on October 1, 1904.

contribute to the maintenance of a system of religious creed of which he does not wholly approve. Anyway, it is a grand, a noble thing; and my blood boils—I mean beats high with pride—at the thought of it!

Is there any truth in the statements in the Brooklyn papers of 20th ult., that a policeman named Fudzinski entered a synagogue on that morning and, seeing a young man named "Goldman bowed in prayer, unceremoniously caught hold of him by his coat collar and yanked him out of the pew."? There is a certain suspicious air about the Brooklyn Eagle's account, because that paper alleges that the policeman found "Goldman kneeling before the altar, praying."

It appears that Goldman borrowed $100 from his sweetheart and then "shilly-shallied" with her, refusing to come to the scratch—I mean the Chuppah—on the date fixed. She swore out a charge of "grand larceny" against her recreant lover in Manhattan. By chance she saw him enter the Synagogue in Brooklyn and told the nearest policeman that there 'was a warrant' out against Goldman. He thereupon forced his way into the Synagogue and assaulted the man—on the bare word of a strange girl—in the manner described.

Was the policeman within his rights? If not, how is it that he has not been brought to book by his superiors? I note that at a recent crowded meeting in the Educational Alliance, East Broadway, the chairman spoke very bitterly of the insolence of the police. If this Brooklyn story be true—and all the local papers of the 20th ult. report it—it is high time that action of some sort be taken. I have no sympathy with defaulting sweet hearts, but I hate to think of any young man "kneeling at the altar" in Schule and being "yanked out by the collar."

Dr. C. Jakob Goldszmid, sends me two letters from the proprietors of the "New Ocean House," Swampscott, Mass., in answer to notes of inquiry from him about terms. The letters lay stress on the fact that the managers "do not solicit Jewish patronage." Dr. Goldszmid is very indignant and wishes us to deal with the offensive creatures.

But a quoi bon, doctor? They don't read the HEBREW STANDARD. They are not breaking any statute of the land. They are merely purblind, narrow-minded, hide-bound caterers to purblind, narrow-minded, hide-bound patrons. The only thing I can do is to name the offensive creatures—Messrs. Ainslie and Grabow of 147 Summer Street, Boston—and leave them to the contempt of my readers. The second name in the partnership smacks suspiciously of Russian Jewish nomenclature. If my guess hits the truth it only emphasizes the contemptible nature of the offending attitude.

Mrs. H. Solomon, President of the National Council of Jewish Women, delivered a lengthy address on "The Religious Mission of Woman," in Temple Israel, St. Louis, on Sunday morning, 23d ult. In introducing her Rabbi Leon Harrison made the brilliant remark: "We feel to-day that woman is a unit and not a cipher to be added to a unit." Well—I—should—smile!

Why, I've known that all along. Man is the cipher—let us sigh for that cipher—and woman is the figure in the units' place which gives him value. But did Rabbi Harrison only discover that just now? And yet he is very bald. I am bewildered at the thought of those irreconcilable facts.

Rabbi Spitz has also something dubious—if not zweideutig, ambiguous—to say. He alleges that he has always been opposed to Sunday services but he went to hear Mrs. Solomon. "We listened to her, and the result is that we wish every Sunday-Sabbath pulpit in the Synagogue were solely occupied by women, and that permanently," he says. Now is that a compliment or not? Is he in earnest, or is this merely Spitz-buberei?

We are hearing a great deal lately of converted Jew Missionaries, male and female. The proselytizing Christians will never learn Common Sense. They can always be depended on to 'fork-out' money for the clever scamps who prey on them and pray with them. I am reminded of the story about Sidney Smith: He was asked to contribute to the Society for the Conversion of Jews. He replied that he had no money to spare, but if they sent him along a Jew he would do his best to convert him free of charge.

A Philadelphia newspaper tells how a local Rabbi was held to court by his wife charged with neglect to provide for her and their seven children. "Neither food nor clothing was provided for the family, it was alleged, and for the sheets on their beds they were forced to use newspapers." The offender was fined $20 and costs.

That Philadelphia Rabbi was very much to blame for his neglect to provide food and clothing for his wife and little ones. No one can deny that. But there is a word in palliation to be said about the matter of the bed coverings. He may have supplied a sufficient quantity of the editorial pages of little Phil's paper, 'The American Hebrew.' He may have thought little Phil's editorials sufficiently "hot stuff" to warm the little ones. Phil thinks it hot enough for his 700 ('free-list' included) adult readers.

Poor "Manny" Friend! We all deplore his sudden and untimely death. Peace to his ashes! He deserved well of his generation for his genial humor gave birth to many a laugh. There is a touch of pathos in the last sentence he wrote for publication. "Ich moos yetz schliesen den ich will mei Luoch nochseha." There was a "date" on his calendar which he could not neglect. על מקומו יבוא בשלום

My Chief asks me to solve the following conundrum which a Western correspondent propounds:

"A member of Rabbi (?) Gries' Congregation, who is a regular attendant at the Sabbath Sunday services of that erudite Teacher in Israel, expresses a wish prior to his death that his interment should take place on Saturday. Would the Rabbi officiate at the funeral services? If not, why not?" I give it up.

Standard Scintillations.

If you want to know who is riding on a pass, notice who is kicking the loudest on the train service.

In the world's scheme of production a spellbinder is not nearly so useful as a twine binder.

Boys like to do as they see their elders do, but where in the world do they learn to tell lies?

No one is as contented as the farmer except the man who has a first mortgage on his farm.

Just because an engine can go on a toot and be bright and fresh next day is no sign that a man can.

Regardless of whether it is right or wrong, Japan has the mapmakers pulling for it.

An unmarried man who cares for his liberty will turn and run when he sees a woman in second mourning coming toward him.

The noiseless campaign is an invention which meets with quite general approval.

Of course the teacher who boards round does not always get a square meal.

We have passed the stage of development where a man was considered a statesman just because he could successfully feed a calf.

When a woman wears her hat for two seasons she does not forget to let her husband know about it occasionally.

When a man falls in love with a hello girl it is a pleasure for him to ring the telephone belle.

There is no canned sunshine, but there is plenty of bottled moonshine on the market.

Adversity is the grindstone on which wits are sharpened.

Dropping a penny in a weighing machine might be called tipping the scales.

Love in a cottage is all right if the cottage is at Newport.

The Japanese have shattered another superstition by proving that it is possible to carry on a war without the aid of the Missouri mule.

While kind words cost no money, they sometimes encourage a man to strike you for a small loan.

A candidate is often judged by the dollars he doesn't keep.

Strange as it may seem, there is no proof that the pie-makers are subsidized by the doctors.

Pugilists are brighter than they look because they never fight unless paid for it.

Seeing is very far from believing when one gazes on the fair cheek of a drug store beauty.

A woman has not really reached a man's heart if she can't reach his pocketbook.

If a man must be partially made of timber it is better to have a wooden leg than a wooden head.

A man does not know as much at forty as he did at twenty, but more of what he knows is so.

Some men do not steal umbrellas, because they never have a chance.

A man can never feel bad when he loses one trouble, because he knows there are more coming.

Somehow the steel trust does not seem to prove the old maxim about having too many irons in the fire.

We say that a clock keeps time, although time gets away from it the same as from the rest of us.

Grass widows should beware of those who are eating grass for dyspepsia.

The fortune teller who knows her business tells every woman caller that she would make a great hit on the stage.

When a mule kicks it may be an error of the heels and not of the heart.

Marriage is a lottery in which every man thinks he has drawn the capital prize, at least for awhile.

If the stage agriculturist should wander into the country he would have to wear a tag so that the natives would know what he was.

The man who thinks he can beat the other fellow's game gets as a consolation prize a ticket entitling him to one more think.

A real estate man will frequently tell the truth when talking about the weather.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

The new comedy written by Pinero which Charles Frohman is about to produce in London is to be called "The Wife Without a Smile."

Miss Vivian Prescott, one of the young "broilers" (nice word, that) in the "Isle of Spice," is to be starred next season by her present manager, B. C. Whitney.

It will be pleasant news to the many friends of Mrs. Charles Russell Hone that after more than a year's absence from the stage she is to be seen before the footlights again and in a new part in a new play.

Edna May and "The School Girl" having made an enormous success in America, Charles Frohman, in order to extend their stay in New York has arranged to move them to the Herald Square theater Oct. 24.

W. H. MacDonald, for years associated with Henry Clay Barnabee in "The Bostonians," has been engaged by Alfred E. Aarons for one of the principal parts, that of a mandarin, in the forthcoming production of "A China Doll."

Didn't Know Morton.

"Instructions received; will be carried out. Who is Morton?" This was the message which Rear Admiral Stirling of the Asiatic squadron cabled to the navy department in reply to a dispatch which, with characteristic brevity, bore as its signature only the new secretary's last name. The suddenness of the changes in the cabinet is such that occasionally orders have to be sent out before the men who receive them know of the installation of their new superior officer.

Missed His Chance. An ancient bachelor found at last...

His heart at sight of her would sink And then began to flutter...

Away from her he couldn't rest, So, when the shades were falling...

He talked about the latest play And touched upon the weather...

He wanted to propose that night, To see if he could get her...

And so he took her little hand, And over it he bended...

He really felt he couldn't wait; He couldn't eat or slumber...

The moral, which is somewhat crude, But fits for saint and sinner...

Why There Is Nothing Doing. Making bricks without straw is a light holiday task...

People who would be willing to sit up nights to love their country...

Surely it is better to deliberate by the fireside than on the street corners...

Before and After Taking. Before a man is married to a woman he bemoans his fate...

There is something strange about man. He will go through fire and water to get a woman...

He Learned to Kick. He spoke in a tone that was gentle. His manners were polished and mild...

It really appeared that he never was waited upon in a store until half a dozen newcomers...

He never had thought of complaining about such a snubbing, of course; He always stood waiting and smiling...

He one day thought over the matter; Resentment awoke in his breast. He wondered just where he was getting returns for behaving his best...

The quiet man set his new method A-working wherever he went; He found that his kick was a winner...

Its One Mistake. "They say nature never makes a mistake." "But it does. If not, these codgers who vow not to cut their hair until some man is elected would be bald-headed."

A Different Metal. "Eat blackberries from the bushes to get your system full of iron." "You'll get it full of lead if you are not careful as to the ownership of the bushes."

Little Jane's Woes. I don't feel good, I mos' could cry. The room is awful hot; My head aches an' my hands are dry; I'd sooner cry 'n not. I don't feel good because, you see, Celeste jes' won't stick up for me. I'm allus stickin' up for her Whenever there's a fuss, But wen it's me, w'y then, no, sir, She doesn't think it's us, But only me, that has to stand And get the blame on every hand. I never stand to see her blamed. I allus say she's right. I jes' think she 'ud be ashamed To not stand up an' fight, But she is jes' a fraidy cat, 'N' I'm a-gunto tell her that. But it jes' makes me feel so bad I jes' mos' hafta c-cry, 'N'en again it makes me mad Because she jes' won't try. I think she's m-m-mean as she c-can be, Because she won't stick up for me.

Making Him Over. According to science a man is made over once every seven years, but a bright, industrious woman can make a man over in less than half that time. Often a large, self made man who on looking himself over in the glass can discover no flaw finds when he annexes a woman not over half his size that there are several places about him that need fixing. Before they have had time to get well acquainted she takes a bicycle repair kit and goes over him thoroughly, and by the time she has rested from her first day's work he hardly knows himself. Before a girl is married she will put up with a good many things in a man that she doesn't like, but she often hastens along the day of the ceremony so that she may be able to get her hands on him and make him over into what a man should be. When a girl marries a man to reform him, don't waste any time pitying the girl, but if you have any tears to shed call around at his office and shed a few bucketfuls for the man.

Makes the Marc Co. Here is a hint for those who spoon: Much longer is the honeymoon If on the trip By rail or ship They don't run out of money soon.

Knew the Sign. "What is the standing of affairs now?" asked the innocent young thing who was rooting for the home team. "Umpire has just called three balls on the pitcher," growled the wise one. "Does the umpire think he is a pawnbroker?" asked the innocent one sweetly.

So Out of the Ordinary. "He has been married ten years and is still in love with his wife." "I always said he was one of the most original men I ever knew."

The Doctored Blush. When first men kiss, so it is said, They always blush a rosy red, But when they kiss a drug store sprite The blush is white.

"She has her husband well in hand." "I should say so. She picks out his necktie and his typewriters."

An Impossible Man. "These pies are not like mother's." "Why didn't you stay with your mother?" "I said they are not like hers. Mother's were not half as good." "Have another piece, dear."

Always Looking. "Why don't you go to work?" "It would interfere with my business." "What is your business?" "Looking for work."

Spick and Span. A man so clean you'll seldom find, A model, goodness knows. Because the fellow changed his mind, Each time he changed his clothes.

How is it possible for us to give the values we daily quote, week in, week out, from year's beginning to its end?

BECAUSE

Not being a corporation, accountable to individuals as to conduct of our business, we can and do sell at closer margin of profit than any other house—none excepted!..... We buy for cash, cash only, and always have a surplus to purchase any stocks, however large, that are in the market.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winifred Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for MRS. WINIFRED'S SOOTHING SYRUP.
