A QUESTION OF KAPPORAS.

BY SHOLOM ALEICHEM.

THE events I am about to narrate occurred in far distant country, beyond the Bleak Mountains, on the other side of the river Sambation, where, as you doubtless know, dwell the Ten Tribes, or, as they are called, "the little Red Jews." It was a few days before Yom Kippur, when our brethren are engaged in the task of searching their hearts, doing penance, and, as is customary amongst many, "Shlogging Kapporas," that is to say, each person purchasing a fowl, preferably of white plumage, and reciting over its innocent head the "B'nei Adam," thus consigning it to death as a ransom in lieu of the repentant sinner, who is henceforth to walk in the path of life and bliss everlasting. Naturally, the non Jewish farmers of the surrounding districts have long ago discovered the secret, and fowls have their price at this time of the year, as I can tell. The bargainings of those terrible exploiters, the Red Jews, are famous and recognized masterpieces in their own way. The poor Gentile who has fowls for sale is besieged and worried till his head is swimming. Should he, however, be left severely alone with his fowls till the day preceding Yom Kippur; then he has to sell at any price.

It is told that a farmer once brought into the market a beautiful white chanticleer, for which, however, he asked such an exorbitant price as to frighten away all would-be purchasers. One of the little Red Jews, with the vengeful bitterness of the baffled connoisseur, took the fowl in his hands, and, reciting thrice the fateful "B'nei Adam" over it, calmly returned it to the bewildered farmer, as much as to say: "Now I've 'shlogged Kapporas' with you, too." . . . Of course, no one would buy the fowl after this. The maddened Ivan took it into his head that his fowl had been bewitched by the Jews, reported the matter to the police, who, with true insight, connected the affair with Jewish ritual murders at Passover time; you can believe anything of those Jews, you know . . . The local anti-Semitic Press took the matter up, and there resulted a pogrom such as the Red Jews will have cause to remember for a long time . . . All this, however, by way of preface; now to our story.

I.

Beyond the town, past the toll-gate, there was an awful hullabaloo a few days before Yom Kippur. The whole field appeared to be crowded with fowls, cocks, hens, pullets and chickens of all sorts and conditions. The tumult, the agitation, the pushing, and the noise were simply indescribable. Of a sudden there was a hush. A cock, of impudent mien and bearing, flew up on to withered branch of an aged tree, and, fiercely clapping his wings, called out:

"Fellow-fowls, silence! Sisters and then take us away to that scoundrel, the Shochet, who gives 'us the finishing touches?"

"They call that Kapporas," replied a respectable, staid old hen, who had evidently received some education in her day. "You see, they commit sins the year round, and before Yom Kippur they 'shlog Kapporas' with us." "Ku-ka-ri-ku—", crowed the cock, who was evidently the agitator, the "Ku-ka-ri-ku," again exclaimed the agitator. "Remember, Sisters and Brothers, be proof against all temptation! They will try, I know, to make it up with you to conclude peace; they will offer you seed! I know you, gluttons, that for a little seed you are prepared to part with everything, ready with the excuse that is the law of nature."

"Ko-ko-ko," broke in the assembly.

"Well, well, I know. They are all on the field, beyond the toll-gate."

"What are they doing there?" "Heaven knows. They're united, don't you know. A strike, they call it."

"Ha, ha, ha, a pretty story! Fowls too are striking now. Can that be? Is it possible?"

"Well' you see it is so."

They called a meeting at the Rabbi's house, and the long and short of it was, that they decided to send the women folk out into the field, to be guile the rebels back into town. "They will manage it, never fear," they said. "They are women, you know."

The women obeyed their husbands' behest, and, collecting the most toothsome seeds, some sieves, and other desirable implements, sallied forth on their errand of necessity.

"Chip, chip, chip," began the ladies softly and persuasively, dropping seeds on their way, as if out of kindness and in mere absent mindedness.

No sooner did the half-starved fowls see food, than they fell on it, and within the twinkling of an eye it was gone, disappeared into the Ewigkeit; there was not a grain left. But as for being caught, "that's quite a different story." True, the ladies did succeed with their sieves in trapping a few youngsters, but they were immediately attacked by all the fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers, uncles and aunts, who flew in their faces, and nearly pierced their eyes out, for all the world like the "Black Hundreds" on the war-path. The ladies were glad to escape with their lives, and returned helter-skelter and disconsolate into the town.

When the husbands heard the result of the adventure, they were mightily amused and shrieked with laughter:

"Ha, ha, ha, stupid women," they roared, "to be vanquished by fowls! Our wives worsted by hens, ha, ha, ha!"

"Well," retorted the downcast ladies, "if you are such mighty heroes, you try and get the best of the fowls! Let us see what you can do, men, conquerors of creation!"

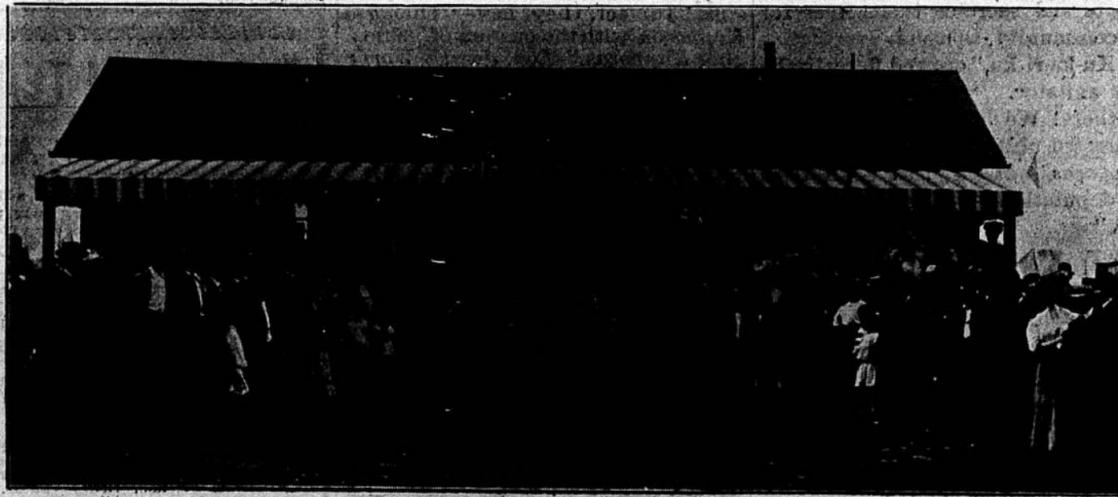

The men, riled and put on their mettle, pursed up their lips, took sticks, and went beyond the town to investigate matters for themselves.

Men, after all, are men, and have ways of their own in tackling a difficult situation. Quietly and unob-

Brothers, listen! That we are deprived of our eggs before we even set upon them,—we will let that pass. That your young are taken away from you and boiled and roasted before your very eyes—that, too, perhaps, we cannot help. We are fowls, and God created us to make delectable dishes for mankind, at least so they say. But let me ask you this: Why is it that at every autumn a great dread seems to fall on our masters and mistresses, and, as if seized with madness, they attack us, drag us down from our coops, bind us, twist and turn us over their heads, mutter strange words from an open book fling us under the table, and mischief-maker of the whole gang. "What do you say to this! Their Kapporas, indeed! Fowls, I ask you, how long will you suffer yourselves to be downtrodden like this! I ask you, where is your self-respect! It is high time we revolted against this barbarity! Is it not enough that they have our feathers, aye, our flesh, our skins, our bones! Must they 'shlog Kapporas' with us, too! Fowls of all the world, once for all, let us rise up and say as one fowl: Whatever you do with us, we shall not be Kapporas for your sins! Sisters and Brothers, unite! Down with Kapporas!"

"Ko-ko-ko," jabbered the whole band. "Down with Kapporas!"

"Most certainly not! Gold will not tempt us! We will pick their eyes out."

And the assembly, the cocks and hens, started jumping and quarrelling and fighting, indulging in a kind of rehearsal of how to settle accounts with the Red Jews.

II.

The Red Jews were half amused, half bewildered. They button-holed each other in the streets, nonchalantly shrugged their shoulders, gesticulated with their hands, as usual.

"What do you say to that! All the fowls escaped from their cages! Not one cockerel left!"

served they surrounded the rebels, and, lifting up their sticks, began half laughingly, half in earnest; "Kish, kish, kish, home, you hooligans; back, home, we tell you!"

Alas! No sooner did the fowls perceive the kind of business that was meant, than they fell on the invaders, jumped into their faces, attacked them from every point of vantage, and there was wild shrieking and flying of feathers like snow. Those of the Red Jews who gloried in long beards suffered a terrible plucking—Kishinev was not in it!

When the ladies espied their dishevelled, battered, and bleeding lords returning, they were, I am sorry to say, delighted:

"Well, they burst out, "why don't you laugh now, our men, our heroes, our lords and masters?"

IV.

"Well", argued the Red Jews, "we must make the best of a bad job." Once more they convened a meeting at the Rabbi's house, and after a deal of talk and heated argument decided to send a deputation to the fowls and attempt to arrive at what they, with unobscured sarcasm, termed a modus vivendi. Naturally, they chose the foremost men of the town, headed by the Rabbi, who was supported by the Dayan and the Shochet. And the Rabbi addressed the fowls thus:

"Listen, you rebels! Ugly rumors have reached us that you have adopted some tomfoolery, a strike, as they call it. Well, if you have some complaints, let us hear them! You are dealing with men, and not with wild beasts, God forbid! Is it that you are dissatisfied with your food, with your drink, or simply with your mistress? Tell us. If your requests are at all within reason, we will grant them as best we may. But one thing we ask: Quietly, no shouting. Choose from amongst you a deputation of well-bred, respectable fowls, such as you can talk to without loss of dignity. Have you perchance amongst you some turkeys, geese, or ducks?"

An old turkey, a rotund gander, accompanied by his retinue of female worshippers, and some ducks, pushed themselves to the front, ready to negotiate and sacrifice themselves for the community, as usual.

"Ku-ka-ri-ku," crowed fiercely the cock agitator. "No, no, Sisters and Brothers! We do not want these disinterested philanthropists. We are Kapporas, not they; we shall form the deputation. Let us hear and decide."

Here we give a stenographic report of the proceedings of the deputation.

V.

The Rabbi: "Well, what is it you want?"

The Fowls: "We don't want to be Kapporas for your sins, that's all."

"The Rabbi: "Why not, pray? Is it not a mitzvah? Is it nothing to you that you have the 'B'nei Adam' recited thrice over you? And do we not use your flesh for breaking our holy fast with? Do you wish to bring about a revolution, and turn the world topsy-turvy? If you argue that there are too many Kapporas, well, we are prepared to negotiate with you on the basis of one Kappara for two or three of us. You will surely not deny that, that is reasonable enough, and a good deal more than you blackguards deserve!"

The Fowls: "And suppose we don't consent?"

The Rabbi: "Now, now, don't be impudent. We have more than one way of dealing with rascals of your kidney. However, as it is now very near Yom Kippur, and we do not wish to remain Kappora-less, we are prepared, out of pure kindness I assure, you, to grant you some great privileges, concessions that you will admit are most satisfactory."

The Fowls: "Concessions! Privileges! Let's hear what they are!"

The Rabbi: "Be quiet please. In the name of all our householders, we are prepared to grant you these more than generous points. Firstly, a day before 'shlogging Kapporas,' you are to receive the best food and drink, as if nothing was meant at all. What do you say to that? Secondly, we agree not to twist you round our heads wildly, and rush hurriedly through the 'B'nei Adam,' but to do it slowly, leisurely, and respectfully. You, surely, have nothing to say against that? Thirdly, after the Kapporas, we will not bind you in pairs, as hitherto, but each fowl separately. We recognize that there is a difference of character, breeding, and education even in fowls. What do you think of us now? Fourthly, when the Shochet takes you, turns your necks round, and applies the knife . . .

"Ku-ka-ri-ku, comrades, do you hear that?" shouted the agitator. "What do you say to these privileges, these magnanimous concessions?"

Once more there was a deafening din and confusion. The Rabbi and the householders, observing the trend of events, made tracks downwards, discomfited and sad of heart. They reported to the townspeople that all strategy, diplomacy, and negotiations had fallen ignominiously. The fowls had made the "grand refusal." They would not be anybody's Kapporas.

There was great tribulation in the town. There were no Kapporas. A strike for once had succeeded. The youngsters, the idealists, the Zionists, and the Itoists debated the question for months, and eventually agreed that Kapporas must come to an end; that, from the fowl's point of view, it was quite an unjust proceeding. You know these idealists: they will insist that the world's affairs can be carried on with justice and mercy, and that there is no need to "shlog Kapporas" with other lives for your sins. In fact, they have "shlogged Kapporas" with the custom of "shlogging Kapporas."—Lon. Jewish World.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering From Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.
I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—yes, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.
I want to send you a complete ten days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER"—with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickens and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use. Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

Why Russians Hate the Jews.

MANY reasons have been given for the fierce antipathy to the Jews existing in Russia, which resulted recently in the hideous cruelties perpetrated upon members of this unhappy race and the massacre of thousands of the helpless and innocent. Some reasons pointed out in the London Spectator are worthy of note. These are, in substance, that the very laws circumscribing the lives and activities of Russian Jews have themselves produced a condition provocative of hate and envy; the virtues of the proscribed race have made them enemies. Under Russian law, for example, the Jewish youth for ages have been debarred from the liberal professions and compelled to turn their exclusive attention to trades. By sheer necessity the Russian Jew has been driven more and more to the exercise of the patience, thrift and economy by which he amasses wealth, and so excites envy and cupidity.

The workman sees one whom he has been taught to regard as an outcast living in comfort, and goes home to brood over it. Moreover, he finds Jewish rivals in his own trade—men who live on next to nothing and take any wages. The mere number of Jews in Russia has much to do with the hatred which they excite. In Odessa, for example, one-third of the population are Jewish, and in Poland they number more than a million and a half. Wherever he turns, the average poor man finds them around him, equally offensive to him in their riches and in their poverty.

Take, again, the universities. Before a Jew can enter one of these he must pass tests stricter than those for a Christian. The result is that Jewish students are a picked class, and take naturally the highest academic honors and the best places in the learned professions. It is to be said to the honor of Russian students that they are one of the few classes of the population who do not persecute the Jews; but a certain amount of animosity is inevitable."

Last of all take the peasant. He hates, to begin with, any adherent of the Jewish faith on religious grounds. The Jew trader from the city comes to his village and makes him an offer for his crops as they stand in his fields. With the fear of drought before him he closes, and thinks he has made a good bargain, the Jew taking the risks of all disasters. But a good harvest comes, and the trader makes a modest profit out of the transaction. He deserves it, for he took the risks; but this does not prevent the peasant from believing that he has been cheated. Such a feeling is bound to arise when more advanced traders attempt to introduce business methods among a profoundly ignorant people. Finally, there is the fact that they are a close corporation, tenacious of old customs, and admitting no stranger among their bounds. The ordinary man is suspicious of all sects and clans, political, religious, or social, and he hates what he does not understand, without reflecting that it was the persecution of his forefathers which created this cohesion. The result of it all is that the whole of Russia, except a small section of the "intelligents," look upon the Jew with a dislike which can readily be transformed into hate.

Below all other reasons which may be given to account for the merciless onslaughts which have reddened the streets of Russian cities with Jewish blood lies the fact that the Jews are peaceful and, being forbidden to bear arms, are an easy prey for any mob or band of miscreants thirsting for blood. Still another reason deeper yet lies in the savage and tyrannical rule which Russia has imposed upon all her subjects, and which can only be productive everywhere of ignorance, brutality and ferocity, breeding vengeful tendencies on the part of the subjects themselves, a spirit of blind and furious resentment at wrong and injustice which when it breaks forth, as it has broken forth recently in Russia, wreaks its fury on whatever may lie in its path.—Leslie's Weekly.

From Across the Sea.

A by-election for a member of the Reichsrath, Austria-Hungary, has been held in Brody-Zloczow. There were two candidates, both Jews, namely, Dr. Stand, who represented the Jewish national party, and Dr. Gold, who is opposed to the existence of a separate Jewish faction. Dr. Gold was successful. He polled 855 to Dr. Stand's 445 votes.

The Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the heir apparent, at an audience given by him at Ragusa to the heads of the Jewish congregation, thanked them on behalf of the Emperor for their patriotic and loyal conduct.

M. Strauss, medical inspector, director of the sanitary service of the Military Government of Paris, has been appointed in a similar capacity at the Ministry of War.

Lieutenant Fernand See, of the French Foreign Legion (son of the late General Leopold See), who has been promoted to the rank of captain, has won this distinction on account of his brilliant participation in battles during 1903 and 1904 in the southern part of the Province of Oran (Algeria), and more recently for his services as member of the mission for the delimitation of the Franco-Siamese frontiers. Captain See will shortly leave for Cambodia with the mission conducted by Lieutenant-Colonel Bernard.

The mansion of the late Baron Hirsch has, after many failures, been sold at the official auction mart in Paris. The upset price was £1120,000, the original figures being just double that amount. The house, says the Paris correspondent of the Westminster Gazette, will be divided into two parts, one having been purchased by M. Jacques Stern.

Herr Isidore Katz died on the 9th ult. at Mannheim, Germany, at the age of 58. He was the editor and publisher of the Sueddeutsche Tabakzeitung. The deceased was formerly a political journalist. In Berlin he worked under the late Eugen Richter. He subsequently went to Mannheim, where he became a member of the editorial staff of the Neue Badische Landeszeitung. In 1890 he founded the Sueddeutsche Tabakzeitung, which thrived well under his editorship and management.

Herr Julius Stettenheim, a German writer of repute, who resides in Berlin, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday on the 2d of November. The event was to be suitably commemorated by the literary world of Berlin, and the preparations were actively progressing. Born in Hamburg, Herr Stettenheim studied philosophy in Berlin. He subsequently founded in his native city, in 1862, a new comic paper called Die Wespen (Wasps). In 1867 he transferred his home to the Prussian capital, and Die Wespen has since been published in Berlin. Stettenheim was the creator of typical characters, and among these that of the reporter "Wippchen in Bernau" became one of the most prominent. "Wippchen's Sammtliche Berichte" appeared serially and afterward in book form. Three volumes were published in Berlin from 1878 to 1884; other volumes have followed since. "Mukenich" was another of those typical creations, and "Mukenich's Reden and Thaten" was published in Leipzig in 1885. In the same year, also in Leipzig, appeared "Unter vier Augen, Besuche des eigenen Interviewers." Many others of his books have also been published. Since 1885 there has appeared, likewise under his aegis, Das humoristische Deutschland, a monthly periodical published in Stuttgart. Stettenheim is one of the most popular German writers. He continues to delight the reading public with his humorous and exhilarating mental gifts.

Pontin's New Dining Room.

Wonders never cease in New York where, particularly, we get startled by news or sensations—almost anything excepting cyclones. Now it is the news that Pontin's restaurant in Franklin street, the famous place for epicures nearly half a century, is enlarged and fitted up in modern style, ready to compete with the establishments with more pretentious names as their proprietors. One syllable or more affixed to a name does not necessarily make the edibles any better. Pontin's is a short name, but it has a long record as a place to dine in, fact, a long story as a place to dine well and where men famous at the bar, men prominent in commercial circles or men great as statesmen throughout this broad land, have dined so satisfactorily as to have us make the broad claim that even justice and legislation has been favorably affected thereby. Pontin's has been catering to good people for forty-four years, and in the last eighteen months has been presided over by Faccini and Novazia, who are experts in their respective callings. The business has shown such a gratifying increase as to warrant the enlargement of the place by an addition of a new dining room ninety feet long annexed to the old, giving seating capacity for 200 people. There are private dining rooms and everything is modern throughout the house. Mr. Novazia is in charge of the kitchen and gives it constant and continuous personal supervision over the food served. Mr. L. P. Faccini is in charge of the business and the wine department, this branch being extensive, as they are importers of excellent products of the best cellars.

Pontin's restaurant will be open evenings and will cater to the trade of people who can appreciate good food and good service, away from the noise and excitement of the uptown cafes. Pontin's is near the Criminal Courts Building, only one block from the Subway, Worth street station, and about one minute's ride from Brooklyn Bridge or City Hall, so it can be easily reached from every part of Greater New York, and New Jersey as well. The opening of the new dining room will be November 15. Music and appropriate ceremonies, with good post prandial oratory, will make it a memorable occasion, besides an excellent buffet lunch will be served free of charge. Ladies with escorts are invited.

JEWISH CONSUMPTIVES' RELIEF SOCIETY.

THE WORK IN DENVER, COL.—MR. JACOB MARINOFF'S ACTIVITIES—NEW AUXILIARY SOCIETIES.

Mr. Jacob Marinoff, the energetic and popular field secretary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society, of Denver, Col., is now in the city, hustling for new contributors to this great national institution.

To a representative of the Hebrew Standard Mr. Marinoff stated that the sanitarium of the society is making excellent progress. There are now thirty-two tents, one pavilion for bed-ridden patients, the administration pavilion and the synagogue. At the present moment sixty patients are being taken care of.

The monthly expenses amount to between $2,500 and $3,000, and these are met, but the society has no reserve fund, and this is absolutely essential.

Mr. Marinoff has opened an office at 203 East Broadway, New York, and he will be glad to receive the names of new contributors, and is ready to furnish all information of the activities of the society.

President—Mrs. Louis Bloch.
First Vice-President—Mrs. Benjamin Shapiro.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. I. Goldstein.

Treasurer—Mrs. S. Garry.
Secretary—Mrs. Harry Shapiro, 127 West 112th street.

Board of Trustees—Mrs. Raphael Hurwitz, Mrs. N. S. Sheffer.

The following are directresses: Mrs. Louis Bloch, Mrs. B. Shapiro, Mrs. I. Goldstein, Mrs. S. Garry, Mrs. H. Shapiro, Mrs. R. Hurwitz, Mrs. N. S. Sheffer, Mrs. B. Seadler, Mrs. A. Shapiro, Mrs. I. Bloch, Mrs. Wallner, Mrs. L.

Bloch, Mrs. Segal, Mrs. Zelenko, Mrs. Weinberg.

The above are the officers of the newly organized New York Ladies' Auxiliary to help the Denver sanitarium of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society.

The new society met last week at 27 West 115th street and organized to help the Denver sanitarium put up new tents, put in new beds and care for more poor and destitute consumptives. The society numbers over two hundred most prominent ladies of the uptown and Harlem sections of New York. At their first meeting there were present Dr. Adolph Radin, Mr. Jacob Marinoff, field secretary, and Mr. Raphael Hurwitz, for years the president of the Beth Israel Hospital. It is through the efforts of the last-named gentleman that this society owes its origin. Mr. Hurwitz gave a substantial donation after his brief address, which he characterized as a fee for the pleasure it afforded him to see the ladies together and organizing for such a worthy cause.

Mr. Hurwitz's donation was the signal for those assembled to come forward with their checks, and the handsome sum of over $200 was collected on the floor. After the meeting luncheon was served and the meeting dispersed waiting for a special call from the officers to meet again in the near future.

An auxiliary society has also been formed in Newark, N. J., Rabbi H. Brodsky being one of the most active organizers.

Mr. Marinoff will remain East until the Summer of 1907.

What the Zionists are Doing.

The Neue Zeitung prints the following from its Jaffa correspondent:

The influx of Jewish immigrants from Russia continues actively, but perhaps more so than is good. In the past few days a large number arrived, mostly of the unproductive classes. But manual workers of various trades, physically capable of hard work, are also among them. Many of the immigrants have gone to the colonies, and a majority of these have found employment.

It is proposed to establish a Volkshaus to guard the interests of the newcomers. Two mass meetings have already been held.

Through the efforts of prominent Zionists a Hebrew gymnasium has been organized in Jaffa. Five classes are being taught handwork and three taking university and polytechnical studies. The language employed is Hebrew, and in the manual training classes English, French, Arabic and Turkish are studied.

The Zionist Council of Pittsburg has been reorganized. All the societies of Pittsburg have been merged into one organization in order to facilitate propaganda to bring the individual members nearer to the principal line of endeavor and to construct one central body of Zionists, whose main purpose shall be to preach the spirit of Zionism, to educate the youth along Jewish lines, and to make physical culture one of the elements of the education of our Jewish young men and women.

The following officers were elected: President, J. L. Lichter; first vice-president, H. Williams; second vice-president, Mrs. B. Davis; treasurer, M. L. Avner, Esq.; financial secretary, A. Zober; assistant financial secretary, Sam Gruber; recording secretary, Miss Freda Davis; assistant recording secretary, Wm. Schiff. This important move is in line with the recommendations of the Federation Propaganda Committee and seems to indicate the direction the Zionist organization will take in the future.

The Zion Circle announces the holding of a mass meeting in the auditorium of the Y. M. H. A. building, Ninety-second street and Lexington avenue, on Thursday evening, Nov. 22. The following speakers will address the meeting: Miss Henrietta Szold, Mr. E. W. Lewin-Epstein, Mr. E. Margolis and Mr. A. H. Fromenson. A musical programme has also been arranged.

New School for Afflicted Children on the East Side.

An organization has just been perfected for a new school on the lower East Side for the education and manual training of the deaf, the dumb and the blind, juvenile delinquents and the mentally deficient.

The objects of this school are to furnish a liberal education to both the mind and the hand of these unfortunates, thereby placing them, as near as possible, on an equal footing with their hearing and seeing brothers.

This will be especially welcome on the East Side, where to-day the population is largely Jewish and the children so afflicted, in order to receive proper instruction, are forced to be far absent from their homes and home training. Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes is acting as temporary president, Abraham Newman, of East Broadway and Rutgers street, is the vice-president, with Charles E. Hawkins, of 141 Wooster street, treasurer, and Hugh Conley Seward, secretary. Mr. Wm. B. Dungan, of 56 Pine street, is also mentioned as a director.

There are at the present time a number of schools of this kind in New York State, but none which are under strict Jewish management. And as 52 per cent. of the children so afflicted are of Hebrew parentage makes the necessity for such a school a positive demand.

Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary.

The Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary held its first commencement on Sunday, Nov. 4, in the Pike Street Synagogue. Three students received rabbinical diplomas, being the first time in the history of Russian-American Judaism that such diploma or "Smeccha" has been conferred by a Russian-Jewish institution. The exercises were under charge of Rabbi M. Z. Margolies, president of the institution, who addressed the students, and of Rabbi J. H. Alperstein, who also delivered an address. Rev. Dr. Bernard Drachman was present as a guest and addressed the students and the large congregation assembled in pure Hebrew.

THE RECEPTION OF SHOLOM ALEICHEM.

BRILLIANT ASSEMBLAGE CROWDS GRAND THEATRE—BANQUET AT CLINTON HALL—SHOLOM ALEICHEM'S POWERS AS A READER.

From gallery to the orchestra stalls the Grand Theatre was crowded on Wednesday evening last on the occasion of the formal reception of Sholom Aleichem, the great Jewish humorist. Every stratum of Jewish society was represented in the gathering, and the enthusiasm knew no bounds. Journalists, writers, rabbis, doctors, lawyers, merchants, storekeepers, students, workmen all vied with each other in showing honor to a man fully deserving of it.

Dr. David Blaustein was the chairman of the evening, and the speakers included John Paley, editor of the Jewish Daily News, Dr. J. L. Magnes, of Temple Emanu-El; Dr. Samuel Schulman, of Temple Beth-El; Joseph Baroness, Peter Wiernick, and the Rev. H. Masliansky, all of whom bore testimony to the greatness of the hero of the evening.

Floral offerings were made by the Actors' Union, the Typographical Union, the Jacob Gordin Literary Circle and some individual admirers.

The event of the evening was Sholom Aleichem's readings from his own works. He brought a greeting from his "The Old Home," told the audience of "A Happy Father," and confided to them what a Melammed would do if he had Rothschild's wealth. Sholom Aleichem is an excellent reader and he has the happy knack of making his characters real and full of life. There was not one dull moment and he kept the house in a continual state of laughter.

After he had concluded there was a rush onto the stage to shake him by the hand, and to wish him every good fortune in this country.

The banquet at the Clinton Hall did not begin until past the hour of midnight and the three hundred guests, on coming home, arrived on time with the milkman. Mr. Joseph Baroness was the toastmaster, and the speakers were Dr. A. M. Radin, Dr. J. Kopelowitz, Dr. Perferkowitz, Mr. A. Goldberg, and, of course, the guest of honor himself.

All the speakers, who represented Zionism Territorialism, Socialism and some other isms, claimed Sholom Aleichem for their own, and he in his speech begged of his admirers not to be like the stones on the road toward Beth Horon, who quarreled for the honor of being a pillow for Jacob's head.

The arrangements were perfect and reflect great credit upon Mr. Joseph Baroness, the secretary of the reception committee, which was composed of A. Lubarsky, chairman; John Paley, vice-chairman; Herman Rosenthal, J. P. Adler and Boris Thomashefsky; Leon Komaine, treasurer, and Joseph Baroness. Among the honorary vice-presidents were Dr. A. M. Radin, Prof. Richard Gotthell, A. Cahan, A. H. Fromenson, L. Lipsky, Dr. Magnes, Dr. Schulman, J. Sapirstein, L. Miller, D. Hermalin, I. L. Brill, Prof. G. Selikowitz and J. Pfeffer.

Special mention must be made of the fact that the Actors' Union sent a choir, who sang during the evening.

The occasion was particularly noteworthy, for it was the first public reception tendered to any Yiddish writer in this country.

A UNIQUE DESTINCTION.

REV. DR. B. DRACHMAN'S ELECTION AS PRESIDENT OF THE OHOLE SHEM MARKS A NEW ERA—AMERICAN JEWISH SCHOLARSHIP RECOGNIZED.

The election of the Rev. Dr. B. Drachman as president of the Ohole Shem Society, as announced in last week's issue of the HEBREW STANDARD, is of special significance and is an exceptional honor to him. The society is devoted purely to the promotion of Jewish learning and science, and its members are composed of a large number of distin-new president is a native of this country. He has been connected with the Jewish Theological Seminary since its inception eighteen years ago, and for six years gushed Jewish scholars, mainly of the Russian element.

The founder of the society and the president for fourteen years is Mr. Herman Rosenthal, the head of the Slavonic Department of the Astor Library, whose work in connection with the Jewish Encyclopedia is worthy of special mention. was dean of the faculty and at the present time he holds the position of reader of rabbinical codes and instructor of Jewish history and Hebrew grammar.

Dr. Drachman has translated for the Jewish Publication Society the Book of Samuel, is the translator of the "Nineteen Letters of Ben Uziel" by Samson Raphael Hirsch and is the author of the pleasant volume of stories "From the Heart of Israel." He will shortly publish a Hebrew work "Divrei Hariboth of Zerachiah Halevi and Abraham Ben David," and has also contributed some very important articles and numerous essays to the Jewish Encyclopedia and other publications.

It is Dr. Drachman's aim to make the Ohole Shem the most important Jewish literary society of the country and to raise it to the standard of the Die Gesellschaft zur Foederung der Juedischen Wissenschaft, in Germany and to that of the Paris Societe des Etudes Juives.

Dr. Drachman is the erudite rabbi of Congregation Zichron Ephraim and his efforts have always been directed toward the furtherance of real Jewish learning. Both the members of the Ohole Shem and the community in general may look forward to a renaissance of Jewish literature in our midst.

Among the lecturers before the society have been Professor S. Schechter, Prof. Richard Gotthell, Prof. Louis Ginzburg, Dr. I. Davidson, Mr. Rosenthal, Dr. Binion, Mr. J. D. Eisenstein, Dr. A. M. Radin, Dr. Drachman, Dr. B. Talmi and Dr. S. Brainin and other distinguished Jewish men of learning.

Prof. Hollander's Success.

Prof. Jacob H. Hollander, who has returned to Baltimore, Md., after a three weeks' visit to Europe, where he went on a special mission for the State Department, declined to discuss his trip, saying that it would be improper for him to do so in advance of his report to Washington.

It is understood, however, that his visit abroad, the object of which was to obtain the assent of the foreign creditors of Santo Domingo to a plan of adjustment of the claims against that republic, has been successful, and that all the principal foreign creditors have assented to the terms proposed, thus insuring the ultimate success of the readjustment.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.

In addition to the regular course of lectures and entertainments a series of talks by professional and business men has been arranged. These talks will cover a wide range of subjects. Some of the subjects will include law, medicine, newspaper work, government departments, architecture, immigration, citizenship, travel and life insurance. The first of these series was held on Sunday evening, No. 4, and was delivered by Mr. Percival S. Menken, president of the association, and was attended by a large number of the young men.

JEWS SUCCESSFUL AT THE POLLS.

GOLDFOGLE RE-ELECTED—PLATZEK, ERLANGER AND ROSALSKY ON THE BENCH—KAHN WINS IN CALIFORNIA—RESULTS IN ILLINOIS—SENATORS AND ASSEMBLYMEN—GUGGENHEIMER TO BE UNITED STATES SENATOR.

The results of the elections held on Tuesday throughout the country are very gratifying to the Jews of this country.

CONGRESSMEN.

In New York Henry M. Goldfogle has been re-elected by an overwhelming majority in the Ninth District, where he was opposed by Morris Hillquit, the Socialist, and Charles S. Adler, the nominee of the Republicans. This is a just tribute to Mr. Goldfogle's energetic activities in Congress. This will be his fourth term.

In Illinois Martin Emerich and A. J. Sabbath, both Democrats, were successful. Mr. Sabbath is Vice Grand Master of the Independent Order Sons of Benjamin.

In California Julius Kahn, Republican, has been re-elected.

STATE SENATORS.

Martin Saxe, Eighteenth District.

ASSEMBLYMEN.

Kings—First, James Jacobs; Second, M. H. Baumann; Twenty-first, Samuel J. Gluck.

New York—Sixth, A. Stern; Eighth, A. Harawitz; Eighteenth, M. Goldberg; Twenty-sixth, L. Prince.

JUDGES.

Supreme Court—M. Warley Platzeck (Dem. and I. L.), ran second on the ticket, and Mitchell L. Erlanger (Dem. and I. L.).

General Sessions—Otto A. Rosalsky (Rep. and I. L.). Plurality of 29,579.

UNITED STATES SENATORS.

It is officially announced that Mr. Simon Guggenheim, of Denver, Col., and of New York, a member of the firm of M. Guggenheim's Sons, will be elected Senator from Colorado. This will give Jews two members of the United States Senate. Mr. Isidor Rayner represents Maryland.

The Jewish Centres Association.

The report for the month of October shows that there were 1,125 attendances in the kindergarten, an average of 60 per day; in the sewing class 463 attendances, an average of 31 per day. The children finished and took home 8 flannel petticoats, 5 gingham aprons, 2 white aprons, 1 pair drawers, 1 corset waist and 3 embroidered dollies.

The following clubs are now using the rooms for their meetings, etc.: Grace Agullar Literary Circle (Miss A. Wolf), Singing Class (Miss S. Klepper), Girls' Club (Miss B. R. Lipsky), Rebecca Gratz Girls' Club (Miss A. Crosney), Hebrew Class (Mr. M. D. Klein) Clara De Hirsch Girls' Aux. (Miss E. M. Grix), Albert Lucas Club (Mr. W. H. V. Epstein) and the Students' Nationalists.

The Auxiliary No. 1 will hold its invitation dance at Arlington Hall, 19-23 St. Mark's place, on Thanksgiving Day at 2 o'clock p. m. Music by Fisher's band.

In Honor of James Hoffman.

On Monday evening a large number of the members of the Alumni Association of the Hebrew Mechanical Institute for Boys together with many leading members representatives of the community met at the Cafe Martin, Broadway and Twenty-sixth street, to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the late Mr. J. Hoffman, first president of the institute. Mr. Newton Harrison was the toastmaster at the dinner and addresses were made by Dr. H. M. Lipsitz, the Hon. A. S. Solomons, who came specially from Washington, and Mr. Max Lowenthal.

The Hebrew Free Burial Society.

The Hebrew Free Burial Society of New York has during the month of October given burial to 164 dead of the Jewish poor and friendless.

Of this number 111 were buried absolutely free of charge and friends of 53 of the dead partly contributed toward the cost of burial.

Eighty-five of the dead were removed from the homes of their relatives, 28 from Bellevue Hospital and the Morgue, 49 from other hospitals and institutions of Greater New York, one from Whitestone, L. I., and one disinterred from a Christian cemetery.

Total number of burials for the 10 months of 1906 was 1,548, whereas the total number of burials for the whole year of 1905 was 1,498.

The society meets regularly on the first Monday of each month at 296 East Broadway.

The office of the society is open daily except Saturdays and Jewish holidays from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Harlem Charity League.

The second annual minstrel show and ball of the Harlem Charity League, one of the foremost charity organizations in the city, took place at Palm Garden on Nov. 1. The minstrel show was given exclusively by members of the league who had been rehearsing for months under the leadership of Maurice Burkhardt and Nat Osborne. All the proceeds of the affair will be devoted to the poor and needy of Greater New York.

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

The receipts for the Isaac M. Wise Memorial Fund to Oct. 31, 1906, amounted to $320,233.35.

During the month of October, 1906, the following congregations have become members of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations:

Bene Israel, Albany, Ga.; Beth Tefilloh, Brunswick, Ga.; Bene Israel, Monroe, La.; Ahavath Chesed, Jacksonville, Fla.

The Building Committee for the new buildings for the Hebrew Union College have placed in the hands of six architects a programme prepared by Mr. Arnold W. Brunner, the celebrated architect of New York. The competitive plans are to be delivered to the committee on Dec. 20, 1906.

It is contemplated to erect for the present only the main or administration building, which will include the class rooms, a library, chapel and power building, but plans are also contemplated for a dormitory.

It is an open secret that one of the buildings mentioned has already been donated by, it is needless to say, a very liberal gentleman, who does not, however, desire to have his name made public at present. It is to be hoped that there are others who will follow his noble example, so that the buildings can be erected without drawing upon the treasury of the union, or making collections therefor.

A programme is in course of preparation for the Bi-ennial Council which will meet in Atlanta, Ga., next January. It will be promulgated shortly.

Worcester, Mass.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A gloom has just been cast over the whole community, who mourn the sad and sudden demise of Alton Henry Goding, Oct. 18, 1906. He was 21 years old and was the only son of Martha and Jacob L. Goding, 36 Wellington street. Mr. Goding, senior is president of the J. L. Goding Co., Main street, and business was suspended the day of the funeral on account of his son's death.

The deceased was extremely bright, graduating in 1903 from the Worcester Classical High School, completing a four years course in three years. He then entered Clark College where he was a senior and was considered brilliant in his work. He was exceptionally prominent in the debating society of the university. His intention was to enter Harvard law school next year.

He was extremely ambitious in his studies and it was this that brought on ill health. When the university term began this fall physicians advised that he rest for several months before renewing his studies, and acting on this advice he sort rest and health in a sanitarium at Melrose, Mass.

He seemed to derive no benefit, though, from his sojourn there, growing gradually weaker. He was at no time confined to his bed and the physicians had great hopes for him when suddenly Thursday morning he collapsed and died from weakness of the heart.

Besides being the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Goding, the deceased also was the only child.

Although being born and brought up in Worcester, Mass., he was a strong co-religionist at heart and lived up to all his religious teachings. He was a grandson of the late Rev. Henry E. Dann, of Boston, Mass. The interment was in Wakefield, Mass., in the family plot and was attended by a large number of relatives and friends.

There was a meeting of the Clark College student body in the assembly rooms to appoint a committee of three to draw resolutions on the death of young Goding.

All mourn his loss, both Jew and Christian. We sincerely sympathize with his parents in their sad bereavement.

ISAAC BAER, Grand Master.
ABRAHAM HAFER, Grand Secretary.
A. E. KARELSON, Treasurer.

Rev. Dr. Edward Lissman was among those initiated in Aryeh Lodge on Monday evening.

Rappaport Lodge, No. 35, of Philadelphia, is still maintaining its excellent record and four candidates were initiated at the last meeting.

On the 21st ult. an official visit was made to Rochester, N. Y., by Grand Master Baer, of District No. 1, Mr. M. S. Keller and "The Original Dan Krause." Several candidates were received into the order, and the initiation ceremonies were impressively conducted by Bro. M. S. Keller.

There is more general activity displayed in the order at present than there has been for a long time, and banner meetings are the result.

Negotiations are in progress and will undoubtedly be consummated for the occupancy by the Free Sons of Israel of the Claremont Club's quarters in West 124th street. This marks the first step toward the much agitated "Free Sons Building," and will be hailed with joy by all those who have this excellent project at heart. The occupation of this building will only be temporary and until a permanent site can be secured. The various lodges are displaying a strong interest in the scheme.

District Deputy Henry Lipsky and his staff paid an official visit to Sebulon Lodge, No. 8, last week. A large delegation from Gad Lodge accompanied them. While political discussions are prohibited in Free Son Lodges yet the brethren among themselves enthusiastically agreed to advocate and assist in the canvass for General Sessions Judge of Bro. Otto A. Rosalsky, who is a member of Gad Lodge.

Emanuel Sisterhood.
The annual meeting of the Emanuel Sisterhood of Personal Service will be held on the afternoon of Thursday, Nov. 22, 1906, at the home, 313 East Eighty-second street. The programme will be as follows:

That Infant Terrible.

Peace and quiet were among us
Ere that little rascal came;
Now the house is topsy-turvey
And things are not just the same.
Climbs upon the sink and tumbles
Pots and kettles on the floor,
Peace and quiet relegated—
But life's nicer than before.
My, he costs a lot of money,
But how can a chap refuse
Dollars for his bibs and tuckers,
Pantlets, toys, caps and shoes?
Got to cut on my expenses—
Less cigars for yours, dad.
My, that rascal eats up money,
But he's worth it, I may add.

Our Great Men.

BY LADY MAGNUS.
III.—HILLEL.
(Concluded.)

PEOPLE who are put in position of great authority have naturally great power of doing good, and they can use such power either through their intellect or through their character. Hillel had both these opportunities, for he was wise and he was good, but I think he did even more for his people because he was so good than because he was so clever.

He was very helpful in the schools and when he came to be President of the Sanhedrin he did an immense amount of learned work, the nature of which I am afraid you would not be able to understand. I can only tell you of it that he succeeded in making the Law more easy to study. He edited it, as it were, he worked hard at collecting and codifying, and indexing its rules; I hope you will have some idea of what these long words mean, but I am sure you will be able to understand this, that Hillel did great and useful work also in making the spirit and meaning of the Law clear to the people by the beautiful real way in which he observed it.

One day, a heathen lad came to him at the school-house, with a rather startling request.

"Teach me," said this lad, "your Law, but I can not spend much time over it; you must teach me the whole Law while I stand on one leg."

The boy only meant it for rudeness and mockery, and he had been already sent away by one angry master for his want of manners. But Hillel understood the Law, and he understood the boy, too, and he turned to him gently, and said:

רעדן סני לחברך לא רועבד וו היא כל התורה כולה ואירך פירושה הוא ויל גמור

Which means, "What is disagreeable to thyself never do to thy neighbor, that is the whole Law, to which all else is but commentary. Go and learn it." I think that heathen boy must have seen then in a flash his own silliness and the master's wisdom, and perhaps he set about the practice as well as the study of the Law.

Hillel once gave just such another object lesson, and that time it was out of school hours. Two men had made a bet as to whether it was possible to put Hillel in a passion. So one of them came to him when he was busy, and called out rudely, "Hillel, Hillel," without any title, and this, too, when the master was in his own house and not in the school. Quite politely, however, Hillel asked the man what he could do for him, and then gave him a sensible answer to a very silly question. And four times running did this man come back, disturbing Hillel with purposeful stupid enquiries, and four times did Hillel patiently reply to him. Then you will be glad to know the man owned up to Hillel, and honorably paid the bet which he had lost to his friend.

"As patient as Hillel," came to be a proverb, and Hillel's sort of patience, I think, was as difficult in its way as Job's sort of patience, and perhaps even more useful to other people. For Hillel, you see, was patient with stupid folks and with tiresome folks, of whom there are so many, and he taught that it is a duty to be pleasant to every one, and to say pleasant things to them.

Wise as he was, and busy as he was, Hillel did not mind being bored, and he did not get cross at being interrupted when he was busy. There have been great men in Israel who have done bigger things for the Law than Hillel did. Not to speak of Moses, the Lawgiver, there were Ezra and Nehemiah, who reformed the Law, while Hillel only began the task of rearranging it, but I think there never was anyone who made us see more clearly, by the way he kept it all, what a beautiful Law it is.

"Well, Tommy," said the visitor.

"I suppose you like going to school?"

"Oh, yes," answered Tommy; "I like goin' all right, and I like comin' home, but it's stayin' there between times that makes me tired."

Musical and Dramatic Comment.

A NEW play, a good play—a new comedian who at one bound springs into popular favor, and a performance of all-around excellence recalling the best of its kind seen on the same stage—these are the pleasant circumstances to be recorded of last week's premiere at the Irving Place.

"Onkel Tonic," the play is by C. Karlwies, and it possesses among its other merits also that of actuality, for projected against a background of frenzied finance are an impoverished nobleman living on the interest of his debts, an unscrupulous financier who selects the aristocrat as a "dummy," President of a fraudulent promoting enterprise, the aristocrat's daughter compelled to marry the financier's model son and—

No, I shall not take off the edge of your zest by relating more of the plot whose interest is maintained, up to within two minutes before the final curtain. The subject is not particularly new, but it is handled with uncommon skill, "the dialogue is crisp, and often witty."

As Count Waldho the improvident gentleman of high lineage, Herr Willy Thaller proved himself a delightful comic actor, attaining his effects by all the resources of finished art, which include a capital make-up and by-play so varied in its humorous suggestiveness as to provoke hearty and incessant laughter. Experience, long ago taught me not to estimate an actor by one impersonation, but if Herr Thaller is equally successful in other roles then we must hail him as a worthy successor to artists like Engels and Schweighofer.

The general representation possessed abundant merits, and hardly any defects, and to do it full justice almost every one of the eighteen persons concerned would have to be referred to in detail. Verily "the palmy days" of our German theatre have come again, and the playgoers familiar with the language of Goethe and Schiller will, for the next six months, often hear his "lines cast in pleasant places."

It goes without saying that "Onkel Toni," a character who, by the way, is frequently alluded to but never appears, will remain the bill for some days to come. This (Friday) evening "Maria Stuart" will be performed in honor of Schiller's birthday.

At its first concert, next Tuesday evening the Kneisel Quartet will present this programme: Schubert, quartet in E minor; St. Saens, sonata for piano and cello; Gliere, quartet in A major. Assisting artist, Dr. Otto Neitzel.

During the week preceding the initial performance of Strauss's opera, "Salome," at the Metropolitan Opera House a lecture explaining it will be delivered by Mr. W. J. Henderson at Mendelssohn Hall. The distinguished Musikgelehrter of the Sun will have the assistance of Alfred Hertz at the piano, and several well known singers, will be heard in excerpts from the opera.

Musical New York honored itself last Saturday night by crowding Carnegie Hall and cordially welcoming France's grand old man Camille Saint-Saens. There was a stage decorated with flowers and flags, a fanfare by the orchestra, whose members remained standing as the veteran composer acknowledged the plaudits of the public. All of which was but a just tribute to the hero of the evening, who has been the pioneer of the classics in France, where prior to his advent, music chiefly signified opera, and where before his influence made itself felt, the only ambition of creative musicians was in the direction of one on the other of the subventioned lyric theatres.

"The place in modern music occupied by M. Saint-Saens has long been securely fixed, but I cannot perceive that what he offered on Saturday for the first time will greatly add to his reputation. The thematic material of "L'Afrique," for piano and orchestra is not in any way remarkable, though the oriental coloring of the harmonies with the tasteful and scholarly instrumentation contrive to hide its paucity of ideas. The other novelties were pretty and tuneful salon pieces which, when arranged for piano only, will surely bring revenue to their publishers. They were, indeed, greatly liked by the audience, which insisted on an encore. M. Saint-Saens played them with elegance and charm, though with rather a limited range of dynamic shading. As he is known to be an able conductor, it seems strange that he should not have led the excellent New York Symphony Orchestra in his "Spinning Wheel of Hercules," though I gladly acknowledge that Mr. Damrosch gave that piquant and graceful symphonic poem an admirable interpretation. Warm praise, likewise, must be bestowed upon the performance of the other instrumental numbers—Georg Schumann's "Liebesfruehling" overture and Beethoven's "Eroica". The orchestra seems to have improved even upon its work of last year.

For its second pair of concerts tomorrow evening and Sunday afternoon, the soloists are Mrs. Schumann-Heink who will sing the recitative and aria from Mozart's "Titus," Schubert's "Erking" (orchestrated by Berlioz), and "Death and the Maiden" (orchestrated by Felix Mottl) and M. Barrere, the flute solo virtuoso, who has selected Bach's suite for flute and strings in B minor. Brahms' First symphony and Grieg's "Symphonic Dances" are the orchestral selections.

At the Opera House they are industriously studying "Salome," and rehearsing Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" and Delibes's "Lakme." In the course of the season works of the neo-Italian school will figure largely in the repertory. Besides Puccini's well-known "Boheme" and "Tosca," his "Manon Lescant" and "Madame Butterfly" are to be sung. Giordani's "Fedora" and Cilea's "Adrienne Lecoureur" are also announced. The season will probably be opened with "Romeo and Juliet."

Mr. Savage's production of "Madame Butterfly," which has found much favor in other cities, comes to the Garden Theatre next Monday evening. JACQUES MAYER.

New Industries in Palestine.
Several industries are gaining a foothold in Palestine through the efforts and enterprise of individuals. M. N. B. Klinker, a Russian Jew and graduate of a French school of chemistry, has established a factory for the manufacture of tartaric acid, the basis of which is the sediment of wine. The wine cellars yearly dispose, in this manner, of 12,000 francs' worth of sediment, which had been hitherto regarded as worthless. M. Klinker realizes a profit of 3,000 to 4,000 francs yearly from this manufacture. This gentleman is now in Paris and is engaged in forming a company for further industrial enterprises, the first of which will be the establishment of a soap factory. M. H. Wilboushevitch (Wilbusch), who served on the Ugando Commission, and M. Pevsenor have established an olive-oil factory. This investment has already yielded a very large dividend, and they are now founding two factories in Palestine. These enterprises are entirely private, and have received no outside assistance.

The rumor in some papers that the Jewish colonists are endangered by the proximity of the Arabs is quite untrue. The latter have always been and are still very friendly. The immigration laws are no stricter now than heretofore, and no difficulty is experienced in ob-

חיי שרה

THE Rev. Prof. J. M. Asher has accepted the call extended to him by the Congregation Orach Chaim, and we wish both of them Mazzel Tov.

WITH Messrs. Greenbaum, Leventritt, Platzek, Erlanger, Rosalsky, Newburger, Steinert, Hirschberg, Finelite, Green, Sanders, Josephs, Hoff, man, Rosenthal and Giesmar, our people will have no cause to complain that "Jewish justice" will not be accorded them.

*It were better to send a cheap bouquet
To a living friend, this very day,
Than a bushel of roses, white and red,
To lay on his casket when he is dead.*

Now that the returns are in, we must state that one phase of the election is very gratifying to us, the return of Judge Goldfogle to Congress by an overwhelming majority. It demonstrates in emphatic terms the grateful appreciation of his constituents of the manly stand taken by him and of his staunch efforts on behalf of his oppressed co-religionists in darkest Russia.

THE daily life of a Rabbi who is a true exemplar of the religion he professes, carries with it more conviction than the most eloquent of pulpit utterances.

THAT a clean record is always the best certificate to public favor is evidenced by the promotion of Mitchell L. Erlanger to the bench of the Supreme Court. His administration of the office of Sheriff of the County of New York was one of the most satisfactory the city has enjoyed for years, and it can be truly prognosticated that the judicial ermine will be worthily worn by the new incumbent.

YOUTH does not always carry with it the stigma of ignorance and inexperience. The success of Judge Otto Rosalsky has demonstrated conclusively, that merit when it deserves to be, is sincerely appreciated and handsomely rewarded, despite party affiliations and antagonistic influences. The short period of time that the Judge has been on the bench as an appointee has proved beyond cavil that his success is the reward of his merit, and it is most gratifying to the great host of his friends.

IN answer to a correspondent, we state that the reason no report of Prof. Schechter's address at the opening of the Jewish Theological Seminary appeared in our columns, was due to the fact that the affair was quite informal and no representatives of the press were invited. The accounts of the proceedings printed by two of our contemporaries were written by their editors, who took improper advantage of their connection with the Seminary—the one being Professor of English, and the other a member of the Alumnae Association.

REPUBLICS may be ungrateful, but the Jewish people are not. The maiden speech in Congress of Francis B. Harrison was upon the Jewish question, and received wide circulation through the columns of the HEBREW STANDARD. Congressman Sulzer's grand eloquent effort upon the same subject, also appeared in our columns and attracted wide attention. Both of these gentlemen were candidates for Congress upon the Democratic ticket densely settled Jewish neighborhoods, who by their votes testified their appreciation of their disinterested efforts in behalf of their persecuted co-religionists in Russia by rallying to their support at the polls.

What It Signifies.

TO the casual observer the reception tendered to Sholom Aleichem at the Grand Theatre on Wednesday night of last week was nothing more than a hearty welcome to a great writer, whose influence upon his people is deep and permanent, but to the close student of Jewish literature and journalism in this country, it supplied evidence that the Jewish "Fourth Estate" was undergoing a radical change for the better.

There was a time when a Sholom Aleichem upon his arrival would have been greeted by a small coterie of men and women who having read his works, would naturally evince a desire to honor him. But as for the large masses of the Jewish public, the advent of a Sholom Aleichem would have been greeted with disdain and contempt. For what, forsooth, does a Jewish writer amount to?

Happily other and better times have come, and this metamorphosis is to a great extent due to the Jewish journalist and writers themselves. As Sholom Aleichem stood upon the stage, while the stalls, the boxes, the balcony and the gallery united in paying a tribute to his genius, he remained as calm and collected as if the great ovation, the first one in this country did not concern him at all. His whole demeanor seemed to say: I accept your admiration and it does not surprise me. All this is due to me and to every great author, and do not think that I shall go down upon my knees in gratitude. This was the right, the dignified attitude to assume. In days gone by the tzaddik with his books under his arm went from door to door peddling his wares and humbly thankful when he received a donation for a sefer which the purchaser would not even look at and would regard the author as nothing more or less than a schnorrer. Fortunately, such a state of affairs belong to the dim past. Mendele Moohor Sforim, Peretz, Sholom Aleichem, Spector, Raisin, Asch, Brainin, Bienfeld would not stoop so low. They have elevated Jewish literature by their class consciousness. They have enveloped themselves in an atmosphere which must raise the public to their own level.

And what is true of the Jewish authors, is equally true of Jewish journalists.

Jewish journalism to-day is considered more seriously and more respectfully, because those responsible for the conduct and management of the papers have risen and have become imbued with a love and esteem for their own profession.

The Jewish press and Jewish literature have had to wage a hardy fight, but the victory was worth striving for Absolutely Unrepresentative.

II.

EVIDENCE is already coming to hand, that the Jews of the country have not received with loud acclaim the Committee of Fifty which will have its first meeting on Sunday in this city. District XI, comprising Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, is up in arms against the selection made by the Committee of Fifteen. It is claimed, and rightly so, that the Federation of Jewish Organizations of Massachusetts should have been consulted before any appointments were made. And the same plea holds good for the Federation of Jewish Organizations of the State of New York.

The readers of the HEBREW STANDARD will remember that when the Gardner-Dillingham Bill was before Congress, the fight against the measure was organized and led by the Federations of New York and Massachusetts. The latter body fought Senator Lodge and Congressman Gardner upon their own ground, and every public meeting of protest held in New York was due to the efforts of the local Federation. We contend that these organizations which practically brought about the passage of radical amendments to the Bill, are entitled to consideration.

The American Israelite complains that the West has been treated shabbily by the East in the composition of the Committee, and says that the mode of election is "Authority on wide moderation," and even the best friends of this close corporation admit that it is absolutely unrepresentative.

The Committee of Fifty will be well advised if, at its meeting on Sunday, it will decide to convene a Congress of the Jews of America. As at present constituted, the fifty gentlemen represent no one but themselves. They have no right and no authority, to speak for the million and a half Jews of this country.

It is an outrage that men should for political reasons and in order to perpetuate the vicious Hoffjudenthum system—we thank Dr. Magnes for the phrase—select, elect, appoint and choose themselves to be the spokesmen of American Jewry.

Sensational Mischief.

IN the November issue of the American Magazine Mr. Ray Stannard Baker has an article on San Francisco entitled, "A Test of Men. The San Francisco Disaster as a Barometer of Human Nature," from which we cull the following excerpts:

For a splendid moment this ruined city, San Francisco, was a Christian city. I don't mean necessarily religious or church-going; I mean Christian in the broadest, deepest sense, the essence of which is unselfishness and the love of one's neighbors. What Christ taught, man and woman—not all, but the great majority—practiced in San Francisco for several weeks.

I know these words (at first, and before I get to the specific facts) will seem exaggerated and over-emotional to the outsider; it is strange, isn't it, and quite unbelievable, that the Christian people (of course we are a Christian people) of a Christian city in a Christian country should for three weeks or more be Christians? Isn't it noteworthy that the principles we adopt as the ideals of our life should, when reduced to practice, be adjudged almost miraculous?

City administration in America is not nice—certainly not unselfish, not Christian. In San Francisco it was emphatically bad.

Behind the Mayor was the inevitable boss—in this case, a singular boss. His name is Abraham Ruef, a French Jew—a dark, active man with curly hair and piercing eyes.

Raphael Weill, a wealthy merchant, purchased and gave away thousands of complete outfits of clothing to women. Some one came to him protesting that at least twenty-five per cent. of the women who applied were not deserving. "Yes, I know that," he said, "but this is the only way I can reach the other seventy-five per cent. who are suffering."

Merchants who had been rivals for years came together to form associations; the newspapers, bitter competitors as they were, published joint editions, and side by side in the relief committees worked Protestant, Catholic and Jews. What was denomination in the face of such public need?

What was denomination in the face of such public need? Exactly, then why say: "San Francisco was a Christian City," and why speak of Abraham Ruef as "a French Jew," and merely call Raphael Weill, another Jew, "a wealthy merchant"?

Because Abraham Ruef happens to be a political boss, and because Mr. Baker does not like him, therefore Ruef's Jewishness is mentioned, but the fact that Mr. Raphael Weill, who is charitable, philanthropic and unselfish, is a member of the Jewish community is not referred to.

Does Mr. Baker desire to make the point that only the Gentile inhabitants of San Francisco were imbued with a sense of duty in the hour of need? Rabbi Voorsanger's and Mr. Weill's self-sacrifice of are no account, oh the narrow-mindedness of some men and the pettiness of their spirit.

Ruef the boss is a Jew, Weill is not.

Jews stand forth as shining examples in all charitable, philanthropic and humanitarian efforts. Is there an institution in this country which has not benefited by Jewish money? How may Jewish institutions ever receive anything from Christians? Mr. Baker has wantonly insulted the Jews not only of San Francisco, but of the whole country.

Perhaps we take Ray Stannard Baker too seriously. He exaggerates, is over-emotional and sensational. Mr. Baker is the typical news investigator of yellow journalism. Anything will suffice to excite the passion of men and arouse their prejudices.

Genuine Mourning.

ויכא אברהם לספר לשרה ולכפרה
"And Abraham came to mourn for Sarah and to weep for her." Genesis xliii, 2.

EVERY sigh that is heaved, every tear that is dropped, every countenance that is clouded by sadness, is by no means evidence of real mourning.

All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players."

Do we not often see the very children of tender parents, of an affectionate mother or a loving father, who passed away coming to the house of God to rise with reverential memories reciting the Kadish, then go out and indulge in secular amusement? In a short few weeks the recital of the Kadish becomes less frequent, and gradually ceases altogether. When Jacob died his children were gathered around him, the Egyptians sharing their mourning. Joseph wept and kissed his father, and his apparent mourning was over, but the Egyptians mourned for seventy days. Why? Did they feel the loss so deeply? Did the demise of Jacob touch their hearts so tenderly? They mourned because it was the fashion.

There were times in Israel's history when mourners were hired and paid just as we hire musicians to play at dances; and these mourners made the air ring with their bitter laments; but real, genuine mourning is unostentatious. Solomon says truly:

לב יודע מרח נפשו גמכחשוכ יכאכ לב

"the heart knoweth its own bitterness, and no stranger can intermeddle with its joys,"—Prov. 14: 10. Still more truly he said, "even in laughter the heart feeleth its pain,"—ib 13. It is not the ostentatious mourning that comes from the heart—not that which announces itself to the unconcerned in crape and the k'rie on the garment; nay, the countenance may ostensibly wear a smile to the outer world, while the inward heart may weep and feel the pain of the loss it sustained. That is genuine mourning.

Our religious system warns against excessive mourning, and those who trusted in God and believe that the departed only leaves this life to enter upon a life of immortal existence, feel the loss of companionship and mourn, but not excessively, for they feel that the departed is going to a better life.

Thus we do not find Joseph lamenting and crying unduly when his father died, though he loved him as dearly, as tenderly as only a son can love a father. He wept for a moment—he was but human—but he ceased weeping and buried his grief in his heart. So do we find Abraham—coming from B'er Sheba, where he intended to dwell, after returning with Isaac from his intended sacrifice, while Sarah breathes her last in Kiryath Arba—he came to mourn and to weep for her, but he arose and attended manfully to all the necessary arrangements for her burial; nor did he try to get out of it as cheaply as possible.

His was real, genuine mourning—the mourning that touched, and was heart felt. We often see mourning that borders on the ridiculous, no mentioning those who are least concerned, who assemble around the house where the funeral takes place, there engaging in frivolous and shameful conversation, smoking cigarettes and making the occasion otherwise disgraceful; but the near and dear ones, who sigh and weep, who manifest their grief as if their heart would break, who on the other hand provided for it that they should be attired in fashionable mourning habiliments.

GUTLOHN FUR COMPANY

ESTABLISHED 1880.

791 BROADWAY Opposite Grace Church Near 10th Street

Reliable furs retailed at wholesale prices. All furs manufactured on the premises.

The name of GUTLOHN on a fur garment means the standard of perfection.

Special facilities for redying, cleaning, repairing and remodeling old fur garments in the newest style.

A stylish black dress with heavy veil, neat bonnet and every thing to match. For all that they had presence of mind to provide. Even the stationery for their private correspondence must show that they are in mourning—and that mourns the longest for long after the sadness faded away from the face, and the suffused eyes resumed the joyous glitter of life—the stationery and apparel still mourn.

All this is not necessary. If we mourn for our dear departed ones we can do like Abraham, shed the tear, then rise and bury our grief deep in the heart. The outward appearance belongs to the world, and the world does not want our grief. We need not put on an appearance which the heart does not feel.

THE MIRROR.

Who is your friend? He is your real friend who shows you your faults as in a mirror.—Lessing.

The Lord Mayor of Manchester. (Eng) recently tendered a dinner to Dr. Gaster. The menu consisted of fish.

If the Mayor of New York were to tender a dinner to an American Rabbi the menu in conformity to his religious views would also be fish; viz. oysters, lobsters, and crabs—with ham as a side dish.

One of the amusing episodes of the campaign just closed, was the statement made by some of the Jewish hoffjuden connected with one of the political parties, that it was unnecessary to ask the cooperation of the Jewish press in behalf of a Jewish candidate upon that ticket, as their personal influence with their co-religionists would be sufficient to carry him through. I wonder if they are still of that opinion.

It is very evident that the "East Side" has become an important factor in politics, which astute, strategical

In searching through my personal Genizah, I came across the following which I believe will interest my readers:

ר' בורדיק באסיפת הרבנים הראשית היה עוסק בביאת המשיח ואומר. כתי כנסיות כלי ספר תורה, פסח בלי מצות, רבי ומורה בלי תורה, תפלות בלי לשון עברית, יום כפור בלי צום, סוכות בלי אתרוג, אין סעודה בלא חזיר, הדברים הנ"ל מורים על ביאת המשיח כמה שנאמר "דבר אל בני ישראל ויסעו" אל תרא ויסעו אלא ויסעו. ועל פי הרעפארם אמריקה משיח יבא אך להסיע התורה והאמונה מלב ישראל.

Rabbi M. T. Well engaging at the Central Conference in the discussion of the coming of the Messiah said: "Synagogues without a Sefer Torah; Pesach without Matzos; Rabbis and spiritual teachers without Torah; Prayers without Hebrew; Day of Atonement without fasting; Succoth without an esrog and no banquet without chazzer, all the foregoing are indices of the coming of the Messiah as it is said, "Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward." Do not read ייסעו (v'yissou) "and they go forward" but ייסעו (vayassiu) "and they expel," for according to American Reform, the advent of the Messiah will only take place when the Torah and Jewish faith are expelled from the hearts of Israel."

FOWNES' GLOVES are the best

An opportunity—which does not come every day—is afforded the readers of the Hebrew Standard of making an investment of capital which will in the near future prove advantageous and remunerative.

The investment is not necessarily confined to capitalists, but appeals rather to the middle classes; to those whose savings have been merely hoarded and deposited in some institution for safety or to lodges and societies whose funds are placed in saving institutions yielding but a comparatively insignificant rate of interest. It is neither a wildcat speculation nor a bogus scheme to inveigle credulous investors to part with their money.

It is safeguarded by the local government, has been thoroughly examined and investigated in every detail, is backed by men of responsibility and standing, AND AN OPPORTUNITY OF PERSONAL INVESTIGATION WITHOUT EXPENSE is freely offered to those who wish to participate in the enterprise.

Messrs. Wills & Company, who are members of the Standard Stock Exchange, having their New York offices at No. 43 Exchange Place, invite investors to consider the claims of "Cobalt," the new mining camp of Canada, as a wealth-producer and to measure these claims carefully and critically from every point of view.

What is Cobalt?

Cobalt is a metal belonging to the iron group and very much can be used for many purposes for which nickel is used. Its principal use is not in its metallic form, but as an oxide, in imparting a brilliant blue color to porcelain, glass, tiles and other things of like nature. It resembles nickel in its properties.

Cobalt occurs in the ores taken out in this district as an arsenic; that is, in chemical combination with arsenic, but in the form of the compound smaltite or chloanthite. It must be separated from the arsenic in the treatment of the ores.

The only other places in the world where cobalt has been found are New Caledonia, in Australia, and in Saxony, Germany, the latter mines having been worked for over 400 years. Edison has discovered a new use for the cobalt ore in a battery, and has an agent at the cobalt mines buying all that is brought to him at $50. per pound.

A limited amount of the stock of the Amalgamated Cobalt Mines, Ltd., capital $1,000,000—no personal liability to shareholders—par value of shares $1—IS OFFERED AT FIFTY CENTS PER SHARE. This company owns the property known as the Trethewey Extension, twenty-two acres immediately west of and adjoining the great Trethewey Mines, which have produced nearly a million dollars to date. Their veins run into this property, according to the opinion of no less an authority than Prof. Miller. The Amalgamated-Cobalt Mines, Ltd., have a Crown Patent, a copy of which they would be glad to forward to prospective investors.

Under the laws of Canada it is impossible to foist any fake scheme upon a gullible public. The mine on paper or a stock company formed upon no other basis than a mere hole in the ground is an impossibility in Ontario.

It takes a property of proven mineral worth to pass the rigid inspection of the Ontario Government, and no mining lease or patent is issued until the government inspection and assay show valuable mineral deposits on the land applied for. The stock is sure to rise in value and the financial soundness of the company can be inferred from the simple fact that the company has issued no bonds or preferred stock, having no indebtedness of any kind and ample money is forthcoming for the development of its properties.

THE LOVERS OF ESTHER.

By C. M. DELONDRES.

THE "Market" in Wentworth Street, Whitechapel, was in full swing. Grimy stalls flanked the pavements; grimy hawkers extolled dusty wares; a beggar, with greasy black curls hanging unkempt over his ears, solicited alms of the passers-by. The confused murmur of many voices rose on the fetid air.

"Lemons, drei a penny, lemons!"
 "Myer, jus' and me one o' them German sausages."
 "Two ounces of dat? Carn't do it, marm. Pash on, please!"
 "Go to lky, if you like, but yer won't find 'im cheaper!"
 "Out o' my road, sonny!"
 "Hi! Mrs. Solomon! You're the very one I want!"

The familiar sounds fell unheeded on the ears of Esther Herzberg, as, a basket on her arm, she pushed her way through the throng. Her beautiful, oriental face was flushed, for the heat and the closeness of the atmosphere made her gasp for breath. She had lived two years in the quarter, and she wore a hat, instead of a shawl thrown round her shapely head. She was of a progressive turn of mind.

At length she managed to purchase what she needed, and, squeezing her way slowly out of the gesticulating, jabbering crowd, she turned into a quiet little side-street.

Two policemen, walking together, looked after her.
 "A jolly 'andsome gal!" remarked one, approvingly.

Esther hurried on, for her marketing had taken longer than she had anticipated, and she feared her mother would be feeling anxious.

"Hullo, Esther! I've been lookin' for you everywhere. Let me carry your basket."

A tall young fellow, with red hair and Jewish features, almost ran against her.

She swerved abruptly.
 "Sam! You did frighten me! No, thanks, I'll carry the basket myself."

"Don't be cross, Esther." He spoke protestingly. "I've bin hanging round for ages, waiting to see you."

She turned her dark eyes on him with a coquetish glance.
 "Silly!"

"Yes, that's what you always say! You never will take me in earnest. You treat me cruelly, Esther, that you do—me, who've loved you so well, and so long. Why are you always so unkind?"

She shrank back, as he drew nearer to her, his face aflame with passion.

He caught her roughly by the arm.
 "You shall answer me! Not a step further will I let you go till you do. You've played with me long enough, and now I'll have the truth. You know I'm half mad with love for you. I've had no end of a row with my people about it. They don't want me to marry into a Russian family; they say we're too English. Esther, once for all, will you marry me?"

She jerked her arm violently out of his grasp.
 "No, I won't."

The blood receded from his face.
 "Esther," he faltered, "Oh Esther! You don't mean it, dear, say you don't mean it!"

His utterly woe-begone aspect seemed to touch the girl.
 "Look here, Sam," she said, a gentler note coming into her slightly nasal voice, with its scarcely perceptible foreign accent. "I'm very sorry. I—I never meant—this. I can't marry you. I'm waiting for Israel Sulski to come for me. It was all arranged before we left Russia."

Sam's features were suddenly convulsed with fury.

"You . . . you . . ." he spluttered incoherently. "You lead me on till I'm nearly desperate, and then you tell me that you're goin' to marry another man. Curse you! You'll drive me to the devil with that face of yours. I'd like to spoil it for you, so that your Israel wouldn't know you."

He made as if to seize her, but Esther, terrified by his menacing looks, fled wildly down the road.

He followed slowly, cursing her below his breath, and stopped to stare moodily up at the house where she lived.

"I'd like to pay her out for this!" he muttered. Suddenly he clinched his hands:

"I'll do it, I'll do it!" He drew himself up, glanced round, and walked swiftly away.

Meanwhile Esther, preparing a meal inside the house, listened absently to a letter her father was reading aloud.

So, thou seest, thy choson will soon be here," said the old man, folding up the sheets as he spoke.

"Yes, father."
 She answered indifferently but there was the dawn of a blush in her olive cheeks.

"I trust he will come quickly, for I like not these tales of uprisings against the Jews, of which he writes."

Elias Herzberg shook his head. He remembered troublous times.

Two years ago he had come to England from Russia, to join his brother, already established as a furrier in the East End of London. With him he had brought his wife, and their only remaining child, Esther. The family fell on comparatively good times, for Elias' brother gave him constant employment, and Esther, with that ready intelligence of the Jewess, rapidly picked up English—or what is called English in Whitechapel—and took in plain sewing. The three lived in two rooms in an old tenement house.

Esther was waiting for her lover, one Israel Sulski, to come over from Russia and claim her as his bride, but meanwhile she did not scruple to coquette with the youths who walked up and down the Whitechapel High Street in the evenings. She soon acquired a reputation as a beauty, and many a young fellow sigled after her in vain.

Sam Bernstein, whose grandparents had come from Warsaw, and who was, therefore, proud of being a Briton, fell headlong in love with Esther. He had the furious temper and jealous disposition of the red-haired, and it made him writhe to see the smiles she threw at lky Wittich on Aaron Nordheim. For many months he had loved her faithfully, passionately; and, now, to-day she told him she could not marry him, but was promised to another man. His jealousy almost became madness; he determined he would be avenged for the suffering she had inflicted on him. He would ruin her beauty for ever. Never again should she smile that maddening, mocking smile of hers. Vitriol was the stuff. Had he not read of it? He would wait until she came out of the house to go to work, to-morrow, and then . . .

Esther, lying with a smile on her lips, and dreaming of Israel, knew nothing of a figure prowling stealthily round the tenement building. She was awakened in the early dawn by a sharp cry. Dazedly, she set up in bed to listen. The cry came again.

 "Fire!"

She sprang out of bed and opened her door. A puff of smoke in her face made her draw hastily back. The fire was downstairs, creeping upwards, and this was the third floor.
 "Father!" she called wildly. "Father! Mother!"

She essayed to cross the landing, but the heat and the smoke drove her back. The confused murmur of a crowd in the street below fell on her ears. She gave a gasping cry. She must get out, she must. She was so young to die. She tried again to reach the landing. A spurt of flame across her face, which made her shriek aloud with agony—a sense of suffocation—and then a wild figure dashing at her, throwing something wet and cold around her, and bearing her down, down, down to safety. Sam Bernstein had found it is sometimes easier to be a hero than a villain.

II.

When Esther Herzberg came out of the London Hospital, a month after the fire, and looked in the glass for the first time, she gave a sharp cry.

A white face gazed back at her, a white face, with an angry red seam across one cheek, puckering up the skin into wrinkles.

"Oh, God! Can this be I? Oh, God! Oh, God!"

She dropped the poor scarred face in her hands, and wept aloud.

"And I was so pretty! Kind Heaven, what will Israel say! He was proud of my beauty. Suppose I am grown so ugly as to be repulsive."

A long shudder shook her frame.
 "Esther!"

Her father's quavering voice called to her. He had become an old, old man since the terrible morning of the fire which had robbed him of his wife.

Some unfinished work had taken him away from the house early, and he had known nothing of the fire until hours later, when a skeleton of bricks and wood, from which the water dripped with mournful sound, was all that remained of the old home. And the firemen were searching among the debris—for what? For the charred, unrecognisable remains of what had once been human beings.

Outside the house had been found a bottle of vitriol. How it had come there was a mystery that remained for ever unsolved.

Esther dried away the traces of her tears, and went into the next room.

"What is it, father?"

"Child, I am anxious. Hast thou heard nought of Israel? Art thou sure?"

"Quite sure, father. He has not written for a month."

She shivered slightly.

"Woe, woe!" The old man rocked himself to and fro. "Have I not sorrow enough? Is not my Rikva, my wife, dead? And art thou, my only child, disfigured for life! And now we must lose thy bridegroom too?"

"Say not so, father." Esther grew strong as the need for comforting arose. "It may not be as thou think- est. We have no tidings that there is a rising in the town where Israel resides.

"It will come, it will come. We are an accursed race. We are driven hither, we are driven thither, and nowhere can we find rest. Woe is me!"

As the weeks passed by, Esther grew slowly accustomed to the stares of wonder and pity which greeted her appearance in the street. She met Sam once, and tried to thank him, but he stopped her almost roughly.

"Don't," he exclaimed. "Don't thank me, Esther. God knows I feel as if it were my fault that you—"

"Are so ugly," she finished, sadly. "You needn't be afraid to say it, Sam. But don't talk rubbish. How can it be your fault?"

He turned his head aside for an instant. Remorse for the thought that had been filled his heart.

"Esther, Esther," he said brokenly. "You don't know—Won't you alter your mind? I'll be glad and proud if you'll marry me. You shall never know want, I swear. I'll take care of you all my life."

She shook her head gently. "No, Sam. You see, there's Israel." And so they parted. A week later, Esther heard that he had left for America.

Any sorrow she felt was soon lost in the disturbing news which was agitating the quarter; news of fellow-Jews in Russia who were being butchered; news of incredible brutalities, savoring of the middle ages. Now and then refugees arrived, pale, emaciated creatures, who told tales which made strong men clench their hands, and growl in impotent rage. But of Israel there came no tidings.

(To be concluded.)

With the Poet.

Deferred Ecstasy. Some day I shall find you in heaven, Wherever our heaven may be; Some day I shall find you and know you, And you shall give greeting to me! It may be on yonder pale planet Or past the last limits of space, But, oh, I shall find you and clasp you In long and ecstatic embrace!

Ere the day of our meeting a billion Of eons may have to elapse, The sun may cease blazing and crumble, And you will grow weary perhaps, But I will not rest till I find you, Wherever our heaven may be, And I shall be richly rewarded When you turn to give greeting to me.

Some day is far, far in the future, And who can be sure that the sky Will open for us in the morning When the night we call "life" has gone by?

And heaven, if heaven awaits us, May reach to such heights and so far That you never, ah, never can find me, No matter how zealous you are!

And even if after long eons We meet in far stretches of space And you swoop as I tremble to clasp me In long and ecstatic embrace, Why wait for such joy or that glory, Why lay the glad scene in the sky? There's nobody looking at present— Why wait for the ecstasy—why?

Girls.

Some admire the maiden queenly, One who moves about serenely, Dignified, divinely tall. Others much prefer her small. I admire the small ones greatly, Then I like the large and stately; I'm not captious fortunately— Really, I admire them all!

Some like girls with animation, Such as shine in conversation; These the golden youth enthral At a party or a ball. Quiet, shy ones have their inning; Some consider them more winning. As I said in the beginning, Really, I admire them all!

Fair or dark and big or little— I don't care a jot or tittle— None with me has got the call; At the feet of each I fall. The demure and the vivacious, Smart, coquettish, sweet and gracious— None is barred; my heart is spacious. Bless the girls! I love 'em all!

The Ringing Roll of Dixie. The old brigades march slower now—the boys who wore the gray— But there is life an' battle spirit in a host o' them today. They hear their comrades calling from the white tents far away An' answer with the ringing roll of "Dixie."

They feel the old time thrill of it; the battle plains they see; Again they charge with Jackson an' face the fight with Lee, An' the shouting hills are answered by the thunders of the sea. When they rally to the ringing roll of "Dixie."

The battlefields are voiceless, once wet with crimson rain; O'er unknown graves of heroes wave golden fields of grain, But phantom forms—they leap to life an' cheer the ranks again. For answering to the ringing roll of "Dixie."

Beat, drums, the old time chorus, an' bugles, blow your best, An' wave, oh, flags they love so well, above each war scarred breast. Till they vanish down the valley to their last, eternal rest, Still answering to the ringing roll of "Dixie!"

Contentment. Give me a lawn that cools my feet, Close grown and fresh and soft and clean; A clump of trees to check the heat, A flush of roses on the green,

An ancient stream that flows there by, With all its thousand smiles displayed; A hammock, swinging not too high, Well hung within a magic shade;

Three little maids with hair of gold, Whose laughter scarce disturbs my dream; A jug of cider, icy cold; A dish of strawberries and cream,

And for a guardian of our ground, Well tried through many changing years, A fond and faithful little hound With bandy legs and spreading ears—

And let the world go ringing past; Let others range from shore to shore. These simple pleasures bind me fast; Give me but these, I ask no more.

Life is a burden; bear it. Life is a duty; dare it. Life is a torn crown; wear it. Though it break your heart in twain, Though the burden crush you down, Close your lips and hide the pain; First the cross and then the crown.

Warmed Up. "My dinner's cold." He swore with vim, And then she made it hot for him.

Waste Not, Want Not.

Ladies should not waste their time in looking at waists which are neither stylish, cheap nor desirable, but should go to the establishment where they can select from the largest assortment and where the most fashionable and best fitting can be obtained. The emporium of Mr. A. Simon, at No. 158 West 125th street, fills every requirement and the stock of waists carried here is absolutely the best and contains the most complete assortment in Harlem. An extensive line of ladies' furnishings is also handled by Mr. Simon, and satisfaction is warranted to all patrons.

To Defendant, Celia Klein:—The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication, pursuant to an order of the Hon. David Leventritt, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, of the State of New York, dated the 28th day of October, 1906, and filed with the complaint, in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York, at the County Court House, Manhattan Borough, New York City. Dated October 27, 1906.

HARTMAN & LEVY, Plaintiff's Attorneys, 73 Nassau street, Manhattan Borough, New York City.

IN THE THEATRES.

With all the turmoil of the election excitement over, amusement seekers naturally turn to the vaudeville houses for their especial theatrical relaxation. The attractions of the Keith and Proctor's programmes stand as a magnet to engross the attention of those who find in vaudeville their solace. The Fifth Avenue house next week Master Gabriel, in his creation of "Buster," will head the bill. The Electric Crickets will be the leaders at the Twenty-third Street house, and Al Shean and Charles Warren occupy that eminent position in the Fifty-eighth Street house. The stock company in the 125th Street house will appear in "Leah Kleschna."

Forbes Robertson and Gertrude Elliott, supported by their London company and a large number of American players, are successfully presenting George Bernard Shaw's drama, "Caesar and Cleopatra," at the New Amsterdam Theatre. The play is staged in four acts with seven scenes, representing the courtyard of an old Syrian palace, a Sphinx in the desert, and a throne room in the palace; the council chamber of the chancellors of the king's treasury in Alexandria, Cleopatra's room and the roof of a palace in Alexandria, and the east harbor of that city. The play has, of course, serious moments, but there is a humorous side splendidly developed in Mr. Shaw's brilliant satire and wit, principally revealed in the lines of Caesar.

Fay Templeton, who made a tremendous hit in Geo. M. Cohan's music play, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," at the New Amsterdam Theatre last season, returned to the metropolis last Monday evening and began a brief engagement at the New York Theatre in the same vehicle. Her supporting company is identically the same as when she played at the New Amsterdam, and includes Victor Moore as "Kid" Burns, Emma Littlefield, Julia Ralph, Marion Singer, Donald Brian, Charles Prince, James H. Manning and Louis Grinel.

Klaw and Erlanger's greatest production, "The Prince of India," will end its ten weeks' engagement at the Broadway Theatre Saturday evening, Nov. 24, and on Monday evening, the 26th inst., will give place to Anna Held and her company in "A Parisian Model." "The Prince of India" could undoubtedly remain at the Broadway Theatre till spring, playing to capacity, but as Klaw and Erlanger have made it a rule never to break a contract the route booked before the Broadway Theatre run began will be played without change and Miss Held will be given her New York date as originally planned.

A burlesque on "The Great Divide," in which Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin have made a tremendous success at the Princess Theatre, New York, is in preparation by Lew Fields. The burlesque will be given at the Herald Square Theatre in connection with the successful musical melange "About Town." With Mr. Fields, the cast will include such stars as Blanche Ring, Edna Wallace Hopper, Louis Dresser, Kate Condon, Peter F. Dalley, Harry Fisher, George Beban and Lawrence Grossman.

Society from time to time has been made the mark of ridicule on the stage, but never has a dramatist shown in more powerful light the follies and failings of the smart set as has Alfred Sutro in "The Walls of Jericho," the play which brings to this borough James K. Hackett. He will appear for one week at the Montauk, beginning Monday night. "The Walls of Jericho" has been called the best play in years, and its wonderful success at the Garrick Theatre, London, where it enjoyed a run of two years, and at the Savoy Theatre, Manhattan, where Mr. Hackett was seen in it for over six months last year, would easily bear out that testimony. Certain it is that no recent play has brought about the great discussion that "The Walls of Jericho" has succeeded in doing.

The attraction at Dixon's Third Avenue Theatre next week will be George Heath's new military comedy romance entitled, "The Girl from the Ranch," which will have its first presentation in this city. The play deals with military life on the Texas frontiers in the early seventies, and the entire action takes place inside old Fort Rossiter. The story is intensely interesting.

TO PREVENT AND RELIEVE Weak Ankles, Flat Feet, Corns, Bunions, And All Deformities. go to Stern's Custom Shoe Place 1188 3d Ave., near 69th St., N. Y. Recommended by leading physicians.

The first dramatic production of Oscar Wilde's "Salome" in America, will be made at the Astor Theatre next Thursday afternoon, November 15, by Mercedes Leigh, famous in England as entertainer to the King, and the creator of the part "Mercedes" in Thomas Bailey Aldrich's play of that time. The play culminates when "Salome" dances before Herod for the head of John the Baptist. For three weeks Miss Leigh and the dancing chorus, who are to appear in this feature, have been in rehearsal with one of the most prominent teachers of Oriental dancing. John the Baptist, who does not appear in "Salome," will be introduced in a separate play, "The Prophet," written by Edward Elser, which is scarcely less remarkable than the Wilde tragedy.

One of the biggest musical events of the season will be the appearance at the Colonial Theatre next week of Kocian, the famous Bohemian violin virtuoso, for the first time in vaudeville. Mr. Robert Hilliard, assisted by a specially engaged company, will present for the first time at this theatre his latest one-act play, "As Man Sows." Other entertainers will be Edward Blondell and company, the Piccolo Midgets, Harry Corson Clarke and company, Maude Lambert, Billy Single Clifford, the Barber-Ritchie trio, the Kroneman Brothers and the vitagraph.

At the Alhambra Theatre next week the bill will be headed by the Great Lafayette, the famous entertainer, who will present his mysterious act called "The Medicine Man," as well as his original travesties on well known composers, entitled "The Satyr and His Band," Carleton Macy and Maude Hall will offer a one-act rural comedy, "The Magpie and the Jay." The rest of the bill will include Jack Norworth, Edwin Keough and company, Greene and Werner, Eva Mudge, Adolph Zink, the Heuman trio and the vitagraph.

New Jewish Hospital. The new Jewish Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases at 1917 Madison avenue, formally opened Sunday afternoon, is another addition to the Jewish charitable institutions in this city.

Occupying a three-story-and-basement brownstone dwelling opposite Mount Morris Park, the new institution, which is non-sectarian, is one of the best equipped of its kind in the city. The entire building has been remodeled. In the basement are the offices and reception rooms for patients. The second floor is devoted to private examination rooms and a spacious X-ray room, where all the newest apparatus is to be found. On the third floor are the various wards. The best portion of the fourth floor is devoted to the operating room, furnished in glass and white enamel steel.

The hospital is the outgrowth of a dispensary opened two years ago by Dr. Henry W. Frauenthal at Fifth street and Lexington avenue. It met instant success, and its list of patients grew so large that it was found necessary to seek more spacious quarters, with the result that the new hospital was opened in Harlem. Special attention will be paid by the medical staff to lateral curvature of the spine, a disease which many school children are afflicted with. Classes for both school teachers will be formed, and an effort made to educate the mind to care for the body.

In the course of an address made to the visitors E. M. Gattie, president of the new hospital, explained that the institution had been established for the benefit of the deserving poor, that there was to be no discrimination regarding race, creed, or color, and that it was supported entirely by voluntary contributions. The officers of the hospital are: Board of Directors—President, E. M. Gattie; first vice-president, L. Blum; second vice-president, Paul Herzog; secretary, Harry Long; treasurer, L. F. Rothschild.

Ladies' Auxiliary Committee—President, Mrs. Harry Long; vice-president, Mrs. E. M. Gattie; secretary, Mrs. Herman C. Frauenthal; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Wolf.

Vigorous and Active at Golden Wedding

MRS. R. M. HUDGINS, SEVENTY-TWO YEARS OLD.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hudgins, of Norfolk, Va., have just celebrated their golden wedding. Mr. Hudgins is seventy-nine years of age and Mrs. Hudgins seventy-two.

This dear old couple are vigorous and active both in body and mind, thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Mrs. Hudgins writes that notwithstanding the fact that they have tried many medicines they have found none to equal Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

"I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for five or six years, and get more benefit from it used as a tonic than from any other medicine. I can truthfully say this, as I have tried many other medicines. It has no equal. Duffy's Malt is the best for Body and Brain.

"I am seventy-two years of age, and may, with the use of Duffy's Malt Whiskey, live many years longer. My husband is seventy-nine years old and very active and hearty. We both give praise to the best of all medicines. It does me more good for bronchial trouble than anything I ever tried. We are getting along nicely." Mrs. R. M. Hudgins, 208 Lovitt Ave., Norfolk, Va., June 17, '06.

Thousands of letters like the above are received daily from grateful patients from all parts of the world extolling the marvelous benefits received from the world's greatest tonic stimulant.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating stimulant and tonic, it builds up the nerve tissues, tones up the heart, gives power to the brain, strength and elasticity to the muscles and richness to the blood. It brings into action all the vital forces, it makes digestion perfect and enables you to get from the food you eat all the nourishment it contains. It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children, as it is a food already digested. It strengthens and sustains the system, is a promoter of good health and longevity, makes the old young and keeps the young strong. Duffy's is the only whiskey that is recognized as a medicine, and is guaranteed absolutely free from fusel oil. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been analyzed and tested many times during the past fifty years by skilled chemists, and has always been found absolutely pure and to contain great medicinal properties.

BEWARE of dangerous imitations and substitutes. They are positively harmful and are sold for profit only by unscrupulous dealers. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and be certain the seal over the cork is unbroken. All druggists or grocers, or direct $1.00 a bottle. Doctor's advice and medical booklet free. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

BROOKLYN.

Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kesner celebrated the sixteenth birthday of their eldest daughter, Selina, on Sunday last at their residence, 52 Sixth ave., New York. Good cheer and plenty of merriment prevailed. After an excellent programme of literary and musical talent, in which Mr. Jack Kesner rendered several beautiful violin selections, and Miss Belle Mayers contributed to the spirit of the hour with a few vocal pieces, the guests enjoyed a dainty repast.

Mr. Ernest J. Magen, member of the well-known law firm of Hennecker & Magen, presided as toastmaster, and in his opening address breathed a lot of enthusiasm into the hearts of all participants of the evening. Among the speakers were the Misses M. Kramer, L. Spivack, B. Mayers, as well as Mr. Selo Ernst, Mr. Moe Bach, Mr. Morris Siegel, Mr. Richard M. Magen and several others.

Upon the conclusion of the splendidly formulated remarks Miss Selina L. Kesner arose and thanked her many friends in a hearty yet witty manner for their expressions of friendship. The affair terminated directly after Mr. Richard M. Magen had taken a few flashlight pictures of all those present. It was in the wee hours of the morn when the guests wended their way homeward.

Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum. Rev. Dr. Martin A. Meyer, the newly-elected minister of Temple Israel, delivered a beautiful sermonette to the children of the Orphan Asylum last Sabbath in the Minchah Service. His subject was "A Good Heart, the Most Precious of Possessions." Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Moses May, and Rabbi Benjamin, of Keap Street Temple. A choir of 70 voices, led by Dr. Schuman, rendered some sweet hymns and responses. Visitors are always welcome at the Sabbath afternoon services.

A Royal Exhibit.

Furs are in the height of the season, and makers are showing their new models to the early arrivals among their patrons. The furs are alluringly beautiful and what woman is there in this period of beautiful things who can withstand the desire of possessing for her very own at least one piece of beautiful fur, whether it be a costly fur coat of a simple neck piece or muff?

Furthermore there is a far greater demand for costly furs this year than for many seasons past; and although furs are always fashionable and attain a high degree of popularity they will exceed all previous popularity this winter and be worn to a far greater extent.

One of the greatest exhibits of exclusive high class novelties and imported designs awaits the expectant buyer at C. C. Shayne's mammoth fur emporium on Forty-first and Forty-second streets, between Broadway and Sixth avenue. Here is to be seen a truly royal exhibit of everything under the sun in the line of furs, including caracul, broadtail and all of the Persian lamb varieties, which are more popular than ever. Astrakhan, for instance, is to the fore, and the smartest coats are cut upon all the modish lines, ranging from the long, loose coat to the jaunty Eton or pony jacket, which will be exceedingly popular. Mink, baum marten, lynx, fox and sealskin all find a prominent place and share equal honors. Sable is, as ever, queen of furs, and though sable coats are for the favored few, muffs and neck scarfs find many followers even at their extravagant price.

The Roosevelt Bears Book.

One of the most beautiful gift books of the season is "The Roosevelt Bears," by Seymour Eaton, with drawings in black and white and in color by the late V. Floyd Campbell. This new creation is the "Gulliver's Travels" and the "Robinson Crusoe" of the year 1907. Every line is wholesome and every picture funny. Mr. Seymour Eaton has done a big service for the boys and girls. Hundreds of thousands of children, and grown-ups, too, have enjoyed the work, as the story appeared in a syndicate of daily newspapers. President Roosevelt and his children have been pleased, and in the publication of this new book of bears there has been added a work of real and permanent value to children's libraries. The publishers have done their part admirably. (Edward Stern & Co., Inc., Publishers, Philadelphia).

Hebrew Free Loan Association.

The association has loaned during the past week to 340 applicants the sum of $8,450, and during the past month to 1,064 applicants the sum of $29,230.

The regular monthly meeting of the directors will be held in their new home, 108 Second avenue, on Monday evening, Nov. 12, at 8 o'clock. At that meeting there will be nominations for directors for the ensuing year.

The object of this society is to loan money to those in need instead of giving alms, and thus assist respectable people, whose character and self respect shudder at the thought of receiving alms, but will accept a loan which they can repay and thus overcome the difficulties in their struggle for means of a livelihood.

Money is loaned in sums of $5 to $200 to applicants without distinction of nationality, religion or race, on notes indorsed by business people, without charge of interest or expense of any kind to the borrower, the latter repaying the loan in weekly payments.

Lena Invalid Aid Society.

The Lena Invalid Aid Society will celebrate its twelfth anniversary on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 14, by an entertainment and Kaffe Klatch, which will be held at Terrace Garden, East Fifty-eighth street. An enjoyable time is promised to all those who will attend.

The object of this society is indeed a worthy one, and its work consists of assisting worthy invalids who are in distress by furnishing to them gratis all necessary foods, medical supplies and attendance, and in general comforting the sick. During the twelve years of its existence thousands of dollars have been spent and many thousands of cases have been assisted. The officers of the society are Mrs. Lizzie Seelig, president; Mrs. Lichtenberg, vice-president; Mrs. Lena Herst, treasurer; Mrs. Lowenberg, financial secretary, and Mrs. Cohen, corresponding secretary.

New Wayburn's School.

The many applications that Mr. Ned Wayburn, the well known stage director and producer, has received from young ladies, gentlemen and children who are anxious to benefit by his instruction, has induced him to launch Ned Wayburn's Training School for the Stage, with headquarters at No. 115 West 42d street, New York city. The complete course in this new school is made up of fall, winter and spring terms, covering a period of six months, with a vacation of two weeks during the holidays. The courses of study and work will include stage dancing, the art of acting, elocution, science of make-up, physical culture, pantomime, a special course in stage management for young men, and a series of public performances to be given. A special feature will be Mr. Wayburn's classes for the instruction of children. Mr. Wayburn's work in the past is an assurance that this school will be conducted on the highest possible plane, and that his high standard will be maintained.

Home Hints.

MAKE WORK EASY.

Precautions Which May Save the Housewife From Sickness.

Women bring upon themselves much suffering for which they alone are to blame. To the average housekeeper the mere fact of getting breakfast without first taking some nourishing food herself is enough to cause in her continual weakness, and to some it may prove a source of almost complete exhaustion.

If after the toilet is made in the morning a woman would eat perhaps a banana or apple and sip a glass of milk or other nourishing drink she would find it did much toward keeping up her strength through the day. To "stay the stomach" before exercise in the morning is all that is necessary.

When breakfast is over there should be no rush to do the dishes. They can wait now better than papa and baby can wait at a future date while mamma recovers.

Allow the stomach to commence on its process of digestion without the physical rushing.

Then, again, after the dishes have been wiped, much of the work may be done sitting instead of standing, thus resting the back and saving the abdominal organs from a continuous strain.

Do not lift heavy kettles or tubs, stand in wet places on the floor where the water has been spilled or reach higher than you can easily. All of these are the originators of many ailments.

Even if precaution takes a little longer, does it not pay when it tends to prevent illness?

ARRANGING A ROOM.

Some "Don'ts" in Line With Comfort and Good Taste.

House furnishing is one of the most difficult of arts, especially to the ambitious housewife who is not quite certain that her taste is all that might be expected of her. A few "don'ts" will give her a little help.

Don't place a bronze figure of Mercury in a window where it appears to be pulling down the drapery with one hand and crushing down a lamp shade with the other. Place the statue where it will seem less destructive.

Don't place a lamp near a lace curtain or in any other part of a room so that it will keep nervous people on the point of starting off for the fire brigade.

Don't place marble busts or bronze figures where they look so insecure that reading a book near them in comfort is an impossibility.

Don't choose pedestals that are so ornamental that the objects placed on the pedestals become secondary in importance. Don't buy pedestals any way if you can avoid it. If you must have them, don't place them so near your library shelves that the books cannot be taken out without moving all the furniture.

LAUNDRY LINES.

If white goods have become stained with vaseline, dip the spots in kerosene before washing in water.

Water in which rice has been boiled may be used for starching old lace, choice handkerchiefs, etc. It gives a soft and dainty stiffness which adds a charm to their appearance.

When washing black or colored silk stockings do not use soap. Warm bran water should be used, and the stockings should be squeezed or run through the wringer and dried in the shade.

In place of the usual hamper for the laundry a better device is three large bags of plain white duck, one of them marked "Coarse Clothes," the second "Fine Clothes," and the third "Flannels." Table linen should be kept in a bag by itself.

To run curtain rods through freshly ironed curtains every housekeeper knows is a troublesome job and one that often results in tearing the curtain. In sprinkling do not wet the upper hems. Run the rods in before ironing to open the hems.

The Fly in the Ointment.

At last we're to be married! With joy my bosom thrills To think that all is settled— That is, except the bills! —Catholic Standard and Times.

LEATHER CHAIRS.

Try Cleaning Them With a Lather of Castile Soap.

Leather on chairs is best cleaned with wet rag and soap. Select a pure castile or white soap—never a laundry variety—make a lather with lukewarm water and with a damp cloth rub suds into the leather with a rotary motion, covering the entire surface so one part will not be clean and another have a soiled appearance. When the seat or back has been well scrubbed in this way, rub the surface dry with a soft flannel cloth, and the spots should not disappear, but the leather should be as shiny as it was when new. Where there are grease spots on the leather they should have an extra washing and should first be cleansed with the suds and damp chamols or piece of cheese-cloth, so that any stain will come out when the entire back or seat is scrubbed.

I would never rub oils into leather, for most of them make the surfaces sticky, especially during hot weather. Then, too, the leather is so prepared that no oil is necessary, the only essential in care of such upholstery being a dusting every day or oftener if convenient and a washing with suds and a damp cloth once in two or three weeks. Don't forget that leather must be carefully rubbed and kept warm in winter, and remember that it is a bad plan to sit down quickly on a leather seat that has been kept in a cold room for several days, for the upholstery is likely to crack and split, just as patent leather does.—New York Telegram.

TRUE HOSPITALITY.

It Is Not Made Up of Grand Meals and Entertainments.

In a home that I have in mind the real spirit of hospitality is shown at its best. There is often no maid, and sometimes the mistress of this household is nearly overworked, but invariably the guest is made comfortable. If it is a hot day a tray bearing lemonade, iced tea or ginger ale and wafers is brought at once to refresh the caller, or on a cool day it will be hot cocoa or tea or a bouillon cup of hot soup. Invariably there is something to express a kindly feeling for one's comfort, and it is never preceded with the query whether you will have the cup if it should be prepared.

Many a hostess will ask her guest if he will have refreshment, and it is rare that one replies that he will, for the question itself implies effort, something that should never appear in a hospitable offering. The overconscientious hostess, who fears that her beverage may not be made just right or that her china is not quite fine enough, misses much pleasure for herself and guest. The beginner in housekeeping would do well to acquire the habit of putting the true spirit of hospitality into her homelife at the outset, and as she grows older her home will have acquired a reputation for comfort and cheer that an ostentatious dinner or luncheon now and then will never confer.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

DRESS HINTS.

In pressing ribbons with a hot iron, lay them between two sheets of manila paper, and they will come out like new.

In sewing a piece of material on the bias to a straight piece the former is apt to become stretched. To avoid this the bias should be placed underneath, and it will then be sewn in evenly.

If sleeves are too long or too full don't rip them out. First take a tuck or fold in the tops, making them the desired length, and baste. Try on and if right cut off the superfluous material.

Skirts should always be provided with three bands—one on the right side, one on the left and one to hold up the drapery at the back. If this precaution is taken it is much better to hang up a skirt than to fold it and lay it away.

In making up any material with a nap remember that the nap should always run downward. This fact should not be forgotten when sponging and pressing, otherwise you will make a shiny streak on the surface of your material.

"Indeed, yes. I have a life insurance policy."—Lippincott's Magazine.

EVERYWHERE AND ANYWHERE.

A donation of $50,000 for the erection of a new school building of the Congregation Rodef Shalom Synagogue, Philadelphia, Pa., has been made by Mrs. B. F. Teller, in memory of her husband, the late president of the congregation, and in accordance with his last wishes a building committee was appointed to decide what steps be taken toward the realization of this plan.

Rabbi Rudolph I. Coffe, of New York, formerly superintendent of the Hebrew Orphan's Asylum, has been chosen rabbi of the Tree of Life Jewish Congregation, Pittsburg, Pa., to succeed Rabbi M. Eried, who has accepted a call to Seattle, Wash., on account of failing health. Rabbi Coffe came to Pittsburg several weeks ago to speak as a candidate and took the people by storm with his eloquence. He is a graduate of the Jewish Theological Seminary at New York and has taken two degrees in the Columbia University.

School Superintendent Addison B. Poland and President David A. McIntyre, of the Board of Education of Newark, N. J., have been empowered by the board to act at their discretion on requests that Jewish children be excused from participation in religious exercises in the public schools where they may be pupils when the exercises are not in conformity with the teachings of the Jewish faith. The matter has recently been taken up by a delegation of rabbis headed by the Rev. Solomon Foster, of B'nai Jeshuron, who waited on Dr. Poland as representatives of the Rabbinical Association with a request that the Jewish children be not required to take part in Christian exercises.

Dr. Poland presented the request of the rabbis to the Teachers' Committee, and the board has indorsed a recommendation of the latter body in empowering President McIntyre and the superintendent to act on applications that might be presented to them.

On Monday night Mr. Robert Mantell returned to New York city for an engagement of four weeks in the big Academy of Music. He is, perhaps, the only living player who may be counted upon to give complete satisfaction in that large auditorium; for he is, surely, the one player of the day who brings to the interpretation of the great tragedies the necessary physique and vocal equipment.

Messrs. Nixon & Zimmerman, who now control the destinies of Mr. Thomas E. Shea, announced as next week's attraction at the Grand Opera House, have surrounded him with a company and setting in keeping with their general carefulness. Mr. Shea's performances are worthy of critical approbation. His repertoire consists of "Richelleu," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "The Fool's Revenge," "The Bells," and last, but not least, his latest success, "Napoleon the Great," written by Channing Pollock, the clever dramatizer of "The Pit."

Committees of the B'nai B'rith and other Jewish organizations who are interested in the erection of the proposed Hebrew Institute in Omaha, Neb., made a few collections Sunday of last week.

Already a trifle over $5,000 has been subscribed. Of this amount nothing has yet been received from any of the more wealthy.

The corner-stone of the new Hebrew Hospital, at High and West Kinney streets, Newark, N. J., was laid last week. The trowel was handled by Wm. S. Rich, chairman of the building committee. Rabbi Leucht offered prayer and addresses were made by Mayor Henry M. Doremus and Joseph Okin, the latter president of the hospital association.

*There are Several Reasons
Why
We Can & Do Sell Lower Than Others*
TWO WILL SUFFICE

First We Buy for cash and cash only
Second ... Not being a corporation with a big board of directors and stockholders, who expect big dividends, but an independent copartnership, we can and do sell as we please
