Reminiscences of a Jewish Journalist

By J. FUCHS---II---'The Most Ignorant Man in the Ghetto'

On the twenty-third day in the month of April of the year 1616 of our common era, there died in the city of Stratford-upon-Avon one William Shakespeare. Of him it may be averred without fear of successful contradiction, that he never in his life wore a linen collar, that he knew not the uses of a fork and that he was absolutely ignorant of the fundamental truths of economic determination. Per contra, Meshel Batlan of Wilna in the erstwhile Kingdom of Poland, wears an Arrow Brand collar Size Sixteen, knows the uses of a fork in his capacity of gebildeter Mensch (though he sometimes confounds them with the proper functions of a knife), and is as sound as a dollar on economic determination—or at least as sound on it as a glimpse of a few minor pamphlets can render him. The question arises now: Who is the greater man—Mr. Shakespeare or Mr. Batlan?

In his own conceit, undoubtedly the latter. And since there are several hundred other batlanim to support his pretensions, the odds are heavy you will believe him. Most of these batlanim are drawing checks upon the bank of political and economic science, where they never had any deposit. They were quarreling among themselves when I first made their acquaintance fourteen years ago, and they haven't settled their windy disputes as yet. Upon one point, however, they were all unanimously agreed: they all declared Mr. Grobstock to be "the most ignorant man in the Ghetto." They didn't call him by the name of Grobstock, which, to my readers' knowledge, is simply a loan from the nomenclature of Zangwill's early masterpiece. But "Grobstock" signifies "crude stick" in German, and by that name shall be known throughout this sketch the man pointed out by the batlanim aforesaid as the most ignorant of the Ghetto.

Not that they really meant any harm—very far from it. To point out with the finger of scorn Mr. Grobstock's abysmal ignorance, was simply one way of calling attention to their own superior erudition. Among them there was probably not one man in twenty who had had anything like a formal and systematic education. There was certainly not one in a hundred scientifically prepared for a profitable perusal of Marx or Spencer. Yet they threw their spurious quotations at the head of Mr. Grobstock, exactly as stones were thrown of old at the Kapurah in the wilderness—Mr. Grobstock was not an ignorant man—he was the ignorant man of the Ghetto, according to their presentation. And then a miracle happened. Supposing you call a Ghetto-dweller a scoundrel and a despoiler of the widow and the orphan—if you happen to be in the right there is at least a possibility of his admitting the charge—if not openly to you, then secretly to himself, and he may even forgive you, if you are wrong in him. But the first Jew that ever owned himself an ungebildeter Mensch has yet to be born. That's the way we are built—to put it colloquially. Other races may choose character, or energy, or riches, or mechanical skill for their favorite boast—we—we are gebildet. If you desire to turn any

The man called the most ignorant of the Ghetto took the stigma in meekness—that was the miracle. "Great thoughts come from the heart," said the gentle Vanvenargue. Mr. Grobstock mostly thought with his heart—his brains being at that time rather innocent of formal training—but he had never heard of Vanvenargue and therefore derived no consolation from the Frenchman's profound humanity. He had known exile, hunger, imprisonment and the envenomed sting of slander; he had worked, erred, stumbled, suffered, risen above his sufferings—and therefore was an infinitely wiser man than his detractors. For all that—he was known as the most ignorant man of the Ghetto, and—wonder of wonders!—in moments of severe introspection he actually hovered on the verge of believing it.

Such rare meekness caused him to study. He read up on history, on economy, on civics, until he knew of these disciplines as much as most of us—and possibly a little more than some of those who were loudest in denouncing his ignorance. At a time when the front-light parts in the Jewish labor movement were eagerly seized by a parcel of newspaper men and speechifying attorneys, he kept in the background where only hard work and hard knocks were obtainable. The gebildeten Menschen of the movement had an excusable preference for the showy political side of it, where they could attitudinize and declaim and display themselves to best advantage. Meantime they left to Grobstock the obscure task of bullying the garment workers into an effective union, and of wrangling with manufacturers over wage scales every night and into the small hours of the morning. He was probably the first man that rendered effective service on Ellis Island to those who taste there the bitterness of the Gate. Was it a study of Kantsky or the taunts of his pretended readers that drove him bayward in the bitter cold of winter days to speak the word and do the deed of brotherhood to the one of us into a Corsican upon vendetta bent, you needn't search your vocabulary for terms of abuse—just call him ungebildet, and you have an enemy for life. Barring, however, one exception.

as directed. It is a form of food already digested, and when taken just before a meal stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, causing a sufficient flow of the gastric juice to digest the food and it promotes perfect assimilation. It also excites the flow of saliva for the digestion of starchy food, preventing fermentation in the stomach and bowels.

If these diseases or other stomach troubles have already taken hold, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey will quickly restore the diseased to their natural healthy condition.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only whiskey that was taxed by the Government as a medicine during the Spanish-American War.

Sold by druggists, grocers and dealers in sealed bottles, price $1.00. If you can't procure it, let us know and we will tell you how to obtain it. Write for free doctor's advice and book of recipes for table and sick room.

stranger? Hardly—great thoughts come from the heart.

To affect further concealment from the reader that followed me thus far, of the true identity of the man once called the most ignorant of the Ghetto, would be puerile indeed. He justly takes rank now as the foremost living authority on the history of the New York garment trades and the living and working conditions of the Jewish poor, whose life he lived and improved, as far as was in his power. He was a young man when I first knew him, and he isn't an old man at the time of this present writing. In a sense, his life and his larger usefulness have just begun. A Mayor not remarkable otherwise for his discernment in the choice of city officials, has shown at least sufficient acumen to appoint him to the post of school commissioner. With an abjectness of vengeance that may well serve as a landmark of the demoralization reached since 1898, one of his old-time journalistic enemies smuggled a memento of an ancient prison score into the public press. The Mayor stood manfully by his appointee. And "the most ignorant man of the Ghetto" may yet save thousands of school children unprovided with schools from that elementary ignorance which is the mother of poverty and degradation. I know he will, if he gets the chance. He has children of his own—and great thoughts come from the heart.

Twenty Years Activity of a Young Philanthropist.

Among the young philanthropists of this city few are better known or more deserving of recognition for their good work than Mr. Charles H. Harris, who, although but 35 years of age, has been actively interested in the leading charities of this city for the past twenty years. At the age of 15 he began his good work by arranging periodical entertainments for the inmates of the Montefiore Home, and has continued this commendable form of charity to such an extent that at the present time he is the leading spirit in almost every concert, entertainment and theatrical performance that is given either for the amusement of the inmates or for the financial benefit of the many charitable institutions of New York.

One of his most notable and successful achievements was the organization and management of the "Charles H. Harris Orphan Boys' Band." About eight years ago he established an exclusive employment bureau for the ex-inmates of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum and Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Orphan Asylum, and through his personal friendship and influence with many of the owners and managers of New York's largest department stores was instrumental in placing many graduates of the orphan asylums in good positions, which a great number of them still retain. Those graduates who were members of the bands of those institutions were reorganized as a semi-professional band to continue their musical training and earn money at the same time. Mr. Harris engaged a professional bandmaster at his personal expense to promote this worthy enterprise as well as defraying the expense of necessary musical instruments, uniforms, etc. After several months' advanced training and practice the "Charles H. Harris Orphan Boys' Band" became the most popular as well as the most competent boys' band in this section of the country. Their services were continually in demand for five years, during which time they performed on many occasions at all of the leading vaudeville houses in and near New York.

MR. CHARLES H. HARRIS

The most successful engagement of this unique organization, however, was with George W. Lederer, when they were engaged and performed for him during the entire summer season of 1905 at the New York Theatre roof. Prominently identified with Mr. Harris in this particular venture was Marcy L. Jacobs, who acted as assistant manager and secretary of the band during their many successful theatrical engagements, and to whom also much credit is due for the splendid personal appearance and military discipline of the band, which elicited much favorable comment at every performance. While thus engaged in a professional way Mr. Harris did not fail to offer the services of the band voluntarily for any service in the interest of charity, besides giving frequent band concerts at the various institutions. Mr. Harris, as honorary manager of the organization, did not accept any financial reimbursement for the expenses of equipment and maintenance of the band before it became self-supporting. Many of the former members are now well-known professional musicians.

Another pet charity of Mr. Harris is the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases, to which he gives much of his time and attention. Besides being a member of the Board of Directors of this Hospital he is treasurer of the Young Folks' League and is always arranging some novel dance or performance for the financial benefit of this worthy institution. He is at present completing arrangements for the grand banquet and ball to be given at Sherry's New Year's Eve. Mr. Harris' interest in this hospital adds to its funds from $3,000 to $5,000 annually.

His Thanksgiving dinner baskets are always looked forward to with grateful anticipation by the many friends he has made among the poor, and this year he has increased the usual amount for gratuitous distribution.

Mr. Harris is at present actively interested in the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases, Montefiore Home, Hebrew Orphan Asylum, Post Graduate Hospital and several other institutions.

China's Progress and the Jews
By E. A. H. Endres

Nothing gratifies me more than to write about political progress, as that means the gradual decay of religious repulsion and race hatred. And who has suffered more from these than the Hebrew nation? The Torah contains, according to Dr. Adolf Jellinek, almost 305,000 letters, or about 80,000 words. These numbers combined, I think, would not nearly cover the Jewish victims of religious fanaticism. One hundred thousand Jews were put to the sword by Titus at Jerusalem. This is only one instance. Throughout the centuries religious storms of persecution have found their hub and center in the Jewish race and this applies also the Chinese Empire and its queue-wearing Jews.

A wondering world is informed that China has been granted a constitution. Hoary, old, time-eaten, moss-grown laws which have for centuries ruled the Celestials are to be sent toppling. Canton has joined China's revolt. Thirteen Chinese warships at Shanghai have raised the rebel flag. Rebel leaders of the Chinese in San Francisco say that what is really wanted in China is the establishment of a republic. Already Sun-Pao-Chi, Viceroy of Shan-Tung, has been elected president of the republic which has been proclaimed in that province.

What an unpleasant sight for the crowned heads of military Europe! How annoying to the policy of a bloody, Jew-hating Czar! The imperial Chinese ship of state, no longer sound, seaworthy and weather-tight, is in imminent risk of being scuttled. Surely the spirit of progress is upsetting old traditions in that far-off picturesque land of the winged dragon, porcelain pagodas and teapots!

The entire Hebrew nation should rejoice that false political traditions in China, as elsewhere, are vanishing like burned-out tapers; that the midnight places of the world are beginning to see the beacon light of political and religious liberty.

Let me not mince the matter. Frankly I am pleased with the political situation in China and what it signifies. Why? Because the living and moving part of China has revolutionized the character of its patriotism; because the best news of China's revolt is that the insurgents act as if they felt an affinity for foreigners; because if signs do not fail, if they brighten into assured and undeniable facts, this attitude of the Chinese rebel leaders is of great economic significance to all Jews, especially the queue-wearing ones, who dress and look like Chinese; these will have better government.

Here, I venture to think, a few remarks on Chinese Jews are in order. Although it is a matter of dispute as to whether China was known to Biblical writers, I, for my part, identify China with ארץ סיני ("the land of the Sinim"). At any rate, the Jews in Persia from early times were connected with the silk trade, and as a consequence enemies ("Seres" from "ser" שרש) entered into direct relations with the "silk" ("sericum" "silk"), as the Chinese were called by the Romans.

To-day no one knows when the first Jewish settlement in China took place. In an "Account Written by Two Mohammedan Travelers Through India and China," in 851, it is stated that "The Jews have been settled in China from time immemorial." Again, and unfortunately, we read in the same book, "Many of these Jews, for the sake of riches and preferment, have abjured their own religion." Jewish and Arabic writers of the ninth and fourteenth centuries confirm the existence of old Jewish commercial colonies in China, and Marco Polo refers to the powerful commercial and political influence of the Jews in China.

Further it is well known among Jewish scholars that the Chinese Jews had for ages, in conformity with Gen. xxxii.,

*Isa., xlix., 12.

33, extracted the sinews from the animals slain for food. By this the Chinese were so impressed that they gave the Jews the name of "sinew-pluckers."

Also the Sabbath and Jewish festivals were steadily observed by them, including the feast of Simhat Torah, in which the early Jesuits saw the Jews carry the thirteen scrolls of the law in procession around the Bet-El Ark. The Song of Moses, however, was read the day before on Shemini Azeret. Besides the Hebrew scrolls of the law the Chinese Jews of that day also had other books, including the Ta-King, or Temple Scripture, counting the fifty-three parashiyot for the Sabbaths of the year, written in large Hebrew letters with vowel points, accents and other scribal signs.

China's past rulers, many of them, can be likened to some addled spaniel chasing its tail and so giving an exhibition of much motion with no progress. At any rate most Chinese emperors have but feebly and imperfectly discharged their moral and political obligations to their subjects. What were the consequences? China has for centuries been a hotbed of religious and political intrigues. Also there have been many rebellions with sorrowful consequences to the Chinese Jews.

I could detail many cases where such rebellions were of distinct disadvantage to the welfare of Jews in China. However, space forbids stating more than one particular case—the Ming dynasty fell during China's rebellion of 1642, in which synagogues were destroyed and many Jews massacred. Fortunately the sacred scrolls of the law were rescued by a Jewish mandarin who, together with his brother, rebuilt the synagogues in 1653. Of this Ming dynasty Tai-tson was the founder and he granted land and additional privileges to the Jews of Kai-Fung-Foo in 1163. How these Jews erected homes and synagogues and waxed rich and powerful can be read in translations of Chinese inscriptions printed in English by the Jewish Quarterly Review, xiii. The largest massacre of Chinese Jews occurred in 884 during a political revolt at Canfu.

Back tracking Jewish history we see how again and again certain mandarins and emperors of China, like European rulers of a later date, sought to convert their Hebrew subjects. But, dear reader, you may write it on the tablets of your heart that the bittern carrying on his trade by the side of some swamp is about as influential in stopping a true-hearted orthodox Hebrew from worshipping Adonai as a dozen mortal monarchs combined.

And that brings me abreast of monarchs in general. How many kings, think you, will there be in this world in five hundred years? I consider this a pertinent question in view of the fact that we are living in a period of wonderful transition, when working classes are speedily acquiring the levels due to their different amounts of intellectual development.

Years ago the abject European peasant was a personification of obedience to his priest or king. It only wanted a dog's wagging tail to complete the picture. In China the priesthood of royalty commanded even more submissiveness.
 Now all that is changed and the poor little pig-tailed, long-nailed and absurdly decorated Chinese five-year-old Emperor, Hsuan-Tung, is ostensibly made to say in his imperial edict "That old laws which are unsuitable will be abolished." And, I warrant you, it requires no political acumen to perceive that China is rapidly approaching popular government. To me it looks as if Moses knew more about political economy than most of our modern statesmen.

Centuries ago Moses loved his people with a pathetic intensity; like a mother he cared for the future of Israel. Did that wise law giver foist a king on the Israelites? Assuredly not. He knew better. Moses understood that kings can easily become tyrants. With prophetic vision he foresaw such monsters as a Spanish Philip bespattering Spain with the innocent blood of his Jewish subjects. Or to come to a later date, we have the no less odious character of our Russian Czar.

However, the Israelites insisted on having a king. Their prophet, Samuel, divinely inspired by Jehovah, told them

It is stated that M. Bakhmetieff, the newly appointed Russian Minister who arrived in Washington this week, has the authority of his government to open negotiations for a revision of the treaty of 1832, which Russia has persistently violated in respect to passports held by American Jews.

Dr. Charles Waldstein, of New York, has resigned from the Slade professorship of fine arts at the University of Cambridge (England), in order that the staff might be increased and a younger man take his place. Dr. Waldstein has presented the university with $5,000 with this object in view.

By the death of Dr. Jacob Hamburger, at the age of eighty-seven, the oldest rabbi in Germany has passed away. He was chief rabbi of the Jewish communities in the Grand Duchy of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and served in that capacity for fifty-two years. Of his numerous works the best known is the "Realezyklopadie fur Bibel und Talmud."

The Siberian Real Russians have become alarmed at M. Kokovtzeff's decisions to allow the Jews settled in Siberia before 1909 to remain there, and they dispatched a wire to the Premier urging further exiles. This concession has already borne fruit, the Governor-General of the Amur district cancelling half of the expulsions recently ordered by him.

Anti-Jewish disturbances of considerable magnitude took place in Keltzi, Poland, early this month. The new recruits attacked several groups of Jews, wounding many of them. On November 3, on the occasion of the anniversary of the great pogrom at Odessa, memorial services were held in all the local synagogues and at the common grave of the victims.

At the examinations for junior and schools exhibitions, held in October at Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland, Max Nurock obtained first place, winning the Erasmus Smith prize of £35 per annum, tenable for four years. He was also successful in gaining entrance prizes in Latin prose composition (first), Latin verse composition (first), and in Greek verse (second).

Several diplomas of honor and medals were awarded to Jewish colonists in the Argentine for their exhibits at the South American Agricultural Show held in Brazil. The Minister of Agriculture of the Argentine congratulated the Jewish Agricultural Society on the success achieved by its members, and he expressed the hope that it would serve as a model for similar corporations in the republic.

JEWES AND SCIENCE

By B. HOROWITZ.

Fourth Series—No. 12—Ludwig Traube

"This is the age of specialism," is the universal cry nowadays. Knowledge has become far too vast for any one man, be he ever so much a genius, to embrace it all. Constant subdivision—division into pigeonholes, so to speak—is essential; and the great mind can at best hope to master the contents of but one and only one of these many and rapidly increasing divisions.

The impression has gone abroad that in science a man never becomes a shining light unless he devotes himself to one branch of it, to the exclusion of all other studies. That is far from being the case. True, his mind must be principally occupied with his particular scientific investigations, but not exclusively so. In fact, if it is, he may become a specialist, but never a great man. The great man is the original thinker, the philosopher, the one who can dive deeper beneath the surface than the ordinary mortal, and bring forth to view some grand laws of nature, some of those eternal truths "which Time withereth not." The specialist, the narrow-minded individual who, if he be a chemist, knows of nothing except his chemistry, or if he be a physicist, knows naught else but physics, has never been known to accomplish this. All intellectual pursuits are of interest to the great mind; and are cultivated by the great man, though not, of course, each to an equal extent. The litterateur who scoffs at test-tube work may become a professor of English at a university, but will never become a Shakespeare; the scientist who dismisses aught else but science as a "lot of hot air" may also hope to grace a professorial chair, but he will never rise to the height of a Newton.

I happened to be reading the lives of three great scientists lately—Kelvin, Clerk Maxwell and Wilhelm Ostwald. Kelvin, that towering figure in the field of physics, was passionately fond of music, and assiduously cultivated it; Clerk Maxwell's metaphysical essays and poems are as well worth reading as his scientific work, which was of paramount importance; Ostwald's articles on various burning questions of the day rival in popularity those of Maximilian Harden, Germany's foremost political writer. And in reading over these biographies we repeatedly find evidence of how wide and varied their interests were.

These prefatory remarks are made with the object of introducing my readers to Ludwig Traube, the renowned pathologist, and brother of Moritz, of whom I have already written. It is recorded of Ludwig that throughout his life he took a decided interest in metaphysical speculations, and especially in the philosophy of Spinoza, "that God-intoxicated man," as Novalis calls him. Now, Traube was primarily a pathologist, a scientist of the strictly practical kind, and it would seem that to such a one the merely speculative would come in for little appreciation. No doubt that would have been true were Traube to have been the mere specialist. He rose, however, to be far more than that; together with Virchow and one or two others he became the founder of the modern school of pathology. His researches were epoch-making and of far-reaching influence. And can we doubt that this intimacy with the thoughts of the thinkers of all ages tended to help him clear some of the pathological mists that would at times dim his vision? The great man, the God-inspired man with God-inspired thoughts—to such a one all nature becomes his province. He selects his particular pigeonhole for particular attention, but never loses sight of the other pigeonholes. "The poet who could merely sit on a chair and compose stanzas would never make a stanza worth much," says Carlyle. And it may be added that the scientist who can merely handle a test-tube skillfully will never make a discovery worth much.

Ludwig Traube was born in Ratibor in 1818. His early education he received in a private school, and from ten to seventeen attended the gymnasium in Ratibor, where he excelled in mathematics and philosophy. In 1835 he migrated to the University of Breslau to study medicine, but here he seems to have been most attracted by the philological discourses of Purkinge, and privately pursued his favorite philo-

Provincial Rabbis Speak Out Strongly at Manchester Convention—Lord Rothschild's Seventy-first Birthday—Stories of His Career—A Jewish Writer and Anti-Semite—United Synagogue Moving in Matter of an Ecclesiastical Head.

London, Nov. 10, 1911.
The question of the Anglo-Jewish Rabbinate formed the subject of a conference held at Manchester on November 7 and caused widespread interest among provincial Jewry. Rabbi I. J. Yoffey, one of the foremost orthodox rabbis in this country, and a scholar of great Continental repute, was the chief speaker, and in the course of an address, which consisted mainly of Hebrew quotations, said that the main question at issue was whether it was at all advisable to preserve the office of the chief rabbinate as it was at present constituted. He regretted to state that the chief rabbinate of this country had failed to act in accordance with the principles as laid down in the traditional Jewish law.

It endeavored to be the only authority, weakening and minimizing any other authority, no matter how high in repute. Its policy of centralizing all rabbinical matters within its own jurisdiction and authority, he contended, was entirely opposed to the best interests of the Jewish community. Orthodox rabbis, he continued, had been greatly discouraged and depressed at the unfavorable attitude of the chief rabbinate toward them. Obstacles had always been put in their way which hindered them from doing any work for the welfare of Judaism in this country. The rabbis here had never been consulted on doubtful and difficult religious questions.

The chief rabbinate had much preferred to consult with laymen who were ignorant of deep Jewish law, and this policy had led to grave and serious blunders. He thought it was only right to disclose the fact that though the surface relationships between the orthodox rabbis and the chief rabbinate looked smooth and calm, beneath it was seething like boiling water. In conclusion he said that so long as the system of the chief rabbinate remained unchanged he failed to see the necessity for such an office. A notable contribution to the symposium was made by S. Finburgh, one of Manchester's leading Jewish citizens, who advocated the distribution of the work of the chief rabbinate and the institution of Beth Dins in provincial centers.

Other speakers maintained that English Jewry was the most disorganized Jewry in the world, and that the only Jewish seminary in this country (the Jews' College) had failed in its endeavor to produce the right kind of men for the Jewish ministry.

Lord Rothschild, who was seventy-one years old on November 8, is one of the most notable living leaders of his race. To him his co-religionists owe much. Like his grandfather, the founder of the great financial house whose headquarters are in New Court, London, and whose operations embrace the whole world in their scope, he may well be described as "Le Juif des rois et le roi de Juifs."

He was the first professing Jew to be raised to an English peerage, as his father was the first Jew to take his seat in the House of Commons. A close friend of the late King Edward, whom he first met in his student days at Trinity College, Cambridge, Lord Rothschild has exerted an influence on international politics which, though unbruted abroad, and largely unknown to the public, has been such as few private citizens could have exerted. It has been his lot to think in millions and always a staunch friend of this country, he has on more than one occasion saved it from serious dilemmas. It was for one of these timely interventions, when he saved Egypt, shortly after it came under British control, from financial disaster, that he was created a peer. He helped Lord Beaconsfield to buy the Khedive's Suez Canal shares for Britain, and organized a guarantee fund of $5,000,000 during the Baring crisis in 1891. Cecil Rhodes turned to him for financial support for the acquisition of the competing interests in the Kimberley diamond mines, without which he could not proceed with his schemes for the extension of British power in South Africa. Again, during the Boer war he came to the aid of the government by taking large blocks for his own firm of the loan which was issued.

It is told of him that he once refused a profit of nearly $10,000,000 offered by the Russian Government for the raising of a loan of $500,000,000 for the formation of a European syndicate, because he would not help a government which found itself unable to treat his co-religionists with common humanity. The making of money, indeed, is one of the smallest parts of Lord Rothschild's activities. Charity occupies a very large part of his interest. It is said that he spends $500,000 a year in philanthropy, but no one really knows except himself, and the sum is probably rather under than over the mark. One department of the bank in New Court is exclusively devoted to philanthropic work. The charity of the Rothschilds, like their wealth, is known and felt far and wide.

Member of Parliament for Aylesbury for twenty years, lord lieutenant of his country for many years, a privy councillor, and the head of the city, Lord Rothschild has had honors showered upon him by a grateful people, to whom he has always been a loyal and devoted friend. His work as treasurer of the King Edward Hospital Fund, his munificent support of all Jewish charities, notably the Jews' Free School, and his activities in a hundred directions—financial, charitable, agricultural, and political—have given him a position of influence probably unequaled to-day.

In the course of an article a writer—a well-known London Jew—in the current issue of the Jewish Review makes the statement that "it is now admitted on all hands, even by those who till recently were most strenuous in their demands, that anti-Semitism has come to England, and even come to stay. There is no longer any need to argue or prove its existence, which may henceforth be taken for granted."

This statement is held by members of the community to be as unfounded as it is harmful and the community here which enjoys the pleasures of a free land will lose no opportunity of dissociating themselves from the remarks of the author. In trying to find a reason for the presence of so-called anti-Semitism the author says that Jews should disabuse their minds of an idea that has taken root with the Anglo-Jewish community and greatly interferes with its clearness of vision—"the idea that the whole existence of the Jews in England is bound up with the fact of there being no anti-Semitism here and that they are lost if once that monster is allowed to raise its head. The transition from an unwarranted sense of security to an exaggerated feeling of alarm is easy and natural, but it is not conducive to a calm consideration of the danger to be faced."

The author takes comfort in the fact that Jews manage to live in other countries where anti-Semitism has been a recognized fact for decades. So why should anti-Semitism interfere with their progress in England? The author goes on to ascribe some of the anti-Semitism of Englishmen to German influence. According to the writer of the article there is some hope for the Jew, for he finds that England is more or less free from "social anti-Semitism."

On the whole, the Jews in England find little difficulty in associating with non-Jews so far as they themselves desire. This is due in no small measure to the fact that the late King admitted Jews freely to his society, and in his own intimate circle entirely broke down the barrier between Jew and non-Jew. The present King seems to be following in his footsteps in this matter, and in the face of these examples the English people, as a whole, cannot well refuse full social equality to Jews, so far as difference of taste and customs permit." The author proceeds to make statements, which, coming from the pen of a Jew, is held in certain quarters to be calculated to adversely affect the favorable position so far enjoyed by Hebrews in the British Isles.

The Council of the United Synagogue at a representative meeting held in London on November 7, discussed a resolution to the following effect: "That the Executive Committee be requested to confer at any early date with representatives of other bodies in the United Kingdom contributing to the maintenance of the office of Chief Rabbi as to the duties and emoluments of such office, and as to the mode of election and all details connected therewith, and that the report of the deliberations of such conference be laid before the council in due course."

A. H. Jessel, who moved the resolution, said that the council and the community will have anticipated that the honorary officers of the United Synagogue, which was intimately bound up with the chief rabbinate, would invite some steps to fill the vacant office caused by the death of Dr. Adler. Considerable time had elapsed since Dr. Adler's death, and if the office was to be filled up, they would agree that no time should be lost in filling it up. The late chief rabbi in his will expressed a dying wish that the office should be filled up, and he was sure they would desire to pay to this request the greatest possible respect. Dr. Adler invited them to find a man who would reconcile the conflicting interests of the community, and it was essential that the office should be occupied very shortly. Under their foundation deed of trust it was incumbent upon the United Synagogue to undertake this duty. In clause 8 of the Foundation Deed of Trust it was provided that when a vacancy should occur in the office steps should be taken to fill the office and decide as to the mode of election. One could not help feeling that the maintenance of the office of chief rabbi was essential to the community. It required an ecclesiastical head.

He particularly called attention to the phraseology of the resolution. The form had been carefully chosen, and was based on precedent. According to "The Voice of Jacob," which was owned by the late Joseph Franklin, an uncle of Leonard Franklin, and by Jessel's father, on October 31, 1842, Dr. Herschell died. Dr. Herschell, who was Chief Rabbi of London and the provinces, and also the recognized ecclesiastical authority in the British Colonies, died in October, and before the issue of "The Voice of Jacob" for November 25 a meeting had been held at the Great Synagogue, when a resolution was passed with the object of filling up the office. Even in that short interval the Liverpool congregation passed a resolution emphasizing the need of appointing a chief rabbi. In 1843 a meeting was held in the Great Synagogue, at which representatives were present from London and the provinces. The conditions of the office were enumerated at that meeting and the method of election was decided upon. It was based on the contributory system. The synagogues had votes according to their contributions. An election was held in each synagogue, and the person elected in each synagogue carried with him the votes recorded. On August 21, 1844, there were 13 applications for the post. The election took place in December, 1844, and on July 9 Dr. Nathan Adler was installed and preached in German, though he could speak in English. The resolution was carried with only two dissentients.

In order to insure the insertion of communications in the current issue of THE HEBREW STANDARD they must be in this office not later than Wednesday noon of the week in which they are to appear.

We have it now, on the high authority of the American correspondent of Die Welt, that a new interpretation of the Basle programme was made by the last international Zionist congress. This will set at rest, we hope, the denials that have been made to this end by certain Zionists, wise and otherwise.

The United Synagogue of London has been well advised to draw the provincial Jewries of England into a conference on the successor of the late Chief Rabbi. The keynote of this action is the desire to secure the leadership religiously of a man who is able to decide Jewish religious questions besides representing the community worthily in outside fields. This method of approaching the settlement of the present crisis in Anglo-Jewry is at once statesmanlike and truly Jewish.

We have in another place in this issue commented on the passport conference of last Friday. It was by all accounts very well attended, but we think that those who perfected the arrangements therefor were guilty of a faux pas (to call it nothing else) in not inviting Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle to be present and speak. Judge Goldfogle is a Jew and a member of the House of Representatives and has throughout a long chain of years fought on behalf of the American passport in the hands of American Jews in Russia. He surely is more entitled to be invited to a conference like the one held on Friday last than the so-called Jewish leaders who follow rather than lead. Last Friday's conference was held without Congressman Goldfogle being present, a state of affairs comparable to a performance of Hamlet without the melancholy Dane.

As Israel's mission throughout the ages has been peace, we are naturally in perfect agreement with those who favor the prompt ratification of the pending treaties of arbitration between this country and Great Britain and France by the Senate of the United States. These treaties once inscribed on our statute books as the law of the land, it is not too much to hope that then we shall have the beginning of that league of peace for which all the nations of the world have so long been desirous. Of the advantages of such a world-league it is manifestly unnecessary to speak. Suffice it to say, with this league of peace already in existence no such outrageous act of piracy as that which Italy recently practiced on Turkey would have been possible. The league of peace in very unmistakable terms would have made the untenableness of her contention clear to Italy. Let the Senate do its duty promptly and fully by the pending treaties, without regard to partisan influences or claims.

In The Reformed Church Messenger, of Philadelphia, there was recently published a long editorial article on "Mission Work among Jews in Greater New York." Although this contained no names of persons who may be classed among the "dear meshummodim," yet it makes mention of one of our old "friends," the Rev. Thomas M. Chalmers. Mr. Chalmers had undying "fame" thrust upon him as the recipient of a letter from Mayor Gaynor, in which our illustrious chief executive pointed out how fatuous are the pretensions of the missionaries to the Jews and how hollow are the "results" they obtain. The article to which we refer begins as follows:

"Greater New York is the largest Jewish city in the world. It contains 1,200,000 Hebrews. Every fourth person is a Jew. 'What shall we as Christians do with them? Or, reversing the question, what will they do with us? Our task is clear, namely, to bring to them the Gospel of Christ, in whom alone is found salvation and blessing for Jew and Gentile alike.'

We, too, have an answer to the question, "What shall we as Christians do with them (the Jews)?" but it reads rather differently from that furnished by The Reformed Church Messenger. We think that Christians, as Christians, should leave the Jews severely alone. If the Jews are so stiff-necked as not to accept the salvation and blessing that will come to them (by missionary testimony) through Jesus of Nazareth, on the Jews be the consequences!

THE PASSPORT DELEGATION.

THE conference on the passport problem between the delegates of the various Jewish bodies interested and Senators Elihu Root and James A. O'Gorman last Friday will, it is sincerely to be hoped, be productive of good results. Louis Marshall, as the spokesman for the delegation of our community, presented the subject—this American, not Jewish, Catholic or Protestant question—in circumspect but unambiguous terms. His remarks were dignified and well chosen, and seemed to create a very favorable impression.

The reply of Senator O'Gorman left nothing to be desired. He pledged himself to cast a vote in favor of the abrogation of the existing treaty between Russia and this country, and could not have been expected to do more. It is characteristic, however, of this former learned Justice of the Supreme Court that he should condemn injustice in unmeasured terms, and that he should thus seek to right a wrong which has cried out to heaven for adjustment. Senator Root, with his usual cool deliberateness, did not take up any definite attitude, did not even give any direct indication of what his further attitude on the question would be. Perhaps the Jewish delegates were oversanguine in anticipating a definite expression of opinion from the great lawyer.

We come now to the remarks of Jacob H. Schiff, in the course of which our lay leader, than whom none among us is greater or more well-meaning as a philanthropist, roundly castigated the American envoys, John Hays Hammond and Rockhill for putting dollars ahead of the rights of our citizens in their diplomatic negotiations. We regard Mr. Schiff's address as too frank, and as likely to obfuscate the passport issue. What he said concerning Messrs. Hammond and Rockhill may be true, or at least may rest upon certain undeniable indications toward truth; but his attack upon them does not aid the solution of the passport problem one iota. His speech resolves itself, as is indeed now the case, into a question of personal veracity between Mr. Schiff and Mr. Hammond, and permits the latter to trot out the banker's participation in the Japanese war loans for the delectation of the country. Mr. Schiff, of course, occupies a somewhat unique position in our social fabric; but even this will not prevent his attack on John Hays Hammond from being used by our enemies so as to try to shelve Congressional consideration of the whole passport question.

MERITED APPRECIATION.

IT is not often that the worth of the Jewish immigrant to these shores is testified to with whole-hearted sincerity by prominent public men. Yet recently this favorable verdict upon his desirability has been rendered by two men, whose opinion is entitled to all consideration.

Terence V. Powderly, former head of the Knights of Labor, an active labor organization of this country, latterly head of the Immigration Department of the government, and the present chief of the information division of the Department of Commerce and Labor, paid the following tribute to Jewish worth before the Connecticut Daughters of the American Revolution:

"While certain Americans rail against the Jews they do not meet the Jews in the saloons, they must go to our libraries, reading rooms and schoolhouses to find them, for their first ambition on arriving in this country is to become educated in our language, our customs and governmental system.

"There has been for some years a Jewish removal office in the City of New York. It has worked energetically and well for the removal of the Jews from the seaboard cities to all parts of the United States, practically aiding the work in which the government is engaged. They, more than any other class, recognize the importance of distributing the immigrants where their helpfulness and labor can do the most good.

"The Jews of America strive earnestly and tax themselves heavily to keep their people in respectability and above want. You do not find Jews in jails or poor houses, and we should second the efforts of such worthy citizens by helping them to make good Americans of their co-religionists, who come here from so many lands to be free and untrammelled, to worship God as they please and serve the State by leading upright lives."

Mr. Powderly's estimate of the Jewish immigrant is, moreover, not one whit behind the encomium bestowed upon the removal work of the different Jewish societies by former Congressman William S. Bennet, who, in the course of a communication to the daily press, said the following:

"The only movements along this line which seems to be meeting with success are those of the Jewish Immigration from New York to Galveston and the Industrial Removal Office in New York city, which is placing Hebrews who do not fit into New York city environment or who prefer another environment in other portions of the United States where their material success will be more certain. These movements are probably succeeding because they place people in localities where there is an economic attraction. Canada fails to hold her immigration because the economic attraction of the United States is deemed by the particular aliens who come here to be greater.

In The Reform Advocate Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch is at pains to show that Prof. Werner Sombart's recent volume on the Jews and the economic life was written to fit a theory, and that the author did not first study the facts and fit his theories to these. It is well that this criticism is made, for Sombart's name has always been one with which to conjure in the domain of economics and the average reader undoubtedly overestimates the value of the products of his pen. To say, as Sombart does, that the Jew has always played the part of the nomad in the history of the world, is to give point to the contentions of modern German anti-Semites. While Herr Sombart gladly admits that the Jews have been compelled to wander up and down the civilized world since the Diaspora, this anxiety of his to make the Jew fit his nomadic role causes him to slough over the undeniable facts that Jews have resided constantly in the midst of the modern nations of culture since the downfall of the Western Roman Empire. Moreover, to consider the Jews as the apostles of free trade, per excellence, is to render ridiculous any argument addressed to men of scientific attainments.

PRIDE OF ANCESTRY.

ואלה תולדת יצחק בן-אברהם אברהם חוליד את-יצחק:

"And these are the generations of Isaac, Abraham's son: Abraham begat Isaac." (Gen. xxv:19.)

AND these are the generations... We would say in our language: "And this is the pedigree of Isaac, Abraham's son." Now, family-trees may be rooted in vanity and conceit, but they may also sprout from the soil whence spring all generous human sentiments. Pride of ancestry may be wrong and may be right. It is certainly nothing short of ludicrous that an American millionaire smeared all over with oil and vaseline, with no other claim, to the esteem of men than money can give, should be anxious to prove to the world that in his veins there flows not gasoline but—mirabile dictu—royal blood! For, should this be true, one cannot but pity royal blood for having been diluted, in its downward trickle through sundry arteries, into petroleum! Should, however, this not be true, well, there can be nothing more childish than this pedigree-faking business.

Taking up this question to a higher level, the chief consideration is the following: Nobility is not to be proven by the ancestors, but by the descendants! Granted that all claims to aristocratic origin may be verified according to the approved methods of genealogy, the real claim to aristocracy has yet to be proven by nobility of conduct. The descendants of noble ancestors are not yet noble on the strength of their descent, they can only be noble if they prove worthy of their descent. There is nothing more contemptible than standing in the shadow of a great name. On the other hand, there is many a "nature's gentleman" standing in the broad sunlight of glory, having been placed there by solid achievement. Not descent from high ancestry but ascent to high ideals make for nobility. A noble man is his own ancestor!

How large is the army of those who stand in the shadow of great names. How huge the host of "Tumble-down-Dicks!" "Tumble-down-Dick" was the nickname of Richard Cromwell, son of Oliver, who succeeded his celebrated father in the Protectorate for about eight months. An amiable fellow, but without the strength and the talents of his forbear, he merely stood in the shadow of a great name. Years after his abdication it is reported that he visited Westminster, and when the attendant, who did not recognize him, showed him the throne, he said: "Yes, I have not seen that chair since I sat in it myself in 1659." A pathetic answer this; and in most cases, the pretensions of those who pride themselves on their ancestry without being able to back up their inflated claims with virtues of their own, are bare of the saving grace of pathos.

It would seem from the foregoing that pride of ancestry is wrong in all cases or at best, that it is unnecessary, since the genuinely noble, in a human sense, need no ancestry, and those who are in a human sense ignoble cannot be elevated by any artificial standard of nobility. Yet I have prefaced these remarks by saying that pride of ancestry may be wrong and may be right. The wrong kind of ancestral pride is the one above suggested; the kind that merely nourishes vanity and empty boastfulness. What then is the right kind of aristocratic consciousness?

The right kind of ancestral pride is typically Jewish. We Jews are aristocratic by the web and woof of our soul. With our race, the fact that "Isaac is the son of Abraham," and that Jacob is the son Isaac and Abraham, and that we all are sons of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, has been, in ages past, a dominant factor that has determined the course of our historic development. For with us the knowledge of our descent was an incentive and a source of inspiration for living Jewish lives. We knew that we had a debt to pay to the "Sleepers in Hebron." It was not a mere feeling of brute kinship of blood, nor a mere bond of the body, that tied us to the mouldered ashes of our sires. Nor was it ancestor-worship. It was a soul-union born of the assurance that the sparks that burned so brightly, and so compellingly in their souls continue to blaze in our own spirit; it was a living faith in the God of the Fathers, that caused the Sons to follow the ancient paths, to feel at one, in aspiration and conduct, with the past and its sainted heroes. In short, it was a case of "noblesse oblige" and not a cowardly lying supine in the shadow of the ample branches of our family-tree.

To be sure, where pride of ancestry becomes the motive, or better still, one of the motives, of right conduct touching the duties we owe to past, present and future, there even the most democratic-minded will not withhold from it a modicum of praise. But now, the question with us Jews is whether we today are still guided by this motive toward great achievements? The motive still exists, for Jewish pride, Jewish aristocracy is just as patent as ever. But whither does it lead us? Are we not mere braggarts whose strength lies in their tongues? Are we not merely standing in the shadow of great names? What are we doing to prove worthy of our heritage as sons of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob? Why, we are trampling under foot that very heritage upon which we base our claims to recognition.

Poor "Tumble-down-Dicks," spiritually speaking—that's what we are!

RABBI JOEL BLAU.

If Friday, the 15th of December, is to mark the termination of the active interest of Miss Sadie American in the work of the national council of Jewish Women, it will be a sad day for American Jewry. Miss American is a positive force, and, because of this very fact has made enemies in the council. But she is so invaluable a communal worker that her services ought imperatively to be retained. It is, furthermore, in very questionable taste for her opponents to attempt to forecast the action of the national body when it is altogether likely that the strength of her position will be reinforced.

The pending arbitration treaties between the United States and Great Britain and France have now every prospect of being promptly ratified by the United States Senate. The learned and distinguished president of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers appeals to his colleagues throughout the land to lend their efforts to attain this end. Seriously speaking, this action of the president of the New York Board is entirely appropriate, and bears out what we have said of these treaties themselves in another place. If the Senate fails to ratify these treaties the fault will not lie with the rabbis and preachers and teachers in Israel.

The second annual report of the Jewish prison chaplain of Boston to the Central Jewish Organization of that locality makes interesting and instructive reading, and shows that the percentage of Jewish criminals in the Eastern end of the State of Massachusetts is very low. This is just what one would have been led to expect for the Jew is not addicted to criminal ways and does not desire to lead a criminal life. The Boston Jewish prison chaplain seems to devote considerable part of his time and work to the families of the Jewish criminals under his supervision, thus making an excellent use of his opportunities. For the problem of problems modern penology is not how to harrass the criminal, but to reform him, not how to let his family shift for themselves during his incarceration, but to take proper care of them, finally, not how to restore the ex-convict to society without any helping hand, but to return him (when the social debt has been paid) to his close associations with the wish to become a better man than he was before.

Handsome Women.

In one of the evening papers a day or two ago one of the women writers in reviewing the female occupants of the boxes at the Horse Show gave voice to her surprise in finding so few virile women, most of them having a tired, jaded and worn look; there were very few handsome women, most of them being very commonplace. Then she went on to say she would like to set up a few good scrubwomen beside them, to show the difference in healthy looks.

It may be said without much fear of successful contradiction that the rich, the real rich women, have no monopoly on good looks. Not at all. Indeed, there are really very few handsome women amongst the millionaire class of females. A walk through our great department stores will bring to view a wealth of good looking, aye, handsome girls amongst the saleswomen. The middle classes, and the less favored in wealth classes, have many handsome women.

Go to the opera and scan the boxes and one will quickly conclude that there are few handsome women in them. Watch the equestriennes as they gallop over the roads in Central Park, and note how few, very few, are even commonplace in appearance—in reality most are truly homely. So in Newport and in all the fashionable resorts there are very few distinctively handsome women.

If one will mingle, however, amongst our middle class population there will be found an abundance of really pretty girls.

No, the rich do not monopolize the beautiful women by any means. Fine feathers appear to make fine birds—but they only appear to, but they do not.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Why Was Congressman Goldfogle Ignored?

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
Dear Sir—I inclose herewith a copy of a letter which I have this day mailed to Mr. Jacob H. Schiff and which is self-explanatory.

Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, New York City:
Dear Sir—In this morning's papers I notice that a meeting of the prominent Jews of the city was held at the office of Senator O'Gorman yesterday to petition the United States Senators from the State of New York to interest themselves in the abrogation of the treaty with Russia, made in 1832, for the reason that the Russian Government has failed to recognize the passports of Jewish American citizens.

In looking over the names of the gentlemen present I do not find the name of Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle, representing the Ninth New York District, which contains 91 per cent. of foreign-born citizens, of which 80 per cent. are of Jewish faith.

Congressman Goldfogle is the author of three resolutions, introduced at different periods in the House of Representatives, the first in 1902, calling on the President to remonstrate with the Russian Government and protest against its treatment of Jewish American citizens traveling in Russia. Time and time again he has fought with untiring energy on the floor of the House of Representatives and elsewhere in order to compel Russia to recognize the passports of American Jews. When the State Department inclosed with an application for a passport a circular which in part said, "This department will not issue passports to former Russian subjects or to Jews who intend going to Russian territory unless it has the assurance that the Russian Government will consent to their admission," Congressman Goldfogle openly criticized the State Department and caused the revocation of this circular. In his speech on the floor of the House of Representatives on February 11, 1908, Congressman Harrison in part said: "Why does the State Department inclose such a circular to American citizens? What justification had they for doing so? And why did they subsequently and secretly retract it without informing the man who had protested at the Bureau of Citizenship and thus had brought about this inquiry—my colleague from New York, Mr. Goldfogle?"

Congressman Goldfogle is recognized throughout the United States by every fair-minded and intelligent Hebrew as the father of the Russian passport question. For twelve years he has labored earnestly and sincerely in behalf of the persecuted Russian Jew, and it seems to me that at this time, when forces should be united and when harmony should prevail, with one object in view, a man who has spent his time, his energy and his money in behalf of the cause should not be slighted and ignored.

First on the list to be invited to that conference should have been Representative Henry M. Goldfogle, of New York.
May I ask you to give the matter such consideration as you may deem proper?
Very truly yours,
NATHANIEL G. SCHLAMM.

A Telling Address.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
The address to the graduating class, delivered by Dr. J. E. Reintaler, at the commencement exercises of the training school for nurses of Beth Israel Hospital, last Monday evening, was of unusual excellence. It was learned without being pedantic; it was instructive and inspiring. It was the careful, deliberate expression of opinion of a well-rounded man who knew his subject and knew his audience.

If more of the speeches made at communal gatherings were often of this high standard of excellence, the attendance would be more satisfactory to the management, who nowadays so often deplore the lack of interest. The public is right. It will not allow itself to be bored.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Study the Calendar.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
Ye sages, be heedful of your words. Ethics: i: 11.

Sir—Dr. J. Z. Lauterbach, the newly appointed professor of the Hebrew Union College to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death of Dr. Ephraim Feldman, in his inaugural address, delivered on Sabbath Bereshith, Saturday, October 21, quoting Isaiah xlii: 1-5, informs his auditors of the fact that these latter quotations have been read on the very morning as part and parcel of the Sabbath's Haphtorah. This is erroneous, the prophetic verses referred to were chanted on Sabbath Bereshith of last year. This year, however, this particular Saturday preceded the new moon of Marheshvon, in which particular instance the day's Haphtorah was taken from Samuel, first book, twentieth chapter, verses 13-42.

The professor of Talmud, studying diligently the treatise of Menachoth to such an enormous extent as to make of one of its complicated passages an exhaustive Pilpul, the flavor of which turned sweet savor unto the reform prelates and their progressive adherents, this Talmudic instructor forgot or never learned the tractate of Megillah, one of the last pages of which prescribes the prophetic declamations for the various Saturdays of the year, making special mention of such a one as it happened this year.

The newly made professor, moreover, comparing himself in the course of his casultries to Rabbi Akiba, arraigned himself before public tribunals. Rabbi Akiba, indeed, prayed every day. Rabbi Lauterbach, on the other hand, never did attend services on that Sabbath or else he would have heard the reading of the proper Haphtorah. And yet, if the professor would have only consulted the calendar, even the much abused Jewish year book, he might have turned immune.

Absolutely the Purest Table Water

In all the world there is no other known spring like the great, never-falling

Spring in the side of a two thousand-foot mountain at Ellenville, New York. It was first tapped, long before the Revolution, by a prospector, who tunneled five hundred feet into the mountainside.

Then, for more than a century, it was lost, and in its stead there seemed to exist nothing but a legend of a spring of wonderful purity.

In 1905 it was rediscovered and in 1906 the property surrounding the spring was acquired, the finest and most sanitary water plant in the world was erected, and the water, in still and sparkling form, put on the market at a moderate price.

It is bottled ONLY at the spring, but is on sale everywhere.

Sun-Ray table water is delicious and absolutely the purest in the world, and can be drunk in any quantity with positive benefit.

SOCIAL.

Mr. W. Crost and family, of the Hotel Victoria, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., have returned to New York for the winter months, where they will remain until next May. They are located at No. 121 West 114th street.

The whist, given by the Ladies' auxiliary of the Jewish Maternity Hospital, at the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria, on Monday, November 21, was a huge success financially and socially.

On Sunday, November 26, 1911, at 4.30 o'clock, the marriage of Miss Rose Grodinsky, of 60 East Ninety-third street, to Mr. Harry Lunitz will be solemnized at the Synagogue of Congregation Kehilath Jeshurun, 117 East Eighty-fifth street. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Drs. Margolies and Kaplan.

A whist and pinochle was given by the New York Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society of Denver, Colo., Tuesday, November 14, at the Elsmere. Mrs. Philip Weinberg was the chairlady and the affair was a great success. The proceeds will go toward the second New York Ladies' Pavilion at Denver, Colo.

The marriage of Mr. Louis Brody, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Lina Scheinberg, of New York, in Philadelphia Tuesday, November 21, was an event that removes from this city, and Harlem in particular, one of its most charming matrons. Mrs. Scheinberg was prominently identified with many charitable endeavors and was extremely popular in social circles. Possessing a lovely disposition, she endeared herself to all whom she meets. Her advent in Philadelphia is a distinct gain to the city of Brotherly Love, a loss to New York. The bridal couple will spend their honeymoon visiting Western cities, after which they will reside in Philadelphia.

Preparations are rapidly nearing completion for the fair to be held by the Rodeph Shalom Sisterhood at Park & Tilford's building, 126th street and Lenox avenue, on December 2, 3 and 4. The fair is given to raise funds to enable the sisterhood to carry on its charity work, upon which the advancing winter is making increased demands. The sisterhood maintains a home at No. 157 East Ninety-fourth street, and has charge of the East Side, district extending from Ninetieth to Ninety-sixth streets, a district which has numerous poor and an especially large number afflicted with tuberculosis.

A bridge whist was held at the Waldorf on the afternoon of Wednesday, November 15, for the benefit of the day nursery of the Sisterhood of Social Workers at 13 East 101st street. The affair was a most successful and enjoyable one, and many players showed their appreciation of the good work of the Sisterhood by enrolling as regular members of the society. Those in charge of the bridge received many compliments for the able management of the affair, which was in the hands of Miss Sadie Bruckheimer, assisted by Meses L. Wallstein, A. Herman, H. Kaempfer, C. Newman, H. Feldman, M. Oppenheim, D. Zimmer, D. Doernberg, B. Berliner, M. Greenhall, J. Heilbron, E. Kramer, N. Joseph, and the Meses P. Rosenberger, A. Dreyfuss, E. Gensler, D. Services in Memory of Dr. Asher.

In commemoration of the second Yahrzeit of the late Rev. Professor Joseph Mayor Asher services in his memory were held at the synagogue of the Congregation Orach Chaim on Thursday evening last. Fitting and touching addresses were delivered by Rabbis M. S. Margolies, D. De Sola Pool and Henry S. Morais and an "El Molay Rachamim" was recited by Cantor I. Mitnick.

On the afternoon of the same day services were also held in the synagogue of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

Bronx Y. M. H. A.

The first of the series of Friday Evening exercises at the Y. M. H. A. of the Bronx began last Friday with Rev. Dr. Elias L. Solomon as the lecturer and Rev. Goldsmith as the cantor. This (Friday) Rabbi Alexander Basil, of Montefiore Temple, will speak. The public is cordially invited.

Saturday evening, November 25, Professor Guthrie, of C. C. N. Y., will speak on "The Revival of Democracy."

ALL THE WORLD LOVES A WINNER.

More of Tip-Top Bread Is Eaten Than Any Other Bread—Made by the Ward Bread Company, the Largest Bread Concern in the World.

Bread must be made in a sanitary manner in order to make it valuable as a food. We are apt to think that no bread is made in quite so cleanly a manner or surrounded by such careful attention to details as the bread baked in our own kitchen. This is a mistake. Bread that is made from dough scientifically mixed, and the best ingredients that money can buy and baked in large, modern ovens in a temperature that is always absolutely the same, is certain to be wholesome, nutritious and delicious.

In an enormous bakery such as the one in which Ward's Tip-Top Bread is made and baked, every detail is carefully watched, and the sanitary conditions are as near perfect as science, brains and money can make them.

A big concern, such as Ward's Bread Company, can use the best materials for bread making that are to be procured, because they buy in such enormous quantities. Hundreds of thousands of barrels of flour are bought at one time. Tons of other ingredients are bought in a similar huge way. Thousands and thousands of loaves are mixed and baked at one time. In this way a loaf of Ward's Tip-Top Bread that costs us 5c., would cost 15c. or 20c. if we made it ourselves from the same high-grade material.

Bread is the food of all nations, and people should eat a great deal of good white bread, such as Ward's Tip-Top Bread. The U. S. Government's Department of Agriculture says in one of its reports that bread is one of the most palatable, nutritious, convenient and digestible cereal preparations for general use that is made. It also says, in another of its reports, that white bread is the most economical and the most easily digested, and the most nutritious of foods.

Of course, we all know, from our own experience, that there are many different kinds of bread sold in this great city, and we also know that there is a great difference in the quality and the flavor of these different breads. A good point to always bear in mind when you buy bread is to ask for Ward's Tip-Top Bread and see that it bears their label. Ask for it by name—then you are certain of getting one of the best white breads made anywhere in the world and made under modern scientific management in an absolutely sanitary manner, as personally observed by Louis N. Hammerling, president of the American Association of Foreign Newspapers.

The health of humanity is the first principle of life, and the first principle of health depends on a careful selection of the foods that we put into our stomach.

Select your bread right by buying Ward's Tip-Top Bread.

Young Women's Hebrew Association.

The speaker at services this (Friday) evening will be Mr. Sylvan Robinson.

There will be a literary and musical evening of the Esther J. Ruskay Religious Circle, on Sunday evening, November 26, to which the public is cordially invited.

On Wednesday evening, November 22, Mrs. Frederick Nathan gave an interesting talk on the work of the Consumers' League, at an open meeting of the Ateres Reus.

The trade class in sewing that has been organized by the New York lodges of the United Order of True Sisters is progressing splendidly, and all the members of the class are most enthusiastic over their work. The aim of the course is to prepare girls for one of the best of all trades—the sewing trade. The class meets on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Much gratitude is felt toward those ladies through whose generous efforts the class has been made possible.

Jewish Farmers to Convene.

The third annual convention of the Federation of Jewish Farmers of America will be held at the Educational Alliance on November 27, 28 and 29. Among those who will speak at the public session Monday evening are Mayor Gaynor, Messrs. Isidore Straus, Jacob H. Schiff, Alfred Jaretski and Prof. Morris Loeb.

Senators to Aid in Passport Fight.

A delegation of representative New York Jews assembled at the office of United States Senator O'Gorman, No. 37 Wall street, this city, last Friday to enlist the support of the two United States Senators from New York in having the Senate either force Russia to live up to the terms of the Russian-American treaty of 1832 in recognizing the passports of Jewish-American citizens and others, or to abrogate the treaty entirely, although it is one of the oldest in existence between the United States and any European power.

Besides Senators O'Gorman and Root the following were present: Louis Marshall, Oscar S. Straus, Isidor Straus, Simon W. Rosendale, Isaac N. Seligman, Daniel Guggenheim, Rev. J. L. Magnes, Julius J. Dukas, Rev. Maurice H. Harris, William Fischman, Dr. Solomon Neuman, Judge M. Warley Platzek, Leon Kamaiky, Rev. Joseph Silverman, Samuel B. Hamburger, Cyrus L. Sulzburger, Dr. Herbert Fridenwald, William G. McAdoo, Professor Morris Loeb, L. Napoleon Levy, Rev. Samuel Schulman, Samson Lachman, Leopold Plaut, George Blumenthal, Joseph Barondess, Max J. Kohler, Rabbi M. S. Margolies, Harry Fischel, Dr. P. A. Siegelstein, Judge Leon Sanders, Samuel Dorf, Edward Lauterbach, Rev. Bernard Drachman, Dr. Israel Friedlander and Nathan Lamport.

Louis Marshall pointed out that for nearly forty years Russia had departed from the accepted interpretation of the treaty by refusing to recognize passports issued by the State Department at Washington when presented by Jews, Roman Catholic priests and Protestant missionaries.

Mr. Schiff told of the efforts that had been made to get the President to do something. He said:

"President Taft has assured many delegations from New York and other cities that this matter of the discrimination against certain classes of American citizens in Russia would be looked into. He called the attention of Mr. Rockhill, then ambassador, to it, and Ambassador Rockhill said he considered the matter of importance. Mr. Rockhill said he was very busy trying to arrange certain matters of business for American manufacturers in Russia, and that he had no time to spend upon getting a direct construction of the treaty from the Russian Government."

Mr. Schiff created a sensation by charging that John Hayes Hammond had been used by the Russian Government in an endeavor to influence the President from acting on the passport question. This statement Mr. Hammond later denied.

Senator O'Gorman then addressed the following remarks:

"The grievance of which you complain seems to be well founded and in my judgment calls for immediate redress. For more than thirty years Russia has disregarded the provisions of the treaty of 1832, which requires equality of treatment of the citizens and subjects of the two nations.

"Under the genius of our institutions no such discrimination is permissible in this land and we cannot allow our citizens to be subjected to such treatment abroad. The American people will tolerate no treaty that excludes from its protection two million of our citizens.

"Entertaining these views, I shall give my support to the resolution now pending in the Senate unless Russia immediately abandons her present attitude, which is irreconcilable with our treaty rights and the rights guaranteed all citizens by the fundamental law of the Republic."

Senator Root said: "I feel honored at being requested by the distinguished citizens present to use my influence to see that Russia will change her construction of the treaty. I will certainly use my influence to do so."

Annual Meeting of National Jewish Hospital.

The annual meeting of the National Jewish Hospital of Denver, Colo., was held at the Hotel Astor, this city, last Sunday morning. Much interest was attached in the outcome of the defalcation of the late treasurer, Alfred Muller, and when it was announced that the entire $70,000 shortage had been made good there was much joy. Ten thousand dollars was realized on a surety bond, $20,000 on a life insurance policy and the remaining $40,000 was made up by the trustees. In fact, the subscriptions amounted to $12,000 more than the requisite sum and the hospital is that much better off at present.

The president's report showed that The Junior League of the New York Board of Trustees reported that a national junior body was in process of formation. The work of the juniors, which consists of interesting the younger people in the work of the hospital and in looking after consumptives and taking care of their families after they have been sent to Denver, has been confined to this city, but is now being extended to other parts of the country.

Mrs. S. Pisko, of Denver, was elected secretary in place of Mr. Muller. The other officers elected were: President, S. Grabfelder, of Louisville; first vice-president, David May, of St. Louis; second vice-president, Louis Gerstley, of Philadelphia; third vice-president, the Rev. Dr. William S. Friedman, of Denver; treasurer, Ben Altheimer, of St. Louis.

In the evening a reception in honor of the officers and directors was given by the New York Board of Directors at the Astor. The Rev. Joseph Silverman presided and addresses were made by Mr. Grabfelder, Martin Marks, of Cleveland; Mrs. Pisko, Mr. Altheimer and Fred Guggenheim, president of the Junior League.

Banquet of Foreign Language Newspapers.

The third annual banquet of the American Association of Foreign Newspapers, Louis Hamerling, president, was given by Mr. Hamerling in the Hotel Knickerbocker Saturday evening, November 18, in honor of Hon. George B. Cortelyou, ex-Secretary of the United States Treasury. Covers were laid for 400 guests, including the members of President Taft's Cabinet, which was represented by the United States Attorney-General, Postmaster-General Hitchcock, Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel and many other distinguished guests of national and local importance. Mr. Hamerling is to be congratulated for the success of the banquet and for having such a distinctive assemblage interested in the work of foreign language newspapers, all competent to discuss the merits of such publications and also the menu in all its courses and ramifications, which they did nobly and appropriately.

Beth Israel Training School for Nurses

The eighth annual exercises of the Beth Israel Hospital Training School for Nurses, took place Monday evening at the Tuxedo Hall, Madison avenue and Fifty-ninth street. The graduating class consisted this year of eighteen nurses. The exercises included addresses by Mr. Abram I. Elkus, J. E. Reinthaler, M. D. Mr. Joseph H. Cohen and Mr. A. E. Rothstein. Mr. Abraham Nelson awarded the prizes and Mrs. Janet Lander Nicol was the valedictorian.

A number of improvements have been made in the nurses' home during the past year, among which are the following: The establishment of a library, the furnishing of a comfortable reception-room, the assignment of a lecture-hall, the installation of a diet-kitchen, and the building of a roof-garden.

Jewish Chautauqua Correspondence School Ready.

The Jewish Chautauqua Society has issued the prospectus or announcement of its correspondence school. The prospectus sets forth the aims and objects of this new movement which has become possible through the generous gifts of Mr. Jacob H. Schiff and others.

The Correspondence School has been planned during a number of years. It aims to aid teachers and those who wish to qualify themselves as teachers in our religious schools, but are unable to attend the existing schools in Cincinnati, New York and Philadelphia. For this purpose a faculty has been organized consisting of well-known men and women who are specially qualified by years of practical experience to instruct in the special branches assigned to them. Dr. Wm. Rassenau, of Baltimore, has been appointed dean of the faculty.

Council Honors Miss American.

The New York section of the Council Jewish Women held a meeting on Tuesday last at Duryea's, which was in the nature of a reception to Miss Sadie American, who has completed her tenth year as president of the section. In honor of the event Miss American was presented with a set of resolutions, handsomely bound, attesting to the esteem in which she is held by the members, and paying tribute to the progress of the council through her efforts. There were 1,500 signers to the resolutions.

Dr. Anna Shaw was a speaker at the meeting, after which there was a reception and tea.

Ohab Zedek Lecture Course.

The second in the series of Friday evening lectures at the Ohab Zedek Synagogue, West 116th street, will be delivered this Friday evening at 8.15. Rev. Dr. Elias L. Solomon will speak on "The Purpose of Legalism." The public is cordially invited to attend.

Proper Beer Bottling.

Geo. Ehrets' beers in the many years of their brewing have attained a standard of excellence which is undisputed, but at the same time in ordering this well-known brand for family use it would be well for the intending consumer to look well into the manner in which it has been bottled. One of the leading bottlers of this beer is Mr. Albert Ahrens, whose establishment at No. 423 East Ninety-first street is up to date in every way and where such care and diligence are exercised as to retain for the beer all its health-giving qualities and to properly preserve it without any deterioration until its use.

Mr. Ahrens also bottles mineral waters of every description which have acquired the approval of a discerning populace; and are manufactured in compliance with the fullest and most rigid requirements of the pure food laws.

Daoud Effendi Molho, who was 67 years of age, died at Constantinople on the 31st ult. The deceased was the doyen of the Ottoman Diplomatic Staff, from which he retired two years ago. His intelligent and characteristic figure was well known to all who, for the past thirty-five years, had occasion to frequent the Sublime Porte. The funeral, on November 1, was very largely attended. Said Pasha, the Grand Vizier, personally called on the widow and children to offer his condolences. Hakki Pasha, ex-Grand Vizier, foreign ministers, representatives of the cabinet and many Senators and members of the Chamber of Deputies were present at the burial. The chief rabbi delivered an address at the cemetery.

The press department of the Zionist Central Bureau in Berlin emphatically denies the report stating that the chief rabbi of Tripoli had telegraphed to Rome heartily greeting the occupation by the Italians. For a long time, it is added, there has been no chief rabbi in Tripoli or Benghazi. The chief rabbi of Turkey declares that if any such telegram has been received in Rome it can only be the work of a forger.

INDEPENDENT ORDER BRITH ABRAHAM

United States Grand Lodge, 37 East Seventh Street, New York City.

Approved by the Insurance Department of nearly all the States in the Union.

623 Lodges. Membership, 153,000. For further information address Leon Sanders, Grand Master; Jacob Schoen, Grand Secretary.

The officers of the order for 1911 are: Leon Sanders, grand master, aided and assisted by five deputy grand masters. The first deputy grand master is Max Schwartz, New York city; the second deputy, Julius Friedenber, of Charleston, Mass.; third deputy grand master, H. Willenchen, Philadelphia, Pa.; fourth deputy grand master, Benjamin Meisler, Newark, N.J.; fifth deputy grand master, Geo. Sulton, of Chicago. All of these officers fully understand their duties and are aiding the grand master in every possible way. They are always in touch with the grand lodge and keep Grand Secretary Schoen and his assistants busy.

The grand treasurer, Wm. Zimmerman, of Brooklyn, is regular in his attendance at the office of the order, seeing that no delay occurs in payments and that prompt attention is given to all members. Grand Master Sanders gives Bro. Zimmerman and his deputies full credit for their efficiency.

Grand Trustee Sol Schellinsky is one of the best known members and workers of the order. He served the motherhood as grand master several terms, and his counsel and advice are always for the best interests of the I. O. B. A. Nothing escapes his watchful eyes, and he means well and does well.

Edward Kohn, the chairman of finance, is one of the old guard, ever ready and willing to lead onward and forward. Bro. Kohn is an ex-grand master whom few or any have excelled. No wonder that delegates always retain him in active harness, and no wonder that the grand master is loud in his praise of the old veteran and hustler.

Jacob M. Steinberg, chairman on endowment, ever sees that the widow and orphans are promptly taken care of. He never fails to be on hand and members throughout the order speak in highest praise of his efficiency in which the officers of the grand lodge concur.

Beaconsfield Lodge, No. 554, of Boston, Mass., is one of the later day lodges, being instituted under the present administration. They are ultra progressive, wide awake and continually on the move so as to be side by side with older lodges. They report excellent success in the gain of members and say they will continue the good work.

Dover Lodge, No. 584, of Dover, N. J., reports that the gain made in membership and finances surpasses their most sanguine expectations and that from present indications the grand lodge can be well satisfied with the fealty and loyalty. Nothing will be left undone by the members to place Dover Lodge in the ranks as a lodge knowing and understanding its dates and obligations to the organization.

Sterling Lodge, No. 550, of Rock Falls, Ill.—The grand lodge was agreeably surprised to hear from this body and to note the activity and good work done by the members. Grand Master Sanders says where there is the will the way can be found is proven by Sterling Lodge.

Wm. J. Gaynor Lodge, 523, of Brooklyn, N. Y., reports many initiations and propositions as was anticipated when the lodge was instituted. Let the good work be kept a-going. "You cannot work for a better cause," says the grand master.

B. Blumenthal Lodge, No. 79, on November 18, celebrated its twentieth anniversary at 210 East 104th. Grand Master Sanders and Assistant Grand Secretary M. L. Hollander were present as guests.

Lodge 527 had its name changed to Joseph Held Lodge on November 18, and they celebrated the event by a banquet at Progress Hall. Grand Master Sanders and his executive staff were present and were accorded every possible honor.

On November 19 Pittsfield Lodge, No. 595, was officially visited by Grand Master Sanders at Pittsfield, Mass., and a most enjoyable time was had by the participants.

Lodge No. 629 was instituted in Flatbush and Lodge No. 630 in the Bronx last week. Nearly 150 males and 125 females were added to the order.

Extra Notice.—The lodges of the order have received a grand Thanksgiving present for the month of November. Ninety-four deaths occurred from among 199,000 members, and the Grand Lodge will pay the ninety-four deaths from the surplus fund. The lodges have no payments to make and there will be no assessments issued. This is certainly a grand record for the order.

FREE SONS OF JUDAH.

Office of the Order, 78 2d Avenue, N. Y. City. A live and wideawake order. Security and safety for all. No excessive dues or assessments.

SAMUEL GOLDSTEIN, Grand Master; SIGMOND FODOR, Grand Secretary.

Falkenheim Lodge, No. 70, will hold a ball and entertainment on January 7. All arrangements are completed to insure a good time to all present. The lodge counts 600 male and female members.

Samuel S. Koenig Lodge, by the efforts of Executive Officer M. Brock, will have ten propositions for its next convocation.

Chaye Zeporah Lodge, No. 2, will celebrate its twentieth anniversary on December 3, at Beethoven Hall with a banquet and ball. Solomon Gutman is the president.

Aaron Heilenstein, chairman state of the order, is visiting numerous lodges and reports general activity and progress. The brother is an excellent official and shirks no duties.

David Rehfeld Lodge, No. 36, is working for an increase of membership, and is on the road to success.

Washington Lodge, No. 38, is making progress by increasing its numerical strength, especially with young people.

Neu Sandezer Lodge, No. 62.—The brethren should be more attentive by attending lodge sessions and should induce each other to work for their own and the order's progress.

The order has purchased a new burial plot covering nearly three and one-quarter acres at a cost of almost $10,000.

The presentation of watches, which has brought excellent results, will be continued. Members should do their work and five or more candidates will get a watch.

The next convention of the order will be held the first Sunday in June instead of April and at Murray Hill Lyceum instead of at its former meeting place.

Queen Esther Lodge, No. 3, will hold their annual ball on Thanksgiving eve, Wednesday, November 29, 1911, at Tuxedo Hall, Fifty-ninth street and Madison avenue. Arrangements are completed for a social night and the committee will leave no stone unturned to make it the most successful affair ever held by Queen Esther Lodge.

FURS

Artistic workmanship is of the greatest importance in Fur Custom Work. The skins, trimmings, lining and even the style and fit may be perfect, but if the garment lacks artistic workmanship, perfect matching, skillful manipulation and proper cutting, in other words, the "KNOW HOW" and the 1,001 details, the garment will be a failure. The fur business cannot be learned through a correspondence school, but requires a lifetime of practical experience and progress.

Send or bring your furs for my estimate and save money, and here's the point: You are SURE they will be done right. Furs made to order, repaired or remodeled.

sophical studies. Two years later he proceeded to Berlin to specialize in plant physiology and microscopy under Johannes Muller. Both teacher and subject were to his liking, and he labored industriously. He also mastered the works of the Frenchmen Magendie and Laennec. In 1840 he received his M. D. on a thesis entitled "Specimina nonnulla physiologica et pathologica." [The work is divided into three parts: 1. De dyspnœa in pulmonum emphysemate. 2. De telarum primitivarum metamorphosie. 3. Casus cretinismi scrofulosi, quem observavit auctor.]

Traube spent some months in post-graduate work under Skoda and Rokitsanski at the world-famous Vienna Klinik, and increased his knowledge of pathology and diagnosis. Returning to Berlin, he took the State's examination, and settled down as practicing physician. But of this life he soon became tired. He wished to devote his time to research work, and he eagerly seized the opportunity of becoming assistant to Dr. Natorp, then to his successor, Dr. Klein. Here he began the study of animals with a view to isolating the causes of disease. Later on he was assisted in these investigations by his scholars Arnold Mendelssohn, Ruhle, and Joseph Meyer. As a result of his researches, which at first were conducted in Traube's own home in a most primitive fashion, and later, by permission of Guilt, at the Thierarzneischule an Hunden, there appeared "Die Ursachen und die Beschaffenheit derjenigen veränderungen, welche das Lungenparenchym nach durchneidung der Nervi vagi erleidet." This and one or two further contributions placed him among the founders of experimental pathology in Germany.

Together with Reinhardt and Virchow, Traube founded the journal "Contributions to Experimental Pathology," in which there appeared, apart from the above, celebrated monograph, the "Beitrag zur Lehre von der Erstickungsercheinungen am Respirations apparat." Soon, however, this journal ceased to appear.

In spite of these brilliant researches, no university officially recognized Traube, and this simply and solely because he was a Jew. The revolutionary outbreaks of 1848 temporarily altered this state of affairs, and theoretically at least the Jew's rights became the equal of those of the Christian. Traube was made privatdozent at Berlin, and in 1849 instructor at the Klinik der Kgl. Charite under Schonlein. Here an opportunity was given him to exhibit his extraordinary powers as teacher and research worker.

Promotion now came rapidly. He was made chief physician of a department, then professor extraordinary, and later chief of the klinik in succession to C. Wolff. It was not, however, till 1872 that he was made full professor, though as far back as 1859 he refused the head position at Breslau, vacated by the renowned Schonlein.

The last years of Traube's life were years of much physical suffering, and he was forced to give up most of his work. He died in 1876.

Traube must be regarded as belonging to the more exact scientific period in medicine, and this he advanced in three ways: As teacher, as experimentalist (especially as pathologist) and as clinical diagnostician. In him was found the happy combination of the philosophical mind possessing a remarkable knowledge of the physical sciences.

Traube so taught as to make the men under him individual thinkers, capable of acting on their own initiative; so unlike his great rival, Frerich, whose students seemed helpless without him.

Together with his students Traube would pay weekly visits to the different wards, discussing the cases while walking from one to the other, in the peripatetic style of the Grecian

what oppression they were to expect from a king. Samuel's warning concludes: "And ye shall cry out in that day and Jehovah will not answer you in that day." But no! The Israelites were not satisfied with God as their king. They wanted a human king; therefore God said to Samuel, "Howbeit yet protest solemnly unto them and show them the manner of the king that shall reign over them." As far as I am concerned

I need no more convincing argument against monarchy than that just quoted. It is logical. It gives the human being free choice between a spiritual king and a human king, whose nature is usually and unfortunately far from ideal; a king of Portugal, for instance. Or that Roman Emperor debauchee, Caligula, who raised his horse Incitatus to the dignity of a consul, and who in one year squandered two milliards and seven hundred millions of sesterces, and when short of money opened a house of ill-fame in the Palatine which Romans were compelled to patronize and support. And yet with all his power Caligula made his undigni-fied exit from this world by the sword of Cassius Charea, the Tribune, who delivered the world from this beast of a monarch.

To conclude, did not that grand and noble character, Oliver Cromwell, the friend of the Jews, who knew his Old Testament so well, did he not refuse a crown? When one gazes thoughtfully at Delaroche's picture showing Cromwell regarding the body of King Charles one is struck with the awful world-old tragedy which permeates monarchy. It is a house of cards that can topple any moment. In the picture alluded to we see the king, typifying monarchy, as a corpse in his coffin, and Cromwell, typifying the people, as the king's conqueror.

I sincerely hope that China's present rebellion has a leading spirit as strong as Cromwell. I sincerely trust that China will become a republic, forever putting monarchy into a coffin and screwing the lid down tight. I also trust that China will continue to be a republic, should she achieve this goal, in times yet to come, because real and authentic republics are born in the spirit of universalism and humanity. Also I trust that China will become the cradle of many new political virtues and the nursing mother of many precious gifts to the down-trodden Jewish people of China.

33 Out of Every 100 School Boys are Flat-footed!

This is the recent statement of a prominent Public School Official, and doubtless an even greater proportion of arch weakness would be discovered among school girls.

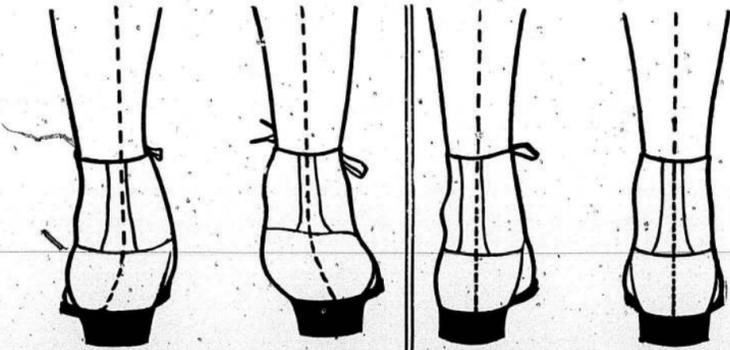

Among physiologists, it is generally admitted that "flat-foot" is a frequent cause of spinal trouble, as a broken arch throws the body in strained positions.

Orthopedists agree that proper mechanical support is the only effective remedy for falling arch and "flat-foot." Leading surgeons endorse the COWARD ARCH SUPPORT SHOE as the one which is anatomically correct and helpful.

This shoe, made on the Coward Orthopedic Last, allows the foot to meet the ground in a natural manner. The extension heel and arch support, steady the ankle, raise the sagging muscles, and encourage correct walk and carriage.

Wearing this Coward Shoe, holds the arch structure in its normal position and prevents and corrects "flat-foot."

The Coward is the original Arch Support Shoe. The public is cautioned against imitations. The genuine is sold only at the one Coward Shoe store.

The effect on the ankles of wearing shoes that do not support the arch.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Metropolitan's offering for this evening is "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci." "Lohengrin" is announced for to-morrow matinee, while for the second Sunday night concert De Pachman will be the soloist, making his only appearance with orchestra this season. "Lobetanz" will receive its second presentation Monday night, and "Giaccone" will have its first hearing this season on Wednesday. Thursday there will be a special matinee performance of "Parsifal" and in the evening "Trovatore" will be given. "Koenigskinder" is announced for Friday evening and "Aida" will be the offering at Saturday's matinee. A special performance of "Boheme" will be given Saturday evening at popular prices.

Mme. Schumann-Heink will give a recital at Carnegie Hall on Tuesday afternoon, November 28, at 3 o'clock. Her programme will be divided into five parts, the first consisting of a group of songs by Beethoven, the second of a group by Schubert, the third of a group by Schumann, the fourth of a group by Brahms and the fifth of songs by Marlon Bauer, Mary Turner Salter and Harold. Mrs. Katharine Hoffman will be at the piano.

For the Philharmonic concert at Carnegie Hall this Friday afternoon Mr. Stransky has planned a Mahler Memorial programme comprising the Funeral March from the Mahler Fifth Symphony, the "Good Friday Spell" and "Prelude and Glorification" from Wagner's "Parsifal" and Beethoven's Symphony No. 3, "Eroica." At the regular Sunday concert November 26 Leo Schuitz, the popular cellist and leader of the cello corps of the society, will play the Saint-Saens A minor Concerto, and Mr. Stransky will offer, among other numbers, Tschalkowsky's Symphony, "Pathetique."

At the fifth concert in the Sunday afternoon series by the Symphony Society of New York at the Century Theatre, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, on December 3, the fifth symphony of Tschalkowsky will be played. The new ballad by Rudyard Kipling and Walter Damrosch, "The Looking-Glass," will have its first hearing on December 8.

Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler will give her annual recital in Carnegie Hall to-morrow afternoon. Immediately after her recital in this city she will sail for Europe, where she will spend the entire season. While abroad she will play in London and make a concert tour through the Empire of Germany.

The Volpe Symphony Society, under the direction of Arnold Volpe, will open its eighth season Tuesday evening, November 28, at Carnegie Hall. Rudolph Ganz, the Swiss pianist, will be the assisting artist, appearing for the first time in New York after an absence of three years. He will play the B flat minor concerto of Tschalkowsky. The first number on the programme will be Liszt's Symphonic Poem, "Les Preludes," given in honor of the centennial of the composer's birth. In pursuance of his plan of introducing an American composition at each concert Mr. Volpe will play a Christmas overture by Percy Goetschius, which will be heard for the first time.

NOTICE TO AMATEURS

Amateurs have a rare opportunity presented to them this season at Carnegie Lyceum, where they may appear publicly in a series of musical soirees, designed to stimulate the ambition of pupils and acquaint them with public audiences without cost. Instructors will have their interest in pupils carefully guarded, and find a healthy co-operation in their work. Trials for applicants are held each Monday from 11 to 1 and from 2 to 4. The next concert will be given November 23, at 8.30 p. m. Prices, 25c, 50c, and 75c. Address Paula Semnacher, musical secretary, Carnegie Lyceum, Seventh avenue and Fifty-seventh street.

A concert quartette that is to be heard much the coming season is one organized by E. S. Brown, the concert manager, and which will include Shanna Cumming, soprano; Rosa Linde, contralto; Gardner Lamson, bass-baritone, and Paul Dufault, tenor. Aside from a number of oratorio engagements this quartette, which is rehearsed in the same manner as an operatic or other important organization, is to make a tour of the East, giving miscellaneous programmes.

Mme. Frances Alda has completed her programme for the song recital which she will give in Carnegie Hall Tuesday afternoon, December 5. The prima donna, who will be assisted at the piano by Alberto Randegger, Jr., will include a group of French songs, several Schumann, Beethoven, Brahms and Wolf numbers, and several songs by modern composers, including Alberto Randegger, Jr., Frank La Forge and L. V. Saar.

Harold Bauer will follow his two appearances with the Philharmonic Society, November 30 and December 1, with a pianoforte recital in Carnegie Hall, Tuesday afternoon, December 12. The pianist will also appear with the Philharmonic Society in Brooklyn on Sunday afternoon, December 3.

The members of the Flonzaley Quartette have arranged their programme for the first of the series of three chamber music concerts to be given this season in Carnegie Lyceum. The initial concert is scheduled for Monday night, December 4, the programme including Haydn's Quartette in G major, Op. 17, No. 5; Maurice Ravel's Quartette and Boccherini's Quartette in A major, Op. 33, No. 6.

The MacDowell Chorus, Kurt Schindler, conductor, announces two subscription concerts during the season of 1911-12. On December 11 Liszt's Legend of St. Elizabeth will be given with a chorus of 250 voices, augmented by a boy choir and the orchestra of the Philharmonic Society. The management has been fortunate in securing for the principal parts the two Wagnerian singers, Miss Gertrude Rennyson and Mr. Clarence Whitehill, who are thoroughly familiar with the Liszt traditions through their long connection with the Bayreuth festivals. The bass part will be sung by the well-known basso, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera House, Robert Blass, who will make at this concert his reappearance after two years' absence. The small contralto part will be sung by Miss Rosalie Wirthlin. The second concert will take place on Monday evening, February 12, when "La Vita Nuova" ("The New Life of Dante"), by Wolf-Ferrari, will be given in honor of the composer's visit to this country.

Miss Margaret Huston, a Canadian soprano, who has sung abroad both in concert and in opera, will give a recital composed largely of modern songs at the Belasco Theatre, Monday afternoon, December 4.

George Harris, Jr., the young American tenor, is to give his first recital in New York at the Harris Theatre Monday afternoon, December 4. Mr. Harris is a son of the president of Amherst (Mass.) College and he is an alumnus of the institution. Mr. Harris is an excellent pianist and that accounts for the musicianship he puts into his singing.

Alice Lloyd, cleverest of English singing comedienne, will make her first appearance in New York as a musical comedy star at the Grand Opera House Monday, November 27, with special Thanksgiving matinee, in the famous musical gaily, "Little Miss Fix-It," one of Werba and Luescher's last season's successes that seems destined to make even more of a hit in the future than it has in the past, thanks to the winsome personality, petite charm and artistic methods of the dainty English vaudeville star. "Little Miss Fix It" is by those clever writers, William J. Hurlburt, Harry B. Smith and George V. Hobart, and was originally intended to be played without music. But to the clever story, with its bright lines, amusing and unusual situations and fascinating characters, were added an assortment of tuneful songs, duets and choruses that contribute materially to the variety and ever-changing charm of the performance. In the cast are such well-known players as Lionel Walsh, Frederic Stanley, Frank Shannon, James C. Lane, Grace Field, Nellie Malcolm, Pauline de Lorme, Grace Brown and Annie Buckley.

Thanksgiving Day will offer an extra opportunity to see the big Hippodrome spectacle to theatre patrons who are un-

The ballet of butterflies, the great sandstorm scene, the forest fire, the Indian durbar pageant and the glittering finale are features which continue to appeal specially to young and old visitors. Two hundred animals, as well as the entire Hippodrome company of 1,200 people, take part in the gigantic production.

Purity and Cleanliness. Forty-four years and a business constantly growing in all that time, is complete attestation of public approval, and that is the record of Messrs. Herschman and Bleier, whose original bakery instituted at Fourth street and Avenue C, in 1867, has grown into the large establishment of the present day.

Messrs. Herschman and Bleier use the purest of ingredients only in all their products, and scrupulous cleanliness is their slogan.

Their bakery is located in a modern building, at No. 518 East Seventy-second street, where every sanitary device which human ingenuity can conceive is employed. This bakery has been open to the public at all times, and a cordial invitation to visit the establishment at any time and without prior announcement is extended to all.

Their bread has acquired a reputation second to none, and their productions of the pastry art have done much to enhance their reputation. An Exploded Theory.

The idea that it is necessary to purchase jewelry down-town in order to obtain the best articles and at lowest prices has been thoroughly exploded by Mr. Henry Nockin, who conducts two well-known establishments on the upper West Side. Mr. Nockin's centrally located stores at Broadway and Eighty-fifth street and Columbus avenue, between Ninety-second and Ninety-third streets, are replete with stocks fully as large as may be found in the more pretentious down-town establishments and a comparison of prices will easily result in Mr. Nockin's favor, the material difference in rent and other expenses enabling him to greatly undersell competitors. Mr. Nockin keeps on hand a particularly large stock of diamonds, watches and fine jewelry, and a complete line of the celebrated Gorham silverware. He makes a specialty of repairing and remodeling old jewelry at moderate prices.

Intending holiday purchasers may make their selection now, and by leaving a small deposit may reserve the articles until a later date.***

Congregation Sons of Israel, Bath Beach.

The Ladies' Educational Society of the Congregation Sons of Israel celebrated their fourth anniversary on Saturday evening with a brilliant entertainment, given in Belmont Hall. The affair brought together a very large assembly of ladies and gentlemen, and the programme was of an unusual order of excellence.

Mrs. S. Klein, the retiring president of the society, welcomed the audience, and later on read her annual report, showing the increased amount of work accomplished during the year. The school for which the society essentially labors now numbers about one hundred and thirty children, five sessions being held each week, Hebrew reading and translation, Jewish history and sacred hymns being taught by efficient instructors. Improvements are contemplated in the school furnishing, and a large fair is being arranged by the ladies, to be held in Belmont Hall.

Last Friday evening Dr. Morais began a series of lectures in the synagogue on the "Principles of Judaism," the first lecture being on the belief in the one God. The lectures will be given in addition to the sermon at the regular Sabbath morning services.

A meeting has been called for Tuesday evening of the present week in the vestry room of the synagogue, with a view to establishing a literary and social league, a class in Bible study and other activities.

Hebrew Educational Society.

A citizenship class at which about forty men were present had its first session last Saturday evening, November 18. Instruction in civics and in the United States Constitution and information as to how to make out application for naturalization was given. The class is in charge of Mr. Edward B. Schulkind.

A chorus, under the direction of Mr. Laskar Schwartz, was organized on Thursday evening, November 16. The chorus will meet every Thursday evening for instruction in sight singing and choros.

The following events are announced for the forthcoming week: This evening, a lecture by Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle, on "The Passport Question and Legislation on Immigration." Saturday evening, November 25, a Yiddish lecture by Dr. N. Syrkin, on "The Pan-American Movement." Saturday evening, November 25, a Yiddish lecture by Mr. Joseph Resnik, at a parents' meeting, on "Children's Education." Sunday afternoon, November 26, an oration contest by the Addison Literary Society. Tuesday evening, November 28, a concert arranged by Mme. Elfriede Stoffregen.

Jewish Aid Society.

The annual entertainment and ball of the Jewish Aid Society took place at the Knapp Mansion, 550 Bedford avenue, on Saturday evening, the 18th inst., and was attended by a large throng. An excellent entertainment, comprising vocal and instrumental solos, was given by Misses Lillian Cohen, Marion Reich, Sadie Himoff, Helen Blumenthal and Lillian Weiss, and Miss Sybil Kramer danced herself into the favor of the audience. The entertainment was followed by dancing.

The society, which has been in existence for three years, takes care of widows and orphans and women who have been deserted by their husbands. Through its employment bureau it endeavors to secure positions for those of its applicants who need aid in this fashion and also provides free medical treatment and medicine. The officers are Morris Kramer, president; Samuel Rabinowitz, first vice-president; Hattie Messinger, second vice-president; Bessie Stember, recording secretary; Celia Shefsky, corresponding secretary; Henrietta Schwartz, financial secretary; Abraham D. Epstein, treasurer; Abraham Goodman, sergeant-at-arms.

Annual Meeting of Brooklyn Jewish Hospital.

The annual meeting of the members of the Jewish Hospital Society took place on Sunday morning at the hospital building and was largely attended. Election of officers resulted as follows:

Edward C. Blum, president; Edward Lazansky, first vice-president; Aaron Levy, second vice-president; Henry Roth, treasurer, and Nathan S. Jonas, secretary. The re-elected officers of the Training School were Mr. Isaacson, president; Philip H. Lustig, vice-president; Benjamin H. Namm, treasurer, and Joseph J. Baker, secretary.

Announcement was made in a letter from Jacob H. Schiff, read at the meeting, that he was prepared to give $500 in addition to his annual contribution of $1,000 for every $10,000 raised by the hospital organization this year. The children of Nathan and Betty Bernstein announced in a letter that they would give the hospital $2,500 for an X-ray room as a memorial to their parents. A portrait of Julius Strauss, chairman of the Building Committee, was presented to the hospital by President Blum.

South Brooklyn Hebrew School.

A mass meeting will be held on Sunday afternoon, December 3, at 3 p. m., at the Temple B'nai Sholaim, Ninth street, near Fifth avenue. The speakers: Rev. B. L. Levinthal of Philadelphia, Dr. J. L. Magnes and Rabbi I. H. Levinthal. The first annual reception will be held at Prospect Hall on Wednesday evening, December 27. The affair is given with the object of creating a fund to build a large school building, which in the very near future will be of great necessity.

Congregation B'nai Sholaim.

The third of the series of public lectures, which has been arranged by Rabbi Israel H. Levinthal for the coming winter, will be given on Sunday afternoon, December 3, at the synagogue, Ninth street and Fifth avenue. The lecturer will be Rabbi Bernhard L. Levinthal, chief rabbi of the orthodox Jews, of Philadelphia, who will speak in Yiddish on "Jewish Education in our Day."

The event is being looked forward to by the Jewish community of South Brooklyn, as it will really be a mass meeting, in the interest of the Hebrew School of South Brooklyn. In addition to the Philadelphia Rabbi, Rev. Israel H. Levinthal will also speak on the subject.

The Junior League of the Ninth Street Temple, which was organized several months ago by Rabbi Levinthal for the purpose of developing the boys along Jewish lines, is planning for an oratorical contest, which will be held in the near future, in the vestry rooms of the Temple. The league is offering a medal and several prizes to the boys who will deliver the best orations.

The Civic Forum.

On November 26, at 8 p. m., William English Walling, the well-known author, will speak on "Their Socialism," at the Civic Forum of the Kaplan School, 1731 Pitkin avenue.

The following lectures will be delivered in the month of December: 3, Jessica Gardiner Finch, "Woman and the Future," 10th; Hon. Franklin Pierce, "The Tariffs of Three Countries," 17th; Norman Hapgood, "The Relation of Politics to Happiness," 24th; Homer Davenport, "The Power of the Cartoon," with illustrations; 31st, Harry Watson, "The Old Testament and Judaism, the New Testament and Christianity."

Sisterhood, Shaari Zedek.

The Sisterhood of Temple Shaari Zedek, Putnam avenue, near Reid, is arranging a social whist to take place Thursday, December 7, at 2 p. m., at Bedford Mansion, corner of Bedford and Willoughby avenues. Mrs. Miller is the chairlady. Many handsome prizes have been donated for both players and non-players. The tickets may be obtained from the secretary of the Whist Committee, Mrs. Daun, 619 Halsey street.

Next week's attraction at the Montauk will be the successful musical comedy, "Dr. De Luxe," which will serve as a starring vehicle for Ralph Herz, remembered for his characterizations in "The Soul Kiss," "Madame Sherry," etc. Mr. Herz is ably assisted by Harry Stone, Edward Wade, Edward Earle, Taylor Williams, Georgia Kelly, Cordelia MacDonald, Harriet Standon and Master Wilfred Morison. The music is by Karl Hoschna, composer of "Three Twins," "Bright Eyes" and "Madame Sherry." There will be matinees on Wednesday, Saturday and a special matinee on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday.

Young Folks' League of Congregation Pincus Elijah.

The recently organized Young Folks' League is rapidly growing in strength and in numbers. A series of public lectures on Biblical topics has been arranged by Rabbi Jacob A. Dolgenas. These lectures are given at the synagogue, 118 West Ninety-fifth street, on alternate Tuesday evenings. All are welcome. The second lecture in the course on "The Prophets of Israel" will be given on Tuesday evening, November 28, at 8.15 sharp.

The league has also opened an elementary Hebrew class for adults, which meets every Thursday evening at the synagogue.

The league has planned an informal dance and reception at Reeve's Academy on the evening of Saturday, December 9, 1911.

Harrisburg, Pa.

Dr. Nachman Heller, rabbi of B'nai Jacob Congregation, Charleston, W. Va., formerly of this city, was a visitor here en route to South Bethlehem, Pa., where he has been invited to deliver a series of lectures on topics of vital import. While in this city the visiting rabbi has been entertained by his former friends, notably Messrs. Max Cohen, Henry Claster, A. Abramson and Samuel Levy. He spoke at the Synagogue of Chizuk Amunah before a large audience, who listened with rapt attention and ecstatic enthusiasm.

Providence, R. I.

The second annual charity ball for the benefit of the Jewish orphanage of this city will be held in Infantry Hall Thursday, November 30, Thanksgiving night, an appropriate date for this important event, perhaps the most deserving of all the Jewish benevolent activities in Rhode Island. The orphanage is maintained at an annual cost of $5,000 and there are now thirty-five inmates at the institution. The ball is usually well attended and is always a social success. The officers are Morris Karpeles, president; Joseph Samuels, vice-president; Harry Robinson, treasurer; S. D. Binge, secretary.

Jersey City Y. M. H. A.

An enthusiastic mass meeting was held on Sunday, November 19, at the Y. M. H. A. auditorium for the purpose of protesting against the attitude of Russia regarding the passports of American citizens. Addresses were delivered by Assemblymen Donnelly and James I. F. Goldenhorn, J. J. Singer and Benjamin Levine. Mr. D. Irving Cohen presided.

It was decided unanimously to enlist the aid of all the New Jersey legislators as well as the two United States Senators.

South Bethlehem, Pa.

Dr. Nachman Heller, rabbi of B'nai Jacob Synagogue, Charleston, W. Va., lately visited this town and delivered a course of lectures at the synagogue of Berith Chalom v'Talmud Torah. The rabbi's addresses created almost a wholesale sensation, so much so that the officers and members of the local Jewish community unanimously elected the doctor as their spiritual guide and religious leader for a period of two years at a lucrative salary.

Dr. Heller contributed some of his literary gems to the local Globe and the Bethlehem Times. The rabbi left for Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Charleston and other places, his services being eagerly wanted everywhere.

Emanu-El Brotherhood.

The speaker at the religious services next Friday evening will be Rabbi Aaron Eiseman. The speaker at the children's services on Saturday afternoon will be Mr. Tobias Roth, superintendent of the Emanu-El Brotherhood.

A very interesting event took place at the Brotherhood Social House last Saturday afternoon. Master Sidney Solinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Solinger, caretakers of the building, was Bar Mitzvah at the regular Sabbath afternoon services. He read the blessings over the scrolls of the law very acceptably. The hall was crowded with about 200 children, which taxed the capacity of the assembly room. Mr. Edward G. Gerstle and Mr. Max W. Kraus addressed the children and offered their congratulations to the Bar Mitzvah lad.

On Sunday evening, November 26, a challenge debate will take place at the social house between the Civic Culture Circle of the Emanu-El Brotherhood and the Union Club of the Y. M. H. A. A series of talks on sex hygiene will be delivered by Miss Laura B. Garret

"RABBI."

Dear Children:

Before I will tell you what other favorite maxims Rabbi used to say, I will tell you something interesting of Rabbi's life.

Rabbi was very rich, and he once invited his friend, Antoninus the Emperor of Rome, to his feast. As it was on a Sabbath day he had the victuals served cold. The Roman Emperor ate very heartily and enjoyed it greatly. Again Rabbi invited Antoninus to his feast on a week day when he had the victuals served hot. "I enjoyed the other feast much better," said the Emperor. Said Rabbi: "A certain spice is lacking therein." Said the Emperor: "Does the King's storehouse lack anything?" "It lacks the Sabbath," said Rabbi; "have you the Sabbath in your storehouse?"

Dear children, I wish you to take particular notice of this little incident in Rabbi's life. In the first place, Rabbi did not order his servants to cook fresh victuals on the Sabbath for the Roman Emperor, because he was a Jew and proud of it. In the second place, the cold victuals tasted better to the Emperor than the fresh cooked that Rabbi regaled him with on a week day, because the Holy Sabbath has the power of giving a relish even to cold food eaten by a non-Jew at a good Jew's house, and I believe that there is something so noble about a Jew who is true to his religion under all circumstances, whether he is in the privacy of his apartments or entertaining royalty, that it is a pleasure to partake of his food when seasoned with obedience to God's behests.

But sometimes even the greatest men make mistakes. Once Rabbi sat and taught the Torah in front of the great Synagogue of Babylon, in the city of Zippori, a calf was being led to the slaughter. While it passed Rabbi it made a plaintive sound as if saying, "Save me!" "What can I do for you?" said Rabbi. "You were created for that purpose." No sooner did he make that thoughtlessly unfeeling remark when his teeth began to ache him and he suffered from toothache for thirteen years.

At the end of the thirteen years an insect crawled near his daughter and she was about to kill it when Rabbi said to her: "Do not harm it, my daughter, for it is written: 'And His mercies are over all His works.'" (Psalms 145). His toothache was immediately cured. This is a great lesson, showing the love of God toward all his creatures, as he does not excuse the greatest of men for a lack of feeling toward the humblest of his creatures.

Rabbi once made a feast for his disciples. He had them all served with tongue. Some of the tongues were soft and some hard. They selected the soft ones and did not eat the hard tongues. Said he to them: "I wish you to take notice of what you have done. Just as you have chosen the soft tongues and rejected the hard tongues, so may you speak gently one to the other."

At the time of Rabbi's death he called his children to his bedside and said: "Be careful to honor your mother and let my light burn in its accustomed place, and my bed be made in its accustomed manner." After his death he used to visit his house every Friday night until a neighbor of his widow once knocked at the door on a Friday night and was told to keep quite as Rabbi was in. Since then he did not visit his earthly abode any more in order not to shame the pious men who died before him, that it shall not be said they were not privileged to visit their homes, and Rabbi was; therefore they were not as pious as he.

BETRAYED.

"Say, mamma, can Anna see in the dark, like a cat?"
"Why, child, what makes you ask such a question?"
"Oh, last night when Cousin Carl was here I heard Anna say in the dark room, 'You must really shave oftener, Carl.'"—Exchange.

BETTER.

"Your wife never sings any more. Did she lose her voice?"
"No; she found her senses."—Toledo Blade.

VIRTUE.

Virtue consists in making desire subordinate to duty, passion to principle. The pillars of character are moderation, temperance, chastity, simplicity, self control. Its method is self denial.

RECOMPENSE.

Miss Passay—You have saved my life, young man. How can I repay you? How can I show my gratitude? Are you married? Young Man—Yes; come and be a cook for us.—Woman's Home Companion.

CHILLY.

"Meet any icebergs on your way across?"
"No, but several of us tried to flirt with a Boston girl who was on board."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE CAUTIOUS TAILOR.

"Now, look here, Snippeton," pleaded Hackley, "why can't you be patient with this old bill of yours? I'm going to be married shortly to a girl who's worth her weight in gold."
"That's all right, Mr. Hackley," returned Snippeton, "but is she going to be worth my weight in gold? How much does she weigh?"—Judge.

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

Of course the old fashioned belle may have walked barefoot halfway to church to keep from spoiling her Sunday shoes, but she didn't put her coiffure in the bureau drawer when she went to bed.—Galveston News.

A pessimist is a person who tells you that what appears to be a silver lining in your cloud is only a low grade of tin foil.—Galveston News.

CONUNDRUMS.

Can you tell me what living in suspense means? Working yourself to death to earn a living.

How can one get along in the world? Walk.
To what age do cows attain? Sausage.

When a drunken man solicits aid what can you consistently give him? Lemonade.

Why does an elephant never go visiting? Because he has to carry his trunk.

What should be looked into? The mirror.

Which is the laziest class of people? Tall people; because they are always longer in bed than others.

Jews and Science.
 philosopher whom he so much admired. After his death his researches were published in three volumes, under the title of "Gesammelte Beiträge zur Pathologie und Physiologie." The first volume deals with experimental researches, the second clinical work, and the third posthumous papers edited by his nephew, Albert Fraenkel, director (1878) of the city hospital in Berlin. At the same time there appeared the small and uncompleted monograph on "Symptoms of Decay in the Respiration and Circulation Apparatus."
 The two brothers, the one the pathologist and the other the chemist, both remained steadfast Jews to the last; not by any means observant Jews, nor possibly belonging to those Jews who take an interest in their race; but at least they died as Jews, and for that, I suppose, we have to be thankful. Jewry has become accustomed to witness some of its most brilliant sons stray from the fold, and when a few are so gracious as to remain within the boundary our enthusiasm knows no bounds.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, by the grace of God free and independent, to Eliza A. Meyer, Siegmund T. Meyer, Rebecca Mayer, Arthur Siegmund, Minna Rosenberg, Solomon B. Jacobson, Lena Jacobson, Florence Jacobs, Edwin Jacobs, Alvah Dantziger, Clifford Aaron, Harry Aaron, Jesse Lewisohn, Julia Henry, Walter Lewisohn, Frederick Lewisohn, Oscar Lewisohn, Lillian Lewisohn, Alice Lewisohn, Lenore Henry, Violet Henry, Flora Cory, Isabella Cohn, Mary Stoltz, Bertha Cohn, Julia Cohn, Lena Cohn, Siegmund Siegmund, Isabella Weinberg, William Fleigelstock, Nora Dreyfus, Gertrude Kaufman, Mortimer Kaufman, Edgar Kaufman, Rosalie Kaufman, Grace Weinberger, Ralph Kaufman, Josephine Kaufman, Albert A. Meyer, Theodore A. Meyer, Louis G. Meyer, Irving J. Meyer, Agnes B. Meyer, Oscar L. Meyer and Irene Lewin and Alexander Patterson, the widow and executors and heirs and next of kin of Isaac T. Meyer, deceased, send greeting.
 Whereas, Eliza A. Meyer, of the city of New York, has lately applied to the Surrogate's Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument, to-wit: Isaac T. Meyer's last will and testament, to be admitted to probate, and the same, in relation to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Isaac T. Meyer, late of the County of New York, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the Surrogate's Court, on the 27th day of December, one thousand nine hundred and eleven, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.
 And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years, are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.
 In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of New York to be hereunto affixed.
 Witness: Hon. John P. Cohan, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at [L. S.] said court, the 20th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eleven.
 DANIEL J. DOWNEY, Clerk of the Surrogate's Court.
