Reminiscences of a Jewish Journalist

By J. FUCHS---V---"Batlanim and Their Ways"

For fifteen years the Batlan has shadowed me and crossed my path on all the highways and byways of Jewish life, both public and private. In fact, he is as unavoidable as death itself. He sneaks through all the alleys and struts it on all the thoroughfares of our Jewry. In his various aspects, he assumes a hundred guises, vocations and opinions. He is young, middle-aged, old, ill or well favored, abounding in health or eternally ailing, a surly curmudgeon or an expansive companion, a Socialist, an Anarchist, a Zionist, a reformer or a watchman on the orthodox Tower of Zion. There is no end to his infinite variety—but he can no longer impose upon me in any habit of semblance, for I know him now for what he is, having dearly paid for this my late-won insight. I have paid for it with years of precious time wasted with Batlanim before I understood their true inwardness as I do now, with golden opportunities lost and with gigantic arrears of work in wait for me—arrears that accumulated while Batlanim of all sorts and conditions imposed upon my erstwhile willingness to take them serious. They are of every conceivable station in life, and there is no post so high that some one or other of their guild will not succeed once in a while in worming himself up to and into it. I have known them to be projectors spending imaginary millions (of other people's money) in colossal schemes of their own contriving; known them to be communal head-workers, without a head (or active hand) for their work; poets who, some fifteen or twenty years ago, published a tiny volume of verse or two, and on the strength of that are striking statuesque attitudes for the rest of their lives; musical performers that have ceased to struggle on account of that great American conspiracy to keep their eminence in the shade; "educators" of thirty years' standing, deriving their title solely from a baneful readiness to start, conduct and preside over a score of debating clubs that never debate themselves into any active and definite attitude toward life; school teachers, civic reformers, newspaper men, attorneys, men of every conceivable pursuit involving a certain modicum of leisure—they all have what self-betraying signs may a Batlan be singled out of the mass of his equals in age, temper, pursuit or shade of opinion? Some readers, better acquainted, no doubt, with the thing itself than the name that designstously outgrown his brains and, above all, his will power, that it not only wags, but literally drags the rest of the man—drags him into company that secretly makes sport of him, into meeting rooms, theatres, coffee rather argue than eat or drink, and since meat and drink are not procured by argument, as often as not he runs short of it. Perhaps his most characteristic trait is that he is a glutton rather than an epicure in his disputativeness—in other words, that he doesn't care a hang for the quality of his audience, as long as a quorum satisfactory in numbers will tarry to listen. If he be a brainless chatterer, this preference is easy enough of explanation. A good many of the fraternity, as a matter of course, are brainless chatterers; they are the least objectionable among the lot, on account of their manifest harmlessness. What makes the Batlan a nuisance and a peril to Jewish society at large, a seducer of youths and a spreader of mental-disease germs, is the fact that he is very often a man of real talent.

Such talent as he may have is always in a state of arrested development. The surest sign whereby to recognize a Batlan of the true-blue kind is the stagnant unprogressiveness of his intellect known to every one but himself. Say, for instance, that the specimen under review ten years ago has been a writer of little squibs and dissertations on communal personalities and events. For a decade and longer he has based his claims to authorship upon this petty specialty, dreaming—and talking—all the while of bigger performances to come. They never come, but that doesn't disillusion him. He hasn't even a suspicion that real literature, no matter how light and easy-flowing in outward aspect is always the product of sound scholarship, close application and searching self-criticism. Of this last-mentioned quality no Batlan ever had the smallest seasoning. If he had it would handicap his ever-present readiness to argue—the thing that makes him a Batlan. Every one of the fraternity—poet, attorney, communal worker, physician or what not—prefers to talk on general and sweeping themes, rather than a specific one, the reason being that any one, for instance, may talk big upon "the roots of philosophic their representatives among the rank and file of the Batlanim. Under the circumstances two questions will naturally suggest themselves to the reader—first, what are the qualities common to all Batlanim, regardless of differentiations, and, secondly, by nates it, may even require a definition of the word itself.

A Batlan, then, to be brief, is a man wagged by his tongue instead of wagging it with more or less frequency like the rest of us. The organ of speech in him has so mon-saloons, clubs—anywhere where there is unbounded latitude of irresponsible talk and opportunity for that inconsequential argument which is the Batlan's life breath, his staff and scrip, his daily food, his great end and object in life. He would egoism" without being found out, while it takes some information to argue about definite problems of history, statistics or the natural sciences.

Also, every Batlan, regardless of age or previous condition of servitude to fact, is an instinctive chochmazer, ready at any moment to sacrifice the essence of a thing to an epigram, a joke, an aperçu—anything that will "bring down the house." Being weak-minded, he cares for the mere theatricals of his contention more than for the contention itself. The sober facts of his life leave him unmoved, no matter how grave their significance, but a neat turn of speech may bring him to the verge of tears. All the sweltering misery and complications do not seriously touch his soul. They are mere grist upon his mill of words, words, words, providentially provided to keep his tongue going. So absolute is the sway of this one organ over the entire man that not only the lives of others, but even the events of his own life, are mere raw material for him to talk about, and devoid of an appeal to action. His very successes are to him a snare and a delusion. He will talk for ten years over the success of an early publication without following it up with another. If one of his business schemes has panned out a decade ago, he will spend the interval talking to death ten other schemes, without ever lifting a finger to bring them to a near realization. If, being a musician, he has written a popular air twenty years ago, it will take him a lifetime of coffeehouse sessions to exact his meed of glory. If the Batlan has been for six months an involuntary political prisoner in Russia, he will be a voluntary one for fifteen years within club-room confines in America, retailing his adventures, while his wife is waiting with the dinner and life is waiting to be lived. If he is a lawyer with a trade-union practice, he will regularly lose his cases in court and then win them in the tea rooms of East Broadway. Whatever their professional walk, the existence of our Batlanim dissolves in futile verbiage, as snowflakes dissolve under the March sun. And as snowflakes on the New York pavement, their collective life will leave only a dark and muddy pool, when the rising sun of right thinking and intellectual honesty will wean the broad masses of our people from their childish admirations for words, words, words.

As I am musing over the many Batlanim I have known, two life pictures—one in gay colors, the other in drab—persist in outcrowding all other recollections. Theatregoers of former years will perhaps remember that dark, woolly haired young man of an Italian and rather romantic aspect who used to preside over the box office of Mr. Adler's various theatrical undertakings. He was a big man physically, the soul of generosity, with a heart large enough to match even his vast expanse of shirt front. Despite his narrow resources he was in his own queer way a veritable patron of the arts; there was not a needy scribbler, painter, musician, actor of the Ghetto to whom he did not at one time or another hold out a helping hand—unasked, mind you, and with a delicacy in his manner of giving that would have done honor to a grand seigneur of the ancien regime. This delightful original, with his wholesome presence; cheery voice, huge sombrero and Italian brigand's cloak, was a welcome visitor wherever he went. His meshugas—a regular mental obsession—consisted in this: for ten years and longer he fancied himself a writer, spoke of "my works" and their realistic tendency, though never a line of his had ever seen the light of print; nor had he any manuscripts to exhibit, though he was perpetually talking about them. In his fixed idea I suppose he was confirmed by the natural unwillingness of every one in the joke to hurt his feelings. And thus he went on and on talking about his "works" without ever producing any, until his Ambrosian curls began to show streaks of gray and even the staunchest of his friends wearied of the profitless tale of his literary exploits. Three years ago he left New York for the West, and with him one of the most picturesque figures of the New York Ghetto has vanished from the scene. All blessings attend thee, dear old fellow, whenever thy shifts may have led thee—would that all Batlanim were as pleasantly innocent of mischief as thou art!

From this gay Don Quixote of the box office my thoughts revert to another old friend—perhaps the most powerful public speaker in Jewish New York. Twenty years—fifteen years—ten years ago he was still considered a man of vast promise—not without reason, either. He was a fair mathematician and a close reasoner in argument on all topics within his mental reach. That very prowess in argument was his undoing. He made it his business in life to convince people that are not worth the effort of convincing. For twenty years and more he expended a wealth of eloquence and keen analytic power on the conversion of a parcel of idlers and quidnuncs to his particular, separatist concepts of Socialism. He is by long odds the most unselfish soul I have ever known, with a spirit in adversity worthy of a hero and a saint. He

There are the makings of a man in him—but the man was never made or ever will be. Good Jewish raw material going to waste for lack of proper cultivation—therein lies the whole tragedy of the Batlan.

DOELGER BEER CLEAN AND PURE

New Bottling Establishment. a Model of Sanitary Construction in Its Every Department.

ONE OF BEST IN THE WORLD

Four-Day Trips, Sure to Become Popular, Will Be Feature of the Travel.

It is not long since, that one of the leading food experts of the world said: "Owing to its tonic and mildly stimulating properties, and to the presence of an unusually large proportion of nutritive constituents in a readily and almost completely assimilable form, beer stands practically alone among beverages, and unquestionably occupies a position among our food stuffs."

Following this, comes the statement from Mr. Peter Doelger, "Fifty years experience and study has taught me that Hygienic Bottled Beer for the home is a necessity."

Suiting the action to the word Peter Doelger has erected the complete sanitary beer bottling plant not one single point known to modern science in sanitary construction and appliances has been overlooked. The beer is absolutely pure, of the finest, most extensive and most modern bottling establishments in the United States, if not in the world.

Report of the Expert
Mr. J. E. Blaise, manager of the Peter Doelger Brewery for conducting a part through the new bottling and the entire brewery report:

"We know of the establishments of St. Louis and Cincinnati in the United States and Bavaria. We know the transfers now being made from the old to the new."

"There are many who have seen the new establishment in Amsterdam and Manhattan street."

"In the score of hearings the commission has held volumes of testimony and been given as to the valuation of the various lines, the capitalization of the companies and the amount on which they should be allowed to earn dividends. The companies, particularly the Metropolitan and the Metropolitan, have fought every step of the way, and on many of the main points have taken issue with the commission, so that the matter has become highly technical and involved. It is therefore probable that in the course of the issue will take long."

TURKEY ENDS HER LIFE TO ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Foolish Bird Going to a Fife at Feast Sees Poison in Soup of Wherry Classes.

A turkey, with an appetite for a fife, was seen at a feast given by the Wherry classes last evening. The turkey, it is said, did not eat the fife, but the turkey Trotter.

Four hundred square feet of the giving feast looked to each and every one of the attending officers of the Wherry classes.

Before their tummy great quantities of turkey, oysters, cranberry sauce and the other good things that make up a Thanksgiving dinner disappeared in amazing quantities. Their host kept a watchful eye upon them.

They were somewhat of a novelty in their profession by being always on the job. A good natured boss let them run home and put on their Sunday best, and thus attired they were seated opposite each other at the table. And how they did enjoy that dinner!

John Hays Hammond and His Attitude Towards the Jews.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
 In view of the many statements made relative to Mr. John Hays Hammond and his attitude towards the Jews, and in view of the fact that my remarks made at the dinner tendered Mr. Hammond by the Hungarian Republican Club were misquoted in the daily press, I wish to state to your readers that what I did say was as follows:

"It would be presumptuous on my part to stand here and give you my views of Mr. Hammond's attitude and actions in his relations towards his fellow-citizens upon any national question. In such a matter you are better qualified to judge than I, but so far as his relations with Jews are concerned, I can speak with unquestionable authority.

"On the principle, that an ounce of fact is worth a ton of theory, with your permission, I will proceed to give you a series of facts—all on record—to show that Mr. Hammond's sympathies with and interest in the Jewish people are such as to command the gratitude of Jews the world over.

"From the early part in 1904 and during the subsequent years in which Mr. Hammond was in South Africa, I filled the positions set forth by your chairman in connection with the Jewish organizations of Johannesburg, while at the same time my wife was also officially associated with quite a number of charitable institutions, Jewish and otherwise. There was no such thing in Johannesburg as distinction of creed where charity was the object; but owing to that time, to the large influx of poor Russian and other foreign Jews, we had occasion to make frequent appeals to the leading men of the community of all religions and, gentlemen, there was not one among the local leaders who was more eager to loosen his purse-strings and to assist in other practical ways, when the needs of poor Jews were involved, than John Hays Hammond. In his business relations he has invariably been closely identified with Jews, to my knowledge, in South Africa, in England and in the United States. In the civic and political life of the Transvaal under the Boer regime, in which I also had some considerable share, Mr. Hammond figured prominently side by side with Jews. Even during the dark days of his imprisonment for the honorable part he played in the Johannesburg reform movement of 1895-1896, many of his companions in captivity were good professing Jews. Among the four leaders of the movement who, including Hammond, were sentenced to death, was Mr. Lionel Phillips, an English Jew, then and now, one of the heads of the great financial house of Weinher, Beit & Co. Other of the Reform Committee included the Hon. Max Langermann, who preceded me as president of the Jewish School Board, and later became a member of the Upper House of the first Transvaal Legislature under the British Crown; Mr. S. B. Joel, a nephew of the late B. I. Barnato, and now head of the house bearing that name; Mr. H. Bettelheim, then Turkish consul in Johannesburg, who is well-known in London society; Mr. H. J. King, an American Jew, then a partner in the house of S. Neumann & Co., with financial interests in many parts of the world, Mr. Neumann, also a Jew, having for many years been a personal friend of the late Queen Victoria; Mr. Davis, an Australian Jew, known as 'Karril' Davis, through his association with the 'Karril' district in Australia, where his family owned immense tract of forestal lands, and, here, although it is outside the scope of my observations, it may be of interest to the many Jewish gentlemen present to know, that this brave Australian Jew was one of the heroes of the revolution and languished in jail with one solitary companion for many months after the release of the other reformers, by reason of his obstinate refusal to accept his liberty with any kind of condition attached. There was also Mr. Fritz Mosenthal, a member of the family of Mosenthal, pioneers in South African commerce and associated for many years with the De Beers Mining Syndicate. There were many others among the Jews identified with Mr. Hammond in various public and private organizations, and I venture to say there is not one of these, who, if called upon, would not consider it his duty as well as his pleasure to defend John Hays Hammond against the nearest suggestion that he is in any way inimical to Jews or callous to their interests. Gentlemen, I go further and assert that in connection with the reform movement, Mr. Hammond risked his life largely for Jews—and few know better than I, how near the death sentence passed upon him, was to execution—because one-fourth of the population of Johannesburg, who were to benefit by the reforms sought to be established, were Jews.

"Even more recently, we have evidence of his friendship for Jews, as recorded by the English newspapers during the Coronation ceremonies. When he had concluded his official duties as special ambassador of the United States, he and Mrs. Hammond gave a series of semi-official social receptions to which were invited a large number of old Jewish friends with most of whom he had never had the smallest business connection of any kind. Is that the sort of man who has anti-semitic tendencies? But apart from all this, it would be monstrous to suppose that a man like Mr. Hammond, who, to a large extent, owes the wide recognition of his professional and other qualifications to his association with Jews, should turn a deaf ear to their just claims or betray their most sacred interests.

"Gentlemen, I have not come here as an advocate or an apologist for Mr. Hammond, who is well able to defend himself in regard to his public acts. But as a Jew and a friend, I gladly availed myself of your kind invitation in order that I might help to remove false impressions and to preserve for my coreligionists a sincere and valuable friend of another faith."

Very truly yours,
 LEOPOLD GRAHAME.

Volunteers Wanted.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
 It is thirteen years since the first celebration of Chanukah, by my classes, in the Pike Street Synagogue. It is interesting to compare the grudging permission that was given us then with to-day's cordial and appreciative reception of our efforts.

But I venture to characterize as epoch-making the invitation given us by Mr. Abraham Lewis, the president of the synagogue, to bring our children in a body to the regular services. He said that it must be now clear to everybody that it was of the highest consequence to the future of Judaism in this city that the children should be made familiar with the service in the synagogue. He promised to give up the best section of the synagogue to the boys and a similar section of the gallery to the girls, and asked me to arrange that the children should attend in charge of a sufficient number of teachers.

I am very anxious to take advantage of this most gratifying recognition of the value of our work, which shows that the way in which we have conducted our Chanukah services by the children has reacted upon their elders.

But the majority of my co-workers live up-town, and I shall therefore have great difficulty in arranging for a sufficient number of teachers from among my regular volunteer staff. I write you this, in the hope that some young men and young women residing downtown, who are anxious to improve synagogue attendance, and I venture to suggest, also to improve the manner in which the synagogues are usually conducted, will communicate with me. Is there anything left of the Jewish Endeavor Society?

Very truly yours,
 ALBERT LUCAS.

New Jewish Hospital for Hudson County, N. J.

For some time past a Jewish hospital, where the dietary laws would be strictly enforced, has been contemplated for Hudson County, and at a meeting held in Jersey City last week, it was decided to divide the county into districts for more effective work. The various localities interested are Jersey City, Bayonne, Hoboken, West Hoboken and North Hudson. The committee of the latter, comprising Messrs. Ed. Hollander, Henry Burstein, S. Saperstein, J. Fisher and Max Cohen, met last Monday night, and it was decided to hold a big mass meeting at the Hebrew Institute, Union Hill, N. J., on Sunday, January 7, at 2 p. m. A number of prominent speakers have promised to attend, and all interested in the movement are cordially invited to be present and participate.

A New Synagogue Dedicated by the Kolboshower Tettelbaum Congregation.

A handsome synagogue, situated at 622 East Fifth street, and costing over $35,000 was dedicated Sunday, December 17, by the Kolboshower Tettelbaum Congregation. Cantor S. Deutch with his choir sang the beautiful Hebrew chants, and Rev. Dr. Moses Weinberger preached the dedication sermon. Other speakers were: Isidor Appel, Morris Letzer, David Bier, D. L. Machlovitch, M. Faper, Ph. Mandelker, J. Jam and B. Apfel.

Mr. Louis Leiman, chairman of the Building Committee, made a strong appeal for a deeper interest in the synagogue, stating it is the synagogue alone which has enabled the Jew to survive despite of all persecutions.

Mrs. Jennie Schnur and Mrs. Sarah Letzer presented to the congregation two beautiful Scrolls of the Law.

The Kolboshower Tettelbaum Congregation organized twenty years ago with twenty members, now has a large membership and is in a prosperous condition. These are its officers: Bernard Apfel, president; Moses Letzer, vice-president; Mr. Fauer, recording secretary; S. Braunhut, financial secretary; Louis Leiman, Treasurer.

Religion in the Public Schools

By HON. THOMAS C. T. CRAIN, Justice Court of General Sessions, New York City.

This is not an attack upon our public schools. I never think of them without a thrill of pride. I favor the education of the young in them and would be glad were such schools attended by both rich and poor. The system of secular education in them, although susceptible of improvement, is efficient.

Based upon acquaintance with many of the public school teachers and principals, I affirm that as a class they are high-minded and intelligent, enthusiastic in the discharge of their duties, taking interest in their pupils and exerting by example a wholesome influence.

Secular education, however, no matter how moral the atmosphere in which it is given, is not a substitute for religious training, and of the two the latter is incomparably the more important because it educates the conscience and gives the highest incentives to right conduct. Childhood must be taught that God is and reigns—that man's highest good is found in the doing of His will, and that there is a sanction for good conduct in transcending human penalties or rewards.

Owing to differences in religious belief among the parents of those attending public schools, and to legislative and constitutional provisions originating in part because of this circumstance, religious as distinguished from secular instruction is not given in the public schools.

For many years believers in the importance of religious as well as secular instruction have been divided into two classes, namely, those of opinion that religious instruction could be sufficiently and efficiently given in the home and Sabbath school and those of opinion that the opportunities for the acquisition of religious instruction afforded in the home and Sabbath school were inadequate and that as a consequence religious teaching should be imparted to the young in the buildings in which they received secular education.

Childhood's natural altar is the mother's knee, and in New York city to-day in thousands of homes God-fearing parents of every creed conscientiously and painstakingly instruct their children, attendants at public schools, in the fundamentals of religion, and such teaching is reinforced in numerous and well-attended Sabbath schools; with the result that such instruction fittingly supplements the secular education obtained in the public schools. Nevertheless, it is true that in our city conditions of more or less recent origin militate against the giving of sufficient and efficient religious instruction in the homes and Sabbath schools, and that it is a deplorable

NEWS FROM ENGLAND.

(Exclusive Correspondence to THE HEBREW STANDARD.)

Probable Candidate for Chief Rabbi Comes to England from Australia—Death of Sir George Lewis, Prominent Jew and England's Leading Lawyer—Stories of His Sensational and Romantic Career—Man of Many Mysteries Takes His Secrets with Him.

London, December 9, 1911.

The opinion is gaining ground in the Jewish community in this country that the Rev. Dr. Joseph Abrahams, rabbi of Melbourne, will be the chief if not the only candidate for the position of chief rabbi of the United Kingdom. He has already arrived in London, and judging from some of the arrangements made by the officials of the United Synagogue for his reception, it looks as if he stands the greatest chance of being elected successor to the late Dr. Adler. Should this prove to be the case, a split in the Jewish community will be unavoidable, as the largest section dislike the appointment which will be made by the extremely small ring of the official circle of the United Synagogue. Already there is a strong agitation against the proposal of electing a chief rabbi. The agitation is all the more significant, coming, as it does, from Manchester, the Jewish community, which had ever been among the most loyal to the central body in London. The resolution of the North Manchester Synagogue, expressing profound regret that on the highest grounds invitations to the conference have been withheld from a large number of Hebrew communities all over the country, has had no small effect, and similar resolutions are being formulated elsewhere, notably in the east end of London. The present difficulty is a double one. There is, first, the problem of who is to be appointed chief rabbi, and second—and no less formidable—the problem of his functions and administrative power. Dr. Abrahams enjoys a considerable reputation as a preacher, as a scholar, and as a communal worker. An Englishman by birth, and a member of a distinguished family, which has long been associated with communal matters, he is a worthy candidate for the vacant post. At this stage it would not be proper to dwell at length on this subject. Other candidates will doubtless be forthcoming, and to signal out any one for special mention would hardly be seemly. But in so far as every candidate for the exalted post must attract the respectful attention of the community, the advent of Dr. Abrahams must, of necessity, be met with a special interest. I am quite sure that whatever be the decision of the body charged with the ultimate choice of a successor to Dr. Adler, Dr. Abrahams will receive the warm greeting which is his due by his position and his attainments.

England's greatest lawyer, and one of the most prominent members of the United Synagogue, has passed away with the death of Sir George Lewis, of which firm his father, James Abraham Lewis, and his uncle, George Lewis, were the founders. Sir George Lewis's mother was Harriet, daughter of Henry Davis, of London. He was educated at the school of Henry Solomon, of London, where so many of the sons of the earlier Anglo-Jewish families received their education, and later at University College, Gower street. At the latter institution Sir George was contemporary with Sir Ralph Littler, Lord Selby, Justice Charles, and Joseph Chamberlain.

The founders of the business were Sir George Lewis's father and uncle, but its present dimensions and position are due to Sir George's own extraordinary ability and activities. He was articled to his father at seventeen years of age, and at once assiduously followed his profession. He was admitted a solicitor in 1856.

His subsequent career is one which beggars romance. He once said: "No novel was ever written, no play ever produced that has contained or could contain such incidents and situations as are securely locked up in the archives of my memory." His memory, however, will never be written. He kept no diary—contrary to the practice of most lawyers—a matter of great relief to his clientele; his secrets have perished with him. The very deed boxes in his strong-room were turned to the wall, so that not even their names could be seen. They were distinguished from one another by ciphers. Yet in them have lain papers enough, as has been said, "to compromise half London and scandalize the other half."

What manner of man was this brilliant lawyer—undoubtedly the most famous in the world of his time? Picture a short, slight, gray-haired, white-whiskered, dapper man, with watchful glittering eyes, a soft voice, a keenly, alert intellect, guided by an indomitable will, and you have the man who for nearly half a century up to the end of 1909, when he retired, was concerned in nearly all the causes celebres of that period.

In the conduct of his cases he had inexhaustible enthusiasm. He was a fervid partisan and a fighter to the last ditch. Although he was a most successful lawyer in the cases that came before the courts, he made equal fame and fortune by keeping cases out of court. It is said of him that he carried compromise to its highest point.

Only one case in a hundred that he handled supplied material for legal proceedings. Nobody will ever know how many sensational suits he has kept out of court; how many blackmailing charges, leveled against persons of the highest consideration he had settled, how many awkward tangles he has unraveled; how much unnecessary and venomous scandal he was able to suppress.

Society recognized him as the adviser who could arrange all sorts of difficulties with a ripe prudence and wisdom. Society went to him in all its embarrassments and society acknowledged him not only as a professional adviser but also as a confident and long-headed friend with the result that he knew more about the social history of England than any man of his period. No man ever knew more secrets; no man kept them better.

Sir George Lewis often told the story of his first case. "A hansom drove up to the office and a woman rushed in in a terrible state of mind. She told me that her son was in custody at Westminster Police Court on a charge of robbing a till in a public-house. I rushed away, fought the case and won it, though I admit, that, while I was questioning the witnesses, I did not know whether I was on my head or my heels. The mother, a big, muscular woman, waited for me outside the court and shouted out on seeing me, 'Well done, young 'un!' at the same time giving me a smack on the back which I remember to this day."

Sir George was in the historic baccarat case, in which the story of the Tranby Croft house-party was unfolded. King Edward, then Prince of Wales, appeared as witness in the case. Sir William Gordon Cumming brought an action for slander against Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson, of Tranby Croft, and other defendants in connection with a card-playing scandal. Sir George acted for the defendants, for whom, after a trial of unusual piquancy, a verdict was returned.

The first really great prosecution with which he was connected was that of the directors of Overend, Gurney and Company, whose bank failure produced the Black Friday, which is still remembered by old city men. On that occasion Sir George, though barely more than thirty years of age, had to stand up against the forces of the late Mr. Serjeant Balfour and other leaders of the Bar, but he acquitted himself with success. Still more prominent did he become in the Balham poisoning case, which aroused much public interest upwards of thirty years ago. The victim was a young solicitor named Bravo, who had died under suspicious circumstances after drinking wine out of a decanter. A coroner's jury had found a verdict of death from natural causes, but in deference to popular opinion a second inquest was held. At this second inquiry, which was protracted, Sir George Lewis appeared on behalf of Mr. Bravo's friends and made a most searching cross-examination of some of the witnesses. The mystery was never solved, but the manner in which Sir George conducted the case went far to increase his reputation. He was retained in the libel action brought by Mr. Bell, the sculptor, against Mr. Lawes, who had in effect charged the plaintiff with being an impostor or a person of no skill, who got others to do work for which he claimed the credit and the gains. The proceedings were reported at great length in the newspapers, and much criticism was leveled at the cross-examination of the complainant. After several days' hearing, the jury awarded $25,000 damages. On the motion for a new trial the majority of the Divisional Court refused the application on the plaintiff's consent—without the consent of the defendant—to the reduction of the damages to $2,500. The Court of Appeal accepted this decision as sound law, despite the defendant's protest that it was a usurpation of the functions of a jury.

Thenceforth a practice grew up for the Court of Appeal to reduce damages even against the will of one of the parties. The prosecution of Madame Rachel, (of the "beautiful forever" swindle), the Benson turf frauds, the Collin Campbell suit, one of the biggest divorce cases ever known in this country, in which the famous Sir Charles Dilke figured as co-respondent, the case of Charles Wood, the jockey, against the "Licensed Victuallers' Gazette," the action of Sir George Chetwynd versus the Earl of Durham, and the release of Adolph Beck (a great case of imprisoning the wrong man), were among the other causes celebres in which Sir George Lewis was engaged. In most of these cases he worked more or less behind the scenes, the career of a solicitor being somewhat obscured under our system. He is the stage manager, but gets little of the glory which attaches to the actor. In law reports all the recognition he secures is in having his name printed at the end, and in the famous trials which fill columns of the newspapers he makes no appearance at all. His maxim has to be "bene qui latuit bene vixit." This was pre-eminently the case with Sir George Lewis, whose business in the adjustment of difficulties and in devising means of escape from awkward troubles formed as great a part of his labors as actual court proceedings.

For every case that came into court under his auspices there were probably a score in which litigation was avoided through amicable arrangements in chambers. A strenuous fighter, he was a master of diplomacy, and his experience of the world had convinced him of the wisdom of the injunction: "Agree with thine adversary quickly." His name was long associated with that of Mr. Louboucher's in connection with the merciless but salutary exposures in "Truth" of frauds and quacks. The libel action against the paper generally failed at the trial, and a not unusual sequel was the bankruptcy of the plaintiff. The famous solicitor's collaboration with Mr. Louboucher formed an interesting feature in the social life of the country, but his services on behalf of the Irish Parliamentary Party constituted a no less interesting and more important chapter of its political history. There can be no question as to the skill with which he acted in the case of the Parnell Commission, and amassed the materials for the remarkable speech of Sir Charles Russell. The preliminary labors, the choice and management of the witnesses, the preparation of proofs and other details he carried through with conspicuous ability.

Sir George Lewis, who was knighted in 1893, was made a baronet in 1903, and a Commander of the Royal Victorian Order in 1905. He gave valuable evidence before the Parliamentary Committee on the moneylenders act of 1900. That evidence was not sparing of some of his own faith, and was favorable to the principle of the act, which has been more successful than was expected by old-fashioned economists, who regarded it as a revival of the ancient usury laws. He was an enthusiast for legal reform, and it was largely through him that the Court of Criminal Appeal Act became law. He agitated in favor of admitting a prisoner to give evidence on oath, contending that in many cases the testimony of the person accused was more important than that of anyone else for the purpose of proving his guilt or innocence.

He was a familiar figure in social life, and like the late Lord Chief Justice was an assiduous first nighter at the play. But to public life in the strict sense of the term he was a stranger. He was never a candidate for Parliament and his political convictions were an unknown quantity, while, except in the police courts, he scarcely ever made a speech.

In 1863 Sir George married Victorine, daughter of Philip Kann, of Frankfurt on the Main. She died two years later, after having given birth to a daughter, Alice Victorine, who afterwards became the wife of Abraham Lionel Hart. In 1867 Sir George married his present wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Ferdinand Eberstadt, of Mannheim. Sir George did not play any important part in communal affairs, but Lady Lewis is a member of the Council of the Anglo-Jewish Association.

In order to insure the insertion of communications in the current issue of THE HEBREW STANDARD they must be in this office not later than Wednesday noon of the week in which they are to appear.

The shochetim and shomerim of London have organized themselves into an association. Their example is well worth imitating in this and other cities, for the benefits flowing therefrom are obvious.

Who would have thought that "Jim" Mann, Republican minority leader in the House of Representatives at Washington, is the grandson of a Jew. The Russian passport problem has brought out strange half-hidden facts. Well, Mr. Mann, Sholem Aleichem!

The firm of John Hays Hammond & Co. takes pleasure in announcing that it has admitted George R. Malby, a congressman from New York, to a full interest. Representatives McCall, of Massachusetts, and Olmsted, of Pennsylvania, have joined the Messrs. Hammond as procurators.

The Russian passport question, the coming ball of the Daughters of Jacob and, last but by no means least, the fact that 1912 marks the next Presidential election have combined to make President Taft take an absorbing interest in Jewish affairs in this country and in the welfare of his Jewish fellow-citizens.

Mayor Gaynor's remarks at the First Roumanian-American Synagogue were, as usual, pithy and sensible. His admiration for our race is, we feel certain, deep and sincere. His respect for our traditional religious customs, which led him to refrain from even instinctively attempting to remove his hat on entering the house of worship, is what many brethren of the House of Israel may take to heart.

We are pleased to observe that the opposition to the reelection of Miss Sadie American, as executive secretary of the National Council of Jewish Women, at the recent Philadelphia triennial, failed to accomplish their object. Miss American's services to the organization are altogether too valuable to make her future efficiency as a council worker dependent upon "politics" and the play of mind against mind.

The press dispatches state that Nicholas the Unspeakable, Czar of all the Russias, is offended by the language of the Goldfogle-Sulzer-Harrison resolution, passed by the House of Representatives, which abrogates the treaty of 1832. The Czar regards the resolution as an insult, which is what surprises us. That the resolution would be an insult to any civilized power we freely admit; that Nicholas should have the manhood to deem it an insult, that he, in short, is "capable of being insulted," is why we wonder!

Is there such a thing as Christian charity? We hear much of it, and whenever there is a case in point it is usually that of a wealthy Jew who leaves his money to Jewish, Catholic and Protestant charities. In Cincinnati recently a childless widow, a non-Jewess, died and left her money to charities of every nature and description, with the sole and strict exception of the Jewish institutions. The exception only proves the rule and the case of John J. Clancy, of this city, who has just bequeathed $25,000 each to the Presbyterian, St. Vincent's and Mount Sinai hospitals, is an exception. For, Mr. Clancy showed by his bequests that he fully comprehended the meaning of the term "true charity," a term which is better than any involving a conception of sectarian charity.

If the subject of the Russian passport is going to be made the vehicle whereby rival statesmen are to realize their political ambitions, we keenly regret that the matter has received publicity. We note that in Boston two meetings on the subject of the "Jewish passport," which does not exist, are scheduled to take place, at one of which the hero is to be Mayor Fitzgerald, and at the other the hero is to be Congressman Keliher. We hope both of these statesmen are actuated by the purest of motives in treating this question. We cannot shut our eyes, however, to the fact that Boston contains a very large number of our Russian brethren-in-faith and therefore the thought that political capital may be obtained from a discussion of the passport question may have well been in the minds of the two statesmen. And, so far as we know, they are political rivals!

JEWISH ANTI-SEMITISM.

WE often hear it said that Jews are among the most violent of anti-Semites. In truth, the observation is not without point. As our readers well know, there is frequently greater animosity between Jew and Jew than between Jew and Gentile. A Litwack strongly dislikes a native of Posen and the proud descendant of the Jews of the Iberian peninsula would sooner associate with any other men than with natives of the southwestern portion of the present German Empire.

These remarks seem germane to a consideration of the act of a Jewish lawyer in Brooklyn the other day, who moved to have a verdict, returned by the jury against his client, set aside upon the ground that a majority of the jurors were Jews. The judge, a non-Jew by the way, in denying the lawyer's motion, was constrained to say to him that Jews are jurors in every case tried in that court and that they are quite as fair and just in determining the facts of each case as members of any other race.

While, of course, the lawyer's mistaken zeal defeated itself, what must have been the thought of the judge in the case in contemplation of the circumstances? Here was a Jew objecting to Jewish jurors; as if the Jews are not "blessed" already with a sufficient number of detractors and enemies! If a non-Jew had made the motion in question, loud and long would have been the protests of Jews of every shade and condition against it. But a Jew permits himself anything, and without any regard at all for the Derech Erets of the premises.

Jewish residents of Fitchburg, Mass., recently held a meeting in their own synagogue at which the candidates of the local Citizens' party were present and delivered addresses. The candidates sought the suffrages of their fellow-townsmen for municipal office presumably upon the ground that a reform of local conditions is absolutely essential. We state these facts as a prelude to our strictures upon this meeting and upon others of a like character which may be held in the future. The matter upon which these candidates appeared and spoke before the Jews of Fitchburg was a question of party politics, and as such had no place in the local synagogue. Even though the persons concerned were members of the reform party—standing, it is safe to assume, for the principles of good citizenship and right political living—we give it as our opinion that such movements should never enjoy the hospitality of any house of religious worship. Admitting for the sake of argument that the meeting in question was held in the vestry, and not in the synagogue proper, the fault is none the less grave. While the synagogue is the "house of life" in the most exalted sense of that term, yet problems of partisan politics and the followers of any political party are, and of right ought to be, rigidly excluded from that edifice which God has ordained to be a house of prayer for all the nations.

Anglo-Jewish literary societies are now and then the scene of strange pronouncements and afford, every little while, an opportunity for some prominent personage who bears Jews more or less ill-will to address a Jewish audience. The other day Mr. Gilbert K. Chesterton, who is of course well known wherever recent English literature is read or discussed, was the guest of such a society in the fashionable West End district of London and told his hearers what he knew, or did not know, about the Jewish position. Chesterton is a past master of epigram, and some of his critics add to this judgment: et praeterea nihil! His address on the Jewish position, as reported by the press, left much to be desired. As he admitted frankly himself, he knows very little of the Jews and so his remarks resolved themselves into an apology for or defense of himself against the charge that he is an anti-Semite. In this respect his speech is not worth serious consideration, for, if he is not an anti-Semite, why is he ever anxious to point out what he conceives to be Jewry's gravest faults through the medium of the general press? A lover of the Jewish people occupies the same position towards the world without and before a Jewish audience.

We are glad to print, in another column, the views of the Hon. Thomas C. T. Crain, a judge of the Court of General Sessions of this city, on the subject of religious training for the young. Our readers may recall that recently we commented adversely on the proposal thus put forth by Judge Crain. In the face of what he thus says on this subject, we think it fair to say that our views have not been changed in any particular. We regard his suggestion as extremely dangerous, although we gladly give him full credit for his thorough sincerity. It remains to be said that Judge Crain's contribution to our columns took originally the form of a communication to the Society for the Protection of Church Schools, a Roman Catholic organization headed by ex-Comptroller Bird S. Coler and the Hon. Thomas M. Mulry, of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

We have one on our friend Brother Spitz, of The Jewish Voice, of St. Louis. In his latest issue appears the following paragraph:

"And now Brother Spitz, of The Jewish Voice, reprints a story from our columns and credits it to 'Ex.' Et tu, Brute!"—We really do not know to which story Brother Solomon of The Hebrew Standard refers, but we, have sinned, we see, and with deep remorse we say: "Peccavimus."

And, in the very same issue there is printed "The Usurer," by Edward Eliscu, a story first published in the columns of our journal. At the end of the tale, as given in The Jewish Voice, we look in vain for The Hebrew Standard, or Exchange, or even "Ex." A yawning, white blank, and nothing more! Editor Spitz will now have more sins to confess.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

וַיִּרְעַב כָּל-אֶרֶץ מִצְרַיִם וַיִּצְעַק הָעָם אֶל-פְּרָעֹה לֵאמֹר פָּרְעֹה יִשְׁמָע
 לִבְנֵי-מִצְרַיִם לֵבֵנו אֵלֶיךָ אֲשֶׁר-יִשְׁמָע לָכֵן תִּעָשֶׂה

And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread; and Pharaoh said unto all Egyptians, Go unto Joseph; what he saith unto you, do. (Gen. xli: 52.)

EGYPT lay writhing in the bony clutch of hunger. Men, women and children—the strong and the feeble alike—were perishing. The land had never known such a scourge before. The country shook with one long fit of hunger. Their god—the River Nile—had forsaken them. Their mother—the earth—had refused to nourish them. They came, these famished men and women did, to their Father Pharaoh the mighty king, the natural protector of his subjects; they begged for mercy; they looked for wise counsel from the priests and magicians. But the natural rulers and advisers of the people found themselves helpless; even Pharaoh acknowledged—reluctantly, we fancy—that there is some one superior to him at this juncture, some one to whom he had to cede his sovereign privileges. "Go to Joseph," says he; "obey none but him." We may imagine what struggle it must have cost the proud Pharaoh to make this admission of his own powerlessness. For who was this Joseph? An obscure prisoner, a condemned slave, a Hebrew—a foreigner!

For the noncé the kingly scepter had fallen into the dust and been picked up by one who was least expected to ever become worthy of such a signal honor. And thus Joseph stepped out of the pit into the palace, out of the dungeon into the dignity of dictatorship. The prisoner became a prince, the slave a sovereign.

He became the Man of the Hour! This sudden rise from humbleness to height, caused by the exigencies of a critical hour, is not an isolated phenomenon in history. Our own Chanukkah story furnishes the duplicate of Joseph's elevation. At the time of the Hasmonean war nation was in the throes of a greater crisis than even Egypt of old. The famine was not of the body, but of the spirit. The very foundations of our faith and our fate were being undermined. The pressure of hostility from without and the stress of strife within rendered the position of our people practically hopeless. At this period help came—whence? From the ruling circles of Jerusalem? No. From the High-Priest, or any of the appointed leaders of the people—men standing in the blazing light of publicity? No. Whence did it come? It came from an obscure little village—Modin, much further removed from the officialdom of those days than Tarrytown with its cabbage-patch from Washington. And the men who tendered help to the hard-pressed people were as obscure as their native town. And yet they became mighty warriors, conquerors, founders of a dynasty of deathless memory. Men of the hour, they were men for the hour, masters of the situation, rulers appointed by History.

Not in any frivolous sense do we call such men Men of the Hour, and not in any ephemeral sense, either, as if to compare them to some of the mushroom greatneses of our own time that are raised up by some freak of popular favor or some whim of fate and are dispatched with equal swiftness back into the obscurity whence they had come forth; but in a much more abiding, a much more profound sense. We mean by it that the Hour, that Time, that God—God ruling in History—ripens men just as the Sun ripens grapes on solitary mountain slopes. The men of the Hour are made by the Hour that needs them. When Egypt needs a Joseph, it secures him from Canaan; when Jerusalem needs a Maccabean, it fetches him from Modin; when France, when Europe, needs a Napoleon, it gets him from Corsica. When the world wants a prophet, it takes him from the ploughshare. Wherever and whenever men are wanted they spring up, from the very ground, and always at the opportune moment. What else is this than the work of the Hand Invisible guiding the destinies of nations? God goes down to the pit with Joseph to watch over him, to cause his soul to grow and blossom, to fill his heart with the distilled essence of His own divine nature; and God hauls him out of the pit when He thinks the time has arrived. God does this with every future leader. Silently, in a darkness that no human eye can penetrate, does the loom of History stand in the very shadow of the Almighty Weaver. When the Hour arrives the wheels are set awirling, the mysterious strands are sent off the distaff into the web of human life, and then names are embroidered into the fateful fabric which the world had never heard of before, but which the world must venerate forever thereafter.

Yes, must! For woe to the Hour that does not hearken to its men! Woe to the Times that do not recognize their own choicest fruit—the leaders that had come forth from their loins! But this seldom happens. The same Power that creates leaders creates followers. And thus the fabric of human life remains, on the whole, strong and bright.

RABBI JOEL BLAU.

Who says the Jews of this city are not great and influential factors in its commercial life? The new 1912 calendars just distributed by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company and the Lawyers' Title Insurance and Trust Company each have the Jewish holydays plainly marked thereon. In the New York real estate world Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are surely on a par with Christmas and the Fourth of July. As a matter of fact, they are even more important!

A Liverpool physician, named Sir James Barr, took advantage of the occasion of his address on Jewish eugenics to deliver himself of some anti-Semitic sentiments. What the sentiments had to do with his subject, probably the lecturer knows. We confess we do not.

Synagogue Transformed to a Paint Shop.

We are sorry, very sorry, to hear of the sale of the former Mickveh Israel Synagogue in Philadelphia. From what we learn from reliable sources the congregation could very well have afforded to maintain the building as a free synagogue. That it had so intended caused universal praise, but, what is far more, led many who had hitherto been lax or indifferent to seek its holy precincts and show thereby their gratitude to God and their appreciation of an historic institution.

No one would have believed that for a few dollars (the sum paid for the building is, indeed, small) such violence would be done to sacred ideals and a glorious history. Our lamented editor was among those who valued Mickveh Israel's work as an exponent of Judaism, and as the expression of the Orthodoxy, represented by its great minister, the beloved Reverend Doctor Sabato Morais. His was a name to conjure with, and when it is known that he always opposed both a removal and a sale, one might have thought that justice would be done to such a memory.

Even, besides, youth in Philadelphia Israel, we are told, were being familiarized with the traditional Sephardic liturgy, and loved to join in the service and profit by the instruction afforded there.

With the further knowledge that Mr. Arthur A. Dembitz has for almost two years been giving his services as reader and lecturer gratuitously, all these circumstances combined, ought to have influenced those who have "the say" toward the continuation of the Free Synagogue as a motive power for good.

But all in vain. Not even a numerously signed petition, we are informed, proved of any avail. Negotiations were entered into "on the quiet," without the knowledge of the worshippers in the Free Synagogue, and all their entreaties before the sale took place passed unheeded.

And now the grand old synagogue, so often resounding with the Psalms and the voices of the true in Israel, is to become a paint shop. It is useless to expect any explanation from the infallible "powers that be," yet they will have to bear the whole responsibility, and the brunt of attack for their unnecessary, unabashed, and unexplained procedure.

Lucas Again Leads the Way

We call the attention of our readers to a communication from Mr. Albert Lucas, printed in another column of this issue. He calls for volunteers to accompany the children of his classes, who have been invited by the president of the Pike Street Synagogue to attend the regular services. We do not quite understand his question as to where the Jewish Endeavor Society is. We presume that he intends to stir up the members of that society (is it defunct?) to aid him in this most remarkable recognition of the value of his work and of his methods. That society attempted to conduct services of its own in several downtown synagogues, and failed. After years of hard work, Mr. Lucas is now secure in the confidence of the downtown synagogues, and if he is given the assistance he deserves the good work can be very far-reaching in results.

In his letter Mr. Lucas says that the Chanuka services conducted by the children have reacted upon their elders. This has taken thirteen years, but if the children attend the

Absolutely the Purest Table Water

In all the world there is no other known spring like the great, never-failing.

Spring in the side of a two thousand-foot mountain at Ellenville, New York.

It was first tapped, long before the Revolution, by a prospector, who tunneled five hundred feet into the mountainside. Then, for more than a century, it was lost, and in its stead there seemed to exist nothing but a legend of a spring of wonderful purity.

In 1905 it was rediscovered and in 1906 the property surrounding the spring was acquired, the finest and most sanitary water plant in the world was erected, and the water, in still and sparkling form, put on the market at a moderate price.

It is bottled ONLY at the spring, but is on sale everywhere.

Sun-Ray table water is delicious and absolutely the purest in the world, and can be drunk in any quantity with positive benefit.

The LAKEWOOD HOTEL LAKEWOOD, N. J.

"THE HOTEL THAT MADE LAKEWOOD FAMOUS."

Will Be Reopened December 20th for the Season of 1911-12

BY

MR. LOUIS FRENKEL

The Well Known Hotel Man and Caterer.

The Hotel has been thoroughly renovated and put into perfect condition. The Lakewood Hotel is too well known to the readers of this paper to call for any lengthy description. We will, however, say it is the finest Winter Resort Hotel in the North. The Hotel will be conducted on the American Plan, on the most exclusive lines. Service and cuisine to be under Mr. Frankel's personal supervision. Lakewood is celebrated for its mild climate, sandy soil and its balmy, piney air. It is an ideal place for the tired business man, and is near enough to New York to enable him to keep in touch with his business affairs. There is an eighteen hole golf course near the Hotel in perfect condition. The appointments of the livery are of the best and the horses for riding and driving have been carefully selected and are safe and reliable. Mr. Frankel is familiar with every department of the Hotel business. His years of experience, the manner in which he conducted the Hotel Albert, N. Y., and his success at the Hotel Kaaterskill, Catskill Mountains, is a guarantee that everything will be done to insure the comfort and enjoyment of his patrons.

regular services, as is now suggested, we are confident that they will influence the synagogue by eliminating the disorder and lack of decorum to which we have so often felt compelled to refer.

Fashion in Shoes.

There is no ruler whose decrees are followed with such implicit obedience as are those of the arbitrary ruler, Fashion, and we often hear people exclaim, "One might as well be out of the world as out of fashion." This ruler does not register any decrees, or directly order what shall be done; but his wishes are followed all the same.

This is particularly so in the matter of personal attire; comfort or no comfort, fashion is followed.

I noticed a lady the other day while standing and conversing with a gentleman, suffer the most intense agony, and her suffering was so plainly depicted upon her countenance that the gentleman made inquiry as to the trouble, when, in reply, she exclaimed that the heels on her shoes were higher than she was accustomed to wear, and her foot pained her terribly.

It may be fashionable to have small liberty poles to serve as heels, but it is not natural or what the foot requires; it is torture, but fashion requires it.

One often sees a lady whose avoirdupois will turn the beam at from 175 to 250 walking along with shoes of which the stilllike heels are scarcely more than three-quarters of an inch in diameter. There certainly can be no sense in this. It's a matter of fashion, however, and that must be obeyed.

Would it not be just as well to try a little wider heel, something a little more in the "common sense" line? L'AIGLON.

SOLON J. LIEBESKIND, Grand Master; ABRAHAM HAFER, Grand Secretary; A. E. KARLESEN, Grand Treasurer.

Many Free Sons were present at a dinner tendered Past Grand Master Julius Harburger, on Saturday evening last, at Rector's, among them being Grand Master M. S. Stern, Herman Steifel, Adolph Finkenber, J. A. Hirschman and Henry Licf'tig. Grand Master Stern responded to the toast of "Welcome to the Guests," and delivered the following address:

"We are assembled here to-night to honor a man who, through unswerving fidelity, irreproachable honesty and superior intelligence, has deservedly won the affection and admiration of his fellow citizens.

"He has given the best years of his life to the needs of this great metropolitan city and he has left the impress of his lofty character upon the various offices to which he has been successively called by the will of the people.

"This assemblage to-night, which embraces the honorable justices of the Supreme Court, the comptroller of the Empire State, the distinguished Superintendent of Schools of the City of New York, and others noted in the various walks of life in our great city, is a deserving tribute to one to whom it can be justly said 'Well done thou good and faithful servant.' In the new office, which the suffrages of our fellow citizens have placed him, we know that he will manifest the same efficiency, the same courage, the same rugged honesty which have always been his characteristics, and as an old friend of his, I bid you welcome to these festivities in honor of that grand type of an American, our Sheriff-elect, Julius Harburger."

Grand Master M. S. Stern will visit lodges in Chicago on January 14, at the same time attending the bi-annual convention of District No. 2. On January 16 he will be at St. Louis, on the 21st at Memphis, the 23d at Louisville, the 24th at Cincinnati and the 25th at Detroit. Preparations are being made by the various lodges to give him a rousing reception.

The order was prominent in the recent passport agitation. The grand lodge adopted resolutions calling upon all the subordinate lodges to petition their Congressmen to vote for abrogation, and much propaganda was done, all of which tended towards the successful outcome.

Aryeh Lodge, No. 6, will give a smoker on January 3, 1912, and from present indications the reception room will not be large enough to hold the expected assemblage. Bro. Henry A. Baum is chairman of the Arrangement Committee, and is ably assisted by Bros. Max E. Baum, Isaac Bear and Benj. Blumenthal.

Rueben Lodge, No. 3, will have an open installation at the club house on Sunday, January 7. Grand Master M. S. Stern will install the newly elected officers.

The newly elected officers of the following lodges will be publically installed as follows: Peter Cooper, No. 98, on January 4; Mt. Vernon, No. 71, on January 8, and New York, No. 44, on January 9.

Abraham Lodge, No. 2, had a large assemblage at its last meeting, held on December 17. Bro. Max Casperowitz was elected to represent the lodge at the quinquennial convention, to be held on May 19, 1912, at Rochester, N. Y.

At a special meeting of the Executive Committee, held on December 11, the Powers Hotel was selected as headquarters for the next convention. Notices

It is with pleasure that Grand Master Solon J. Liebeskind notes that all the lodges in his jurisdiction are increasing in membership, and it is his intention to install most of the newly elected officers in person.

David Lodge, No. 60, of Syracuse, N. Y., reports propositions and initiations at every session held. The members, one and all, are active and continually working for the benefit and welfare of the brotherhood.

SAMUEL GOLDSTEIN, Grand Master SIGMOND FODOR, Grand Secretary

James A. Garfield Lodge, No. 51, under the guidance of President M. J. Schiff, is progressing excellently. Five young members were initiated at their last meeting, the degree team officiating. Further additions will be made at the next session.

Joseph Wertheimer Lodge, No. 38, will hold an affair on December 30, at Harlem Arcade. An elaborate programme has been arranged, so as to insure a pleasant evening.

Friendship Lodge, No. 41, held a well attended meeting on the 17th inst. Five new members were added to the roll of members, and the lodge now counts 466 male and female.

It remained for a member of this order to prove that a woman can really keep a secret. Grand Secretary Sigmund Fodor having reached his sixty-second year, it remained for his helpmate, Sister Foder, to arrange a celebration of the event last Sunday, and aided and assisted by Grand Master Goldstein, all the executive officers were notified to be on hand and assist in instituting a new lodge for which a charter has been prepared. Not an officer failed to appear, and all repaired to Renwick Hall, where Bro. L. Dintenfass had prepared a bounteous repast. The room was suitably decorated for the occasion, and Grand Secretary Fodor was overwhelmed with surprise when he was led into the banquet hall, where he was led into the belief that he was to institute a new lodge. He was further surprised when he was made the recipient of a massive silver loving cup, the gift of his colleagues on the Executive Board, a smaller loving cup from some friends, and a massive candelabra from his wife. Congratulatory speeches were made by all present, and the good things provided by host Dintenfass were heartily enjoyed by all who were fortunate enough to attend. When the festivities had concluded, all were unanimous in attesting that Mrs. Sigmund Fodor really could keep a secret.

Philip Mandel, chairman of the reserve fund, is an old-timer in the order, and has been an executive officer in various stations. He is a popular brother in his

Mt. Sinai Lodge, and admired by his colleagues on the board. Bro. Mandel can be relied on for every and all duties assigned to him.

Baron Ginsberg Lodge, No. 66, sends the grand lodge reports of initiations after each convocation held.

W. R. B. Meisel Lodge, No. 68, is increasing in membership, and is successful in every way.

Herman Fisher lodge, No. 79, is gaining new members. The members are cautious and particular in the selections of new material.

Morning Star Lodge, No. 92, of Buffalo, N. Y., is aiding the growth and numerical strength of the order by initiating good material into their lodge.

Jefferson Lodge, No. 54, will hold a ball on Saturday evening, February 3, 1912, at Lexington Hall, 109 East 116th street. This lodge meets every second and fourth Tuesday. Visitors are cordially welcomed.

Isidor Ganz Lodge, No. 57, writes the grand lodge "our record in the order will be upheld and our activity and interest proven, as witness we send in twelve new members initiated at our last session, and we promise more."

Treue Bruder Lodge, No. 97, awaits an official visit from the Grand Master and staff. The lodge holds in reserve for the occasion twenty-five new members to be initiated.

Metropolitan Lodge, No. 145, has the satisfaction and pleasure of sixteen members proposed by the fathers of the young candidates. Officers of the grand lodge will be on hand for this event.

Rodeph Sholom Lodge, No. 165, of St. Louis, Mo., has proven to the executive officers what they can do in their section, having materially increased their list of members, and the work is being actively pushed by officers, and members.

Admiral Sampson Lodge, No. 192, of Newark, N. J., reports active work and great enthusiasm for the order. Ten initiations at the last meeting.

Isaac Thumini Lodge, No. 583, was instituted in this city last week, with forty-four male members. Grand Secretary J. Schoen and Chairman State of Order Blaustein officiated.

Grand Master Sanders was in Boston, Mass., on Sunday, the 17th, where he attended a mass meeting of the combined Massachusetts lodges. Several thousand people were present. The Grand Master, as also many prominent citizens addressed the large gathering on the Russian passport question.

When Face to Face

with the proposition of buying Furs for the Winter it is well to remember a few practical points. If the skins be not well selected and perfectly cured, it is certain they will not last, and that they will not keep a good appearance for any length of time. If they be not well sewn and lined they are likely to come apart and cause trouble. We guarantee all our Furs against such faults.

Artistic workmanship is of the greatest importance in Fur Custom Work. The skins, trimmings, perfect fitting, perfect workmanship, perfect matching, skillful manipulation and proper cutting, in other words, the "KNOW HOW" and the 1,001 details, the garment will be a failure. The fur business cannot be learned through a correspondence school, but requires a lifetime of practical experience and progress.

and resultant fact that many places of divine worship are practically unattended by children. It would be harder to change these conditions than to introduce religious instruction into the public schools. Moreover, the unrest in the world of affairs is now seen to be due to recognized character unreliability, and the strengthening of safes, bonding and espionage of employees, engagement of examining accountants and insurances against omissions and malfeasances are recognized as nothing but inadequate makeshifts for the religious training of our youth. The occasion, therefore, presents itself, and the time is ripe, for those who realize the importance of religious training for the young to secure it by united action. Against such action the opposition of the indifferent and irreligious will be powerless. The State which furnishes in its prisons to its ever-increasing convict population the benefit of religious ministrations shall no longer deny to the youth of its public schools the character anchorages of religious instruction.

The plan proposed, which is suggested by convenience, is that upon the enrollment of a child in the public schools a record be made of the religious creed of its parents and of their wishes respecting the imparting to it of instruction in such creed. Upon the basis of such data it would become the duty of the school authorities to designate adequate and uniform study periods for the reception of religious instruction. Such periods might in the discretion of such authorities be either before, during or after the present regular school hours. During such periods the children of parents having registered a desire that they receive religious instruction, being first separated into classes, corresponding with the religious faith of their parents, would be taught in separate class rooms by persons designated for that purpose and paid by the established ecclesiastical authorities of their respective denominations. Such instructors would neither be chosen nor paid by the State. No child would receive religious instruction where either parent signified an unwillingness that it should and such children during such periods could be otherwise taught. All that the public authorities would do would be to place at the disposal of those concededly qualified to give religious teaching, for such periods as such authorities might consider proper classrooms in the public schools. If in any particular school there were not a sufficient number of pupils of a given denomination to constitute a class of at least twenty-five, such children could upon request of the parents be transferred to another school having the required number, and there instructed. Where, as in New York city, many public schools are in close proximity to each other and almost all school buildings are large and have numerous classrooms no inconvenience would result from the adoption of the proposed plan.

Finally, it may be stated that the plan proposed is not counter to the principle of the separation of church and State. It does no violence to religious liberty. It does not make for denominational or even ecclesiastical control of the public schools. It safeguards against proselytism while promoting that harmony among creeds resulting from unison in the accomplishment of a common good.

The plan proposed could be tried under a law to be operative only for four years unless at the expiration of such period the matter being submitted to popular vote a three-fourths vote were obtained in favor of its continuance.

The purpose sought to be accomplished is the discharge of a moral duty owing by the State to its youth—the improvement in the interest of social order of the type of citizenship, the bringing back to the support of the public schools of the large and influential element now estranged from them, the lessening of opposition to public education and the strengthening of such schools in the affections of the people.

Were the plan adopted and it failed in any of these particulars my vote would be given against its continuance.

MUSIC NOTES.

The second novelty of the season and the first American production of Wolf-Ferrari's "Le Donne Curiose" will be given at the Metropolitan Opera House next Thursday evening. Mr. Toscanini will conduct, and the performance will enlist the services of Jadowlker, Scotti, Didur, De Seguro, Farrar, Alten and Forna. The opera will be followed by the Russian ballet. The rest of next week's announcements are a special performance of "Hansel and Gretel" for Monday's matinee, with "Orfeo" on the same evening. Tetraxini will make her appearance in "Lucia" on Wednesday night, and "The Girl of the Golden West" will be given on Friday night. "Siegfried" will be sung at Saturday's matinee, and there will be a special performance of "Boheme" on that evening.

The latest volume which the Oliver Ditson Company (Boston) has added to their invaluable "Musicians Library" is entitled "One Hundred Folksongs of All Nations," edited by Granville Bantock. The contents include songs from practically every part of the globe, including Lapland, Lithuania, Bulgaria, Greece, Tunis, Persia, India, China, Japan, American Indian, etc., with the words in the original tongue, together with an English translation. For the United States, "Old Folks at Home," "Dixie" and "Tenting To-Night," are the selections. Prefacing the volume is a series of interesting notes on the songs giving details as to the origin of each one enumerated. The book is gotten up in the same artistic style which has characterized previous issues of The Musicians Library, and these folksongs should be in the music cabinet of every musician.

A feature of the mid-winter musical season will be the return to this country of the Russian piano virtuoso, Josef Lhevinne, who will make a tour of fifty concerts under the management of London Charlton. He has been engaged by the New York Philharmonic Society for several New York and out-of-town appearances. Lhevinne enjoys the distinction of having been a special protegee of Anton Rubinstein, who, it is said, took a deep interest in his young countryman.

In pursuance of this season's new policy, the Oratorio Society will concentrate its attention, aside from the regular "Messiah" performance, upon the Brahms festival, set for next March, in connection with the Symphony Society of New York. Vigorous work on the three Brahms is now in progress, under Dr. Frank Damosch's direction. Their difficulties, especially those of the "Song of Triumph" have put the singers on their mettle. The "Messiah" dates, at Carnegie Hall, are Wednesday afternoon, December 27, and Friday evening, December 29.

Two new compositions by Walter Damosch will have their first hearing at the next concert of the Symphony Society of New York at the Century Theatre on Sunday afternoon, December 31. One of them is "The Looking Glass," a ballad from Rudyard Kipling's collection entitled "Rewards and Fairies." It deals with the haunting visions seen by Queen Elizabeth, in her mirror, near the close of her long life. The other new work will be Juanita's song, from "The Dove of Peace," the comic opera that Mr. Damosch wrote last summer upon a book by Wallace Irwin. This song is from the second act. Both the new songs will be sung by Miss Christine Miller. At the concerts of Friday and Sunday afternoons, January 5 and 7, William Bachaus, the pianist, who is well known in London and on the continent, will make his American debut, playing the "Emperor" concerto of Beethoven.

The next concert of the People's Symphony Orchestra will be given in Carnegie Hall next Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. Mr. Albert Spalding, the eminent violinist, who is greatly interested in the semi-philanthropic work of the society, has volunteered his services, as has Dr. William C. Carl, the celebrated organist. The full programme arranged by conductor Franz X. Arens is Haydn's symphony in E flat, Mozart's violin concerto in D, Farwell's "The Domain of Hurakan," violin solos, a Tschalkowsky's "Serenade Melancholique," b, Saint Saens' "Rondo Capriccioso," Liszt's "Battle of the Huns" (by request).

Alessandro Bonci, after completing his opera season in Rome, where he has achieved the greatest success of his career in "La Favorita," will leave Liverpool on December 30 with Mme. Bonci on the steamer Maureana, and will arrive in New York January 5. He will open his second recital and concert tour at Carnegie Hall, on January 10. Mr. Bonci has prepared a very interesting programme for his New York recital.

Gardner Lamson, the celebrated Wagnerian interpreter and leader singer, is to be heard in the second of the three recitals on the evening of Tuesday, January 9, at the Carnegie Lyceum. Mr. Lamson has made a profound impression upon musicians since his return from European triumphs, and he has made a place for himself in his native country held by no other singer in America.

A "Sonata a tre" for two violins and cello will be a feature of the Flonzaley Quartette's second Carnegie Lyceum concert on Monday evening, January 8. The programme will include also Beethoven's quartette in A major, op. 18, No. 5, and the Dvorak quartette in A flat major, op. 105.

Harold Bauer will give a second Carnegie Hall recital on Wednesday afternoon, January 17. The programme will be more or less popular in character, including compositions of Brahms, Mozart, Cesar Franck, Schumann and Chopin.

The Philharmonic Society, under Josef Stransky, will give a second popular Sunday afternoon concert on February 25. The programme will be an all-Wagner one.

Mr. Horace Brodzky, an artist, formerly of New York, and at one time student of the National Academy of Design of New York city, is holding an exhibition of pictures in London under the title of "The Colour of Sicily and Italy." These pictures are the result of a trip to Italy and Sicily in the early part of this year, and include some remarkable views of Messina after the earthquake of two years ago. One picture in this show, entitled "Bagheria," has been reserved at the request of one of the judges for the Venice International Exhibition, to be held in that city early next spring. This young artist is a son of the well-known journalist, Mr. Maurice Brodzky, formerly of New York, and now residing in London.

SOCIAL.

The Chanukah dance given by the Beth Israel Bikur Cholim Congregation for the benefit of its Sisterhood, will take place Saturday evening at the Hotel Astor.

A benefit performance of "Maggie Pepper" was given at the Hackett Theatre last night for the junior auxiliary of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives at Denver, Col. There was a crowded house.

In aid of that well known and sterling charity, the Hebrew Day Nursery, there will be a grand entertainment and ball given at Terrace Garden, East Fifty-eighth street, on Tuesday evening, December 26. Through the generosity of Mr. William Fox there will be an abundance of professional talent, and the entertainment will be fully up to the standard set by the leading vaudeville theatres. The work of this well known charity is too well known to our readers, and the good work rendered at their home, at No. 262 Henry street, should be encouraged, and therefore it is hoped that Terrace Garden will hold a crowd which will test its capacity on Tuesday evening next.

The annual entertainment and ball of the Sisterhood of the Congregation Mt. Zion will take place at Alhambra Hall, corner 126th street and Seventh avenue, on Sunday evening, December 24.

A very enthusiastic gathering attended the vaudeville performance at the Alhambra Theatre on Tuesday evening, December 19, given for the benefit of the Orach Chaim Free School. The affair was successful, both socially and financially, due in no small measure to the efforts of the chairman of the committee, Mrs. A. Schwarz, who was ably assisted by Mesdames E. Kaufman, L. Roggen, S. Wilhem, C. J. Epstein, L. Jacobs and J. Daum.

On Sunday evening, December 24, the Lena Invalid and Aid Society will give their annual entertainment and ball at Terrace Garden, East Fifty-eighth street. This year the entertainment will be in the nature of a musical comedy and minstrel show. The society was organized about seventeen years ago by Mrs. Lena Herst, since which time it has enjoyed the reputation of relieving more sick and poor than any other similar organization. The society expends on an average of $500 per month in its work, and the main source of income is from their annual affair. The officers of the society are Mrs. Lizzie Seelig, president; Mrs. A. Lichtenberg, vice-president; Mrs. Lena Herst, treasurer; Mrs. Lowenberg, financial secretary, and Mrs. F. Cohen, financial secretary.

Talmud Torah of Orach Chaim Sisterhood.

An examination and Chanukah entertainment was held at the above Talmud Torah on Sunday, December 17. Mr. Moritz Speler, the principal, examined all the classes in Biblical history, translation of prayers, and Pentateuch. From the answers given, one could readily see that the pupils have a good knowledge and understanding of the subjects taught.

After having been amused by a ventriloquist, very well rendered recitations and songs followed. In his address, Mr. Speler emphasized the great importance of a Jewish home in the life of a child, and pointed out how necessary it is that the school and home should go hand in hand.

Two gold medals in commemoration of the late Rev. Professor Joseph Mayor Asher were presented to the most deserving boy and girl, upon which occasion the president of the congregation, Mr. Meyer Jarmulowsky, made very appropriate remarks. Besides, many books were distributed as prizes. Mr. Speler expressed heartfelt thanks to Mrs. Simon Wilhelm, president of the sisterhood, Mrs. J. Dukas, vice-president, the other officers, and especially to Mrs. Adolph Schwarz, the able and helpful Chairman of the Schoolboard, as well as to the voluntary teacher, Mrs. J. S. Scheff.

The afternoon was a real inspiring one. More than 100 guests were present, who saw, by the results attained, the great and noble work of the sisterhood.

Hebrew Orphan Asylum Honors Abraham.

The annual meeting of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum was held on Sunday, at the Asylum Building, Ralph Avenue, and was largely attended. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Frank Pentlarge; vice-president, Nathaniel H. Levi; treasurer, Julius Reinert; trustees, elected to serve three years, A. N. Bernstein, Benjamin Croner, Louis L. Firuski, Leon Isaacson, Julius Mendelsohn, William Moruk, A. J. Piddian and Simon F. Rothschild.

Prior to the election, Mr. Simon F. Rothschild, the retiring president, submitted his annual report. The annual receipts were $89,385, and the expenses $87,705, making a per capita cost of $149 per annum. There are at present 563 inmates, and 10 are boarded out. The buildings are overtaxed, and when present additions are completed, there will be 70 more beds.

A bronze tablet in memory of the late Abraham Abraham was unveiled at the close of the meeting. The tablet, which faces the entrance to the building, is inscribed with the following tribute from Mayor Gaynor:

A TRIBUTE TO ABRAHAM ABRAHAM.

I never knew a more just and equitable man than Mr. Abraham. He was born and bred and schooled here, but his grand name leads the mind back to the border line where fable ceases and history begins. All of the virtues were so proportioned and balanced in him as to make a perfect man. Always patient, always kind, always just and tolerant, never morose or despondent, prone always to overlook and forgive. Every one saw in him the personification of encouragement and goodwill to all men.

WILLIAM J. GAYNOR.

Civic Forum.

The Civic Forum of the Kaplan School is making arrangements to celebrate the first anniversary of its existence, which will take place on January 7. It was organized by Nathan H. Seidman, who had previously been identified with the Brownsville Institute of Arts and Sciences, of which he was the first chairman of its executive committee. The first lecture under the auspices of the Civic Forum was held on January 5, on which occasion Mrs. Florence Kelley, the Secretary of the Consumers' League, delivered an address to a very few people. But in a short while popularity of the Civic Forum kept on increasing. Men and women of national prominence spoke on important topics every Sunday, and the newspapers published long accounts of these lectures.

The Civic Forum is a unique institution in the Borough of Brooklyn. There are Forums conducted by the Socialist organizations to propagate socialism; there are other institutions under whose auspices lectures of a technical nature are conducted. But the Civic Forum was formed to discuss important questions of the day, questions which must be solved and solved intelligently. These questions are discussed every Sunday by the most distinguished men and women, and an opportunity is given for a free expression of opinion by the audience.

Wedding Anniversary Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gordon, of Borough Park, celebrated the first anniversary of their marriage on Saturday, December 16, and were the guests at a banquet tendered by the friends who acted as ushers and bridesmaids at the wedding. A theatre-party at the Winter Garden preceded the dinner. Mr. Charles Lane was master of ceremonies and Miss Irma Eisenberg entertained with vocal and terpsichorean selections. A committee was appointed to make the event an unusual affair.

Ninth Anniversary of Hebrew Ladies Auxiliary of Bath Beach.

Over seventy members and friends of the Hebrew Ladies Auxiliary sat down to the dainty breakfast prepared for them by Mesdames Van Geldrenen, Wilson, Mazur, and Schwarz, at the Belmont Hall, Bath Avenue and Bay Twenty-second street, Bath Beach, on Thursday, December 14, 1911, in order to celebrate their ninth anniversary.

Mrs. M. Newman, who acted as toastmaster, opened the affair, welcoming the ladies, and introducing Rev. Jacob Goldstein, who spoke on "Charity," and directed the attention of the society to the densely congested districts in Brownsville, pointing out, in a most eloquent way, how badly they were in need of assistance, and urging the society to relieve them with any surplus funds they might have in their possession. He warmly congratulated the society for their good work which they had been doing, and extended his best wishes that they might extend their efforts in every laudable direction.

Rev. Dr. Henry S. Morais also spoke on similar lines and his pithy, humorous and eloquent remarks were much applauded.

The president, Mrs. A. Slomka, read her annual report, showing the material progress which had been made, and interesting addresses were given by Mrs. P. M. Goodhart, Mrs. Jos. E. Levy, Mrs. Quitman, Mrs. Samuels, Mrs. Nathan Cohan, and the retiring secretary, Mrs. M. Newman, who thanked the society for the confidence bestowed upon her during her nine years in office.

A card party, to be followed by a dance, will be given at Rolsen Weber's Brighton Beach on Lincoln's birthday eve.

Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. A. Slomka; vice-president, Mrs. A. Van Geldrenen; treasurer, Mrs. Jahns; financial secretary, Mrs. Chas. Feper; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Barnett; trustees, Jacob Goldstein, Mrs. M. Keller, Mrs. M. Quitman, Mrs. B. Erdman, Mrs. D. Levy, Mrs. L.

Schwartzreich, and Mrs. Annie Assenheim. Mrs. G. Wilson, and Mrs. H. Mazur, the Relief Committee.

Fair for Hebrew National School.

For the purpose of raising funds for a school building, a fair and bazaar will be held by the Hebrew National School, at No. 181 McKibbin street, from Saturday night, February 25, to Sunday night, March 10, 1912.

A Youthful Prodigy.

There was a service of unusual interest last Sabbath when Master Abraham Raphael Winer, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. Elias Winer, sexton of the Kehilath Jeshurun Congregation, officiated as Chazan in the synagogue of the Congregation Zemach Zedek. The young man acquitted himself more than creditably, and evoked the admiration of all who were fortunate enough to hear him. The members of the congregation were so charmed with his beautiful rendition of the traditional service, that they immediately adopted resolutions congratulating the young man on his skill, and wishing him further success in the pursuit of his studies.

People's Temple, Bensonhurst.

The first anniversary of the congregation was celebrated last Friday night, and there was an interesting programme, including addresses by Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossman, Rabbi Sydney E. Goldstein and Mr. Maurice S. Keller. The congregation has grown from the original twenty-four charter members and now numbers 108.

In aid of the Building Fund a monster whist will be given on February 21, at the Fifth Avenue building, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third street, Manhattan.

Congregation Mt. Sinai.

Last Sunday night there was a very successful Chanukah celebration in the synagogue, and a large audience was present. On the same morning there was a celebration for the children of the religious school.

New Yeshibah for Harlem.

Under the auspices of the Harlem branch of the Hebrew League, and with the co-operation of a number of public spirited co-religionists, an effort is being made to establish a Yeshibah for Harlem, on lines similar to those of the Rabbi Jacob Joseph School, and the same curriculum will be used. Some of the active workers for the institution are Rabbis Drachman, Kamenetsky, Kowalsky, Dickstein and Sterman.

Hebrew will be taught in the morning hours, and the regular public school studies will be taught in the afternoon hours, by licensed public school teachers.

Full particulars may be had by addressing the president, Mr. Julius A. Bernstein, 125 West 115th street, or Mr. H. Goodman, 749 Broadway.

Ball at the Daughters of Jacob.

The fifteenth annual ball of the Home of the Daughters of Jacob will take place on Saturday evening, January 27, 1912, at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth street, and will be attended by President Taft and the Hon. Charles Nagel, secretary of Commerce and Labor. This is the first occasion on which the President of the United States will be present at a ball given by a Jewish institution.

The home now has about 200 inmates, and is managed by women. It is now proposed to raise sufficient funds to erect a new building on the outskirts of the city so as to be able to house 500 aged men and women. The home was founded by immigrant Jews in 1897, and is still maintained by them. In view of the fact that it is an institution founded by immigrants, the presence of the Chief Executive of the country is especially noteworthy, for it will show him what the newer citizens of America have been able to accomplish.

Ohab Zedek Talmud Torah.

The children of the Talmud Torah had their Chanukah entertainment on Sunday last in the assembly rooms of the building, No. 630 Fifth street. There were many recitations, declamations, etc., and at the conclusion of the entertainment each child was presented with a box of candy. The school is under the supervision of Rev. Dr. Ph. Klein. Dr. Rotenberg is chairman, and Henry Friedman vice-chairman. The teaching staff includes Messrs. Katzenberg, Stern, Drostler, Friedman and Slutski. The feature of the entertainment was the performance of "Judah Maccabeus," in which the principal characters were assumed by Misses Fanny Hirsch and Yetta Lifke.

Congregation Pincus Elijah.

An enthusiastic audience filled the synagogue last Sunday evening, and listened to an excellent Chanukah concert.

The cantor, Rev. Jacob Press, rendered the service, with a large choir, accompanied by an orchestra, and the pupils of the Talmud Torah gave a most interesting entertainment. Those deserving special mention are Etta Weisberg, Nathan Scho-sion and Samuel Weisberg, who took the leading parts of the Chanukah play.

Rabbi Dolgenas, in the course of his remarks, emphasized the necessity of building a large Talmud Torah on the West Side. A very small fraction of the Jewish children were being taught daily in the synagogue. But the Jewish population was constantly growing and the accommodations at the synagogue were entirely inadequate.

It is to be hoped that the West Side will soon boast of a large Talmud Torah building.

Mayor Gaynor at Roumanian Synagogue.

Last Sunday night, Mayor Gaynor was a visitor to the synagogue of the First Roumanian-American Congregation, No. 91 Rivington street, and witnessed the traditional Chanukah service. The occasion was the tenth anniversary of the congregation's occupancy of their present synagogue, and as many people as could crowd within the edifice were present, while over 5,000 were unable to gain admittance. Mayor Gaynor made a very interesting address, in the course of which he said:

"What is the chief thing that you stood for in the beginning of the world and have stood for ever since and have carried all over the world? What was the chief thing and is the chief thing? Why, from the very beginning you taught that there was one ever-living God. Just one God. (Applause.) That idea, that belief—with a few backsliders now and then, to be sure—you have kept uppermost from the beginning. There never was a time in the history of your race when that was not the main thing that distinguished you. You came down alongside of the religions of Syria, of Egypt, of Chaldea, of all of Asia, and later of Greece and of Rome, with their multitudes of gods, their big gods and their little gods, I was going to say; and during it all you kept on saying, 'There is but one eternal God, the great Jehovah.' (Applause.) And their big gods and their little gods and their many gods have all vanished, but your one, ever-living God is as great and eternal to-day as when you first proclaimed Him. (Applause.) That you have done for the human race. You have given it the greatest fact in history, for that is the greatest fact in history. Your sacred Scriptures abound with that. Every page of it appeals to the god of your forefathers, of Abraham and of Isaac and of Jacob. And so it goes through your whole Scriptures. I say your Scriptures, but, as you know, the Christian world has taken your entire Scripture as its Scripture, as the word of God.

"It is true that after taking it all they did turn around and persecute you; some and treat you badly—a thing that we say as little about as possible because it is not a nice thing to think about, much less to talk about. After taking all you had they turned around and, it is true, drove you out of every Christian nation in Europe for centuries, one nation after the other. I believe, however, now that you are entirely free and safe in every nation of Europe save one, and that one will be brought to its senses very soon, I think. (Great applause.)

Coming intact after its successful run of two years in New York, and one year in Chicago, Cohan and Harris' massive production of Winchell Smith's comedy triumph, "The Fortune Hunter," will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House next week. "The Fortune Hunter" is clean and wholesome, presents a moral, and is as convincing as a sermon. The progress of the hero from his beginning as a ne'er-do-well, and his transformation into the hustling young duzzist has been followed by thousands, and as one reviewer aptly puts it, "The Fortune Hunter" teaches a moral in an atmosphere crowded with laughter, but nary a blush.

Brownsville Fruit Distilling Company begs to announce to their trade, as well to all other liquor dealers, that they have completed their new catalogue for the Passover season of 1912.

They will be pleased to mail their catalogue to any dealer, upon request, also samples of their various brands. They ask you to try their MT. CHARMAN COGNAC and MT. CHARMAN WINES.

There was a very large gathering of young folks at the old school building, No. 197 Henry street, last Tuesday evening, which resulted in the formation of an organization to be known as the Young Folks' League of the Rabbi Jacob School. Much enthusiasm was displayed and the building fund will undoubtedly receive a stimulus through the efforts of this society. The officers are: Mr. I. Andron, president; Miss Rose Sadowsky and Mr. B. Fromberg, vice-presidents; Mr. Leo Leifer, Miss B. Lieberman and Mr. M. Elias, secretaries, and Mr. L. Fensterblau, treasurer.

The annual meeting of the Jewish Sabbath Association will be held at the Zichron Ephraim Synagogue, No. 163 East Sixty-seventh street, on Sunday evening, December 24, at 8.30. Reports of all the officers, giving a resume of the society's activities during the past year, will be read. All interested in the movement are invited to attend.

Kehillah and the Talmud Torahs.

The recent discussions that have arisen concerning the relationship of the Bureau of Jewish Education to the Kehillah and the Talmud Torahs of New York city was practically brought to an end last Thursday evening at a meeting at Tuxedo Hall, called by a committee consisting of Mr. Harry Fischel, chairman; Rabbi M. S. Margolies and Doctor I. J. Bluestone. Representatives of several Talmud Torahs and synagogues in New York city were present, as were also representatives of the Bureau of Education. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

That a committee of five of the Central Board of Education be appointed to consult with a committee of the Bureau of Education, in order to determine the relationship of the Central Board to the bureau.

A Momentous Clearing Sale.

While this is the season of the year when many people are shopping for the small things necessary to their comfort or pleasure, there is a prudent element of the population that are on the lookout for the big things that can be procured at money saving prices. It is getting along to the end of the year, and merchants wish to reduce stocks to the lowest point and to increase their bank reserves. The biggest event that meets all these requirements and exigencies is the clearance sale announced by David M. Kahn & Co., 120 West 125th street, who have determined to clear out their present stock of the choicest furniture at a reduction of twenty-five (25%) per cent. from the regular low prices. There will be no reservation whatever. Everything in their store is subject to the discount—one-quarter off—and the department store tricks of advancing prices on the tickets is not practiced here.

This stock of furniture is really one of the newest and highest in New York. The firm is in business only one year, and "Dave" Kahn, the head of the house, is known as one of the shrewdest furniture buyers in America. He has many warm friends in the community, and in going into the business for himself he decided that exclusive furniture houses could serve the public better and cheaper than the pretentious stores that sell everything. D. W. Kahn & Co. have demonstrated this, and their clearance sale now on will give further proof of their ability to save consumers money.

Margaret Illington, who, as Acton Davies, the critic of the Evening Sun, puts it, "has come back with a vengeance," enters upon the fourth week of her engagement at Daly's Theatre on Monday night in Charles Kenyon's intensely interesting drama, "Kindling." From the opening night of this play in New York the demand for seats has steadily increased, and that Miss Illington has settled down for a long engagement is evidenced by the fact that seats have been selling for as far ahead as through the month of January.

Chanuka and Christmas

Dear Children:

As this Sabbath is the last day of Chanuka and I would like to tell you something about it, at the same time I would not like to interrupt the weekly lesson in the Ethics of the Fathers. I will therefore weave them both together, and try to make it as interesting as possible.

Rabban Gamliel was a son of Rabbi Judah, Hanasee or Prince, more popularly known as "Rabbi," of whom I told you about in my recent talks with you. He said: "The study of the Torah and the commerce of the world are commendable, together, for the exertion involved by both make one forget to sin, and all study of the Torah without any practice of its principles will become of non-effect and will be the cause of sin, and whoever is engaged in communal work ought to act for God's sake; then will the merit of their ancestors support them, and their charitable deeds exist to eternity and I shall account yet deserving of a great recompense as if ye had accomplished all ye set out to perform."

In the light of his words I will explain to you, dear children, the difference between Chanuka and Christmas. Alas! that such explanation should be necessary! But as you are placed in an environment where, away from the influence of your parents, you are taught lessons about Christmas that are very dangerous to the tenets of your own faith, it is my duty to open your eyes to see things as they are.

You have passed the Chanuka week quite joyfully; your chief object consisted in watching the quaint little Chanuka lights which twinkled so bravely and told you the story of your glorious past in every twinkle.

You will soon see the Christmas tree, with its many candles, which also tells you a story of your past, but quite a different story.

The Chanuka lights tell you that once in the days of Matathias, son of Jochanan, the high priest, a wicked Grecian king by the name of Antiochus and his entire sinful government rose up against Israel to make them forget God's Torah and transgress His commandments, but that God in his abundant mercy rose to their aid in the day of their trouble, fought their battle, caused justice to be done, delivered the mighty in the hands of the weak, the many into the hands of the few; the impure into the hands of the pure, the wicked into the hands of the righteous, the presumptuous into the hands of those who engage in the study of the Torah, and that God's name was made glorious by the salvation he wrought for Israel at that memorable time, that then His children entered the inner sanctuary of His holy house, cleansed the Temple, purified the Sanctuary and kindled lights in His holy courts, and appointed eight days of Dedication or Chanuka to give thanks and glory to His holy name.

Now, dear children, we are told that the wicked Antiochus sought to abolish three religious practices of the Jews, namely, the observance of the Sabbath and of Rosh Chodesh or the New Moon, and the rite of Circumcision. Why these three? Sabbath, because it was the everlasting covenant between God and the Jews; Rosh-Chodesh, because by virtue of the sacrifices they then brought, their sins were atoned for and their souls were delivered from the hands of their foes; Circumsion, because they lived eternally by virtue of the blood of the covenant.

But the Jews did not submit to the base tyrant's desires; thousands of them, men, women and children sacrificed their lives rather than transgress these commandments.

Now, you may ask the question: Could not the Jews have obeyed the commandments of the Greeks by discarding their religious practices and saving their lives—and yet remain Jews at heart?

If you would have the answer to this look at the Christmas tree. It tells us the story of some Jews who believed that they could discard the commandments of the Torah and yet remain good Jews at heart.

What was the result? The result is written in the blood of our ancestors, who for the past two thousand years, ever since the same Jews discarded the practice of the commandments of the Torah and created Christianity, has been shed in such horrible profusion by the descendants of those "Jews at heart" that were it all gathered together it would flood the earth!

Thus the Chanuka lights are the symbol of life, for even though the noble Maccabees died in the wars for the sake of their Torah, they live with us and our descendants in eternal glory, for they did not die before they gave the death blow to Greece and all the monstrous immorality that it stood for, and they made the world better and purer than it was in a long time.

But the Christmas lights are the symbol of death—every twinkling candle might represent the flames that consumed a Jewish martyr who died at the stake because he wished to live as a Jew and was not content to be such a "Jew at heart" as were those who created Christianity.

Now we can understand the sayings of Rabban Gamliel: "The study of the Torah and the commerce of the world are commendable for the exertion involved by both make one forget to sin." That is, "Be true to your Torah or religion, but be also faithful to the commerce of the world; let not your religious activity cause you to sin against your fellow man, and make you shed his blood because he does not happen to believe as you do, but content not thyself with the mere study of the Torah without practicing its commandments, because then it will become of non-effect and will be the cause of sin, as was the case with those who studied the Torah, but by not practicing its commandments and by intermarriage destroyed within them every vestige of pity that the traditional Jewish heart possesses, for their brothers who remained in the faith; they acted thus because the communal work they were then engaged in was not for the sake of God; this is proven by the fact that they did not have the merits of their ancestors to support them, as they cut loose from their ancestors who accepted the Torah and swore to fulfill its commandments. "But ye," says God to the Jews, "ye who in spite of all persecutions, have remained faithful to me, I shall account ye deserving of a great recompense as if ye accomplished all ye set out to perform."

World's Debt to the Jew.
"When we think of what we owe the Jewish race, isn't it high time that we dropped our persecution of the Hebrews and received them heartily into the brotherhood of nations? They were our spiritual progenitors and it is high time that the church at least displayed a more brotherly feeling toward the race."
These words were the closing sentences of a sermon delivered at the Brick Church, Rochester, N. Y., on a recent Sunday night by the pastor, Dr. William R. Taylor, who spoke on "Our Debt to the Jew."
"The Jewish service to mankind," he said, "consisted in working out the word of true religion, preparing a small body of men to receive the highest revelation of religion and give it to the world."
"The truths of religion had to be worked out in the individual, not in life," he said, "and the Jewish people's predominating passion was to seek after the true religion. Though they were often turned aside from their quest, they always came back to it and forged out three great truths for the good of mankind. The world to-day owes its belief in one God to the Jewish people; they developed the belief that God is righteous and demands righteousness in man, and finally they attained the idea that God lives in the world."
The Russian ecclesiastical authorities intend to introduce into the theological colleges lectures on Jews and on the Hebrew language with a view to rendering the Jewish question better known to the clergy. The Russian priests now are totally ignorant of real Jewish life.
