"Yes. Oh, but I have to leave you. I must go uptown," and Sarah took a car uptown. How lightly she stepped, how happy she felt! It seemed the whole world had been created just for this moment of happiness. Arriving at her destination, she immediately began tidying up the rooms, stringing up curtains, removing the covers from the furniture, placing a large flower horseshoe arrangement with the word "Success" in red wired letters on the office table, while a bunch of roses decorated the dining-room table. This done, came the buying and preparing of the evening meal, to be partaken of upon the return from the graduation exercises, and while it was cooking Sarah daintily set the table. The supper cooked, it was placed in the icebox ready for consumption. She bubbled with joy as she pictured the evening festivity. Finally she took out a glass sign inscribed "Dr. Leo Lewin" and placed same in the window. That done, she hastily put on her hat, looked about the house to see if all was right, smiled in satisfaction, made her exit, locked the door, ready to rush home and help her mother. As she stepped into the street, woman-like, she took a parting glance at the sign in the window. Sarah sighed. It fascinated her. She stepped over to the opposite side of the street and for a while watched passersby. How attractive! Everybody seemed to notice it; some even pointed to it. Sarah's heart beat wild. Oh, her mother! And she rushed home.

Leo was out visiting friends and was not home for dinner.

"Oh, well, father, don't be harsh. It's only natural that he invite his friends on such an occasion. One doesn't graduate every day." Reb Lewin gave his usual significant answer by merely raising his eyebrows. The day passed fast enough. It was 7 o'clock, but Leo had not yet returned. All was anxiety; especially Sarah.

"What could have happened to him?" she murmured. Seven fifteen, and no sign of Leo. Every few seconds either the mother or Sarah would go to the window. Down-

"Who's getting married?" queried one youngster of another. "Don' know. Might be a fun'ral."

tion of the city knew of only two occasions requiring a carriage, one at a wedding and the other at a starts and into the rooms. "Ready! What's detaining you?" he called out.

"Where were you?" asked his father.

"Never mind. Don't question me. Hurry up; it's already late. For pity's sake, Sarah, leave the powder off and come," he cried, as Sarah put a daub of powder on her nose.

"I'm ready. The carriage is downstairs waiting for the last half hour."

"The carriage?" Leo stood aghast. "Quick, then." All hurried out, forgetting to lock the door. The ride was uneventful. Leo sat looking out of the carriage window, mopping his brow with a silk kerchief. For some reason or other he dared not look any one in the face. Again questioned by his father, he did not answer. Sarah tugged her father's sleeve, at the same time grimacing with face not to question further. Leo seemed to be laboring under terrible excitement.

Arriving at the graduation hall, Leo jumped out, and, quickly helping his parents and sister to alight, they made their way to the thronged entrance. After much pushing and shoving they managed to enter. Leo escorted them down the aisle, where they found some seats, while he rushed back to take his place in the line forming preparatory to marching with his classmates in a body to the front of the stage.

The lighting effect and decorations of the hall were most brilliant, while the gorgeous display of feminine dress was dazzling, to say the least. The chattering of the audience was incessant, but the Lewin family was silent. Something was wrong. Leo had not acted right. In spite of the apparent gaiety of Sarah to offset the effect made upon her mother, in her heart Sarah knew she lied.

The band beginning to play, the talking ceased, and the instructors and eminent men invited marched upon the stage, taking their designated places. As they became seated, the students in full dress marched down the aisles, two abreast, to their respective places.

stairs a carriage was already in waiting. This naturally attracted a crowd of adults as well as children.

HON. MAYER SULZBERGER

The Hon. Mayer Sulzberger is President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas No. 2 of the City and County of Philadelphia, and President of the American Jewish Committee. He was born in 1840 in Baden and came to this country as a mere youth. He has always resided in Philadelphia, of which he is a leading citizen, and is one of the foremost Jews in the United States. He was the literary executor of Isaac Leeser, after whose death he continued for a short while to edit the Occident. He studied law in the office of Moses A. Dropsie, a wealthy Sephardi of Philadelphia, and for upwards to thirty years was a prominent attorney in the city proverbially noted for the wisdom of its lawyers. As a Jew and a man of culture Judge Sulzberger is alike distinguished. It is a pity that no one has yet arisen to do for him what the laird of Auchinleck did for Dr. Samuel Johnson, for if ever a person of our day deserved his Boswell, Mayer Sulzberger is the person. His outlook on life is broad and deep and his interest in literature is no less keen. He is a patron of Hebrew literature and presented the great MS. collection in this field to the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. The only formal product from his pen is a volume on "The Am ha-Aretz," and of all men, Jews and Gentiles, he is no Am ha-Aretz.

After the usual eulogies and advice and speeches came the awarding of prizes, followed by the distribution of diplomas, and when Leo Lewin was called to the platform to receive a gold medal Sarah could not contain herself.

"Leo's won! Leo's won!" she exclaimed excitedly, catching hold of her mother's arm, and as Leo stepped off the stage and walked up the aisle to his seat Sarah rushed forward and in front of all the assembly kissed him.

"Don't be a fool! This isn't the place for such nonsense!" he exclaimed, releasing himself from her hold and pushing her aside. Sarah looked at him, turned, and blushing exceedingly, returned to her seat. She took but little interest in the proceedings thereafter, and was glad when it was all over.

"Don't wait for me. You folks better go home. I'll be up a little later, as I want to see some friends off before we part."

Reb Lewin shook his head, and all filed out of the auditorium. On the way home Sarah bethought herself: "What a fool I made of him and myself! Of course he was right. Whoever heard of kissing a boy in front of so many people?" She bit her lips. "Well, ma, what do you think of Leo now? And he won the gold medal, too. I knew it was in him. That's what made him so nervous in the carriage. He knew he was to get it, but wanted to surprise us."

"Yes; it was a very nice and pleasant surprise," replied the mother. Arriving home, everything was made ready for the graduation repast. How long that wait was! Again Sarah would run to the window every now and then, as if her looking would bring him home the sooner. Suddenly the house resounded with the ringing of the bell.

"Here he comes! Here he comes!" cried out Sarah. Quickly she ran to open the door, followed by her mother.

"Leo!" she cried, flinging open the door and embracing her brother.

"Just a minute, Sarah," he said, pushing aside his sister and entering the house, followed by a dark young woman, rather tall and stately in appearance, prim of figure, pretty of face, but thickly enameled and powdered and rouged, sharp drawn mouth, her headdress loud and gaudy with false hair. "My wife," continued Leo, turning to his mother and sister.

The young Mrs. Lewin bowed stiffly, but Sarah and her mother were too dumbfounded to return the greeting.

"Your wife!" mother and daughter echoed in chorus.

"Yes. Come, Clarice. This is our home. I believe there is some supper waiting for us." They entered the dining room, where Reb Lewin was sitting, reading his paper. Mother and daughter followed slowly.

"Father, let me introduce you to Clarice Berg, now my wife."

"Your wife!" exclaimed Reb Lewin, rising out of his chair. "Your wife," slowly repeated the father, scrutinizing his son, not once looking at the young woman. "You were in an awful hurry, my son."

"Oh, well, just as well now as later. Thought I would surprise you, and we might as well make the best of it. Sit down, Clarice," he said, placing a chair near her.

"A surprise, yes; but you did not take us into consideration."

"I'm old enough to judge for myself, father, and I don't see that you have lost anything."

"That you are old enough is one thing. Whether or not you are sufficiently capable is quite another."

"What do you mean?"

"This: That you are an ingrate. I have nothing against this young woman you have chosen for a wife. I don't know her, but you were in such a heat to get married that you forgot respect and obligations. You forgot your sister Sarah. She's older than you, and a girl at that. You ought to have had the decency to wait at least long enough until you were able to pay, or rather repay, a little of what you owe her for all that she has done for you."

"And what has she done? Given me a few hundred dollars! She'll get every cent of that back. I'm not running away."

"A few hundred dollars has she loaned you? Is that what you are counting to pay back? No! She has not loaned you the money, but has given you her life. Will you pay that back? Look at her! Look at her! You who are supposed to be a doctor. Is she the girl she was when you first began studying? Is she? Have you ever stopped to think when and how she got that money she loaned you and that you belittle so? Life money. Who worked for it? You? Who benefited by it? She? Was she compelled to sacrifice her life and health that you might fulfill your ill-gotten ambition and damnable appreciation in your desire to become a doctor? Were you any sort of a man, then you would have refused, and said, 'No; sister has kept me so long in school, I thank her. Now I will help.'"

"Well, you were the father. Why didn't you say something, then?"

"Yes, I was the father, but in America she could overrule me; she would not listen to me. I argued with her not to do it, but she thought sixteen hours a day's work for four years was nothing if only to have a brother a doctor. She said I misjudged you, but I told her that in four years you would not be Leo, but you would be a man—the doctor, her brother."

"Well, by having a brother a doctor she will be able to marry better than otherwise, if that is all she is after."

"That is all she is after, and you? What were you after? Don't you think that I knew what was going on when suddenly you stopped studying home? Because I am old and not acquainted in your ways, did you think I was blind and did not know that to get a large forehead one can have his hair pulled out if it would not fall out? Or that he can wear plain glasses to make others believe that his eyes have paid the penalty of his knowledge? Is the whole world blind? A brother a doctor! A fizzle of a doctor will carry weight in his sister's marriage. What dowry will you give her?"

"I haven't come to listen to a tirade. I married my husband and not his family, nor have I come to live with his family. Is this our home," she asked, turning to her husband, "or theirs?"

Leo looked at his wife, then at Sarah, then at the floor.

"Take me—take me home, mother!" weakly moaned Sarah. Reb Lewin and his wife looked at each other, undecided what to do.

"What! And leave all this to them! Are you crazy, Sarah?" asked the father. Sarah shook her head.

"No, father. Take me home."

It had begun to drizzle, a heavy fog enveloping the city making the street lamps appear more dismal than ever. Still in their holiday attire, the broken-hearted parents wended their way back to the embellished corner hole where the awaiting darkness might cover up their misery. Here and there young men and women in gay hilarity were returning home from a ball or other place of amusement, but Sarah neither saw nor heard anything. She was in a world of her own. She had dreamed a dream. She alone the architect; she alone the mortar mixer; she alone the bricklayer; with the sweat of her brow and toil of her hands had she erected a structure, and the brilliant lightning bolt which so illuminated her palace—struck! There it lay, shattered, torn and rent asunder.

Reb Lewin had foreseen it all; had not ill judged his son, but knew the failings of man. Preach! but when it strikes home—when it strikes your own home, the very air one breathes becomes poison, and embittered we decry the whole world as bad.

Sarah did not sleep that night. At the stroke of 6 she arose, prepared a scanty breakfast, and left for her place of work. Immediately she became the central figure.

"And so your brother is now a doctor?" said one.

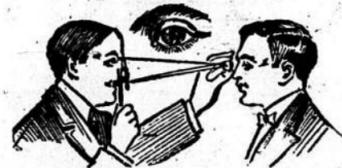

"Yes, and he won the first prize, too. I saw it in the paper," quoth another.

"Didn't he look swell in that full dress, though?" put in a third.

"You ought to introduce me to him," said a fourth.

"Introduce you? Why, he has a girl. I saw him going home with her last night. And say, make out she can't paint." Sarah glared at her.

"Well, and what of it?" replied Sarah, hotly.

"What's the matter, Sarah? You're as white as a sheet. Water, somebody, quick!" Sarah had swooned. A glass of cold water dashed into her face brought her back to consciousness.

"Take me home," she moaned; "take me home."

One plus one, add two; two plus two, add four, and the whole shop knew the story? Mind reading? No; hearts, human hearts.

Sarah's run-down condition, aggravated by constant brooding and worry, made her an easy victim to the hasty form of the white plague. Mercifully did the disease do its ravishing work with accelerated speed. The doctor called in attendance advised speedy removal to Denver, and

"Go back and board with Moses if you wish to live a hundred years," was the advice offered to New Yorkers last Sunday night by Rev. Dr. Oscar Hayward, of the Collegiate Baptist Church of the Covenant. The preacher said that the simple diet prescribed in Leviticus was far more conducive to health than lobsters, crabs, oysters and snails and other Broadway restaurant provender.

The Odessa authorities have canceled General Tolmatcheff's order, prohibiting the examination of Jewish artisans submitting themselves to the test without proofs of apprenticeship. The new Sub-Prefect of Odessa, M. Ilin, has also announced that the new authorities will not act as the leaders of a punitive expedition, and that they will remember that they exist for the people without distinction of party.

Mr. Jacob H. Schiff has a balance of $202,503.38 left over from the fund of $1,336,596.09 collected for the relief of the victims of the Kischineff massacres of 1903, and has had a friendly suit instituted to enable him to turn the fund over to the American Jewish Committee which the papers in the case declare, "is capable of administering the trust for purposes closely akin to those for which the fund was created."

Several institutions are benefited by the will of the late Louis Demuth filed in the Surrogate's office of New York city last week. Among the bequests are $1,000 each to the German Hospital, Mt. Sinai Hospital, Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, Hebrew Technical School for Girls, Ethical Culture Society, Association for Improvement of the Poor, Visiting Guild for Crippled Children, and Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

The Jaffa Hebrew Gymnasium. The Hebrew Gymnasium of Jaffa, Palestine, was opened in the year 1906, with seventeen pupils. In 1909-10 a commodious building was erected for the school with funds supplied by Alderman J. Moser, late Lord Mayor of Bradford, England, on land given by the Jewish National Fund. At the end of the year 1909 there were 193 pupils; at the end of 1910, 250; and at the present time there are 300, with a large waiting list that will be admitted as soon as the necessary additional classes are formed. The building provides accommodations for about 500 students.

The annual expenditure as fixed by the budget for the year 1910 amounted to the sum of $7,124.

At the present time there are more teachers than those provided for in the budget for 1910, the actual number being 19, of whom ten are of university standing, and the remainder have had special training for their particular work. The expenses are therefore greater than in the previous year, and it is estimated that they will amount to about $10,000.

An endowment fund has been created by the subscriptions of members of the society (or founders), the contributions being $50 for each founder's share, which may be paid up in one sum or spread over a term of years. Six hundred and ninety of those shares have been contributed in Russia; 350 in Germany and Austria, and about 75 in England. A further subscription of 1,000 shares is required to create a sufficient fund to provide out of the annual income the difference between the income and the expenditure, and the necessary provision for further needed extension. Of this amount there has so far been collected by Dr. Mossisohn $11,500.

During Dr. Mossisohn's recent tour in England, where he delivered a number of addresses in the leading cities of the Empire, he secured subscriptions amounting to $3,500, among the subscribers being Sir Adolph Tuck, Leopold de Rothschild, Sir Francis Montefiore, Mrs. Flora Sassoon and Herbert Bentwich.

Annual Meeting Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity.

Zeta Beta Tau College fraternity held its thirteenth annual convention at the Hotel Astor on Wednesday, December 27. Every chapter in the fraternity was represented by student and alumni delegations, even far-off Tulane University having five men to answer to the roll call. The other institutions that had representatives present were Columbia University, College of the City of New York, Cornell, New York University, Syracuse, Union, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, University of Pennsylvania, Western Reserve, Ohio State University, Case School of Technology, Bellevue Medical College, Long Island Medical College, Boston University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. At the morning session the fraternity men heard an address delivered by Prof. Solomon Schechter, president of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

Prof. Richard Gotthell, of Columbia University, was elected national head of the fraternity for the next year. The other officers chosen were: Vice-Nasi, Irving D. Rosheim (University of Pennsylvania), Philadelphia, Pa.; Sophar, Sidney Goodman (Columbia), Brooklyn, N. Y.; Gisbar, Julian S. Waterman (Tulane), Dumas, Ark.; Historian, Ralph Pappenheimer (Cornell), Cincinnati, O.

King Solomon's Mines.

At a recent meeting of the British Royal Geographical Society, Sir Alfred Sharpe read a paper entitled "The Geography and Economic Development of British Central Africa." "The idea that King Solomon got his gold from Mashonaland," said the lecturer in his introductory remarks, "has sometimes been ridiculed. We know that in those times fleets were sent out from the Red Sea periodically, which returned with gold, apes, ivory, and feathers, all products of Africa. Where would the explorers be likely to go first on leaving the Red Sea? Out into the Indian Ocean or down the African coast? They would, of course, follow down the land, and, whether or not in King Solomon's days he got his gold from the East or the South, it may be taken as certain that the whole East African coast was then known and frequented by traders."

Widowed Mothers' Fund Association.

Persistent rumors have been going the rounds that the Widowed Mothers' Fund Association gave a ball on a recent Friday evening. The officers of the association emphatically deny the allegation inasmuch as the affair in question was held at the Lakewood Hotel, Lakewood, N. J., on Saturday evening, December 30. The officers further state that they are at all times ready and anxious to answer all questions and inquiries regarding their work, and would kindly request the general public to communicate with them direct upon matters in connection with the organization.

The annual meeting of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society will be held on Sunday afternoon, January 21, at 2 o'clock, at the auditorium of the Educational Alliance, corner East Broadway and Jefferson street. All interested in the work of the society are invited to attend.

Chovevei Ibrith.

The next meeting of the Chovevei Ibrith will take place on Saturday evening, January 6, 1912, at 8 p. m. in the Uptown Talmud Torah, 132 East 111th street, in room 7. Dr. M. W. Beder will lecture on "The Heart and the Circulation."

Trade Between the United States and Russia.

The large number of inquiries received by the Department of Commerce and Labor regarding the trade between the United States and Russia has led to the preparation of a statement upon that subject by the Bureau of Statistics of that department. It shows exports from the United States to Russia, approximately $25,000,000; imports from Russia, $12,000,000, in the fiscal year 1911, and indicates that trade between the two countries has practically doubled in the last decade, the increase occurring in both imports and exports. Hides and wool are the principal articles imported from Russia, and cotton, agricultural implements, binding twine, manufactures of iron and steel, and manufactures of leather are the most important of the exports to that country.

The above statements are based upon figures of the United States Government showing imports from and exports to Russia, as reported to the Bureau of Statistics by the customs authorities of this country. They differ materially, however, from the official figures of the Russian Government showing her exports to, and imports from the United States. The Russian figures of imports from the United States are much larger than United States figures of exports to that country, while Russian figures of exports to the United States are much smaller than our own statement of imports from that country. These discrepancies between the official figures of the respective countries are due chiefly to the fact that in many cases goods in the trade between the two countries are not consigned directly to the country of ultimate destination. In such cases goods sent from the United States to Russia or from Russia to the United States are consigned first to a German, English, or other middleman who forwards them to their ultimate destination. This is particularly true of cotton, which is the most important article of export from the United States to Russia. The United States figures of total exports to Russia in the calendar year 1909 show a little less than $17,000,000, while the Russian figures show nearly $30,000,000 worth of imports from this country. On the other hand, United States figures for the same year show imports of over $16,000,000 worth of merchandise from Russia, while Russian figures for the same period show a little less than $6,000,000 worth of exports to the United States.

Sydenham Hospital Reopens.

The Sydenham Hospital and Dispensary, which was temporarily closed by its directors some few months ago, has reopened and is now greatly improved. Though some of the improvements were called for by the city authorities, the general overhauling was mainly in response to the desire on the part of the board of directors to keep the institution up to the standard of modern efficiency, and to continue it in "Class A," in which it was placed by the State Board of Charities.

This hospital is located on 116th street, east of Second Avenue, in one of the thickly populated sections of the city. Its rapid growth testifies that it fills a real need of the community of the upper East Side. Within the short period of a few years it has had to enlarge its capacity from a modest beginning to its present dimensions, occupying a row of nine brownstone houses, Nos. 331 to 347 East 116th street, the acquisition of which was made possible through the kindness and philanthropy of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Guggenheim. Four of the buildings are devoted to the treatment of deserving medical and surgical patients entirely free of charge; one building is set apart for those who are able to pay for treatment; one is occupied by the Dispensary; one is a Training School for Nurses; one is for female help and one is for male help.

Joseph P. Day is president of the institution, which is governed by a board of twenty-five directors, among whom are Sanford Simons, Walter J. Moore, Justice Otto A. Rosalsky, S. Frankenstein, A. Michael, Adolph W. Kemper, B. J. Asiel, S. Bauman, Gustav Kraus, Joseph J. Bach, Vito Contessa and Max Korbe.

The reopening of this institution marks a new era in its history. With the new vigor added to its board of directors and to its medical staff its prosperity in the near future is assured. Located, as it is, in a district where hospital facilities for deserving poor have not otherwise been provided, it fills a gap sadly neglected heretofore.

The large number of Jews living on the upper East Side have shown during the few years of the existence of the Sydenham Hospital and Dispensary that they need this institution, if we are to judge by the large number of patients that have taken advantage of the facilities it offered for the cure and prevention of disease, and by the fact that they have been asking for its reopening. The well-to-do Jewish community in this great city will undoubtedly continue to support it as generously as it has done heretofore.

The extreme efforts resorted to by the Nationalists to create a prejudice against the United States for the purpose of helping the proposal to retaliate against American products on account of the abrogation of the Russo-American treaty of 1832 are illustrated in the statement in the preamble of the new retaliation bill to the effect that when Andreveff's orchestra played the Russian national hymn in New York the audience hissed, which action compelled the Russian diplomatic representatives to withdraw from the hall.

JEWS AND SCIENCE

By B. HOROWITZ.

Fourth Series—No. 15—Julius Jacobson

Jacobson was born in Königsberg on August 18, 1828. His father was a highly-respected physician who cultivated literature and music in his leisure hours. Julius received the first rudiments of education at home, and at nine was sent to the gymnasium, from which he matriculated at the age of sixteen and entered the university of his native town, then famous for the rather boisterous life that the students led. Of an artistic and musical bent, and keenly interested in the stirring political events of those days ('48, etc.), he gave no indication at this time of having much inclination for the subject in which he afterward so excelled. His father's death, however, compelled him to turn his attention to the more practical affairs of life, and after a consultation with the family it was decided that he should pursue the study of medicine. Into this he threw himself whole-heartedly. In 1853 he received his doctorate on a thesis on Glaucoma. Deciding to specialize in ophthalmology he proceeded to Berlin as assistant to Albrecht v. Graefe. The influence of this eminent ophthalmologist upon Jacobson's life was very great. Not only was Graefe famous as a research worker, but also as a teacher, and one who could inspire his pupils. Jacobson soon fell under his sway, and Graefe, a good judge of men, began to pay marked attention to the young doctor, so full of enthusiasm, and of such extraordinary ability. Later in life Jacobson often declared that the months spent working in Graefe's laboratory were the happiest of his life.

Returning to Königsberg he set up as an eye specialist, and here built up an immense practice. But his popularity was not entirely due to the knowledge he displayed in his specialty. His knowledge of medicine as a whole, his ability as a diagnostician, and his sympathetic attitude toward all his patients contributed not a little toward making him one of the most prominent physicians in Königsberg.

In the midst of his multitudinous labors he pursued researches unremittingly, and in 1858 was made Privat-docent. Clearness, fluency of speech, knowledge of the subject, and a retentive memory were qualities that Jacobson possessed, and these made him an ideal lecturer and teacher.

In those days ophthalmology was in a rather backward state, especially in Prussian universities. As a rule, lectures on the subject were given by the professor of surgery, who could hardly keep pace with the progress the science was making. The students had so far shown little interest, primarily because ophthalmology was not required in the final examination. With the appearance of Jacobson these things changed. It was noticed that in spite of the course being an optional one, his lecture-rooms were always filled to overflowing.

Arthur E. Franklin on the Question of Russian Passports—Dr. Joseph H. Hertz Suggested as Candidate for Office of Chief Rabbi—Jewish Religious Education Board Discussion re Improved Teaching—Military Service for Jewish Members of His Majesty's Forces to Celebrate the Feast of Hanukkah—Maccabean's Annual Dinner—Jubilee of the Sunderland Synagogue.

London, December 23, 1911.
The community here is being greatly moved over the question of Russian passports. Without any delay the joint meeting of the Board of Deputies and the Anglo-Jewish Association have taken preliminary steps with the view of bringing about the abrogation of the treaty between Great Britain and Russia which differentiates against British subjects who are Jews. The treaty above referred to is that of 1859, which gives British subjects full liberty to enter, travel, reside in any part of Russia, but provides that they may be summarily expelled for "bad conduct" or "doubtful character," or on account of "other causes for which their residence within the Empire cannot be suffered."

The Times newspaper has been devoting a lot of attention also to this question from various aspects and an interesting correspondence has resulted from the leading articles it has published. One interesting letter may be quoted from Arthur E. Franklin, who, in the Times of December 22, speaks as follows:

I am afraid your remarks in the leading article of to-day on the controversy between the United States and Russia, that it is one which happily does not affect ourselves, is hardly borne out by the facts. In the declaration to be made by applicants for passports, there is a note that "in case the persons proceeding to Russia the religion of the applicant will be mentioned in the passport on production of baptismal certificate or other satisfactory evidence." The object of this is clear. It is, that persons professing the Jewish faith, or at least those who acknowledge that profession, are to be refused the visa to their passports, without which entry into Russia is not permitted. A recent incident occurred within my own experience; a young officer in the army, an English Jew, was ordered to China and took his ticket by the Trans-Siberian Railway. A passport was duly applied for on his behalf and the visa was refused on the ground of his religion. It was not until strong representations had been made to the British Foreign Office and the Foreign Secretary had telegraphed to the Ambassador in St. Petersburg that instructions were given to grant the visa and so permit this officer to proceed on his journey. In view of the argument of Mr. Sazonoff, quoted in your leading article, I may mention that the young man in question has, as far as I am aware, no Russian connections and was obviously in no way connected with any political movement. In the ordinary course Englishmen who profess the Jewish religion are refused permission to enter Russia, although in practice those who have influential connections or occupy prominent positions in the business world can have exception made in their favor should they desire to ask for such concession from the Russian Government.

Dr. Joseph H. Hertz, of Johannesburg, who is on his way through London in answer to a call from America, is being suggested here as another right and proper candidate for the Chief Rabbinate. He is about 38 years of age, an undeniably earnest Jew, a learned rabbi, and a fine secular scholar. He is reported to be intensely energetic and even magnetic. His organizing powers are highly spoken of and he is a striking preacher and orator in German, English and Yiddish. Born in Hungary, he lived as a child and youth in America, subsequently leaving to take up the ministry of the Johannesburg (Transvaal) congregation. In the meantime the convention between the Executive Committee of the United Synagogue and delegates of other Jewish bodies here that unite in financially supporting the office of Chief Rabbi will take place on January 14 in London, under the presidency of Lord Rothschild.

The Jewish Religious Educational Board, had an important discussion of certain suggestions for improved teaching. The proposals put forward, although perhaps surprising to some people, are evidently of an earnest character. According to some critics, however, they will hasten the dissolution of Judaism, but according to others they perceive that the clergy have failed to arrest disaffection within the Jewish ranks and they have come at the right and proper time. A memorandum has been drawn up, signed by such names as Herbert M. Adler and Norman Bentwich. The signers of the memorandum assert that the religious education as imparted at present, whether to the children of the rich or the poor, has largely failed in its object is apparent; for:

(1) There is very little knowledge of the deeper significance of Judaism and no such reasoned belief as will lead to inward conviction or meet outward attack.

(2) Observance is very scanty, and what remains is often lax and perfunctory.

(3) Few of our younger men and women attend the synagogue or take an active part in the work of the community.

They believe that the failure of the present teaching is due to the fact that it is mechanical and unreal and that no satisfactory attempt is made to lay the intellectual foundations which are demanded by modern conditions. In other words, they recognize two defects in current teaching:

(1) The failure to realize and to teach the spirit of Judaism.

(2) The failure to harmonize secular and religious teachings.

Judaism, they say, consists partly of belief and moral ideals and partly of observance. These two sides must not be divorced from one another, but the latter must strengthen the former. Faith and belief will not inculcate themselves, and it is a vain delusion to imagine that they can be picked up on the way without any conscious effort or ordered system on the part of the teacher.

Bible teaching must not end with the Pentateuch. Teachers shall attain a greater knowledge of post-biblical, and particularly of Midraschic, literature. The meaning and purpose of every observance must be taught. They believe it is possible by proper teaching to make every observance appeal directly to the child by showing the religious purpose which it immediately serves as an aid to the sanctification of life. The teacher must think of the future as well as of the immediate present. The Bible must be taught in the best way to insure that the child, as it grows up and begins to turn upon its pages the forces of reason and the knowledge gained by science and history, will accept it as true. Before the child leaves the religion class it must understand that the purpose of the Bible is not to teach science or history but to teach religion, reveal God's law, and show God's Providence working out its purpose in its dealings with mankind, and in particular with Israel, the people to the Book. The continued object must be to instill faith, and faith, it must be recognized, is not the memorizing of dry dogmas, but the expression of a willing allegiance of a mind which is convinced that it sees the truth and of a heart that leaps to towards it, finding in it the glorified counterpart of its own image of goodness.

Many other interesting suggestions are made and it is hoped that the teachers will be ready to make the renewed effort required to carry them out. The signatories ask for this help, not for their own sakes or for the sakes of the teachers, but for the sake of the children.

There could be no more suitable method of celebrating the Feast of Hanukkah, commemorating as it does, the military prowess of the Maccabees than by a military service for the Jewish members of his majesty's forces. Hence it is that this service has become almost the distinctive feature of the festival, so far at least as London is concerned. On December 17 the nineteenth service of the series was held at the Central Synagogue which attracted a very large congregation. The officiating clergy were the Rev. Michael Adler, chaplain to the Jewish soldiers and sailors of his majesty's forces, and the Rev. E. Spero. Colonel D. de Lara Cohen, V. D., commanding the First London Engineers, was in command of the parade, Sergeant Major J. H. Levy of the Scots Guards, acting as sergeant-major. In all, there were 430 of all ranks mustered, including forty-six Jewish Regular and Territorial officers, sailors, soldiers, Territorials, Red-Cross voluntary nurses, members of the Officers, Training Corps, the National Reserve, and the St. John Ambulance Brigade. There were also detachments of the Imperial Cadets, the Jewish Lads' Brigade and the Boy Scouts. The evening service was followed by the kindling of the Hanukkah lights and the recital of the prayer for the Royal family, after which the chaplain delivered an address based upon the story of the Maccabees. His first words were in the nature of an eloquent tribute to the memory of the late Chief Rabbi, who had been a regular attendant at those services, and who had always preached that Judaism and patriotism were indivisible. If ever the time should arrive, he continued, when the Empire found it necessary to defend her own Jewish soldiers and sailors would be found fighting side by side with those of other faiths in the cause of truth and the freedom of mankind.

At the Great Central Hotel, the Maccabean's held their annual Hanukkah dinner, the festival lights being kindled by the Rev. Dr. Wasserzug. As is usual at these gatherings, the immortal memory of Judas Maccabaeus was honored in silence.

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering from Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman. I know woman's sufferings. I have found the cure. I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from woman's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, cry your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whittish Discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors, or Growths; also pains in head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, crying feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney, and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly, and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial, and if you are cured, you will pay for your cure, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in young Ladies. Plumpness and health always results from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten day's treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address

The jubilee of the interesting Sunderland Synagogue has just been celebrated. Jews have been settled in the Northern seaport town of Sunderland since far back in the middle of the eighteenth century. In the year 1750 a Jew opened a silversmith's and jeweler's shop there and his granddaughter married the very learned Jew who became the first Rabbi of the Sunderland Jewish congregation, the place of worship being at his own house. The Sunderland Jews came mainly from Holland and Germany, but were greatly added to thirty years ago by the immigration of a large number of Jews from Russia, owing to the persecution there. At the present time the community numbers about 3,000 and there are two synagogues. A fund has now been opened to rebuild the older one. The present rabbi is the Rev. Dr. Salis Daiches, a philanthropical student of high reputation who, among other things, has written on "The Relation of David Hume's History to His Philosophy."

In order to insure the insertion of communications in the current issue of THE HEBREW STANDARD they must be in this office not later than Wednesday noon of the week in which they are to appear.

Poor Rabbi Leon Harrison, of St. Louis, was confined to the house recently through indisposition. He did not wish his friends to learn of his mishap for fear "that he might be swamped with knit slippers for Christmas." Oh, slush! But seriously, the idea of one who calls himself a rabbi expecting Christmas presents is strange, to say the least.

The pen with which President Taft signed the Lodge resolution abrogating the Russian treaty should have been presented by him to Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle, instead of to the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, for the Congressman has fought the Russian passport problem for years and years and did not wait for the conscience of the nation to be aroused on the matter to "get on the band wagon."

Rabbi Harry H. Mayer, of Kansas City, thinks that "churchianity" is facing a portentous crisis because of the efforts now being made to import the methods of vaudeville into religious meetings. He is right to some extent, for vaudeville methods, and theatrical pyrotechnics, have no place in the house of religion, in pulpit or in pew. His complaint applies chiefly, however, to the practice of some ministers of providing illustrated lectures for their flocks. Up to this writing, we know of no Jewish congregation, no matter how latitudinarian its worship and observance, which has inaugurated such a feature.

And now E. H. Sothern, the well-known actor, puts in a word in defense of Shakespeare's Shylock, and says that he is not a libel on the Jews. As is very well known, Shylock may stand for a type of Jew, but can never be taken to represent every Jew. This entire Shylock controversy is somewhat wearying. Shylock intelligently portrayed does not evoke anti-Semitic prejudice in any audience; in cheap theatres The Merchant of Venice should not be made part of the repertoire. It is the old story of art and "art."

Rabbi Maurice H. Harris, of Temple Israel of Harlem, was well in advance of the new year, according to the civil date, with his protest against turning the eve of the first day of 1912 into a shocking and altogether Bacchic orgy. Year after year in this city New Year's Eve has become increasingly a night of terror, and, with much regret we must say this, the members of our own community are not to be absolved from the blame attaching to those who have transformed the night in question into a veritable Saturnalia. Rabbi Harris waxes poetic in the course of his protest and improves upon Lord Tennyson, as follows:

Ring out the revel and debauch, The squandered waste, the shame and s'n, Ring in a year without reproach, A night of blameless mirth, ring in.

It appears that enemies of Douglas Bomeisler, a Yale junior, circulated the rumor that he was of Jewish descent in order to defeat his candidacy for the captainship of next season's football team. It now turns out that this young man is of pure German descent, and his enemies are prompt to add that the idle rumor had nothing to do with his defeat. But it is admitted—whether by them or by others we do not know—that no Jew can ever hope to be elected as captain of Yale's aristocratic eleven. And Yale University prides itself upon being the most democratic institution of its kind in this country! There, its friends say, every man is taken for what he as a man is worth. But in Yale football circles and probably in every division of athletics in the university, athletic prowess and ability do not count. "Social" standing is the factor!

In an interview in The Jewish Chronicle, of London, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Abrahams, of Melbourne, Australia, is referred to in the following words: "He is silent as to his future plans. He himself, he says, will 'wait and see.'" Wait for what and see what? We frankly are not at all mystified by Dr. Abrahams' words. We recall that he is English-born, a son of the celebrated Dayan Abrahams, a German doctor of philosophy, the holder of a rabbinical diploma from Dr. Hildesheimer, of Berlin, and the successful minister for upward of thirty years of the orthodox congregation of Melbourne. Why has he returned to England to "wait and see"? He is waiting for that meeting of the Council of the United Synagogue at which a successor to the late Chief Rabbi, Dr. Herman Adler, is to be selected, and he will then see if Dr. Joseph Abrahams is their choice as the new Chief Rabbi.

MAY IT SPEEDILY COME TO PASS.

IF the Nationalists in the Imperial Russian Duma succeed in pressing through their parliament a bill designed to totally exclude from all the lands acknowledging fealty to Nicholas the Unspeakable, Czar of all the Russias, any and all American citizens of the Jewish religion, we shall not regret their action. We shall not even enter a protest against a bill of this kind, which the authoritative news agencies report as having been introduced. The Russian anti-Semites, among whom the Nationalists of the Duma may of right be numbered, are quite capable of measures of this nature.

While we, as has been said, could not and would not protest against legislation of the kind described, the nations of the globe would not be able to oppose such a bill. If Russia wishes to construct a paper Chinese Wall against the Jews of the United States, that is Russia's privilege. If the motive for the building of this Chinese Wall lies in the action of our National Government in abrogating the treaty of 1832, then the conscience of the nation, recently aroused and expressed in such manful terms, has not made its utterance in vain. Russia has been accused of being under the pall of mediæval darkness; her statesmen and bureaucrats, her ignorant anti-Semitic elements, have been described as steeped in crassest race-hatred. The Duma bill under review proves that these accusations were extremely well-founded.

Nor do we believe that American Jews care to go to Russia, assuming for the sake of argument that a new treaty, mutually satisfactory on the passport problem, be eventually negotiated to replace the outworn and abrogated instrument of 1832. Russia is not only an inhospitable country to Jews of any nation, but especially so to those born and bred upon her soil.

The world at large will accept the Duma's proposed mandate in retaliation of the action of this country for what it is worth. It is the crudest example of the lex talionis that we have had the fortune to behold. Its authors will find themselves the laughing stock of civilized men and the advantages (?) to be derived from such a law will inevitably recoil upon the country which is willing to inscribe it upon its statute book.

An Anglo-Jewish writer thinks that a chief rabbi, to be a chief rabbi, must not merely be called such. He must be acclaimed as such by the vast majority of those over whom he is to exercise spiritual control. He must, moreover, be a rabbi, which almost goes without saying, and possess wide and great experience as such. He must, in addition to all the foregoing qualities, have profound learning, wide scholarship and a high reputation among the rabbis of the world for his eminence, efficiency and proficiency as a rabbi. The Anglo-Jewish writer, whom we have cited, spoke with the vacant chief rabbinate of the Ashkenazic section of his own community in view. We think his prescription for a chief rabbi both correct and practical. We further believe that this prescription holds good in the case of almost every rabbi of every important congregation in this and other countries. For, a rabbi by his standing and attainments confers distinction upon his flock. If any rabbi be not held in high repute among the rabbis of the world, what will his colleagues in the rabbinate and the Jewish public at large think of a congregation which suffers such a man to minister to it? Besides, we commend to the careful consideration of some of our reformed brethren in this country that portion of the writer's remarks in which he says that to be a chief rabbi a man must first be a rabbi. We might paraphrase this, and say, to be a rabbi of an American congregation the minister must possess the rabbinical diploma.

The article which we reprint herewith was not, gentle reader, indited by the late J. P. Solomon, the beloved editor of this journal, of blessed memory. We may even say that it is not reprinted in this place from our own columns of an earlier issue. This excerpt is taken from The Pilot of Boston, and represents the latest information obtainable about the reverend gentleman who is therein described. It reads in full as follows:

A Vaudeville Heresiarach.

Rabbi Fleischer of this town is going into the show business. He is no longer a rabbi. He has outgrown Judaism. But he has not not outgrown the desire to talk to others. Therefore is he going to hire a hall, or, to be more exact, the Majestic Theatre, where he will be the stage manager of his new religion.

Cambridge over the river gave us a new religion some time since, but it was thrown out at once. Now that Dr. Elliot is absent Mr. Fleischer brings out new religion number two. The shows are to be liberal. They will cater to others who have outgrown the churches—"Christians or Jews, radicals or liberals, who although they have the need of the spiritual phase in their lives, have no place where they may go to satisfy the desire of the human heart for religious worship."

Mr. Fleischer will be, of course, the leader in the new show. It is one thing, however, to stage a show, and another to get an audience. Here we rather think the new religions will not play to crowded houses, even if the performance be a "benefit." Men who have thrown aside religion and the inspired prophets will hardly come to listen to "sounding brass and tinkling cymbals." Such men hardly have "spiritual interests" at heart. If they will not go to church to listen to a preacher, they will scarcely go to a theatre to listen to an amateur expounding his latest discoveries concerning the Almighty. Very fittingly is the theatre selected for this performance. If the doctor needs any understudies there are several vaudeville preachers in the city who could well be spared from the pulpit.

There are a number of malcontents in the stately old Portuguese synagogue in London who object to what they call "the religion of the top hat." They claim that the substance of religion is being lost through blind adherence to forms, and ascribe the falling off in synagogue attendance, and the lessening force of the old traditions to the top hat! We think the "kickers" in this instance exhibit that proverbially British sense of humor (?) in their strictures. "The rank is but the guinea's stamp," and the man can go to synagogue sans top hat and pray every whit as fervently. If however, he seeks Mitzvoth it is another matter. His garb should then reflect the honor which has or will come to him.

THE WEAPONS OF JEWISH CONQUEST.

ואני נתתי לך שכם אחד על-אחיך אשר לקחתי מיד האמרי כחרבי ובקשתי:

"Moreover, I have given thee a portion above thy brethren, which I took-out of the hand of the Emorite with my sword and bow." (Gen. xlviii:29.)

THIS week's portion invites us to enter a chamber wherein Death has spread forth his dark pinions. Here lies Jacob, the patriarch, well stricken with age, having seen the shift of spring and autumn, of summer and winter, for an hundred and forty-seven years. Here does he await the coming-of the final winter that is to envelop his body in the silent hush of the grave. Does his approaching end fill him with despair? Would he fain greet the home-coming birds of another spring? Nay; he craves rest: rest for his flesh that has passed through so much toil, rest for his spirit that has suffered so much anguish! The head that has lain so often upon hard stones by the wayside—let it at last repose in the soft, sacred sod of his ancestral home!

Yes, this is his only wish—to mingle his ashes with the consecrated dust of Palestine. Many a pious Jew since has cherished the same desire—many a descendant of Jacob deemed it a priceless blessing, outweighing life's greatest victories and sweetening life's bitterest disappointments, to have this ardent wish gratified. So did Jacob. The sadness of his parting hour was changed into bliss when Joseph promised to bury him beneath the nature-hewn vaults of the Cave of Machpelah. And in his blissful exaltation Jacob becomes an inspired seer whose spiritual-eye grows keener with the fading of his bodily vision; a prophet whose mind leaps beyond the gap of the coming ages, a priest whose outstretched hand is both the symbol and the channel of the divine blessing. Each of his children is thus remembered. Each has his future work and destiny allotted to him. Upon each head a benediction is called down, fervent with the fervency of death-bed prayers, sacred with the sacredness of a father's last heart throb.

But what about Joseph? Does he deserve no more than his brethren? Shall there be no special love-token bequeathed unto one whose tenderness, whose loyalty, whose royal word, readily consented to do the father's supreme bidding? Our text tells us that unto him was promised a portion of land conquered by Jacob by means of sword and bow. Somehow the answer doesn't satisfy us. It almost sounds like a boast—this reference to Jacob's martial prowess and the bloody means of his conquest. A portion acquired by means of sword and cross-bow seems scarcely worthy either of the giver or the recipient in this case. At all events, the mention of an act of violence at this supreme moment seems to mar its solemnity and profane its sanctity. The rabbi must have felt all this when they spiritualized the sense of "sword and bow" into mitzvoth umaasim tovim—pious acts and benevolent deeds!

Consider the depth of this allegorical interpretation. Not the sword nor the bow, but pious acts and benevolent deeds, are the true weapons of Jewish conquest. For these, too, are weapons—not indeed brutal bodily arms worthy of the rude strength of the savage, but subtle spiritual arms worthy of the noble soul of the saint! In the hand of any good man or woman they may become formidable instruments of war wherewith to fight life's fiercest enemies: sin and suffering. In the hands of Israel they have proved most effective. When the Jewish nation first entered the arena of nations to become the champion of God, it came equipped with the weapons of Justice and Righteousness, of Kindness and Mercy. Other nations, forsooth, wielded different arms: theirs the skill in stringing the bow and swinging the sword; theirs the courage of the beast of prey whose zest increases with the reek of meat and gore; theirs the prowess to push their conquests to the farthest corners of the earth. Israel, on the contrary, still yields the weapons of the spirit: his the skill in establishing moral laws that shall live forever; in composing prayers and hymns that shall continue on the lips of men till the twilight of time; his a different kind of courage—a courage of conviction growing more dauntless with the increase of hardships. His is in very truth a different kind of conquest—not the conquest of the earth for the earth, but the conquest of the earth for heaven!

Because our warfare is different, because our weapons are different, because our conquest is different, therefore do we have to suffer the contumely heaped upon us by other nations. They say we are craven cowards, afraid to fight; we do no belong to the conquering races of the earth. We are born slaves. We submit and die rather than fight and win. Yet, if Truth be the brightest star of the heavens, and Justice the strongest pillar of the universe; if there be a day of reckoning on which all nations are summoned before God's throne of judgment; yea, if there be a tribunal of history from whose verdict there is no appeal—one day it must become manifest who is the true fighter and conqueror, who is the true ruler and master! Israel's conquering march may have been accompanied with less din and bustle, with less beating of drums and flourishing of trumpets; surely with less spilling of blood—except we consider the blood of Jewish martyrs; nevertheless, it was a march more sweeping, more overwhelming than any accomplished by the Alexanders, the Hannibals, the Napoleons, of the past. Therefore, whenever we hear the old taunt about our non-combativeness, let us answer proudly: That our warfare is—the battles of the Lord! That our arms are—the weapons of Justice and Righteousness! That our conquests are— hearts, souls and minds!

THE FAMILY.

The family is often merely the family in name. "Family" has been defined and redefined by the courts in this country, and the grandfather and grandniece have been included in the term, and a court in one of the Eastern States went so far as to say that the fiancée might be included as a member of the family in certain instances. The term "family" is not yet fully defined, and the Lord knows whom else some courts may, by decree, yet make members of the "family," for, in another instance, it has been held that whoever is dependent for support upon the head of the "family" comes within the term, and so on, ad infinitum.

The dictionary gives various definitions of the term; but I mean to speak of the family, the immediate members of the house circle, binding it down to father, mother and children. This is what we ordinarily understand as "the family."

It occurred to me the other day, as I was reading of the wrangling about an estate by the members of the family which came within my last definition, how little, in many instances, the term really signifies, so far as one is led to believe its meaning conveys.

There are many families amongst the members of which, from infancy to the grave, there is an affection, born of the relationship, which remains hallowed and sacred, which binds each member in that lovable communion in which the consanguineous relation remains the permanent bond, as it ought to be, through life; the brothers and sisters never forgetting that they are the creatures of the same parents, and that they owe their existence to the same common origin; families wherein peace, good will and affection prevail, and wherein all unite to honor and cherish the authors of their existence.

It is true there are family jars, not of the sweetmeat character, but some which partake of a little acerbity. These cannot be helped; they are, perhaps, necessary now and then, to accentuate the happiness which generally prevails, just as it is necessary to endure pain in order to realize the value of pleasure. But, upon the great whole, there is peace and good will and true affection marking the course of its members.

There are, however, many families, the members of which are isolated and as coldly selfish as if one were a cannibal, and another a Hottentot. No feeling, no regard, no respect, and no love; wherein every member stands for himself, and, in many instances, all against the parents. It is a horrible picture, but justified by the reality which exists.

Of course, marriage of some of the members and the introduction of alien members into the family operate strongly and frequently to bring about changes in the previous conditions. The allegiance of the wife is due to the husband, and vice versa, it is true, and the ties which bind the child to the parent thus become loosened, and but too frequently snap altogether—yes, too often, when the child believes that by marriage every duty to the parent is absolved, even support, if required.

A "happy family" is a treasure; but how many are there? There are too many wherein each member stands at arm's length or at sword's point to the other, who look upon their sisters, brothers and parents as mere accidents of a consanguineous relation; it isn't their fault that they are related, and they live out their life's run in that thought, and act

Absolutely the Purest Table Water

In all the world there is no other known spring like the great, never-failing

Spring in the side of a two thousand-foot mountain at Ellenville, New York. It was first tapped, long before the Revolution, by a prospector, who tunneled five hundred feet into the mountainside. Then, for more than a century, it was lost, and in its stead there seemed to exist nothing but a legend of a spring of wonderful purity. In 1905 it was rediscovered and in 1906 the property surrounding the spring was acquired, the finest and most sanitary water plant in the world was erected, and the water, in still and sparkling form, put on the market at a moderate price.

It is bottled ONLY at the spring, but is on sale everywhere. Sun-Ray table water is delicious and absolutely the purest in the world, and can be drunk in any quantity with positive benefit.

MR. LOUIS FRENKEL

The Well Known Hotel Man and Caterer.

The Hotel has been thoroughly renovated and put into perfect condition. The Lakewood Hotel is too well known to the readers of this paper to call for any lengthy description. We will, however, say it is the finest Winter Resort Hotel in the North and the most exclusive lines. Service and cuisine to be under Mr. Frankel's personal supervision. Lakewood is celebrated for its mild climate, sandy soil and its balmy, piney air. It is an ideal place for the tired business man, and is near enough to New York to enable him to keep in touch with his business affairs. There is an eighteen hole golf course near the Hotel in perfect condition. The appointments of the livery are of the best and the horses for riding and driving have been carefully selected and are safe and reliable. Mr. Frankel is familiar with every department of the Hotel business. His years of experience, the manner in which he conducted the Hotel Albert, N. Y., and his success at the Hotel Kaaterskill, Catskill Mountains, is a guarantee that everything will be done to insure the comfort and enjoyment of his patrons.

accordingly. It's wrong.

L'AIGLON.

There are at present 10,000 Sephardim Jews in New York city. They are the raw material for a splendid Sephardic community in the future. They worship according to Minhag Sepharad and have the traditions of Spain and Portugal, but they are very poor, and their children, already numbering several thousand, are growing up in absolute ignorance, not only of Sephardic customs, but even of the rudiments of Judaism. Here is work for the ancient, aristocratic and wealthy Kahal Kadosh Shearith Israel, if they are really interested in the future of Sephardic Judaism in America. Let us see whether their Sephardic enthusiasm is genuine or assumed, "a mere insubstantial bubble lighter than air."

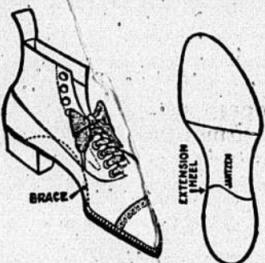

Our Baltimore contemporary writes that "those who look askance at 'scientific charity' will now have another source of mortification in the lectures to be given at Teachers' College, Columbia University, on Jewish dietetics, or kashruth." The foregoing is a remarkable example of the old logical fallacy, post hoc ergo propter hoc. The lectures in question touch upon the dietary laws in their religious, hygienic and practical aspect, and what they have in common with "scientific" charity only the "logical" defenders of the "science" can determine. Our brilliant colleague must have been made dizzy by the rapid revolutions of his editor's chair; otherwise he would have dug a pit for those who are not enamored of his vocation, into which he himself has fallen.

We note that Theodore Roosevelt, in a recent editorial utterance on the pending arbitration treaties, approved of the action of the President and Congress in abrogating the Russian treaty of 1832. For this approval of his late "high mightiness" we are, and of right ought to be, only grateful. At the same time we may point out how inconsistent our distinguished ex-President's views are. Some time since he thought the passport problem was a fit subject for arbitration, and that it properly came within the purview of the Hague tribunal. The arbitration treaties à vi necessitate enhance the importance for use of the Hague tribunal, if they be ratified. But the Colonel attacks them roundly! Why? Because, this is 1912.

A Russian economist points out that the cotton fields of Russo-Turkistan, in Central Asia, have almost reached the point of saturation, and that further production of the staple will be attended there with serious difficulties. He allows that additional areas could be made arable for cotton, but that the work of preparation in this direction would consume a number of years. In the face of these conditions, the shortsighted nationalists in the Duma are crying out for a retaliatory tariff war with the United States. Those whom the gods would destroy they first make mad! The economist in question is probably nearer the truth about his country than the perfervid "fire-eaters" of the Duma.

It is the old truths and the old fire we need for the new times and all times.—Rev. W. H. Gibbs.

The Ohab Zedek Sisterhood gave a Kaitze Klatsch on the 21st ult. at the vestry rooms of the synagogue, 18 West 116th Street. The affair was very largely attended, and all united in vinting to its social success.

For the benefit of the Washington Heights Hospital an amateur performance of "What Happened to Jones," will be given by the Junior League on the evening of Wednesday, January 17, in the Waldorf-Astoria.

The annual concert and ball of the Har Mohan Hospital will be held on Saturday evening, January 6, in the new Grand Central Palace, on Lexington Avenue. Dr. J. S. Bloch will be present as one of the guests of the society.

Preparations are rapidly maturing for the ball of the Daughters of Jacob at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, on Saturday, January 27, 1912. This institution which at present harbors 185 aged inmates, is desirous of erecting a modern home in the uptown section which will have accommodations for 500 poor aged men and women and in order to materially increase its building fund the affair is given. As it is upon the success of this ball that the question of how soon the project will reach a realization depends, it behooves those who are in sympathy with the worthy object to give it their financial as well as their moral support. President Tait has signified his intention of being present, and the night will be a gala one in every way.

A committee will consult with him upon his arrival this morning and the ceremony will most likely take place next Thursday night, and Dr. Hertz will then enter regularly upon his duties beginning with the following Sabbath morning.

Emanu-El Brotherhood.

The Hebrew and religious school has a register of over four hundred children, and sessions are held all afternoons during the week and also Sunday morning, between 10 and 12. The kindergarten also continues to keep up its attendance of fifty-five average. Beginning with about the fifteenth of this month, a new activity of the Brotherhood will be a class in commercial law, which will hold sessions two evenings a week. From the number of those who have already applied for membership in this class there is every reason to believe that additional classes will be started. The total attendance for the month of December, 1911, was fully 15,000.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.

An innovation has been introduced by the Committee on Religious Work, of which Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnes is chairman, whereby the Friday evening services are made more appealing to the young men, for whom the services are primarily intended. After the benediction is pronounced those of the audience who feel interested are invited to remain and enter into a discussion on the subject of the lecture. The young men are encouraged to ask questions which the Rabbi freely answers, always, however, confining himself to the subject of the evening. It is expected that many problems bearing upon the religious life of our young people will be elucidated at these meetings. The services begin promptly at 8:15 p. m. Rabbi Aaron Eiseman will occupy the platform this Friday evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

The annual minstrel show, under the auspices of the Acorn Club, was held in the auditorium on Sunday evening, December 31, and Monday evening, January 1. As usual, it drew large crowds who applauded the efforts of the young people who appeared. The performance was under the direction of Amelia Morgenroth.

On Saturday evening, January 6, the auditorium will be used by the Jewish Big Brother work will be discussed by meeting, at which the various phases of Big Brother work will be discussed by Mortimer L. Schiff, president of the Jewish Protectors and Aid Society; Hon. Otto A. Rosalsky and other speakers.

On Sunday evening, January 7, a debate will be held in the auditorium between the Tennyson Social and Literary Society and the Y. M. H. A., of Hoboken, N. J. The subject will be "Resolved, That an Educational Test Be Prescribed for Voters."

The fourteenth annual reunion and banquet of the Edward C. Stone Association was held on Wednesday evening, December 27, 1911. Superintendent Mitchell welcomed the boys in the name of the association, and addresses were delivered by ex-Presidents D. Daniel Wallstein, Alex. E. Meyer, Chas. L. Frank, Abraham Solomon, Joseph E. Davidson, Harry Collins, Albert E. Kohn and Harold Showe.

The feature of the evening was the rousing reception tendered to the guest of the evening, Mr. Faik Younker, whose address on "The Delinquency of Jewish Children and its Prevention" was listened to with intense interest by all present.

By subscribing to the Albert J. Teller Memorial Fund, the members present removed the deficiency, and a suitable memorial to perpetuate his memory is now assured.

The Temple Club of Washington Heights.

An organization known as The Temple Club to be affiliated with Congregation Peni-El, of Washington Heights, has been effected by a number of young men and women of that section, with the co-operation of Rabbi Elias Margolies. The officers for the ensuing year are: President, E. Mortimer Israel; vice-president, Miss Frances Feigenbaum; secretary, Frederick S. Engel; treasurer, George Feinberg. The Executive Committee, besides the officers, are: Gertrude Stock, Nehemia Friedman, Abraham

Silverstein, Nathan C. House and Jerome Grant.

All Jewish young men at least twenty years old, and young ladies at least nineteen, residing in the Washington Heights section, or its immediate vicinity, are eligible for membership, and their application or any inquiries should be addressed to Mr. Frederick S. Engel, the secretary of the club, 502 West 149th Street, City.

Bible Stories in Motion Pictures.

Through the generosity of Messrs. David Belasco and William Fox, the Council of Jewish Women will give a series of Bible stories in motion pictures at the Republic Theatre, West Forty-second Street, on the four Sunday afternoons in January, at 3 o'clock. Miss Fannie Hirsch, Mrs. Jas. Hirschberg, Miss Amy Ray, Mrs. Morris Klipper and other distinguished soloists will appear, and music will be furnished by the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society Band.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Bazaar Nuisance.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD: The utterance of the prophet: "And seven women shall take hold of one man," has realized itself in at least one phase of the modern charity bazaar; and more than realized, for quite often it is more than seven women that tackle the one man.

The fault, of course, is not with the girls of the bazaar, they are trying their best to swell the funds of the charity for which they are working, be it a synagogue, a hospital, or a home for the aged. But the organizers of the bazaar might well devise some other and more satisfactory way of attracting visitors and patrons. They err, I should say, if they think that the success of the bazaar is to be measured by the personal beauty and charms of the women they secure to sell "chances" of raffle tickets, and other tempting trifles. More often the women are rather a deterrent, and the more of them that are gotten together, and the more beautiful they are, the sooner will some men be scared off. It is difficult to say "no" to a pretty woman, no matter what is the request or command, and unless you are endowed with both the riches of Croesus and the patience of Job, you have got to say that only too often at the bazaar. There are far too many attractive women selling things at the bazaar, and there are far too few men to buy them. So the result is that the same man is ceaselessly pestered and persecuted on all hands over and over again, till his pockets are empty and his good humor is gone, and he swears that he will never come again. It is a mistaken idea from beginning to end to think the bazaar girls are an important asset. It is true, they are mostly very beautiful girls, but they do not bring the men there. That is not what men come to a bazaar for. One does not need the bazaar for that; one can go to a dancing saloon or some such place, if to look at a bevy of beautiful women were everything. Most of the men visitors to a bazaar know where they are going, they know what they are doing. They come because they are interested in the object for which the bazaar is held; they come ready to help, prepared to spend. They do it of their own free will, but they do not want to be driven on, and it makes no difference who drives them. To be belabored by a band of young women at every turn and to be told repeatedly that you are mean, because you cannot satisfy all their demands, does not make the bazaar a pleasure ground. And apart from all else, it is in itself a pity to see so many beautiful, refined young women, intended to be a joy and a delight to men, constitute themselves into an intolerable nuisance.

But that something might be done in order to bring more visitors to the bazaar, judicious advertising in appropriate papers should help a deal in that direction. I would even go so far as to say it would be a good investment to do away with the admission money. Another item our elders might be well advised to do away with at bazaars is the palmistry business, especially when the bazaar is held in behalf of a synagogue. Palm reading is perhaps a harmless thing enough, so far as it goes, but it does not fit in well with the synagogue. It is un-Jewish, and we might have sufficient feeling of reverence left in ourselves not to tolerate at our public functions anything that is directly against the teaching of the synagogue. Palm reading, like the young woman nuisance, seems part and parcel of the bazaar. It set me thinking the more when recently I saw that palm reading carried on at a bazaar held in favor of a Sephardic congregation. And for things less than that perhaps their fathers went to the stake and filled the air of Spain with the smell of burned flesh. Very truly yours, SAMUEL FRIEDMAN.

N. Y., Jan. 2, 1912.

Few musical plays have ever aroused the interest of women as emphatically as "The Fascinating Widow," in which Julian Eltinge, famous for his characterizations, will play a return engagement at the Grand Opera House next week. Besides being a clever entertainer, Eltinge supplies constant astonishment with his luxurious gowns. In this he furnishes new evidence that the mind of the fair sex is easily turned toward fashion if given a fair invitation. Eltinge is very popular with the women and liked by men as well. He is the one and only man in his line who has dignified the impersonation of women by artistic methods. The music of "The Fascinating Widow" is by the late Otto Hauerbach, of "Madame Sherry" fame.

GRAND LODGE OF THE UNITED STATES. OFFICERS:

M. S. STERN, Grand Master, New York; S. HOFHEIMER, Dep. Gr. Master, New York; ADOLPH FINKENBERG, Second Dep. G. M., New York; ADOLPH PIKE, Third Dep. G. M., Chicago; ABRAHAM HAFER, Grand Sec'y, New York; E. FRANKENTHALER, Gr. Treas., New York; HENRY LICHTIG, Ch. Endowment Com., New York.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Herman Steifel, Jacob A. Hirschman, Henry Jacobs, Wm. Bookheim, Sig. S. Lurie, Raphael Levy, Julius Harburger, Isaac Hamburger, Benjamin Blumenthal, Julius Sinsheimer, Emil Tausig, Raph. Rosenberger, Henry L. Welsbaum, S. Meyerhoff, Joseph I. Hartenstein, Ben H. Wasserman, I. Anderson Loeb, Henry V. Rothschild.

ABRAHAM HAFER, Grand Master; ABRAHAM HAFER, Grand Secretary; A. E. CARLESEN, Grand Treasurer.

Hon. Wallace S. Fraser, the newly appointed Deputy State Comptroller, came into the office of Julius Harburger, last Friday, and on behalf of the force honored him in a splendid address and presented the newly elected Sheriff with a handsome gold watch, chain and locket containing a large diamond. The inscription on the inner case reads as follows:

"Presented to Honorable Julius Harburger by his associates in the New York city office of the State Comptroller, December 31, 1911."

Mr. Fraser was followed by Appraiser William Blau, who spoke in the same strain.

State Comptroller William Sohmer said that he was sorry to lose the services of Mr. Harburger as Deputy State Comptroller, but was glad that he was going to the higher office of Sheriff.

Mr. Harburger feelingly responded and thanked them all for the gift.

At the annual election of officers of Mt. Vernon Lodge, No. 71, I. O. F. S. of I., held at the Free Son Building on December 25, 1911, Isaac B. Reinhardt was elected president, Henry I. Simmonds, vice-president; Adolphus E. Karelsen, Treasurer; Henry Jacobs, financial secretary; Carson Mintz, recording secretary; J. Finkelstone, outside Tyler; D. M. Bondy, inside Tyler; Dr. Carl Goldmark, physician; Lewis F. Glaser, A. Ellison and H. M. Friedman, trustees, and Bros. Roth, Friedman and Goodman, Finance Committee.

The Propaganda Committee has had placed at its disposal a sum of money in addition to the funds realized by it from its various entertainments held during the past year, which it will use for suitable installation exercises on the evening of January 8, 1912, at the clubhouse of the order, 21 West 124th street, New York city. Professional talent has been secured, and all indications point to a very sociable and entertaining evening. The entertainment will begin at 8.30.

Mr. Julius Allhmer, district deputy, has been designate to install the newly elected officers in their various stations. A collation has been arranged, to be served immediately after the entertainment, to be followed by dancing. The lodge is composed of approximately 450 members, the young element being very much in evidence.

INDEPENDENT ORDER WITH ABRAHAM

United States Grand Lodge, 37 East Seventh Street, New York City.

Approved by the Insurance Departments of nearly all the states in the Union.

630 Lodges. Members, 162,000. For further information, address Leon Sanders, Grand Master; Job Schoen, Grand Secretary.

Many members are under obligations to Adolph Rosenbaum, chairman of the Charity Committee of the Grand Lodge. Any matter referred to him and his excellent committee receives immediate attention. No delay in giving a helping hand is Bro. Rosenbaum's slogan.

Bro. S. Blumenfeld, of Lodge 5, is a District Deputy, who looks after the welfare of the following lodges: Abi Orstein, No. 101, Jehudah Halevy, No. 204, Salatzer, No. 356, Ostrower, No. 41, and Dr. Braunstern, No. 572. Bro. Blumenfeld's report to the Grand Lodge is very satisfactory to Grand Master Sanders.

Czernow Buk Lodge, No. 17, is one of the banner female lodges of the order, working strictly within the confines of the law, always looking after the interests of their own organization, and doing all that can be done for the order in general.

Wm. J. Gaynor Lodge, of Brooklyn, follows up every meeting in doing good for their coreligionists and the organization. They are positively a flower lodge of the brotherhood.

Moses Montefiore Lodge, No. 4, bears an illustrious name, and keeps it always to the front. They initiate and propose members with unceasing regularity.

Povalcer Lodge, No. 612, of Chicago, Ill., has proven a valuable adjunct to the brotherhood, and officers and members are vying with each other in a friendly spirit, to increase. Their record is very pleasing to the Grand Master and the executive officers.

Dave J. Litt Lodge, No. 604, of Philadelphia, Pa., shows full appreciation of the honor conferred on them by their institution. They are growing steadily and will in numerical strength eventually stand at the top of the ladder.

Pittsfield Lodge, No. 595, of Pittsfield, Mass., sends its quota of increase, and promises more for 1912.

King Edward Lodge, No. 585, of Boston, Mass., has created a stir among our coreligionists, and an actual canvass for members has resulted successfully.

Sinal Lodge, No. 537, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a favorite branch of the Grand Lodge, always doing all that can tend to promote the growth and perpetuation of the order, to which they are loyal and true. No meeting is held by 537 that does not show an increase in membership and financial standing.

Barnet Jacobskind Lodge, No. 574, is striving hard to help the administration of Grand Master Sanders, proving that where there is the will the way is easy. Grand Secretary Shoen says the link is an ornament to the order.

Crotona Lodge, No. 560, although a later day lodge, is not left behind by the old-time adherents. It is up to date, knows how to work, and their interests and those of the order are pushed onward and forward.

Hope of Rhode Island Lodge, No. 549, Secretary A. L. Friedman says that they will prove ere the next convention that in numerical strength Rhode Island is a power in the land.

Eliezer Lodge, No. 12, an old-time lodge, is in line and keeps up its record as one of the loyal and staunch links of the brotherhood. It will be found, as always heretofore, an honored branch of the organization.

Yorkville Lodge, No. 500, of this city, is a lodge that the order can justly claim as a banner body of their organization, alive and wide awake and full of the go ahead spirit.

Ninety-eight deaths occurred in December last, seventy of which the lodges will pay, with an assessment of 1/2 of 1 cent each. Twenty-eight will be paid from the surplus fund.

Lodges will have to pay cash to the Grand Lodge for all supplies from this date in order to facilitate the work and have less charging accounts.

Three new lodges were instituted in December, Revere 630, at Revere, Mass.; Raymond 631, in Brooklyn, and Rabbi Isaac Thuman 582, in this city.

Lodge No. 583, for non-compliance to the laws of the order, has been suspended. Grand officers will not uphold any lodge failing in its duties.

Independent Benderser Lodge, No. 185, will have its members, J. Kupperberg and J. Simon, honored by the Grand Master, S. Goldstein, by presenting them each with a gold watch at the next convocation for bringing in 15 and 5 members each, respectively.

Brother Adolf Bieber and wife will Bar Mitzvah their son Alexander S., on Saturday next, January 6, at the First Hungarian Ohav Zedek Synagogue, 172 Norfolk street. A reception will follow. Brethren of the order and friends are invited. Brother Bieber has been the Grand Messenger of the order for the past eight years.

Jefferson Lodge, No. 54, will have a reception and ball on February 3, at Lexington Hall, 109 East 116th street.

Moses Falkenheim Lodge, No. 70, will have an entertainment and ball January 7, 1912, at New Star Casino, 107th St., between Lexington and Park Ave.

The ball and bazaar of Benderser Lodge, No. 185, held on Saturday, December 30, at Mirror Hall, was a financial and social success, and a very pleasant affair to all present.

John Wertheimer Lodge, No. 28, assembled its many members on December 30, at the Harlem Arcade, E. 124th street. The fair will prove beneficial for the population, as a sociable and financial success is scored.

Brooklyn City Lodge, No. 63, is doing good work for itself and the order and it has projects for the best interests of the brotherhood in the near future.

Friendship Lodge, No. 41, will have a public entertainment on Sunday, January 7; the participants having 800 to 1,000 in attendance.

Harmony, wisdom and justice, the motto of the order, is well carried out by the present Grand Secretary, Geo. W. Leiserson, and since his assumption of office members of the order have convinced themselves that he is, and will be, a model grand secretary. His every action to one and all is for harmony, wisdom he displays in being thoroughly posted in his duties, and justice he dispenses, without differentiation. There is a pleasant greeting for every brother who comes to the office.

The committee state of the order, Nathan Z. Mossis, chairman, and assistants, Ivan Eisenberg, Joe Silver, J. Engel, M. Levy, M. K. Breger, F. Birnbaum and Ed Rosenstern, are doing excellent service, and nothing fails to have their attention. Grand Master Dorf made a wise and judicious selection in appointing the committee.

Max Grenman, of Birmingham, Ala., Lodge, No. 276, writes very encouragingly to the Grand Lodge of the good prospects and the increase of members in his locality.

Nathan Mishkind, of Salt Lake City Lodge, No. 486, informs the Grand Lodge of great headway made and further prospect of success for the brotherhood.

Aryeh Lodge, No. 3, one of the old standbys, is wide awake, and working in the best interests of the order, and the members deserve the good wishes of all the brethren.

Montefiore Lodge, No. 13, gives promise to be a leader in good work for the O. B. A. They keep the office busy reporting new additions to their ranks.

Nebraska State Lodge, No. 144, H. J. Goodstein, secretary, writes to the order: "We will surprise you by the gain in membership, and our general success, in the year 1912."

Alamo Lodge, No. 199, of San Antonio, Tex., reports new additions to the roll. The lodge has a very active board of officers.

Iron City Lodge, No. 217, of Pittsburgh, Pa., is keeping up its record as an active co-worker in the promotion of the best interests of all who are linked with the fraternity.

Recognition of his merits came in 1861, when he was made professor-extraordinary. He immediately began to wage a war in an attempt to have his specialty recognized as an independent science, and to have it established on a firmer footing. Faculty and ministry were appealed to. It was pointed out that year after year full-fledged doctors were sent forth who had never seen a diseased eye; still things remained unchanged. Only in 1867 were two small rooms placed at Jacobson's disposal, and this proved the nucleus of the "ophthalmologische Universitäts-poliklinic." This poor equipment raised no protest from him; on the contrary, the very fact that the faculty complied with his demands in so far as lay in their power, was proof enough that they were already beginning to recognize the importance of the subject. To spread his views further and make them lasting, he published in the following year "Ophthalmology in Prussian Universities," and another in 1869, "Contribution to the Reform of Instruction in Ophthalmology at the Universities." His incessant pleadings had their effect. In the new regulations for 1869 we find that henceforth all candidates for M.D. will be required to pass an examination in ophthalmology. In 1871 a very stately poliklinic, devoted exclusively to the

FURS

Artistic workmanship is of the greatest importance in Fur Custom Work. The skins, trimmings, lining and even the style and fit may be perfect, but if the garment lacks artistic workmanship, perfect matching, skillful manipulation and proper cutting, in other words, the "KNOW HOW" and the 1,001 details, the garment will be a failure. The fur business cannot be learned through a correspondence school, but requires a lifetime of practical experience and progress.

Send or bring your furs for my estimate and save money, and here's the point: You are SURE they will be done right. Furs made to order, repaired or remodeled.

furtherance of the science, was set up in Königsberg, and Jacobson placed at the head of it.

Meanwhile v. Gräfe, Jacobson's teacher and friend, died, but it was not till three years later that his more eminent pupil was made full professor.

Having succeeded in building a school and in having it recognized, Jacobson, assisted by his more promising pupils, began to pursue more elaborate investigations. Most of the results of these labors appeared in Gräfe's Archiv für Ophthalmologie. One of his first contributions was on "Notices of ophthalmology."

THIS No. 6 REMINGTON $27!

The World's Standard Typewriter

When you say "Typewriter" you think of Remington. Everybody does. Remington is the standard by which typewriter goodness is measured the world over.

And this No. 6 model is the most famous of all the Remingtons. There are more of them in use throughout the world than of any other three makes combined.

A Great Opportunity

Here is a machine listed at $100 which you can buy for $27. It is one of many the Remington Co. accepted as part payment for their new visible models.

Through an exclusive deal we get all of these returns at an unheard of low figure. That is why we can offer you the best of them—some but little used—at about one fourth the maker's price.

Fully Guaranteed

That's the way you get your machine. This "Trade-work-guarantee" quality, workmanship, efficiency equal to those of the brand-new machine.

The Brainworker's Friend!

Cuts your time for writing in half. Doubles your output in thought. Progressive men and women write—sermons, lectures, schoolwork, literary work on the machine. Also letters, estimates, specifications, documents, etc. All of them look better and read easier. Without a typewriter you are handicapped 100% in your work.

You Learn in One Day

To operate this Remington. It is so simple you'll be surprised. The first evening you can write a letter on it. In a week you write as fast as with your pen. In a month twice as fast.

For all practical purposes the No. 6 Remington is the best typewriter you can get. It writes 76 characters, including the alphabet in capitals and small letters, figures, punctuation marks, etc.

"American Factory Rebuilt"

The Remington typewriter we offer you has just gone through our factory. Our expert workmen have examined it thoroughly, and replaced every weak part with a new part. Thoroughly reconstructed, realigned and readjusted—it performs like new. Refinished and renickedel—it looks like new.

Free Trial

Sign the coupon below and mail at once, and we will write you how you can examine and try this typewriter in your own home—to prove to your satisfaction that it is exactly as we say.

and Epidemic Diphtheritis conjunctivae." Three years later he published a monograph on "A New Method of Healing the Cataract," an eye-complaint producing partial blindness. By this new method of his he reduced blindness from this cause from 10 to 2 per cent. Further researches into this were published under Zur Lehre von der Cataractextraktion mit Lappenschmitt, Ueber v. Gräfe's neueste Cataractextraktion, Die Extraktion mit der Kappel, etc.

Among the publications of the Königsberger Universitäts-Augenklinik for 1877-9 we find a very important one on "The Study of Glaucoma Since Gräfe," an excellent historico-critical summary. Glaucoma, which gets its name on account of the greenish tinge which sometimes makes its appearance on the pupil of the eye, and is a symptom of the disease, is marked by a gradual diminution in the power of vision. It had been the subject of much study for many years, and many vexing points concerning it were satisfactorily explained by Jacobson, though much remained yet to be done before the problem could be called solved. In his "Glaucoma" he sharply attacked those critics who wished to lessen the importance of v. Gräfe's work on its pathological and therapeutic process.

Jacobson's monograph on Beziehungen der Veränderungen und Krankheiten des Sehorgans zu Allgemeinerkrankungen und Organerkrankungen, which deals with the effects of the diseases of the eye on the rest of the system, shows in an excellent manner his knowledge of medicine. Albrecht v. Gräfe's Verdienste um die neuere Ophthalmologie, which appeared in the same year, is a lovely tribute to the memory of his illustrious friend.

Jacobson's last great work was his Beiträge zur Pathologie des Auges, dealing with studies on the pathology of the eye.

Long a sufferer of neuralgia, he could only continue his scientific work by making use of morphia. His subsequent attempt to rid himself of the morphia habit by the use of cocaine proved of little success. He died September 14, 1889.

Says A. v. Hippel: "Wer das Glück gehabt, ihm persönlich nahe zu treten, der weiss es, dass in der unbegrenzten Hingabe an seine Wissenschaft, in der Begabung für den Beruf des akademischen Lehrers, in jener echten Humanität, die nur im Wirken für das Wohl der Menschheit ihre Befriedigung findet, nicht leicht jemand Julius Jacobson erreichen wird."

MUSIC NOTES.

Miss Katharine Goodson, the English pianist, will be the assisting artist at the third concert of the regular series of subscription concerts by the Kneisel Quartette, which takes place on Tuesday evening, January 16, at the Hotel Astor.

Wolf-Ferrari, the composer whose "Donne Curiose" was produced at the Metropolitan this week, will be represented on concert programmes this season. Mr. and Mrs. David Mannes will play the recitativo and adagio from his sonata in A minor, op. 24, for violin and piano, at the Belasco Theatre, Sunday evening, January 14.

The programme which Harold Bauer has arranged for his second piano recital in Carnegie Hall, Wednesday afternoon, January 17, is popular in character, and designed to make the widest possible appeal. It includes the Brahms Waltzes, opus 39; the Mozart Sonata in E major; Cesar Franck Prelude and Fugue; Schumann Kinderscenen and Toccata; and Chopin Scherzo in C-sharp minor.

Alessandro Bonci's only recital in New York this season will take place at Carnegie Hall, Wednesday afternoon, January 10. Immediately following his New York recital, he leaves to fill his concert engagements, of which already over fifty have been booked throughout the country. The programme for Wednesday includes "Se tu M'ami," "Il Pensier," "O del mio Dolce Ardor," "Vittoria! Vittoria!" "At Dawning," "At Parting," "I Love Thee So," Grand Aria (from "Matrimonio Segreto," "Le Desert," "Collette," "Sogno" (Manon Lescault), "Aspirazione," "Alla Luna," "Mattinta," and "Cilo e Mar" ("Gloconda").

Next week's programme at the Metropolitan Opera House will be opened with a performance of "Tristan and Isolde" on Monday night, with Gadske as "Isolde" for the first time this season. On Wednesday afternoon, there will be a special performance of "Koenigsinder," with Farrar and Jadowker, and in the evening "Orfeo" will be given with Matzenauer and Rappold. "Tosca," with Farrar, Martin and Scott will be sung on Friday, and for Saturday's matinee Caruso, Amato and Destinn are announced in "The Girl of the Golden West."

The second concert to be given this season by the Volpe Symphony Orchestra will take place at Carnegie Hall, on Tuesday evening, January 9. The soloist of the evening will be Ludwig Hess, the celebrated German tenor.

The Symphony Society of New York will play at the Century Theatre, this Sunday afternoon a Beethoven programme, comprising the fourth symphony, in B flat; the "Emperor" concerto for pianoforte with orchestra, in E flat, No. 5, and the "Leonore" Overture, No. 3. The soloist will be Herr Wilhelm Bachaus, the pianist, who will at these concerts, make his American debut. Herr Bachaus is well known in London and in Continental capitals.

Collegiate Zionist League.

Dr. David De Sola Pool will lecture before the league on January 7, at 8 p. m., at the Young Women's Hebrew Association on "Sephardic Communities in America."

Rabbis Take Up Jewish Publication Society Work.

In order to increase its membership in New York city, the Jewish Publication Society, through its field representative, Rev. J. Korn, has obtained the co-operation of many congregations. The Rev. Dr. D. De Sola Pool will inaugurate the work in his sermon Sabbath morning, and other ministers will follow on succeeding Sabbaths.

In his last annual message, Mr. Edwin Wolf, the president, expressed his opinion that the society will have ten thousand members for 1912. The reports from the country fully bear out Mr. Wolf's expectations. Rabbi Korn, moreover, is confident that in addition fifteen hundred new members will be enrolled by May 1st in the city of New York.

Fifth Anniversary Hebrew Congregation of the Deaf.

The Hebrew Congregation of the Deaf will celebrate their fifth anniversary by giving an entertainment and ball at the Murray Hill Lyceum, No. 106 East Thirty-fourth street, on Saturday evening, January 6. The entertainment will be given by professional entertainers.

A Modern Necessity.

The adaptation of electricity to every purpose of housekeeping is one of the most advanced features of modern civilization. It is now applicable for everything where light, heat or power is required. Its convenience and beauty are matters of pride to all who employ it in their household; its economy and cleanliness are adjuncts that the prudent and healthy appreciate, but the installation of all electricity in the home, in the store, office, or factory must be done in the best manner to insure satisfactory service and safety.

One who is unusually capable of perfectly equipping a home or any building with electricity and who is thoroughly conversant with electricity in all its branches is Philip Simpson, the electrician, No. 138 West One Hundred and Sixteenth street, between Lenox and Seventh avenues, who was born in the electrical business, and that is just as essential for practical success as being born a poet is necessary to one's writing good verse. That much is in Mr. Simpson's favor and it is having the desired effect, because he is a successful mechanic working his way by degrees to the attainment of a business of large proportions in his particular field of operations which include everything electrical, but his speciality is wiring for residences, the installation of electric lights, electric bells and electric motors in residences, stores and public buildings. Making of this branch a specialty, his work is of a commendable nature and he has the references of prominent real estate owners and operators whom he has served as part of his valuable assets in the electrical business.

Mr. Simpson did the electrical installation in the synagogue of the congregation Agudas Achim, Yonkers, N. Y., a job of which he is particularly proud. There are others too numerous to mention.

Mr. Simpson started in business five years ago at No. 155 Lenox avenue, and is well known in Harlem. Those requiring electrical work of any nature whatever, including repairing, should have him estimate for them. If he gets the job, his customer gets satisfaction in every respect.

Continuing at the Kinemacolor Theatre, Fortieth street, near Broadway, New York, are the natural color motion pictures of the Coronation of King

George and Queen Mary of England, and the great Royal Horse Show at Richmond, England. After a run of three hundred times in the city these pictures are the senior of all the attractions on the boards, and yet they are as popular as ever, full capacity houses being the rule. Performances are given every evening including Sundays at 8.30, lasting two hours, and daily matinees at 2.30 accommodate the suburbanites.

The exuberant personality of Geo. M. Cohan projected into the title role of "The Little Millionaire," now in its fourth month at the George M. Cohan Theatre, has been the means of making this play one of the most talked about entertainments presented in New York in several seasons. Additional reasons for the vogue of the piece are furnished in the brilliant wit of the book and lyrics and the fascinating charm of the musical farce which continues to attract house-full audiences at each succeeding performance registered by Mr. Cohan and his admirable company.

Jews Are Prominent in Harvard Affairs.

The extent to which the Jews of America have entered into the life and progress of Harvard University was recently told by Mr. Alvin Block at the Jewish Educational Institute, Kansas City, Mo. The speaker said: "Fifty years ago the Jew who attended the university was regarded as a curiosity. Now there are more than 450 Jewish students enrolled there.

"Looking at the social side of college life we see three classes of Jews. The first class is the ultra-snobbish, who never can forgive the good Lord for making them Jews. They try to hide their racial peculiarities, avoid the other men who are Jews and associate entirely with Gentiles. They are the class which has money and which spends it lavishly. While these Jews succeed in gaining an entry into fast circles, where cards, automobile rides and chorus girls are the chief diversion, they fall when it comes to being admitted to the best Gentile society.

"The second class comprises Jews who never will associate with Gentiles. They have the impression that they are unwelcome and thus go through the university without having made any friends among the Gentile students. That, too, is wrong.

"There is a happy medium, however, and to this third class belongs the majority of Harvard Jews.

"In the educational life the Jew stands foremost. Men of that race have achieved honors in literature, law and debate. In 1908 the debating team of Harvard, which contested with Princeton, was made up entirely of Jews. The following year it was a Jewish team that contested with Yale for honors.

"Notwithstanding that there is a tendency on the part of many Jewish young men to become merely 'college grinds,' a large number have been prominent as athletes and also as college dramatic stars and contributors to university publications.

"On the part of some college men there is a prejudice against the Jew. This is not common at Harvard. I believe that much of the prejudice results from the attitude of some of the Jews themselves."

Mr. Block mentioned the strong Jewish organizations at Harvard. These, he said, are worthy of being maintained on account of their educational value to the Jew.

BROOKLYN NOTES.

Hebrew Educational Society.
The superintendent, Dr. Chas. S. Bernheimer, delivered an address in the Friday evening lecture course on Friday night, December 29, 1911. He spoke of the Jewish immigration and of conditions in Brownsville. He called attention to the great interest in intellectual and educational work among the Jews in this community. He urged a high standard for the professions and emphasized the importance of young men not crowding the vocations of law and medicine, but rather looking forward to careers in the scientific profession, such as chemistry, engineering, and the like.
Honorable Edward Lazansky will give a lecture on the "Jew in Public Life" this (Friday) evening.
A minstrel show for the benefit of the building fund will be given by the young citizens on Saturday evening, January 6.
A concert, participated in by Miss Maude Klotz, soprano, and Mr. Paul Kafer, 'cello, will be held on Sunday evening, January 7, 1912, under the management of Arts and Science Institute of Brownsville. This institute has also arranged for two lectures, to be given by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, on Sunday evening, January 14 and 21, the subjects being "Man" and "Woman and Child," respectively.
A concert arranged by Nathan G. Meltzoff will occur on Tuesday evening, January 9.

Congregation Shaarey Zedek.
Hon. Isaac F. Russell, chief justice of the Court of Special Sessions of New York city, will be the speaker in the special course of Sunday evening lectures instituted by Rabbi Joel Blau at Shaari Zedek Synagogue, Putnam avenue, near Reid. His subject will be, "American Ideals." Introductory remarks will be made by Judge Jacob S. Strahl.

Mt. Sinai Congregation.
Mr. J. S. Graham, president of the Flatbush Playgrounds Association, was the speaker last Sunday morning. Next Sunday Naval Officer Kracke will deliver an address. A benefit performance for the Sunday school will be held at Jefferson Hall on January 28.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.
The members of the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Brooklyn were entertained on Thursday evening, December 28, 1911, by Ralph K. Jacobs, president of the institution, at his home, 892 Union street. Mr. Nathan Jonas, president of the Federation of Jewish Charities, was present and said that the federation looked to the Young Men's Hebrew Association, one of the constituent societies of the Federation, to secure increases of subscriptions for 1912 amounting to at least $3,000. The members of the board became very enthusiastic and personally pledged themselves then and there to raise at least $4,000 during 1912. The gathering was addressed by Mr. Jonas, Ralph K. Jacobs, Michael Furst, Mr. Jonas announced the pledges of directors of the Federation now amount to $45,000. The following were present: Messrs. Nathan Jonas, Michael Furst, Isaac Tarshis, Hyman Zeitz, Walter M. Effross, I. Isaacson, Charles E. Bloch, Harry Cook, Louis Gold, David Schwartz, William Godnick, Isaac Frank, Simon Abrahamson, Samuel Charig, Adolph Bergida, Grover M. Moscovitz, Charles S. Aronstam, Adolph Heineemann, Harry G. Anderson, Gabriel Baum, Rev. Israel Goldfarb, Hon. Alex. H. Gelsmar, Bernard J. Becker and Bernard Lebowitz.

Williamsburgh Y. M. H. A.
The association has decided to hold a bazaar in conjunction with the Ladies' Auxiliary Society, during the month of February. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the building fund.
A committee is preparing a programme for a lecture course for 1912.
The membership has increased 50 per cent. during the past year and undoubtedly the 500 mark will be passed in 1912.

Rockaway Beach Y. M. H. A.
Arrangements have been made to hold the fourth annual ball of the Y. M. H. A., of Rockaway Beach, in conjunction with the Y. M. H. A. at Arion Hall, Holland Station, Saturday, February 10. This affair is becoming known as the principal social event of the winter season and is largely attended and looked forward to by the entire winter colony.
An entertainment and supper was given by the junior class of the Y. M. H. A., Saturday evening, December 30. A large gathering took advantage of the opportunity to note the progress made by this class in this the first year of its existence and offer their congratulations and well wishes.
The annual election was held at Temple of Israel, on Tuesday, December 26, and the following officers were elected for the year 1912: William Weiner, president; Joseph Weiner, vice-president; Simon Tanhauser, treasurer; Solomon Gottlieb, recording secretary; Emanuel White, financial secretary; Jack Harris, sergeant-at-arms. Trustees: Abraham Goldberg, Edward Edelstein and Walter Tanhauser. A board of directors for the junior class was appointed, consisting of William Weiner, Solomon Gottlieb and Emanuel White. The Y. M. H. A. has had a very prosperous year both socially and in the athletic field, where it has made a name for itself. A branch reading-room was recently opened and the extension of its activities to the neighboring villages is contemplated.

Rockaway Beach Y. W. H. A.
Miss Rose Seidenberg was unanimously elected to the presidency of the Y. W. H. A., of Rockaway Beach, the following officers being elected to support her: Vice-president, Miss Florence Dreyfuss; secretary, Miss Isabel Bain; treasurer, Miss Hanah Goldberg; conductress, Miss Yetta Paul. Trustees: Misses Gladys Adler, Rose Waldvogel and Elizabeth Waldvogel.

Ladies' League of Peoples' Temple.
The Ladies' League of the Peoples' Temple celebrated their first anniversary by giving a theatre party and luncheon on Thursday, December 28. Mrs. N. Flanter, the recording secretary of the league, and the chairman of the affair, acted as the toastmaster, and introduced the president of the league, Mrs. M. A. Wagner, who welcomed the ladies in appropriate terms. At the special request of the members, Mrs. Wagner read her very able report which she had given at the December meeting, mentioning the many activities of the year, the various ladies who had aided her, crediting her competent staff of officers for their very fine work, and thanking all the many friends of the league on its splendid showing in this, their first and strenuous year.

Dr. Sidney Goldstein, rabbi of the Peoples' Temple, in the name of the league, presented Mrs. Wagner with a beautifully cut silver cake basket, as a personal gift of the love felt for her by the members of the league, lauding Mrs. Wagner's many sterling qualities.
The officers for 1912 are: President Mrs. M. A. Wagner; vice-president, Mrs. L. Moses; treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Ruben; financial secretary, Mrs. Ben Cohen; recording secretary, Mrs. N. Flanter; trustees, Mrs. M. Quitann, Mrs. M. Keller, Mrs. D. Weigel, Mrs. Lawrence Levy, Mrs. Gus. Duschnes, Mrs. Eli Steinhilmer, Mrs. Sturz.

Young Men's Social Club.
The above named club will hold its first novelty Japanese afternoon dance on Sunday afternoon, January 14, at the Imperial, Fulton street, corner Red Hook lane.
A leap year ball will be held on February 29 at the same place.

The Civic Forum.
On Sunday evening, January 7, Frank Stephens, founder of the Socialist Colony at Arden, Delaware, will speak on "Art and Social Life," under the auspices of the Civic Forum of the Kaplan School, in the auditorium of the Kaplan School Building, 1731 Pitkin avenue, Brooklyn. On the following Sunday, Prof Isaac Franklin Russell, Chief Justice of the Court of Special Sessions, will speak on "American Ideals." Discussions are allowed at the close of each lecture. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Ladies' Society Benos Zion.
At the last meeting of the Ladies' Society Benos Zion, at the vestry room of the Eighth Avenue Temple, the officers and directresses for the ensuing term were installed by Mrs. Fanny Pragers, whose address was most impressive and eloquent. The following are the officers: President, Miss Leina Goldschmidt; vice-president, Mrs. Rachel Frank; treasurer, Mrs. Regina Altheimer; financial secretary, Miss Carrie Altscheuler; recording secretary, Mrs. Dora Wolfe; chairlady of Benevolent Fund, Mrs. Lillie Weill; chairlady of Social Committee, Mrs. Sarah Eiseman. Directresses: Mrs. Gussie Cohen, Mrs. Sophie Mayer, Mrs. Regina Altheimer, Mrs. Rose Brandenberger, Mrs. Bertha Wolfe, Mrs. Stella Manheimer, Mrs. Sarah Well, Mrs. Sarah Eiseman, Miss Lina Goldschmidt, Mrs. Rachel Frank, Mrs. Emma Lewis, Mrs. Carrie Marx, Mrs. Lillie Weill. Conductresses: Mrs. Beckie S. Mayer, Mrs. Ray Cantor, Physician, Dr. Jos. N. Goldschmidt.
Rabbi Alex. Lyons, who addresses the meeting in regard to the Consumptive's Jewish Aid Society, was unanimously elected an honorary member of the society.

At the Montauk Theatre next week, Klaw & Erlanger will present under the direction of Mr. Joseph Brooks, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson. Refreshing as the breeze that plays over a Maine meadow in June, and wafts the perfume to the passerby, is the story told in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." And withal there is a seriousness of purpose and an engendered thoughtfulness about the comedy that strike their lessons deep into the hearts of those that see the play. The cast is the same which achieved its triumph at the Republic Theatre, Manhattan, last season. Edith Tallaferro is the fascinating Rebecca and among her companions are Archie Boyd, Sam Colt, Edwin Smedley, Fayward Ginn, Marie L. Day, Ada Deaves, Eliza Glassford, Violet Fortescue, Edna Flugarth, Lella Frost, Violet and Clara Mersereau.

"The Bird of Paradise," Richard Walton Tully's new play, comes to Daly's Theatre for an indefinite engagement, beginning on Monday, January 8, under the management of Oliver Morosco. Mr. Tully has chosen an unusual and unexploited locale for his play. The scenes are all laid in Hawaii. There are three acts and five scenes. The properties are imported from Hawaii. The cast includes Guy Bates Post, Theodore Roberts, Lewis S. Stone, Albert Perry, Robert Harrison, W. J. Constantine, Herbert Farjeon, Clyde Crawford, Van Rensselaer Townsend, Laurette Taylor, Pamela Gaythorne, Ida Waterman, Jane Meredith, Esther Banks, Julia Nagi and Virginia Reynolds.

Lorber on Broadway.
Opposite the Metropolitan Opera House, between Thirty-ninth street and Fortieth street, there has been erected a three story building, built for and occupied by Lorber's restaurant. What magic and joy are in that name! "Lorber, the East Side Sherry," on Broadway, the first of his tribe to pave the way amidst the lobster palaces of the renowned theatrical and hotel district, for our people to find a place that caters to them in their own style. What a revolution for Broadway? Of course, the "great white way" having nearly every other kind of eating place known to the civilized world, from the beef and beans variety, to the most elaborate shore dinners; where the college student may find a vegetarian establishment revealed in Greek letters, and where the French table d'hote and the Italian "dinner with wine" get into an Irish stew to determine the nationality of the chef or the place, it seems quite proper that the Jews should have one of their own, considering that there are so many of them here, and coming all the time from every corner of the globe and every other part of the United States to "head for Broadway" just as soon as they "land" or "arrive."

Adolf Lorber knows this as well as anybody else, and for years it has been his ambition to open on Broadway, and now that it is a reality he has the best wishes of the community, and that means almost the entire population, for there is scarcely a man or woman in the metropolitan district who does not know or who has not dined at Lorber's in Grand street.

ADOLF LORBER.

Having dined there, it is needless to say much about it, further than to record it in history that it was the first establishment with Broadway trimmings, to be opened on the East Side, and it attracted people from every part of Greater New York, because Lorber gave the most and best for the money, and gave it in an up to date place, although in an old section of the city.
And just as Lorber's became famous for these reasons in Grand street, it will be even more renowned on Broadway because it is the place of all places where men of exceptional ability and prestige may succeed and become famous.
Adolf Lorber has already tasted of the sweets of glory, and now in the heyday of his career he has chosen to blossom forth on Broadway to compete with others as famous as himself, longer entrenched and where Lorber's energy, enterprise and resources will be tested in meeting his peers. His welcome is assured, even among his competitors, for hath he not his friends, the yeomanry, with him, and will he not enter, with his guards bearing a Hungarian goulash shield, with the pot roast battalions carrying spears engraved with the insignia of the order of Gefuele Fish?
Surely a valuable acquisition to Broadway, where they always wanted it, anyway, and didn't know how or where to get it. However, that is all over now, and Broadway has come into its own, thanks to Adolf Lorber, who has been in the business ever since he reached his twelfth year, and he is still a very young man, as his photograph reproduced above shows.

Annual Meeting Central Board of Jewish Education.
Forty delegates from various Talmud Torahs attended the annual meeting of the Central Board of Jewish Education on Monday afternoon at the Machazekel Talmud Torah, 225 East Broadway. The principal business was the acting on a proposition to appoint a Committee of Seven to confer with a similar committee from the Kehillah's Bureau of Education in order to devise a plan for uniting the two organizations. After heated discussion participated in by Messrs. Kubersky, Kaplan, Magil, Bublik, Allen, Friedlander, Ginsberg, Isaacson and Tamor, the motion was overwhelmingly defeated. It was decided to amend the constitution and appoint an Executive Board of fifteen—one member from each school—to meet every other month.
Dr. J. I. Bluestone presided during the meeting, and the report of the secretary, Mr. Samuel P. Abelow, showed that, although active, the society's work was just beginning.
The following officers were elected: Dr. J. I. Bluestone, president; H. B. Isaacson, first vice-president; A. I. Tamor, second vice-president; J. Kafelowitz, treasurer; Samuel P. Abelow, secretary, and A. Fleishman, Hebrew secretary.

Norfolk, Va.
A wedding of unusual brilliance was that of Miss Lena Banks to Mr. Alfred Schreier, at the Ghent Club, on Sunday, December 24, Rabbi L. Goldberg, of Beth-El Congregation, officiating. Mr. B. A. Banks was the best man, Miss Rida Schreier maid of honor, and Messrs. Ben. Metzger, Alfred Robinson and Dave Spiegle the ushers. A wedding dinner followed. Mr. M. Umstadter presided over the festive board, and addresses of felicitation were made by Mr. Eugene Schreier, the groom's father, Mr. Moe Levy and Mr. B. A. Banks. A poem, "The Wedding Guest," composed especially for the occasion by Mr. George F. Vlett, elicited the applause of all present.

Lakewood, N. J.

CHILDREN'S PAGE.

The Faithful Clerk.

Dear Children: Rabban Gamliel also used to teach the following maxim: "Do God's will as though it were your own and you will be worthy of having Him fulfill your will as though it were His. Resign your will for the sake of Him and you will be worthy of having Him cause others to abandon their will for the sake of yours."

The Dubner Maggid, of blessed memory, said that this maxim can be applied to those who were sinful and repented of their sins! they are urged to fulfill God's commandments with the same eagerness with which they formerly committed their sins, and he explains it by the following story.

A rich merchant had in his employ a clerk who served him very faithfully and with great diligence. It happened during that time that a great merchant met with reverses and, having become very poor, was compelled to look for employment as a clerk in some mercantile establishment.

The rich merchant, learning of this case, sent for the man, and took him in his employ at a salary double the amount that he was paying his former faithful clerk.

People asked him why it was that he paid his new clerk twice as much as his old faithful clerk; he answered them as follows: It is true that my old clerk serves me very faithfully, but you must know that there is a great difference between a clerk who serves his employer and a merchant who works in his own business. The clerk, although he is faithful to his employer and does his work well, will not do a bit more than is required of him, he will not seek to promote his employer's interests by all kinds of means in order that the business shall prosper, because he does nothing for his employer from his own free will, but because he is compelled to do it; not so the ex-merchant, he attends to my business in an entirely different manner, he works for me with the same zeal as he worked in his own business; he is so absorbed in the work that he does not care to eat or drink, he is indifferent to hunger or thirst, cold or heat, he attends to my business in the same deliberate and calculating manner that he attended to his own; ever studying how to increase the business—whether he talks to merchants, or whether he is by himself, even when he eats his dinner, he is only thinking of the business, perhaps he can improve it in this manner, perhaps in that manner, until he hits upon a plan whereby the business can yield greater profits and assume larger proportions, thus, you can see that such an employe will serve me faithfully, his services will be far superior to those of the mere clerk who serves a master, for he will give me the same services that he used to serve himself with never having a master."

Dear children, the above story typifies the ever righteous man, and the man who has sinned and repented whom it wishes to encourage. Faithful as the ever righteous man is to the worship of God, he cannot worship him with the same passionate ardor with which the sinner worships himself when he gratifies his passions—but that sinner, when he repents, and resolves to worship God with all his heart, truly worships Him with the same passionate ardor with which he formerly worshiped himself.

Formerly he was in business for himself he dealt with his passion. If he shall be told that he ought to spend a winter night in the study of Torah, it will be easy for him to do so, for he knows how many nights he did not sleep for the sake of the card game, he also remembers how diligently he was engaged in seeking to fulfill his evil desires—so that now—that he has turned to the Holy One, blessed be He, and repented for the love of God, he offers to worship Him with all his heart, with the same diligence and cunning that he made use of when serving his evil imagination—this is what the Sage meant by his maxim, "Do God's will with the same powers and contrivances that you have employed when fulfilling your own will."

And when the Penitent attains that degree, he ranks higher than the righteous one who does not know the taste of sin. Dear children, although this maxim as above explained gives great encouragement to the sinner who has repented, do not say "I will sin and I will repent," for such a one is never given a chance to repent, while you are young you can make it your ambition to live a life that is free from sin and God will help you in your noble resolve.

He—Our love is opposed, and we are destined to be unhappy all our lives. Let's commit suicide and die together. She—All right, darling. I couldn't live without you. He—How shall we do it? She—Don't you think ice-cream ptomaines would be about the quickest way?—Burlington News.

Chief Counsel—The first thing to do is to get at the root of this trouble. Associate Counsel—The root of the trouble is the late Mr. Bigwad's fortune.

Chief Counsel—Exactly; and we must get at it.—New York Tribune. "Mr. Floorwalker, I wish you would give me a clerk who can show me what I want!" "And what do you want, madam?" "How do I know until I have looked?"—Houston Post.

Ethel—Their parents made the match, I believe. Arthur—I thought they opposed it? Ethel—Yes; that's how they made it.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Speaking truth is like writing fair, and comes only by practice. It is less a matter of will than of habit, and I doubt if any occasion can be trivial which permits the practice and formation of such a habit.—Ruskin.

CONUNDRUMS. Why do so many people in China travel on foot? Because there is but one Cochin China (coach in China). When is a cane-bottomed chair like a bill? When you reseal (receipt) it. What fruit is on a cent? A date. What is the difference between a chicken who can't hold its head up and seven days? One is a weak one and the other is one week. What gentlemen are like policemen? Those that spend most of their time at the club. What bird is rude? The mocking bird.

WEINGART INSTITUTE

A Model Summer Vacation School for Boys

HIGHMOUNT, CATSKILL MTS., N. Y. The oldest, best equipped, and most successful institution of its kind in this country. Of the hundred pupils registered in 1910, only 37 per cent. were new, while 63 per cent. were spending their second, third, fourth or fifth summer at the school, a conclusive proof of its solidity and stability. Applications for the summer of 1912 should be addressed to S. Weingart, 236 West 138th St., New York.

SCHROON LAKE CAMP

ADIRONDACK MOUNTAINS.

A Summer School for Boys Seventh Season Opens June 27, 1912.

FOR A TERM OF TEN WEEKS

This camp is perfectly equipped with all modern improvements. A complete system of sanitation, pure water supply and a resident physician insure the comfort and health of the campers. The most rigid supervision is exercised during play hours, and every precaution taken to safeguard the pupils during bathing and rowing periods. Option of room or tent.

Her Brother the Doctor
 there she was taken by her parents, but there was little to be done, for she herself made absolutely no attempt to combat the disease. She took the prescribed medicines as a matter of course, but it had the same effect as the pouring of oil would have upon a machine without the master hand to guide it. The pallid face, the sickly smile, the glassy and meaningless stare had already set its stamp.

It was about this time that Dr. Leo Lewin forgot his title for a day and thought he would inquire about the health of his sister, even though it belittled his dignity to go again to the Allen street quarters. But when he learned of Sarah's condition, for the first time remorse smote him, and he made a hasty trip to Denver.

One night Reb Lewin and his wife were hastily called to their daughter's bedside. She had had an exceedingly bad night; even the morning brought no relief. Her spasmodic coughing racked her whole frame, but in the short intervals that it ceased she smiled. The doctor in attendance wondered at her strength, yet gravely shook his head. He had seen such a case before, and knew its portents. Dr. Lewin had made inquiries and learned of his sister's whereabouts, and just at this moment made his appearance.

"Sarah!" he cried, pushing doctor and parents aside, falling on his knees and catching hold of her limp hand.
 "Leo!" she murmured, trying to smile. "Sit me up—sit me up," she whispered. Leo wept hysterically. The physician and parents propped her up with pillows to a sitting posture.
 "Let me introduce you," she whispered, with an attempted smile, addressing her attending physician, "let me introduce you to my brother, the doctor." A coughing fit overcame her. Madly she clutched at her throat to breathe. A gasp, a gurgle, and Sarah fell back lifeless upon the bed. She had played the game, and lost.
