THE BA'L MAGIHA

By H. S. STOLLNITZ, Litt. D.

The "Ba'l Magiha" rose exceptionally early on the morning after the exciting episode. He had neither the inclination nor the patience to work or to read. He went into the garden, which was said to be one of the most beautiful of the private parks in Warsaw. As he strolled leisurely about his perturbed mind gradually became calmed by the soothing influence of the beautiful scenery and the fragrance of the trees and flowers. He turned abruptly into a path lined on either side by a flowering hedge and had proceeded but a short distance when he came face to face with the object of his thoughts. Seeing his embarrassment Miss Chinka charmingly remarked: "I hope I did not frighten you, Mr. Pogoda." Bowing low, he said: "Who would not be startled if an angel from heaven were suddenly to descend on him? It is the unexpected pleasure of meeting you here that did startle me, I confess." She smiled and asked, "What brings you here at such an early hour?" "My love for nature and the admiration of your beautiful garden, Miss Perlmutter." "Ah, I am glad to hear that," she answered appreciatively. "My love for Mother Nature is so limitless that the praise of her sounds to me like sweet music." "That prompts me, then, to repeat that I am a lover of nature and her beauties." She laughed and said: "Yes, Mr. Pogoda, nature is beautiful and kind. I never could conceive how one could help loving kind Mother nature. How can one love aught else if one doesn't love her? I pass a deal of my time here, but I love still more to saunter over hill and dale, across meadow and orchard and to pasture my soul on the sweet song of the birds and the enchanting general aspect of nature's beauty, which breaks in everywhere."

"I fully agree with you, Miss Perlmutter. Is there, for instance, any musical instrument in existence constructed by the skillful human hand the sound of which possesses the power to impress us and to enchant our souls in the same manner as does the sweet voice of nature, reproduced by the song of the bird or by the pathetic singing of the human voice? I heard you sing last night 'Si j'étais Papillon.' It called forth in my mind an association of ideas. I had heard it several times since I left la belle Paris five years ago, but not as you interpreted it. Your rendition of this chansonette stands comparison with that of Mademoiselle Ramon of whom you have no doubt heard. It was her favorite encore." "You sure, Mademoiselle Perlmutter." He continued in French: "Another instance, if you will permit me." "Pro-

the genius, is but an imitation of nature. How we admire a masterpiece of a Rembrandt, a Dore, an Albrecht are confronted by the original, by sweet Mother Nature herself. I saw your portrait several times. It is a fine piece d'art. I admired it." "The work?" interrupted Chinka mischievously. "The production, very much, but now that I am vouchsafed the pleasure of seeing the original—" "I would like to know more about Paris and Rome," she quickly interposed. "I have read about those wonderful cities extensively, but the description by one who has been there should come nearer the original." "It will afford me pleasure, Miss Perlmutter."

At this point they were interrupted by the ringing of the breakfast bell. Reb Kalmen was about to enter his carriage when Reb Mannes Sokolski came. "Anything of importance, Reb Mannes? If not, come with me and we will chat on our way to Praga (Warsaw's most prominent suburb across the Weichsel)." Reb Mannes hesitated. It had been his intention to see Reb Moische, as he had declared to his wife the previous evening, but after a moment's reflection he turned and joined Reb Kalmen. "How are the 'Seforim' progressing?" he asked. "Fine! I never would have believed I could have derived so much pleasure from this event of my life. It reminds me of my gardener, who, so to say, can hear the flowers grow and with glee reports to me the appearance of new buds on the plants." Our "Torah" the "Tree of Life" should give the orchardist—the Jew, its keeper—joy when he sees its progress." After a few moments silence Reb Kalmen began: "By the way, Reb Mannes, the young 'Ba'l Magiha' must be an exceptional chap. My Chinka told me that he is a highly educated and cultured fellow. She cannot laud him enough. Do you know him well?" "I only know of him, and that as a fine 'Ba'l Magiha' only." The subject was dropped.

Yossel reported to Pinsker hastily and in brief of his enjoyable experience. Returning about noon Reb Mannes went to the room where Reb Moische was at work. His face was drawn and he evinced unusual nervousness. After the usual greeting Reb Mannes asked his friend rather searchingly to whom Yossel was engaged. Very nearly came one of the spells, but supported by Yossel's episode, he answered that Pogoda was as good as engaged, but as he wished to keep it a secret he was not at liberty to mention the name of flatter me, Mr. Pogoda. I envy your having been in Paris. Alor vous comprenez le Francais?" "Mais bien ceed, Mr. Pogoda." "Art—most skillful art and even the greatest production of the brain and heart of

LEON ROSENHEK

A year ago—at the age of twenty-six—Leon Rosenhek became one of the first conductors of the Royal Opera in Munich. What this means, can only be understood, when one knows the conditions prevailing in the lyric theatres of the Continent, with the keen competition for such positions, to obtain which men are often willing to give their services without compensation. Sometimes, indeed, young artists pay for the privilege of conducting at prominent musical centers. But great talent is usually apt to find its way to the top, sooner or later. In the case of Leon Rosenhek, it was quite soon. A pianist of quite unusual attainments, the lamented Felix Mottle recognized his ability, and engaged him as co-repetitor. Except for some slight experience as conductor of comic operas in minor Austrian theatres, Mr. Rosenhek's familiarity with the technic of his calling was not great, and when he made his debut here, where Herrman Levi and Felix Mottle had been among his predecessors, the critics were astounded at his temerity and did not hesitate to say so. But he "made good" from the start, and no task proved too difficult. Thus in one week he conducted, without a rehearsal, "Samson and Delliak," "Königskinden," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci" and Mozart's "Entführung."

Our young coreligionist was born in Bucharest twenty-seven years ago, but has lived in Vienna since a child. Among his teachers were Epstein, Busoni and Mandyczewski. When he and Arthur Rosenstein were both "coaches" at the opera, poor Mottle used to allude to them as "his two roses." J. M.

the young lady. "But," he added, "it will probably be but a short time until every one will know it."

Returning home Reb Mannes told his wife that his trust in his friend Reb Moishele was unshaken, and although the whole affair seemed strange, he was sure it would all be satisfactorily explained in due time. Well aware of her gossipy proclivity he enjoined his spouse to be on her guard. Sokolsky was of a mild nature, but once his ire was aroused he could be very angry. Mrs. Sokolsky knew this. She saw that her husband was in earnest and was governed by it.

Tseerl, the philosopher, who usually was not afraid to cope with any problem, had to confess to herself that for once she was at a loss to find the means to extricate herself from the difficulty into which she had precipitated herself. She felt sorry for her husband, also for the "Ba'l Magiha," but not suffering from a lack of self-love, foremost was the thought of herself. Her satisfaction would beggar all telling when the two gentlemen came especially to report to her the happy turn in the love affairs of Yossel Pogoda. She had feared they had come to receive her counsel. On hearing the happy tidings she exclaimed: "There is at least one man who knows how to help himself in an intricate case. In the excitement Tseerl was not even asked upon what course she had decided, and she was genuinely pleased.

Henceforth Miss Perlmutter and Mr. Pogoda met often in the garden. In his own way he told her of the beauties of the French capital, the Tuilleries Jardin des Plantes, Notre Dame de Paris, Palais Justice, Hotel des Invalides and many other prominent places of note. Once they discussed Rome, the Vatican, the Quirinal, the catacombs, etc. At another time music was the topic, and one morning they exchanged thoughts on poetry. Yossel's love for Chinka grew day by day. He felt that she enjoyed his company, which was a good omen. Their acquaintance soon took the shape of friendship, the precursor of love. After again discussing poesy one evening he went to his room and poured out his love-intoxicated soul in the following:

QUERY.

If I should strike the silver chime,
And sing to thee in tender rhyme,
Wouldst thou call it a crime
To sing to thee I love thee?

If I could find some mystic chord
That speaks to thee in heartfelt word,
And sing as thou hast never heard,
Wouldst call it wrong to love thee?

Truth and love thou canst not tire,
To love them both is my desire;
For I am warmed by love's own fire,
Hear me! I love thee!

Thy sweetness with my strength
should twine,
Take rugged oak and clinging vine;
Wilt thou not then in truth be mine,
And say at last I love thee?

Yossel's agitated state of mind the next morning did not escape Miss Chinka. When two souls are in sympathy one is easily influenced by the condition of mind of the other. Contagion had its play, and the young lady tried in vain to ward off its attack. She was pleased to take up the conversation where they had left off the previous evening—poetry—Schiller. When Miss Perlmutter said that Schiller was her favorite poet, Yossel, in a rather trembling voice, remarked that there was much depth to "Wenn das Strenge mit dem Zarten, Vereint sich paarten," to which Chinka lowered her eyes and a blush suffused her cheeks. She welcomed the ringing of the breakfast bell, and as they turned to enter the house Yossel asked if he might hand her something that he had written. She hesitated a moment, then tremblingly held out her hand in which he placed his verses. For several days Chinka did not come to the garden, and the "Ba'l Magiha" was in torturing suspense. Many were the thoughts which crowded his feverish brain. He prayed for a turn—good or ill—for the suspense became unendurable. One morning he went to the garden earlier than usual and was surprised when the old gardener handed him an envelope bearing her monogram. He could scarcely control himself sufficiently to open it. It contained a neat card on which was penned:

"Pure love is sublime—
To love is never a crime."

Thenceforth the "Ba'l Magiha" had smooth sailing so far as Miss Chinka was concerned. At first Reb Kalmen opposed their union, but when Yossel promised to give up his profession of "Ba'l Magiha" and go to Paris to study art, for which it was known he possessed unusual talent, the father gave his consent.

A double celebration took place at the mansion of Reb Kalmen Perlmutter in honor of the "Seeyoom" (conclusion of the scrolls) and the engagement of beautiful and charming Chinka to Yossel, the celebrated "Ba'l Magiha."

THE CURSE OF THE AGE

BY EMILERNESTINA.

Some one has said that with every blessing there comes a little curse. There is more truth in this than the average man might be disposed to admit at first glance.

The sacrifice that Jewish parents are ready to undergo for their children has become proverbial. Lovely as this quality of our elders is, it gives rise to a little something which is far from what one could desire. There springs up in the mother or father a feeling that their child, with his education, has risen to be infinitely superior to his surroundings. Ambition takes a secure place in the heart of the elders, and they begin to demand an empire for their son. Therein lies the tragedy. Could they but content themselves with a decided social improvement as a result of their exertions and their son's labors, all would be well. When, however, the demand is for a revolutionary change, the result more often than not, is additional sorrow to the mother, to the father, and especially to the son.

This was brought home in all its force to me recently when a friend of mine came to me to relate his pathetic story.

Like so many of his class, his parents were in moderate circumstances. This, however, merely acted as an incentive on their part to give their son the best education there was to be had. The boy worked hard, and made quite a record for himself. But for every additional scholastic success of their son, an immoderate amount of vanity and ambition took hold of the parents. They began to soar beyond all reasonable bounds. They built airy castles of the most stupendous size.

In the meantime the son, with Nature in full activity, was not passive. He fell in love with his friend's sister, as charming a girl as one can well wish for. But his friend's family had the misfortune to be of the same station in life as his own—and therein lay the tragedy.

Oh, if we could but all drink Nordau to the very brim!

"List, that girl was the sweetest creature you've ever set eyes on. It wasn't the look that counted for very much, though there was an abundance of that; she had those many, many qualities that go to make up the ideal woman in the eyes of an intelligent young man. List, I loved her with all the force of my nature. She was worthy of the love of any man."

"That love was returned in time, and with a sincerity and affection fully equal to mine."

"But I loved with empty pockets, and my girl was not in a position to fill them."

"We were both willing to wait. Better days were surely in store for me. And then there could be the cozy little home, with two loving hearts, instead of the sumptuous one occupied by a husband and wife delightfully indifferent to one another."

"But my folks took matters into their own hands. The silly little fellow. In love! He knows much about love. A passing fancy. This one to-day, that one to-morrow. The idea of running away with the first girl he meets. Plenty such, plenty such—and with far more material accompanying them."

"I pleaded, I remonstrated, I raged. At one time they would yield a little, but soon again they became as adamant as ever."

"You've got to give up that girl, you crazy boy. She's not for you and you're not for her."

"Why? Why?"

"You haven't a penny to your name, and you can't make many pennies for a long time to come. But you've got to live according to the station you've reached. How will you do it? I have nothing against the girl. The girl is fine, and all that. She would be very fine were you to be wealthy. But since you're not she's not for you."

"It's money that you want me to marry."

"You talk like a child. I want you to marry in such a way as to give you the maximum of happiness. What other interest can I have? True, I want you to marry a wealthy girl; but am I thrusting any wealthy girl on you? Aren't there any desirable ones among the rich classes?"

"My father finally took the matter into his own hands, and settled it in his own way with the girl's parents. Ha, how I stormed! Never again would I speak to my parents.

"But, of course, I did—and soon after. After all, my folks were to me the dearest people on earth. Did they do this all with the object of harming me? Was there the slightest selfish motive in their action? Of course not! Their only concern was their son's welfare, and they took the course which they felt assured would be the only one to assure their son's happiness.

"But looking at it from a more impartial view, is theirs the correct one?"

Do you think so, reader? As for me, I confess my whole sympathy is with my friend and with his views rather than with that of his parents. Two faithful hearts will never go astray, and they will ultimately surmount all obstacles.

The great curse of our age lies in its loveless marriages—in marriages of convenience.

Our parents, with the best intentions in the world, are the most ready to countenance these.

And the result? Misery to the man; misery to the woman; misery to all concerned.

Ye mothers and fathers! Encourage your daughter to marry an honest but poor man when she is in love with him. Do not prevent your son to take unto himself a wife whose only fault is that she comes from lowly stock.

Lord George Gordon and His Conversion to Judaism.

At a recent meeting of the London Jewish Historical Society, Mr. Israel Solomons read a paper on "Lord George Gordon's Conversion to Judaism."

Mr. Solomons commenced by giving an account of the early career of Lord George Gordon, who was born in London in 1751. He traced the gradual growth of his love of freedom and hostility to Catholicism that led to his being chosen President of the Protestant Association, which organized an extraordinary mass meeting on June 2, 1790, in St. George's Fields, Southwark, in opposition to the Catholic Disabilities Relief Bill. The numbers attending this meeting were variously estimated at from 40,000 to 60,000. Many of the people wore blue cockades, and cried "No Popery!" This remarkable meeting was witnessed by a Jew, named Nathan Henry, outside whose house the meeting had been convened. Nathan Henry was the great grandfather of the Rev. Morris Joseph, and he opened in Market street the first synagogue on the Surrey side of the river. The meeting ultimately led to very serious riots. Gordon was arrested on a charge of high treason, and after an imprisonment of eight months, was acquitted. Mr. Solomons quoted several contemporary descriptions of Gordon. After his release Gordon bent his energies to the overthrow of Catholic influence in France and other countries. In 1787 he was put on trial for two libel actions, one on the judges and the other on the moral and political conduct of the Queen of France. He was found guilty. He fled to Amsterdam, but at the instigation of the French Ambassador he was expelled, returned to England, and took refuge in Birmingham where he adopted Judaism.

Mr. Solomons then discussed Lord George Gordon's relations with the Jews prior to his conversion. In a letter which he had written to the Emperor Joseph of Austria in 1775, he mentioned that he had had the honor to address three different letters to Elias Lindo, of the Spanish and Portuguese Jews, and Nathan Solomon, of the German and Dutch Jews. Elias Lindo, who died in 1785, was Parnass of the Bevis Marks Synagogue, and among his descendants might be numbered Mr. Covingsby Disraeli, Sir Vincent Caillard, the expert on Egyptian finances, Alfred Fernandez Yarrow, the shipbuilder and philanthropist, and Mr. M. A. N. Lindo, President of the Spanish and Portuguese Jewish Board of Guardians. Nathan Solomon was the lay head of the New Synagogue and he became the partner of Abraham Goldsmid after the death of his brother, Benjamin Goldsmid. A printed folio broadside in double columns, dated 1783, preserved in the British Museum, portrayed Gordon's interest in and attraction to the Jewish people. The Hebrew characters proved that at this early date he was no stranger to the holy tongue. Gordon also wrote a variety of pamphlets upon finance, which he distributed among the Jews in England and Holland.

Mr. Solomons then discussed the actual date of Lord George Gordon's conversion, concerning which the authorities conflicted. There was no doubt that he visited the Hambro Synagogue, was called to the Law, and received a benediction, but the minute book relating to this historic event was lost. Most of the contemporary documents fixed Gordon's conversion in the year 1787. Whatever the reasons for his conversion, Gordon certainly regarded his change of faith in a very serious light, and wrote a letter to Rabbi Tevele Schiff, of Duke Street Synagogue, praying to be received into the Jewish fold. Dr. Marcus Nathan Adler, who was the great nephew of Rabbi Tevele Schiff, assured his son, the late Dr. Hermann Adler, that he had actually seen the correspondence, but unfortunately the whereabouts of these documents was unknown. The Rabbi declined to comply with Gordon's demand. The proposal was probably made before Gordon's trial in 1788. Gordon was arrested in Birmingham on September 7, 1787, and there were several contemporary accounts of the incident. All attested the fact that Gordon was treated with great respect by the local Jews, that he affected the Jewish habit, and wore a long beard. Gordon insisted that the journey to London be arranged in such a manner that he would not be compelled to ride on the Sabbath, and Kosher food was prepared for the journey. While in prison he was most punctilious in his Jewish religious observance, being visited by a number of Jews for the purposes of worship.

A Jew in necessitous circumstances, named Angel Lyon, desired a personal interview with Lord George Gordon with the object of obtaining relief. As he was beardless, the turnkeys at the prison, in deference to Gordon's wishes, declined to admit him. This led to a correspondence between Lyon and Gordon which was issued in pamphlet form. The publication was without name of the place or date, and besides his own copy the only other of which he had heard was in the collection of the late Asher I. Myers. In his letter Gordon gave his reasons for refusing to have anything to do with Jews who shaved their faces. Mr. Solomons read some amusing doggerel verses which Lord George Gordon's conversion called forth. In 1793 Gordon's sentence expired, but he was required to appear before the court to find sureties for his future good behavior. He had an altercation with the judges in reference to the removal of his hat. Unable to find the sureties required (Gordon suggested two poor Polish Jews), he was returned to prison, where he died on the 8th of November, 1793, at the age of forty-two, his last moments being embittered by the knowledge that he could not be buried among the Jews. His remains were interred on November 9th with the utmost privacy in a vault in St. James' Burial Ground in the Hampstead Road. Mr. Solomons quoted the concluding passage of one of Gordon's biographies: "Thus lived and thus died Lord George Gordon, the enemy of tyrants, and the friend of the oppressed, a man of the strictest virtue, the greatest philanthropy and the most unsullied honor." He concluded by saying that had Lord George Gordon lived in this generation he would not have perished miserably in a prisoner's cell. He would have been regarded as a great and noble character and accorded the honor he merited.

In the Galician town, Broczyn, a strike of scholars has been going on for nearly two years. It arose from the fact that one day crosses were placed in all the classrooms of the elementary school, notwithstanding the fact that nearly 90 per cent. of the pupils are Jews, and that the school is maintained by the municipality. The Jewish pupils replied to this measure by a strike, which was supported by a protest of the parents.

According to a semi-official message, the Russian Ministry of Justice has ordered the trial of Bellis, who is charged at Kieff with the murder of Yuschinski, to be held in the course of the present month, or early in July. The "Russkaya Molva" has affirmed that the public prosecutor would uphold the theory of ritual murder. It was added that it had not yet been decided whether the trial would be held in public or behind closed doors.

The new $200,000 home of the Colored Young Men's Christian Association, at Chicago, Ill., was dedicated June 15, Mr. Julius Rosenwald delivering the principal address. A gift of $25,000 from Mr. Rosenwald was the nucleus of the building fund, and in explaining how he, a Jew, was asked to give money to promote the Christian religion Mr. Rosenwald said, "I thought as long as I was going to give money to Africans I would give it here where we have many negro citizens instead of to foreign missions."

The Dean of Canterbury, in an address to members of the Victoria Institute last week, made a reply to recent English, German and American criticisms on the Old Testament. It was surprising, he said, that the modern critics should not realize that the theory they were asserting was absolutely destructive of the whole Jewish religion, and he believed himself that it was also incompatible with the logical defense of the Christian religion, though this consequence was denied by its adherents. He wondered that Jewish authorities had not been more prominent in resisting theories so destructive to their position.

Of the eighty-four men who were graduated this year at the College of the City of New York, Morton Gottschall, 18 years old, was the youngest, and to him went the highest honors of the class. He received a "summa cum laude," the gold Pell medal given to the student who ranks highest in all the studies of the year, the General Tremain prize of one hundred and fifty dollars, gold medals in moral philosophy and history, the Prager memorial prize for English, the Ketchum prize in philosophy, the Steers prize in art and seven honorable mentions. His average for the four years of study is 93 per cent., the highest received in ten years.

Ex-Premier Clemenceau has just published a stirring article on the condition of the Roumanian Jews, "the last serfs still existing in Europe," as they were recently called by an Italian writer. Although, he says, they have now escaped from Turkish bondage, racial prejudice is so strong in the Balkans that the advantage of not being regularly slaughtered in the future is the principal benefit they reap from the change, which in every way is a change of masters only. "The Jewish Roumanian soldier who shed his blood on the field of battle is not allowed to enter a work-shop, because he is a foreigner. His children are not admitted to school, because they are also foreigners." Only the Jews of Dobroudja, annexed by Roumania in 1878, and of Sillistria, recently ceded by Bulgaria, are citizens in consequence of a special treaty.

"This," continues M. Clemenceau, "is despite the fact that the Israelite inhabitants of Roumania have always shown themselves perfectly loyal, and the development of the country's resources is largely due to their efforts." The writer concludes by saying that he has the original text of the laws bringing about this monstrous state of affairs, and will publish them if any denial of his statements appears in the press.

Albert Lucas Association. The annual meeting and installation of officers was held last Saturday evening at the temporary headquarters, 108 Second Avenue. Mr. Albert Lucas, the honorary president, conducted the ceremonies and installed the following officers: Conrad J. Saphier, president; Miss Augusta Wolf, first vice-president; Mrs. Leo Jacobs, second vice-president; Mr. Abraham Krumbain, treasurer; Mr. Charles Rosenzweig, financial secretary; Mr. Nathan Behrin, recording and corresponding secretary; Miss Rose Cohen, Miss Annie Goldberg; and Mr. Morris Meister, additional members of the executive committee.

Mr. Lucas paid a high tribute to Mr. Saphier, who has been a worker under Mr. Lucas for the past fifteen years. The policy of the association was outlined by Mr. Lucas as being for the spreading of orthodox Judaism by teaching and example. There was vocal and instrumental music, followed by refreshments and dancing.

To Aid Roumanian Jews. A number of gentlemen met at the Waldorf-Astoria on the 8th inst. for the purpose of enlisting aid for the Jews of Roumania. A permanent organization to be called The American Jewish Roumanian Emancipation Committee, has been formed, with Speaker Champ Clark of the House of Representatives as president; Frank Tilford, first vice-president; Edward Rudolph Ruskin, treasurer; and Edward Nolan, secretary and general director. Bainbridge Colby was made chairman of the executive committee; former Congressman William S. Bennet, chairman of the advisory committee; Congressman Walter M. Chandler, chairman of the committee on organization, and Congressman Francis Burton Harrison, chairman of the ways and means committee. Headquarters have been opened in the Hudson Terminal Building at 30 Church street.

Rabbi Heller in New York. Rabbi Nachman Heller is at present in New York city, supervising the final proofs of his Hebrew translation from the Aramaic notions of Daniel and Ezra. Rabbi Heller has been at work upon this volume for some time and it will be on the press early in the fall. Rabbi Heller has just concluded a successful lecture tour embracing the larger cities of Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Mr. Bernard J. Fox has obtained first place in Ireland at the Final Law Examinations held at King's Inn, Dublin. Mr. Fox was first in all subjects and received the Victoria Prize entitling him to rank as first student of the year. He also won several gold medals, the Plunkett prize for legal debate and the Lord Chancellor's prize for the best speaker of the year in legal and in general debate. In his first two years as a student Mr. Fox carried off all the medals and prizes except one which are open to Irish law students. Mr. Fox, who is a graduate of the National University of Ireland, and a member of the Civil Service, has had a distinguished collegiate career. He won an Intermediate Exhibition in the junior grade, and carried off the only medals offered by his schools, the Royal Academy, Belfast, and the Belfast Mercantile College. He was second in Ireland at the Second Division Examinations, and first in the United Kingdom at the London Post Office Examination. At Trinity College, Dublin, he was first of the King's Inn students at three successive examinations. Mr. Fox has always taken a deep interest in communal affairs, and is identified with almost all the local Jewish societies.

The question of the alleged excessive gambling among Jews has been raised from time to time in the community press here, and it has been a question discussed from time to time with the utmost seriousness by responsible members of the community. It is apparently agreed that the evil is worse than anything yet detailed in print. The Jewish Chronicle this week returns to the charges it has made before, and indicates that Hempstead, which is one of London's smarter suburbs, and which has a considerable leaven of Jews, is a particularly bad spot. The infection is not confined to the metropolis, however, as it declares that some of the Provincial Jewries reek with the disease. In its current issue the journal in question makes a startling announcement. It says with due seriousness that the time is fast coming when an end once and for all must be put to this infamy; when the surgeon's knife must, without hesitation, be applied to rooting out this social canker. In order to effect this the newspaper is the best and the surest means. To expose in detail the operations of these gambling hells, to print the addresses of houses which have been turned from the comfortable villa residences for which they were built into disgraceful dens of betting and card-playing, to publish the names of those who own them, and who are responsible for what goes on in them, and to send a copy of our paper to the authorities would quickly clear away a foul blot from Jewish society. To do this, would, we (Jewish Chronicle) have no doubt, provide for a first-class scandal, and except for this, it would have been done long ago. But the evil cannot be permitted to flourish by reason of the pain involved in its exposure. If the evil goes on then every other consideration must be made subservient to the essential necessity of strangling this hydra-headed monster which is wreaking such infinite misery in our midst.

The Michael S. Levy Memorial Building of the Baltimore (Md.) Jewish Educational Alliance, was dedicated on June 15. Governor Goldsborough making the principal address. The building, which is 55 by 116 feet, contains class rooms, meeting rooms and a roof garden, and is the gift of the children of the late Michael S. Levy, who in his life time was a well known philanthropist.

A remarkable instance of longevity is furnished in the case of Rabbi Z. Schreiber, of the Congregation B'nai Rabire, of New York city, who is 100 years old and abandoned a trip to Europe, not because he is too feeble, but

Mr. Nahum Sokolow, member of the Zionist Inner-Actions Comite, had a conference with Secretary of State Bryan, on June 14, at the State Department in Washington. The conference lasted for thirty minutes. Secretary Bryan expressed great interest in the work the Jews are doing for the development of Palestine. He said that the endeavors of the Jewish people to better their condition through their own efforts, had his sympathy and moral support. He asked a number of questions with regard to the strength of the Jewish population in Palestine, and was greatly impressed by the statistics of the progress of the Jewish agricultural colonies.

Another Jew Returned to the British House of Commons—His Extensive Interests—A Marconi Libel Action Which Godfrey Isaacs Wins—A Check to Anti-Semitism—Rembrandt's "Jewish Rabbi" Safe in London—Proposed Jewish Emigrants' Bank—Rev. I. Mattuck and His Liberal Jewish Utterances Obtain Wide Publicity.

London, June 13, 1913.

By the election of Samuel Samuel on June 12 as a member of the House of Commons, representing Wandsworth, a great London suburban constituency, the number of Jews in the House of Commons now reaches seventeen. Of these nine sit as Liberals and supporters of the government, and eight as supporters of the opposition, now usually called Unionists, but in older days known as Conservatives. Seventeen is, I think, a record number of Jews in the central legislative body of Great Britain. Whether or not the community benefits by this increase the fact remains that the increase is a strong indication of the steady advance of Jews in this country and the increasing respect with which they are regarded.

Samuel Samuel is a brother of Sir Marcus Samuel, and senior partner in the firm of Samuel & Co., bankers, general merchants and ship owners. He is well known in city circles, being a director of the Capital and Counties Bank, and one of the founders, with his brother, Sir Marcus Samuel, of the Standard Oil Company, the Shell Transport and Trading Company, of which he is a director and one of the managers. He is also a director of the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company, the United Kingdom Mutual Marine Steamship Assurance Company, the Standard Steamship Owners and Protection Indemnity Association, and is on the Executive Council of the Shipping Federation, which is the employers' association among ship owners and is mainly organized to keep up the ship-owners' end of the argument in the struggles with organized labor. Formerly he was one of his Majesty's lieutenants for the city of London.

Mr. Samuel is a vice-president of the Tariff Reform League (an organization established in this country seven or eight years ago to secure the abolition of free trade, and the substitution of protective tariffs), and one of the founders of the Yorkshire Tariff Reform League. He made his first entry into active political life in 1906, when he undertook a forlorn hope, and contested West Leeds against Herbert Gladstone. Undaunted by defeat, he again contested the same division in 1910 and it speaks highly for the popularity and energy with which he continued the campaign that against the same opponent, he scored 2,000 more votes. At the general election in December, 1910, he contested the double member constituency of Suderland with Jeynson-Hicks, when both were defeated.

Since the time when he accepted the invitation to become the Conservative or Unionist candidate for Wandsworth he has, by his zeal, energy and ability as a platform speaker more than realized the expectations of the party locally. The borough, owing to its size (it has over 40,000 electors and measures miles each way, although returning only a single member and being within the London boundaries), naturally makes great demands on the energy of a candidate, and Mr. Samuel has been most regular in his attendance at every political and social function of importance which has been held in the borough. In addition to his numerous engagements with the local Unionist organization he has taken part in a debate with a Socialist, and addressed outdoor meetings in the van campaign which was held during the summer. Owing to his popularity and genial bearing, he is in great demand at all social gatherings.

Echoes of the so-called Marconi scandal, together with further indications of a literary anti-semitism, were evident in the criminal action brought against Cecil Chesterton for libelling Godfrey Isaacs. Your correspondent raised some of these points a few weeks ago. In the present case it might be recalled that Godfrey Isaacs is the managing director of the Marconi Company and that he is brother to Sir Rufus Isaacs, a member of the British Cabinet. Because of the granting to the Marconi Company—after Godfrey was made managing director—of an important contract by the government and because of a gamble in Marconi shares which resulted (the stock doubled and trebled in value in a very few days) a whole cloud of rumors, insinuations, and eventually charges, resulted. Eventually, to settle these matters, the government appointed the Marconi Inquiry Commission with power to call witnesses as and when required and to hear both the indictors and indicted. The committee, of course, had no punitive powers and its sessions are still proceeding. In the meantime in several journals the charges were given voice to, and several libel actions have resulted. These have been civil actions until this last one when the libel was so gross that Cecil Chesterton, editor of the Eye Witness, the journal in which the libels appeared, was arrested on a charge of criminal libel. His trial finished on June 7. He was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $500 and all the costs of the action, which would amount to a very large sum, and anyway easily $10,000 more. The charges that have now been rebutted, were, of course, charges of favoritism towards Godfrey Isaacs and rumors and insinuations about his pre-Marconi career.

The main reason for referring to the matter here is in connection with the anti-Semitic feeling shown. The judge who tried the action remarked that it was pretty clear that the defendant, Chesterton, and probably those who were behind him, had been partly instigated by racial prejudice. The principal newspaper in London supporting the government made the following comment on the motives of Cecil Chesterton as revealed at the trial. It spoke as follows:

Those motives were two-fold—anti-Semitism and antagonism to the government. So far as the first is concerned, Saturday's verdict will give a salutary check to a detestable importation from the Continent. Jew-baiting, twin brother to clericalism, will not be tolerated in this country, and those who attempt to revive it will find that they have mistaken the temper of the British people. We hold no brief for Jews. There are good and bad Jews, as there are good and bad Gentiles, or good and bad Teutons and Latins. Let them have justice on their individual merits, but do not let us have part in a jihad against Jews in the interests of Rome.

To explain the latter reference it might be noted here that Chesterton, like his more famous brother, Gilbert Keith, and another great writer of this crowd, Hilaire Belloc, is a Catholic.

In connection with the big discussion caused by the record Duveen payment of $220,000 for Rembrandt's "Bathsheba" in the Paris sale on June 9 of the collection of the late Dutchman, Jonkheer Steengracht, it is recalled that although England does not seem to secure many of the old masters nowadays she still has many great ones acquired in the past. Among these is what is regarded by the experts as one of the greatest Rembrandt's in the world—the portrait, entitled "A Jewish Rabbi," which is now in the National Gallery, Trafalgar Square, London. This was bought in the year 1844 and cost us only $2,365. It would probably easily reach between $200,000 and $250,000 now in the auction room.

It is being regarded as desirable that a bank should be established with its headquarters in London for the purpose of assisting Jewish emigrants, especially those streaming out of the Ghetto of Eastern Europe. David Davidovitch, representing leading Continental Jews, is now in London on the matter. He points out that the idea of founding a Jewish emigrant bank has often been raised in Russia where its need is urgently seen. A year or two ago a special committee met in Vienna to talk over the idea and a final conference would have been held last August had it not been for the fact that representatives of American Jews advised postponement. However, the scheme goes on being discussed and having its details filled in. Jewish bankers in Russia have promised to help with money and organizing ability and the Russian Jewish communities have promised large sums of money towards deposits and towards expenses. It is pointed out that the movement of money involved in the emigration is tremendous, easily touching $10,000,000 per annum. There is also a return flow of money from America and other countries into Russia as a consequence, probably running to a like figure every year. At present all kinds of scandals and losses occur in regard to the risk of transmission of these moneys. Emigrants into America desirous of sending some of their money home to enable their relatives to come out are fleeced shamefully by the keepers of small saloons, barbers' shops, etc., which engage in this money transmission and get custom because the emigrant is nervous of and unequal to tackling big American institutions of credit. Finally, if the money does reach Russia somewhere about one dollar in each four never reaches its destination. For these and other reasons the necessity of an international Jewish emigrant bank with headquarters in London, half way between America and Russia, is regarded as absolutely necessary.

Considerable space is being given in the Jewish press here to some of the addresses of the Rev. I. Mattuck, of the Liberal Jewish Synagogue. In one of his last addresses, reported fully, he dealt with the attitude of Liberal Judaism to Jewish tradition. Among other things he dealt with was the charge that its attitude to ceremonies made Liberal Judaism a religion of convenience. In reply he declared that meaningless ceremonies encumbered a religion to an extent where they would threaten its spiritual force. It is because the liberal Jews have faith in their Judaism and would allow full play of its spirit that they would free it from what to them were meaningless encumbrances. The whole address was extremely eloquent, and being delivered in one of London's largest public halls, was listened to with interest and attention by an extremely large Jewish audience.

The special correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph from Salonika states:—"I have just witnessed an incident indicative of the public sentiment of the population of Salonika. The Jewish Lads' Brigade were parading along the quay, bearing Greek colors, and receiving the ovations of the populace, when a motor-car approached. The cheering rose to a mighty shout, for King Constantine was in the motor-car. The Jewish lads added their voices to the cheering. The only people taking no part in the welcome were a group of Bulgarian officers, who markedly turned their backs."

Rosh Chodesh Tamuz bentschen this Sabbath.

The American Israelite informs us that owing to Rabbi Leizer, of Terre Haute, Ind., having been suddenly stricken with appendicitis there were no Shabuoth services and the temple will remain closed until the fall. Rather a queer Judaism that depends upon the condition of a rabbi's vermiform appendix.

We spoke recently of a Jewess who received the degree of M. A. At the commencement of Columbia University this year Martha Ornstein, who is both A. B. and M. A., obtained the degree of Ph. D. Soon Jewesses with higher academic degrees will be as plentiful as the stars in the Milky Way.

From the latest issue of Haderech, the official organ of the Agudas Jisroel, one gathers that this movement for the preservation of traditional Judaism has the support of co-religionists not alone in this city, but also in Jersey City, Baltimore, Trenton and Boston. All of the United States, then, is not in the grasp of Reform!

Governor Fielder, of New Jersey, talked from the pulpit of Temple Beth-El, in Jersey City, the other day. He exuded praise for our people from his every pore and declared that he never would have made a rabbi. Mr. Fielder need not worry, however, for, in his present prominence the rewards of the rabbinical calling do not exist for him.

It does not surprise us to find Jacob H. Schiff expressing an interest in Palestinian concerns. He is not a Zionist, but works on the wholesome principle, Nihil Judaici a me alienum puto! For this reason and not simply because he is possessed of vast wealth used judiciously Jacob H. Schiff's position among the Jews of the world to-day and his memory once he is gathered to his fathers are assured. We but hope that, when death takes him, there will be others to fill his place.

When the ritual murder fable appears in this great and enlightened city and drives a woman to commit murder it is high time that steps for a general campaign of education, even among the most ignorant class of the population of the world, be taken by influential Jews. In the Court of General Sessions the jury sitting on the case of this woman made a prompt verdict, "Not guilty by reason of insanity." Insanity is what the ritual murder fable is. It is a pity, however, that a human being, in this instance a non-Jew, had to lose his life because of the persistence of this outrageous charge.

Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch, in one of those rare moments when he remembered that the light of truth can burn elsewhere than upon the altar of Chicago Sinai Congregation, said: "If they (the young Jews at the universities to whom our sacred religion should be brought home) insist I shall be the first to go to them and wear the Talith and keep on my hat, and read the Hebrew prayers." And if he, Rabbi Hirsch, happened to be doing thus at a time when the spirit of contrariety, for which he is so infamous, moved him, he would be laughing up his sleeve at himself. And he is by no means unable to do this gymnastic feat!

One of our readers expressed surprise that in the entire Adirondack region there is not at the present time a single kosher summer resort, be this hotel, boarding house or restaurant. We share this surprise, and believe that the Adirondacks are virgin territory for him who will provide decent and clean kosher (almost a pun, although none is intended) accommodations for our co-religionists there. There is no reason for confining kosher establishments to a few favored settlements in reasonably close proximity to this city. It should be good business policy for a trial of this nature to be made. At all events, there is no need for Jews to be gregarious all the time.

AN IMPORTANT CONVENTION

THE convention of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of the United States and Canada, which will be held next Sunday at 10 a. m. in the auditorium of the Uptown Talmud Torah, 132 East 111th street, should bring together a very large number of delegates representing orthodox congregations throughout this country. We especially hope that, in view of recent events, the orthodox congregations of Greater New York will not fail to send their representatives to express their views at this convention.

Our readers are familiar with the splendid work of the Union in defense of the rights of our co-religionists during the fifteen years of its existence. In fact, it is a matter of history that since its formation the Orthodox Union has through Dr. Mendes, its president, and Mr. Albert Lucas, its secretary, gone the pioneer work in defense of Jewish citizens, that has lately fallen into what in our opinion are less capable hands.

We hope that the Union will decide at this convention to commence a fresh and militant campaign. Every orthodox congregation in America should send its delegates, or if that is impossible, should notify the Union of its desire to affiliate with it.

In our opinion the Union should stand alone, and if some of the new organizations devote their attention to matters either in the nation or State which also come under the sphere of the activities of the Union, the interests of orthodoxy should be carefully watched by the executive of the Union, so that it can, if necessary, take independent action. The point of view of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations is not likely to be always exactly the same on such subjects as might be held by an organization comprising a heterogeneous quasi-Jewish or pseudo-conservative membership.

A special function, and one that would make the Union of inestimable value would be, if it could find means to organize the innumerable orthodox congregations formed during the last few years and cause them to harmonize their orthodoxy with our American environment without introducing the thin edge of the wedge of Reform. One of the aims of the Union is to plan for the thorough Jewish education of students who wish to become rabbis with Semicha. The elevation of the rabbinate in most of the synagogues attended by our immigrant brethren is a most urgent necessity. There is also much to be done to add to the dignity of the office of the Chazonim, to provide for regular lectures to be delivered in English in these synagogues; for the religious education of our young people, not only while they are of school age, but during the years of adolescence. The Union should try to establish Jewish Centres along the lines planned by Mr. Lucas several years ago. He failed then, but we believe that the time is now ripe. We hope that our readers throughout the country will induce the authorities of the various orthodox congregations to which they belong to do everything in their power to strengthen the hands of the Union in this direction.

SOLDIERS VS. SOCIAL CLIMBERS

THE pendency at the present time of the Littman case in the National Guard of our State to which we have heretofore referred, opens up and makes apposite the discussion of an interesting question. On this, indeed, the future of our State militia may well turn, for Governor Sulzer should be careful at this opportunity entirely and completely to set our military house in order.

We refer to the system of electing members of National Guard organizations in this State. Suppose a man wishes to join the Seventh Regiment or Squadron A for the purpose of doing his duty as a soldier of the State: he must be elected to membership by the present membership of these military divisions before he is deemed fit and proper to serve the sovereign State of New York as a soldier! Is this proper? Is such procedure in accordance with our best and highest ideals? We think not.

This system of militia elections changes the character of a regiment from what in reality it is to what it should not be: a club for social upstarts or climbers, where inconsequential notions and prejudices as to race, creed and station in life prevail. If the would-be soldier is a clean man, if he be physically and mentally fit for his military duties and the established strength of the division he seeks to join permit, he has answered all the qualifications that reasonably can be required in such a case of voluntary enlistment.

But to commit a person who would join a regiment to the votes of men who may take exception to the length of his nose or the cut of his clothes is to heap an indignity upon him which the Fathers of the Republic never dreamed of and which their degenerate descendants in militia regiments of this State, with social "bees" or what not in their bonnets, have been suffered to perpetrate hitherto because none has arisen to protest against the practice.

Governor Sulzer, with his present chance, should give the National Guard that thorough cleansing of which, apparently, it is in so much need. In especial, if he will once and for all end the present iniquitous system of company elections he will earn the gratitude of all citizens. Then we shall no longer have this or that organization of the militia pointed out forsooth as one a Jew may not enter.

Out of some 7,000 "conversions" made by Billy Sunday, the evangelist, in his recent campaign for "converts" and offerings (free-will, of course) in Wyoming County, Pa., there were only four Jews. Which proves that the preponderating majority of us there are, to use Billy Sunday's more than picturesque language, "candidates for hell."

THE RADIO-ACTIVITY OF GOODNESS

את מחותות החטאים האלה כנפשם ועשו אדם רקעי פהים צפוי למזכה כי הקריבם לפניך ויקדשו:

"The censers of these sinners against their own souls, let them make them broad plates for a covering of the altar, for they offered them before the Lord, therefore they are hallowed." (Num. xxvi, 3.)

OUT of the burning and the earthquake, out of the wreckage that lay strewn all over the Israelitish camp, out of the charred heaps of unrecognizable bodies that told the mute tale of Korah's rebellion and its dire result, just a few things were saved: the censers whose fire was the fire of jealousy, whose incense betokened incensed minds. These censers that had served an ignoble purpose were collected and converted into altar-coverings to serve a noble purpose.

The first suggestion arising out of this text is that the Good is present in the midst of the Bad. The Good is oft like a shining gem fallen into an ash-heap. It is there tho' you may not see it. It is there—you need but seek it; and it is worth your while to search for it, even though in the search you should cover yourself with dust and dirt. Noah was there in the generation of the Flood; Abraham was there in the midst of his father's wooden idols; and Abraham pleaded for the ten righteous men who might be found in Sodom, for he could not believe that even that hell of depravity should be without its heaven of uprightness. It takes a firm faith in the power of goodness to believe in this all-presence of the Good, to search for it in the most unlikely places, to save it and treasure it up and lay it on God's altar. No great man but has this faith. It is this faith which strengthens his belief in the moral government of this world. It is this faith which enhances his love of his fellow-men. For not only are good men found in the worst surroundings, but goodness is also found in the worst men. If but a spark, a feeble germ of the Good—but it is there, in the most depraved bosom. A truly great man is he who believes in the hidden good which beats in the heart of wickedness. All our latter-day uplift work is based upon this belief, which it seeks to translate into the heroic effort of finding, nurturing and at length redeeming the one germ of virtue found beneath the rubbish heap of vice, wickedness and criminality. Thus, human censers that had been burning "strange, impure fire" are to be changed into coverings for the altar that shall keep alive the purest and noblest flame.

The next suggestion is that the Good is not lost in the midst of the Bad. Even though the Bad seem overwhelmingly larger and bulkier, the Good is never smothered underneath. It endures. It prevails. Who thinks of the badness in the life of a Byron or a Burns? Who would care to emulate their example? But their poetry is not lost, their verses live. Is David judged by his wars or his psalms? Solomon by his wives or his wisdom? Thousands of tons of ore yield but a minute particle of radium. Thousands, perhaps millions, of years this ore has been buried in the depth of the earth before Madame Curie discovered the radium and its stupendous activity. Had this gifted woman not discovered it, pitchblende may have remained for another millenium or so, a material of little or no value; but in the end someone else was bound to find it, for not even in the physical realm is the good ever lost in the bad. Not otherwise is the case in the moral realm. Here we have increased reason to speak of the Radio-activity of Goodness. The minutest particle of the moral good is bound to manifest its power through and in the pitchblende of wickedness. It is part of our faith in goodness to believe that it can never be lost. For while it is true that there is not one individual whose scale of merit is not at least equally balanced by the scale of demerit; while it is true that in most men the latter scale weighs down the former; yet for all this it is true that on the whole mankind is progressing towards a higher ideal. How would this be possible if the good were lost by reason of the bad? On the contrary, the meaning and the fact of human progress are that the bad is lost by reason of the good. There is nothing that can withstand the power of goodness. It radiates through the opaqueness of substance. Lose the belief in the radio-activity of the good and you lose your faith in goodness itself, and you deny, moreover, the possibility of progress.

The last suggestion is that good and evil reside not in things but in the soul of man alone. The world is morally indifferent. The same censer that holds the strange fire may afterward contain the holy fire—the difference lies in the man who burns the incense. The rain falls upon the virtuous and the wicked alike; the stars shine into every life; the world offers its forces and resources freely to every man. The materials which the world, which Life, places at the disposal of every man, are but the raw stuff out of which man is to make his life. Out of the same materials, one man will weave a coarse pattern, another an artistic design. What is the difference between the wizard in colors and the sign-painter? They may use the same paint, the same varnish, the same brush; yet one creates, while the other daubs. One steals all the beauty of sunsets and twilights into his canvass; the other hangs up his board, pockets his wages and is satisfied. The difference lies not in the materials but in their employ, and in the vision. A beam of light glides down to earth from the stars above: one converts it into a poem; another into a dissertation; a third steers his ship by it. The sun smiling in the summer-sky pours out a golden flood upon all nature: the one sweeps its riotous radiance into golden moods and moments, the other into blasphemies and beads of perspiration. Broad, deep, vast censer of Life, filled to the brim with "spikenard and frankincense and all the chief spices"—shall we cast thee away because, forsooth, so many have been burning in thee the lurid flame of their lust? Or shall we save thee out of the wreckage, convert thee into covers for our altars, upon which to kindle a flame that shall radiate far and wide? JOEL BLAU.

Beautifully located, close to the ocean, on Gaston avenue. Thoroughly renovated. Reservations may now be made. Open for reception of guests from June 1. Table boarders accommodated.

Our excellence of cuisine is too well known to need further comment, as well as the observance of the Jewish dietary laws in all its details, under the personal care of Mrs. Wolfson and myself. Endorsed by Rabbi M. S. Margolies, of Cong. Kehilath Jeshurun.

Rabbis Samfield and Fineshriber, of Memphis, have been opposing the moot proposition, that the Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments be introduced into the public schools of Tennessee, presumably for the purpose of inculcating moral lessons on those attending them. The learned rabbis take the broad ground as American citizens that there is an unbridgable chasm between the church and state. If our children are not being properly taught the necessary lessons in morals, let the religious school, to which this department of instruction properly belongs, undertake the task. But the public school as such has nothing whatever to do with dogmatic ethics.

We read the other day that a St. Louis rabbi has been ordered to the Catskills by his physician and that, in his precarious state of health, his financial condition is such as to make the assistance of his friends and well-wishers imperative. While we sympathize with the rev. gentleman in his present plight, his case gives point to our recent remarks as to the propriety and reasonableness of electing rabbis for life by congregations in this country. If this rabbi held a life position, would it have been necessary for him to become an object of charitable relief to his friends, however good-hearted?

According to the news reports the ITO has discontinued its Galveston emigration work. This we deeply regret to learn, since this activity was valuable and gave the ITO a raison d'etre. Now, with all these depart-and give out in exact and minute form the studies they have acquired, and thus reduce this acquirement to the examination papers upon which the percentages are predicated.

The students who generally soar ahead and carry off the prizes in the real world are not those whose minds are crammed with book-learning, but rather those who know how to apply intelligently that knowledge which they garnered in their collegiate years, irrespective of the exact location of the comma, the semi-colon or the period—just as they follow the sentences in the books.

An active brain will never be able to repeat in parrot-fashion the studies that it passed through; but it is apt to analyze and apply the substance and essentials in its own way, more successfully. This method is an aid to the building up of a career, but not in achieving a prize—getting the prizes is the result of an exact science; but this is at the cost of practicability.

Take the War of the Rebellion: Very few of the prize graduates of West Point were heard of or distinguished themselves during that great conflict. On the Union side there wasn't a single one of the West Point cadets who headed his class that came to the front. General Grant came out No. 21 in a class of 39; General W. T. Sherman, No. 6; General Winfield S. Hancock, No. 18 in a class of 23; General Burnside, No. 10 in a class of 38, and General McDowell in a class of 23. On the Confederate side neither General Lee, General Beauregard or General Magruder headed their classes as graduates.

The same rule may be followed out in the civil colleges and will, no doubt, produce the same exhibit, all of which, if examined into, will go far to show that the best minds will be found in the body of the class and not among the prize scholars.

Millions Spent to Feed Transatlantic Travelers.

In these days when the high cost of living is so much in the public mind; when the bills of the butcher, the grocer and the coal man threaten to disrupt the family happiness and bring the sheriff knocking at the door, it is interesting to know what it costs a steamship company to provide the necessities of life to the hordes of passengers who cross and recross the Atlantic. The annual statement of the North German Lloyd for 1912, just issued, throws some interesting light on the subject and may, possibly, make one's own monthly statement seem small in comparison. Last year the company's bill for provisions alone was $4,920,000, while during the same period the coal man was paid $7,376,735 for 1,758,740 tons of coal which were shoveled into the maws of the ships' furnaces during the twelve-month. For these two items alone—provisions and coal—the company paid the enormous sum of $12,296,735 and the greater part of this fortune dropped, into the coffers of Uncle Sam.

That sea-sickness does not always interfere with the appetite of ocean travelers is evidenced by this expenditure of almost five million dollars for provisions. The butcher as usual reaped the greatest harvest in the matter of provisions, his bill to the North German Lloyd for the year having been $1,685,000. This does not include fish and game; for the former the company paid an additional $239,660, while the bill for game amounted to $412,360, a total of $652,020. These two items, added to the bill for meat proper brought the amount up to $2,337,020.

In our household expenditures we are not likely to pay much attention to the cost of preserves, and yet the North German Lloyd spent $255,760—over a quarter of a million dollars—for these sweets during the year. The bill for fresh vegetables amounted to $128,110, while for "sundries" including bread, flour, spices, fruits, and the thousand-and-one articles that are used in the kitchen, the company paid $1,688,890.

Of wines, Rhein and Mosel were most popular, heading the list with 112,211 bottles as against 35,987 bottles of champagne. Beer, of course, was the favorite beverage, 302,521 bottles having been consumed in addition to 1,720,634, liters of beer in barrels, a liter equal to about one quart.

From these figures some idea may be obtained of what it really costs to provision a great steamship line and of the vast quantity of food consumed.

Synagogue Dedication.

The new $75,000 synagogue of the Congregation Glory of Israel at Throop and Willoughby avenues, was dedicated last Sunday afternoon. Impressive exercises marked the occasion, the speakers being Rev. Wolf Gold, who spoke in Yiddish; Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass, Rev. E. Ensebruch, Rev. H. Masliansky, Rev. I. Agat, Mr. Joseph Baroness and Mr. Joseph H. Cohen.

The congregation was organized six years ago in a small frame building, where their new edifice stands. As the attendance grew it was soon seen that adequate quarters must be provided and subscriptions were solicited, with the result that the present edifice evolved. The officers of the congregation are Samuel Horwitz, president; Joseph Prensky, vice-president; Louis Cohen, treasurer; H. Abelow, secretary; trustees, Julius Brodie, Julius D. Booth, Morris A. Diamant, Abraham Gordon, Morris Gordon, Aaron J. Hurwitz, Julius Jacobs, Frank Pelycyger and Kalman Ross.

South Brooklyn Talmud Torah Dedicated.

The remodeled quarters of the South Brooklyn Talmud Torah at 372-374 Seventh street, were dedicated last Sunday afternoon. An elaborate programme of exercises was provided, including prayer by Rev. I. H. Leventhal, and addresses by Rev. Henry S. Morais, Judges Leon Sanders and A. H. Geismar, Louis I. Kapit and Daniel Schwartz. On behalf of the Ladies Auxillary, Mrs. Joseph Horowitz presented a check for $300.

The South Brooklyn Talmud Torah was established about four years ago at Eleventh street, near Fifth avenue, and it has grown steadily ever since. The present building will provide quarters for about 300 children.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.

At the last meeting it was decided to make special rates for all members joining before the close of the present year. In a game of baseball last Sunday afternoon, the association's team was beaten by the Mt. Vernon Y. M. H. A. team by a score of 9 to 8.

A boat excursion to Sea Cliff, L. I., will be given on Sunday, July 13. Plans are being made for the fall activities, and many new features are being planned, among them a civic forum which will be addressed weekly by some of the most eminent men in the country, all specialists in their respective fields.

The employment bureau is now effectively organized, and is in a position to meet the demands of employers of all grades of help, especially the better grade.

Hebrew Educational Society.

The Junior Clubs will have a mass meeting on Sunday afternoon, June 28. The Senior Clubs will have a mass meeting on Monday evening, June 30. The work of the Farm Garden will begin on Wednesday afternoon, June 25, and will continue during July and August. The annual Sabbath School picnic of the Hebrew Educational Society will take place at Prospect Park on Wednesday, July 2. Arrangements are being made for Fourth of July exercises under the auspices of the Society on the morning of the Fourth of July, at the Liberty Theatre.

Lyman Beecher Stowe, grandson of the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will deliver an address to the students of the Kaplan School, Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Kaplan School Building, 1731 Pitkin avenue, Brooklyn. The subject of the lecture will be delivered by Mr. Stowe will be "Self-Government Among Boys and Girls." Nathan H. Seidman, principal of the Kaplan School, will preside.

Mrs. Rosa Bowsky Meyersburg, wife of Dr. Adolphus G. Meyersburg, of No. 157 Bradford street, died on the 17th inst., aged fifty-eight. Mrs. Meyersburg was a resident of the Eastern District since 1880, was president of the Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Society and was an active communal worker in the district.

Instead of sailing for Europe, on July 5, as originally planned, Rabbi and Mrs. Nathan Krass, will leave to-morrow on the Lapland.

Rabbi Max Raisin has arrived in Brooklyn from Meridian, Miss., and will soon assume his duties as rabbi of the Cong. Shaari Zedek.

Samuel Greenwald, one of the first amusement men at Coney Island, died last Thursday, aged eighty-four.

Plans have been filed with the building Department for the new synagogue to be erected at Rochester avenue and Lincoln place.

Another great big programme will be offered at the Brighton Beach Music Hall for the week commencing Monday, June 30. The stellar attraction will be Ching Ling Foo, the marvelous Chinese magician, with his company of fourteen native performers, including Chinese acrobats, Chinese songs rendered by native boys and girls, Chinese clowns, comedians and jugglers.

A lesser luminary in the company is Miss Chee Toy, the dainty daughter of Ching Ling Foo, who sings popular American songs in a manner totally different than the style of our American comedienne.

Miss Vinie Daly, the young American prima donna, who has recently been in the limelight because of her re-marriage to her former boy-husband, "Jack" Kohl, will be another headliner. Miss Daly will sing some of her best selections and will give some character impersonations that are pleasing. Billy Gould and Belle Ashlyn, a pair of clever singers and dancers, will offer their latest specialty. Lynch and Zeller will have an offering called "Clubmaniacs," and there will be five other enjoyable specialties, and the programme will be one of the best of the season. The daily matinees at the Music Hall are already most popular and are crowded to the capacity of the house.

The annual entertainment and summernight's festival of District Grand Lodge No. 1 of the I. O. F. S. of I. took place on Wednesday, June 18, 1913, at the Harlem River Casino and Park, Second avenue and 127th street. Socially and financially this was an unprecedented success. Nearly ten thousand people attended. All the grand lodge officials were present and every lodge in the district was represented.

The purpose of the annual picnic is to raise funds to maintain the Relief Fund of the order, and the money is used for various charities regardless of creed. Above all the fund is for the purpose of establishing wards and beds in hospitals for the use of the members of the order and their families, free of all charges. At present the time beds are established in the Mt. Sinai and Lebanon Hospitals in New York city and the Jewish Hospital in Brooklyn.

it offers food for the vision in one of the grandest, most glorious landscapes that a country of incomparable landscapes can present. Physical pabulum, food for the material man, is here existent, both in its spontaneity and the cultivated product of the virgin soil and primitive, crystal waters. And, last but not least, is the lavish prodigality of rarified oxygen; absolutely free from smoke, dust or deleterious element of any sort, tintured with the subtle, life-giving aroma of the pine woods, that brings pleasant and beneficent stimulation to both brain and body.

"Quo Vadis?" the photo-romantic play, continues to attract crowds to the Astor Theatre, where it is approaching its third month of success. Nothing quite so superb as this photo spectacle of the burning of Rome and the scenes enacted in the Eternal City under the reign of Nero has ever been afforded the public since the art of photographing motion became a reality. Roman history is replete with incidents of pagan excesses, but particularly startling are the events chronicled in Sienkiewicz's powerful romance, so faithfully reproduced in these films.

The crowds at Steeplechase Park so far this season have been of such proportion that Mr. Tilyou has found it necessary to amplify the automobile omnibus service which has proved such a popular feature for several years. These vehicles run from Culver depot to Steeplechase and are free to those who purchase tickets from the agents stationed there. They have a big seating capacity; carrying twenty or more passengers. They afford a protection from the sun, and the crush and jam in Coney Island's main thoroughfare is avoided. Ten of these cars are now in operation.

"LEST YOU FORGET"

Dear Children:

Rabbi Dosthai Bar Jaunai, in the name of Rabbi Meier, said: "Whoever forgetteth a single word of what he hath learned is accounted in Holy Writ as though he had endangered his existence, as 'tis said: 'Only do thou take heed unto thyself and preserve thy soul with exceeding care, lest thou forget the things thine eyes have seen.' We might suppose this to apply even when what has been learned proves too difficult to retain, therefore is it further said: 'Lest they be removed from thy recollection all the days of thy life.' Hence a man is not culpable unless he intentionally go the way to remove them from his thoughts."

The Dubner Maggid, commenting on this maxim, remarks that the punishment appears to be entirely too severe. Why should a person's existence be endangered just because he forgets a single word of what he had learned? But explains it by the following parable:

A master-mechanic hired a journeyman mechanic and agreed to share with him equally whatever profit his work would produce; he took him into his workshop and bought him a set of tools and bade him be diligent and his labor would be well rewarded. In the course of time the journeyman mechanic lost one of the tools; the master mechanic became very angry, told him the partnership was now dissolved, and took the rest of the tools away from him. The journeyman pleaded with his master, saying: "How can you, in the name of justice, dissolve partnership with me for such a trivial thing? I can pay you for the lost tool, or else buy you another one exactly the same." "No," said the master, "it is not the loss of the tool that has aroused my anger, but I am angry with you because of the fact that you are not attending to your work which your loss of the tool demonstrates to me, as a diligent mechanic makes constant use of all his tools, so that it is impossible for any of them to get lost. This proves that you have not handled that tool for a long time, and shows that you are not doing the work; therefore, tell me, why shall I keep you longer in my employ? Of what use are you to me?"

It is thus with Man. The Holy One, blessed be He, gave him a precious tool, the Torah, with which to do the work of the Master, blessed be He. The work required of him consists of the study of the Torah and the performance of the commandments. This gives the Holy Master great satisfaction, and man is well rewarded therefore in this world and the world to come. Hence, if a man forgets one thing of the Torah it proves that he never intended to study it in order to perform the commandments, because his forgetting it shows that he has not given it a thought for a long time—and as the Torah tells us: "And ye shall keep My statutes and My ordinances, which if a man do he shall live in them," it therefore follows that if a man does not perform the work that the Holy One, blessed be He, has commanded him to do he endangers his existence.

This lesson, dear children, should be deeply impressed upon your hearts and minds. No doubt all of you are receiving or have received some instruction in the Holy Torah—this you are required to study as long as you live. You should make up your minds that a certain time during the day or evening (the proper thing is both) you are going to devote to studying over and over the lessons of your Hebrew school, lest you forget, for "I have forgotten" is no excuse, and although you see many people who appear to live without a knowledge of the Torah, do not be mistaken—they do not live, they merely vegetate—and of them did the Prophet think when he said: "All flesh is grass, the grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of the Eternal will endure forever." It is only by knowing the word of the Eternal that you will endure forever, therefore do not forget what you have learned and try to learn a little more every day, as by the Torah do we live.

The lesson in history was in progress, and in vain the teacher coaxed her class to answer. "At last she brightened up. She had reached the star pupil of her little class.

"Now, Benny," she said, "Mary followed Edward the Sixth, and who followed Mary?"

Yes, Benny knew that, and his answer was swift. "Her little lamb, teacher," he shouted, triumphantly.

Hewitt—But I thought you had a fat job?

Jewett—I guess it struck some obesity cure.—New York Press.

"Do they have music at this hotel?"

"By no means; only an orchestra."—Judge.

Stella—I thought he wanted to marry Mabel.

Bella—Well, he forgot to register.—New York Sun.

Maud—She's quite a linguist! She has eight tongues at her fingers' ends.

Bill—Is she in a museum?

Some men's only idea of a good time is to see how much sleep they can do without.—Washington Star.

When a man is his own worst enemy he is usually willing to forgive and forget.—Puck.

The artist uses a stone, and it is a statue; the mason uses a stone, and it is a doorstep."

Howell—How does that woman strike you?

Powell—With any old thing. She's my wife.

CONUNDRUMS.

Why is Buckingham Palace the cheapest piece of property in England? Because it was bought for a crown and kept up by a sovereign.

What is the oldest piece of furniture in the world? The multiplication table.

What is the difference between a light in a cave and a dance in an inn? One is a taper in a cavern, the other a caper in a tavern.

What is the difference between a man going upstairs and one looking up? One is stepping up the stairs, the other staring up the steps.

Why did Lady Wellesley do a very unladylike action when she married the late Lord Raglan? Because she turned a Somerset.

Why is a stick of candy like a race-horse? Because the more you lick it the faster it goes.
