THE RED LILY

A STORY OF JAPAN

By SAMUEL ROTH

4. THE GUARDIAN OF HIS RACE.

Genji Negato was a descendant of one of the oldest and most noted families of Japan. Even at the present day his father was a man of no little influence in the palace of the Mikado. It was a law among the Negatos that no member of their family should marry outside of his own relations. He who slighted this law was excommunicated from the family forever. Genji knew this; but who can set bonds on the tremendous spirit of youth? The intelligent beauty of the foreigner had inspired in him so powerful a passion that he threw all caution to the winds. But Anna's superb behavior had caused him to return to his senses.

Zulu was his cousin. Previous to the arrival of Anna he had come to look upon her as his future troth. It was in fact so understood among their relatives. But since the return from the American university there had been very little in common between them. They rarely greeted one another.

Between Zulu and Anna there was no comparison. Zulu was very simple and believed limitlessly in the beautiful legendry of her country. Anna was learned in the highest culture of the world and was besides quite original. In fact Genji had come to the conclusion that it would really be no sacrifice on his part to suffer excommunication if he could only get the white girl. But, as we have already mentioned, the behavior of the latter made him think differently of the matter.

When he left Anna's presence that night he was altogether too excited to see things in the light of reason. All he could feel, all he could understand for the moment was that his wild dream was ended. Disappointment was a bitter pill to which he was not yet accustomed.

On the following morning, however, reason came with new light.

After all the white woman was not for him. She could never learn to respect him as her equal; indeed he could never hope to be her equal.

Ah, yes! She was beautiful! And the proud Negato writhed in agony upon the white pillows. She was beautiful and had eyes which spoke Whose was the blame? Surely not mine! he thought. It was a much bigger one than could even be thought, he decided. Ah, why could Yes, Zulu was fair—a moving lily! But —!

Then as he dressed himself he discarded further thought of Anna and thought more and more of Zulu. But what had happened to that warm friendship, which they had shared together in the days when they were both children? Truly they had loved each other then. For had she not once brought to him a garland of flowers which she had cleverly woven into a star, and had he not kissed her? Though the Sun looked down knowingly and the babbling brook near them threatened to tell? But since he had returned from America some change had come over her—or was it really he who was changed? He somehow could not read her. He only knew this—that she avoided everybody. But was it possible that there was still in her heart some remnant of her old affection for him? He could love her, for she was beautiful and innocent, and his cousin. But—

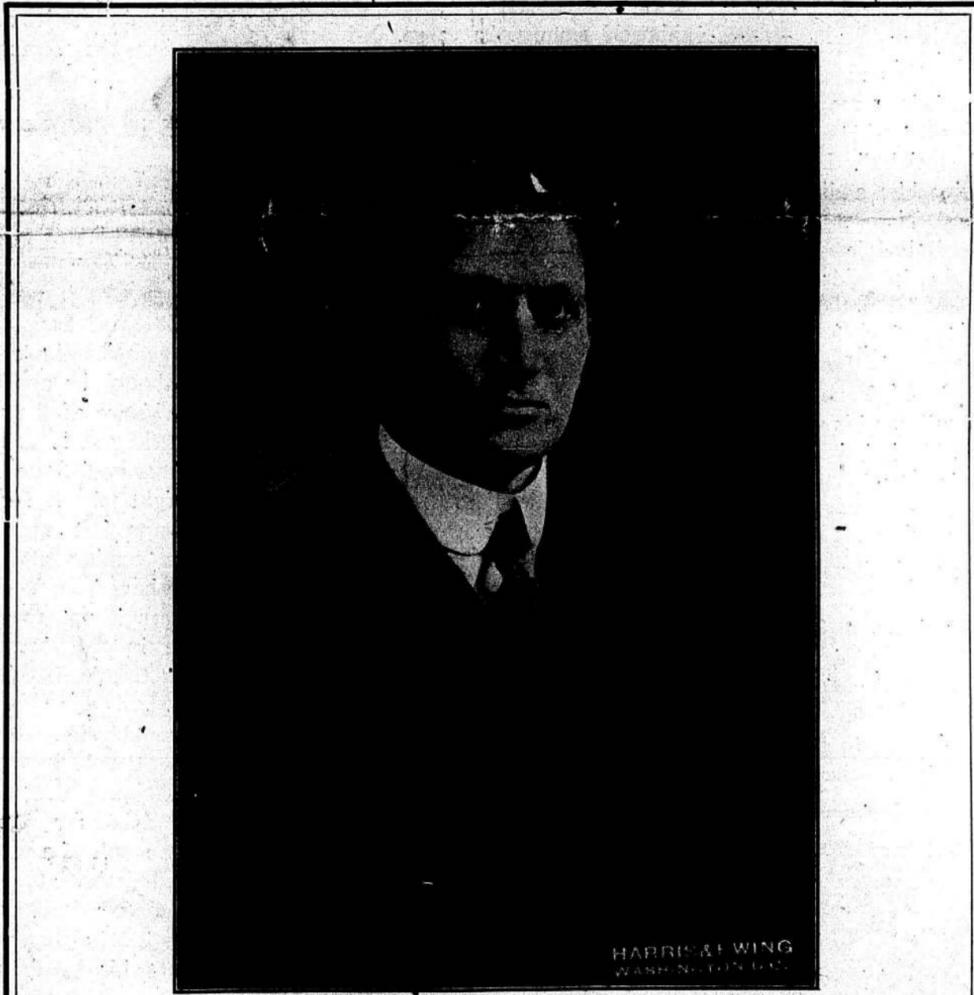

The door of his chamber was opened and Niva Navijo, the mother of Zulu, staggered in. In vain he tried to calm her. But finally through a few sentences, broken now and then by hysterical outbursts, he learned that Zulu had not returned from the dance. He hastily drew on the remainder of his clothes and left the poor mother with the promise that he would find her daughter if he had to perish in the effort.

Genji had overslept criminally. He found when he came out that nearly everyone in town already knew of the disappearance of Zulu and everywhere he could see little circles of gossips who were discussing it in tones low or high as it suited the affectations of the speaker, all with a certain intimacy which was not distant of criminal imagination. He managed with much dexterity to dodge a good number of idle inquisitors and took the road which led through the Yellow Wood to the Temple of Uzume. Everything was alive, the grass, the flowers, the leaves. . . . But Genji was una-mighty secrets, such as luminous stars whisper unto a fair night. But—but there was a beauty which was not his, and beyond his efforts.

And even should he succeed in getting her he would always have to play the part of the under dog! A nice role that for a Negato!

he not point back to some mighty struggle, a heritage of pain? And what were these Japanese girls in comparison to her? Even Zulu?

DR. CYRUS ADLER

Dr. Cyrus Adler is one of those few American Jews who seem fitted by nature to lead men and movements among their co-religionists. In other words, he is a man with a vast fund of practical and executive ability and much hard-headed sense. Hence we need not be surprised to learn that he is president of the Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning, of the Congregation Mikve Israel and of the Kehillah, all of Philadelphia. He is, besides, president of the American Jewish Historical Society, if not actual president, a leader of influence in the American Jewish Committee and the Jewish Publication Society of America. He is a Ph. D. of Johns Hopkins University and is a scholar and student of things Jewish and Oriental. He is chairman of the Bible board now grappling with an American Jewish version of the Old Testament—but why heap instance upon instance? Dr. Adler is still a young man who is hugging fifty, so there are still many other presidential worlds for him to conquer.

ware of these beauties. His mind was centered on other matters.

He had not gone very far when he came in sight of two who were walking slowly in front of him, evidently bound toward the same goal. The woman was fondling the leaves which fluttered gaily in the breeze from branches projecting into the path, while the man walked on at her side evidently deep in thought. They were the Sensei and his wife. Genji quickenened his step and came up to them.

Genji Negato was at first too confused to speak. The fear that Anna had perhaps given her husband a complete account of his behavior of last night was on him strongly and deprived him of his usual air of assurance. But the Sensei's hearty greeting relieved him, and in his heart the Jap blessed Star-Eyes for the rare judgment and fine sense she had exercised. "I am searching for Zulu," he said in a low tone of voice.

"That is exactly what we are doing," exclaimed the Sensei.

"May I accompany you?" asked Genji. He spoke to the Sensei, but looked at Anna. He expected at any moment to hear her protest against his presence. But she walked at her husband's side silently. "Certainly," answered Benjamin.

They walked along in silence for a few minutes. Genji was beginning to feel more at his ease. Suddenly the Sensei spoke up: "Genji, perhaps you can inform me about a certain strange man whom I met near this wood last night." He then proceeded to give him a discription of the strange musician.

When Genji had heard the Sen-sei's description he said: "I believe you have met Zet Ioti, who is the most learned and at the same time the maddest man in Japan. If you are interested and do not fear to be bored I will tell you his story. I believe you will find it interesting, though the interest be the kind one feels in the reading of Don Quixote."

"Proceed," said the Sensei. "I assure you we are both very much interested."

Genji picked up a flower upon which he had stepped accidentally and as he smoothed out its distorted petals related the following: "Toti's father was a judge in the court of presume to guess how deep the tragedy of his life really is."

They had by this time reached the end of the path and were nearing the temple when to their ears came the notes of that strange music which indicated that the strange musician was only a very short distance from them. Though it seemed to touch the harmony of the soul the music sounded like the melodious singing of a hundred skylarks each sounding a different note. A moment later they recognized the voice of a woman accompanying the strange instrument.

5. AT THE TEMPLE OF UZUME

Five miles from Kano, beyond the Yellow Wood, the Temple of Uzume raises its head humbly above a wild growth of bush and shrubbery. Tradition relates that it was dedicated to the Goddess of Laughter by one of the very first Mikados. It does look aged though its appearance betrays no evidence of the purpose to which its existence is ascribed; that is, it describes no definite conception.
Anyone might take it for some deserted cottage left unmolested by generations coming and going; it might even have been intended for a mosque were it not so grossly inconceivable in that locality; or it might be a temple dedicated to the Goddess of Laughter.

It was a mild day. The sun was bathing the temple in a shower of warm, bright sunlight. Upon the top, where the dome lay, stretched out,
perhaps the result of a terrific storm,
sat an aged native of vast proportions who embraced a strange instrument beneath his arm. Suddenly he took it into his hands and began striking upon it with his fingers, lightly, nimbly. Then the music flowed volubly tenderly. Out of the temple came the sweet wild voice of and besides a man learned in the highest culture of our land. He desired, naturally, that his son should receive an education that would enable him to preserve for himself honorably the high station of the family after his father's decease. Toward that end he procured the aid of the best instructors of the land who taught the young Ioti all they knew.

It was just then that Japan was forced to open her gates to the commerce of the world. The good father hearing of the great institutions of learning in the West decided to procure for his son one of these learned men. It is believed that this instructor told so much of the wonders of the West that the lad was enticed by his accounts. At any rate it happened one day that a ship left the harbor of Tokio, for San Francisco, and when it left it carried with it the young Ioti who had hidden himself among the cargo. No one knew where the lad had vanished. His father instituted a keen search for him throughout the entire Kingdom.
But all efforts to find him were of no avail. It was only when the same ship came into Tokio two years later that we learned what had become of the youngster. For the captain told in loud guffaws of how he spanked a yellow youngster who had hidden himself away on board. Fifteen years later he returned to Japan. His father had died of grief, and his other relations were either dead already or would not recognize him.
This was indeed no wonder. He had left a youth, strong and even handsome. He returned much taller, and his face looked as if it had been the battlefield of the most terrible emotions.

"He preached to them constantly of the terrors of the new world, but no one heeded him. Of all who listened to him not a soul understood a word he said. Some said that he was mad, and others that an evil spirit had seized him. All were agreed that he was something terrible and warned their daughters to keep out of his path. They drove him from place to place and gave him neither food nor rest. Suddenly he disappeared again. The superstitiousdeclared that he had finally descended to The Land of Roots. (This is their pleasant idea of Hell.) But he returned ten years later in the streets of Tokio with a strange instrument, under his arm which is capable of producing the strangest harmony. This music though sweet and pacifying has only the effect of making the women cotton their ears. For they still believe that he is some evil spirit—and hold this music to be a virtual proof of this. It is interesting to know that he is in these parts.
He is in truth a madman. At least that is my belief. But no one can a woman who seemed to follow every throb of the instrument.

Suddenly the old man ceased his playing and said in a very loud, hoarse tone of voice: "Come forth Zulu, thou beloved of Uzume!"

The lily-maid came out promptly.
She was still garbed in the lily white of last night, but in her eyes shone a wild, strange light.

"I am come!" she whispered.

"Higher! higher!" spoke the strange musician.

She seemed to obey him without hesitation and climbed nimbly up the side of the temple. And when she had reached the top he again fingered his instrument, and again the voice of the woman accompanied with a graceful motion of the body. Around the fallen dome she danced, easily, lightly, her face an alliance of sorrow, strange joy, and a light divine!

Then the Sensei, his wife, and Genji Negato arrived upon the scene. They stared in bewilderment

According to the laws of the Hungarian State every denomination has the right to be represented in the Upper House either by clergymen or delegate laymen. Four Jewish members of the Upper House have died lately and the government is anxious to do the Jews justice and grant them four seats in the Upper House. But the orthodox and reform communities cannot agree among themselves as to which wing shall furnish the delegates. The reformers have offered to concede two to each faction, but the orthodox claim that they are the sole representatives of Judaism in Hungary and will listen to no compromise. Meanwhile, the government has been placed in a very delicate position.

I just had a notion that I would like to die a citizen of this great country, although I feel that it will not be for a long time yet."

Yom Kippur Services in Honolulu.

A correspondent forwards us a copy of the Honolulu Sunday Advertiser of October 12, which gives an account of the celebration of the recent Holy Days by the Military Hebrew Institute of Honolulu.

A feature of unusual interest was the Sefer Torah which was used at the services. It was the only known one on the island, and was presented many years ago by a wandering Jew as a token of appreciation to King Kalakaua. It later passed into the possession of Princess Kalaniana'ole, now residing at Los Angeles, Cal., and when she was cabled to she promptly consented to its use by the Jewish residents.

At the services on Yom Kippur, in addition to about 100 civilians there were also present 175 from the regiments quartered at Schofield Barracks. The services were very impressive and were participated in by a very devout congregation.

Society Ohel Torah.

The Society Ohel Torah held its annual election on October 21, 1913, and the following officers were elected to serve for the term of one year: Jacob Weiss, president; M. Gottesman, first vice-president; Joseph Isaac, second vice-president; M. A. Horowitz, treasurer; and W. Weinberger, secretary.

Mr. Louis Borgenicht, the former president, found it impossible to continue his active efforts in behalf of the institution, and therefore declined the honor of re-election. The new president is affiliated with many philanthropic institutions in the city of New York and is well known on the East Side for his many charities.

Cornerstone for Deformities Hospital.

The ceremonies incident to the laying of the cornerstone for the new dispensary to be erected by the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases at 41 East 123d street will take place Election Day, Tuesday, November 4, at 3 p. m. Among those who will deliver addresses are Emanuel M. Gattle, president; Dr. Abram Jacobl, Dr. Reginald H. Sayre, Judge Julius M. Mayer, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Adolph Lewisohn, and Felix M. Warburg. Music for the occasion will be supplied by the Hebrew Orphan Asylum Band.

Chovevel Ibrith.

The next meeting of the Chovevel Ibrith will take place on Saturday evening, November 1, at 8 p. m., at the Zerpabel Hebrew School, 22 West 114th street. Mr. Joseph Zuckerman will lecture on "The Hebrew Literature in America and Its Support." Dr. M. W. Beder will render an account of the Hebrew Library. All who understand Hebrew are cordially invited to attend.

Dinner to Mr. Harry Fischel.

The directors of the Uptown Talmud Torah and the directresses of the Ladies' Malbush Arumim Society will tender a dinner to Mr. Harry Fischel on Sunday, November 2, at 7 p. m., at the Uptown Talmud Torah Annex, No. 142 East 11th street. The occasion is to celebrate the completion of the annex which has been built by Mr. and Mrs. Fischel and which will be formally presented by them to the society on this occasion.

On the afternoon of that day the formal dedication at the West 115th street branch will take place at the branch. Mr. Jacob H. Schiff will be one of the speakers.

United Hebrew Charities Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the organization will be held on Wednesday evening, October 23, at 8.30 o'clock, in the vestry rooms of Temple Emanu-El, Fifth avenue and Forty-third street, at which the report of the trustees for the past year was read. Among other things the report said:

The income from memberships and donations has diminished by approximately $9,000, due to reductions in contributions from several of our supporters and the passing away of others. Were it not for the fact that legacies bequeathed to the society and expended during the current year exceeded the aggregate of last year's bequests by nearly $7,000, we would have suffered a serious deficiency. As it is, our funds were just sufficient to meet our needs, the actual balance on hand in our general fund being $690.48.

The relief granted to the poor in cash, clothing, coal, milk and other supplies aggregated $246,583, whereas the income from membership dues and donations amounted to $192,568, conclusively proving that every dollar secured from our last year's contributors reached the poor, and that even additional funds were drawn upon for their relief.

But even if these other funds were not available it would be fatuous to expect that 6,498 needy families could be cared for without administrative cost. The time is long past when the relief of the poor can be effected by mere charitable doles. The physical labor of visiting them, performed by eleven field workers; of investigating their conditions and their own resources; of interviewing them in our offices when necessary; of supervising and judging the work of our investigators; of recording histories of every family from day to day, and of conducting the subsidiary activities of the organization, requires a large staff of employees. And when it is further considered that the problem of each family is usually an intricate one, requiring intelligent, tactful and judicious consideration for its solution, it must be readily seen how we are handicapped through lack of funds.

Through the generosity of the New York Foundation, who made us an appropriation for the purpose, we were enabled to make a close study of the physical as well as the home conditions of 217 families in which one or both of the parents were sufferers from tuberculosis. The report of our medical committee which conducted this investigation under the direction of our medical examiner, with the assistance of a physician and a nurse, which will appear in full in our printed annual and which is the first study of its kind made in this country, discloses among other facts that 56 children out of 692 were suffering actively from the disease and 105 out of 692 showed signs which placed them in the category of suspects. The investigation further showed that out of the 274 active consumptives found in these families, only 112 had a separate room.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.

On Sunday evening, October 26, the Washington Irving Literary Society entertained their friends to the number of 250 with a varied programme of music and oratory. The winner of the oratorical contest was Mr. Isidore Edelman. His topic was "Cessation of War."

Next Sunday evening, November 2, the Ambulance Society of Beth Israel Hospital will give an entertainment in the auditorium.

The long-expected meeting for the purpose of organizing a National Young Men's Hebrew Association will be called to order Sunday morning, November 3, at 10. A large number of delegates is expected, and it is hoped that the work of the special committee appointed at a meeting a year ago will result in a working federation. Men prominent in Judaism have been giving their time and attention to the advancement of this project, and the fruit of their work is eagerly awaited.

Young Men's Hebrew Association of the Bronx.

A mass meeting under the auspices of the Jewish Big Brother Movement will be held at the Y. M. H. A. of the Bronx, 104 Poston road, corner of 165th street, Saturday evening, November 1. The following speakers will address the meeting: Mr. T. Channon Press, Mr. I. Edwin Goldwasser, Mr. Alexander Kaminsky and Rev. Dr. Clifton H. Levy.

The public is urged to be present in order to acquaint themselves with the worthy cause for which the Big Brother movement stands, and to lend their sympathy and support to further its aims in the Bronx.

Morais Blumenthal Literary Society.

Election of officers and formulation of plans for the coming year's work marked the opening meeting of the Morais Blumenthal Literary Society of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, held last Tuesday morning, October 23, 1913, in the Seminary Building. The principal work of the society will be of a literary and propaganda nature, and it is hoped to surpass the efforts of all previous years.

The officers elected are as follows: President, Herbert S. Goldstein; vice-president, Julius J. Price; secretary, Samuel S. Grossman; treasurer, Milton M. Markowitz; editor-in-chief, -Israel Lehendiger.

Mr. Bloch at Dropsie College.

Joshua Bloch, until lately a student at the Hebrew Union College, of Cincinnati, Ohio, has entered Dropsie College, of Philadelphia, Pa.

THE OUTLOOK,
Office of Theodore Roosevelt.
My Dear Sir:—

I cannot under any ordinary circumstances take part in political contests save those in which I myself vote. But now—and then I happened to be able personally to bear testimony to the efficiency of some candidate or public servant when the conditions are such that it makes it improper for me to refuse thus to testify. I feel that this is one of those cases. Some weeks ago you may have seen a statement that appeared in The Outlook concerning the judicial career of Judge Warren W. Foster. It ran as follows:—

"A JUDGE HIGHLY HONORED. To the attention of Mr. Norman Hapgood and other members of the Citizens' Fusion Committee is commended one of the most remarkable documents that has ever appeared in a political campaign. It is a spontaneous letter to Senior Judge Warren W. Foster, of the Court of General Sessions, whose fourteen-year period of office expires at the end of the year, from the entire staff of probation officers, chaplains, and benevolent workers in the criminal courts. They ask him to serve another term in the 'high position' in which he has shown such conspicuous fitness. The letter is enforced by a resolution from the Barrows League (an adjunct of the Prison Association of New York which takes its name from the late Samuel J. Barrows, one of America's foremost penologists, and concerns itself with the welfare of discharged convicts), reciting the eminent qualifications of the same judge, and asking that his name be placed on the Fusion ticket. That the benevolent workers in the General Sessions Court, 'behind the scenes' in the theater of criminal jurisprudence, as they describe themselves, and 'so situated as to be able more closely than other observers to watch the administration of justice,' believe that for Judge Foster to retire from the bench at the close of his term would mean a distinct sociological loss to the community is higher evidence as to his usefulness than could come from any other possible source. These people are more familiar with all the circumstances surrounding a prisoner and the commission of his crime than counsel or jury, and are aware of every influence that moves a judge in the pronouncing of sentence. The opinion as to Judge Foster of the clergymen and lay workers in the cause of humanity in the criminal courts, as set forth in their letter in part, is as follows:—

"While the fact that during fourteen years' service on the bench only thirteen out of many thousands of your decisions have been reversed (several of these reversals invited by your determination to have certain points of law clearly defined) is in itself proof of the possession on your part of the legal erudit on that is one of the most essential qualifications of a jurist. It is to certain attributes of your character that we, in our capacity as special pleaders for unfortunate, innocent and guilty, who fall under the ban of the law, attach high importance.

"The signatures to this letter are in themselves a sign of the times. There are those of the four chaplains in the Tombs, or City Prison, Jew, Protestant, and Catholic, respectively—the Rev. Jacob Goldstein, the Rev. F. Halstead Watkins, and the Revs. L. J. Evans and Anthony J. Paoli, the latter's work being among the Italian prisoners. The other signatures are those of Daniel E. Kimball, and Samuel B. Ornitz, of the Prison Association of New York; Alexander H. Kaminsky and Irving W. Halpern, of the Jewish Protective and Aid Society; Grace E. Campbell, who looks after the colored prisoners; and the Rev. James B. Curry, pastor of the Catholic Church of St. James, who does special work among the wayward boys of his communion. Such a letter from such a group represents a working brotherhood of a remarkable kind. It constitutes a nomination that can hardly be ignored."

I believe that every word said in the above article is true and was warranted. Judge Foster has rendered very great service to the public by the part he has taken in more than one advanced movement for the intelligent treatment of the whole problem offered by the existence of the criminal classes. It was Judge Foster who took the initiative in this city in the administration of the indeterminate sentence law, which, with the parole and suspended sentence, also wisely and justly administered by him, constitute the basis for the new penology which really does heal and save both society and, where it is possible, the criminal. Peculiar value attaches to the remarkable work the judge has done in the movement for the sterilization of criminals, one of the most important movements before this country. The American Prison Association has selected him as its chairman of the committee on criminal law reform, and probably no judge is so often quoted as an authority on penology as is Judge Foster. I very earnestly hope that he will be continued on the bench. It would be a misfortune to lose him. I may add that I myself have been the instrument for transferring to prominent members of foreign governments Judge Foster's opinions on certain of the questions that I have mentioned, these being sought for because he is recognized abroad as an authority on the subjects.

Faithfully yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Joseph E. Davidson.
The residents of the Thirty-first Assembly District are unusually fortunate in having as their Democratic candidate for Assembly Mr. Joseph E. Davidson, who is admittedly the best man that has ever run for a similar office in that district. He has lived practically all of his life in Harlem, having been graduated with honors from P. S. No. 86, Ninety-sixth street and Lexington avenue. He is also a graduate of the College of the City of New York, being the winner of the famous Kelly prize.

After being graduated from C. C. N. Y. with the degree of B. A., Mr. Davidson began the study of law at N. Y. U., being graduated with the degree of LL. B. While at the university he was president of the graduating class.

Mr. Davidson is better known to the public for his activities in religious, charitable and educational institutions. For the past eight years he has been principal of the Rabbi Jacob Joseph School, and is also at present a trustee of the Talmud Torah of the Congregation Ohav Zedek.

He was one of the organizers of the Young Folks' League of the Hebrew Day Nursery, of the Congregation Ohav Zedek, of the Hebrew Sheltering Orphan Asylum, of the Rabbi Jacob Joseph School and of the People's Hospital Alliance. Mr. Davidson has spent many years in teaching English to foreigners in the evening elementary schools of the East Side, and in 1907 was supervisor of the roof garden of the Educational Alliance, having had the supervision of the play of almost 4,000 children.

Mr. Davidson secured the nomination for the Assembly unopposed, and is absolutely unpledged. If elected, as he expects to be, he will go to Albany free and untrammelled.

Bernhard Rabbino, the candidate for the office of Surrogate of Bronx County, is 54 years of age and has been a practicing attorney for eighteen years. He always took a most active and leading part in all civic movements, especially on the lower East Side of Manhattan.

In 1901 he was one of the founders of the East Side Civic Club and its first vice-president. During his administration the club did great work for the people of that section.

In October of the same year Mr. Rabbino was appointed chief attorney for the Legal Aid Bureau of the Educational Alliance, New York city, which important office he held until 1909. It was during this incumbency that he did his best for the protection of the poor, of all creeds and races, without exception. He helped about 300,000 needy people in the courts and the different departments of the city, settling disputes between employer and employee, ridding the East Side of the cadets and securing employment for thousands of the sons of poor parents by getting the Board of Health to accept certificates of Bar Mitzvah (confirmation) in lieu of birth certificates, which the immigrant children can seldom furnish.

The climax of his civic work was reached in his establishment of the Domestic Relations Court through the Legislature of New York State in 1910, after having spent eight years in making propaganda. This court which deals exclusively with family troubles, its basis being the preservation of the home, has found imitation in Chicago, Ill., and other large cities of the country, and made Mr. Rabbino, its founder, a national figure.

He is known the country over as the "Father of the Domestic Relations Court." Able and conscientious, calm and deliberate, Mr. Rabbino will surely make an ideal Judge for the Surrogates Court, that deals with the interest of widows and orphans.

at what they saw. The realization that Zulu had gone mad forced itself upon them like a horrible nightmare. Meanwhile the lily-maid had seen them and her dancing grew heavy and the aged boards began to creak beneath her step. They saw that should the decayed boards break beneath her Zulu would fall into the wild growth of bushes and thorns which embraced the temple. They wondered how she had ever managed to get there. But she continued her wild dance.

Genji Negato was perhaps the most restless witness of this scene. He saw the danger of his cousin and became madly anxious to save her. At last, being no longer able to control himself, he plunged recklessly into the bushes which surrounded the temple. She saw him and seemed to pause for a moment. Then they saw the face of the musician contract into a bitter smile; he rose to his feet swiftly, and before anything could be done to detain him or warn Zulu he seized her and pushed her violently toward the advancing lad. Genji saw Zulu falling in his direction, and without considering her weight or the height from which she was falling, he stretched forth his arms to catch her before she could touch the ground. But the weight of the body combined with the force of the fall were more than the Jap's arms could hold and she fell from them to the ground. They caught a glimpse of Genji and they saw that his face contracted by the force of some awful pain and that his shoulders trembled weakly. But the next moment he had caught her up in his arms and was madly tearing his way out. He dropped the burden into the arms of Anna and himself fell limply to the ground.

Benjamin carried him to a nearby stream and bathed and bandaged his wounds. When Genji finally came back to consciousness the first thing he saw was Zulu lying pale and death-like on a bed of leaves in the mocking sunlight. He seemed to see no one else. He fell on his knees before her—and kissed her pale lips. Then she awoke. It seemed to him that she was gazing at him intently from behind half-closed eyelids.

"Zulu, Zulu," he pleaded. "Tell me thou wilt live yet."

She opened her eyes widely and said: "Wouldst thou really desire me to live, Genji?"

"I would willingly surrender my life that thine be preserved," he said passionately.

"Yet never since thy return didst thou so much as deign to speak to me," she said in tones of reproach.

"I was a fool, Zulu," he declared. "I was deceived by a desire to learn. But now I know that thou art much sweeter than knowledge. I love thee, Zulu! I will not live without thee!"

"Then I will live," she answered, and added: "If I can."

"Then thou lovest me?" he asked. She answered as from a dream. "Yes. Dost thou remember, Genji, the time when we two were much younger and we played without thought in the pure sunlight. We had no need of dreams then; for life was one delightful dream. But then thy father sent thee to a land far from home and many many years did I dream of thee. But when thou didst return thou wert much changed. Thy manner and words were foreign. I even began fearing thee. Yet many a time of late have I dreamt thee beside me as in those days of old. But now it is not possible. Thou art learned and vastly superior."

"Do not say that, Zulu!" he cried, interrupting her. "I am not in any way superior to thee. Thou art in fact the superior of me with all my acquired learning. For learning has made me petty, while ignorance has left thee innocent, simple, and as pure as the sunlight. I love thee, Zulu. And because of my love for thee I do not discard those vain pretensions which have made me a stranger to the soul of Japan and my beloved. There you have me, the ignorant, unpretentious lad of our childhood!"

She half rose to meet his strong embrace, but fell back again. Genji felt a slight touch on his shoulder. He released the form of his love somewhat and saw that she was again unconscious. He heard the voice of the basei saying: "We must now take her to the house of her mother, for the blood has again left her lips."

Anna offered to aid him in carrying her, but he refused insistently.

It was now nearing sunset, and for fear of being beset by utter darkness they hastened their step as much as possible. No one had noticed where the mad musician had disappeared. On the way home Zulu did not regain consciousness. Not even when the loving arms of her mother, Niva Navijo, embraced her did she show signs of life. For she was now in the everblooming garden where the rose never withers and the Goddess Uzume herself is the queen.

Jewish Judges in England—Bellis Mass Meetings in London—British Press Denounces Russian Scandal—A Word of Praise from the Greek King—Conversionist Bishop's Extraordinary Address—Suffrage in the Synagogue.

London, Oct. 17, 1913.

There is now every reason to believe that Lord Alverstone has resigned the Lord Chief Justiceship and that Sir Rufus Isaacs will shortly be installed as his successor. Reading, the Parliamentary constituency which Sir Rufus represented in the House of Commons, will almost certainly be lost to the Government. Personal popularity counted more than politics in favor of Sir Rufus at the last election. As I stated recently in discussing the possibilities, the appointment when it is officially announced will provoke criticism. The Marconi business has made that inevitable. Nevertheless, the Bar will not express disapproval. It will be the first time a man of the Jewish faith has held the high office. There have been, of course, judges of Jewish lineage. Lord Chancellor Herschell, although himself of the Christian communion, was descended on his father's side from a family of Jews in Prussian Poland. But the greatest Jewish lawyer who ever sat on the English bench was Sir George Jessel, the Master of the Rolls from 1873 to 1883. He was a most eminent master of equity, and his judgments are still cited as authoritative. Sir Rufus Isaacs' achievements have lain on the common law side, a circumstance which fits him rather for the office of Lord Chief than for that of the Lord Chancellor, to which Lord Murray would have liked to see him appointed, or of the Master of the Rolls. His triumphs in the courts have been won by his brilliant powers of cross-examination and his wonderful faculty of appealing to the jury. None of the Judges of the High Court at present belongs to the Jewish faith, but I have been reminded that there is a Justice Isaacs in Australia. He was one of the Judges who tried the famous shipping case, which was recently taken to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He is no relative of the prospective new Chief.

The strength of feeling in connection with the Bellis case grows daily and the position becomes one of wonderment that Russia should make such a mockery of the elements of justice and decency. There was a large Jewish meeting in the East End of London on October 12 to protest against the Kieff "blood accusation." Chairman Cohen said that the whole Jewish nation practically was standing on its trial because of the charge which had been brought against the individual. They believed that underlying it all was a great political significance. It was merely a pretext to arouse religious hatred between Jew and Gentile, and as a means of diverting attention from the economic position. The charge had been repeatedly disproved. A mass meeting will be held later, when it is hoped to get ministers of all denominations to join in the protest.

Views in the press very properly mirror the general feeling here, amazement being expressed at the flimsiness of the case and the wholesale disrepute it brings upon Russia. One writer here very properly asks if the Jewish religion teaches such horrible practices as are alleged, and if Jews are guilty of so terrible a charge, why is there only one case, and that in Russia? Why has this tragedy taken twenty-six months to stage? Out of the tens of thousands of ultra-orthodox Jews in the world who adhere religiously to every letter of their faith, why is there just this one isolated case? Would all the Jews in the world burn with shame at such a charge if it were a religious precept or had one word of truth in it?

It is Russia's policy constantly to fan warfare against her Jewish subjects, a policy that will keep all her subjects in a constant hatred of each other and will prevent her people from combining and seeking freedom. Russia knows too well that when her millions are once enlightened, and the conditions of life in other countries are brought home to them, there will be a terrible retribution exacted from the bureaucracy. But Russia can no more exterminate her Jewish subjects by imputing vile tenth-century religious superstitions than she can prevent the day of freedom for the whole of her people. The masses must one day awaken. Religious hatred will not check the advance. If only Russia would see this. If only Russia would free her people, her Jewish subjects would be among her greatest assets.

It is interesting to hear that King Constantine of Greece granted an audience on October 13 to the Grand Rabbi of Salonika, who assured His Majesty of the loyalty and devotion of the Israelite community, who, he said, in conformity with the prescriptions of their religion, were the loyal and faithful subjects of the countries in which they lived and always defended the country of their adoption with their lives.

The king, according to a semi-official account of the interview issued there, expressed his satisfaction with the grand rabbi's remarks, and declared that he would never tolerate in his kingdom the "ritual murder" calumny. He added that he had greatly appreciated the services of the Jewish soldiers in his army. In conclusion he assured the grand rabbi of the benevolent attitude of the authorities towards the Jews.

Finally, it is curious to note, that if there was any break in this very proper sympathy it came from the bishop of Ossory speaking at the annual meeting in Norwich of the precious London Society for Promoting Christianity Amongst the Jews. It was not that he defended the Bellis trial, but that in his speech he absolutely overlooked it and apparently said no word about this pitiful cruelty. On the other hand, while avoiding this, he appears to have upheld the action of the Russian Church in its dealings with the Jews of that country. He endeavored to make out that there was not much anti-Semitic feeling, after all, in Russia and what there was was being unduly exaggerated by radical writers on this side. The following is an extract from this extraordinary part of his speech:—

"They had no mission at all to pass judgment on other branches of the Christian Church for what they were doing in respect of the Jewish problem. Christians would forfeit their title to respect if they pressed their claim to help the Jew at the expense of other branches of the Christian Church, such as the great churches of the East."

During the course of the service in connection with the Day of Atonement at the West End Synagogue, in London, on October 11, a number of Jewesses, who are members of the suffragette cause, stood up and said the following words:—"May God forgive Herbert Samuel and Sir Rufus Isaacs for denying freedom to women." "May God forgive Herbert Samuel and Sir Rufus Isaacs for consenting to the torture of women." For some little time afterwards the service was interrupted and the women left the synagogue, their names being taken, as they did so, by the synagogue authorities. It is understood that Herbert Samuel, the Postmaster-General, is a regular worshipper at this synagogue.

The London "Jewish World" thus comments upon the above incident: "In view of the wretchedly bad behavior, to say nothing of the dastardly crimes, of which suffragettes have been guilty, the exploit of the 'ladies' who interrupted the service on the Day of Atonement at the new West End Synagogue with some hysterical insensate shouts, does not surprise us. If, as is said, however, these syrens were Jewesses, their outburst on the occasion referred to gives striking proof of the fact, which has frequently been observed, that there are really no lengths—or depths—to which these quasidemented creatures will no go in their madness. They do not, of course, see that they form the strongest possible argument against giving votes to women. Woman suffrage has much argument in its favor. It is when men look at the first fruits of the agitation and observe such blackguards in bonnets as those who interrupted the Atonement service at Dr. Hochman's place of worship that wise men hesitate to confer the franchise on women. They object to making a concession to crime, outrage, blasphemy—and bad conduct."

The "Jewish Chronicle" makes no reference to the matter beyond quoting the above extract from the "Jewish World."

Scandalous accounts are given in the Russian press of the anti-Semitic agitation in the Roumanian army. The Commander of the Seventy-seventh Regiment of Reserves is alleged to have attacked a few Jews in his regiment with a revolver and sword. The wounded Jews have since died. Subsequently, he issued an order to his regiment that all Jewish soldiers should be killed. The regiment revolted, and the local authorities intervened on behalf of the Jews. The Commander, however, insulted the authorities and continues his agitation.

The monument erected to the memory of the late Baroness de Hirsch and the late Madame Boucault (proprietress of the Bon Marche, who bequeathed large sums for unsectarian charitable purposes) will be inaugurated shortly in one of the Paris squares. The monument is the gift of the late M. Osiris, the Jewish philanthropist.

The leader of the boycott movement in Poland, M. Dmovsky, has announced that there can be no agreement between the Jews and the Poles. The assimilation movement among the Jews has failed, and the Jewish emigrants from Russia have Russified Poland. His partisans are determined to withdraw commerce from the Jews, whom he advises to emigrate abroad.

Galicia and her boycott of the Jews may soon take a place in Jewish affairs as large and protentious as diabolical Russia and savage Roumania.

Rabbi Abraham Cronbach, of South Bend—he of the slit skirt and the minaret—is a firm believer in the right of women to vote. Why not? The one view necessarily follows from the other.

The other Sunday Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf, of Philadelphia, told his congregation that he condemned the tango and the ultra-fashionable waist line in women's wear of to-day. And then he started on a trip around the world, which is to be one year in duration!

Because Rabbi Samuel Sale, of St. Louis, eulogized the late Adolphus Busch, the wealthy brewer and head of the great establishment of Anheuser-Busch, recently, is it fair to assume that the rev. gentleman is fond of an occasional glass of Budweiser "on the side?"

We would remind the Rev. Christian F. Reisner, who praised the late Benjamin Altman as Jew and as citizen in a sermon in his New York church on a recent Sunday, to remember his own words concerning "converts of Jews" the next time he is on a lecture tour in the Lone Star State. In Mr. Reisner's own case it is, Do as I say, not as I do!

Ex-Recorder Lazarus, of Bayonne, is the presiding genius of a new Hebrew Democratic Club formed in that locality to further the cause of Mayor Cronin for re-election to his present office. The conjunction of Lazarus and Cronin is surely of interest as proving that, if it was not for the Irish and the Jews, none knows what would become of this great nation. Of course, it goes without saying that a Jewish political organization has under such circumstances just as much raison d'etre as it has under different conditions.

If Henri Bergson succeeds in being elected a member of the Academie Francaise it will be the first time that a Jew takes his seat among the Forty Immortals. Election to this body is the crowning glory of French literary men, and there is no question that Bergson is indeed entitled to this distinction. Bergson is a Jew by birth and upbringing and, if we may so use the word, identity, and thus the bestowal of this great honor upon him will reflect added honor upon his co-religionists.

Up in Canada they have a Judean Club which provides athletic exhibitions for its members. We read that one of its redoubtable attractions is the Jewish welterweight, who happens to be the best all-around athlete of the Dominion. Not a bad feature for a club with such a distinctive name. The Judeans Club of this city might adopt similar methods of arousing the slumbering interest of its members and the community in its doings. An exhibition bout between the representatives of the "middle-of-the-road" and ultra-radical schools of Jewish theological thought would surely draw a large and select crowd, and, not at all so fanciful, settle the great questions dividing the two camps as well as these could be disposed of otherwise.

Ye editor-man is glad the Yom Tovim are well over. When one has to do with a Jewish weekly journal, and thus has but five days a week within which to do the work of six, it is more than simply distressing to have secular holidays like Columbus Day cheek by jowl in one week with the first and second days of the festival of Succoth. The man who complains that he hasn't much time had better study our lot carefully. Friday, October 9, close at 3 p. m. to prepare for Yom Kippur, Saturday Yom Kippur, Sunday the Christian Sabbath, Monday Columbus Day. Wednesday close at 4 p. m. to prepare for Succoth and then the office closed Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Yet our complaint does not seem to have found lodgment, for a year hence the holidays fall on Thursday and Friday of the week again, and our situation will be just as desperate then as it was in the early days of 5674. Pity the poor editor!

THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE

THE future historian of the Jews of England will have the good fortune to be able to chronicle that, while a Jew reached high rank as an equity judge during the nineteenth century, it remained for the twentieth to behold a son of Abraham seated in the crowning place of honor for a law judge in the system of jurisprudence of England.

Sir George Jessel was a great Master of the Rolls; Sir Rufus Isaacs, whose unexampled career of honor and usefulness in English public life is a credit to that community whose loyal adherent he is, will be more than reasonably certain to be a great Lord Chief Justice of England.

We take high and justifiable pride in the signal distinction that has come to Sir Rufus Isaacs, for we know that he eminently deserved this preferment at the hands of his party. The Conservative organs in Great Britain may cavil and carp at the appointment made by Mr. Asquith; all lovers of truth know that Sir Rufus was entirely worthy to take his seat on the bench as Lord Chief Justice, and that his splendid mind and vast abilities will enhance the value and importance of his new office, surrounded as it is by glorious traditions.

In thus commenting on the naming of Sir Rufus Isaacs as Lord Chief Justice, we would point out that he has risen higher on the ladder that leads to fame and fortune than any other English Jew before him. The story of his life reads like a leaf out of some book of romance. Handicapped by age and failure of his first venture in the world when he took up the duties of a barrister, he survived all discouraging setbacks. Of an old London house, which was possessed of a comfortable fortune, he united to his forensic and legal abilities an ambition to shine in the political sphere, and how successful he was in the latter environment his subsequent triumphs testify.

The connection of his name with recent, unpleasant incidents in financial undertakings, is but a passing cloud upon the placid surface of his victorious career. And we cannot forbear from drawing an interesting and profitable parallel between a government that extends an opportunity for service to an Isaacs and one, the mere shadow of a name, which revives in the twentieth century the exploded notion of "ritual murder" in the desire to sacrifice a poor, defenceless, innocent Beilis.

Rabbi Simon R. Cohen preached a sermon some time ago on Broadhurst's popular drama of the day, "Bought and Paid For." Not content with this, he permitted its use as a published document by the theatrical manager touring the play for advertising purposes. Not content with these, moreover, he suffers a counterfeit presentment of himself in cap and talith to be produced on the cover of this literary production and to be spread broadcast, up street and down lane and alley, wherever "Bought and Paid For" stayed for one week or one night. The ineptitude of this proceeding is apparent on its face, and Rabbi Cohen, a star in the Brooklyn rabbinical firmament, should hide his diminished head in shame and sorrow. Finally, it may be said, if we mistake not, the rabbi has discarded the cap and talith at all services in his own house of worship. Apparently he regards them as the hall-marks of his kind when it becomes a case of trying to please the Gentiles. All the more discredit attaches to him, then! We need say no more than this, for Rabbi Cohen has here made a greivous and deliberate faux-pas, which will long be remembered.

Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits, of Duluth, is the latest victim of the disease, latterly become epidemic among our friends, the Reformers, of preaching about the Jewish attitude toward Jesus from a Christian pulpit. All this display of the brotherhood of man, and of the fundamentals in religion uniting all men, is very beautiful, and the Reform rabbis are doubtless much edified thereat and prepared to await the millenium soon due. But, if our rabbis would busy themselves telling their own congregations what is their attitude toward the great and insistent Jewish problems of the present, and leaving Jesus to our Gentile friends as their undisputed possession, perhaps Jewry (even if sections of it are so disadvantaged as to have to "worry along" under Reform guidance) will be benefited and, certainly, the daily newspapers will have fewer opportunities to report on the strange advantages and stranger doings of some of our preachers and teachers in Israel. Even if it hurts our Reform brethren to have to forego good chances of free advertisement, we suggest this course to them.

We do not care to express an opinion as to the correctness of the decision of our highest authorities in reversing the decision of the Ellis Island Board of Special Inquiry and permitting Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette, to land on our shores. But this much may be remarked: If Mrs. Pankhurst had been a poor and unknown alien immigrant from Russia or Roumania or some other equally benighted portion of the world, she would have been deported bag and baggage, and the American public never the wiser. Perhaps her detention at the gate of our country will draw the attention of the general public to the intolerable situation of many poor but worthy arriving aliens, who may be peaceable and useful members of society, but altogether lacking in the goods of this world, not to speak of so large a sum, then, as twenty-five dollars. Of course, chivalry toward the ladies prompts us to add that Mrs. Pankhurst formed no staple of our comparison in these lines.

Through inadvertance we neglected to mention that the little work entitled "Jewish Home Prayers," so favorably commented upon in a previous issue, was the work of Rabbi M. M. Eichler, and our apologies are tendered to him for the oversight.

CITIZENS OF TWO WORLDS

לא אסף לקלל עוד את-הארמה בעבור האדם כי יצר לב האדם רע מנעויו ולא-אסף עוד להכות את-כל-חי כאשר עשיתי: עוד כלימי הארץ ורע וקציר וקר וחם וקיץ וחרף ויום ולילה לא ישבתו:

"And the Lord said in His heart, I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done. While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night, shall not cease." (Gen. viii:21, 22).

WE live in two worlds: the world of man and the world of nature. These two worlds now struggle against, now complement, each other; but whatever be their mutual relation at any given time, we—our frail, baffled Egos—are constantly played upon by forces that emanate from without and within. Sometimes these forces help, sometimes they hinder, one another; but whether foes or friends, the soul of man and the spirit of nature do not cease to influence each other. To what degree does this reciprocity of influence hold true? To what degree may it be controlled by man to his advantage or his disadvantage? These are problems which from the dawn of history have profoundly agitated the human mind. Will it then surprise us that it is this question—the question of the effect of these two worlds upon each other—which forms the central theme of the story of the Flood?

Truly, this story is but one of the many Biblical expressions of the view that the acts of man have an enduring effect upon the course of nature. Disturbances within the moral order set up, according to this view, disastrous disturbances within the natural order. When the Dor hamabul, the Generation of the Flood, falls into a state of utter moral decadence, God exclaims: "The end of all flesh is come before me. . . I will destroy them with the earth." That is to say, not the world of man alone has merited destruction but the world of nature too. "Every thing that is in the earth shall die!" is the way in which the crashing doom is pronounced. In the rabbinic amplification of this thought, the effect of human sin upon the cosmos is still more graphically portrayed. Basing themselves upon our text, the rabbis say that during the flood the very stars in heaven ceased to perform their function. The whole universe was disorganized. Even the animals, says another midrashic passage, became demoralized and were no longer able to recognize the voice of instinct that had erstwhile guided them, as if they too had been infected with the general corruption set up by man.

But now, what does our text say? It says that God decreed that there should be no longer such close, immediate and inevitable connection between the two worlds. "I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done. While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter and day and night shall not cease." Order, that is, shall prevail in nature, though in the heart of man there reign disorder. If a man sin, he hath destroyed his own world, but he cannot destroy God's world. No man can stain the heavens with the uncleanness of his soul. No man can project the darkness of his thoughts into the shining face of the sun. No man can befoul the sweet morning air with the breathings of jealousy and hatred. All the poison of sin shall remain at its source.

And yet, despite the reasonableness of this divine decree, one cannot help giving free rein to the imagination that is but too keenly aroused by the story of the Flood. What if the initial thesis of this story were true, and the world were so keenly sensitised as to react immediately upon the slightest of our wrongdoings? What if the universe were a gigantic seismograph responsive to the tremors of our inmost being, recording in unmistakable characters each act, each thought, each design, of each man? What if it were a disk dotted with unnumbered grooves, chiming back our voice, our secret whisperings? What if it were a mirror, reflecting each mood, each fancy, each whim? If every act of oppression stained all the rivers of this wide world red, as once the rivers of Egypt were? If angry words unleashed all the storm-dogs kenned at the utmost bounds of the earth, bringing on a world-devastating cyclone? If a harsh frown extinguished a star? If hardheartedness caused flowers to wither?

You say, Such a world is unthinkable? Well then, try to imagine the reverse. What would this world be like if it reacted upon our good deeds? If, like a sensitive plate, it responded to the light within us? If the birds sang more sweetly wherever men loved each other? If each act of kindness added fragrance to the rose? If justice enhanced the lustre of stars? You say, Such a world is unthinkable too? Perhaps it is; but it is the men who have insisted on thinking unthinkable worlds that have at length changed the face of this our thinkable world. Moreover, be honest with yourselves. You do not shrink from the idea of nature recording man's good deeds, were such thing possible; but you do shrink from, you writhe under, the idea of nature recording man's evil deeds. Why? Because your morality is the average morality—inspired by nothing so mightily as by the dread of visible consequences.

In fact, the world of matter is, to a certain well-known limit, told upon by the world of man, tho' not to the extent shown in the opening chapter of the story of the Flood. But this phase of our subject belongs chiefly to the study of the laws of heredity. For us the most important thing to know is that since God has to a very large extent separated the two worlds in which we live, and has not sensitised the world of nature overmuch, it behooves us so to sensitise, by persistent effort, our soul-world, that not the dread of making misdeeds manifest but of staining our character should keep us from evil ways. Only when we are thus morally sensitised, do we become loyal citizens of both these worlds. JOEL BLAU.

In connection with the Beilis case we cannot understand why Russia permitted circumstantial news accounts to go forth from Kieff throughout the world. It does not well fit in with Russian "ideals" of government for these reports to go up and down the highways and byways of the earth with their eloquent disclosure of Russian methods; and conditions of justice in the empire of the Czars. Perhaps it was providential for the poor victim of Russian tyranny that these facts were dragged into the light. But for them, perhaps, Beilis would have been "tried" and condemned for his "crime" and be beyond human power to aid when a tardy justice righted, or endeavored to right, the calamitous iniquity to which he would have been subjected.

Rabbi Martin A. Meyer, of San Francisco, had a New Year's message for his people in the shape of the statement that the bitterest enemy of the Jew is the Jew himself. In our own household, declared the Golden Gate preacher, brother is set against brother. Sad are these words, but true! And our rabbis will do well to recall them frequently to the memories of the Jews of to-day, for only thereby will this disgraceful and cowardly prejudice and dislike be eradicated from our midst.

Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf, of Philadelphia, speaking at the sixteenth annual meeting of the National Farm School, said: The occasion "bears the palm of victory, a victory that rests in the consciousness that we are to-day witnessing the fulfillment of a prophecy." Thus does the learned preacher remain faithful to the ideals instilled into him at the Cincinnati "forcing house" for latter-day prophets!

The Rev. T. M. C. Birmingham, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, is distributing widely his sermon entitled, "World Peace Under American Leadership," which the U. S. Senate had printed as a public document. The purpose of the homily is praiseworthy, but Mr. Birmingham's Christological references in the course of it and of his letter of transmittal to the press are strangely cut of consonance with and in an official publication of a government which recognizes no race or creed. Mr. Birmingham is, we believe, in error in stating that his is the only sermon which Congress has ever ordered printed in this manner. The prayers of Chaplain Couden, of the House of Representatives, which are sermons in miniature, have been thus ordered published by the last session. Against these, as against the present screed, the same objection may be urged, and our readers will recall that we have seriously protested against some of Mr. Couden's unctuous supplications in the past. Indeed, this entire system on the part of our national government of printing certain literary productions, of more or less undying fame, as public documents, stands badly in need of systematization and revision.

The candidate at a secondary school examination in Scotland who described the Israelites as worshippers of Mammon since "the people of that tribe were fed by Mammon in the wilderness," was not making such a "wild" blunder if he may be supposed to be familiar with some of the tango-trotting, pleasure-loving co-religionists of ours who frequent the Rialto "early in the morning" and make the gilded restaurants of the metropolis of the Western world hideous with their presence.

It cannot have been that this community permitted Mr Herbert Samuel, the Postmaster-General of Great Britain, to depart from its precincts without tendering him that Boruch habo to which every loyal son of Israel, traveling in foreign parts, is entitled. Mr. Samuel was with us for some days, but beyond banquets from a Jewish ambassador and a Jewish ex-secretary, which had no specific Jewish character, the community as such took no notice of his presence. We regret that this is so, since Mr. Samuel is one of those rising Jewish politicians of Great Britain about whom our contemporaries of the Anglo-Jewish press love to discourse.

We might tell you of Jewish business men right in our own saintly city, who will tell you—though they mean not what they say—that they do not care for Jewish patronage; of Jewish theatrical managers for Jewish proprietors, that the word has come from New York not to patronize Jewish papers; of Jewish wholesalers and retailers in various branches, who speak contemptuously of Jews and act more contemptuously of Jews; we might tell you of even a Jewish newspaper office claiming to represent Jews open and at work on Yom Kippur—but what's the use?

The above is from the Jewish Voice, of St. Louis, Mo., but we think it quite applicable—without many alterations—to New York conditions.

"TUMBLING TO SEATS IN THE SURFACE CARS."

Travel in the surface traction cars in this city is irksome and very far from what it ought to be. To many women the "street car" is a horror, and to many men it is so in only lesser degree.

Either the motors or the motormen are far from perfect. It is most likely that the mechanical part of the car is all right, but the motorman all wrong.

Both men and women after mounting a car and advancing toward a seat tumble toward it rather than walk to it in a normal way, because the motorman in handling the controller, sets the car in motion with a jerk, which too frequently takes those not having seats off their feet, and induces those in seats to sway from side to side.

Is this the fault of the motor or lack of ability of the motorman, or are too many green motormen experimenting with the passenger cars instead of practicing with an empty car in the car barns?

This question is not confined to any one line, but is general with all. Some remedy ought to be found to have the car start off smoothly, instead of with a sudden jerk, and thus afford amusement to those occupying seats in seeing incoming passengers dance forward as if under the influence of Gambrinus or worse. And what applies to the starting of a car may be equally applied to stopping the same. The conditions are similar.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Judge Foster's Candidacy.
Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
As a rabbi whose work has lain for the past six years among those unfortunate members of our race who have strayed from the right path and fallen under the notice of the criminal law, I deem it my duty to ask your permission to place before your readers certain considerations with respect for the candidacy of Judge Warren W. Foster.

Let me say that this letter is entirely voluntary on my part and is not the result of any solicitation on the part of Judge Foster's friends and supporters. To me, knowing the inner conditions of the criminal court processes in New York, it would be nothing short of a disaster if the community should lose the services of Judge Foster on the bench. That he is a high-minded, impartial Judge, kindly, yet conscientious in the discharge of his duties is the consensus of opinion of all observers. I heartily indorse that opinion, yet I have this to say in addition: My work lies among the Jews; I have never in six years' experience found Judge Foster to turn a deaf ear to any reasonable appeal for clemency when made in behalf of some unfortunate member of our race and faith. More than that, I can conscientiously say that the moment any doubt arises in his mind as to the guilt of any accused Jew brought before him he does not wait for representations from the accredited Jewish representative, but immediately acts on his own initiative.

I recall the case of an old man who had been convicted of the charge of grand larceny in the first degree by the jury. As the man had been out on bail before the trial I knew nothing of the case. Judge Foster, who sent for me, told me that there had been a verdict of guilty, yet certain aspects of the case which had escaped the notice of the jury or were not considered by them as of importance remained in his mind and created a doubt as to whether the verdict was wholly just. As all the parties in the case—defendant, complainants, witnesses—were foreign Jews, speaking very little or no English, he asked me to re-investigate the whole case ab initio. The case was a most difficult one. That perjury had been committed seemed sure, but the question was which side had committed the perjury. I found it impossible to arrive at any clear decision in my own mind, and the Judge insisted on my continuing the investigation week after week, delaying his sentence in order to give me time, and when finally I placed a long statement accompanied by a mass of affidavits before him and frankly told him that while I had a grave doubt as to the guilt of the accused there seemed no question but that perjury had been committed. He called the accused before him and told him that a jury had found him guilty. As the case was presented to the jury the jury had no alternative, but that he had the doubtful aspects of the case investigated by me and had decided to postpone sentence. The accused was set free under observation, and if at any time in future any further definite evidence was brought before him to prove conclusively to his mind the guilt of the accused he would thereupon call him before him and sentence him.

The poor old man, 60 years of age, left the court room with tears streaming down his cheeks. Outside were waiting his old wife and a sick and widowed daughter. The three departed invoking blessings in Yiddish on the upright Judge that had saved them from the calamity of the husband, father and breadwinner being sent to jail. The old man has behaved perfectly since and nothing has transpired to make the Judge regret his fatherly and kindly action.

I don't know whether Judge Foster considers it a compliment, but I remember at the time telling him that he had a truly Jewish heart. This is not the only instance. I should weary your readers if I described even briefly the number of cases of a similar nature in which the Judge's keen mind and kindly heart led to the saving of poor Jews convicted before him or who acknowledged their guilt. You will understand therefore why I feel it my duty as a Jew and as the chaplain of prisons to ask your readers to cast a vote for Judge Foster entirely irrespective of the party to which they belong.

I think every Fusionist will have reason to feel proud of the fact later on if he can conscientiously claim that he split his ticket in favor of Judge Foster. He is, as the old Jewish saying goes: "Ish Tom V'Yosher Ve're Elohim."

Very truly yours,
JACOB GOLDSTEIN,
Jewish Chaplain, Tombs.

The Jew Maligned Again.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
The Saturday Evening Post of October 11 has a story headed "Dead Beats and Bad Debts." It begins on page 9, but on pages 48 and 49 it has an ugly, malicious story in which characters named "Isaacstein, Schiff and Golden" are so clearly intended for Jews as to make any further designation unnecessary.

They are portrayed in the most offensive way, especially the sentence, "The Isaacsteins are the masters of their crooked craft."

Appearing in a weekly having such an immense national circulation, we cannot afford to let it pass without the most earnest protest.

If, besides the denunciation of these attacks intended to foster religious bigotry and hatred in the press, the advertisers in it whom it must injure will also add their protest, it must make the responsible managers of the Saturday Evening Post recognize that they cannot malign our people with impunity.

The Anti-Defamation League of the I. O. B. B., with headquarters in Chicago, will take it up with the following large advertisers in the Post: House of Kuppenheimer, Hart, Schaffner & Marx, E. V. Price & Co., H. M. Lindenthal, A. Stein & Co., Alfred Decker & Cohen.

The Jewish Comment will, I think, take this up to secure a protest from Henry Sonneburn & Co., of Baltimore, Md.; E. Rosenfeld & Co., of Philadelphia and New York.

And I suggest that you secure the protests of the leaders of our people in New York and such firms as K. & E. blouse makers, of Rochester, N. Y.; A. B. Kirchbaum & Co., of Philadelphia and New York, and as many others as you may choose to interview.

We must do what we can to stop these hurtful, unjust animadversions that cast malicious reflections on our people in the guise and under the protection of fiction.

Excuse the liberty I take in tendering my advice, but it is in the interest and for the cause I have espoused for years.

Very truly yours,
M. UMSTADER.

Privy Councillor Ludwig Max Goldberger, the well-known capitalist and economist, died at his residence in Berlin last Thursday, aged 65 years. The immediate cause of death was arteriosclerosis, combined with heart disease. Herr Goldberger leaves a fortune of $5,000,000, chiefly inherited from his father, a banker. He possessed one of the keenest business minds of modern Germany. Only his faithful adherence to Judaism prevented him from obtaining high official honors. He visited the United States in 1901 for a semi-official inspection of economic conditions, and on his return wrote an enthusiastic book entitled, "The Land of Unlimited Possibilities." The title of the book added a new phrase to the German language, and the work gave Herr Goldberger an European reputation.

consensus of opinion on this subject if taken would, I believe, be in favor of the Frenchman. Those of us who have but once been awakened from some magic dream by the discordant wailing of a mob following some black carriage of death have felt as I have so many times the tragic incongruity of it. Yet there is, I confess, something grand, if sad, about a funeral procession.

The death of Zulu caused a good deal of mystical discussion among the less enlightened ones of Kano. But the keynote was grief. Who can see so rare a maiden, full of youthful light and vigor, laid into the earth to rot forever, without the tears being started? Death himself must be moved by the sight. Among those who followed in the long line of mourners were the Tojin-san and his wife.

Both were dressed in mourning clothes and carried valises in their hands; for from the funeral they were to go to the pier where a boat was leaving for San Francisco.

Weeping in Japan is not nearly as boisterous as it is with us. Indeed with us, weeping at a funeral seems to be a grand exercise. But the silent mourner is generally the most sincere. The procession had by this time reached the cemetery where the grave diggers were already preparing a place of rest.

As Genji Negato stood near the grave diggers one might have thought he was a foreman over them or else some critical spectator. But in truth a terrible battle was raging within him. It was a case of "to be or not to be." It seemed to him that the death of Zulu deprived him of all interest in life. Finally the work of the grave diggers was done. There was a hole just large enough for the coffin to rest in. Genji looked in. This was to be the lot of his "lily maid" throughout the eternities. A tumult of thoughts swept through his brain; a tumult of emotions crowded his heart. Could it be true? The question of a child! Little by little he gave outer evidence of his emotions—and he nearly staggered into the open grave.

He felt a soft, yet firm hand grasp his shoulder and he knew who it was. He turned round half way and met the Sensei's sympathetic look. Then he resumed his former position and watched the lowering of the coffin.

Again the shovels gleamed in the sun. Swiftly the earth was replaced and what was a hole in the ground was again solid earth.

Suddenly Genji turned round and said: "Sensei, do you believe in God?"

Benjamin nodded. "In times such as this," he answered, "I do."

Suddenly there was a stir, and through the crowd pressed a strange, gigantic figure. It was Zet Ioti, the mad musician. Under his arm he gripped the same strange instrument. The excitement was intense, for some believed this to be an evil omen. The giant took his strange instrument into his hands and began playing upon it softly. Gradually the music affected the mourners and soon every head in the vicinity was bowed in deep humility as though they had come face to face with the Infinite.

Suddenly he perceived Niva Navijo, who had fainted a number of times already, and now lay on the grave without moving. He ceased to play and exclaimed in his hoarse tone of voice: "Rise Niva Navijo from this sacred spot!"

Called to herself by hearing her name spoken by so strange a voice

The gigantic steamer was preparing to sail. The Tojin-san and his wife were the last to go on board. The crowd which bid them "Farewell" was the same which had witnessed the burial of Zulu. Among that crowd was Genji Negato.

Genji shook hands silently with the Sensei. They had not a word to say to each other. Then he took Anna's hand and kissed it. He did not say a word. But his head was inclined, and his downcast eyes spoke more volubly than words.

From the ship they saw him still standing there, again firm and resolute. But in his eye they thought they discerned a tear. They turned aside. "Doesn't it all seem like a dream?" she asked. "Yes," he answered. "We've had a beautiful, if somewhat tragic dream."

Despite the wonderful run of the play capacity audiences are attracted at every performance.

May Irwin, America's most successful comedienne, in the most successful comedy she has had in more than a decade, is the joyful offering promised by the management of the Bronx Opera House for the week beginning November 3. To many May Irwin is always superlatively funny, no matter what her vehicle. This year she boasts "Widow by Proxy," which kept New York roaring all last winter. In her own estimation, and that of many others, it is the funniest play in which she has ever appeared. Such a combination furnishes a treat fit for the gods, and it is offered ordinary mortals at ordinary theatre prices next week.

A petition was recently filed signed by 1,000 members of the Jewish Workers' Alliance, of Omaha, Neb., asking that Yiddish be taught in the Kellom school. The school board took the position that the new States law requires the teaching of "modern European languages" if fifty patrons petition for such instruction, and the contention was made by Superintendent E. U. Graff that Yiddish is not a modern language in the sense contemplated by the law.

Otto H. Kahn, of New York, who some twelve months ago was adopted as the prospective Conservative candidate for Parliament for the Gorton Division of Lancashire, has sent a letter to the chairman of the Conservative Association regretting that, owing to greatly increased business calls, he finds that he has no time to devote to politics. The Gorton Conservatives are greatly disappointed at Mr. Kahn's decision.

The former Cabinet Minister, M. Timirazeff, who is the vice-president of the St. Petersburg Conservatoire, has explained that the proposed restrictions against Jews in the institution emanate from the anti-Semitic Ministry of Justice. The heads of the institution and the professors are, however, determined that a restriction similar to the one existing at the Moscow Conservatoire should not be introduced into St. Petersburg.

The Prussian Government, driven to action by the agitation of the "Real Prussian people," and of the anti-Semitic Union of German students, has at last yielded to the demands of these anti-Semitic elements, and has ordered that henceforth "Russian" students are not to be admitted to any Prussian university until the number of the present students of that nationality in those universities is considerably decreased.

The Galicians have started a boycott against the Jews somewhat on the lines of the agitation in Russian Poland. Owing to the fusion between the All Poles and the Christian Socialists, the anti-Jewish agitation has assumed a dangerous character. The official anti-Semitic organ, Glos Narodu, had for some time past been urging a boycott of the Jews, "the arch enemy" of the Christians, and like its congeners in Russia it is making use of the services of converted Jews.

EXPLANATION—MATTER IN ITALICS IS NEW. STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 22, 1913.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section two hundred and ninety-five of the Election Law, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article one of the Constitution of the State of New York is to be submitted to the people for approval at the next general election in this State to be held on the fourth day of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen. MITCHELL MAY, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE. Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, Proposing an amendment to section seven of article one of the constitution, relative to taking private property for public use. Whereas, The legislature at its regular session of nineteen hundred and twelve duly adopted a resolution proposing an amendment to section seven of article one of the constitution, relative to taking private property for public use; and Whereas, Such resolution has been duly published in accordance with law and the constitution and referred to this legislature for action, therefore Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That section seven of article one of the constitution be amended to read as follows: § 7. When private property shall be taken for any public use, the compensation to be made therefor when such compensation is not made by the state, shall be ascertained by a jury, or by the supreme court with or without a jury, but not with a referee, or by not less than three commissioners appointed by a court of record, as shall be prescribed by law. Private roads may be opened in the manner to be prescribed by law; but in every case the necessity of the road and the amount of all damage to be sustained by the opening thereof shall be first determined by a jury of freeholders, and such amount, together with the expenses of the proceeding, shall be paid by the person to be benefited. General laws may be passed permitting the owners or occupants of agricultural lands to construct and maintain for the drainage thereof, necessary drains, ditches and dykes upon the lands of others, under proper restrictions and with just compensation, but no special laws shall be enacted for such purposes. The legislature may authorize cities to take more land and property than is needed for actual construction in the laying out, widening, extending or relocating parks, public places, highways or streets; provided, however, that the additional land and property so authorized to be taken shall be no more than sufficient to form suitable building sites abutting on such park, public place, highway or street. After so much of the land and property has been appropriated for such park, public place, highway or street as is needed therefor, the remainder may be sold or leased. § 2. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the foregoing amendment be submitted to the people for approval at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, in accordance with the provisions of the election law.

State of New York, in Senate, May 2, 1913.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, two-thirds of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, MARTIN H. GLYNN, President.

State of New York, in Assembly, March 26, 1913.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, ALFRED E. SMITH, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, Albany, July 22, 1913.—I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-second day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. [L. S.] MITCHELL MAY, Secretary of State. FORM FOR SUBMISSION OF AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Shall the proposed amendment to Section Seven of Article One of the Constitution, designated in the election notice as Amendment Number One, in relation to the method of ascertaining compensation on taking private property for public use, and empowering the legislature to authorize municipalities to condemn property in excess of the amount actually needed for public parks, streets and places, be approved?

EXPLANATION—MATTER IN ITALICS IS NEW. STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 22, 1913.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section two hundred and ninety-five of the Election Law, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article one of the Constitution of the State of New York is to be submitted to the people for approval at the next general election in this State to be held on the fourth day of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen. MITCHELL MAY, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO. Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, Proposing an amendment to article one of the constitution, relating to laws for the security and protection of the lives, health or safety of employees. Whereas, The legislature at its regular session of nineteen hundred and twelve duly adopted a resolution proposing an amendment to article one of the constitution, relating to laws for the security and protection of the lives, health or safety of employees; and Whereas, Such resolution has been duly published in accordance with law and the constitution and referred to this legislature for action, therefore Section 1. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That article one of the constitution be amended by adding at the end a new section, to be section nineteen, to read as follows: § 19. Nothing contained in this constitution shall be construed to limit the power of the legislature to enact laws for the protection of the lives, health, or safety of employees; or for the payment, either by employers, or by employers and employees or otherwise, either directly or through a state or other system of insurance or otherwise, of compensation for injuries to employees or for death of employees resulting from such injuries without regard to fault as a cause thereof, except where the injury is occasioned by the willful intention of the injured employee to bring about the injury or death of himself or of another, or where the injury results solely from the intoxication of the injured employee while on duty; or for the adjustment, determination and settlement, with or without trial by jury, of issues which may arise under such legislation; or to provide that the right of such compensation, and the remedy therefor shall be exclusive of all other rights and remedies for injuries to employees or for death resulting from such injuries; or to provide that the amount of such compensation for death shall not exceed a fixed or determinable sum; provided that all moneys paid by an employer to his employees or their legal representatives, by reason of the enactment of any of the laws herein authorized, shall be held to be a proper charge in the cost of operating the business of the employer. § 2. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be submitted to the people for approval at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, in accordance with the provisions of the election law.

State of New York, in Assembly, April 8, 1913.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, ALFRED E. SMITH, Speaker.

EXPLANATION—MATTER IN ITALICS IS NEW; MATTER IN BRACKETS [] IS OLD MATTER TO BE OMITTED.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 22, 1913.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section two hundred and ninety-five of the Election Law, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is to be submitted to the people for approval at the next general election in this State to be held on the fourth day of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen. MITCHELL MAY, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, Proposing an amendment to section four of article six of the constitution, in relation to the county courts.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur) That section fourteen of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: § 14. The existing county courts are continued, and the judges thereof now in office shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms. In the county of Kings there shall be [two] four county judges. The number of county judges in any county may also be increased, from time to time, by the legislature, to such number that the total number of county judges in any one county shall not exceed one for every two hundred thousand, or major fraction thereof, of the population of such county [and the additional county judge shall be chosen at the next general election held after the adoption of this article.] The additional county judges in the county of Kings shall be chosen at the general election held in the first odd-numbered year after the adoption of this amendment. The additional county judges whose offices may be created by the legislature shall be chosen at the general election held in the first odd-numbered year after the creation of such office. [The successors of the several] All county judges, including successors to existing judges, shall be chosen by the electors of the counties for the term of six years from and including the first day of January following their election. County courts shall have the powers and jurisdiction they now possess, and also original jurisdiction in action for the recovery of money only, where the defendant resides in the county, and in which the complaint demands judgment for a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars. The legislature may hereafter enlarge or restrict the jurisdiction of the county courts, provided, however, that their jurisdiction shall not be so extended as to authorize an action therein for the recovery of money only, in which the sum demanded exceeds two thousand dollars, or in which any person not a resident of the county is a defendant. Courts of sessions, except in the county of New York are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All the jurisdiction of the court of sessions in each county, except the county of New York, shall thereupon be vested in the county court thereof, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts of sessions shall be transferred to said county courts for hearing and determination. Every county judge shall perform such duties as they may be required by law. His salary shall be established by law, payable out of the county treasury. A county judge of any county may hold county courts in any other county when requested by the judge of such other county. § 2. Resolved (if the Senate concur) That the foregoing amendment be submitted to the people for approval at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, in accordance with the provisions of the election law State of New York, in Assembly, Feb. 11, 1913.

—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, ALFRED E. SMITH Speaker.

State of New York, in Senate, March 17, 1913. —This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, MARTIN H. GLYNN, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, s. 1: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-second day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. [L. S.] MITCHELL MAY, Secretary of State.

FORM FOR SUBMISSION OF AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Shall the proposed amendment to Section Fourteen of Article Six of the Constitution, designated in the election notice as Amendment Number Three, providing for an increase of two in the number of county judges in Kings county; also providing that the legislature may increase the number of county judges in any county not to exceed a total of one judge for every 200,000 population or major fraction thereof; prescribing the time of election of additional county judges; and providing that the term of all county judges shall begin on the first of January following their election, be approved?

MUSIC NOTES.

The Philharmonic Society of New York, Josef Stransky, conductor, will not be heard in Carnegie Hall next week, the time being taken up in touring. The following week three New York appearances are scheduled—the regular Thursday evening and Friday afternoon pair, at which the society will have the assistance of Jacques Urlus, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, and the first of its Sunday afternoon concerts, with Mme. Gerville-Reache as soloist. The programmes for these performances will be announced later.

The first orchestral concert of the season by the People's Symphony Society, Franz X. Arens director, will take place Sunday, November 9, at Carnegie Hall. The soloists will be Miss Sara Gurwitsch, cellist, and Frank Ormsby, tenor soloist of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church. The orchestral numbers will include Dvorak's "New World Symphony," Chadwick's "Melpomene" overture and Liszt's Polonaise No. 2. The first of the society's chamber concerts will be given at Cooper Union the following night by the Margulies Trio.

The Kneisel Quartet will give the opening concert of its regular subscription series at New Aeolian Hall on Tuesday evening, November 11. The members of the quartet will be assisted by Mr. Henri Leon LeRoy, who will take part in the Brahms Clarinet Quintet, op. 115. The remaining numbers of the programme will be announced later. The subscription by renewal has been as usual very large this season, and there have been as well many applications for seats from new subscribers. The general subscription sale is now open at the office of the quartette.

Mme. Melba and Jan Kubelik, who appeared individually before large houses this past week, will give a joint recital in the Hippodrome Sunday evening, November 2. The artists will be assisted by Edmund Burke, an Irish baritone, who appeared with Mme. Melba at Covent Garden and at her recent concerts in England and on the Continent. Other assisting artists will be Gabriel Lapiere, pianist, and Marcel Moysse, flutist. For this concert a programme of widespread variety and strong popular appeal has been arranged. Mme. Melba will sing the "Mad Scene" from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," with a flute obligato by Mr. Marcel Moysse, and Tolsti's "Good-by" by special request. To Mr. Kubelik's obligato she will sing the aria "Il re Pastore," from Mozart's "Figaro."

Marie Morrisey gives a song recital in Aeolian Hall Thursday evening, October 30. The contralto, who will be assisted by Harry M. Gilbert at the piano, will sing the following programme:

- Danza, Danza, Faciulla Gentile.....Durante
- Cade la Sera.....Millozzi
- Confusa, Smarrita, Spiegarti Vorrei.....Pergolesi
- Placer d'Amor.....Martini
- Chanson Slave.....Chaminade

The Longy Modern Chamber Music Society consisting of twenty members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of M. Georges Longy, announces a series of performances at Aeolian Hall on Saturday evenings, November 8, December 6, January 10, February 21 and March 21. This society will be entering a new field that, while giving a very serious encouragement to art, will permit artists and dilettanti to know of works of value that are ignored.

S. Albert.

With the gradual disappearance of men of strong individuality from the retail business in various branches, there comes to the minds of men a feeling of deep regret as one after another have succumbed to the inevitable.

When a business man is strong enough to meet the onslaughts of merciless competition waged by these overpowering capitalists, people "take off their hats" to him and encourage him to greater achievement.

In this latter class belongs S. Albert, the popular druggist of Lenox avenue at One Hundred and Sixteenth street, who established his business in 1900 and whose continuous growth since that time is one grand triumphal procession, based upon the "golden rule" (absolutely no substitution) to which he has strictly adhered all these years, thereby obtaining the confidence of his patrons and the esteem of the medical profession, both of which are absolutely essential to the success of a prescription specialist, such as Mr. Albert is. It must be remembered, that in compounding prescriptions the pharmacist is the intermediary between physician and patient and necessarily in many cases between life and death.

This responsibility has been met by Mr. Albert, hence his prescription trade is one of the largest of any individual druggist in the city.

Recently, Mr. Albert enlarged his store by the addition of another floor, that has greatly increased his facilities for accommodating his customers and has enabled him to give better service for those requiring trusses, bandages and surgical appliances, which he manufactures.

The drug and prescription departments he conducts in the most progressive way, buying in large quantities and selling at cut prices; in fact, Albert's is the ideal "cut price" store and the reductions are always made only on standard goods. This is one of the reasons why the syndicate druggists are unable to "butt in" on his trade, who literally believe the correct thing to do is "Get it at Albert's," who personally supervises every detail of his business.

There is an unusual degree of interest manifested in the latest Belasco comedy success, "Years of Discretion," which David Belasco will send to the Grand Opera House for the week of November 3. The play comes direct from its long run at the Belasco Theatre, where for the greater part of last season its universal appeal made it the most popular dramatic attraction in Manhattan. Every one loves a love story, particularly if the tale is one of happiness and one that has no very serious side, and in this respect Frederick Hatton and Fanny Locke Hatton, the authors of "Years of Discretion," prepared an ideal plot. Its situations are delicious, and while the wiles of Cupid are often mildly satired, the main object of the play is to provoke laughter, and in this particular it succeeds admirably. To enact this subtle and exquisitely drawn play, Mr. Belasco selected actors of keen intelligence and broad experience, giving us in one cast Effie Shannon, Alice Putnam, Herbert Kelsey, John Flood, Louis Massen, Robert McWade, Jr., E. M. Holland, Grant Mitchell and Cambilla Dalberg, all being sufficiently distinguished to cause the company to be heralded as a stellar organization.

Gastroaids—A New Preparation for All Stomach Troubles

While medical science is making rapid strides in the treatment of tuberculosis, cancer, spinal-meningitis, diphtheria, etc. it has not overlooked the importance of the digestive organs. Without perfect, normal digestion, no human being can attain the maximum of efficiency, strength, weight or health. It is now known that more diseases have their origin from malnutrition than any other cause.

"I had tuberculosis a few years ago," said a New York publisher recently, "and I got it because my stomach wouldn't digest my food to nourish my body."

The medical world has recently perfected a remarkable preparation for the stomach called GASTROAIDS. It is for all forms of dyspepsia and indigestion, sour, acid stomach, bitter taste, swimming head, greasy risings, pains after eating, etc., which every dyspeptic knows only too well. Now we say "try it" and know the joys of being able to eat any kind of food at any time in any manner. It is truly a great preparation, highly endorsed and thoroughly guaranteed. At any druggist's for 10c, 25c, or 50c, or from Curtis Chemical Company, 117 East 24th Street, New York City. Remember, it's GASTROAIDS.

BROOKLYN NOTES.

Home for the Aged.

The building is completed, and to enable them to properly furnish and equip it the officers and members will hold a grand bazaar during the week of November 16-23 at the Home building, Howard and Dumont avenues.

The society at present numbers 4,000 on its membership roll, and each member is taking an active interest in the success of the bazaar. Some handsome and valuable donations have been secured, although a considerable number are still required to insure a great success. Donations may be sent to the society at the Home building, from whence proper acknowledgment will be made.

Hebrew Educational Society.

Congressman Herman A. Metz addressed an enthusiastic audience on Sunday evening, October 26. He described the work of Congress, indicating the duties of important committees and the methods by which legislation is accomplished.

Events for the forthcoming week are as follows: This (Friday) evening, October 31, lecture by Mr. Leo Jacobs on "Ethical Ideals"; Saturday evening, November 1, a senior club dance, under the auspices of the Freres Club; Sunday afternoon, November 2, talk by Mr. David P. Berenberg, on "The Theory of Debating"; Sunday evening, November 2, lecture by Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass, entitled "What Are We Doing for the Social Improvement of the Young People of Brownsville?"

Williamsburg Y. M. H. A.

To increase the funds of the Y. M. H. A. of Williamsburg arrangements have been completed to hold a ball at the Masonic Temple, Lafayette and Clermont avenues, on Saturday night, November 29. Louis Lorence and A. Maurice Levine, the chairman and secretary, respectively, of the committee, who are in attendance at the association building, No. 167 Clymer street, every evening except Friday, are gratified with the sale of and requests for tickets.

The monthly Sunday lectures will be resumed November 16. Milton M. Adler, the executive director, has placed the gymnasium classes under his personal supervision, but the large attendance at such classes has made it necessary for him to give a special course for leaders, with a view of obtaining assistants.

Brooklyn Y. M. H. A.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association of Brooklyn is now increasing in membership every week. This season promises to be one of the most successful in its history. Every evening classes in stenography and typewriting, bookkeeping, public speaking, civics, civil service, mechanical draughting and first aid to the injured are attended by enthusiastic young men, while the gymnasium, with its new equipment of apparatus, is increasing in attendance every day.

On Sunday evening, November 2, the Lincoln Club will give its first sociable of the season. A splendid programme, both literary and musical, has been arranged and the guests of the club are promised a pleasant and enjoyable evening.

On the following Sunday, November 9, Deputy Police Commissioner Neuberger will give a talk on the practical problems of policing New York City. This will be the second meeting of the Civic Forum, which proved so successful last month. His lecture will be followed by discussions and questions on the part of the audience. The same evening a splendid musical programme will be given.

Rockaway Beach Y. M. H. A.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association of Rockaway Beach has started to arrange for its annual ball to be given in Arion Hall on the evening of December 6. The money cleared at the affair will be put in a fund the association is raising to build a clubhouse on Fairview avenue. The association owns a plot on that street, and its intention is to build a house costing $15,000, a part of which sum has been raised.

The Ladies' Auxillary of the Hebrew School of Flatbush, recently organized has already achieved such a success that the opening of the school for instruction in Jewish history is only a matter of a few weeks.

The famous Russian actress, Madame Nazimova, beautiful, intellectual, exo'ic, fragile, aerle, orchid-like, as she is described by the best dramatic reviewers in the country, presented by Charles Frohman, comes to the Montauk Theatre for an engagement of one week, beginning Monday evening, November 3, with matinees on Tuesday (Election Day) and Saturday, presenting her new and most successful play, "Bella Donna," an adaptation of the famous novel of the same name, by Robert Hichens, that has been made by James Bernard Fagan. Nazimova, in presenting "Bella Donna," brings it to this theatre from its successful run at the Empire Theatre in Manhattan. With her spell of personality and her individuality, as Mrs. Chepstow, the Bella Donna of the play, Nazimova is on every hand conceded to be superb and absorbingly fascinating. In roles calling for strong emotional work Nazimova is generally conceded to be the foremost of the English-speaking actresses. The dramatization follows the novel very closely.

Roble's "Beauty Show" will be next week's attraction at the Star Theatre. The cast includes Libbie Blonderle, Augusta Lang, Doris Thayer, Charles McCarthy, Harry Bentley, Johnny Walker, Ernest Fisher, and Sam Green. A new two-act travesty, "Oh, Oh, Josephine!" will be presented. Some special features have been engaged for next Sunday's afternoon and evening concerts.

IN THE SYNAGOGUES.

ADATH ISRAEL (Bronx).—Rabbi Mayer Kopfstern will preach Sabbath morning on "Providence."

AGUDATH JESHORIM.—Rabbi David Davidson preaches Sabbath morning on "Our Waning Civilization."

BETH ISRAEL BIKUR CHOLIM.—Rabbi Aaron Elseman preaches Sabbath morning on "The Citizen's Great Opportunity." The Beth Israel Sisterhood will hold its regular fortnightly meeting on Wednesday afternoon November 5 at 2:30 o'clock in the vestry rooms of the synagogue.

SHAARI ZEDEK OF HARLEM.—Rev. Dr. Adolph Spiegel preaches Sabbath morning on "The Perpetuation of the Human Race."

SINAI (Bronx).—Rabbi Max Reichler will preach this evening on "Notoriety or Fame"; Sabbath Morning, "Our Generation." The Sinai Sisterhood will hold an open meeting on Monday afternoon.

SINAI (Mt. Vernon).—Dr. J. I. Gorfinkle preaches this evening on "Striving for Ideals."

YOUNG MEN'S HEBREW ASSOCIATION.—Rabbi Sidney E. Goldstein will be the speaker this evening. Rev. Bernard Steinberg will conduct the services. YOUNG PEOPLE'S (Educational Alliance).—Rabbi Jacob B. Grossman will preach this evening on "Religion and Ethics." Children's Sabbath afternoon service Rabbi Grossman will lecture on "A Righteous Man." Monday evening Bible Story Hour, Rabbi Grossman will discuss "The Life of Moses."

YOUNG WOMEN'S HEBREW ASSOCIATION.—The speaker at services this evening will be Mr. Herbert S. Goldstein, of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

SOCIAL.

We are informed that the announcement in a recent issue that Mr. and Mrs. L. Ritter celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary on October 16 was an error.

Dr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Adleston, of 73 East Ninety-second street (Holland Court) will be at home on Thursday evenings after this week.

On Sunday evening, October 19, Mrs. Regina Margaret gave a supper at her residence, No. 212 East Seventy-ninth street, in honor of her mother, Mrs. Mary Horowitz, who celebrated her birthday on that day. The guests numbered over 100 and included Mrs. Horowitz's children, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

A wedding of unusual interest was that which was solemnized at the Kehillah Jeshurun Synagogue, East Eighty-fifth street, on Sunday last, the contracting parties being Miss Rayner Parver and Mr. Louis J. Frank, Superintendent of the Beth Israel Hospital. Hon. Joseph Levinson was best man and Messrs. Irving Parver, Fred Engel, Emil Greenberg and Dr. Charles Gottlieb were the ushers. The matron of honor was Mrs. Sol. W. Kramer and the bridesmaids were the Misses Fae Barasch, Bernice Rosenberg, Anna Sommers and Bertha Landsman. There were present a number of men and women interested in communal work besides the entire directorate and house and visiting staffs of the Beth Israel Hospital.

Mr. William A. Brady will present the greatest of Broadway successes, "Bought and Paid For," at the Royal Theatre, Bronx, for the week beginning Monday, November 3. This great comedy-drama ran for over a season at the "Playhouse" in Manhattan, and although it has been steadily presented throughout the country during the past seasons by no less than six companies theatregoers do not seem to get enough of it.

RABIB AKIBA

Dear Children:

Rabbi Akiba was very self-sacrificing in everything that pertained to his holy religion. Once, when the Roman Government cast him in prison, they allowed Rabbi Joshua Hagarci to attend to him. Everyday he brought him a certain measure of water. One day the turnkey looked suspiciously at the measure of water Rabbi Joshua was about to bring him. "It seems that you are bringing the prisoner too much water," said he, "perhaps you desire to undermine the foundation of his prison with it?" He made him pour out half of it. When he came to Rabbi Akiba the latter said: "O Joshua! do you not know that I am an old man, and that my very life depends upon yours, then why did you bring me such a small quantity of water?" Rabbi Joshua thereupon told him what happened. "Give me some water to wash my hands," said Rabbi Akiba (for we are not allowed to eat any bread before we wash our hands). "Why!" exclaimed Rabbi Joshua, "there is not enough there for you to drink and yet you want to wash your hands!" Said Rabbi Akiba: "What shall I do? It is the death of the soul to transgress the command of the Rabbins. I would rather have my body die from thirst than have my soul perish by transgressing the teachings of my companions." It is related that he refused to taste anything before water was brought to him and he washed his hands. When the Sages heard of it they said: "When he is so self-sacrificing in the feebleness of old age, how much more so in the strength of youth, when he thus observes the tenets of his faith in prison, how much more so when a free man!"

Rabbi Akiba always expounded the doctrine that Providence never performs a miracle for anyone unless he merits it through the performance of some worthy action, and he usually related some fact to prove the truth of his maxim. He was fond of relating this story: "Once," said he, "while crossing the ocean, I witnessed a shipwreck and was in great distress concerning the fate of a certain disciple of the Sages who took passage upon that ship and who was sinking, and when I reached the city of Capodocia, I saw him sitting before me and asking me questions of Jewish law. I asked him: 'My son, how were you saved from the ocean?' 'Rabbi!' said he, 'your prayer caused one wave to cast me upon another, and thus from wave to wave until they cast me upon dry land.' I then asked him: 'What meritorious deed did you perform?' He answered: 'When I was about to board the ship a poor man accosted me and said "Merit through me!" (meaning "give me alms and it will cause you to become meritorious"), and I gave him a loaf of bread. The poor man then said to me: "As you have saved my life through your gift, so may your life be saved." I then quoted as applicable to him," said Rabbi Akiba, as he finished the story, "the saying of Ecclesiastes: 'Cast thy bread upon the waters.'" Rabbi Akiba always mourned over the terrible loss of twelve thousand of his disciples who died from a pestilence during the seven weeks between Passover and Pentecost—and this pious martyr, who always pointed to the hand of Providence in everything, be it reward or punishment, was thus wont to say to his remaining seven disciples, who were Rabbi Judah, Rabbi Nehimiah, Rabbi Meir, Rabbi Jose, Rabbi Simon Ben Jochai, Rabbi Eliezer, the son of Rabbi Jose the Gallilean, and Rabbi Jochanan Ha Sandlar: "The first disciples would not have died had they not meanly withheld the information of the Torah from one another, Be ye not so!" Thereupon they arose and filled the entire Land of Israel with a knowledge of the Torah.

Rabbi Akiba was ever the example and inspiration of sublime faith. Once Rabban Gamliel and Rabbi Eleazar Ben Azaria, and Rabbi Joshua, and Rabbi Akiba were walking together, they heard the tumultuous noise of the city of Rome at a distance of one hundred and twenty miles. They began to weep while Rabbi Akiba laughed. "Why do you laugh?" they asked. "And why do you weep?" said he to them. Said they to him: "Behold these idol worshippers dwelling in security while the house that served as the footstool of the Lord is burnt down." "That is just why I rejoice," said Rabbi Akiba, "when he is so good to the transgressors of His will, so much more will He yet be good to us, who perform His commandments." Another time they went up to Jerusalem. When they reached Mount Zophim they rent their garments. When they reached the temple-mount they saw a fox going out of the ruins of the Holy of Holies. They began to weep while Rabbi Akiba laughed. "Why do you laugh?" they asked. "And why do you weep?" said he. "Shall we not weep when we see foxes walk about the place of which it was said: 'and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death'" said they. "Therefore do I rejoice," answered he, "because it is prophesied by Isaiah: 'And I was to summon for myself trustworthy witnesses, Uriah, the priest, and Zecharyahu, the son of Yeberchahu.' What connection is there between the two. Uriah lived during the first temple, and Zecharyahu during the second temple—but the prophesy of one is dependent upon that of the other. Of Uriah's time it was prophesied by Micha: 'Therefore for your sake shall Zion be ploughed up as a field,' while Zecharia prophesied: 'Again there shall sit old men and old women in the streets of Jerusalem.' Before the prophesy of Uriah was fulfilled I feared lest the prophesy of Zecharia will not be fulfilled, but now that the prophesy of Uriah was fulfilled, I am sure the prophesy of Zecharia will be fulfilled." Said they: "Akiba, thou hast comforted us, Akiba, thou hast comforted us."

The street-corner Socialist orator was waxing very eloquent on the social problem, and as a matter of elucidation he asked his audience:

"If you saw a portly gentleman, dressed in the clothes that you worked for, stepping from the motor car that was produced by your labor, and smoking a Turkish cigarette that you could be smoking, what ought you to say to him?"

There was silence for a moment, and then the piping voice of a boy at the back of the crowd replied:

"Got any cigarette pictures?"

EXPLANATION - MATTER IN ITALICS IN NEW MATTER IN BRACKETS [] IS OLD MATTER TO BE OMITTED.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE, Albany, July 22, 1913. - Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section two hundred and ninety-five of the Election Law, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is to be submitted to the people for approval at the next general election in this State to be held on the fourth day of November, nine hundred and thirteen. MITCHELL MAY, secretary of state.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.
Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, Proposing an amendment to section seven, article seven, of the constitution, in relation to storage reservoirs and hydraulic developments in the forest preserve.

Section 1. Revisued (if the Assembly concur). That section seven of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: [7. For a preserve. The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired [] constituting the forest reserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest land. They shall not be used, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. But the legislature may by general laws provide for the use of not exceeding three per centum of such lands for the construction and maintenance of reservoirs for municipal water supply, for the rearing of the state and to regulate the flow of streams. Such reservoirs shall be constructed, owned and controlled by the state, but such work shall not be undertaken until after the boundaries and high flow lines thereof shall have been accurately surveyed and fixed, and after public notice, hearing and determination that such lands are required for such public use. The expense of any such improvements shall be apportioned on the public and private property and municipalities benefited to the extent of the benefits received. Any such reservoir shall always be operated by the state and the legislature shall provide for a charge upon the property and municipalities benefited for a reasonable return to the state upon the value of the rights and property of the state used and the services of the state rendered, which shall be fixed for terms of not exceeding ten years and be readjustable at the end of any term. Unsanitary conditions shall not be created or continued by any such public works. A violation of any of the provisions of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or, with the consent of the supreme court in appellate division, on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen. [2. Resolved (if the Assembly concur). That the foregoing amendment be submitted to the people for approval at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, in accordance with the provisions of the election law.]

State of New York, In Senate, April 14, 1913. - The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, MARTIN H. GILLYN, President.

State of New York, In Assembly, April 30, 1913. - The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, ALFRED E. SMITH, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, Albany, July 22, 1913. - I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-second day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. [L. S.] MITCHELL MAY, Secretary of State.

FORM FOR SUBMISSION OF AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.
Shall the proposed amendment to Section Seven of Article Seven of the Constitution, designated in the election notice as Amendment Number Four, providing for the use by the state of not to exceed three per centum of the forest preserve lands for the construction and maintenance of state-controlled reservoirs for municipal water supply, for the canals of the state and for the regulation of the flow of streams, and imposing regulations for the apportionment between property and municipalities benefited of the expense thereof, be approved?
