THE AMULET

By Edward Eliscu

He was known as the "wonder rabbi," Yitzchok ben Shimeon was, and anyone in the community taking ill or needing advice, materially or spiritually, he was the one to be appealed to. Yitzchok was anything but pleased at this state of affairs. He believed in God and wanted those who applied to him to believe in the same God and not have people lose their heads and put more stock and faith in his efforts than in their own with their petty questions and desires. To the best of his ability he tried to discourage the practice, but children are children in spite of their oldish garb, and Yitzchok's efforts to have the people desist from exalting his status proved futile.

The women especially believed his every word, and could always find some answer or excuse for whatever the rabbi did or said, however strange his actions. The men, too, had a great deal of faith in him, but were generally more conservative in their statements, while there were not lacking a few doubting Thomases as well, who generally found some plausible and natural way in which the alleged miracle had been performed.

Of course, this all made subject for discussion and argument, the gossiping women ever ready with a tale of how they personally had been cured, accompanied by head-nodding of other women, while the doubting Thomas would scoff, causing the assemblage to leave in a huff.

The least concerned was the rabbi, who cared not whether one believed or not. He never promised nor claimed anything, as it was the people who pinned on the alleged attributes of wonder to his cloak. To hope for the best was as far as he would commit himself.

As it would happen, the wife of Berel, one of the main scoffers, took seriously ill. Not being in very affluent circumstances, Berel notified his wife's mother of her condition, who in turn came post-haste to nurse her daughter.

became grave as the anticipated worst loomed up before them. Mother and husband sighed.

"There is only one thing left for you an amulet? If the doctor could not do anything—"

"Whatever he will give you you have nothing to lose. It may help Use your own head and let alone what others say. What possible value can a few words written on a piece of paper have? Answer me that?"

"I haven't studied and I don't care to argue nor do I care how the amulet works. She's my daughter, your wife. Do you want her to die and it be said of you that you refused to get an amulet from the rabbi?"

"But—"

"Do your butting afterward. Just now do as you are told or I'll tell everybody in town of your action. You hear?"

"All right, if it'll satisfy you any," said Berel doggedly, as he left for the rabbi, but with what faith need not be mentioned.

In the meantime the mother infused into her daughter all the enthusiasm possible, for she, too, had faith in the "wonder rabbi," who never had failed to give relief.

Whatever it was it would be sufficient, no matter what his method or suggestion. Berel's wife smiled. Already her eyes sparkled in anticipation, while her face for the first time in weeks became flushed and showed color.

Berel, on the other hand, did not hurry in his mission. Much as he respected the rabbi for his learning, still he had no faith in his healing methods, and, furthermore, he knew that the rabbi knew it. So he deliberated how he would approach him on the subject without making a fool of himself.

Reaching the rabbi's home, he was ushered into his presence, and in spite of his prearranged plan of approaching the subject he bluntly informed him of his quest.

"Since when have you changed your opinion about the efficacy of the amulet?"

"I haven't," said Berel. "It is for my wife. Her mother insisted upon having one, all other means having failed."

"But if you have no faith?" said the rabbi.

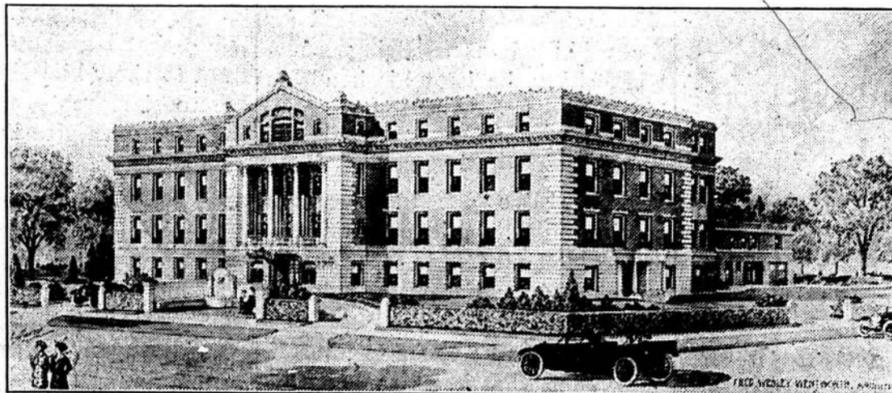

Home remedies failing, the local physician was called; but after two weeks' treatment, no relief being obtained, the faces of all concerned us to do," said the mother, "and that is to go to the rabbi."

"Humbug!" said Berel. "What will he do? Say something? Give and bring relief," protested the mother.

"Trash! Bring relief? Be reasonable! Be sensible, woman!

THE MIRIAM BARNERT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Recently there was laid at Paterson, N. J., the cornerstone for a beautiful hospital, the entire expense of which will be borne by Hon. Nathan Barnert. Mr. Barnert, who is an ex-Mayor of Paterson, has gained worldwide fame through his many charities, and this hospital, together with the Miriam Barnert Memorial Synagogue and the Miriam Barnert Memorial Hebrew Free School, form a trio of lasting monuments which this noble philanthropist has given to the Jews of Paterson.

"Please, it is not for myself."

"I don't think that you really want one. You are merely inquisitive."

"I give you my word that it is for my wife. I cannot go home without one. She'll think it an evil omen and cause dissension in the family."

"What if it should help? What would you say then?"

"What could I say, except change my opinion."

"Will you?"

"Yes—if it will help," added Berel.

"You surely are a skeptic."

Berel puckered his brow. "Wait a few minutes," said the rabbi, and he left the room. Some twenty minutes later the rabbi reappeared.

"I have prepared an amulet for your wife. It will help her and tell her so, and forget not to say that I said so. Understand? And I'm going to give it to you on the condition that after she is cured you will bring me back the amulet without opening it or in any way examining its contents. Agreed?"

"Agreed!" replied Berel, a cynical smile spreading over his face. "I promise to do as you say."

"Because if you break that promise something is apt to happen."

Berel nodded his head and the rabbi gave him the much-coveted amulet.

"Well, did he give it to you?" asked his mother-in-law on his return home.

"Yes, yes; he gave it to me."

"Don't hold it, but give it to me. You stand there like a fool!" Berel handed over the precious article. "I suppose you told him how much you believed in it," continued his mother-in-law sarcastically.

"That's enough. Let's see it work, and you can rub it in afterward," said Berel disgustedly.

"Well, he got it!" said her mother, triumphantly holding it up before her daughter and tying it about her neck. "And it is sure to cure. Soon you will get back your strength and color and be your old self again."

"I know I will, mother," said she, fondling the amulet.

Berel listened, smiled foolishly and left their presence. He was anxious to see his wife recover, but a few words written on a piece of paper—bah!

But the "bah!" did not work, while the amulet did. At any rate, Berel saw his wife gaining in strength before his very eyes. Within two days she was able to sit up and take nourishment; her eyes became clear and she laughed for joy as she felt herself getting stronger and stronger.

"Well, what did I tell you?" said Berel's mother-in-law. "What did I tell you?" she kept repeating again and again. It began to harp on his nerves, this constant digging, until he sought to avoid her.

In ten days Berel's wife was fully recovered from her illness, and it devolved upon him to return the amulet to the rabbi, as he had promised. Berel took it with misgivings. When he applied for it he said it was for his wife, in no way committing himself to its possible merits; but now that it had proved its virtue it humiliated Berel to acknowledge his error and doubts. However, after some deliberation he decided to keep his word, and, placing the sealed amulet in his pocket, he started for the rabbi's house. Being somewhat chilly, he kept his hands in his pockets, unconsciously fumbling the amulet.

"All the same," he mused to himself, "I've got to give him credit. Foolish as it seems, and inexplicable as it still is, it surely accomplished what the doctor failed." He continued fumbling the amulet as he spoke to himself. "I wonder what it really says, this fool amulet?" He took it out of his pocket and for the first time examined it closely. It looked innocent enough; in fact, the whole seal consisted of a little paste—just a little paste—and while turning it and inserting his finger in the crevice it opened by itself. "Now I've done it!" he said, in a startled voice. He looked at it again. "Well, since I've gone so far—" He looked about to see that no one was following or noticing his action, and, feeling himself secure, he turned down a side street.

Certain that no one was observing him, he spread open the secret missive. Berel was dumbfounded. He looked again, turned the paper this way and that; there was absolutely nothing thereon in any form or manner. He rubbed his eyes and again examined it; there was naught to be seen.

At first Berel laughed. "What did I tell those fool women?" Then he thought of the promise exacted from him with the threat attached. He became incensed.

"So he thought he could fool me with his amulet, eh? He got up against the wrong fellow this time and I'm going to show him up."

He smiled as he spoke. "I'll seal it up again and he'll never be the wiser. Only I'll lead up to it gradually; tell him of my doubts; dare him to open it; and then, well—it is not that I care so much, only I want to show him I'm not a woman to believe everything." He chuckled with glee in anticipation, then stepped into a store, obtained a little glue, sealed up the amulet and hastened quickly to the rabbi's house.

"Good morning! Good morning!" came the rabbi's cheery greeting upon Berel's entrance. "Good news, I hope, brings you here."

"Good morning," answered Berel.

"How fares your wife?"

"She's somewhat better," said Berel indifferently.

"Only somewhat?"

"Well, I'm glad to say she's about again."

"Well, that is good news." The rabbi eyed Berel suspiciously.

"And what can I do for you now?" he asked.

"Oh, I've brought back the amulet," said Berel, taking it out of his pocket and handing it to the rabbi. "You asked me to return it to you, you may remember."

"Oh, I remember it full well enough," said the rabbi, as he took the amulet. He immediately felt the moist glue, quickly glanced at Berel, who instinctively knew that he had been caught, and let his guilty gaze fall upon the floor. "Wet!" said the rabbi in an under-

A Russo-Jewish soldier has saved the life of the chairman of the notorious Jew-baiting organization, the Doub-headed Eagle. This is the precious society which has displayed such amiable activity in the spreading of the "b'ood libel," and if it had had its way there would have been no Jewish soldier in the ranks to preserve the life of its president in battle. That, however, is the Jews' way. While other people preach Christianity they practice it, and it is their happy privilege in life to be for ever heaping coals of fire on their enemies' heads. We notice that the gentleman whose life has been saved now "loudly praises the Jewish soldiers," while another fanatical colleague (M. Purishkevitch) has even gone to the alarming length of kissing them.—Jewish World.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Bavarian Barbarian's Comments.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:

Born in Germany—worse still, in the Kingdom of Bavaria—I am, according to Mr. Rudyard Kipling, a Hun. For, has not that glorifier of English victories over Indians, Negroes and Boers recently shouted: "And the Hun is at the gate!" The Hun, being of course German. (At Calais, perhaps, before this letter reaches the indulgent reader.)

But far worse than that I am (also, taking Mr. Maurice Maeterlinck's word for it) a Barbarian. To be sure the author of "Peleas and Melisande" has only recently discovered that fact. Some years ago when his royalties from the German performances of "Monna Vanna" mounted up into the thousands he described Germany as "the conscience of Europe."

The consciousness of being a Hun fills my mind with gloom—to be stigmatized as a Barbarian grieves me profoundly. If my outraged feelings have not yet caused me to throw myself into the Isar it is because of the consolation that Ernst Haeckel and Rudolf Eucken, Wilhelm Wundt and Cohen of Marburg, Gerhart Hauptmann and Richard Dehmel, Heigel, Marcks and Oppenheim of Berlin are also Huns and Barbarians.

Pardon the humble scribe for citing these illustrious names, which, after all, carry more weight than those of Kipling and Maeterlinck, Bergson and H. G. Wells or those of the forty-five English poets, artists, musicians, philosophers, etc., etc., whose indictment of the German nation has recently been sent forth from London (Morley Trevelyan and Bernard Shaw are, it seems, still sane).

Hardly had I penned the above paragraphs when a still more staggering blow and one from which I can hardly ever hope to recover, prostrated me mentally and physically.

I am no longer, according to Stephen S. Wise, within the pale of "culture and civilization." Now the eloquent rabbi does not of course single me out, but according to his note to the New York "Times," wherein he approves of the anti-German editorials in that nambly-pamby sheet, he implies as much.

Now, the terms "culture and civilization" have been banded about a good deal since the beginning of August, and one may interpret them in various ways. Thus in England culture may go hand in hand with dum-dum cartridges, and in Russia, civilization sometimes consists in robbing and then murdering Jewish men, in violating and then murdering Jewish women.

If Rabbi Wise will consult the files of the New York "Times" he will find in a Sunday issue published a few months ago, a carefully prepared article, wherein the complicity of the Russian Government in the Pogroms was clearly proven.

In this connection an interview with the famous Rabbi of Sadagord, who lives in Galicia, may be cited. While the clergyman was sojourning in Vienna a few days ago he said to a reporter of the Vienna "Journal":

"From the viewpoint of humanity, I am, of course, opposed to the war. But every day I pray to God that Austria will win. No one knows, not even the gentlemen of the press, how horribly our brethren are treated in Russia. The victims have come to me and have told me of outrages so vile that no newspaper would dare to describe them. And now the vengeance of God will befall these Russians, for what they have done to our brethren."

After all, Rabbi Wise, I prefer the culture and civilization of Germany. And in order to preserve and defend that culture and that civilization, the German people have drawn the sword.—The German people—not merely the Emperor or the military party as most American newspapers assert with such amazing ignorance, stupidity and malice.

For can it be aught else than malice which prompts the New York "Herald" to print in big type these headlines: "Starving German Soldiers Devour Dogs." "The Crown Prince Killed and His Army Annihilated." "The Austrian Emperor Dying." And what is it but stupidity that causes the "Times" to characterize the struggle as "a dynastic war." Or is it not monumental ignorance when another paper, whose name I cannot just now recall, announces: "The German Baltic fleet cannot pass the Dardanelles?"

Dr. Max Nordau, concerning whose safety fears had been expressed, is in Madrid, from whence he has sent a post card on which he writes: "From the day of the declaration of war until September 2, we were all in Paris. From August 10 I lived like a prisoner, not daring to leave my house in the day time, for owing to the enmity of the neighbors, it would have been dangerous to do so. In spite of the police order we fled from Paris on the third of September to * * * There I left my family with friends (when shall I see them again?) On the way to Spain I was arrested in Bordeaux and threatened with all manner of punishment. The least of these threats was the prospect of being sent to a fortress, where I should be forbidden to read newspapers or to write or receive letters. The intervention of a colleague caused my release after three days' detention and I was glad to resume my journey to Madrid, where I shall probably have to remain until peace is declared."

Central Committee Issues Appeal for the War Sufferers.

The Central Committee for the Relief of Jews Suffering from the War, the organization and composition of which was recently noted in these columns, has issued the following appeal:

To the Jews of America:
Our brethren are dying. Widows and orphans are wandering, homeless, naked and hungry. Women, old and young, with their little ones, and the aged find no refuge. In every land that we or our fathers once called home bloody war, with all its unspeakable horrors, stalks abroad; thousands of villages have been ravaged and great cities laid waste. Mourning, they lift up their eyes, whence shall come their help!

More than half of the Jews of the world are overwhelmed in the present conflict. The condition of our brethren in Palestine, also, is past description. Its institutions can no longer be supported by the generosity of our brethren in Europe, as to-day the Jews of Europe are themselves sore beset.

Another most serious condition brought about by the war must not be overlooked. Thousands among us have regularly sent money to our families and friends "at home" to help our less fortunate kinsmen.

All the world is looking to us for aid and direction. We will surely not be deaf to their prayers.

We have therefore formed in New York a committee of representative rabbis and laymen to help our co-religionists in Europe and Palestine.

This committee is extending its organization throughout the United States and appeals to you to join it. It asks you either to call a meeting in your synagogue, or to join with others to call a meeting in your city, at which contributions shall be collected, local officers elected and representatives chosen to be added to our Central Committee in New York. We want at least two representatives in each city of the United States to be in constant communication with us, in order to organize the Jews of America into one compact body, ready and willing to raise a large relief fund for Jews suffering through the war.

Remember—This war has ruined hundreds of thousands of our brethren.

Remember—No one can tell, to-day, whether his own relatives are not refugees far from their own home.

Remember—That the assistance of this committee may save the lives of those who are near and dear to you. You cannot know where your own father or mother, sister or brother is. Your help though us may help them.

And remember that this war will cause an amount of suffering unprecedented in history. Ways and means must be devised to raise an enormous amount of money at once, and to continue the effort throughout the weeks and months, aye, possibly even through the next few years to come.

This committee is preparing plans which will enable every one to help daily, weekly and monthly, without taxing the resources of any one beyond his means.

Join us at once. Send in your name and the names of those associated with you to the secretary of the committee, The Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, the Agudas Harabonim, The Mizrahi and the Central Committee of Palestine Institutions are all represented on this committee. A large number of collections have already been made in response to their appeals. All amounts should be remitted as soon as possible to the financial secretary of this committee, and checks drawn made payable to the order of the treasurer.

Five thousand dollars has been sent to a committee of Palestine Jews comprising Gedalia N. Broder, Isaac Chagis, Joseph Wilaschar, Behr Einstein, Saul Isaac Freund, Dr. Isaac Levy, Solomon Perlman, Alter Rivlin, Dr. Arthur Rubin, Solomon Rubin, Wolf Schocher, Salmon Solowelschik, Aaron Vallero, David Yellin.

Five thousand dollars has been sent to the Israelische Alliance, Vienna, for the relief of Gallician Jews and $1,000 for the Yeshibath.

In securing the services of Mr. Harry Fischel as treasurer the committee has obtained the advantage of his wide acquaintance throughout the United States. All moneys received by him are deposited in the Guaranty Trust Company of America. Arrangements will be made through the accredited representatives of the United States Government to forward money to our stricken brethren as soon as we can get in touch with responsible people in all the war zones, who will distribute it without favor for the immediate relief of the Jewish widows and orphans, sick and wounded, aged and infirm, in short, to all those who will die of hunger and cold unless you promptly help.

Concert at Ellis Island.

Thanks to the kindness of Immigration Commissioner Frederic C. Howe, the aliens detained at Ellis Island had a concert Sunday afternoon that afforded them great pleasure, and was artistic enough in its character to please the most fastidious of the large audience that came to listen. The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America made arrangements with the Hebrew Orphan Asylum for their band of fifty boys, under the leadership of Mr. Solomon Moses, for many years a trustee. These concerts are given every Sunday afternoon on arrival of the 2 o'clock boat, and while intended primarily for the immigrants, are open to the general public, as part of Commissioner Howe's plans is to make Ellis Island one of the recreation points of New York city.

Banquet Tendered to Mr. J. Sprayregen.

On the occasion of Mr. Joshua Sprayregen, Sgan Shani of the Order Sons of Zion, being appointed assistant Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, the Executive Committee of the Order Sons of Zion tendered a banquet in his honor, at which a great number of prominent Zionists and guests were present. The chairman of the evening was Mr. Joseph Baroness, Nasi of the order. The following gentlemen addressed the gathering: Joshua Sprayregen, Louis Lipsky, Ab. Goldberg, Dr. Hyman J. Epstein, Isaac Allen, Max Perlman, F. Zeldman and Rabbi Melamed. Mrs. Jeannette Baroness Zuckerman and Mr. Lazar S. Samoiloff sang Zionist and Jewish songs.

Annual Meeting of Montefiore Home.

The annual meeting of the contributors of the Montefiore Home will be held at the institution, Gun Hill road (East 210th street), near Jerome avenue, on Sunday morning, November 8, 1914, at 11 o'clock, at which time the annual reports of the president and committees will be submitted and such other business will be transacted as may lawfully be brought before the meeting.

Polls for the reception of ballots will be open for the election of eight directors in place of Messrs. Leo D. Greenfield, Sol. R. Guggenheim, Harold M. Lehman, Walter E. Meyer, Joseph Obermeyer, Jacob H. Schiff, Dudley D. Sicher and Ferd. Sulzberger, to serve for three years, and one director in place of Mr. Herman Lissner, to serve for one year.

Ohab Zedek Sisterhood.

There are at present 170 children receiving a thorough Jewish education in the Talmud Torah maintained by the Ohab Zedek Sisterhood and in order to provide necessary funds for the continuation of the work, a reception and ball will be held on Thanksgiving Eve, November 25, at the Majestic Hotel, Central Park West and Seventy-second street.

The children of the Talmud Torah recently sent a donation for the relief of the war sufferers and received the following acknowledgment:

"New York, Oct. 30, 1914.

"It gives me very great pleasure to send you inclosed official receipt for the $3.75 contributed toward our funds for the relief of the Jewish sufferers through the war. I note that this contribution has been collected from the children attending your Talmud Torah and that it is made up of gifts of individual pennies contributed by the children and that the largest contribution was five ($.05) cents.

"This is the first direct contribution that we have received in this way, and it is for that reason that I desire to express to you and through you to the children our appreciation of it. The calamity which faces so many millions of our brethren is one that has never been paralleled in the history of the world, and it calls for the co-operation of every man, woman and child of our faith. The unsolicited contribution from your children merits the greatest approbation.

"Please convey our thanks to your children and accept the same for yourself in behalf of every member of this committee.

"Very truly yours,
"ALBERT LUCAS,
"Secretary."

Young Israel.

Young Israel will resume its activities for the coming season with renewed vigor. It has arranged a course of Sunday evening lectures, to be held at its headquarters, 205 East Broadway. The first of these lectures will be delivered this Sunday evening, November 8, by the Rev. Dr. M. Hyamson, of the Orach Chaim Synagogue, on the subject, "Roman Law vs. Jewish Law." The lecture will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society.

A tablet in memory of Mrs. Rose N. Lesser will be unveiled at the Home of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, at 229-231 East Broadway, Sunday, November 8, 1914, at 3.30 p. m.

Mrs. Lesser was the founder and first president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Hebrew Sheltering House, and was for many years an ardent worker for the institution. She visited the home almost daily, mixed with the immigrants and other inmates, spreading cheer, comfort and sound advice among them. After the death of Mrs. Lesser the name of the society was changed to the Rose N. Lesser Auxiliary Society of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, and it now has about 1,200 members. Mrs. Leon Kamaly is now president of the auxiliary. Friends of Mrs. Lesser and friends of the institution are invited to attend the ceremonies.

Congregation Pincus Elijah.

By special invitation of the president, Rev. Henry S. Morais occupied the pulpit last Sabbath morning and preached a forcible sermon on Abraham's character, as compared with his times. The sermon was very well received.

Probably the most unique entertainment of its kind will be found in next week's attraction at the Star Theatre. The offering is known as "The Review of 1915," and is under the sole direction of Henry P. Dixon. Mr. Dixon requires little introduction to local theatre-goers, for the organization that bears his name has been a standard contribution in burlesque for many years. It is a decided departure from the rank and file of shows now currying public favor. From start to finish one is confronted with features, surprises and novelties out of the beaten path. Besides a chorus of twenty girls who know how to sing and dance, the company can boast of such performers as Harry Le Van, Claire De Vine, Helen (Patsy) Delaney, Florence Brooks, Charles Saxon, Sam Drane, Greta Skelly, and others.

tone, yet loud enough for Berel to hear. There was silence for a few moments.

"Let me not play the fool," said Berel, as he felt the insinuation. "Let me admit it frankly. In the first place, my wife is fully recovered. Naturally, my curiosity was aroused as to what the amulet contained, and the fact that you said I should not open the amulet made me still more inquisitive."

"And you opened it?"
"Yes."

"In spite of your promise not to do so?"

"Yes."

"And the dire result that might follow if you did?"

"Yes, I did; but—"

"Truly was it said we were a stiff-necked people. And you know less now than you did before."

"Less, as you say." Both men looked at each other. "But you must explain, even if I do pay for it. It was absolutely blank on both sides. Do you call that an amulet?"

"Yes."

"With nothing in it?"

"Nothing!" exclaimed the rabbi in surprise. "Has it not accomplished the desired result?"

"But there was not a mark," protested Berel.

"Are you positive?"

"Yes; at least when I looked in it."

"Ah! now you are qualifying your remark."

"But surely it did not evaporate."

"Who knows?"

"Nonsense!"

"So!" The rabbi leaned back in his chair. "You remember in Deuteronomy where Moses reminds the Israelites of the golden calf which came forth while he was on the mount? How he was ordered down from the mount because of the transgression, carrying the tablets of the Law in his hands—remember?"

Berel nodded his head affirmatively.

"And, further, it says," continued the rabbi, "and Moses looked!" At what? The letters had sprung from the tablets. The tablets without the laws were useless—mere stone—and had Moses delivered and the people accepted the laws Israel would have been bound by their contents and would have been wiped out for its idolatry. It was Moses' foresight in breaking the tablets that saved the situation."

"But what has that to do with the amulet?" asked Berel dubiously.

"I told you when you called for the amulet not to open it or seek its contents, and if you did dire results might follow."

"Yes."

"You did contrary to my injunction, but, having compassion on your wife and not wishing her to suffer for your action, why—"

Berel was watching the rabbi, and as he spoke he grasped hold of the arms of the chair, as with bulging eyes he arose.

"You mean to say," Berel blurted out. He could say no more. He remained standing, his body swaying. "You mean to say," he again muttered. Berel backed to the door, nervously tugged at his beard, bowed, shuddered in taking a parting glance, and, accomplishing his retreat, wended his way home.

The same libels are also communicated to the anti-Semitic press, and in a few cases they carried great weight with the Russian generals who were ignorant of the situation. Fortunately, many orthodox priests and Russian officials took the part of the Jews, and in a number of cases proving their innocence and averting their exile from the district.

NEWS FROM ENGLAND

(Exclusive Correspondence to the HEBREW STANDARD)

[While we implicitly observe in spirit and letter President Wilson's admonition to the American people to maintain a strict neutrality in the present European conflict, we publish the following as a personal and subjective expression of the opinion of one of our regular contributors, and it should in no way be construed as the personal opinion of the editor of this publication, whose opinions are expressed only on the editorial page.—Ed. Hebrew Standard.]

War the Prevailing Topic in London—You can't Get Away from It—Funds for Belgian Jewish Refugees—Industry Shaping Better—Jewish Battalion Mooted—Fine New Book on Jewish Life in Modern Times.

London, Oct. 23, 1914.

You can't get away from the war if you live in London. You wake up with it in the morning and go to bed with it at night. It meets you when you open your morning newspaper whatever page you try. General news is only a weakling nowadays and is tucked away in some obscure column of a later page. You live with the war all day long, and if by any chance you might forget it for a while in the evening it is brought back to you very forcibly by means of darkened streets and the early closing of those saloons which were formerly such big contributors to the night lighting of the town.

The aspect of London in the evening nowadays is a revelation. The occasional street lamps that are left alight have black caps on them, so that no light goes up to the sky, and the illumination that is left in the streets is frequently still further reduced by blue or black markings on the bottom halves of the lamps. There are no external lights over shops, stores, theatres, music halls, movies, hotels, restaurants, private houses, etc. Even the illumination of the store, shop and other retailers' windows is reduced to a quarter, an eighth or a sixteenth of what it was recently. In the suburban shop windows, in fact, where formerly incandescent gas mantles shed a blinding effulgence bringing out into strong relief the smallest article exhibited for sale, the public has to get along with perhaps a couple of tallow candles.

This wiping out of practically the whole of the town's lighting is, of course, in response to police regulations and is intended to render difficult and in fact impossible the task of picking out important buildings by any stray Zeppelin that may visit our shores. The only light that does rise to the heavens at night-time now is furnished by the long investigating beams of the searchlights that are mounted on various public buildings, railway stations, etc., and which search the skies till dawn to discover the elusive Zeppelin. Nothing has come our way yet and nothing is expected to come—but you never know.

During the day you cannot walk about the streets without coming across individuals, families and groups obviously and distinctly refugees from Belgium. There is also a tremendous proportion of military uniforms now seen on the streets. Khaki seems ubiquitous, whether worn by regiments route marching or just stray soldiers spending their spare time seeing the sights.

What space the newspapers can spare from war news, rumors and opinions seems to be devoted to relief funds and the organization of schemes to help in interest and comfort the fighting soldier. No self-respecting newspaper is found nowadays without its own special fund to buy the troops something or other, from cigarettes to woolen gloves, or alternatively to help the refugees or to relieve civilians in distress through the war. The Jewish Chronicle is running a shilling fund for the Jewish refugees from Belgium and opens it with a subscription of $125 itself, the second donation being $250 from the firm of N. M. Rothschild & Sons.

Apart from these things the really serious side of warfare is only brought home to London by the presence of wounded soldiers and really distressed refugees. There is nothing particularly the matter with industry generally except in special cases. Cotton, of course, is in a bad way and the Lancashire mills are suffering. The building trade is at a standstill so far as new contracts are concerned. Otherwise even the luxury trades, such as jewelry, are beginning to recover, largely in this case as a result of taking up new lines of manufacture and turning out enameled and kindred goods, of which supplies have stopped from Germany and Austria. The unemployment ratio furnished by the Board of Trade and relating to what is called the insured trades—that is, engineering, shipbuilding and one or two more groups—is gradually sinking. After having been as high as 6.3 per cent. it is getting down now to 4 per cent. With regard to the uninsured trades, figures are not so easily obtainable, but taking the returns of people registering themselves as being in want of work at the various labor exchanges scattered over the country a smaller number is found on the books each week, although the diminution only proceeds at a slow rate.

Of course, with regard to this matter of unemployment, things would have been far worse had it not been for the tremendous number of men who have enlisted in Kitchener's army. During the past ten weeks nearly 800,000 men have joined the colors, not to mention those who have joined volunteer and special corps and who easily number another quarter of a million.

This brings your correspondent right back once more to community news. Jews continue to enlist in all parts of the country and a proposition is now on foot to organize a special Jewish battalion. In this way it is thought that British Jews would get more direct credit for the splendid help they are putting out now on behalf of their country.

There has just been published in London "Jewish Life in Modern Times," by Israel Cohen. This is a most valuable work which every one will be glad to see published at last. It has been in preparation for some years, but other claims on the author's time have caused delay. This has not been altogether a disadvantage, since he has been able to make his work more complete by the additional information he has gathered, much of it at first hand. As it stands the volume will take rank as an authoritative record of facts, inferences and opinions connected with a subject of universal interest. The author has aimed at giving "a comprehensive account of the conditions of modern Jewry in all their principal manifestations and variations throughout the world." He describes his task as falling into two divisions: First, "to depict the variegated life of the Jewish people at the present day in all its intimacy and intensity; and, secondly, to take the evolution that is being produced by modern forces, or, in other words, to describe the static conditions of Jewry and then to analyze the effects of the dynamic forces to which they are exposed." This is a sufficiently big undertaking, but Mr. Cohen has discharged it admirably, and, it should be said, his letterpress receives real assistance from the capital illustrations, good in theme and in execution, that adorn the book.

Possibly the best service one can render to all interested in Mr. Cohen's subject is to tell them what he has done. Beginning with a general survey, which is aided on the geographical side by a good map, he passes to the social aspect, and, under this head, discusses the community, the family, the home, philanthropy, morality, social life, racial and physical characteristics. He then proceeds to treat of the political aspect, the economic aspect, the intellectual aspect, the religious aspect and, finally, the national aspect, and this includes a somewhat full and very sympathetic account of Zionism. The wealth of material is very great, far beyond the compass of a brief notice, and it must suffice to give a few examples. Russia has already promised to do justice to Poland. The claim of Jewry is no less urgent, as Mr. Cohen shows. Last year "over 10,000 Jews were expelled from various towns outside the Pale and from Polish villages in which in many cases they had been settled over thirty years. The most serious addition to the code of disabilities is the recent law which forbids Jews to sit on the boards of joint stock companies and forbids such companies as have Jewish directors to acquire lands."

These are mild measures compared with those described from page 156 onwards, and with that proposed by Pobiedonostzev, whose solution of the Jewish question in Russia was "that one-third of the Jews should be forced to emigrate, one-third should be absorbed into the bosom of the Church, and the remaining third should perish of hunger." Is it too much to hope that the new spirit which has arisen in Russia will inspire a wiser and more humane treatment of a suffering race? It is difficult to understand and impossible to excuse the usage accorded to a people who are notoriously law-abiding, whose standard of morality is high and who have made contributions of the first importance to the welfare of mankind. Scattered throughout Mr. Cohen's pages are interesting references to the Jews as soldiers, to their liability to functional nervous diseases (a pathetic fact easily accounted for), to their comparative freedom from organic nervous disease (a circumstance explained by the infrequency among them of alcoholism and syphilis), and to the great things they have done for art and science. Jews have been specially distinguished in medical research, and Mr. Cohen, with pardonable pride, gives a long and honorable list of distinguished names, beginning with that of Paul Ehrlich, whose name is not to be separated from that great specific—salvarsan. As a rule, Mr. Cohen writes with commendable restraint and

In order to insure the insertion of communications in the current issue of THE HEBREW STANDARD they must be in this office not later than Wednesday 10 a. m. of the week in which they are to appear.

Now that the general election is over, and the elected to office have been separated from those elected—to stay at home, we suppose the number of unconscious Jews (to put it mildly) has been imperceptibly increased. For a brief season only, however! In about ten months hence there will be quite a few Jews again, proudly conscious of their membership of the community, running for office!

The Young Ladies' Relief Society, of Pittsburgh, could not participate in the recent "Tag Day" for the Pittsburgh Home for Babies, a worthy local philanthropy, because this took place on a Saturday. So, it forwarded a money contribution of $25 to the institution, thus proving to the world that its corporate heart is in the right place and that it does not violate the traditions of the faith of its members, even "in the sweet name of charity."

The New York State Department of Labor announces that it will receive contributions in small sums from ten cents to a dollar from immigrants and aliens desiring to assist the wounded and distressed among their own countrymen in the present war. The distribution will be made through the American Red Cross Society and the account of each country kept separately. This action is worthy of praise, and gives evidence of the unflagging interest of this important State Department in those of whom it has special charge.

The Hon. Henry S. Griggs is the author of "The Book of Truth," a work which is issuing from the press. It sets out "a reasonable faith and the future religion of the world." To whet the appetites of prospective readers Mr. Griggs offers the following description of Moses as an abstract from his book:

Moses was a butcher of babies, children, and mothers, a debaucher of daughters, a wicked wretch, and a plunderer. His armies killed his neighbors, and confiscated their property. One of Moses' laws is, "Whosoever doeth any work on the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death." Moses' Sabbath was Saturday, Exodus 31st chapter. His character is one of devilishness and ungodliness. God never allowed such a man as Moses to make laws for the world.

If the foregoing is a fair sample of the contents of the book we want none of Mr. Griggs' reasonable faith or future religion!

How modest and unassuming is the Rev. E. B. M. Browne, who held an interdenominational divine service, the slogan of which was, "Leave politics at home and bring your own religion with you," at Carnegie Hall last Sunday afternoon! The announcement contained the information that Mr. Browne is Boston's Jewish Moody, and Albany's Jewish (!) Masliansky! Apparently Albany does not look upon the famous maggid, the Rev. H. Z. Masliansky, as a Jew! The late Senator Bacon, of Georgia, thought Mr. Browne comparable "as a pulpit orator" with Secretary Bryan: be it so! And Congressman Adamson, also of Georgia, is said to regard him as the "greatest Jew since Disraeli." Whew! Do our readers really imagine the antics of the Rev. E. B. M. Browne do the Jewish cause any good?

"Mentor" in The Jewish Chronicle was rather wrought up over the refusal of the American Jewish journals to take Israel Zangwill's appeal to them to throw in their moral influence with the Allies in the war as anything other than a gratuitous interference. Such it was in view of our American policy, which this newspaper has consistently maintained, of absolute and unbreakable neutrality. In its Jewish aspects we dealt at length with the matter several weeks ago, and do not, even though "Mentor" recurs to the subject, propose to consider it again. In passing we would note, however, that "Mentor" makes an argument that is just about as convincing as was Israel Zangwill's originally. The volte-face with respect to Russia which our Anglo-Jewish contemporaries executed, has now been also produced by the chief contributor of the more important of them. What it means we have stated; what effect it has on the standing and influence of these organs of Jewish public opinion is plainer day by day.

TEMPLE EMANU-EL'S "NEW" DEPARTURE

THE much-heralded action of Rabbi Joseph Silverman, co-ordinate rabbi (as he is officially known) of Temple Emanu-El, whereby the doors of that house of worship, "the wealthiest synagogue in the New World," will be "open wide" on "every day of the week from nine in the morning until six at night, that the great throngs of Jews who pass in the avenue may have the opportunity to enter and pray or meditate," has received far more notice on the one hand and far less consideration on the other than it deserves.

In these last few words we would set forth that the plan has its good and bad features, and that the good ones have not the breath of novelty to commend them, while the bad ones may produce deleterious effects on the local Jewry which may be of a far-reaching nature. The scheme contains naught that is new, for it simply applies the theory and practice of the ancient Beth Hamedrash to modern, Fifth Avenue conditions. The Beth Hamedrash was and, where it is still maintained in its pristine glory and usefulness, is open at all times in order that whosoever will may enter and indulge his thirst for knowledge of the word of God. The house of learning of the Orthodox Jew was and is wholly democratic in its simplicity and open to whoever wished to avail himself of the opportunities thus presented. Any imitation of the procedure of the Beth Hamedrash must commend itself to loyal Jews, and we regard the departure inaugurated by Rabbi Silverman at Temple Emanu-El as in this sense indicative of this spirit.

On the other hand we also look upon its evangelical features, its attempt to "gather in the passing sheep and the goats" as holding dangerous possibilities within itself. A Jew needs no house of prayer to inspire or to evoke his communion with the Most High. His prayers may ascend to "the Great White Throne" whenever and wherever the spirit may move him to give utterance thereto. We use these cant words and phrases to denote our belief that in this view of the matter, Temple Emanu-El has seen fit to slavishly ape Catholic and Episcopalian customs, opposed to and altogether out of harmony with Jewish practices and traditions, and portentous of evil, therefore, by the insidious nature of their influence. Had Rabbi Silverman simply and soberly announced that from now on his synagogue would remain open throughout the day on all days of the week for its holy purposes, he would have succeeded as well, if not better, than he has!

COLONEL ROOSEVELT AND TREATIES

EX-PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT, in writing on "The Peace of Righteousness" in last Sunday's New York Times, asserts with his accustomed boldness: "We must clear the rubbish from off our souls and admit that everything that has been done in passing peace treaties, arbitration treaties, neutrality treaties, Hague treaties, and the like, with no sanction of force behind them, amounts to literally and absolutely zero, to literally and absolutely nothing, in any time of serious crisis."

All this reads very nice; but does the self-same Mr. Roosevelt recall his position on the question of the abrogation of the treaty between the United States and Russia? Does he recall that, when Jewish citizens of American birth or naturalization were for years and years systematically deprived, in open violation of our treaty, of their rights and subjected to all sorts of harassing and oppressive acts on the part of the Czar's government and its hirelings, does he recall that he outspokenly but vainly opposed the abrogation of the treaty and advocated the reference of the whole question to The Hague Court of Arbitration? Does he recall that his follower, Dr. Lyman Abbott, urged such a course, too (in obedience to what Roosevelt proclaimed) in his weekly, The Outlook, and that others, with their mouthy flatterers of our people, at the same time followed in the wake of the great "I say so?"

Well, we do not expect politicians to be even "consistent in their inconsistencies," and Theodore Roosevelt time and again has proven himself no exception, but a thorough illustration of our remarks.

Dr. C. D. Spivak, of Denver, wishes users of the telephone to employ the words "Shalom Aleichem," or "Pax vobiscum," or "Peace be with you" as a greeting in the room of the customary "Hello!" He thinks that thereby the dream of a universal peace will be more speedily realized. The suggestion is harmless and interesting,—just about as interesting as was the late Randolph Guggenheimer's attempt, when a member of our municipal administration over a decade ago, to do away with the public expressions of profanity. At that time the name Guggenheimer was in all mouths for certain reasons, but the suggestion proved to be stillborn. Perhaps, if Dr. Spivak achieves equal notoriety with his proposal, his name will be heard over many a telephone wire for some time to come. More than that we frankly do not expect from his insistent espousal of the cause of universal peace.

What is Henry Green doing in these days? Modestly and patiently did he give up work on his own plans to relieve the Jewish sufferers in the war-zone when he found that the American Jewish Committee was prosecuting a similar task. Like the blushing violet he duly announced this "postponement" of his "activities" to an unthinking world, the greater portion of which was wholly unaware of his preparations for the succoring of suffering humanity. And, of course, it behooves the American Jewish Committee to avail itself of Mr. Green's talents for organizing work of this nature.

THE SPIRIT OF EXPECTANCY

וירא אליו ד' כאלני ממרא והוא ישב פתח האהל כחם היום: וישא עיניו וירא אוהנה שלשה אנשים נצבים עליו וירא וירץ לקראתם מפתח האהל:

"And the Lord appeared to him in the plains of Mamre; and he sat in the tent door in the heat of the day; And he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, lo, three men stood by him: and when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the tent door." (Gen. xviii, 1-2.)

HE was old and ailing. Suffering was even then furrowing his face; yet, above the deep imprints of pain, there appeared the sovereign stamp of self-mastery which lent his countenance a worldrously serene aspect. Thus the aged man sat there, in the tent door, patiently, expectantly. The tropic sun was doing its best to make his stay in the open uncomfortable for him: it sent down the crushing weight of the panting skies upon his hoary head; still, undaunted sat Abraham beneath its darts, as if he were no mean mortal, but verily the Spirit of Expectancy lifted up high above time and tide, above trouble and tribulation. Expectancy, which had none of the restlessness of impatience but had all the eager confidence of assured faith, marked his entire attitude as with narrowed eyes he peered into the far distance, his gaze wandering in all directions, his spirit scouring the remote spaces—in answer, perhaps, to some brother-spirit which even then might be calling somewhere for someone. . . .

It was a long time before the dim horizon would give up its victims to the waiting old man. And then by what degrees, with each step that brought the three strangers nearer, was his serene expectancy transformed into the thrill of realization! From the time the dark specks began to emerge out of the bluish haze that hung about the edge of the plain till they grew into the full size of men, how his heart went out to these guests whom the Lord had sent to him! That is what he, the lover of his kind, was waiting for: an alien yet kindred breath of humanity, a tang, strangely familiar, of other lives, a voice from different spheres of existence that should blend, sweetly and intimately, with the music of his own hours! That is why he became so alert and so amiably insistent in his proffer of hospitality when the three messengers finally stood before him. Age and illness dropped away from him as if by magic, and Love imparted to him the strength and buoyancy of youth, as he himself took charge of the arrangements that were to secure the dust-covered travelers refreshment and recreation. Truly, a dynamic soul like that of Abraham, can never weaken with the declining years, for in unflinching devotion to duty it finds a ready source of energy that is inexhaustible.

Our mind's eye lingers lovingly upon the picture of this young-old man waiting in the tent door; and we cannot but regret that the ancient virtue of hospitality is swiftly fading out of modern life. With the increasing complexity of human relationships the amenities of simpler ages are rendered well nigh impossible. We have to pay dearly for our much-vaunted progress. It seems inevitable that as we press forward toward newer riches, we must leave behind many an older treasure. If we are to credit, as we must, biblical and other literary accounts, there was much more sweet familiarity among men while they lived in the sunlit spaces of earlier days and did not crowd in upon each other as much as we do to-day. It is a curious fact that the more men elbow each other the less heart answers to heart; the more their bodies touch, the farther apart are their souls. In the hurry and bustle of this age men are like passing ships that hail each other at night. We take no time to entertain each other in pleasant and profitable converse under our roof. As we run swiftly past each other we get but a blurred impression of our fellow-men and then we content ourselves with snap-judgments that are in most instances prejudicial to the persons we meet and correspondingly flattering to ourselves. The less we get to know others, the more we are apt to condemn them; and the more we condemn them, the more we are inclined to envelop ourselves in the cloak of self-righteousness.

The direct result, then, of the waning of hospitality, of the lessening opportunities for social intercourse with our fellows, is an increase of selfish prejudice. If we believe anything, we should believe that every man is a divine revelation. God has written his thoughts in the stars, but also in the flash of the human eye; in the winding veins of the rocky strata, but also in the lineaments of the human face. And we should be anxious to read the divine revelation engraved in the faces of men, for there God uncovers Himself as nowhere else. But how can we hope to read these divine signs of flesh and blood if we studiously avoid each other? How can we hope to know God, if we fail to know man?

In short, contact with men means contact with the divine-in-man. When we admit a stranger into our house, we admit new ideas, new truths, of which he may be the apostle and prophet. Hospitality is only partly physical, it is chiefly intellectual and spiritual. Abraham's hospitality, we fancy, was of that kind. Legend tells us how his tent had an opening on each side. He lived in the open, always eager to receive new revelations of the divine, always thirsty for new thoughts, new glimpses of eternity. He longed for men because he longed for minds.

With this enlarged conception of hospitality in view, we cast one last glance at the picture of the old man waiting in the tent door. Do you know who he is? Did we not suspect from the very first that he is more-than-man: the Spirit of Expectancy exalted above time and tide? Aye, he is the Genius of Humanity! The hoar of the ages covers his head and cheek, while he sits there in the open, where birds of every feather sing and breezes from all sides whisper. From timeless time he has been sitting there, the suffering sovereign of the spirit, peering into the far distance, waiting for the dim horizon to yield up its victims, waiting for new messengers of God, waiting for new truths by which mankind is to be made better and happier!

"Change of Fashions, and the Point of View"

The changes in customs and habits of the people, as well as the fashion in their attire when visualized upon the stage, often seem amusing and fanciful. Fashions often repeat themselves, sometimes frequently, and others after a lapse of generations; not all, but very many. What may appear to us today as comical and quixotic, and tantalize our risibilities, was in quondam times altogether en rigor, staid, and en rapport with the custom of that period.

In one of the scenes in the presentation of "David Copperfield," at Wallack's Theatre, in David's lodgings Uriah Heep began sucking his coffee from the saucer. The audience was so amused at this incident that it burst into laughter. Well this was all from the present point of view; in reality saucers were not invented to merely have the cup as a superstructure, but for practical use. It was intended in the less punctilious periods to pour in your liquid, and suck or drink it from the saucer, and in those days it was what we now denominate bad form to drink your beverage from the cup.

Washington Irving tells us in old New York it was customary to drink your coffee from the saucer, and that from the ceiling there was a cord suspended holding a chunk of sugar from which each guest bit off a piece between the intervals of drinking the same from the saucer. Wonder what these former fashionables would comment on the present method of partaking from the cup! It's only the point of view.

Yes, fashion has its novelties and innovations, its initiations and its discards; at one period commonplace, and at another ludicrous. What would the maiden of the present day with hosiery most ornate think of having to wear her embroidered—well; let us say pantalettes to the tops of her boots? It would look rather ludicrous, but it was the staid custom of former periods. It's only the point of view.

Not so many years ago women wore their hair in "waterfall fashion," and assumed in their attire and walk the "Grecian Bend"; how funny this would appear now. Then they were also given to plaster their faces with small black crescents, stars, hearts, diamonds and discs—once a fad, but only a memory now.

All these modes may be reincarnated again. There was a time when our gay as well as demure maidens wore crinolines, the diameter of which was of such dimensions that when walking with their best man there was of necessity a hiatus of at least two feet from her waist line, and when entering an omnibus there had to be a shift of the crinoline almost perpendicular to effect ingress. Wouldn't this be quite amusing nowadays?

The broche and camel's hair shawls, magnificent productions of India, running up in value to fabulous cost, once bedecked the forms of our fine ladies. Will they never come back?

Then the poked and shirred silk bonnets of Colonial days, and the early "Sixties" ribbonated with large bows under the chin, didn't they present a fine picture in those times? How would they appear now compared with the freakish "go-as-you-please" millinery of the present period? It's all the point of view.

their time would excite derision in our ready made and even custom made clothing present.

At one time men wore their trousers with a vast abundance of cloth about the knee line, running down to a close fit about the instep, so that their limbs from their knees to the instep resembled a toot and yet this was looked at as normal at the time. The shoes of men were graduated to a point resembling a church steeple. Now the style is less acute, but like all else, they were then the proper caper. So the men also wore a stock—a stiff cravat, and folded black neckerchief, and collars with points kissing their ears—but it was a-la-mode then.

It is related in the stories of our modern times about the ancestors of many of our present tres riches, that they not only drank their coffee from the saucer but conveyed their food to their mouth with their knives—well, it is even related that on a visit to Versailles in the "seventies," the Shah of Persia impressed his fingers into service, banishing forks. It was no doubt the mode of his day in his realm. It's only the point of view.

Formerly it took a decade or a generation to change the style of a woman's costume. Now, the style of one year is a stranger to the prior year, such are the drastic decrees of Dame Fashion.

A photographic reproduction of the varying modes in the life time of one woman would be an extraordinary interesting exhibit, comical and ludicrous.

So, after all, it's the point of view of "then" and "now." Not only with the saucer, but all other things earthly. "Tempora mutantur, et nos mutamur in illis." L'AIGLON.

Strange Bed-Mates.

Humorous anecdotes from the front, says the London Mail are not limited to the doings of the soldiers. One French army corps has both a Catholic military chaplain and a Jewish rabbi with it. Father Narp and Grand Rabbi Ginsburger were frequently seen together on their common mission of seeking the wounded. One evening they had both been working hard helping the wounded and consoling the dying, and when they reached a village they found there was only one bed available. Both of them were worn out and lay down, fully dressed, to sleep. Father Narp, turning to the Grand Rabbi, said "What a pity there is not a photographer here to take a snapshot of us—the Old Testament and the New sleeping in the same bed."

The New York city Board of Estimate has voted to expend $2,000 for the portrait of Mayor Gaynor, approved by the special committee of the board authorized to select a portrait of the late Mayor. The portrait is the work of the noted Jewish artist, J. Campbell Phillips.

During a recent battle, the Jewish soldiers in a Russian army corps, now operating in Galicia, received orders to proceed from their trenches to a townlet where they were awaited by a Tsadick who had obtained a special permit to address and bless the Jewish soldiers.

Realizing the exceptional drain that will be made upon the resources of the New York City United Hebrew Charities this year, General Manager Waldman, and the other salaried officials have voluntarily asked to have their salaries reduced in amounts ranging from 5 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Eight hundred and twenty-nine female Jewish immigrants were met at the port of Philadelphia during May-August by a committee of the local Council of Jewish Women, who procured work for ninety-five girls, sent fifty-seven to schools, rendered medical aid to twenty-four, and sent eleven to hospitals.

The Municipality of Johannesburg has built at its own expense at the Doornfontein Baths a Jewish Ritual Bath, which was opened last month. This Municipal Mikvah strictly fulfills the ritual requirements, as the water is obtained from a well. The establishment of the bath is due to the initiative of Rabbi Dr. Landau.

David Wiesenfeld, 66 years old, died suddenly last week at Baltimore, Md. He was born in Baltimore, and at an early age became active in fraternities. He was a 33d degree Mason, and for the past 28 years was secretary of the Baltimore Lodge of Elks. He was one of the founders of the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation Sunday School.

A. D. Ansell, Mexican Consul General at Montreal, Canada, died last month. He was born in London, England, sixty years ago, and came to Canada in 1860, and became one of the first promoters of trade between the Dominion and Mexico. He was appointed Mexican Consul in 1888. He was the president of the Baron de Hirsch Institute for many years and a founder of the Jewish Free Schools.

Mr. Benjamin Arthur Cohen, of London, England, has been appointed to the rank of King's Counsel. Mr. Cohen, who is the son of the Right Hon. Arthur Cohen, K. C., was born in December, 1862, and educated at Rugby and Balliol. In August, 1909, he was appointed Junior Common Law Counsel to the Admiralty. He is the author of a book on copyright, and was joint author, with his father, of the article on Insurance in Lord Halsbury's "Laws of England."

The Russian Senate has legalized the circular of the Ministry requesting the authorities to postpone all trials concerning the residence of Jews outside the Pale till after the war, as well as the order not to expel from the non-Pale provinces the families of Jews serving in the army, provided no new arrivals be allowed to settle there. The orders will now become binding on all governors, some of them having been slow in throwing over the policy of Jewish expulsions.

Baron Korff, Governor of Warsaw, has issued an order, in which, in strong terms, he condemns the efforts to sow discord among religious sects and nationalities. These efforts, he says, are directed particularly against Jews. He threatens to punish all offenders and rioters with great severity.

Dr. M. Ehrenpreis, the new rabbi of Stockholm, recently arrived in the Swedish capital after a very adventurous journey of about fourteen days from Sofia. On leaving Sofia, Dr. Ehrenpreis, who, in his capacity of Chief Rabbi of Bulgaria and member of numerous learned bodies, occupied a very high position, received many important proofs of the high esteem in which he was held. Immediately before his departure the King conferred upon him the Officer's Cross with Star of the Civil National Order of Merit, an exceedingly high distinction, and the Queen presented him with her signed portrait in a silver frame. In addition the King sent him a highly complimentary telegram when he left the country.

Meyers' New Funeral Chapel.
The well-known undertaking firm of H. Meyers & Co. have opened their new chapel at No. 228 Lenox avenue, where they are prepared to do funeral work of every description. Messrs. H. Meyers & Co. have been in the undertaking profession for a number of years, during which they have done much work for many prominent Jewish families and earned the praise of their clientele. MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Notwithstanding the effect of the war there has been a greater demand for orchestral concerts throughout the country than ever before. This week the Philharmonic makes a tour of New York State and New England, beginning with Boston, where there is always a sold out house. After the Boston concert the orchestra visits not only Springfield and Troy, but smaller cities like Holyoke, Watertown and North Adams. The soloists for these towns are Miss Florence Hinkle, the prominent concert singer; Mr. Efreim Zimballist, the great Russian violinist, and Leo Schulz, the capable first cellist of the Philharmonic. The next New York concerts will be given in Carnegie Hall on November 12 and 13, with Julia Culp as soloist, with a programme including the Scheherazade suite of Rimsky Korsakoff, the first public performance of Hadley's symphonic poem, "Lucifer," and the Smetana Overture to "The Bartered Bride."

Arrangements have been definitely completed for the appearance of David and Clara Mannes in a series of joint recitals at the Belasco Theatre during the months of January, February and March. The Ascension Sonata by Cecil Burrell will be included among the novelties to be presented.

A programme of unusual interest has been arranged by Harold Bauer for his recital in Aeolian Hall Saturday afternoon, November 7. The pianist's return

Miss Isabel Hauser, pianist, and the Saslavsky String Quartette will give a concert at Aeolian Hall, Wednesday, December 2.

At the concert of the New York Symphony Society, Walter Damrosch conductor, Sunday afternoon, November 8, Frank Gittelton, violinist, will make his first appearance before an American audience and will play the Bach violin concerto in E. The complete programme is as follows:

1. The Pierrot of the Minuet.....Bantock
2. Symphony No. 3 Rhenish.....Schumann
3. Concerto for violin with orchestra in E.....Mr. Gittelton
4. Overture Cockaigne (In London Town).Elgar

The programme for the opening concert of the Kneisel Quartet at Aeolian Hall on Tuesday evening, November 10, will consist of the quartet in A major, op. 41, No. 3 by Schumann; the quartet in C major, op. 2 by Zoltan Kodaly, which will be heard for the first time, and the Mozart quartet in E flat major (Kochel No. 428). The second concert, which was originally scheduled for December 15, has been postponed until Tuesday evening, December 22.

Mme. Schumann-Heink has selected Bach's "My Heart Ever Faithful" as the opening number of the programme of songs which she will sing in Carnegie Hall on Tuesday afternoon, November 17. The programme comprises three groups. Part two will be given over entirely to Robert Schumann's cycle of eight songs, "Frauenliebe und Leben," and the last group another eight songs, three of which will be sung in the English language.

Mr. Arakady Beurstin, a young Russian violinist, will be heard in a recital programme in Aeolian Hall on Friday afternoon, November 27.

Mme. Olga Samaroff, the pianist, will make her re-entry on the local concert platform after an absence of three years in a recital in Carnegie Hall on Saturday afternoon, November 28.

Efreim Zimballist gives his first recital this season at Carnegie Hall on Saturday afternoon, November 14. His programme is as follows:—

- I. Sonata, E major.....Handel
- II. a. Adagio.....Grazioli-Liebersohn
b. Les Papillons.....Couperin-Liebersohn

han Theatre. The piece is called a farce and in that it furnishes an extravagant amount of fun in a clean way, the classification is correct; but the story around which Messrs. Roi Cooper Megrue and Walter Hackett have woven their plot is so natural and true to life that its playing, at the hands of the admirable company who visualize its several characters, provide a series of every-day happenings all the more enjoyable because of their genuineness.

The only thing to be said about "On Trial" at the Candler Theatre, is that the house is sold out at every performance as regularly as the time for these performances arrive. "On Trial" lives up to its slogan: "The Best Play in 25 Years."

Selwyn & Company's production of Roi Cooper Megrue's gripping mystery play, "Under Cover," will enter upon the thirteenth week of its engagement at the Cort Theatre on Monday night with William Courtenay featured in the principal role and the same excellent cast as first appeared in the play. A battle of wits against almost overwhelming odds, with a woman the victor against men trained in the secret service, is the foundation of the story which goes to carry the play to such great popularity.

There is an actor in Mr. Joseph Brooks' company which is now presenting the novel play, "My Lady's Dress," at the Playhouse, Forty-eighth street, New York, who is scoring the greatest success of his brilliant career. He is Leon Quartermaine, an Englishman, who has won fame in his own country for creating great stage characterizations. Mr. Quartermaine comes of a family of actors. His brother made a great impression in New York two seasons ago by his fine acting in "The Butterfly on the Wheel." It seldom falls to the lot of an actor to fill so many different roles as it does to Mr. Quartermaine in "My Lady's Dress," and seldom still that actors make so fine an impression in portraying so many widely dissimilar characters as he has. In this brilliant play by Edward Knoblauch, author of "Milestones" and of "Kismet," Mr. Quartermaine assumes no less than six distinctive characters, which form a theatrical feat of great importance.

A well selected bill, comprising several headliners, is presented at B. F. Keith's Royal Theatre this week, including the "Aristocrats of Vaudeville," Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, in "The Masher"; Bessie Wynn, Paul Morton and Naomi Glass, in a musical satire called "Before and After"; Claude and Fannie Usher, in "The Straight Path"; Brooks and Bowen, "two dark spots of joy"; Joe Cook, who gives an "entire vaudeville show by himself"; Gleeson and Houllhan, Vandinoff and Loule and the Famous Alpine Troupe. The Sunday concerts will be given as usual, matinee and evening.

Irene Franklin, assisted by her husband, Bert Green, has an entire new set of character songs with which she is delighting the audiences at the Palace Theatre this week. Mae Murray and John Jarrott give their ballroom dances and the youngest of the old timers, Cressy and Dayne, present "The Man Who Remembered," a sterling bit of writing from Mr. Cressy's own pen. Billy Gould and Belle Ashly sing and dance, and a new spectacular act from Europe, "The Forest Fire," shows a forest burning, with the attendant scenes of terror and dismay. Henry E. Dixey, Mullen and Coogan and Bill Pruitt are also seen.

Eddie Leonard, "the original Wah Wah" singer, and Mable Russell, the dainty comedienne, are at the Alhambra Theatre this week, as are also B. A. Rolfe's "The Bride Shop"; Valerie Bergere, in "The Lion Tamer"; Claire Rochester, the only girl barytone and soprano; Fred Sosman, the monologist; Lane and O'Donnell, Mme. Dorie, Frank Whitman and the Lelands. The Sunday concerts will be given as usual, matinee and evening.

Pure Candles.
In another part of this issue we print an advertisement which is very important to every Jewish family and every congregation, and therefore we want all our readers to peruse this advertisement. We mean the advertisement of the "Menorah" Candles. These candles are a new kind, produced specially for Jewish families and Jewish synagogues, are guaranteed to be absolutely pure and kosher, and you can use them for all religious purposes and with certainty. They give a pure light and produce no bad odor. They are made in different sizes and shapes and can be used for the house and synagogue, Sabbath candles, synagogue candles, Chanukah candles, Yahrzeit candles, in glasses and for other purposes. "Menorah" Candles came as a real necessity to all who heretofore had aggravation because they had to use candles which were not pure and kosher for the most religious purposes. All that you have to do now is to ask for "Menorah" Candles. Take no others, then you will be sure that you have the right lights which are appropriate for all religious purposes. "Menorah" Candles burn bright and pure, make no smoke, no bad odor. The Standard Oil Company (an Indiana corporation) of Chicago, Ill., are long famous for the manufacture of the best candles in the world, for daily use, for birthdays, for holidays, for banquet rooms, for Chuppas and for all other purposes. When the attention of the company was called to the need of such candles they immediately consulted rabbis and began the manufacture of the "Menorah" Candles which are fulfilling all the requirements for the Jewish religion. Many synagogues now use only "Menorah" Candles and no other candles. You can get them and they will be welcome in every Jewish house.—Advertisement.

Health Is More Valuable Than Business.
When you are healthy, you can overcome all kinds of business troubles during your life, but when you are sick you may be very rich, but your whole life is a failure.

To keep a family in a healthy condition, you have got to exclude unhealthy food and impure drink, and you must not eat too much even of good food. The only food which you can use a lot of, and as much as you want, and which is healthful for the whole family, is milk. Naturally we mean by this, Borden's Condensed Milk, which bears the kosher label and which is known all over the whole world as the best, cleanest, and most sanitary milk that can be gotten for the money. Borden's Kosher Condensed Milk is being used all over the United States as a milk to strengthen and build up everybody who is weak and needs blood. For those who are healthy it is very hard to substitute a food which will be as good and as healthy in all cases as Borden's Kosher Milk. It is a food for young and old, for yourself and guests, summer and winter. Blessed is the house where you can always find a can of Borden's Condensed Milk. Before, it used to be a question whether it is kosher, but now the Kashruth is assured, because Chief Rabbi

Solomon E. Jaffe keeps his supervisors at the Borden plant, and the milk is for the most kosher pious Jews, so it is important that each and every Jewish family, poor or rich, shall install Borden's Kosher Condensed Milk in his home. It will always be on hand to use with coffee, tea, etc., and to make all kinds of pastry, both for yourself and for your guests, and it will bring you health. Business, the Almighty God will provide for you.—Adv.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

TEN MIRACLES

Dear Children:

"Ten miracles were wrought for our ancestors in Egypt and ten by the sea-shore."

Thus the Mishna tells us and the following is the order in which they were wrought: Four miracles were wrought for our ancestors when the Egyptians were smitten with the plague of blood. "In fact," says Rabbi Levi, "through the plague of blood the Israelites in Egypt became rich"; the first miracle—when an Egyptian and an Israelite lived in one house the vessel of water out of which the Egyptian drank was full of blood, whilst the vessel of water of the Israelite was clear water; the second miracle—when an Egyptian and an Israelite owned a pail of water in partnership, the water in the pail was not turned to blood, but when the Egyptian took a pitcher of water from the pail it turned into blood, whilst the Israelite drank water from the same pail; the third miracle—when the Egyptians asked the Israelite to let him drink from his pitcher, he would drink blood whilst the Israelite drank water; the fourth—when the Egyptian paid the Israelite for the water that he wished to drink at his house then he drank clear water. Two miracles were wrought for our ancestors when the Egyptians were smitten with the plague of pestilence: The first miracle—when the beast was owned in partnership by an Israelite and an Egyptian it did not die of the pestilence; the second miracle—when an Egyptian had an animal which an Israelite claimed was his, that animal did not die of the pestilence and thus proved to the Egyptian that it was really the property of the Israelite. Two miracles were wrought for our ancestors when the Egyptians were smitten with the plague of darkness: The first miracle—when the Egyptians were in total darkness for three days, the Israelites enjoyed the light even when they were the houses of the Egyptians; the second miracle—during the three days of darkness the wicked of Israel who did not wish to depart from Egypt died and were buried by their relatives without the Egyptians becoming aware of it, in order that they might not have the opportunity of saying, "the Israelites are punished even as we are punished." One miracle was wrought for our ancestors when the Egyptians were smitten with the plague of the death of the first-born. An Egyptian who believed that the plague would surely be brought upon their first-born sons begged an Israelite to allow his first-born son to sleep at his house, and whilst the Egyptian slept among the Israelites, the Holy One, blessed be He, took the soul of the Egyptian and spared the souls of the Israelites. The ten miracles the Lord wrought for our ancestors previous to their departure from Egypt in having given them favor in the eyes of the Egyptians so that they gave unto them what they required—vessels of silver and vessels of gold and garments, and they had great wealth when they left Egypt.

Ten miracles the Lord wrought for our ancestors on the sea. One—The sea was divided in two parts; two—the waters formed an arch under which the Israelites passed; three—the Israelites went into the midst of the sea on dry ground; four—whilst the Egyptians sank in mire and clay; five—the water which was like congealed wax formed into one mass, but in symmetrical form like bricks or quadrangular stones, one on top of the other; six—the frozen water was frozen as hard as a rock and the Egyptians who pursued the Israelites stumbled against those masses of ice and broke their heads; seven—the sea was divided in twelve parts, in order to afford a separate passage for each tribe; eight—the waters that arose as walls were as clear as crystal and the tribes could see each other through the walls; nine—from the frozen walls of sea-water good fresh water flowed for those who were thirsty, which the Israelites greatly enjoyed; ten—as soon as the Israelites slaked their thirst the waters again became congealed.

Thus did the Holy One, blessed be He, who created the world by virtue of ten utterances shows his kindness to the Israelites for the sake of their father, Abraham, who showed his great love for him by withstanding the ten temptations.

WOLLSTEIN, LOUIS.—THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, BY THE GRACE OF GOD FREE AND INDEPENDENT TO MARTHA WOLLSTEIN, a daughter of said deceased, named as one of the executors of the last Will and Testament of LOUIS WOLLSTEIN, deceased; SAMUEL FLEISCHMAN, named as one of the executors of the last Will and Testament of LOUIS WOLLSTEIN, deceased; HELENE BAUM, a daughter of said deceased; ROSA WOLLSTEIN, a son of said deceased; ADOLPH WOLLSTEIN, a grand daughter of said deceased; ADOLPH WOLLSTEIN, who, if living, is a son of said deceased, and, if said ADOLPH WOLLSTEIN be dead, his heirs and next of kin, if any, whose names and addresses are unknown and cannot, with due diligence, be ascertained; and EDWARD WOLLSTEIN, who, if living, is a son of said deceased, and his heirs and next of kin, if any, whose names and addresses are unknown and cannot, with due diligence, be ascertained, and the heirs and next of kin of LOUIS WOLLSTEIN, deceased, SEND GREETING:

Whereas, MARTHA WOLLSTEIN, who resides at 25 Central Park West, Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, to have certain instruments in writing, dated respectively April 17, 1913, and November 25, 1913, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last Will and Testament and Codicil thereto of LOUIS WOLLSTEIN, who was at the time of his death a resident of Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, in the County of New York, deceased.
Therefore, you and each of you are cited to show cause before the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, at the Hall of Records, in the County of New York, on the 20th day of November, 1914, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the said Will and Testament and Codicil should not be admitted to probate as a Will of real and personal property.
In Testimony Whereof, We have caused the Seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed.
Witness, Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said County, the 13th day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and fourteen.
[Seal] DANIEL J. DOWDNEY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

COHN, MORITZ.—The People of the State of New York, by the Grace of God, Free and Independent, to ETHEL KLOPPER FRAZEE, individually and as Executrix of the Last Will and Testament of Jennie Klopfer, deceased; HELEN LOWENBEIN and WILLIAM R. ROSE, as sole surviving Executors of the Last Will and Testament of Morris Lowenbein, deceased; to EDWARD KLOPPER, CELIA LOEB and ROSA KRAUSH as "heirs" of said Ethel Klopfer Frazee; THOMAS REID FRAZEE, her husband; and to all persons interested in the beneficiaries of the trusts created by the sixth, the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh paragraphs of the Will of Moritz Cohn, deceased, or who are entitled absolutely or contingently by the terms of the Will or by operation of law to share in the fund or in the proceeds of property held as a part of their trust, the said Moritz Cohn, deceased, under the Will of said Moritz Cohn, deceased, who at the time of his death resided at No. 951 Madison Avenue, City and County of New York, SEND GREETING: Upon the petition of Julius M. Cohn, residing at No. 307 West 105th Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, you and each of you are hereby cited to show cause before the Surrogates' Court of the County of New York, at the Hall of Records, in the County of New York, on the first day of December, 1914, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the account of proceedings of said Julius M. Cohn as Trustee under the Last Will and Testament of said Moritz Cohn, deceased, should not be judicially settled and allowed; and why said Trustee should not have such other and further relief and directions as may be just and proper.
In testimony whereof, we have caused the Seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed.
Witness, Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County, at the County of New York, the 22d day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fourteen.
DANIEL J. DOWDNEY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.
