A FALSE ALARM

By HALITVACK

I think I have already told you about Pesach the Ger, who used to sit on the Lizanka chanting Thilim all day, and providing much fun for the idle Beth Hamidrash boys at odd intervals, with his marvelous imitations of all sorts of things. Pesach indeed was more than a mere mimicker. He threw his whole soul into the thing of the moment, whatever that was, and he became it. Now just to give you an idea, Pesach was the most obliging creature that ever lived, and he never knew how to say no, unless it was when asked whether he had eaten enough, and that of course is a story all by itself. But you never could get Pesach to crow like a cock when Sender the Schochet was within hearing distance, and I am full sure, if Pesach had lived this day and need only have said "Roosevelt" to him and he would never again let you hear how a lion roared. Pesach was just the real artist, and I suppose this will account for his being hungry all the time. At any rate, Pesach was always helping himself from his bosom which was Pesach's pantry. His appetite might have been the highest treasure of the Caesars. Chayim the Letz knew all about Pesach and the turn came one winter's evening to make good use of the facts.

Chayim the Letz had his grievance against the Chevrah Mishna though he never pretended to say a word about it. The trouble arose from Chayim himself, though he could not help it, for he was born a Letz and he had to go that way. But the Chevrah Mishna could not be blamed. Chayim had asked them many times to be allowed to join them as a member, for he was not exactly an Am Haaretz, as things went, but the thing was, they could not make up their minds whether Chayim was in earnest. There is never any telling what a Letz may not be up to. In fact they used to say to Chayim, who was sometimes surnamed the Besdetnik (the childless one) that he might yet be a father if he would only cease to be praying so hard to heaven to become one.

but now that he was praying so hard for a child they were having their own suspicions. Not even the angels knew when to take a Letz seriand while being unable to put anything but a good face on it, by reason of his being a Letz, Chayim's heart nevertheless felt sore, and he

It was just after Maariv, and the Beth Hamidrash was teeming with life. But more than usual was the stir towards the right hand upper part of the place. There the long table stood where he said the Perek Mishna every evening. To-night they were to get through with the very last Perek, which meant, they were having a Siyum Hagadol. Everybody was there, dressed in their Sabbath clothes, and those that could not find seats stood clustering around, their ears strained to catch up that none too robust voice of Rabbi Azriel, who was gracing the occasion with his masterful Hadron. At the upper end of the table stood Sussman the Gabai, in his hand a large pillow case filled with chunks of reddish brown honey cake and a case of Vodka at his feet. Anticipation ran high and hot everywhere.

Down at the lower end of the Beth Hamidrash Pesach sat as usual on the Lizanka, his hands behind his back, to keep them intense with the grateful warmth of the smooth tiles, his voice going in a clear, steady chant of the Thilim. Presently Chayim the Letz came over to him, laying his hands on Pesach's shoulder with a right jolly bang and offering to tell a story.

Pesach was all attention. All children love stories, and Pesach was enough of a child to take Chayim the Letz at his word. To Pesach every word Chayim was telling became a real live fact. All of it was just happening before Pesach's eyes. What imagination will do sometimes for the highly developed mind, lack of it will do for the stunted mind.

"Once upon a time," Chayim began, "there was a mighty Poritz who owned ninety-nine big estates, and if he owned one more he would have been an Emperor, and that is the reason he did not have the full one hundred. But one could do good with ninety-nine, ha, Pesach? Yes! Now that Poritz was so big and fat that you would have to make six Lizankas for him to sit upon. Ha, Pesach? See, you and Rabbi and Mrs. Samfield have a family of seven children.

Matters at least might then take their ordinary course and Chayim stood his chance as well as any man, ously, so Chayim's application to the Chevrah Mishna were invariably put off, with a lighthearted evasiveness, went around nursing a deep grudge against the Mishna men. His time at last had come.

me sitting on the one Lizanka with plenty of room to spare and that Poritz would hardly do on six of them. But that was because he had so many good things to eat and he was always eating—always—why shouldn't he, when he had so much! Nu, Pesach, one day that big Poritz was to give a great big ball to all the neighboring P'ritsim around—maybe thousands of them. So the Poritz had one big room, five times as big as the whole Beth Hamidrash, and two times as high, all filled up with big white loaves and big, big tubs of thick fat cream and rolls upon rolls of fat brown wurst, and smoked mutton, and roast ducks and geese and turkeys without count, and barrels upon barrels of wine, beer and vodka—ha, Pesach, fine?"

Chayim paused to give Pesach time to lick his lips and shake his head from side to side and say "ai-yai-yai!"

"Nu," Chayim resumed, "in the middle of the night just before the ball, when every body at the court was sound asleep, the Poritz woke up to get something to eat. It was only natural that he should get up in the middle of the night to eat, such a big Poritz, you see. Nu, he lit a candle and started for the great big room where all the good things were kept for the ball. And what do you think, Pesach, when he opened the door he saw the whole room filled with flames and all of the roast geese and turkeys and all the great coils of fat brown wurst and all of the tubs of rich cream with the beautiful snow white loaves going to be burnt up, without one near to help put out the fire, for all the servants and all the guests that were already staying at the court fast asleep in bed. Nu, Pesach, what did that great big Poritz, with his great big voice that made the walls tremble when he spoke, do to wake up the servants and the guests to come and put out the terrible big fire—ha, Pesach?"

Not a word did Pesach say, but he jumped up with a start, scurried up the steps of the Almemar, and raising his clenched fists high above his head, his eyes bulging out of his head, his whole frame quivering with excitement, he roared at the top of his lungs:

Gewald! es brennt! es brennt! Gewald! Gewald!

I would not insult your intelligence to describe to you what happened afterwards. Only this much I may tell you, as the people came madly stampeding towards the door, the very smile on the face of Chayim the Letz helped to confirm them in their fears.

SOME SIDELIGHTS ON THE FRANK CASE

Rabbi Louis J. Goetz, who, our readers will remember, was for many years the rabbi of Temple Beth El, of Jersey City, N. J., accepted a call to Atlanta, Ga., last September. Rabbi Goetz, after a three months' stay in the famous Southern city, saw fit to hand in his resignation and has just returned to New York city. Presuming that during his stay he had familiarized himself with the all-absorbing Frank case, a reporter of THE HEBREW STANDARD interviewed the rabbi last week and was rewarded with an interesting statement of how the case appeared to one who was on the ground and had frequent opportunity of interviewing the celebrated defendant.

"I watched and studied the Frank case with keen interest during my three months' stay in Atlanta," Rabbi Goetz told our representative, "and during that time I frequently visited him in his cell. Sometimes I was accompanied by my wife and very frequently have conferred with prominent people who have interested themselves in the case. I have carefully read the evidence presented for and against him at his trial, and from what I have been able to gather I find that he was most unjustly convicted of the murder of the little fourteen-year old girl, Mary phagan, who was found ravished and butchered in the basement of the National Pencil Factory on April 26, 1913.

"In order to learn more of the case and hear a story that would doubtless be unfavorable to him, one morning I called up the prosecuting attorney on the telephone, told him who I was, that I had some letters of introduction from very prominent people in New Jersey and Washington that I would like to present to him. He assured me that he would ring me up next afternoon at 3 o'clock to make an appointment with me, which he never did.

"About this time the parents of the accused young man called at my home on Washington street, as they lived but two doors from my residence, and my wife told them of my telephone conversation with their son's prosecutor. Friends who were with them said: 'Rabbi, he will never meet you. Try again to-morrow afternoon as arranged and see if we are not correct in our assertion.' It is needless to assert that they were very much correct. I have made many efforts to meet him for a conference relative to the Frank case, but was always unsuccessful.

"Had I met him I would simply have asked him: 'Mr. Solicitor General, way deep down in your heart do you really and truly believe Frank guilty? Can any rational person believe that Frank received a fair and impartial trial, as guaranteed to every American citizen by the Constitution of the United States?' 'I have not come to speak with you in favor of Frank because he is a Jew. I am one of those who would favor the punishment of Frank under the law if he had been proven guilty beyond all doubt, even if he is a Jew. But bear in mind that this issue is far greater than Frank personally, and that is justice. Every person accused of a crime must be given the benefit of all doubt under our law. That is justice, that is right as I understand it.'

At this point Rabbi Goetz showed his interviewer a book containing the evidence on the Frank case which had been given him by the accused's attorneys in Atlanta.

"Read the following decision of the trial judge in the Frank case," he continued, "and see for yourself if justice has been done in his case:

"I have given this case long consideration. It has given me more concern than any other case I was ever in. And I want to say here that, although I heard the evidence and the arguments during those thirty days, I do not know this morning whether Leo Frank is innocent or guilty. But I was not the one to be convinced. The jury was convinced, and I must approve their verdict and overrule the motion."

"These words are plain. The trial judge himself, after listening to every word of the evidence and every legal point being raised for and against and deciding all questions during the thirty days of Frank's trial, does not even now know if the accused is guilty.

"Is there anything more astonishing than this? 'If the trial judge does not know and the jury only appears to know, what shall be said of the confusion in the minds of the great public who read only fragments of the evidence?'

"How could the jury form a just verdict if the trial judge himself could not do so? Does it not show that if the trial judge had been a member of Frank's jury he would not have found a verdict of guilty? He could not honestly have done otherwise.

"What were the conditions obtaining at the time of this trial? A foul murder had been committed. Mary Phagan, a fourteen-year old girl, was murdered on the morning of April 26, 1913. The body was found on a pile of cinders in the cellar of the National Pencil Factory, where the young girl worked. Public indignation was at white heat, and the discovery and punishment of the murderer was demanded at any cost. The very air was surcharged with passion, unreasoning passion. The mob spirit was in evidence, and it was not within the province or power of court or mortal man to stem the tide which was destined to engulf whatever unfortunate victim might be offered for sacrifice. Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory, happened to be the victim. It was upon the testimony of 'Jim' Conley, a negro sweeper about the pencil factory, that Frank was convicted. Stories unprintable, and without foundation in fact, regarding the nature of the crime were whispered from mouth to mouth. Other stories wherein but half truths were told and facts were outrageously misrepresented were given wide circulation.

"And so the flames of public fury and passion were fed and intensified. From this inflamed and abnormal public came judge and jury and prosecutor and witnesses. Could Leo Frank, I ask, under such prevailing circumstances, have gotten a fair and impartial trial? Those who sat in judgment over him were but mortals like ourselves, human ever, as we are human—only they lacked in moral courage. Had they been truly honest, sincere and courageous men, with which reputation the true type of American is generally accredited, they would have welcomed long ago any move whereby the grave doubt existing in no inconsiderable part of the public mind shall have been dissolved. To-day an ever increasing number in Atlanta and elsewhere strongly believe in Leo Frank's innocence. Some of the greatest psychologists of the nation, with no personal bias either one way or the other, after a careful review of the briefs in the case, expressed their opinion that in view of the facts it is impossible that Leo Frank could have committed the crime for which he has been sentenced to hang. Lawyer Smith, who defended the negro, "Jim" Conley, in a recent public statement, declared that he (Conley) was surely guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan, indicates a belief in Frank's innocence. The trial judge himself, as above stated, openly expressed a doubt as to Frank's guilt or innocence. Two judges of the supreme court of Georgia expressed the opinion long ago that he should have been given a new trial. Mr. Justice Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, likewise expressed his opinion that he was seriously in doubt if Leo M. Frank has had due process of law. In the face of all this, shall American justice allow an American citizen or any other human being to hang without a fair and impartial trial and without due process of law? Surely the heart and mind and soul answer no.

"Justice demands that truth shall prevail, that the guilty shall be punished, that the innocent shall not suffer, that the great laws of brotherhood and life, which are the laws of God, shall be observed. It is well to remember that a so-called justice is often extremely unjust. I am reminded that in the Zend-Avesta, which is a summary of the laws of Zoroaster, this admirable maxim is to be found: 'When it is doubtful whether the action you are about to perform is just or unjust, abstain from doing it.' Surely a great civilized nation must be governed by as high a standard of justice. As long as there is a shadow of doubt as to the guilt of Leo Frank it is the duty of the lovers of justice to lend a hand:

"And so," continued Rabbi Goetz, "I do earnestly hope and pray that the Supreme Court of the United States, in whose hands now lies the fate of Leo M. Frank, will exonerate him or grant him a new trial in the name of Justice—that Justice which demands for every man the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; which recognizes the sacredness of human life and zealously guards its forces; which transcends prejudice, vengeance, malice, hatred; which demands that truth should prevail and that all life shall be conserved to ends of human usefulness and human service. I sincerely hope for a new trial for Leo M. Frank as a man who loves men and who desires to see justice done, as a man who believes in men and in the power of human love to win its victories in human hearts and lives.

"I will conclude in the words of Amos: 'Let justice roll along like water and righteousness like a mighty stream.' Indeed, it is not a partial justice that the prophet meant, not the justice administered in fear of political parties, neither is it the justice awarded with the influence of an abnormal mob-rule in the background. It is even-handed justice that is wanted, freely flowing as a river, and as broad and full and uncontrolled as a mighty stream. It is justice unhampered by fear and undiluted by a desire 'to be liked.' Man is to be full of a passion for justice, to be under the sway of the desire for righteousness, whether he is liked for it or not. For we are members of a great commonwealth which is to be moral by the doing of justice and the performance of equity."

Serbia's Jewish Soldiers

Dr. Alcalay, the Chief Rabbi of Serbia, is at present in London on behalf of his suffering coreligionists. He has contributed an interesting interview to the Jewish Chronicle describing the position of the Jews of Serbia. A portion of this interview is reproduced here.

He said: "The political situation of the Serbian Jews is in every way satisfactory. They enjoy both the active and passive franchise and every sphere of political and administrative activity is open to them. The consideration shown to the Jewish population is particularly manifest in connection with the discharge of military service. The Jewish soldiers are allowed to make their own arrangements for the provision of Kosher food and receive a money allowance in lieu of rations. During the Balkan war the Jewish soldiers were all exempted from duty during the Passover, and in the present campaign they were relieved from duty on New Year and the Day of Atonement, although heavy fighting was proceeding on those days. In consequence of this concession the synagogues were thronged with Jewish soldiers, but the Government went even further, and on these days liberated to our charge the Austrian Jewish prisoners, who were thus enabled to attend public worship. The Jews have shown their appreciation of this liberal attitude by the loyalty and devotion with which they have served their Serbian fatherland. In the Balkan war their bravery was recognized by both the Court and the Government. When the Crown Prince returned to Belgrade he had a great reception, the Parliament and various corporations offering him addresses of welcome, one being tendered by me in the name of the Jews, on whose behalf I offered His Royal Highness a silver laurel wreath. In acknowledging the gift, the Crown Prince asked me to express his thanks to the Serbian Jews, and he paid a tribute to their bravery during the two campaigns, declaring that they had heroically fought side by side with the other Serbian troops. The Government wrote to us to say that in consideration of the great services rendered by the Jews they felt impelled to double the grant made to us for religious purposes, the increase being from 2,500 to 5,000 francs. In consideration of the large increase in the number of Jews coming under my jurisdiction, owing to the annexation of the new provinces, the Government made a proportionate increase in my salary. One of the most notable incidents of the war was an act of heroism performed by a Jewish soldier named Amar, who, with a small band of soldiers, surprised an enemy town. He was, however, betrayed, and met with a tragic death. His funeral in Belgrade was the most notable procession of its kind ever witnessed in Serbia. Over 20,000 persons followed the cortege, and a great impression was made by the singing of patriotic hymns by the Jewish Choral Society, which took part in the procession.

"The position now is quite different from what it was in the Balkan campaign," proceeded Rabbi Dr. Alcalay. "The Jews then made great sacrifices, but when Mr. Elkan Adler visited us together with the other members of the Jewish Balkan Relief Mission, we were able to assure him that we needed no help and were fully able to meet all our requirements out of our own resources. I had no difficulty at the time in raising 15,000 francs for the urgent needs of some of the Jewish sufferers from the war from the members of my own community. The position is quite different today. Our country has been laid waste, and the Jews have suffered equally with the rest of the population. I cannot describe to you the horrors of those days when we first heard the booming of cannon in the vicinity of Belgrade, the thunder coming nearer and nearer until at last the city itself was bombarded and we had to take refuge in cellars, never knowing at any moment whether the building above us would not be shattered to pieces and bury us beneath its ruins. I remained in Belgrade for fifteen days during the bombardment, as long as I thought any members of my community remained there. I believe I was the last Jew to leave. All railway communication was cut off, and when I was finally advised by the police to quit the city my wife and I had to journey in an old cart for four and a half hours over the mountains until we were able to reach the nearest available railway station. On the platform a terrified crowd of four to five thousand people, including women, children and old folk. When a train was procured there was a scramble to get aboard, and we were all packed like sardines. The journey to a junction station, which ordinarily takes one and three-quarter hours, took six hours, and during all that time I was standing in an open truck on one foot, having no room to place the other on the floor of the truck. My wife arrived more dead than alive. The subsequent journey to Nish, which ordinarily takes six hours, took a day and two nights. Most of the Jewish community had fled to Nish, the population of which was increased from 25,000 to over 100,000. About 4,000 Jews were in a state of the most complete destitution. Relief work was organized by the President of the Belgrade community, M. Bengion Bully, together with M. Beraha, President of the Nish community, and myself. This committee set to work to procure food and lodging for these people. All the Jews in Nish who had anything at all gave half of what they possessed for the help of their coreligionists. The Government made us a grant of 2,000 francs and we collected the sum of about 15,000 francs monthly, but our resources are quite inadequate to deal with the distress which prevails, and I have come to London to endeavor to obtain help from our English coreligionists, whose generosity to their brethren in misfortune is proverbial. Those living in comfort and security in England will surely help their poor brethren whose homes have been shattered, and who are reduced from affluence to penury."

An effort is being made to combine all the Jewish hospital associations in Boston, Mass., for the purpose of establishing a Jewish Hospital. The purchase of the Leonard Morse Home at Milton is under consideration.

At Merlannol the whole Jewish male population were compelled to work for three days on the roads because they were accused by the Poles of having given assistance to the Germans. At Ponoovo, Tchutchin and Vladislavovo Jews suffered arrest on account of similar Polish libels in the last-named place. The aged rabbi declared to the German commander that he would remain loyal to Russia even if he had to lose his life.

Rabbi Dr. Moritz Levin, the preacher of the Liberal Synagogue in Berlin, died suddenly while delivering a sermon. Dr. Levin was 72 years old and was the preacher of the Liberal Synagogue of Berlin for more than thirty years.

Owing to the successful intervention of the Chief Rabbi of Turkey, better treatment is now accorded to the Russian Jews in Turkey, and those who are detained as prisoners of war have even been promised a government grant.

A recent census of church affiliations of 376 students of Barnard College, New York city, shows 95 Episcopalians and 93 Protestants; 6 are Jewish and 7 are members of the Ethical Culture Society with parents who are or were originally Jews.

The Turkish government is allowing the Russo-Jewish colonists of Palestine to adopt Turkish nationality. According to information which has reached the Chief Rabbinate, some 15,000 of these colonists had availed themselves of this concession up to the beginning of December.

Several Jews in Alexandria who enjoyed Austrian protection and occupied important government posts have been dismissed. Among them is Goldstein Bey, the Postmaster-General. The Austrian and German deportees from Alexandria to Malta include a fair number of Jews, natives of Trieste.

The Federation of Bronx Jewish Charities was incorporated last week. The purposes are to unite the Jewish charitable organizations in the Bronx borough of New York city, relieve deserving poor regardless of race, color, or creed, discourage pauperism, and promote charitable and cultural societies.

According to the reports of the Distress Committee at Odessa there were toward the end of December about three million destitute Jews in the Pale (particularly in the frontier provinces and in Poland). In places which have been least affected by the war even the poorest Jews willingly contribute to the relief funds.

To assist Jews in Palestine an effort is being made in New York to dispose of half a million dollars worth of fruit, now in the Holy Land. A trial shipment is now in this country. Cases of oranges will be sold at $5, approximately their market value. The proceeds will be devoted to the relief of suffering Jews in Palestine.

The American Jewish Relief Committee for Sufferers from the War. Four thousand Jewish refugees are stranded in Alexandria.

The following telegram was received by Mr. Louis Marshall from Hon. William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State: Americans brought from Palestine to Alexandria being provided with transportation. But Consul Alexandria telegraphs about 6,000 foreign Jewish refugees arrived from Palestine, per cent. 75 Russian, 20 French and 5 mixed. Four thousand destitute. Local Jewish community with slight assistance, except that French, Russian and British consulates are providing food and government and municipality housing. Consul states large numbers are still expected and that funds for relief will be urgently needed.

Accordingly the committee has taken steps to relieve the situation. It also appropriated and sent $25,000 additional for Russia and $25,000 additional from Austria-Hungary.

The total amount appropriated previously was: Appropriated by Executive Committee December 12, 1914, for Russia, $50,000; for Austro-Hungary, $25,000; for Palestine, $25,000. Appropriated December 27, 1914, for Russia, German Poland, Galicia and the rest of Austro-Hungary, $100,000. Total amount appropriated, $200,000.

Sent by Distributing Committee to Russia, $50,000; to Palestine, $10,000; to Alexandria, $1,000; to Russia, $30,000; to German Committee, $45,000; Total amount sent up to January 19, 1915, $136,000; voted to Russia, $25,000; voted to Austria, $25,000; holding Palestine, $14,000; total, $200,000.

The ratio of suffering increases in the winter months. The available reports sum up the situation in one word—HELP! In Vienna there are nearly 200,000 Gallician refugees. Of these, thousands came into the capital utterly destitute. Nearly 100,000 Jews are in a similar plight in Bohemia.

Of the millions in Russia and Poland who are in want of the most elementary needs of existence, it is unnecessary to speak in detail. Nor should the volume of the misery decrease individual compassion.

In reporting the contributions attention is once more directed to the fact that there cannot be too much giving and that far larger contributions than have already been made will be necessary if the situation is to be even slightly relieved.

Wider response is therefore imperative. The total contributions received by the committee up to January 23, 1915, reached $390,026.49.

New York Section Council of Jewish Women.

A meeting of the Hospitals Social Service and Philanthropy Committee of the New York Section Council of Jewish Women, was held on Thursday at the Svedham Hospital. Mrs. Samuel Elkeles presided. A month of great usefulness was reported. The extra activity of the women this month is a sad commentary on the times, for sickness and unemployment with its attendant worry and poverty go hand in hand. The committee appeals to Sewing Circles for donations of garments and also invites volunteer workers. Donations of anything that will cheer or aid the sick may be sent to Svedham Hospital in care of Mrs. S. Elkeles.

Hebrew Free Loan Association Has Record Year.

At the annual meeting of the Hebrew Free Loan Association held last Sunday afternoon in the society's building, No. 108 Second avenue, the president, Mr. Julius J. Dukas, read his annual report, which showed some interesting figures regarding the work and scope of the society. During the past year there were 23,282 loans, amounting to $655,140, and altogether since the society started 259,705 loans, aggregating $6,617,854, have been made. Mr. Dukas stated that "we were oftentimes compelled to reduce the $200 loans to $100, and the $100 loans to $50, and while we show an increase of 1,980 in number of loans over 1913, the amount of increase in money was only $22,730, the $200 loans being only half and the $150 only one-third of last year. We did this in order to help as many applicants as possible, although we well knew that a larger loan oftentimes does more good in proportion.

Our losses were for years only one-half per cent. This year they increased, and are three-quarters per cent., amounting to $4,601. We received from members dues, $26,512.16; donations and bequests $8,309.42; gain building besides free rent, $1,265.31; sundries, $600, making total receipts of $36,686.89."

The principal speakers at the meeting were Mr. Jacob H. Schiff and Rev. Henry S. Morais. Mr. Schiff said in part:

"It is not to the wealthy that you want to appeal, but to the Jew of moderate means who can give, and wants to give, $5 a year to some worthy charity. There must be about 200,000 Jews of moderate means in New York who can do this but don't know whether to give to hospitals, asylums or other institutions. I want to appeal through you to these people to bring their donations to the Hebrew Free Loan Society, for by so doing they will save ever so many poor people from disease, from the hospitals and asylums, and, in short, from needing other charity, and their investment of $5 will be worth many times $5 to the City of New York. The rich can't give you as much as the people of moderate means, for many small contributions quickly pass a few large contributions in amount.

"At present, when distress is so great in New York, when every poor man ought to find encouragement and a helping hand to enable him to retain his grip and his self-respect, your society should try to find some means to expand and meet the situation. You deserve it and the community deserves it, and I believe it can be done."

Dr. Morais declared he was greatly impressed by the story of the association's work, as disclosed in the president's report, in the facts as well as in the figures. The speaker could not help alluding to Israel in days of yore, when by the character of the Mosaic polity, dependence upon charity and pauperism were impossible. He touched upon the elaborate system of land laws, of tithes, of the portions for the poor, and of the prescribed duties of every Jew, as incumbent upon him as his religion, to aid the unfortunate, the widow and the orphan; the large and broad character of the Divine ordinances, which first considered Israel, and then the stranger. He said that while such laws might not be applied under our conditions, yet they were admirable as evidencing the Jewish spirit and the Jew's ability to establish and maintain his self-dependence. Dr. Morais found much encouragement in the work of the Hebrew Free Loan Association; he seconded heartily Mr. Schiff's suggestion that it appeal to the entire Jewish community for membership, and he praised the untiring efforts of the president, "Mr. Julius J. Dukas, as shown by the very good work already accomplished, which ought to continue and thus become a veritable blessing.

Mr. Jonas Well also spoke, addressing the audience in German. The following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Messrs. Abr. Bakst, Joseph Burger, Harry Fischel, William Fischman, Meyer Goldberg, Edwin Kaufman, Max Markel, Sol. Munves, William Prager, Joseph Specter, Elias Surut and Rev. Dr. L. Zinsler.

United Synagogue of America. The Executive Council of the United Synagogue of America held a meeting at Dropsie College, in Philadelphia, on the 3d inst.; Dr. Cyrus Adler presided. Communications from various quarters concerning affiliation were received, and the following congregations admitted to membership, viz.: Congregation Beth El, Springfield, Mass.; Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, Cleveland, Ohio; Congregation Tifereth Israel, Des Moines, Iowa.

A central administration office and synagogue bureau has been established at the Jewish Theological Seminary building in New York under the joint auspices of the United Synagogue, the Jewish Theological Seminary, and the Alumni Association of the Seminary. Its purpose is to afford a means of inter-communication between congregations and rabbis and generally to further the interests of both.

The United Synagogue is making arrangements for its incorporation. Rabbi Samuel Cohen, of Kansas City, Mo., has established in his city a Jewish school under the auspices of the United Synagogue.

Builders of Israel.

The Builders of Israel have arranged a mass meeting for Sunday, January 31, at 8 p. m., at the Pinksler Congregation, 65 East Third street, when prominent speakers will address the meeting in English and Yiddish. These mass meetings are held in the vicinity of mission houses in order to warn Jewish parents of the evil influences of the missionaries on their children.

Annual Meeting of Young Men's Hebrew Association.

Last Sunday afternoon the annual meeting of the association was held. Various other meetings and the bad weather made the attendance somewhat smaller than expected, but fully two hundred were present. The president, Mr. Felix M. Warburg, read his annual report, which will appear in full in the Year Book. In spite of the prevailing hard times and a deficit of over $5,000 the condition of the association is very satisfactory, and it is more than holding its own and constantly increasing the membership of young men using its facilities.

The educational and religious work have been especially noteworthy during the past year. The Regents' Preparatory School has greatly increased its enrollment and its graduates have met all the requirements of the Regents' examinations, their percentages at examinations being among the highest.

The attendance of young men at the Friday evening religious services and other features of religious work has shown a very large increase.

The Vocational Guidance Bureau, as a part of the Employment Bureau, has succeeded in spite of the general lack of employment in promoting the welfare of applicants for positions and has greatly increased its efficiency in the service of employers.

The athletic department is taxed to its utmost capacity, and it is sustaining its reputation for high standards and clean sportsmanship.

The entertainments provided by the Committee on Social Work have been of a high order and well attended. The many clubs and societies in the building are at work with their accustomed zeal, and the year 1915 promises to be notable in achievement.

On Sunday evening, the 31st, under the auspices of the Judaea Society, there will be given in the auditorium "An Evening in Palestine," consisting of six reels of motion pictures illustrative of life in the Holy Land, with a brief descriptive lecture; also Jewish folk songs and instrumental music. The public are welcome.

Lectures on Moses Hess.

An instructive and thoughtful lecture on the life and work of Moses Hess was delivered by the Rev. Joel Blau before the Jewish Institute last Sunday morning in the Kessler Theatre meeting room. Dr. Blau presented an effective sketch of the career of this remarkable man and leader of the Social Democratic movement in Germany, who late in life turned his thoughts to the Jewish question, with the result that he became a convert to and advocate of the idea of Jewish national restoration. The speaker gave an excellent resume of "Rome and Jerusalem," the book in which Hess expounded his new-found and fervent belief in Zionism. An interesting discussion followed the lecture.

The speaker before the Society of the Jewish Institute next Sunday morning will be Dr. Samuel Joseph, who will discuss the subject, "Immigration After the War."

Dr. Jacob A. Grossman's final lecture before the Social Circle was given on Thursday evening at the headquarters of the society, 108 Second avenue.

Central Committee for the Relief of Jews Suffering Through the War.

The following appeal has been issued by the committee and is now being sent out throughout the country. It is accompanied by reproductions of the various stamps.

If every Jew in America contributes five cents a day it will amount to $150,000. If this were done for only ten days it would amount to one million and a half.

DO YOUR SHARE. BEGIN TO-DAY!

This is a personal appeal to you for your help. There is not enough ink to describe the misfortunes which have befallen our fellow Jews in the war zone. It is our bounden duty to help the widows and orphans, the old men and the old women that are starving. Their homes have been laid waste and their only support is the soup kitchens and bread lines, which we are helping to support through our committees abroad by the money we are sending.

The Joint Distribution Committee has already appropriated over $200,000 to Russia, Poland, Austria-Hungary and Palestine.

The Central Committee is specially charged to distribute the self-taxation stamps. The tax upon each individual can be so arranged by himself as not to unduly burden anyone. The $5 worth of stamps which are enclosed should be used for your own correspondence, bills, etc., or you may dispose of some of them among your friends.

Kindly make your check payable to Harry Fischel, treasurer, 1003 World Building, New York. By using one stamp on every one of your letter heads you show your sympathy with your suffering brethren abroad and become a propaganda committee of one for the general fund.

Orach Chaim League.

The Orach Chaim League held a very successful open meeting at the Hotel Bon-Ray on Wednesday evening, January 20. Miss Henrietta Szold gave an extremely interesting illustrated lecture on "The New Palestine," which was followed by a musical programme, after which dancing continued until "Home, Sweet Home" was played at a late hour. The league and its friends spent a most enjoyable evening and trusts that it will have the pleasure of welcoming all again at its next meeting to be held on Wednesday, February 17, at the Hotel Bon-Ray.

Annual Meeting Federation of Sisterhoods.

The Federation of Sisterhoods had a very large attendance at its annual meeting Wednesday afternoon at Delmonico's.

The reports of Sisterhood work done during 1914 far exceeded in extent and scope those of any previous year. Efforts had been made for helpfulness in many new directions by quite a number of sisterhoods, and in every field the work had branched out in ever-widening circles.

Every organization of the Federation merited unstinted praise for the splendid showing it made and each vied with the other in record of fine performance.

Among the best "reports" read was that of Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim on behalf of the Emanu-El Sisterhood. It was terse and to the point and announced an expenditure of $50,000.

Mrs. M. M. Menken, of the Shearith Israel (Spanish and Portuguese) Sisterhood, was listened to with intense interest. She held her hearers by her statement of what the society is doing for the redemption of wayward girls. She is a probation officer in the Night Court and received warm praise from Mr. Marks, the Borough President, during his address to the meeting for her heroic labors and self-sacrifice. Her statement of the percentage of increase of immorality among our young girls, however, was very disquieting.

Miss Epstein was another speaker whose report received conspicuous attention, as well as that from Agudas Yeshorim Sisterhood. In the absence of Mrs. Schulman her report for Beth-El was submitted and showed a very marked display of excellent work and benevolent expenditure by that Sisterhood. Miss Jakowski reported the launching of a new but much-needed benefaction, a Society for the Transportation of Tuberculous Patients to designated places by physicians or organizations, including fares to Denver. The removal of the patient's family, where desirable, is also included by this society.

Mrs. Elkeles presided with much grace and efficiency. Among the speakers were the Borough President, Mr. M. D. Waldman, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. William L. Einstein, the honorary president, who was called upon and responded with short but telling words.

Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel was expected but failed to appear. Tea was served after the meeting.

Young Women's Hebrew Association.

On Sunday evening, the 31st, at 8:15 o'clock, Mrs. William Einstein will talk before the members of the association. In addition there will be musical numbers by Mrs. Kraft.

On Wednesday evening, February 3, the members of the Mariana Stroek Club will repeat the performance of their play, "Mrs. Oakley's Telephone," for the benefit of the children's lunch fund of one of the neighboring schools.

An interesting course of lectures on "Great Teachers and Leaders in Judaism" will be given by Rev. Dr. Moses Hyamson. These talks will be held on the first and third Thursday mornings in February and March at 11 o'clock, the first of the series to be given on Thursday morning, February 4.

The twelfth annual meeting of the association will be held on Sunday afternoon, February 14, at 2:30 o'clock. There will be an exhibition of students' work and the building will be open for inspection.

Young Judaea.

The 15th of Shebat (New Year of Trees), which this year falls on Sunday, January 31, will be celebrated by the circles as Young Judaea Day. Special programmes for the occasion have been sent out, containing readings, recitations and compositions on the topics of Palestine and Young Judaea.

In New York two large public gatherings will be held, one under the auspices of the Invincible Judaeans. In the large hall of Niblo's Garden, in the Bronx, on the afternoon of January 31. The Young Judaea Council of Manhattan will hold a gathering at the Shearith Israel Sisterhood house, 86 Orchard street, on Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m.

Young Judaea Day will also be celebrated by parents' meetings in other sections of the city and by the local Young Judaea councils in Connecticut, Baltimore and Massachusetts.

New Era Club.

This (Friday) evening a lecture will be given at the New Era Club, 274 East Broadway, by Bernard G. Richards, of the Jewish Institute, on "Jewish Life and Yiddish Literature." On Friday, February 5, 1915, a lecture will be given by Hon. William A. Prendergast, City Comptroller, on "Our City Finances."

SOCIAL NOTES.

A concert and tea will be given at the Waldorf-Astoria on Tuesday afternoon, February 2, at two o'clock under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Sanitarium for Hebrew Children. Mr. R. L. Goldberg will draw cartoons and the musical portion of the entertainment will be furnished by the New York String Quartet, Mr. George Destal, Miss Christine Schutz, Mr. Vivian Gossnell, Mme. Stella W. Robenstein and Mr. Joseph Rosenberg. A special feature will be Mr. Harry Fox, the well-known comedian.

All arrangements have been completed for the open meeting and entertainment of the Friendly Torah Circle, the Junior League of the Downtown Talmud Torah, which will take place Saturday evening, January 30, in the auditorium of the schoolhouse, 394-396 East Houston street. An elaborate musical and literary programme has been prepared, which is expected to attract the young Jews and Jewesses of the neighborhood and interest them in the work of the institution. All are welcome.

A card afternoon in aid of destitute women and children will be given at the Hotel McAlpin on February 4 under the auspices of the following Committees: Mesdames Samuel Elkeles, Monie Rosnosky, E. R. Giles, David E. Goldfarb, A. Jedel, M. J. Mandelbaum, S. Landau, M. F. Oppenheimer, Joel Del Monte, H. S. Simons, Sidney Levi and Miss Ruth Kodziesen. Valuable and beautiful prizes have been donated, one for every four players. Any game may be played.

The Beth Israel Sisterhood will hold a regular meeting on Monday afternoon, February 1, 1915, at 2:30 o'clock in the vestry rooms of the Synagogue. The newly elected officers of the Sisterhood are Mrs. Abraham Kassel, president; Mrs. Morris A. Eiseman, vice-president; Mrs. Leo Greenbaum, treasurer, and Mrs. Joseph Segall, secretary. The installation exercises will take place at the meeting.

Nathan Straus, Jr., gave a dinner and dance at his residence, 27 West Seventy-second street, last Saturday night, under the chaperonage of Justice and Mrs. Irving Lehman and Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Straus. Among the guests were Miss Carola Warburg, Margaret Seligman and Ruth Morgenthau. R. L. Goldberg drew cartoons to illustrate a story as it was thrown upon the screen, and Hy Mayer showed moving pictures of his cartoons.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Runkel have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Claire L. Runkel, to Oscar F. Grab, of New York. Miss Runkel spent last summer in Europe with her parents, where she first met Mr. Grab. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hamerslough, of Trinidad, Col., who at present are residing at No. 547 Riverside Drive, this city, have announced the engagement of their daughter Adele to Mr. Isaac Stern, of this city.

The American Hebrew Aid Association will have its tenth annual entertainment and ball at Delmonico's to-morrow (Saturday) night.

Mr. and Mrs. Sussman Reinhardt, of No. 1694 Lexington avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter Miriam to Mr. Alfred Epstein, of Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Dombro, of Hoe avenue, Bronx, have announced the engagement of their daughter Henrietta to Mr. Jack J. Goldman, of 31 West 113th street.

Ohab Zedek Activities.

The Ohab Zedek Sisterhood, the Board of Directors of the Talmud Torah and the executive members of the Ohab Zedek League met in a joint session on Wednesday evening, January 27.

Mrs. Moritz Neuman, the president of the Sisterhood, reported that there were 175 children receiving religious instruction in the Talmud Torah, which is supported by the Sisterhood. The school is doing excellent work and is so popular that more room is needed to accommodate the many applicants. A class in advanced Hebrew has been organized by Rev. Dr. Bernard Drachman, which is very well attended.

Mrs. Moritz Neuman.

The annual meeting of the Sisterhood was also held and the election of officers resulted in the unanimous re-election of Mrs. Moritz Neuman as president for the sixth time. Following the election the Sisterhood had arranged a surprise for Mrs. Neuman and held a reception in honor of her daughter, Miss Ruth Neuman, whose engagement to Mr. Samuel M. Weisberger was announced. Mr. and Mrs. Neuman were organizers of the Sisterhood and of the Talmud Torah, and are also generous supporters of Congregation Ohab Zedek. Dr. Drachman, in very felicitous terms, expressed the congratulations of every one present, to Mr. and Mrs. Neuman and the newly engaged couple. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was spent.

IN MEMORIAM.

LEVY, CARRIE.—In sad and everlasting memory of my dear friend, Carrie Levy, who departed this life for endless repose on February 3, 1911. Thoughts of you will always be with me. FRIEDA MORRIS.

In a palace of eternal rest you lie, as was your wish, dear friend. Thy simplicity and ethereal beauty were carried out through all its trend. Lazily lost in dreams of you, we oft have told Of your untainted character and goodness of soul.

"Billy" Sunday Praises Jews.
 In a recent sermon entitled "The Story of Jacob," the Rev. "Billy" Sunday, who is conducting a revival campaign in Philadelphia, Pa., said among other things:
 "The history of the Jews is the most stupendous monument in the history of the Bible.
 "None of my kin are Jews. I never married a Jew. I haven't any Jewish uncles or cousins or aunts. I never borrowed a dollar from a Jew, nor do I owe a Jew any money. Therefore I am speaking independently of any influence.

"The Jew to-day is as distinctly a Jew as he was 6,000 years ago, when God entered into the covenant of circumcision with Abraham. The purest blood on God's earth is that in the race of Jews. We are proud to trace our ancestry to Plymouth Rock. Mirabeau, in the French Assembly; Samuel Adams, in the Massachusetts Legislature; Patrick Henry, in the Virginia House of Deputies, never said anything more eloquent than did Disraeli, the Jew, in answer to the taunts of O'Connell: 'When your ancestors were naked savages, roaming over the hills and through the forests, mine were high priests in the temple of God.'
 "The shrewdest financiers in the world are Jews; you pay tribute in the clothes you wear; I pay tribute in the suit I wear to the Jew. They control the clothing industry in America. There is not a Cabinet in Europe that has not a Jew as a member. It is said that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. stopped the Japanese war by refusing to give any more money. When you visit the poorhouses and county institutions you never find any Jewish fathers and mothers. A Jew established in New York a pure milk supply.

"A Jew gave Columbus the money to discover America. When Queen Isabella pawned her jewels a Jew drew the map that Columbus used. His doctor was a Jew. One of his captains was a Jew. His interpreter was a Jew. He, by the way, was the first white man to put his foot on American soil. There were three Jews on Washington's staff during the stirring times of the Revolution. A Jew gave $658,000 in the darkest hours of the Revolution to help found the American Republic. They have outlived the House of Tudor, the House of Plantagenet, Charlemagne.

"Caesar, Egypt, Rome, Greece—the Jew has outlived them all. When 6,000 years more have passed the Jew will probably outlive those centuries.

"Every morning of the school year 18,000,000 children pledge their allegiance to the Stars and Stripes. Of these 400,000 are sons and daughters of Abraham. You never see a Jew as a weary Willie or a bum, touch you for the price of a flop of beer. The life of Jacob is largely the world's history."

Hebrew Hymn Unites Hostile Soldiers.

In a Hungarian paper issued in Budapest an interesting anecdote is related how the chanting of En Kelohenu caused a truce between groups of Austrian and Russian soldiers. While entombed in the trenches, a group of Austrian soldiers went out at night to dig up some potatoes from a nearby field. They took their guns with them and placed several sentinels to watch against an onslaught of the enemy. When they were already in the field they heard a group of the enemy's soldiers moving. The others also went out to dig potatoes and as it happened most of them were Jews. On the way some of the Jewish soldiers began to chant the well known En Kelohenu, the

M. Narcisse Leven, the president of the Alliance Israelite Universelle and of the Jewish Colonization Association, died in Paris, France, last week. M. Leven was born in Urdigen on the Rhine in 1833. He studied in Paris and graduated as a lawyer, after which he became interested in politics. For five years he was secretary to Adolph Cremieux. During the Franco-Prussian War, Leven was secretary to the Minister of Justice. When Cremieux retired from political life, Leven also left politics, and has since refused any political office. Leven was one of the founders of the Alliance; was successively its secretary, vice-president and president. For the past thirty years he was the leading spirit of the Alliance.

NEWS FROM ENGLAND

(Exclusive Correspondence to the HEBREW STANDARD)

The Intercession Services—Fine Progress of the Jewish Battalion Idea—Great Jewish Millionaire Philanthropist Voices Strong Opinions in His Will—London Concerned with Destitution Among Polish Jews—Protecting Women and Girls.

London, Jan. 8, 1915.

In connection with the war it had been arranged that January 3 should be a day of intercession in all the English churches. The Jewish community fell into line with this, as it does with all other views in connection with the war, and Saturday, January 2, was set apart for the intercession services. Throughout the country the special prayers arranged by the Chief Rabbi were devoutly recited by large congregations. Dr. Hertz delivered a particularly striking and impressive address at the Great Synagogue, pointing out the duties of citizenship, while Dr. Gaster, the spiritual head of the Sephardi Jews in this country, preached at the synagogue in Bevis Marks. "War speeds through the lands, the clash of arms, the shout of battles rises higher and higher. In Thy great mercy protect those who with good courage go out to face the danger of death." This was the spirit of the entire services, and the effect upon the large body of worshippers found eloquent expression in the liberal offerings made by them for the Red Cross Fund. At the West London Synagogue for British Jews the service of intercession was held on January 3, being followed by a very large congregation.

The preacher at the Great Synagogue was the Rev. Dr. B. Salomon. After the ordinary service appropriate Psalms were read and the prayer of intercession was offered. Dr. Salomon said: "We are engaged in a struggle unparalleled in the history of our country, but not, alas! in the history of the Jew. The Jew, who has had for hundreds of years to fight for his very life, can better comprehend what such a struggle means than the majority of other creeds. It is not given to all of us to participate in the fray, but there is work to hand which none of us need shirk. There are the wounded to succor, the fatherless and widowed to comfort and support. Thousands of our fellow-creatures, but a few months ago on the crest of prosperity, are now, by war's ravages, in the valley of poverty. 'Give and pray' must be our watchword. When we remember what our soldiers and sailors—among whom we are proud to reckon thousands of our co-religionists—have to undergo, when we read of the heroic resistance, of the cold and misery of the trenches, and when we, safe by our warm firesides, vision the ironclads out in the storm, with death perhaps concealed in every wave, surely no eloquence is needed to urge you to give generously and quickly to relieve our heroes, sick and wounded."

I mentioned last week that a big meeting was to be held in London on January 2 to assist in the big movement now on foot for recruiting Jews for the new armies. Major-General Sir Alfred Turner, who presided, said the War Office had now agreed that Jews who enlisted should be allowed to serve together in a battalion of the King's Royal Rifle Corps, now at Winchester. Colonel Cohen, who represents the War Office, said there were 10,000 Jews serving in the British forces, and he hoped that before long there would be another 5,000. Dr. Eder read several messages from well-known public men. The Chief Rabbi, in regretting his inability to attend the meeting, wrote: "This is a solemn crisis in our nation's life and destiny. Britain is calling upon her children to fight her cause, and none have offered their lives more willingly than our Jewish brethren."

Louis Edward Raphael, one of the most famous of our philanthropic Jews, who died recently, has had his estate provisionally valued at $5,000,000. Heavy duties are levied in this country upon the estates of deceased rich people. In this case the estate duty will amount to $1,000,000, as compared with $750,000 under the provisions in force previous to this year, or with $500,000 under the 1907 budget or $400,000 under the rules in force between 1891 and 1907. Further estate duty will be levied when the valuation of the property is completed, as well as legacy duty ranging from 1 per cent. to 10 per cent., according to the degree of kinship of the inheritor. Testator made the following striking announcement in his last will and testament: "As I have during many years of my life devoted considerable sums to charitable and beneficent objects, both public and private, I do not feel called upon to leave any charitable bequests by my will, and I am further induced to make this omission as I consider that the law whereby charitable gifts are subject to death duties is most impolitic and inequitable."

Mr. Raphael's estate is one of the three biggest that came for duty purposes within 1914. The other big ones were Lord Strathcona's, valued at $23,257,010, and Peter Coates', the great cotton and thread millionaire, whose estate was valued at $12,810,440.

A big meeting has been held in London with regard to the question of destitute Jews in Poland under the chairmanship of Hermann Landau. At the meeting Dr. Hertz gave some appalling figures with regard to sufferings in that war-stricken country. He quoted statistics which showed that Jews in all Russian Poland and a great part of the Jews in the province of Kovno, Vilna, Grodno, Volhynia, Podolia and Bessarabia were suffering. The number of refugees and destitute approximated two million—that was to say, there were one-third of the Jews of Russia, one-sixth of the Jews of the world penniless, absolutely destitute and starving; and this did not include the extreme distress of the Jews in the Galician provinces occupied by the Russian army. Besides the 170,000 from other parts of Austria who had fled to Vienna, there were 25,000 refugees in Moravia and 75,000 in Bohemia—in which two countries the government had put up barracks for the refugees. This would show what other countries were suffering. Just as their problem in England sank into nothing when compared with the Western Galician problem, so the Western Galician problem sank into nothing when compared with that afforded by Poland. The relief committee in Petrograd, of which Baron Gunzburg, Mark Warszwsky, Komenka and Sliosberg were the heads, was making the greatest possible efforts to get relief funds, and had asked for American participation as being highly necessary. That meant that British participation was likewise highly necessary. Jews in England were not doing their duty by taking care of just six or seven thousand refugees when there were two million absolutely destitute. It was quite easy for him to make them sympathize with these poor people, but he would not be satisfied with sympathy. He wanted them to prove to themselves and the world that Jews could meet a world difficulty in a practical spirit.

The secretary of the Jewish Association for the Protection of Girls and Women has been giving some interesting particulars with regard to the efforts of that society. After dealing with improved conditions in England he referred to conditions in other European countries. He put a lot of the special trouble this society tackles down to lack of education and restriction as to means of earning livelihoods among the Eastern European Jewish girls.

Young Judaea's Syllabus and Course of Study.

The need has long been felt for a distinctly Jewish programme of literary work for juvenile club purposes. While many volumes exist on girls' and boys' club work, none of these are primarily intended for Jewish circles. With the steady growth of Jewish literary clubs and parallel with this a demand for Jewish programmes, there exists a need for a volume catering to Jewish club work.

"The Syllabus and Course of Study for Young Judaea Circles" is the initial step in this direction. It is a 48-page booklet, arranged by Mr. Sundel Doniger, and is based on the experiences of Young Judaea leaders during the past five years. It is unique in its form of presentation, differing from the usual methods of the class room, being peculiarly adapted to the needs of club work.

In order to insure the insertion of communications in the current issue of THE HEBREW STANDARD they must be in this office not later than Wednesday 10 a. m. of the week in which they are to appear.

The Associated Menorah Societies have issued the first number of The Menorah Journal, which is both well edited and well printed. The promise held out by the editorial announcement is that future numbers will be valuable contributions to the literature of American Jewry. We bid the new periodical a hearty welcome and wish its editors Godspeed in their task.

We are pleased to observe that the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York were courageous enough to go on formal record against the bill to restrict immigration while this awaited the action of President Wilson. Our "city fathers" thus proved that they are true to the best and highest ideals of our nation—that of affording an asylum to the poor and the persecuted from all the world.

The Lutheran Standard announces that the Zion Society, composed of Norwegian Lutherans, is actively engaged in "Jewish" mission work in Chicago. To prove that this association has "accomplished" something, our contemporary sees fit to add, however, without direct and tangible proof of its assertion, that in the 36 years of its existence 500 "Jews" were baptized. We doubt it! We hardly think 500 Jews in this country have heard of this Lutheran missionary body.

The Philadelphia Y. M. H. A. are proceeding in earnest with the work of erecting a new home for their organization. A campaign to secure the balance of the necessary funds is under way, and by the end of January all the required money will have been pledged. This method must be startlingly novel for Philadelphians who are, if the accepted traditions may be credited, rather leisurely in their advances and activities. But it shows that even they will awaken to the needs of the hour!

From London, and from the mouth of Joseph Cowen, the noted Zionist, we have it that the now famous expression, "War is hell," is to be credited to Abraham Lincoln. General Sherman's biographers have protested that the sentiment was not their hero's. From what we know of Lincoln, it surely was not his, and it will probably be found that it was evolved from the mind of some enterprising journalist. The words have stuck, however, and are now, unfortunately, more apposite than ever.

The project for a Central Talmud Torah and Jewish Institute to be erected in Yorkville is one which should have the unqualified support of all our coreligionists. There is no Talmud Torah from Seventh street to 103d street and this institution, when completed, will provide instruction for 2,000 pupils daily. It is not to be merely a Talmud Torah, but is to be also a Jewish Social Centre with a gymnasium, provisions for club work, kindergarten classes and a Kosher kitchen. It will be a centre for the inculcation of traditional Judaism and its necessity is obvious.

In the various obituary notices of the late Carl Goldmark, the composer, which have fallen under our eyes, little or no acknowledgement of the Jewish influence on the expression of his genius is made. Yet, all Goldmark's music was strikingly colored by his racial interests. In his youth he was neither more nor less than a Yeshiva-bochur in Hungary, and this early environment directly affected him throughout his later life. After all we must not forget that he in conjunction with Salomon Hermann Mosenthal gave us the Jewish grand opera par excellence—the "Queen of Sheba."

The knighting of Lionel Abrahams, the Assistant Under Secretary of the India Office, by the King of Great Britain, is an appropriate reward to one who has conscientiously and satisfactorily discharged through a long term of years the multifarious duties of an exacting civil position in an unobtrusive manner. The new knight, although a Jew, represents the traditional English civil servant of the crown at his best. His splendid talents have been and are fully appreciated by his official superiors; the general public, in all probability, reckoned little with his existence before his newest honor came to him.

With every maintenance of a strict neutrality, who can help being moved by the touching, pathetic and heart-throbbing letter of Cardinal Mercier to his unfortunate countrymen, the Belgians? It teems with interest as with pathos; an expected spiritual impetus is in every line. Yet, strange is it not, that our neighbors, while so constantly given to quoting the prophets of old, are in no sense appreciative of the expressions they are wont to cite? "I am the First and the Last. I am the Lord, and there is none else; there is no God beside Me." "The Lord thy God shalt thou adore, and Him only shalt thou serve." Why, the Cardinal's letter just brims with these and similar quotations from our Holy Bible, which our neighbors call their's, too. But where is the fitness, where is the applicability. One God alone, yet another. One God alone, yet a God head. One God alone, yet a deified man. One God alone, yet a trinity. One God alone, yet a virgin worshipped as a deity?

We, as Jews, are intensely sympathetic; we pity the suffering; we help to bind up wounds; our charity, our fellow-feeling are as broad as the world. Still, thanks to the One God Alone for our Judaism, which teaches us that "there is no God beside Him," that Him alone we adore, that beside Him there is no Saviour.

Our local contemporary, the Masonic Standard, had the following editorial note in its issue of the 23d of January:

"A Mason never tells, but sometimes he talks rather loudly in the public conveyances. Perhaps that is why all the non-Masons knew the next day just what had happened at the Shrine election."

It so happens that the election which gave point to the foregoing remark evolved about the figures of a Jew and a non-Jew who were rivals for an important office in the organization. And, unfortunately, the Jew's candidacy was made the subject of all the antagonism and opposition of which the non-Jew is capable. The issue of his faith was openly and defiantly flung forth and he went down to glorious defeat. We agree with our brother editor that "A Mason Never Tells," and, were the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine to maintain unsullied the grand and noble principles whereby all men are supposed to be measured, we are sure that the news of this contest would never have penetrated into the world beyond the tiled door of the temple. If prejudice and racial hatreds are suffered to sway the work of the Shrine its devotees must not demur if the world judges them and their organization harshly and expresses itself concerning both in no uncertain manner.

Mr. Jacob H. Schiff was quite right when he said last Sunday, at the twenty-third annual meeting of the Hebrew Free Loan Association, that people ought to be taught to visit 108 rather than 356 Second avenue; that the general Jewish public ought to learn that if each head of a household could give an annual fee of $5 to this worthy institution, a world of good might be accomplished, and the condition of the poor, even of the sick, be greatly benefited. Mr. Schiff felt that such contribution, however, modest, amounted to a great deal more than the large subscriptions of the well-to-do, since he felt that at least 200,000 out of our total New York Jewish community could, if they would, afford a $5 membership to the Hebrew Free Loan Association, and that by so doing, they would avoid the necessity, or at least, a large part, of the work of exclusively charity societies, orphan asylums and hospitals, in which even he felt an interest. Such a society ought to be afforded the ways and means of doing tremendous work, and the results would accrue to Jewry, and lift it all the more in the sight of itself, and of the world at large.

Right Worshipful and Reverend Simon R. Cohen, a Grand Chaplain of Masons in the State of New York and the rabbi of Beth Elohim Temple of Brooklyn, delivered a recent lecture on "Masonry and Its Workings." He declared in this that Masonry represents the application of the principle of righteousness to life, and said that Judaism has failed to accomplish this—because it has never been numerically strong! For a rabbi, no matter how devoted he may be to the Masonic ideal, to venture such a statement from his pulpit surprises us. Judaism, we are free to say, has applied righteousness, proper conduct, to life, for this teaching constitutes the true essential of our faith. For this reason the average Jew is in reality a Mason before he receives an esoteric knowledge of the ancient mysteries, and finds that Freemasonry but re-enforces the undying lessons of his own religion in a broad, unsectarian manner. Rabbi Cohen must be strikingly unfamiliar with the history and principle of the faith he professes to inculcate! We suggest that he consider his remark in the light of our words and confess the error into which he has fallen.

We like to recall men, even of humble career, who "made their mark" by undeviating probity united with true piety; who followed in life and action the mandates of religion, and to whom duty and faith were joys, not sacrifices, who, moreover, developed a healthy contagion in their own homes by the example they set their offspring. Of such was the late Joseph Oshinsky, and what bears evidence in addition to his own acts through this life are these words in a father's will, which we call up to every parent in Israel, to pause and ponder over for their own good and that of their children: "I also wish to impress upon my children that they should cling steadfastly to the orthodox Jewish religion, and faithfully observe the laws thereof, in order that they may enjoy happiness both in this world and in the everlasting world to come."

WHEN THE PAST WAVES ITS HAND

ויאמר ר' אל משה . . . הרם את-מטך ונטה ירך על-הים:

"And the Lord said unto Moses. . . lift up thy rod and stretch out thy hand over the sea. . ."—Ex., xiv, 15-16.

There is a thick veil of myth and mystery which separates us from the events told in this week's portion. Looking through that veil which softens and idealizes the outlines of bygone days, we see Moses in the act of "lifting up his rod and stretching out his hand over the sea," and it appears to us as if he were the veritable Spirit of the Past waving a magic wand over the sea and sky and transforming the world and all that is therein into miraculous dream-shapes. . . .

We love the charm of these dream-shapes, though we know Reality to be different, much harsher and less yielding. We are moderns and the attitude of the modern mind towards miracles is too well known to need telling. We do not believe, literally, in miracles; and that not because we will not, but because we cannot. We take no especial delight in denying what our forebears staunchly believed in; nor do we believe in "heresy for heresy's sake." But were we to accept miracles, we should be compelled to discard our entire intellectual equipment, which we have so painfully secured; we should be forced to overthrow the foundations upon which our present-day civilization rests, and cast about for some new foundation. Since this is impossible, since we actually live and work as if miracles were impossible, miracles are impossible.

Yet, we make this denial not without pangs of the heart, if without qualms of conscience. Except for the few heresy-mongers who revel in denials, no man likes to wrench himself loose from the cherished beliefs of his father and mother, and he does it only under the stress of necessity. The one-eyed Cyclops who breakfasted on Greek heroes was not so formidable as are some of these one-eyed giants of ultra-rationalism, who, being without the eye of faith, look out upon the world with the immovable eye of reason and swallow up, every day of their lives, some treasured belief with genuine cannibalistic relish. We are not of these. I am firmly convinced that there is a large number of modern men and women who, while intellectually denying the possibility of miracles, harbor, nevertheless, in their heart of hearts an unavowed fondness for miracles, or at any rate, for miraculous accounts, which lingers there despite the protests of reason.

There is, in fact, something strangely fascinating in these accounts. We do not live in a world where the sun could ever stand still, or the sea be cleft asunder with its restless waters solidified into a rigid wall, or the like; but perhaps we should like to live in such a world, even as children would like fairies and brownies to become "real." Just as children live in an atmosphere of fairy-wonders, so did child-peoples live in an atmosphere of divine miracles. The belief in miracles belongs distinctly to the child-age of humanity. Hence the fascination clinging to the miraculous tales of the Bible. Who would not yield to the spell of childhood's lisp ing innocence?

When under the spell of these miraculous accounts, one almost regrets that our modern training has removed us so far from this child-like belief in wonders. One is almost ready to utter aloud the covert desire that he could believe as much and as easily as in the days of childhood. How fine it would be to believe once again that everything is possible! But reason protests in the name of its own dignity, against such beliefs, and we are, rightly or wrongly, too much the creatures of reason to gainsay it all too insistently. All we can hope to do is to strike, somehow, a just balance between the demands of the intellect and the needs of the heart. But even when the balance is struck and our nature recovers its poise,—the heart, with its invincible yearnings, still suffers. . . .

There is nothing that can compare with the poignancy of these spiritual regrets resulting from beliefs that are irretrievably lost. We look back to them with passionate longing, knowing them to be a golden mirage floating in the hazy distance of Man's childhood, which we shall never be able to bring back into our own lives. . . .

We have no quarrel with those pious souls who believe in miracles—we rather envy them. They have not yet lost Eden: the recklessly swinging sword of intellectualism does not forbid their entering into dream-realms. Our quarrel is with those who try with all their might and main to find natural reasons for miracles, to rationalize them out of their pristine character. But what is left of a miracle once it is explained? It simply ceases to be a miracle; and whether we believe in miracles or no, we want them just as they are—stupendous prodigies baffling the mind. We want no counterfeit miracles. We do believe in miracles; we do not want any one to juggle us into believing them; but we clamor for them and we object to anyone's touching them with unhallowed hands.

Just let the bygone ages tell their beautiful fairy-tales, without interference from vulgar rationalists and clumsy rationalizers. Just let the past wave its wand over sea and sky, over hill and valley, until by the virtue of its enchantments ugliness disappears and discord is silenced. And we? What about us, creatures of reason and pedantic logic? Just let us sit around in a circle—and listen—and watch—and dream. . . .

War, like politics, seems to make "strange bed fellows." Here is Germany in league with Austria, when the former not so many years since, as Prussia, was the sworn enemy of the latter. Here is England, the apostle of enlightenment, fraternizing with France, while English history just reeks with warfare between the two sides of the Channel. But, worse than all, Great Britain in the same boat with Russia, the stigma of the earth, that levels its subjects to the bottomest, and France, Republican France, its ally, too. And then, people on either side of the argument, talk about the justice of the thing. If ever there was a raison d'etre for hostility to each other in the world's history, you may search in vain for it to-day, while Europe is a vast battlefield, and the soil of God's world, given to man "to live and let live," is reddened by the life's blood of His creatures. But that's war, that's aggression, that's the "man's inhumanity to man (which)" makes countless thousands mourn. The Jew has naught to do with its course, thank God, but then he is loyal, despite all. He is ready to give himself up, too, for countries utterly undeserving of the least from him. And when it's all over, and peace has been proclaimed, what reward will come to him? Blood-stained history is testimony. Only let us be watchful and true in the sight of nations.

The annual meeting of the Mount Sinai Hospital, which takes place next Sunday morning, is one of the most important local communal events of the year. Mount Sinai Hospital is one of our best known and most beneficent institutions, and at the annual meetings business of moment is transacted and discussions of interest take place. We call upon the community to attend this meeting and thus by their presence testify to their concern with the welfare of Mount Sinai Hospital.

The Hebrew Publishing Company of this city has issued the first American edition of the well-known "Authorized Daily Prayer Book" of the Rev. S. Singer, of London. The present is in all respects the counterpart of the original English edition (being reprinted from the original plates) and contains a special American note from the Chief Rabbi of Great Britain, Dr. J. H. Hertz. At this day it is unnecessary for us to expatiate on the merits and purposes of the Singer Prayer Book; these are fully known to all our readers. A feature of the present American edition is that copies of it must be sold for the same ridiculously low price here as in London—twenty-five cents here, a shilling there. Thus the book possesses a distinct popular appeal, and it is to be hoped that American Jewry will purchase the volume in large numbers and thus convince the publishers that they were well advised to embark on their undertaking.

Assemblyman Nathan D. Shapiro, of Brooklyn, has introduced a bill into the legislature, the purpose of which is to amend the Penal Law so that persons falsely representing the food sold by them to be kosher or sanctioned by orthodox Hebrew religious requirements shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. This is a measure of great importance and one which we unqualifiedly and unhesitatingly commend to the attention and support of our readers. To ensure its enactment it is incumbent upon the Jewish community to bring its influence to bear with our lawmakers in Albany, and we suggest that the appropriate communal bodies and institutions take steps to make their desires known in the proper quarters with respect to it. In sales of kosher commodities it is quite essential that the protecting arm of the law be thrown around those dealers who scrupulously and conscientiously meet the requirements of the Jewish religion on this important head.

Calamity Howlers

There are a lot of people who are constantly dividing and condemning the present generation as bad and wicked and holding up "the good old times" as so much better and virtuous than the present. Everything was better, in the good old days of the great-great-grandfather's times.

An apostle of temperance is coming to this town to reform and regenerate the tippler. The gilded saloons are going to Jericho, and the "rum palaces and tango tank-feasts" are to suffer an eruption! At any rate, Billy Sunday is getting a million dollars' worth of free advertising.

But after all is said and done this is really not a bad world. It is beyond all comparison with the world of a hundred or more years ago, better morally and socially than the "good old times." There is less tippling and less crime compared to the population of now and then.

Take as an instance the compilation of the Colonial laws of Massachusetts of the year 1686, and one may get an idea of the number of tippling houses (saloons) that flourished in those early days; their number was legion; it seems the greater part of the community were chronic tipplers and the constables and magistrates were kept busy handling the obstreperous of this genus. The present is a millennium in this particular.

When one reads the daily doings of the bad people in this country gathered from all parts and recorded in the daily press, we must come to the conclusion that after all the chronicle doesn't show up so bad for nearly one hundred million souls.

The reformer is often an exaggerator; it is his business to make the cause he preaches the worst; but it isn't. The good old times have nothing on the present age.

"Rabbi Dr. Arthur Levy states in the Hamburg Israelite Journal that since the beginning of the war Russian soldiers have committed pogroms in more than 215 towns of Russian Poland.

"In Stashew eleven Jews were hanged in a synagogue. In Klodawa two representative members of the Jewish community were hanged on a Friday upon coming home from religious services. Their wives were required to fetch the ropes and their bodies were left hanging twenty-four hours from their own balconies. The Jewish houses in the neighborhood were forbidden to close their shutters.

"At Shidlowec several Jewish girls committed suicide after being attacked by soldiers. In Petrikow, in the course of a Friday night service, the governor and police took the Torahs (sacred laws) from their place, in pretended search for a secret telephone.

lin, seventy-eight Jews were hanged in one day. In Kromotow houses were burned and the Jewish women and children were nearly all killed. In Zdunskawola outrages too horrible for description were perpetrated. One Jewish-Russian soldier, who came home wounded, found his wife had been killed by his comrades."

From Frankfurt, Germany, comes news of the death of Mrs. Mendel Hirsch, the daughter-in-law of the famous Rabbi Samson Raphael Hirsch.

Mrs. Hirsch, who was a great helpmeet to her husband, director Dr. Hirsch, for over forty years, was the mother of eleven children, nine of them daughters, who live in various parts of the world. One daughter is Professor Dr. Rahel Hirsch, of Berlin, the first lady professor in Germany; another is the wife of Rev. Dr. Philip Klein, of New York city, and another Mrs. Leopold Loewenstein, of London. Other daughters live in Germany, France and Holland. The two sons are practicing physicians in Frankfurt, Germany.

AMERICAN EDITION
of the

Rev. S. Singer's Authorized Daily Prayer Book

Issued by the
HEBREW PUBLISHING COMPANY
50-52 Eldridge St., N. Y.

"The Rev. S. Singer's 'Authorized Daily Prayer Book' has established itself as the Book of Devotion in nearly every Jewish home in the British Empire. Nine editions, numbering 135,000 copies, have been called for. Although some copies early found their way into various congregations in the United States, the cost of the imported book was too high and the difficulties of obtaining it too many to satisfy the demand in American Jewry for a correct and well printed Daily Prayer Book with a literal rendering in idiomatic and devotional English.

"Prior to my departure from America for the sacred duties of my present office, I was approached by the Hebrew Publishing Company with a view of obtaining for them permission to issue a reprint of the Authorized Prayer Book. Thanks to the public spirit and courtesy of the Jewish Religious Education Board, the owners of the copyright, this was granted on the understanding that the price in America be not higher than that in England—TWENTY-FIVE CENTS—in order to enable the poorest to possess it.

"During the twenty-three years since its appearance, many of those who assisted in the production of this Prayer Book have gone to their eternal rest—the great-hearted lady, Mrs. Nathaniel Montefiore, who endowed it; my distinguished predecessor, Dr. Herman Adler, Chief Rabbi, who arranged the special prayers that make it a book for the Home as well as for Synagogue and School, and the translator, whose classical version will long remain the standard translation of the Prayer Book for English-speaking Jews. May this American edition prove a fount of devotion in the United States, even as it has been throughout the British Empire, and thus fulfill the fondest hopes of those noble souls to whom this Book was so dear. (Signed) "J. H. HERTZ, Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Empire." London, Tammuz, 5674—1914.

Note—The American Edition is printed from the original electrotypes sent here by the Jewish Education Board of London, England, and is the only authorized Singer's Prayer Book published in America.

The price of the book is 25c. net, bound in cloth, excluding postage.

The amount of postage depends upon the Parcel Post/zone, where the book is to be forwarded. The weight of the book, including packing, is one pound. Inquire the rate at your local postoffice.

So successful has the stage version of "Potash and Pearlmuter" been, that Charles Klein, who prepared the work for the stage, has been commissioned by the producers to write a sequel in collaboration with Montague Glass. It will show the central figures after having amassed wealth.

The Russian Consul in Alexandria, Egypt, notified the leaders of the Jewish community of that city that the Russian Government would reimburse the community for all expenses that it may incur in caring for the 700 Russian Jews who have recently arrived there from Jaffa. These Jews were expelled from Jaffa as "hostile aliens," since they were Russian subjects, and were sent to Alexandria.

Prof. Louis Rothenberg, who died at Cincinnati, Ohio, last week, came to that city from Germany in 1869. Shortly afterwards he was appointed German instructor in the old 15th District School and remained there for forty-five years, thirty of which he was principal of the school. Several years ago a new structure was erected to take the place of the old 15th District School and it was renamed the Rothenberg School.

In the issue of the Vienna Israelitische Wochenschrift of December 11, there are enumerated over 600 Jewish soldiers who received one or another of the decorations handed out by the Austrian military authorities. The number of German Jews who received the iron cross for bravery was, on December 18, 1,108. Among the names of those so honored are quite a few that are well known in Jewish communal life, even outside of Germany.

The students of the higher classes of the Budapest Rabbinical Seminary, nineteen in number, offered to the Austrian Government to enlist in a body as volunteers. The law frees them from military service, but these students explain in their memorandum to Baron Hazal that they cannot rest in peace while so many thousands of their brothers are falling on the battlefield in fighting for their country, and they prefer to forego their privilege and be enlisted as volunteers in the army.

Dr. Isaac Leopold, leading medical practitioner of Philadelphia, and known to medical men all over the country, through his contributions to medical journals, is dead at his home from heart disease. He was fifty-one years old. He was an organizer of the Jewish Maternity Hospital, Philadelphia, and the Eaglesville Sanitarium for Consumptives; was a medical director of the Seaside Home for Jewish Children, and on the staff of the Kensington (Pa.) Hospital for Women.

The Rev. Dr. Albert Guttmacher, for twenty-four years rabbi of the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation, died suddenly of heart disease in a car of the Pennsylvania Limited bound for Chicago as the train approached Huntington, Pa., on Sunday, January 17. Dr. Guttmacher was on his way to attend the meeting of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Dr. Guttmacher was born in 1861 in Silesia and descended from a long line of rabbis. When he was 21 years of age he came to this country and studied at the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati.

Mr. A. H. Fromenson, who was "loaned" to the American Jewish Relief Committee by the National Farm School, of which he was executive secretary, has resigned from that institution to accept a flattering offer from The Day, where he will be in charge of the English supplement, and the circulation and advertising departments of that publication. His successor as assistant secretary of the American Jewish Relief Committee is Mr. David M. Bressler, manager of the Industrial Removal Office, which office he retains. His co-operation with the American Jewish Relief Committee is entirely gratuitous.

If we knew what hearts are aching
 For the comfort we might bring;
 If we knew what souls are yearning
 For the sunshine we might fling;
 If we knew what feet are weary,
 Walking pathways roughly laid,
 We would quickly hasten forward,
 Stretching forth our hands to aid.

If we knew what friends around us
 Feel a want they never tell,
 That some word that we have spoken
 Pained or wounded where it fell,
 We would speak in accents tender
 To each friend we chanced to meet;
 We would give to each one freely
 Smiles of sympathy, so sweet.

BROOKLYN NOTES.
Cantors' Association Gives Evening of Jewish Music.
The "Evening of Jewish Music" given at Temple Shaari Zedek, of Brooklyn, by the Cantors' Association of America on Tuesday evening, January 19, was a most noteworthy musical event. There were about sixty members of the association present, among them all of the best-known cantors of the largest congregations of New York and vicinity. They gave a most wonderful presentation of the true character of Jewish synagogal music, its sweetness and beauty, its solemnity and pathos, rendering many of the best compositions of the synagogue liturgy by many of the best-known composers. Never before was a Brooklyn audience privileged to hear a musical programme of this sort, and the large number of people who crowded the Shaari Zedek Temple were fairly overwhelmed with delight. They gave the cantors repeated ovations. They also showed special appreciation to Mr. Alexander Bloch, violinist, and Mrs. Bloch, pianist, who took the audience by storm by their art. Mrs. Bloch was presented with a magnificent bouquet of flowers as a mark of admiration.
During the performance short addresses were delivered by Dr. Max Ralsin, minister of the congregation, and by Mr. Max Reiss, president of the congregation. A goodly sum of money came in which will be turned over to the fund for the Jewish war sufferers in Europe and Palestine.

Rabbi Buchler Installed.
Through the untiring efforts of Dr. P. Reiss, Dr. J. Heine, Mr. L. Schwartz, Mr. Henry Weiss, Mr. B. Eyl and Mr. H. Pinner, the first conservative congregation of Coney Island, Temple Adath Israel, became a reality and is now making substantial progress. The Congregation Adath Israel has a beautiful edifice, where services are held under the auspices of Rabbi Samuel Buchler, formerly with the Educational Alliance and the New People's Synagogue, of New York city, whose installation took place on Sunday evening, January 17. Rabbis Jacob Goldstein and Joel Blau officiating at the ceremonies.
There are seventeen Jewish organizations of various character in Coney Island, and it is already rumored that the engagement of Dr. Buchler will induce the officers of the Temple Adath Israel to launch a movement for their federation.
The temple is maintained by membership dues and is ably supported by the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Young Folk's League. The officers are: Dr. J. Heine, president; Mr. L. Schwartz, vice-president; Mr. Henry Weiss, secretary, and Dr. P. Reiss, chairman of Ritual Committee. The Ladies' Auxiliary has elected the following officers: Mrs. L. L. Richman, president; Mrs. P. Reiss, vice-president; Mrs. H. Pinner, financial secretary; Mrs. A. Kalker, secretary, and Mrs. Ehrman, treasurer.

Hebrew Educational Society.
"Patriotism" will be the subject of a lecture by Mr. Alexander Eichandler, principal of Public School No. 165, Brooklyn, this Friday evening, January 29.
Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass will begin his series of lectures on Sunday afternoon, January 31, at 4:15 o'clock. His subject is "The Wandering Jew."
A junior debate will take place between the Young Citizens' Civic and Athletic Club and the Washington Club on Sunday afternoon. The subject is, "Resolved, That the Monroe Doctrine shall be abolished."
Miss M. D. Lee will give an illustrated talk on "Reptiles" on Sunday afternoon, January 31, to a group of boys and girls.
The Judean Literary Society will give an entertainment on Sunday evening, January 31.

The annual ball of the Sam Solomon Association of Borough Park will be held on Saturday evening, February 13, at the Borough Park Clubhouse, Fifty-fifth and Thirteenth streets. The proceeds will go to charity.

Preparations have been completed for the wedding of Miss Adele Goldschmidt, daughter of Mr. Maurice Goldschmidt, proprietor of Knapp Mansion, to Mr. Oscar H. Stern. The ceremony will take place at the Keap Street Temple, and will be performed on Sunday, January 31, at 4:30 p. m. by Rev. Simon R. Cohen. There will be a reception tendered by Mr. Goldschmidt at the Knapp Mansion, No. 554 Bedford avenue, at 8 p. m.

Manager Joyce of the Star Theatre announces a real burlesque show for the edification of his patrons next week, when Messrs. Fulton and Howard present the "City Belles Burlesquers," which is unique in that it presents typical burlesque in its unadulterated form. There are plenty of pretty girls in the chorus who can sing and dance, then there are a number of novelties such as a roller skating number, and the comedy features being looked after by such well-known fun-makers as Sam Green and Charley Brown. The olio presented includes Sam Green, Charles Brown, Dave Kinder, Mae Alberta, May Brown, Golden and Clark, Verdi Musical Trio and Mlle Mazie, the Parisian Idol, with her Fairyland Grotto. The added attraction will be Tooks Paka and her company of Hawaiian singers, dancers and instrumentalists.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

THE BETH HAMIDRASH

Dear Children:

"There are four kinds of men as to the house of study: He who goes but does nothing, has the mere merit of going; he who does something without going there, has the merit (at least) of what he does; he who goes there and does good, is truly pious; he who neither goes there nor does good, is wicked."

The Beth Hamidrash or house of study, or place where the Torah is expounded, is one of the most ancient institutions amongst the Jews. When our father Jacob fled from home in order to escape the wrath of his brother Esau, he hid fourteen years in the Beth Hamidrash of Shem and Eler where he learned the Torah.

When Jacob was apprised of the glory of his son Joseph in Egypt and made preparations to transport his entire family there, he first sent his son Judah before him to establish a Beth Hamidrash in Goshen, the city in Egypt set aside for the Jews.

Since then the Beth Hamidrash was the one beloved institution in Israel that was a refuge to them in the time of persecution and which preserved them at all times from assimilation. For whilst the synagogue was only for prayer, the Beth Hamidrash was for prayer, study, and council room of the nation—it was their Legislature, their Parliament, their House of Congress. When the hand of Esau or the persecutors of the Jews was lifted up against them—the voice of Jacob was heard in the Beth Hamidrash in prayer to the Almighty, in pleas to the enemy for toleration and finally in determination to fight for his religion to his last drop of blood, rather death than surrender!

Therefore the Beth Hamidrash was at all times the test of the Jew's loyalty to his faith. If he goes to the Beth Hamidrash and hears the Torah expounded, or matters concerning the welfare of Israel discussed, and he does not do anything to influence others to go there, too, he has the mere merit of going, but he has by no means fulfilled his full duty as an Israelite.

He who does something for Israel on his own initiative or studies the Torah at his home, being himself a learned man, he does not consider it necessary to hear the Torah expounded at the Beth Hamidrash, but nevertheless he influences others to go there, has the merit (at least) of what he does, but he also is shortcoming in the fulfillment of his duty, for in the council of many there is salvation and the wisdom of the Torah is gained in its discussion with others and also in hearing it expounded by the Rabbis.

He who goes to the Beth Hamidrash and takes an active part in the learning and in the deliberations for Israel's welfare and also influences others to go there is truly pious, to such the Jewish nation owes its preservation and existence in spite of cruel persecution throughout the ages. He who neither goes there nor does good is wicked.

Dear children, this is the lesson that I wish you to take to heart. You have all had some kind of a Jewish education. You all know what the synagogue is intended for, but how many of the children of this country realize or appreciate the importance of the Beth Hamidrash.

If, after you have left the Hebrew school and entered your thirteenth year when at your Bar Mitzvah, you have made a sacred vow in the synagogue to be a true Israelite, you never go to the Beth Hamidrash to hear the words of the Torah expounded by the Rabbi, nor take one of the books of our Holy Torah to read it yourself ever to keep alive the memory of that which you have learned, you do not fulfill the promise you have made.

This is the weak spot in the Jewish education of many of the children of America. They leave the synagogue on the day of their Bar Mitzvah with promise of faithful adherence and Judaism, but do not re-enter it again until the shadow of a great sorrow has fallen at almost their threshold, and the sweetly spiritualized face of their departed parent pleads to them to say "Kaddish" and by publicly sanctifying the name of the Eternal render immortal the souls of those who gave them birth. But, dear children, if the synagogue is to many of the children of America a place of sad memories, let it not be so to you. Let your constant attendance at the Beth Hamidrash teach you that Judaism is the religion of life.

Mr. Johnsing:—Say, Mr. Dorman, what am de meaning of dis here line on de ticket what it says, "Not transferable"?

Mr. Dorman:—Dat means, Bre' Johnsing, dat no gen'leman am admitted unlessen he comes hisself.

"Did your playmate enjoy her visit?" said mamma to her small daughter, who had just bidden adieu to a little friend. "Why, yes, I think she did," replied the child. "I called her 'my dear' very often, in that dressy tone you use when you have company."
