WEE WIDOW WINKLE

A Story of the New York Ghetto

By Samuel Roth

The Widow Winkle, whom the bachelors of Rivington street had surnamed "Wee Widow Winkle," because she was a charming little blonde and altogether fascinated them, was lighting the annual memorial candle when she remembered that it was now five years since her husband (may he rest in peace!) was dead, and that five candles had been lit in succession without anyone appearing to relieve her widowhood. At first the thought saddened her; this was followed by an outburst of tears, and, like sunshine after storm, this mood was in its turn succeeded by a lapse of sober thinking. "And what good will weeping do me?" she thought, examining herself in the mirror which adorned the mantle-piece and smiling slightly at her own delicate features which sorrow seemed to lend additional charm. "Maybe it would be better if I should stop being bashful and become acquainted with someone; a fashionable shadchan, say." And the Widow Winkle gazed again into the mirror and smiled again into her own face, from which the veil of sorrow had vanished, leaving it as light and as free as a cloud in summer.

Meanwhile in Zindler's butcher shop an event of utmost significance to this story had taken place that same morning. Boruch Zindler, a middle-aged man sporting a red beard, who in the old home had been nothing more than an ordinary driver, but here posed as a pious man and sold meat to a horde of believing women, had been in the act of cutting off a large slice of steak from the left end, when the door of his shop was suddenly opened and a blind Jew, both of whose eyes were wide open, and whose arms clung tightly to a basket containing shoe laces, safety pins and matches, staggered in and exclaimed in a Yiddish wail, "Help a blind old man!"

Business in Zindler's butcher shop had not been flourishing in the last few weeks, and he had even been compelled to draw money from the bank. Besides, poor blind men had been so numerous of late that the sight of one was no longer a surprise. So Zindler did not even look up, and continued calmly to cut off the slice of steak

But the beggar was evidently a man of determination, who was not to be put aside so easily. He placed the basket containing his wares right on the steak (probably by sheer accident), so that it was not possible for Zindler to cut without cutting right into the basket.

butcher and was supposed to be of a superior sensibility, and became so incensed with the beggar that he looked up at him angrily and shout-picked up his basket and fled in confusion.

The next episode was not slow in coming.

arose to her feet at the sight of this outrageous conduct on the part of the butcher, and, seizing Zindler's red beard with both of her hands, she screamed:

"Is that how you treat a poor, blind Jew, you old swindler!" And she tugged away at his beard as though she was expecting it to come off.

The other women in the store interfered, and the two were pulled apart. Realizing that she had no further business in that store, Mrs. Sturim fired her last shot. "And what is more," she screamed, "that engagement between you and my Reba is off! My Reba can get a much handsomer fellow!" Then she opened the door and, passing out, banged it heavily behind her.

Now, it happened that Zerach Slutzk, a middle-sized man of questionable age, who had a fine Van Dyke beard and wore a silk hat, but was known among his friends as "the schnorrer," because he never worked for his living and lived upon what he could get from relatives and acquaintances, was at that moment contemplating entering Zindler's store for "a loan," and witnessed the scene described above. It was useless, he decided, to approach Zindler at a moment when he had lost his most valuable customer. But as he thought of the final words of Mrs. Sturim which he had overheard he mused to himself: "And maybe this is better even than a loan!"

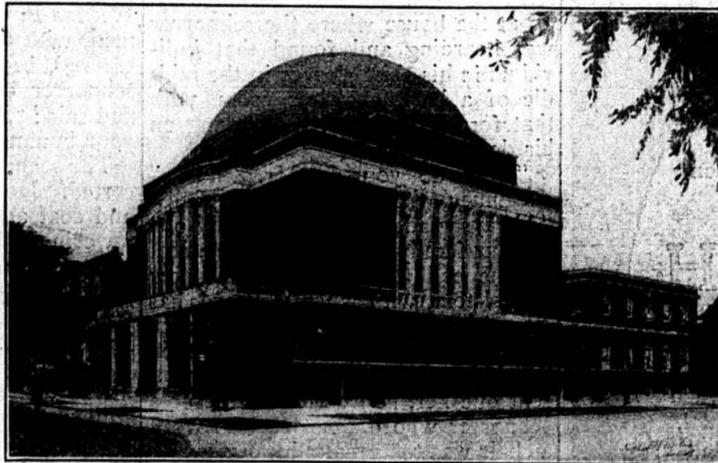

And so it came about that Zerach Slutzk decided to call that night upon Mrs. Sturim.

II.

That night there was a scene between Mrs. Sturim and her daughter Reba. The latter resented her mother's action with arguments such as this one: "Why didn't I interfere in your love affairs, mamma?"

Mrs. Sturim attempted to argue with her daughter, and ended by driving her out of her presence.

Reba was hurrying downstairs with no other thought in her innocent mind but to tell Ike of all her troubles, when she accidentally ran into the schnorrer, who was about to ascend the stairway. This collision resulted somewhat disastrously for the schnorrer, for as he tilted back his head the old silk hat that adorned his head fell to the soiled floor and rolled about till it had acquired a prominent coating of dust. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" exclaimed the frightened Reba as Ze-

Zindler, who, as I have already explained, had in the old home been no more than an ordinary driver, forgot for the moment that here he was a

he was not made for work? But that night Mrs. Sturim was quite happy and even honored with his call, for when a woman is as overbubbling with gossip as Mrs. Sturim was that night such company as Zerach Slutzk, who was acquainted with every bit of gossip in the neighborhood, was nothing less than a blessing. Nor was Mrs. Sturim disappointed. The very first thing that Zerach said that night was:

"I tell you, Mrs. Sturim, that Mr. Zindler is a faker number one." For about fifteen minutes Mrs. Sturim listened with joy to a volley of deprecations of the character of Zindler, his parents, his grandparents and his great-grandparents. The schnorrer ended his speech skillfully by saying: "What surprises me most of all, Mrs. Sturim, is that a fine, swell woman like you should want to be related to such a family."

Fortunately for Mrs. Sturim, who might have retorted imprudently, a knock was heard on the door and the Widow Winkle entered. At the sight of her the schnorrer became so enamored that he thought his heart was going to force its way right through his throat and leap at the winsome face of the "Wee Widow Winkle." And to his immense satisfaction Mrs. Sturim introduced him to her with the words, "Mr. Slutzk is yet a bucher (bachelor)."

The talk about Zindler ended then and there. The schnorrer found no trouble convincing himself that he was in love with the Widow Winkle, and as he led her home that night he vowed to himself that he would marry her, even if he had to go to work in order to do so.

III.

Reba, as might be expected, hurried directly to Ike, who was awaiting her near the lamppost, which was their usual rendezvous.

"What is that I hear about your mother having pulled my father's beard?" asked Ike after he had greeted her.

"It was all your father's fault!" Reba averred. "Instead of aiding the poor blind man he chased him out. Did you expect my mother to witness such an outrage in silence?"

"Maybe you're right," said Ike, scratching his head, "but what has that to do with us?"

"Don't you worry, Ike," said Reba consolingly. "Mamma is angry only for the moment, and she will soon be sorry for what she did. I think the same can be said of your father."

"I don't know about that," answered Ike. "I know that he's complaining of some pain in his chin, and he's not liable to forget that so soon. But this much I want you to understand—there ain't going to be anything to interfere with our wedding, which is to take place on the twenty-second of next month."

Reba clapped her hands in delight. But suddenly a shadow, which seemed to have fallen from out her big, dark eyes, spread over her entire face. "But what about invitations, a hall, and the wedding itself? Who will attend to these things?"

"I have already gotten a hall. The invitations are being printed. Father is going to supply the meat and chickens and mother is even negotiating with a competent cook."

Reba, unable to contain her joy any longer, embraced Ike in the open street, to the confusion of a number of people who unluckily passed by at that moment.

"There's only one important thing yet to be accomplished," said Reba. "Our parents must be reconciled before the wedding or it won't look well. What do you say?"

"Of course that must be done; and I have an idea. Did you say that Zerach Slutzk, the schnorrer, paid a visit to our house tonight?"

Reba nodded. "I think I'll go to him tomorrow morning and talk to him. I know he must be up to some game of his own. But that's his own business. I am going to offer him some money for reconciling our parents, and he is equally good at creating and settling quarrels. I think he will do anything for money, provided it isn't work."

The following morning Ike called up at the house where the schnorrer was boarding and found that individual in his shirt sleeves in the middle of a bare, chairless room, with that formidable silk hat towering on his dome.

"How do you do, Mr. Zindler," exclaimed the schnorrer, joyfully. "Always glad to see you or any one of your family. Will you have a seat on the bed? You see, the Widow Finkelstein, with whom I board, has loaned away my chairs." The truth was that the Widow Finkelstein, in consideration of the seven months' rent due her, had decided that for a schnorrer who did not care to work a chair was too great a luxury.

Ike did not accept the schnorrer's invitation. "I came here to ask you to help me out of a difficulty," began Ike.

The schnorrer's eyes sparkled. "What is it, and I will do it with pleasure, with pleasure."

"I want you to make peace between my father and Mrs. Sturim," Ike explained, briefly.

"I'll do it on condition," said the schnorrer with a grin.

"What conditions?" asked Ike, impatiently.

"That you buy me a new silk hat to replace the one that was soiled through your Reba. And, also, that you restore my credit with the Widow Finkelstein, so that I shouldn't have to marry her and go to work."

"How much will square you with Mrs. Finkelstein?" Ike asked, suspiciously.

"Say, about $15 will restore my credit."

"And $5 for a silk hat makes $20," counted Ike. "That's too much for such a small job. Good day."

And Ike would surely have gone away had not the schnorrer clutched desperately at his coattails and moaned: "Have mercy, Mr. Zindler. Don't let me starve so that I should have to marry the Widow Finkelstein!"

"What's the matter with the Widow Finkelstein?" asked Ike, with a grin. "She has money and—she loves you, doesn't she? You ought to feel flattered. Usually, no one loves a schnorrer."

"Don't talk like that, Mr. Zindler," moaned the schnorrer. "You hurt my feelings."

"Tell you what," said Ike, finally; "I'll give you $10 the day Mrs. Sturim comes to my father's store for meat. And that's my last word to you. And you must be very quick about it. Good day."

IV.

A minute after Ike's departure the Widow Finkelstein, a tall, thin woman, with white hair and gray eyes, entered, broom in hand, looked the schnorrer over from head to foot, and said: "So, Mr. Slutzk, you bring your bummers up here, too!"

The schnorrer was not a bit disconcerted. He calmly drew on his vest and coat and, without removing the towering silk hat, bowed profoundly before the Widow Finkelstein, struck an elegant attitude, and asked, not without an air of importance: "Maybe you know the Widow Winkle?"

"Maybe you mean the one whose husband died of consumption?" the widow asked, with a frown.

"Maybe he died of consumption or maybe he died of something else," purred the schnorrer, "but that she is a beautiful woman ev'rybody will tell you. And I got a fine introduction to her last night. Mrs. Sturim said: 'Mrs. Winkle, meet my friend, Mr. Slutzk, who is yet a bucher.' I dare say she has lots of money, too."

"Money!" exclaimed the Widow Finkelstein, in whom the snake jealousy had been aroused by the schnorrer's words. "May the Lord bring the thunder and lightning upon her head. Her husband toiled twenty years in the shop for that money, and now she goes about flourishing it in the eyes of all the bachelors. Maybe you would like to marry with her?"

The schnorrer merely bowed profoundly a second time and walked to the door.

"Where are you going, Mr. Slutzk? Aren't you going to remain for dinner?" called the Widow Finkelstein in a soft voice which did not sound like her own.

If the ceiling had suddenly opened and permitted a thunderbolt to descend upon his silk hat, the schnorrer's astonishment could not have been greater. His eyes opened wide, his lips parted—but never fear, only for a moment, and he had regained his composure.

"I'm really sorry, Mrs. Finkelstein," he lied, "but I promised the Widow Winkle—"

"Do you mean to tell me—" began the Widow Finkelstein angrily, and suddenly checked herself.

"Of course, if you shud like my company," said the schnorrer, with the air of one who is willing to make

Many Jewish War Casualties—Women in Industry—The Zion Mule Transport Corps of Egypt—Some Lusitania Personalities—Elkan Adler on Jews in Literature, Science and Art—Honor for Clever Jewish Italian Professor—A Study in Natural Payment—The Jews in Russia Question Again.

London, May 14, 1915.

Jewish names are now figuring considerably in the casualty lists, as they are published from time to time, with regard to the operations, not only in France and Flanders, but also in the Dardanelles. The total number of Jews in the British army in all its departments is now estimated at twelve thousand and, as is known, casualties are everywhere very heavy. Jewish names figured in all the principal engagements, and many wounded men are now back home here, some unfortunately maimed or blind for life. Every week more Jews are being gazetted officers in the army and promotions are now frequent again, this frequency, alas, being the result of the aforesaid heavy casualty lists. The Jewish soldier, like his non-Jewish colleague, is not highly paid, a little over 25 cents a day being the average remuneration for soldiering in this country. When he goes away, however, his wife secures, with the usual allotment from the soldier's own pay, just enough to keep the family going. So much is paid for the wife and so much per child after. This works out for a wife with three children at twenty-six shillings and sixpence, or say, $6.50, a week in London. Various Jewish charities also come to the help of the specially needy.

The big shortage of labor in this country now, owing partly to the heavy enlistments and partly to the extraordinary activity in all those industrial departments in any way associated with the production of war munitions, is leading to a big call for women to enter the industrial arena. Large numbers, therefore, are now going into factory work for the first time, general trade union rules having been relaxed to allow of this. Jewish women are well to the front in this incursion.

Talking of the war reminds me of a curious little story that has come to hand from Egypt to the effect that a Jewish legion—the Zion Mule Transport Corps—has been formed in Alexandria, and it is almost entirely composed of refugees from Palestine. Those refugees who were of Russian nationality expressed the desire to serve under the British flag, and the British military authorities immediately took steps to form a battalion. In a very short time 500 had enlisted, and the corps is under the command of Colonel J. H. Patterson, D. S. O. Officers and men will wear on their military caps the Jewish token, the "Shield of David," in addition to the British ensign, and in the camp, according to the story, the words of command are spoken in Hebrew. The corps was officially inspected by General Sir Ian Hamilton, commander of the British forces in the Mediterranean, who expressed his gratification at the satisfactory disciplinary results obtained in such a short time.

A late list of Jewish survivors saved from the Lusitania published here contains the following: First class, Isaac Lehmann, Dilane Lehmann. Second class, Kathleen Kaye, T. R. S. Abrahamovitz, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Mayer. Third class, George Samuel, Joseph Frankun and child, Mrs. Janet Moses, Mrs. Queeny Benjamin. Jacob Oesterman, steward, was saved. News of the better known Jews who have been lost will already have been dealt with in America. Mention might perhaps be made here of the loss of Dave Samuels, the well-known Hebrew comedian. Born a Roumanian, his name being really Samoilescu, he was an American variety artist who was extensively well known upon this side and he commanded a large salary as a portrayer of kindly and amusing Jewish types. Men who knew him on this side mention that he was a profound disbeliever in banks for his savings and must have gone down with the Lusitania wearing his famous body belt, which contained $30,000 in gold and notes.

Edgar Gorer, of London, connoisseur of porcelain and one of the best known of the Bond street curio crowd, is another loss. He was a generous contributor to the funds of the Liberal Jewish Synagogue here. He lost his life after saving three women and a child.

Martin Van Straaten also went down. He was a member of the council of the United Synagogue and took a great interest in all communal affairs.

The proposed Jewish national movement fund flower day has now been postponed until the early fall, owing to the fact that it was impossible to get a proper supply of flowers for it.

Elkan N. Adler delivered, under the presidency of the Chief Rabbi, a lecture on May 11, at Toynbee Hall, London, on "Jews in Literature, Science and Art," in which he dealt with the Jews of the period in the three aspects suggested in Zangwill's playlet, "Three Persons"—as they are, as they think they are, and as others think they are. He showed that Jewish contributions to literature became more important after the beginning of the nineteenth century, though even then the only writer of first rank was Heinrich Heine. The greatest of the Jewish poets of the period were our Yiddish poets. Mr. Adler reviewed their works; then those of Jewish novelists (the greatest of whom he said was unquestionably Benjamin Disraeli), and non-Jewish novelists on Jewish subjects. Of these George Eliot, in "Daniel Deronda," wrote perhaps the most notable novel which had appeared about Jews. Mr. Adler reviewed the drama written about or by Jews, including the Yiddish drama. He gave his own opinions of Jewish contributions to art, and those of Harry R. Lewis, on Jewish musicians and Jewish influence on general music, and recounted the more important Jewish philosophers, mathematicians, physicists, medical men, lawyers, historians and journalists. The Jewish press, he said, was extensive and peculiar, and deserved many lectures to itself.

Professor Emilio Franco, lecturer in medical pathology at the University of Lisbon, one of the cleverest young Jews in Portugal, and a native of Venice, Italy, has had conferred upon him by the King of Italy the highly esteemed decoration of Commander of the Order of the Italian Crown.

ORTHODOX UNION CONVENES.

The eighth convention of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America was called to order on May 30 at 10 a. m., Rev. Dr. Bernard Drachman, president, in the chair. There were represented at the convention about 120 congregations from all parts of the country and the delegates, while not present at all the sessions, which lasted for two days, evidenced the greatest interest in all the questions brought before them.

After Rev. Dr. Philip Klein had opened the proceedings by an eloquent prayer in pure Hebrew, Dr. Drachman read his report as president. He called attention to the act that had recently passed the New York State Legislature, incorporating the Union; to the assistance which had been given to the Falashas of Abyssinia; to the Community in Havana, Cuba; to the efforts which had been made to prevent the restriction of immigration into the United States; to the many protests which had been addressed to the various educational, commercial and other institutions to prevent the desecration of the Jewish Sabbath and Holy Days; to the plan for co-operation with the Agudas Harabonim, in order to establish a Judicial Council; to the proposed Jewish Congress and paid a tribute of thanks to the Central Committee for the Relief of Jews Suffering Through the War, which he said "the Union might fairly claim if not all, most of, the merit of having instituted."

The first business of the convention was the adoption of a resolution directing the president and secretary to forward to President Wilson the following telegram:

"The Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America representing the vast majority of the followers of Judaism in the United States, assembled in convention in New York city May 30, 1915, for themselves and for their constituents throughout the country, desire to express to President Wilson our deep appreciation of his efforts to safeguard the rights of our citizens and preserve the peace of our country. We recognize his devotion to the noblest sentiments of humanity and call upon the Most High to bless and preserve him through those perilous times."

Addresses were delivered by Rabbi M. S. Margolies on "Our Task in America"; Mr. William Lieberman on "Orthodox Judaism and Civic Ideals," and by Mr. Samuel I. Hyman upon "A Layman's Concept of a Talmud Torah." The morning session closed by the appointment of committees on the president's report and on nominations. The afternoon session was opened by the reading of a very able and critical paper on the "Younger Orthodox Rabbis in America," by Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein. The delegates were occupied during the whole remainder of the afternoon in considering the proposed Jewish Congress, and it was referred to a committee consisting of Rev. Drs. D. deSola Pool, Herbert S. Goldstein and Albert Lucas to prepare a resolution and to report at the morning session on the following day.

On Monday morning Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes delivered an address upon "Orthodox Judaism and Universal Peace" and was followed by Rev. J. Neulander upon the "Importance of the Union for Out of Town Communities."

The resolution referring to the Congress was passed in the following form: "That this convention recommend the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America to continue co-operating with other bodies in all measures tending to ameliorate the condition of the Jews in all lands."

Various resolutions which had been considered by the committee were discussed and the convention adopted them. The resolution authorizing the executive to make arrangements for a permanent office: To take steps to improve the religious instruction among the children of the Oriental Jewish immigrants; endorsing the plans of the League of Peace; condemning the use of "Mushroom Synagogues"; highly commending the Central Committee for the relief of Jews suffering through the war, thanking the officers of that committee and the Agudas Harabonim for their co-operation; instructing the executive to associate itself on behalf of the Union with any public celebration of the silver jubilee of Rev. Dr. Philip Klein. A long discussion ensued upon the resolution referring to the establishment of the judicial council and it was finally resolved that the new executive should continue the "efforts towards the establishment of such a judicial council, in conjunction with the Agudas Harabonim and to consist of rabbis and laymen. The convention, however, desired the new executive to appoint an advisory council, to consist of 25 Bale Batim, to give their counsel and advice in the selection of the lay members of the judicial council.

Rabbi J. Neulander proposed and Mr. Simon M. Roeder seconded a vote of thanks to Rev. Dr. Bernard Drachman, president, and Messrs. Albert Lucas and Morris Engelman, the secretaries, for their most efficient and self-sacrificing labors during their past year of office, which resolution was carried by the convention by a unanimous rising vote.

The election of officers resulted in the unanimous re-election of the executive officers and with some few changes with the Executive Committee.

The thanks of the convention were most cordially tendered to the press and the president and trustees of the Uptown Talmud Torah, for having allowed the convention to be held in their building.

Galician Federation Plans Greater Work.

A new and larger Har Moriah hospital will be the net result of the twelfth annual convention of the Federation of Jews from Galicia and Bukovina, which was held last Sunday and Monday, May 30 and 31, at Tammany Hall, and was attended by delegates from the 264 societies which are affiliated with the Federation and support its work.

The opening session was devoted to the reading of the message by A. D. Katcher, the president of the Federation, whose recommendations were all favorably acted upon. In his message there was a touching tribute to the memory of the lately deceased Mr. David Blutreich, who was the secretary of the Federation for many years. The Rev. Aaronson, of the Clinton Street Synagogue, with his well-trained choir, chanted the Haskaroh for Mr. Blutreich, and also for the victims of the battle raging in Europe.

The storm centre of the convention formed a peace treaty drawn up for the purpose of bringing back into the camp about a dozen of wealthy and influential members who two years ago, becoming dissatisfied with the management of the Federation affairs, had withdrawn their active interest. These were willing to resume their activities in behalf of the Federation, provided certain changes in the methods of its work were made.

There was a loud outcry against the acceptance of the peace proposals, and although there seemed to be no objections to the conditions proposed, yet the act that conditions were imposed at all was reason enough in the opinion of a number of delegates to refuse the proposed "peace treaty" and to insist upon an unconditional surrender. Such a course, however, would have endangered the existence of the hospital, which needed immediate financial help, and after a hard struggle, decided to swallow its pride and accept the offered help of the Bale Batim.

Consequently there was great rejoicing when at the closing session the self-exiled members appeared on the platform and promised to work again for the good and welfare of the Federation, and Mr. Bernhard Semel, one of the "returned," was invited to install the newly-elected officers, which he did in a most happy style.

Deporting Immigrants via Archangel.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America was called by its president, Judge Leon Sanders, for Tuesday afternoon, June 1, to consider what action is to be taken in order to prevent the deportation of immigrants to Russia through the port of Archangel.

The society claims that immigrants are obliged to go from Archangel to their homes in Russia under military escort, usually on foot, and that they must wait in certain towns for weeks until sufficient prisoners have been gathered together to make up a party; while waiting they are kept in the local prison, notwithstanding the fact that they have not committed any crime or misdemeanor.

Hebrew Day Nursery Observes Tenth Anniversary.

The tenth anniversary of the Hebrew Kindergarten and Day Nursery, 35-37 Montgomery street, was celebrated last Thursday night in Cooper Union. Addresses were delivered by Judge Otto A. Rosalensky, Judge Leon Sanders, Joseph Barondess, the Rev. H. Masliansky and Rabbi M. H. Rabinowitz. The Cantors' Association sang traditional melodies.

The Gibraltar of Fraternal Organizations.

On another page the readers will find the financial statement of the Independent Order Brith Abraham, which gives in the most detailed form the standing and condition of this, the largest Jewish fraternal order in the world, of which Judge Leon Sanders is the Grand Master. The financial report, which is a master piece of the grand secretary, Max L. Hollander, shows that the total receipts for the past sixteen months were $1,179,535.12; the total disbursements, $1,096,615.84; that the membership on April 30, last, was 197,022, and other items in more detailed form.

Among other features of this organization is the noble work of the Charity Fund, out of which more than $25,000 was spent during the year for members in distress. Many who applied for assistance, such as to be sent to Denver, Col., to find relief or to other country places, always found the Independent Order Brith Abraham ready to do its utmost in their behalf.

In spite of the enormous amount paid to beneficiaries for endowments during the year, the assessment rate remained as low as ever. In no case was there any delay in payment to the beneficiary, so that the order is recognized all over the country as the most punctual in paying endowments.

As to the expense in conducting the affairs, including the grand lodge office, the Independent Order Brith Abraham has a far smaller expense, in proportion to its membership, than any other fraternal organization. Economy is the prevailing spirit in managing the affairs of the organization, and the two hundred thousand members that the order has at present, can really be congratulated that they belong to one of the best and most safe institutions in existence.

The twenty-ninth annual convention, which will take place in Atlantic City, N. J., on June 6, and continue for three days, will, as heretofore, legislate for the best interest of the members. The wise and good judgment in perfecting the organization in the past will surely continue, and from the outlook, the Independent Order Brith Abraham will be the leading factor among Jewish fraternal organizations of America.

We also take pleasure herewith to congratulate the Independent Order Brith Abraham upon its great achievements and wish them continued prosperity.

a sacrifice, and completed his sentence with a nod of the head and a rich smile that spread over his features and expanded beyond his face.

So the schnorrer's dinner problem for that day was solved. He dined with the Widow Finkelstein, who manifested more grace and amiability than Zerach Slutzk had thought it possible to dwell in such a thin and ill-bred woman.

After dinner Zerach Slutzk very carefully donned his coat and his silk hat and, turning to the Widow Finkelstein, said: "If I do say so, Mrs. Finkelstein, it's a shame dat a fine woman like you shouldn't have a husband."

The Widow Finkelstein, as might be expected, blushed and said nothing.

"If it von't offend you, Mrs. Finkelstein," the schnorrer continued, "zince you took dose chairs out of my room—"

"Oh, did I forget to put those chairs back, Mr. Slutzk!" the widow exclaimed excitedly, at the same time seizing two chairs, one in each hand, and pushing them into the schnorrer's room.

The schnorrer bowed profoundly before her for the third time that morning and walked toward the door. The widow's voice arrested him.

"Maybe you vud like to make a loan, Mr. Slutzk?"

When Zerach Slutzk turned around the Widow Finkelstein had already drawn forth a five-dollar bill and was extending it to him.

The schnorrer's arm grew feeble, but he knew how to take money by instinct.

For the next half hour Zerach Slutzk hurried aimlessly through the streets of the East Side, shaking his head and clasp in his tight fist the loan which the Widow Finkelstein had extended to him.

"The difference between a Jew and a Gentile," observed the schnorrer that night to a number of people who were gathered around him in Levin's Cafe, "is dat by a Jew, even ven tings go vell, somebody's always got a mortgage on his luck." He was thinking of the Widow Finkelstein.

As Reba had predicted, both Mr. Zindler and Mrs. Sturim soon regretted the quarrel. The former was literally overwhelmed by a constant shower of reproach that his son Ike maintained against him. "In the first place," Ike argued, "vou had no right to be stingy. If a blind man comes in, it's your duty as a Jew, and particularly as a butcher, to give him something. And then—what if a handsome and kind-hearted woman like Mrs. Sturim does pull your beard?"

But Mr. Zindler had his own reasons for regretting the whole affair. To begin with, in Mrs. Sturim he lost his most valuable customer. She wasn't like other women who, even if you gave them gold, still claimed that they were cheated. He gave her what he wanted; she meekly took what he gave her without a complaint, and, what was more, paid him spot cash! It was also something to have a woman like Mrs. Sturim enter his store. She was a woman of fashion, and he always had referred to her patronage, when discussing business with the other butchers, with unconcealed pride. And now his competitor, that swindler right across the street, had her!

It, therefore, did not take Ike very long to coax him into going up to Mrs. Sturim to make up.

And Mrs. Sturim, equally uncomfortable beneath the reproaches of her daughter, regretted the affair no less than Mr. Zindler. "And isn't it I who am really to blame," she argued with herself. "Maybe that blind man wasn't really blind? And maybe Mr. Zindler couldn't really afford to give him anything? So what right had I to pull his beard? And here am I bringing misery and distress upon my poor Reba!" But she argued like a woman, and did nothing.

One night, what was bound to happen did come to pass. Reba swept in flourishing one of the invitations right under her mother's nose. Mrs. Sturim took the invitation from her daughter's hand, looked it over, and was trying to decide upon some course of action, when a knock was heard on the door, and in came Mr. Zindler himself.

Mrs. Sturim arose to the occasion. She walked up to the butcher and, extending her hand to him, said: "Mazel-tov, Mr. Zindler." Then she turned around and embraced her daughter.

The following morning, Zerach Slutzk, stalking past Zindler's butcher shop, actually staggered at what he beheld. Mrs. Sturim was there, and she was buying meat. Some one else had done the trick! The schnorrer felt as though that some one had robbed him of $10.

A few days later the Widow Finkelstein, whose amorousness had reached that point where she no longer mentioned to the schnorrer the seven months' rent coming to her, handed him an invitation that she had gotten in Zindler's store that morning, in which her presence was cordially invited by Mr. and Mrs. Sturim and Mr. and Mrs. Zindler at the marriage ceremony of their children, Ike and Reba, to be held on the twenty-second of that month.

"It will be a grand affair," declared the Widow Finkelstein. "And you will accompany me, won't you?" As she said this she permitted herself to smile at the schnorrer so loving and trusting a smile that the schnorrer decided then and there that he had a headache and slept for the rest of the day.

When the night of the twenty-second arrived, the Widow Finkelstein and Zerach Slutzk, the former attired in a stunning purple gown which made her thin, powdered face look like a soldier who is living on his pension, the schnorrer, in his old silk hat and a new suit of clothes, the secret of which he would reveal to no one, but which the reader will easily guess, entered the hall where the marriage ceremony was to be celebrated with all the pomp which the East Side lavishes on that event which philosophers have called the happiest and the most tragic in the life of mortal.

We Widow Winkle

Ike and Reba, the former in shining black, the latter in flowing white, in accordance with the custom, greeted the guests.

The schnorrer drew Ike aside for a moment. "Tell me," he whispered hoarsely into the bridegroom's ear, "Who did it for you?"

Ike laughed. "You were left in the soup, then, weren't you, Stutzk? Why, Reba and I did it all by ourselves!"

The schnorrer's face became as purple as the gown of the Widow Finkelstein, of whose existence he had for the time forgotten. "Den for vy did you hire anodder man to do it?" he hissed into the bridegroom's ear.

But Ike merely laughed and left him to greet other guests who had just entered.

At that moment the schnorrer perceived, the Widow Winkle, attired all in white, just like the bride, standing in the center of a crowd of admiring bachelors. In a second he was at her side. For the next five minutes the wee Widow Winkle gazed soulfully into the eyes of the schnorrer and addressed her remarks exclusively to him. Then a tall, broad-shouldered, business-like young man pushed his way to her side, and at the sight of him the face of the widow Winkle brightened still more, and she said to the schnorrer: "Mr. Stutzk, you must meet Mr. Isaacs, who is to be my future husband."

Then darkness entered into the eyes of the schnorrer and he made haste to get away lest the keen mortification of this new disaster burst forth and betray him. He naturally sought the widow Finkelstein.

But where was she? She had disappeared, it seemed, without anyone noticing it. The schnorrer decided that she had gone home.

He emptied a few glasses of schnapps, gobbled up half a cake with it, and then, without bidding either the bride or bridegroom mazel-tov, he left.

He had no sooner opened the door than the Widow Finkelstein, no longer in her purple gown, stepped forward and greeted him. She did not permit him to take off his hat or say a word.

"How much is that silk hat of your's worth?" she asked in a hard, business-like tone of voice.

In order to insure the insertion of communications in the current issue of THE HEBREW STANDARD they must be in this office not later than Wednesday 10 a. m. of the week in which they are to appear.

Subscribers leaving the city for the summer may have their papers sent to them by notifying us of the change in address.

It is altogether too sweeping a generalization to say that no Jewish novelist in Germany nowadays presents Jews in his writings in the same sympathetic guise as Berthold Auerbach did fifty years ago.

From Dallas, Tex., Jewish Fellowship, a new monthly magazine, has come to our desk. It calls itself "the periodical that puts religion to work," and preaches the new sermon of the Jewish Fellowship Society, the end of which is true Judaism and mutual helpfulness. We wish the paper long life and prosperity.

And now the members of the Free Synagogue are considering the establishment of their own cemetery. We trust their purpose will be achieved, although we hold that such an institution is a trifle out of consonance with the iconoclastic renovations of the Free Synagogue.

The Hebrew Union College Monthly, which is published by and for the students of the Cincinnati seminary, is an interesting publication, whose monthly visits to us are a pleasant reminder of the good things, Jewishly speaking, that emanate from the southern part of the State of Ohio.

Major-General Sir Alfred Turner, K. C. B., of the British army, thinks that the Jew makes a good soldier. He is brave, loyal and efficient, the three qualities which are most to be desired of the man who bears the gun in a war. Sir Alfred Turner has special reference to the Jews in the British forces in his testimony, but this holds equally good of the Jew in all the armies, witness the large number of distinctions and decorations for valor obtained by Jews since the outbreak of hostilities.

What Christians need to learn today is to respect the religious beliefs of others. This respect they should translate into the will and the desire to suffer the others to remain in their inherited confessions without any effort on their part to win them over to Christianity. Such an attitude is productive of mutual esteem and good will and can accomplish much to fraternize the world of men under the fatherhood of God. If we only heard this message elsewhere than in the impractical pulpit!

The late Rabbi Solomon Schindler, the Boston spiritual leader who passed away recently, was for many years an outspoken and consistent supporter of Reform ideas in Jewish worship and practices. Of late years, however, he had seen the error of his ways and returned to the old paths. He must have taken this action from the conviction that Reform Judaism is ephemeral in its appeal and illusory in its mission. All honor the memory of Rabbi Schindler who had in life the strength of mind to forsake a position, once the fallacy residing therein was proved to him!

The American Israelite is worried over the enforcement of the new Kosher law of this State, and sees a tumultuous time ahead for the various purveyors in food products which claim to be ritually clean. We hope our contemporary is not unduly exercised over the possibilities which its splendid imagination causes it to discern. No orthodox rabbi who is truly a believer in the deathless traditions of Judaism will trifle with the din as to what is Kosher and what Trefah. The Shulchan Aruch, moreover, furnishes all who would heed its precepts a proper guide for their faith and practice and the rival contentions of shochetim and other ritual officials, which the Cincinnati journal now believes to be sanctioned by law, are such stuff as dreams are made of.

BEWARE

NOW that a congress of American Jews to consider the plight of our co-religionists in the European war zones and take steps to secure Jewish rights in the belligerent countries in any eventual peace negotiations is about to be called, we deem it appropriate to warn the members of our community of their rights in the matter. The community by and large has, we believe, always favored the project of such a gathering, but the set of men, who may be conveniently and appropriately called the Hofjuden and who attempt to boss American Jewry through the indifferent medium of their own American Jewish Committee, were up to a brief while ago against the idea.

We say "were," for we distinctly feel that the leaders in the American Jewish Committee are no longer opposed in practical action to such a congress. Their representatives to the "great and glorious" Kehillah went down to mute, inglorious defeat, and for this and other reasons we assume that the American Jewish Committee is now prepared to "patronize" such a congress. In other words, the committee is quite willing now to "get on the band wagon" and to preserve the fiction of its (?) democratic organization by "bowing" before the "will of the people."

In view of these considerations it is entirely in order for us to warn our readers and the general community, whose representatives will in the final analysis form the backbone of such a congress, against permitting the American Jewish Committee or any similar association "to run the whole affair." Having been defeated in its opposition, the American Jewish Committee may very likely endeavor to obtain for itself the next best thing in the matter of this congress—to "manage" it in order to preserve a "statesmanlike poise" in the deliberations and make its influence felt!

Of such machinations and against this contingency we bid all beware! American Jewry is big enough and competent enough to manage its affairs itself in accordance with its own true democratic principles. It does not require the advice of the American Jewish Committee as to how it should conduct its affairs. The members of the committee come to the congress as individuals, and as nothing more than that, and are entitled to no more weight and influence than that. We ask the community to let the Jewish people rule in the coming congress, and this can only be if short shrift is given the dominating tactics of the American Jewish Committee.

That the Russian democracy was never hostile to the Jews we did not require Alexis Aladin, a Russian democrat, to tell us. He spoke in Manchester, England, recently on the future of his country and the prospects of its Jews, and sounded a distinctly hopeful note. The Russian Jews have rendered, and are rendering, yeoman service to Russia, and the merest sort of gratitude should make even the hidebound bureaucrats of the Czar's government wish to deal out full and complete justice to them. At all events, in the case of Russia and her Jews, we can but hope and pray for the best results possible in their situation for the future. And, then, we can hope and pray some more.

The American Israelite finds it necessary to express the hope that no Jewish newspaper in this country, beyond the single exception quoted of a Yiddish daily journal published in this city, will deem it proper to assure Americans of the loyalty and attachment of American Jews to our country, its government and institutions. Theoretically our contemporary is correct. There is no need to declare one's self when one has not been questioned over a particular matter, nor when one's attitude toward a state of facts is undoubted by anyone. The best proof that Jews in this country are intensely and fervently American in their outlook resides in the facts of their history in the United States. For every practical purpose, however, it is eminently appropriate that the loyalty and patriotic zeal of American Jews be at this time restated in unmistakable terms: some of the American Jewish organs of "public" opinion have taken a peculiar view of their duty of absolute neutrality vis-a-vis the great war that is now raging in Europe. For them, then, this new lesson in the duty of citizenship is not at all supererogatory.

Our readers will no doubt recall that for some years now an agitation in favor of the establishment of a Jewish hospital has been making in London. We are perfectly familiar with this sort of an institution, since the so-called Jewish hospitals in this and other cities are among the best of their kind from every point of view in this country. In London, however, the leading Jews strongly objected to such a sectarian foundation, and particularly the opposition of the late Lord Rothschild to the scheme served to put the quietus upon those who favored its consummation. From an interview with a gentleman who is deeply interested in the project, which was recently published in The Jewish Chronicle, it appears that the misery and abject condition of some of the Belgian-Jewish refugees in England served to direct new attention to the matter and acted as the much-needed stimulus to new action. We have, out of the fullness of our American-Jewish experience, been unable to see what good argument can be adduced against a foundation of this kind, and we shall be glad to see the plight of the poor Belgians producing the good fruit of a striking addition to London's many excellent Jewish communal institutions. Gam zu latovu!

THE LIMITS OF CIRCUMSPECTION

"And they told him . . . surely it floweth with milk and honey; and this is its fruit. But the people are strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great."—(Num. xiii., 27, 28.)

THE sending of spies to the Promised Land seems a measure of commendable caution. Reconnoitering a territory before venturing into it is a prudent preliminary step not only to military operations, but also to all ordinary undertakings. Recklessness is no virtue. We are not bidden to press forward blindfolded. God, indeed, had promised the land to the Israelites; nevertheless, the Divine Promise did not exempt the people from action. They had to devise the ways and means how to bring God's promise to its best and speediest fulfillment; and if that fulfillment was predicted and predestined, the human methods leading thereto were not divinely foretold and assured. It is for us, men of action, to contemplate with no small measure of satisfaction that while God's providence overbroods us, He has left enough leeway for the employment of our faculties in all manner of useful work. The spies, therefore, did but avail themselves of this God-given latitude of determining their own course in the execution of a plan which involved great perils. They would look before leaping. Wherein, then, did they err?

They erred in so far as they forgot that there are limits to circumspection. Looking before leaping is the average grocer's philosophy, whose fault usually is that the look is much longer than the leap. And when the leap is finally accomplished, the result is so meager that one wonders why so much good brain-stuff has been wasted in looking which might have been used to better advantage in leaping. Sometimes—more often than not—the leap is not accomplished at all, and this sad, sad world becomes increasingly peopled with the ghosts of good intentions, that fill the empty space with the pathetic wail of "might-have been!" Looking and Leaping make a strange team, the one pulling one way, the other the opposite way; each trying to trespass upon the rights of the other; and he must be a skilful manager of his life who would make them pull together. In the everyday course, Looking—a dray-horse that has his uses in his rightful place—oft paralyzes Leaping—a spirited thoroughbred to whom the surmounting of handicaps is the very breath of life. Though Leaping may have his eye too much on the goal and too little on the course, still, is he not preferable to Looking, whose eye is always on the course, who surveys critically every pebble in the way, and who has little, if any, ambition to reach the goal? Are we not ready to agree on this: that there is a point at which circumspection becomes defection, at which prudence is but the paltry expression of a puny soul?

The spies, you will notice from the text, admitted that the land was all that had been said of it: flowing with milk and honey, its orchards bright with luscious fruit, its slopes happy with bursting grapes. But they found a "but." And they magnified this but beyond all reasonableness. The land is good, "but" the people are too strong and the cities are impregnable fastnesses harboring giants of stupendous stature. In other words, the spies found many circumstances that were not only favorable, but most alluring; and also some circumstances that were not so favorable, that appeared fraught with evil. What they did was to exaggerate the latter while admitting the former; they did not deny the manifest advantages of the land, but they set the supposed disadvantages over against the advantages in such a way as to make the odds appear overwhelmingly against the successful invasion of Palestine. Now, has any man the right to expect that all circumstances should be propitious to his ventures? Is it not enough that some circumstances augur well for the consummation of his purpose? Would it not be childish pettiness in any man to expect, nay demand, that this vast world-design should dovetail to a nicety into his relatively insignificant projects? Is it not enough, nay, is it not the glory of human life, that in spite of the vast scale of things God has left enough room in it for man, for his little thoughts, for his littler deeds?

Consider what would become of a man who would defer action till all the circumstances surrounding him would favor his undertaking. He would probably have to wait till the day of his death. He would lead a sterile life, a life if not altogether idle yet devoid of all high emprise, of all activity that looks beyond the present moment. It was King Solomon who expressed this thought in a most picturesque way when he said in Koheleth: "He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap." Surely, the farmer who would be watching every puff of wind and every patch of cloud, who would be waiting till wind and vapors were just right, would never attain to the blessedness of sowing and reaping. The farmer does not expect all circumstances to favor him. The seed is a promise, the harvest a fulfillment, and the farmer knows that between seedtime and harvest he must take some chances. And he takes those chances knowing that He who guards his days watches also over his toil.

The whole argument sifts down to this: there is in life an element of the incalculable, of the unknown. The nobler the enterprise, and the more forward-looking it is, the larger looms up this unknown quantity, this residuum of uncertainty. It is evidently foolish to demand—as the spies did—full certainty. There is just enough of enigma in Life as to spur us on—not to baffle us. That puzzling little look which Life wears is its main attractiveness. He who is borne down by that wistful look carries circumspection to a point where it becomes pusillanimity pure and simple. Small souls lack faith. The really magnanimous, fired by faith, smile back at Life, linger long enough to look carefully, and then leap—tremendously!

FRIDAY EVENING CONFERENCES.

Words of Counsel and Criticism from
Dr. Blaustein to a Group of Alliance
of Jonah J. Goldstein.

II. October 14, 1904. Reform, Individual and Social.

The individual can lift himself above his environment, and by his example lift others.

Contrast between liberal Jewish and reactionary Lutheran opposition to Jesuitism by Lasker and Bismarck, respectively.

The greatest heroes are silent martyrs, like Lamed-Vronikes Zadikim—it is the righteousness of the obscure that maintains social morality. As the result of personal inquiry into the individual ambition of East Side boys, Dr. Blaustein finds that while some want to become shop foreman or baseball pitchers, more want to become lawyers or doctors. Art and music seem to have attraction for but few, and fewer still are ambitious to become rabbis. On the other hand, many want to be "statesmen"; they expect to go into politics, in other words.

As the crippled beggar succeeds in securing alms by drawing attention to his injury, so the misfortunes of refugees are played upon by exploiters.

On the other hand, let the altruist beware, remembering Plato's philosopher, who, failing to convince his neighbors of their folly when dancing outdoors in a storm, tried to drag them from the street into his hospitable home, only to get soaked for his pains. So reformers often fail to persuade the people to follow them because their intentions are not practically related to the people's own needs and wants, prejudices and sympathies. And in turn reformers themselves who would scorn "graft" are switched from their ideals by the bribe of office.

THE AWAKENING.

For many years—yes, for many decades—we have been dreaming of the purity and nobility of man. In our vision, then, we placed him on a very high pedestal and fully agreed with the Psalmist that man, created in God's own image, is just a little less than his Creator.

We have been dreaming that we were living in an ideal world, where culture brought brilliant light; where civilization and humanity were supreme rulers.

In our long dreams we have seen the old wretched pictures, Hate, Cruelty and Barbarism, discarded forever, and in their place, heavenly groups, Love, Charity and the Brotherhood of Men, appear.

Noble indeed was our vision; but it was only a dream and at last we are awake. But, oh! what a sad awakening! It is too dreadful to repeat what we have seen and heard.

We have found multitudes of men lifting up their swords against each other; beautiful lands turned into slaughter-houses, and lakes filled with human blood.

We have heard the voices of mothers, widows and orphans crying out from their wretched homes, their agonies undoubtedly greater by far than that which the poet in his wildest fancy could portray.

After realizing all that has happened, we come to the very sad conclusion that savagery and barbarism are much greater than they were in the darkest ages; that the law of the land ceases to be law, murder ceases to be murder, and that only might brings right.

Under present exciting conditions, when the human race, in spite of all its culture is reduced to the lowest kind of savagery and barbarism, the question naturally arises, Are we lost forever; is there no hopes for redemption? Is man like the beast that perishes? Well is it for us that we look deeper into the matter. We have been dreaming. Dreams are echoes of thoughts. Thoughts are the offspring of inspiration. We have been thinking and dreaming of the nobility of man. Is this not sufficient proof that we are in possession of a noble soul, from whence all inspiration arises? Mankind will not perish as long as the imperishable soul exists.

The soul undoubtedly has a very hard task to wipe out the evil in mankind. Many battles will yet have to be fought before man will become the real "beauty of the world and the paragon of the animals."

Who knows but that the present great calamity, this unholy war, like a great surgical operation, may be the means of wiping out the terrible diseases—militarism and despotism!

Many more sacrifices perhaps will have to be placed upon the altar of redemption, but justice is bound to come out victorious at the end and the noble spirit become the supreme ruler of man.

Smitten as we are, we still have hopes that the time will come when evil will be eliminated, when militarism and despotism will be things of the past, when Unity, Love and Charity will prevail throughout the land.

DAVID EPSTEIN.

Annual Meeting of the New York Branch of the Alliance Israelite Universelle.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the New York branch of the Alliance Israelite Universelle was held last Sunday in the Straus Auditorium of the Educational Alliance. Ex-Justice Leon Sanders was elected president to succeed Major Kaufman Mandell, U. S. V., retired. Major Mandell has served as president of the branch for eleven years, and since 1910 he has also been treasurer. In this capacity he will continue to act. In his report Major Mandell stated:

"It must be a source of satisfaction to us as well as to all American Jews to know that the thousands of representatives of the Alliance in so many different countries are valiantly accomplishing their task, whether their duties be regular or self-imposed. This brings me to the subject of the activities of the Alliance, but before I leave the subject of the New York branch I want to state that the world crisis has increased its importance, and this importance will grow from year to year. The center of Judaism, if it is not Zion, may, within a few years, be New York, and this will entail upon us American Jews, and especially upon us members of the Alliance, such enormous responsibilities that our imagination just now almost recoils from their comprehension. To state it briefly, we American Jews are very likely to be responsible for the economic, political, religious, social and intellectual conditions of our brethren in benighted countries, and since one of the means of bettering these conditions is and will continue to be the Alliance Israelite Universelle, this, the New York branch of that great body, will be transformed from what it is now, that is to say, little more than a mere collection agency, into an important co-operative section of the international body, and my message to you therefore is, let this meeting be the beginning of a new era, let all members take interest in the all-essential work of the Alliance, let them take interest in its growth, let them enroll all their friends, so that our poor brethren in so many countries between the Atlantic Ocean on the West and Afghanistan on the East, between Russia on the North and the Indian Ocean on the South, will not have reason to believe that we who bask in the sunshine of the Stars and Stripes and breathe the air of freedom and opportunity are callous and indifferent to their sufferings.

"Now as to the actual work of the Alliance through its institutions. I can start with good news, so good, and being such a hopeful sign, that it is almost incredible, and this is that up to exactly one month ago not a single one of the 190-odd schools of the Alliance had to be closed. In spite of martial law, in spite of the tremendously increased cost of living, in spite of political turmoil, in spite of the cutting off of communications, the schools of the Alliance in Turkey, in Asia Minor, in Syria, Mesopotamia, Egypt and Arabia, are all continuing their beneficent missions."

Mr. Nissim Behar, American representative of the Central Committee of the Alliance, devoted most of his report to a eulogy of the late Narcisse Leven, whom he held as an example for American Jews.

He reported having received word from M. Jacques Bigart, general secretary of the Alliance, that not only were the schools in Turkey, Persia, etc., open and active, but that communication with every one of them was kept up and funds were being sent. In many localities, missionary and other non-Jewish schools near those of the Alliance were forced to close, and their Jewish pupils were transferred to the Alliance schools.

Leon Sanders, in his inauguration speech, commented on the lack of interest which American Jews have taken in the Alliance. He pleaded for greater co-operation on their part and said he hoped the day was not far distant when there will be a branch of the Alliance in every city of the United States.

Prof. Richard Gotthell made a sensation in coming out for the Alliance and against the Hilfsverein der Deutschen Juden. For many years Prof. Gotthell had been rather indifferent toward the Alliance and in favor only of Zionism and of the Hilfsverein. His mere presence on the platform aroused some comment, and the excitement in the audience was unconcealed when he came to the main point of his address. "It is only a short time ago that I changed my mind about the Alliance," he said. "It was on account of the action of a society which I shall not name in disregarding the pledges it had made to the Jews of the entire world, from whom it had collected funds to establish an institution in Palestine, with the understanding that Hebrew was to be the language used in that school, and endeavoring to substitute German for our ancient language. The hope of Israel lies in educating our youth so that the next and all future generations will be enabled to win economic independence, which is the first step to total emancipation. This is precisely what the agricultural, technical, and other schools of the Alliance are doing. All of us Zionists would come to the support of this great institution."

Miss Leon, speaking as a Zionist, echoed the words of Prof. Gotthell. Harry H. Schlacht introduced a motion to send a petition to Governor-elect Slaten of Georgia, in the case of Leo Frank. This was carried after some discussion. Upon Mr. Nissim Behar's recommendation, it was decided to ask the Jewish Publication Society to translate and publish in English the history of the Alliance, written by its late president, Narcisse Leven, and to look into the question of encouraging Hebrew schools on the east side of New York, where there is a considerable population of Levantine Jews.

The meeting began with a photoplay, "Judith of Bethulia," supplied by the Biograph Company, and ended with moving pictures of Palestine, loaned by The Day.

Jews from Jerusalem Accorded Privileges of Belgian Refugees. Were it not for the effective interposition of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, a large number of Jewish immigrants from Palestine would have suffered deportation, through a cold and heartless interpretation of the letter of the immigrant law.

At the outbreak of the war, Turkey peremptorily ordered all Russian subjects, which meant Jews, to become naturalized, or leave Turkey. The idea was that if they became naturalized, all these of military age would be forced to fight in the Turkish army. To most, this was as little to their taste as fighting in the army of the Czar. Those that refused naturalization were summarily expelled from Turkey as subjects of a hostile nation. No country but Russia or America would receive them. Russia would welcome them with open arms. Those of military age she would send to be slaughtered by their Galician brethren. Small wonder that 120 of them sailed to America. Here, they thought, was at last a haven. But they were mistaken. Many of them were without friends or funds. To admit these was contrary to practice. Many were suffering with excludable diseases. These, too, custom and the law would not permit the inspectors to land.

Indeed the plight of these unfortunates was worse than that of the Belgians. For the Belgians were well taken care of by friendly nations. The decision of the government was to deport the total body of Jerusalem immigrants. But here the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America stepped in with a request to the government to grant the same privileges extended the Belgian peasants, to these Jews, whose situation was essentially similar to that of the Belgians. The government agreed, and exercised the same leniency as towards the Belgians. All but the sick were allowed to land under bond furnished by sympathetic persons. The diseased are now being given treatment. At any event, none are to be deported until the war ends. By that time most will probably regain their health, and those admitted under bond will have become useful members of the community.

Membership in the synagogue fortifies one's self-respect, without which the Jew cannot hope to have the respect of the world; it is the tangible expression of Jewish loyalty; it gives title to service that society has always regarded as vital; it offers a center of social and religious life, where the child may be given its religious teachings, and finally it aligns the Jew with the reverence of the ages.—Rabbi Emil Leipzig, New Orleans.

Plight of Palestine Jews Increases.
 The American Jewish Relief Committee is in receipt of the following advices from Secretary of State Bryan:
 "American Ambassador at Constantinople cables as follows: There are approximately fifteen hundred Jews from Gallipoli and Dardanelles who have been obliged to leave their homes. They are scattered at Pauderma, Rodosto and Constantinople, and they are in absolute want. Grand Rabbi and Committee beg for prompt assistance for them and for indigent Jews in Constantinople, who number about five thousand."
 The Grand Rabbi of Turkey in a letter just transmitted writes from Constantinople:
 "Nearly five thousand individuals are without any support, and this number is increasing daily. My last resource is to implore you to intervene on behalf of our community with Jews of America, so that they may, by sending immediate aid, enable us to meet the demands for help for at least two or three months."
 From Jerusalem through David Yellin, one of the Committee's representatives for Palestine, we quote the following:
 "During the past two weeks Palestine has been visited by the locust, a plague which will ruin the whole future harvest. We fear we will have a famine this summer."
 "We require corn, but more even petroleum, not only for lighting and cooking purposes, but also for the need of the engines operating the orange groves at Jaffa and surrounding co'ones. A supply of this will be the deliverance of all the orange groves of the land, and a great help for all the population. The need for sugar is also great * * *"

According to the Oesterreichische Wochenschrift, up to April 30, 2,610 Jews in the German army were decorated with the iron cross for bravery. Among these are young men in all walks of life from the lowliest to the most aristocratic. In the list of promotions and decorations in the German army it is surprising to note the large number of Jewish professional men who serve in the army. Lawyers, engineers, architects and physicians appear to predominate when one reads the lists of Jewish heroes in Germany.

Borden's Malted Milk

The word "BORDEN" is all that you need to know when you want to have the genuine, Kosher, pure, clean and wholesome MALTED MILK.

There has now appeared upon the market an imitation MALTED MILK, which some dealers desire to substitute for the BORDEN'S MALTED MILK, because it costs them only one half as much as BORDEN'S.

See that you are not misled. Insist upon the name BORDEN'S. See that this name is on every package or jar and that BORDEN'S is served to you at the soda fountain.

BORDEN'S MALTED MILK has no equal in the world for quality and cleanliness.

BORDEN'S name on a jar of MALTED MILK is like the United States' seal on gold coin.

$100 Reward will be paid to any person causing the arrest and conviction of any person, firm or corporation who may be found selling any substance which is not genuine as or for BORDEN'S MALTED MILK.

Death of Jacob Ruppert.

Jacob Ruppert, founder and head of the great brewing establishment which bears his name, died last Tuesday night, at his home, No. 1116 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Ruppert, who was 74 years old, had been suffering from a complication of diseases for many years.

Mr. Ruppert was born in New York City. He entered the employ of his father at a very early age, and upon the former's death began to enlarge the business which ultimately attained national fame and now has an annual output exceeding 2,000,000 barrels.

Mr. Ruppert was a liberal contributor to Jewish charities and causes, giving with a free hand. There are many Jewish employees in the Ruppert establishment and they are mourning a sincere friend.

The funeral services, which were held from his late residence last Friday night, were witnessed by a tremendous gathering, and many more were unable to obtain admission. Among the mourners were some of the most prominent figures in the community.

Talmudical Institute of Harlem.

The Ladies' Society of the Talmudical Institute of Harlem, 56 West 114th street, made a big success of the strawberry festival which they arranged and which took place in the auditorium of the institute on the evening of May 15, thanks to the efforts of its president, Mrs. Richman; its vice-president, Mrs. Pearlstein; its treasurer, Mrs. Goodman, and its director, Mrs. Weinberg, and the other directors and members of whom about one hundred were present to grace the occasion.

The following gentlemen also took part in the Festivity of the Commandments: Messrs. Rosen, Goodman, Richman, also the following rabbis: Sterman, Bernstein, Kossuth and Hirmes of Englewood, N. J.

Eloquent addresses were delivered by Rabbis Kossuth and Hirmes. The pupils of the institute also delivered addresses and recited beautifully. Every one enjoyed the affair immensely, and it was a veritable Festivity of the Commandments. About $200 was realized from the proceeds of the sale of tickets.

The Talmudical Institute of Harlem hereby thanks every one who contributed to the success of this affair, particularly to the officers of the Ladies' Society, whose unremitting efforts were crowned with success.

Dear Children:

Not for naught has Israel been blessed to be as the sand and as the stars—as lowly as the sand yet as high as the stars; not for naught that it is in the power of the world to give, but for that which the greatest of the great, the proudest of the proud has descended from His empyrean heights upon Sinai, the humblest of mountains, to give to Israel and raise him up unto Himself by means of that band and bond, those letters of black flame upon a background of white flame—namely, the Torah.

It is Israel as the student of the Torah whom the Sages admonish and say:

"Do not strive after (worldly) greatness or covert (worldly) honor; practice more than thou professest, and crave not after the table of kings, for thy table is greater than theirs, and thy crown is greater than theirs, and thy employer is faithful to pay you the reward of thy work"

As low as the sand yet as high as the stars! Erstwhile you were taught to eat a morsel of bread with salt, drink a little water, sleep upon the ground, live a life of trouble the while thou toilest in the Torah—as low as the sand! And now you are told to disdain the table of kings, "for thy table is greater than their table, thy crown is greater than their crown"—as high as the stars!

Never was there a time, dear children, when we were better able to understand these proud words of the Sages than the present. From the wilds of some savage country there strode forth barbarians and semi-barbarians lusting for blood, burning, pillaging and destroying; knowing naught of mercy, naught of satiety; though they strode forth in the light of day, it were just the same to them if they had stumbled in the darkness of the shadow of death, for black were their hearts and dark were their souls: they had the ferocity of the lion, but not his nobility; the fierceness of the tiger, but not his beauty, for they were naught but human monstrosities ere a reflection of the Divine light shone upon them; and when a ray of heavenly sunshine did reach them at length, when our holy Torah was translated for them in the language they understood, the deformed was transformed. They saw themselves in all the nakedness of their brutish savagery; they saw and they were ashamed. The Divine light within them, almost extinguished, leaped into a flame; they studied that translation of Israel's holy Torah, and they progressed, step by step, from a state of brutishness to a state of civilization; but with all their progress one savage trait within their innermost, corrupt nature was never eradicated—the trait of ingratitude, as cruel as a serpent's tooth, to bury their poisonous fangs in the hands of those who fed them—to crush Israel to earth, that holy nation and kingdom of priests who had given them the means of emerging from barbarism to culture. They persecuted and tortured Israel and trod upon him as upon the sand.

Centuries have rolled by, the erstwhile savages have become dignified nations, thanks to the translation of Israel's Torah, but they have not yet mastered the entire lesson of the Holy Book; for Israel's Messiah, of whom Isaiah tells us, did not yet arrive to judge among the nations and decide for many people who should beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning knives; they have not yet taken the words of Israel to heart—that "nation shall not lift up sword against nation, and they shall not learn any more war."

And in all this horrible butchery that is now taking place, the greatest slaughter in the history of the world, the kings with diamond-decked crowns sit at their tables and write white papers and blue papers and papers of all colors to excuse themselves and to show themselves guiltless of the crime of being the instigators of this universal blood-bath. To whom are they excusing themselves? To those who, like themselves, have harkened to the call of the wild; who have sniffed the blood of savagery which had lain dormant in their nature from their era of barbarism? No! It is to the Jew, the poor, despised Jew to whom they owe their civilization, whose Torah has cultured them and caused them, even now, in the midst of blood, to blush for their doings—the Jew, low as the sand, yet high as the stars, whose table is greater than their table, whose crown is greater than their crown!

The city youth secured a job with Farmer Jones. The morning after his arrival, promptly at 4 o'clock, the farmer rapped on his door and told him to get up. The youth protested. "What for?" he asked, rubbing his eyes.
"Why, we're going to cut oats," replied the farmer.
"Are they wild oats?" queried the youth, "that you've got to sneak up on 'em in the dark?"—Circle and Success.

GRAND LODGE OF THE UNITED STATES OFFICERS:

EMIL TAUSSIG, Grand Master; SOLON J. LIEBESKIND, Dep. Gr. Master; HARRY JACOBS, Second Dep. Gr. Master; ADOLPH PIKE, Third Dep. Gr. Master; ABRAHAM HAFER, Grand Secretary; BENJAMIN BLUMENTHAL, Grand Treasurer; SAMUEL STURTZ, Chairman Death Claims Committee.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE:
J. A. Hirschman, Edward Schulhof, Louis Hess, Herman Stiefel, M. D. Rosenbach, Henry Lipsky, Henry V. Rothschild, Henry E. Stern, Ben. H. Wasserman, Ben. Nagelschmidt, M. Angelo Elias, M. A. Weinberg and J. I. Hartenstein.
REPRESENTATIVE TO EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE FROM DISTRICT GRAND LODGES:

A. M. KRAKOWITZ, Grand Master; ABRAHAM HAFER, Grand Secretary; A. E. KARLSEN, Grand Treasurer.

The triennial convention of the United States Grand Lodge of the I. O. F. S. of I. was held last week at the Hotel Rudolf, Atlantic City. Delegates were present from nearly every lodge in the order. Various reports were read and resolutions were adopted. An appeal was sent to the Governor of Georgia asking clemency for Leo M. Frank.

Routine business was disposed of, after which the election of officers took place, and resulted in the selection of Emil Taussig as grand master, Solon J. Liebeskind as deputy grand master, Harry Jacobs as second deputy grand master, Adolph Pike, of Chicago, as third deputy grand master; Abraham Hafer as grand secretary, Benjamin Blumenthal as grand treasurer, and Samuel Sturtz as chairman on Death Claims Committee.

A banquet was given at the Hotel Rudolf, at which over 250 participated. Brother Herman Stiefel acted as toast master, and addresses were delivered by Senator Boise Penrose, Acting Governor Edge, Grand Master Stern, Isaac Anderson Loeb, and Rabbi Henry M. Fisher.

Several new laws were passed, among them that lodges advancing dues and assessments for incompetent brothers shall be reimbursed by the grand lodge at the demise of the brother. Families applying for relief, the Endowment Committee may, with consent of the Executive Committee, grant such relief, but as soon as legal proof of death of the brother is submitted the amount so advanced can be deducted from the amount due the beneficiaries. Milage for all the delegates shall be computed and pro rata charged to all the lodges. In the future eight members will constitute a quorum in the Executive Committee meetings.

The following brothers were elected to the Executive Committee: J. A. Hirschman, Edward Schulof, Louis Hess, Herman Stiefel, M. D. Rosenbach, Henry Lipsky, Henry V. Rothschild, Henry E. Stern, Benj. H. Wasserman, Benj. Nagelschmidt, M. Angelo Elias, M. A. Weinberg, and Joseph I. Hartenstein.

The annual picnic of District Grand Lodge No. 1 will be held at Sulzer's Harlem River Park on Wednesday evening, June 16.

At its last meeting the New Orleans (La.) section Council of Jewish Women passed a resolution admitting to local membership non-Jewish women who may apply.

S. BAND We Guarantee Our Work

Rabbi Lissman Preaches to D. S. C. Employees.

The annual memorial services for deceased employees of the Department of Street Cleaning were held last Sunday morning at the Hebrew Tabernacle, No. 218 West 130th street. The exercises included several solos and quartets and addresses by the Department chaplains, Rev. Father Silvioni, of St. Anthony's Church; Rev. Dr. Nash, of St. John's Cathedral, and Rabbi Lissman. The latter spoke on "Cleanliness," in the course of which he said:

"Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion, put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, thou holy city; for no more shall enter into thee henceforth the uncircumcised and the unclean.
"Shake thyself free from the dust, arise, sit down, O Jerusalem! loosen thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive, daughter of Zion.
"Deeply roiled by custom and habit to idolatry, polygamy and Asiatic despotism it was no wonder that the era of the prophet saw the pure skies of Monotheism heavily surcharged with the advancing clouds of decay and dispersion.

"The people had to be awakened to a reasonable state of sanity and practical responsibility. The leaders castigated for their dereliction of duty, and the priests aroused not alone to put on their sacerdotal garments of their rank, but pre-eminently to instill into the minds of their flocks the absolute necessity for a reversion to the Decalogue and the Book of the Law.

"Moral and physical cleanliness were the themes of the great Spiritual Guide. Like a Prometheus who, according to Greek mythology, sought to give man the mastery over nature, and as a consequence was given over to an eagle for destruction by Zeus, so in a somewhat similar manner was Isaiah doomed for an untimely death as soon as he sought the emancipation of social justice on behalf of the entire human race.

"Method and application should guide a man on every block, and the motto should be 'Sweep well while you are sweeping, and flush clean when you are flushing.' Take away garbage with as little noise as possible, and avoid being a human tin can, for the noisy man is a nuisance rather than an attribute.

"Isaiah suffered because he expounded modern thoughts to primitive men, and the human family has never emancipated itself from the admixture of beautiful ideals and insincere actions.

"Divine standards are almost hopelessly mixed up with mortal weaknesses. Good ideas of today are mentally carted away tomorrow as a heap of needless dust, to be replaced with advanced intellectual and practical machinery. We are suffering from secular and religious momentum, and when we are forced to stop we are shocked rather than relieved.

"The trouble has been, and is, in this life, that we fill the ash cans of theory with our own faults, follies and inhuman actions and expect the other fellow to accept responsibility for them all and furthermore, cart them away from our own doors when they become a menace to us. We fill the highways of life with heaps of refuse thoughts pertaining to our side of an argument, until the sweeper and driver of modern equity appears and cleans up with conclusive evidence the littered streets of illogical attitudes.

"There is more danger from the decay of character than from the putrid heaps of matter lying upon the roads of our city, although both should positively be eliminated.

"A man should not remain honest through fear of the law, but through love of the law, for the law has a double responsibility. It is both a protection and a menace, and the question remains, which side of the law do you desire to assume? And accordingly your character will be graded and estimated within the card index system at the Municipal Building."

Final preparations have been completed for the annual convention of the Independent Order B'rith Abraham, which will begin on Sunday, on the Steel Pier, Atlantic City, N. J. It is expected that over 1,500 delegates will be present. The order is the largest Jewish fraternity in the world, and has a membership of almost 200,000.

At the annual convention of the Order B'rith Sholom, held in Baltimore, Md., last week, among the resolutions adopted was one to place an American flag, a Zionist flag and a copy of the Bible in each lodge room.

"Vy, new it would cost five dollars. But as it iss—say four."
 The Widow Finkelstein rolled her eyes to the ceiling, which meant that she was figuring. "Sixteen dollars what you owe me, minus four, would make twelve dollars what you owe me, ain't it?" she asked.
 The schnorrer nodded without knowing what he was doing.
 The next moment the Widow Finkelstein had snatched the silk hat from off his head, placed it on the floor, where it soon lay a ruin beneath her invincible feet.
 The widow's next move was equally swift.
 She flung the door wide open with a bang, and shouted: "Now get out of here, you bum, schnorrer, and deceiver of widows' hearts, and don't you dast come back for your things until you have the twelve dollars for the rent and the fifteen dollars for that suit!"
 Bewildered, the schnorrer turned about and fled down the stairs, but not quickly enough to escape the broom which the Widow Finkelstein hurled after him.
 "It's good Levin keeps open all night," said Zerach Slutzk to himself as he found himself bareheaded in the cool air of the street. And before he fell asleep on one of the benches of the cafe he murmured to himself: "If I outlive this I will sure live to greet the Messiah!"

NEWS FROM ENGLAND

Interesting lecture was delivered last week in the famous Free Trade Hall, Manchester, by Alexis Aladin. He pointed out in the course of his speech that the question of the Jews in Russia is one of the most complicated and difficult questions which any public man could be called upon to deal with. The Jewish community in Russia, roughly speaking, amounts to over six million souls, of which about four million are in Russia proper, and about two million in Polish provinces. Large as was the emigration of the Russian Jews in the direction of Europe and America, still it holds good that for these six million souls the only native land is Russia. For better or worse the fate of that group of the Jews is bound up with the progress and development of Russia proper. Not only the Russian democracy, but the Russian government as well, recognize that the situation of the Jewish population, chiefly concentrated in the towns of a few provinces, debarred from many rights in living, trading, and education, is not only far from being satisfactory, but is distinctly bad, and that reforms are urgently needed. The war has affected the Jewish community very seriously. A great deal of fighting has been done and is going to be done in the provinces where the Jewish population is concentrated. That very fact justified, in Mr. Aladin's opinion, the necessity of bringing forward the question of the Russian Jews, even at the present time. The Russian Jewish community sent to the war over three hundred thousand men; the Jewish soldiers are fighting well; a considerable number of St. George's Crosses were given to the Jewish soldiers in recognition of their services. Even some relaxation was made in promoting the Jews to commissioned ranks. According to Mr. Aladin, these facts not only speak well for the Jewish community in Russia, but tend to develop a new state of feeling on the part of the Russian people towards the Jews. It is useless to hide the fact, he said, that the Russian people are unable and incapable of giving heartfelt sympathy to any group or community which cannot fight for their lives, children and homes. The future of the Russian Jews is bound up with the future of the Russian democracy.

on the actions of the bank when Turkey went into the war. The correspondent writes:
"All our depositors have, at all times, received at least sufficient means for their subsistence. Others, who were established in business in Palestine and in Alexandria, were granted the necessary money for continuing their business, and those who departed, received sufficient for traveling and other expenses for their repatriation. American depositors who were going home had the situation explained to them, that owing to the moratorium, the bank was necessarily limited in funds, and although not obliged, legally to make payments at this time, all Americans received a portion of their deposits."
"At all times, we did more than our duty towards the depositors of the Anglo-Palestine Company. In such an abnormal time, when the bank was closed, and all its assets in Palestine were tied up, and the transfer of money from London attended by the greatest difficulties, we enabled them to subsist in Alexandria and to obtain money sufficient for their repatriation."

"Payments were made in the following manner: Persons who had deposits up to 100 francs were paid in full. To those who wished to establish themselves elsewhere in business, we paid considerable sums, in some cases up to 3,000 francs. Persons who departed for America, Australia and Russia, and who had deposits ranging from 1,000 to 1,500 francs, received all or nearly all of their deposit. Larger depositors, who had from 10,000 to 20,000 francs, received 20 per cent. to 30 per cent. on account, and, in some cases even 50 per cent."
"In Alexandria we made payments to more than 700 depositors of the Anglo-Palestine Company, aggregating a total of nearly £19,000."
"From the foregoing facts you will realize how far-reaching was the help rendered to our depositors in their hour of distress, notwithstanding the troublesome times and the obstacles we had to overcome in doing so."

The Labor of Wife and Children in Family Support.

The address of Mrs. Harry Kraft at the New York City Conference of Charities and Corrections, Pleasantville, New York, May 27, was devoted to a consideration of the labor of the wife and children in family support.

In support of her position against the economic independence of wives and mothers, Mrs. Kraft quoted some startling statements made by that authority on woman's work, Mrs. Florence Kelly.

Mrs. Kraft pointed out that her own somewhat old-fashioned opinion that the home, and not the factory or the shop is the proper place for the mother is supported by the twenty-three States, including New York, that have passed laws in behalf of widowed mothers, so that they can properly care for their children at home.

Among other vital subjects presented by Mrs. Kraft were the need of lengthening the school year in Greater New York and wherever else ten weeks' vacation are the rule. She recommended a reduction from the ten weeks to a four weeks' vacation, as the present arrangement works hardship for poor families, and is no benefit whatsoever to the child.

Mrs. Kraft also touched upon the desirability of the systematic training of mothers in the matter of diet and the care of children, and suggested that this be carried on by methods somewhat similar to the objective ones so successfully used in the propaganda against tuberculosis.

Orphans Made Happy.

One hundred and fifty orphan girls were recently made happy by the members of the Ray of Sunshine Club, as they were given outings at Van Cortland Park.

After luncheon was served games were indulged in and prizes awarded to the winners. Ice cream and cake were served during the afternoon.

The children were in charge of Mrs. Phillip Simon, founder and mother president. The following members assisted in the good work: The Misses Edna Arnstein, Lillian Arnoff, Pearl Adels, Rosalie Bernstein, Edna Bleier, Martha Emsthal, Sarah Goldman, Ruth Gartenlaub, Ruth Hertz, Jessie Hildesheim, Ruth Kramer, Lucile Lederer, Jeannette Lowenthal, Sophie Newton, Lillian Parker, Helen Rosenberg, Marjorie Rosenfeld, Hortense Simon, Jeanne Schwenger, Mollie Shapiro, Estelle Weil, Selina Waldman, Pauline Zimmerman of Chapter I, and the Misses Leona Anspach, Pearl Frank, Hazel Firetag, Virginia Goldstein, Helen Hagenbacher, Fannie Jones, Sadie Josephson, Gertrude Klinger, Gladys Katzenstein, Rosetta Kaufman, Frances Kaufman, Gertrude Kerpen, Nora Kronold, Sophie Kronold, Elverna Lowenstein, Harriet Myers, Louise Rothschild, Minnie Schreiber, Cora Stern, Marlon Unger, Leonora Weil and Lucille Weil of Chapter II.

"It Pays to Advertise," the farce at the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre, is one of the season's best examples of this style of entertainment. As a matter of fact, the comedy is so thoroughly humorous that it holds its audiences in a continuous laugh convulsion through the three acts in which it is presented.

"On Trial," which continues to attract big audiences to the Candler Theatre, is properly described as a gripping melodrama, acted with great restraint and no small degree of art.

START TO FEED YOUR BABIES WITH KOSHER MILK.

Too much care cannot be exercised in the selection of your daily food, especially your milk supply.

A life to be satisfactory must be started right. When a food is required to take the place of mother's milk, or when you wish to alternate with breast milk, one or two feedings from the bottle, you will find BORDEN'S KOSHER EAGLE BRAND CONDENSED MILK is just what you want.

For your baby's health and proper growth the purity of the milk which your family consumes is the most important question that confronts the housekeeper and usually the most difficult to solve satisfactorily. BORDEN'S KOSHER EAGLE BRAND AND MAGNOLIA BRAND OF CONDENSED MILK AND BORDEN'S KOSHER EVAPORATED MILK are made at Norwich, N. Y., in a factory that has been selected for this purpose, and the plant placed under the personal supervision of Rabbi Solomon Elchanon Jaffe's own Mashgiachim, who see that these three brands which are sold under the Kosher label containing nothing Chometz or doubtful.

You need have no fear that it is not absolutely Kosher for Passover and the entire year as well. Every step in the manufacture of BORDEN'S KOSHER EAGLE BRAND AND MAGNOLIA BRAND CONDENSED MILK as well as BORDEN'S KOSHER EVAPORATED MILK meets every requirement of this strict rabbinical supervision.

Buy a can today. Many dainty and healthful dishes can be made with it. It is Kosher for Passover and the entire year. Save the labels and furnish your home FREE with handsome presents.—Adv.

scribed by the witnesses acted before their eyes. Few plays offered in recent years have enjoyed so long a run or such continuously cordial receptions that are credited to this excellent piece of stage literature, which seems destined to fulfill the prediction that it will round out a full year at the Candler, where it was originally produced last August.

BROOKLYN NOTES.

Ready for the Fair.

The chief center of interest at the Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. is the monster fair to be held at the Borough Park Club House, during the week beginning June 5. Present indications point toward the probability that the bazaar will accomplish its purpose of raising $12,000, which funds is to be devoted to the erection of a new building.

The Entertainment Committee, under the chairmanship of William Sugerman, has announced the following program for the entire week of the fair:

Saturday evening, June 5, grand opening night; Sunday evening, June 6, Y. W. and Y. M. H. A. night; Monday evening, June 7, religious congregation night; Tuesday evening, June 8, Masonic and fraternal order night; Wednesday evening, June 9, Republican night; Thursday evening, June 10, Democratic night; Saturday evening, June 11, final and big rally night.

The Metropolitan League of the Y. M. H. A.'s and Y. W. H. A.'s of New York city has arranged an oratorical contest at Cold Springs, New York, on July 4, and has invited the various associations to hold preliminary contests for the purpose of selecting the successful candidates to compete for the prize offered by the league. The Borough Park Y. M. H. A. is holding its preliminary contests on Sunday evening, June 13.

There is a movement on foot to start a branch of the Big Brothers' Organization under the auspices of the Y. M. H. A. Prominent leaders in the Big Brothers' movement will address our members early in June with the object of bringing into existence the Borough Park branch.

Maternity Hospital to Build Soon.

With a site for the institution selected and the contract closed for the purchase of the ground, in Howard avenue, near Dumont avenue, close to the Brooklyn Hebrew Home for the Aged, it is probable that the breaking of ground for the East New York-Brownsville Maternity Hospital will take place sometime in the early part of this summer. The hospital will occupy a plot of five lots, according to the plans of the architect. The building will be a handsome, strictly fireproof structure, and in it none but maternity cases will be cared for. The finished institution will be the achievement of several years of energetic endeavor of prominent physicians and surgeons and charity workers of the district, and it will prove a big boon to the poor.

The amalgamation of the society was fittingly celebrated with a banquet held at the Hopkinson Mansion last Thursday night. Over 500 were present.

Cornerstone for Yeshiva Laid.

The cornerstone for the building of the High School Department of the Yeshiva Rabbi Chaim Berlin at No. 1899 Prospect place, corner of Eastern Parkway, was laid last Sunday afternoon. The object
