TRANSITION STAGES

By B. HOROWITZ

Mrs. Rosenthal had traveled several stages in the course of her evolution. When she first landed on these shores she settled where most of our immigrants settle: in the heart of the downtown ghetto. Then the world comprised for her a radius of five or six blocks. Within a circle of this radius all that she needed, all that she cared for, could be found. Her two little rooms, situated on the third floor of a rather delapidated-looking structure, dark and narrow, and unsanitary though they were, were regarded by her with no small pride. This, please to understand, was her own, all her own; not, as in Galicia, her mistress. To be sure, her mistress there had a much more desirable mansion, but Mrs. Rosenthal appreciated the difference between living nobly as a serf and living poorly as a free woman. And then again, this was but the beginning. Her husband and she were both industrious enough, and this country held out promise enough. Who could venture to foretell?

And so, when the day's work was done, and there was still a half hour or so wanting ere her husband would return from the day's labor at the sweat shop, the good woman would hie herself downstairs, carefully put her handkerchief on top of one of the door steps, sit down, and survey the world with all that's in it. Presently one of her neighbors, similarly inclined, would join her, and then there was the talk of a hundred and one different things that good, honest, ignorant people will indulge in. In the heat of the discussion up would come her Abraham, a goodly lad, who worked like a beast and who loved his Hester like the gentleman that he was. Then Hester and Abraham would repair to their two dingy little rooms, the husband would throw off most of his clothes and give himself a well-earned wash, while the wife, with all the skill of a well-seasoned cook and housemaid, would rapidly prepare the table. After supper Abraham and Hester would saunter forth, sometimes with the object of calling upon their "landsman"; sometimes bent upon surveying the stores, at other times merely for a breath of fresh air—in so far as that air could be "fresh"—

Abraham worked hard and long, and earned relatively little: but both he and Hester were thrifty, and a penny went a long, long way. Spare as his earnings were, the saving. And Abraham, with that big honesty which was one of his worthy characteristics, would go to the bank only when all his debts, household or otherwise, had been com-beyond that, as beyond the five-block radius, she bugged not.

Summer and winter, autumn and spring, there they were, toiling and saving.

The day came when Abraham, with the nothing-venture-nothing-have idea firmly fixed in his mind, opened up shop for himself. Men with such industry, and men with wants so far, seldom fail; and Rosenthal did not fail. He visited his bank as regularly as ever, but his deposits began to ascend appreciably. At a certain date the clerk suddenly changed his indifferent "yes" and "no," into a respectful "yes, sir," and "no, sir," and it required no keen mind to discern the cause. At about the same time Mrs. Rosenthal made the momentous discovery that the end of the world was not quite at the five-block terminal. In addition, her eyes seemed to discern novelties in shop windows for which they had never been adapted before. Then, to cap the climax, the two rooms on the third floor became "too high up," too small, too shabby, and situated within the five-block radius.

Mrs. Rosenthal had gone quite a distance beyond the ghetto limit. At least, so she thought at the time. As a matter of fact, it was merely a transfer from one ghetto to another—from a more squalid to a less squalid district. But that was not her view of the case. The house to which she moved was no longer a tenement; it consisted of "flats" of five, six, seven, and eight rooms. Here, sitting on stoops was abandoned for the more comfortable and more dignified camp chairs which were placed near the edge of the pavement, and opposite the entrance to the house. In this district the men and women were apparently making strenuous efforts to Americanize themselves. Yiddish was still heard a-plenty, but English was less uncommon. The women, even those well advanced in years, were taking a lively interest in Paris fashions, and the men showed a sense of dis-

NEW SHAAREY ZEDECK SYNAGOGUE, DETROIT, MICH.

The members of the Shaarey Zedek Congregation of Detroit, Mich., the oldest in the city, have just completed a beautiful edifice. It was their idea to erect a monument that would be worthy of traditional Judaism, and how well they succeeded may be gleaned from the above illustration and the following description.

The synagogue occupies a plat of ground about 170 feet front on a wide avenue by 151 feet in depth and faces what is known as the Brush Boulevard. While it is within two blocks of the main business thoroughfare—Woodward avenue—it is in a strictly restricted residence neighborhood, and its location is in the center of the population. The exterior is finished in the same material on all four sides, as they are exposed. The interior is finished in the most expensive and artistic material, marble and hand-made tile of different colors. It is divided into three departments, entering from the beautiful lobby into a great foyer, beautifully arched; at the right facing the east is the synagogue proper; at the left on the same level is the educational department, lecture room and class rooms; at the end the board rooms and rabbi's study, and the high light basement approached by two grand stairways all in tile work, and an additional foyer; at the right, the social hall, gymnasium, shower rooms and lavatories, all finished with the finest equipment and plumbing; this hall is 80x90 feet, 18 feet ceiling in the clear. At the left is the dining room, which seats about 400 or 500 people, cloak rooms and complete kitchen. It is heated by Central City heat, which is washed before distributed into the different buildings, also electric fanning system for fanning cold air, and in fact all appurtenances of the very best and most modern obtainable.

and still again—and this usually not more than once a week—visiting the "movie." But in all these excursions the five-block radius was rarely exceeded.

ings bank soon had him for one of their customers. Regularly, week after week, he would bring his little sum, sometimes a little less, sometimes a little more, but always some-pletely paid for. He owed no man, though some men owed him trifles. His wife's conscience was as clear in this regard as his own. What was necessary and within means, she got; ernment in the selection of collars and hosiery. The young imps no longer spoke Yiddish at all; they were a stage further in advance of their elders. With the feeling that Sarah and Hester, and Jacob and Benjamin were names which retained much of the ghetto flavor, the elders of this more modern ghetto dubbed their brats Charlotte and Mary and Albert and Henry.

In this modernized ghetto Mrs. Rosenthal and her husband found themselves. This was the first and distinct stage of a transition period. The sturdy independence of the honest workman gave place to a clumsy imitation of a prosperous employer. The clean, unassuming maid of all work made way for a rather ill-proportioned mistress. The aping period had set in, and with it nature began to pave the way for artificiality.

Till now the idea of spending a summer vacation out of the city had never entered the head either of the mistress or the master. To begin with, vacation was a word unknown to them. The only difference between the method of spending summer and winter evenings was that during the former the doorsteps would be in requisition, whereas during the latter the desire was to be seated near a crackling fire. Once, indeed, Rosenthal and his wife joined a group of friends one Sunday, and the whole crowd journeyed down to Coney Island. That was a memorable occasion—and a costly one. Once, and never again, till—the couple left their downtown tenement and moved into the Harlem flat. Here the topic of chief concern among the people was the summer vacation. Some spoke of Coney. Others, with an air of superiority, pooh-poohed the idea, they had sufficient experience of that classical seaside resort, and had received initiation into Far Rockaway and Arverne. Others actually went a step further; even Far Rockaway seemed to have lost attractiveness. Was it because it was too near the city, or because too many of the "kikes" were going there? Just who was the "kike" and who was not it would be difficult to say; they called each other "kikes" behind one another's backs. The outsider would probably dub them all alike. There were even a few fastidious ones who turned up their noses at the mention of any of these popular seaside resorts. "The mountains for m'e!" was a typical way of putting it. And so Sullivan county came within the scope of conversation.

One must have a sound constitution, indeed, to resist infection. One must be an extraordinary mortal to escape the contaminating influence of one's environment. Need we wonder that Abraham and Hester fell an easy prey? They passed through the successive stages of Coney and Rockaway, and Sullivan County and Arverne. They had actually reached the point where Brooklyn and Long Island had been so carefully and thoroughly explored, that their wanderlust led them to the Jersey Coast; so that Long Branch, Asbury and Bradley all came in for their share of attention. Mrs. Rosenthal was quite within bounds when she boasted to her neighbor that she spent more for her summer vacation now than for a whole year's living expenses when she lived downtown. She may have added—though she did not—that in spite of a lack of the summer vacation, in spite of squalid surroundings, in spite of incessant struggle merely to cover the bare necessities of existence, Hester was happier within the five-block limits. And this in spite of a steam-heated flat; of a maid-of-all-work; of "library" and sitting room and bedrooms and kitchen; of telephone and electric light; of hats and costumes and furs and jewelry in and out of season; of whist parties and bridge parties Saturdays and Sundays and a little bit in between times; of a "swell" supper, a theatre and a burlesque all in an evening.

And Abraham? With his hair neatly brushed, with a spotless collar, with a cigar on one side of his mouth, with a folded newspaper in his hand, he would take out his packet of subway tickets, tear off one, carelessly drop it in the box, slip a penny in the slot, taking a peep into the looking-glass in the meanwhile, begin to chew and read at the same time, step "lively" into the subway, offer his seat in most gallant fashion to a painted Sousie, get off briskly at his downtown station, march rather majestically into his "office," greet the office girl with a curt nod, throw himself into his arm-chair and dive into his mail. The metamorphosis seemed complete. The arm-chair "boss" and the sweatshop devil—wherein lay the resemblance? Not on the surface, perhaps; but beneath the epidermis Abraham still remained the Abraham of old just as Hester in spite of her cook, still remained a cook herself.

"I'm simply sick and tired of it I refuse to go where they all go. The same old faces, the same old talk, the same old card parties—pfui! Let's get away somewhere where we shan't meet them at all." Thus spoke Hester to her Abraham, who, in his good-natured way, merely thrust his hands deep in his trousers' pockets, took a few vigorous whiffs at his cigar, shrugged his shoulders, and finally threw up his hands in the air.

"If you will have it so, I suppose it's got to be so," remarked the husband.

"Yes, it's got to be, for I'm sick and tired of going year in and year out to the same old places, and seeing the same old people."

Mrs. Rosenthal's fixed determination to explore unknown regions, landed her in a semi-fashionable seaside resort on the Massachusetts coast. She was immediately driven up to one of the hotels, a typical Yankee establishment, as far removed from Semitic contamination as one could desire. The room that was assigned to her was far superior to anything she had had in Long Branch or Arverne, and that in itself was cause for congratulation. She put on her most elegant costume, and went to explore the place. Along the beach, of the well-nigh countless people whom she passed, she met no co-religionists. Once or twice she thought she saw in an individual some resemblance to the chosen race, but that was at best highly doubtful. Perhaps there were some Jews, but if so, they managed to keep that fact pretty nicely to themselves. After strolling around rather aimlessly for some time, Mrs. Rosenthal returned to the hotel for lunch. This was served in that neat, cleanly style which seems to be the despair of Jews as National Volunteers—The Thrift Campaigns and the Community—Allen Jews and the Maccabees—Dr. Hochman and His Resignation Reasons—Jewish National Fund Reports Progress.

London, Aug. 20, 1915.

Jewish citizens here, like those of every other type, appear to have settled down now to accepting the war as a thing that will be with us for apparently some years yet. Business and industrial affairs are being remodeled and outlooks readjusted in consonance with this. For the first year of conflict everybody in this country appeared to think that the European turmoil might come to a finish at any time, and it was only the far-sighted few who provoked smiles by talking of at least a three years' war. It was this belief in a more or less early finish that kept business in this country going on in a kind of hand to mouth fashion. Now with the belief in a long war pretty well universally held all kinds of things are being done in view of this prolongation of the conflict. Things are being put on a war basis, although it is still difficult to wake up the Britisher to some facts that appear to be obvious. Enlistments, both Jewish and Christian, have been stimulated of late by certain recent airship visits about which full particulars must not be given. These, however, did not result in any special damage, although ten civilian lives were lost, among them being, it is said, one Jewish casualty.

Jews not available for military service have now joined in large numbers the volunteer forces. These are organized military bodies with a War Office sanction composed of men who buy their own uniforms, rifles, bayonets, machine guns, pay for their own week-end encampments, find their own fares, and give their spare time to drilling and learning shooting and other military exercises. The total number of these volunteers is said now to be fully two millions. They are not allowed to wear khaki uniforms, but can have the ordinary military style and patterns, but in grey cloth. On their left arm to still further distinguish them from the regular soldiers they have to wear a red band five inches deep called a brassard, on which appears the letters "G. R.," which stands for Georgius Rex, otherwise King George. Springing from this they are nick-named "Georgeous wrecks," a very unkind term to apply to a large body of fine, self-sacrificing men. In the East End corps Jews are numerous, drilling together at night time and camping together at the week ends. Of course, it will be understood that these men are frequently over military age, that is, over 42. Where they are below that age they are not usually accepted for the volunteer forces unless they at the same time sign an agreement to enlist in the regular army if called upon. Otherwise they will be used solely for home defense.

Economy and thrift campaigns are other things that are now being gone in for largely on a systematic scale. The newspapers teem with articles recommending thrift and showing how savings can be effected in household and personal expenditure. Less meat is particularly advised and naturally the vegetarians and not the fruit people are well to the front on this wave of feeling. Numbers of Jewish women belong to local thrift leagues whose objects are, as far as possible, to co-operate with existing bodies in connection with instruction in cooking, dressmaking, and other domestic matters with a view to avoiding waste and saving money. The war is costing this country, it is estimated, $200 a second, which is one good reason for incalculating care in spending. Furthermore, with imports exceeding exports the balance of trade, as it is called, is well against Great Britain just now, with all the troubles this brings in its train in connection with the foreign exchanges and sterling values.

At the same time employment, both of capital and labor, is exceedingly good, although in one or two of the departments in which Jews are pre-eminent things are rather slacker than in the vast majority of other avenues of work. High-class jewelry, for example, is a drug on the market, and diamonds do not sell. On the other hand, the immense amount of work in connection with making soldiers' uniforms has absorbed the idle Jewish tailoring and garment making labor that has resulted from the diminished spending of private or civilian clothes.

Turning to more intimate community news, I notice that Oswald John Simon, one of the original founders of the Maccabees, has felt himself called upon to protest against the Maccabean resolution that alien Jews should be excluded from the society. He declares with heat that the mere fact that such a notice was permitted to be printed proves that those who were responsible had sunk unutterably beneath the standard of Jewish idealism which the Maccabees was established to promote.

Continuing, he says:—If I use language which may seem unjustified I make no excuse whatever. No words can be found to condemn adequately the state of mind, the mode of thought, the misconception of justice, and the false conception of English patriotism, which must have been working in the heart of he who penned the words: a Jew an "alien" among Jews. I do not know the name of the individual member of the Maccabees who was the author of this outrage, this blasphemy. I venture to assert that Christian Englishmen, from the highest Archbishop of Canterbury to the humblest chimney sweep, would agree with me that an English Jew who could bring himself under the conditions of the present war, with its possible confusion of thought, to regard another Jew as an "Alien" in a strictly Jewish society is utterly unworthy of the name of Englishman. What is he, in the sight of God the toughest imagination may conjecture. When Almighty God called our forefathers to be unto Him a Kingdom of Priests and a Holy nation, a witness, a messenger, a servant, as one man attesting through the ages and in every clime to the unity, greatness, and glory of God, the Father of All, there was no distinction to be observed in the time to come in certain political contingencies such as war, as between a French Jew, German Jew, Dutch Jew, Russian Jew, Polish Jew. Israel is one—indivisible part of any nation yet untouched in its identity in blood relationship of one Jew to another. Many Jews in England are descended from those who were not born English Jews. My great-grandfather, Levi Simon, buried in the Chatham Hebrew Burial ground, was the son or grandson of another Simon born in Lithuania. Should I call myself of Polish descent? My grandmother, Rebecca Orobio Furtado Simon, was the daughter of one whose grandfather was a Marrano Jew exiled from Spain. Should I say I was of Spanish blood? This question also Simon answers in the negative and generally his eruption into the discussion has livened up matters considerably.

The Rev. Dr. Hochman has been giving his reasons as to why he resigned his pulpit in the United Synagogue. This is how he puts it:—"I gave up my post because I found the synagogue out of touch with the spirit and purpose of true rabbinic teaching. To put the matter in a sentence, the so-called conservative Jew in this country at the present time is hampered, and his religious practice reduced to a sham, because he professes in public, though often not in private, a conformity to a set of ecclesiastical ordinances framed for totally different circumstances, a totally different generation, and an entirely different civilization. My standpoint, from the time I entered the ministry, was that the variation of the circumstances in which we live demanded the proper adaptation of those ordinances to the changing times, and that there is nothing inconsistent with the spirit and purpose of traditional Judaism in such an adaptation. On the contrary, traditional Judaism required it. In a sermon on 'Orthodoxy and Religious Observance,' which I delivered on New Year, 5671 (1910), I used these words: 'We must take our bearings anew, is what was recently said to me by one of the religiously most observant members of this congregation.' That member, I may perhaps now state, was none other than the late Lord Swaythling."

Lance-corporal, Samuel Langer, who before the war was employed as a compositor on the staff of the Jewish Chronicle of London, has been killed in action and the current issue of that journal prints a very kindly story of him.

A statement issued by the head office of the Jewish National Fund, says: The head office has, since the outbreak of the war, set up an intelligence department, which has already done much good work. About four hundred and sixty Russo-Jewish students, who were

The Honest Contractor.

Much praise is being lavished on a Russo-Jewish contractor named Heilprin. This Jew, a sugar manufacturer in Kieff, supplied the municipality of Petrograd with his goods when prices were high. Subsequently prices greatly declined, whereupon the contractor returned to the municipality a large sum of money, being the difference in the two prices. The anti-Jewish merchants are being appealed to to follow this self-sacrificing example, with what result we do not know. It is usually the Jew who strikes the top moral note in all moments of crisis—though so few recognize the fact.—Jewish World.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE JEWISH WORLD

Orthodox Jews of Petersburg, W. Va., dedicated a new synagogue last week.

Young Jewish men and women of New Bedford, Mass., have organized a Jewish literary club.

The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society attended to 651 cases during the first six months of 1915.

The Hebrew Home for Aged in Brooklyn is now sheltering 230 inmates and larger quarters have become imperative.

A club to be known as the Jewish Literary Club was organized by a number of young men at New Bedford, Mass., last week.

The King of Roumania has intervened in favor of the Jews by ordering the suspension of their expulsion from the frontier districts.

The Greek steamer Thesalonika, which arrived here on August 29, brought in several hundred Jewish refugees from Palestine.

During the first year of the war 502 Jews in the Russian army were awarded the Cross of St. George. During the same period 3,532 Jews in the German army had won the Iron Cross.

A large choral club is being organized by young Jews and Jewesses of Kansas City, Mo.

Superior Lodge No. 775, at Marquette, Mich., has recently been added to District Grand Lodge No. 6, I. O. E. B.

New York City employes now have a chance to learn Yiddish, as night courses in that language have been instituted in the Municipal Building.

The Russian Ministry has instructed the governors near the war zone to ask all Jews to hold themselves in readiness to evacuate their homes at short notice.

Professor Nahum Slousch, who has been a resident of Paris and a lecturer at the Sorbonne for a number of years, will reside in America until after the war.

Rev. Dr. Adolph Guttman, of Syracuse, has been appointed a member of the local Board of Child Welfare under the New York State law recently enacted.

Supreme Court Justice Samuel Greenbaum has now received the indorsement of the Democrats, Republicans and Progressives for re-election in New York county.

The eight orthodox Jewish congregations of New Haven, Conn., have extended a call to Rabbi Isaac Caplan, of Rochester, N. Y., to become their spiritual leader.

According to the current American Jewish Year Book, the population of the Jews of the United States is given at 2,349,754 and that of the world as 13,277,542.

A new congregation has been organized in Milwaukee, Wis. It will be known as the Hebrew Union Congregation, and will have for its leader Rabbi Bennet Grad.

In response to an appeal from the Jewish soldiers at Niagara Camp, Rabbi Julius J. Price, of Toronto, succeeded in obtaining leave of absence for them for the New Year.

M. Protassieff, the new Governor of Kharkoff, has abolished the restrictions introduced by his predecessors with regard to the residence of Jews in the local summer resorts.

The members of the Congregation Anshei Sfard of Toledo, Ohio, dedicated their new synagogue last Sunday. The building was formerly that of the First Reformed Church.

The new synagogue of the congregation Ahawath Zion at Newark, N. J., was dedicated last week. Mayor Raymond was present and participated in the ceremonies.

Mr. Henry Wessel, who for the past twelve years has been the secretary of the Philadelphia (Pa.) Jewish Hospital, has been elected treasurer to succeed the late August B. Løeb.

At a special meeting recently held by the Sisters of Truth Charity Society of Chicago, Ill., it was decided to change the name of the organization to the Anshe Emeth Sisterhood.

Local Progressives have nominated Mr. Michael Schaap for Justice of the City Court. Mr. Schaap, who was formerly an Assemblyman, was a candidate for judge last year.

Mr. H. J. Hyman, who for a number of years has been in charge of the Jewish Educational Alliance of Atlanta, Ga., has resigned that position to take up work in Columbus, Ohio.

The Municipal Council recently organized in the City of Warsaw contains six Jews. The council is composed of thirty members, the others being Germans and Poles of an equal number.

A Christian society in aid of the Jewish exiles has been formed at Petrograd under the guidance of Count I. Tolstol, Deputies Shingarieff and Roditscheff, M. Maxim Gorki, and other notables.

On the invitation of the Prime Minister, the Polish deputies in the Duma have drafted the Polish Autonomy bill, which provides that the Jewish question should be left to the discretion of the future Polish Diet.

Rev. Dr. M. Sessler, formerly of Roanoke, Va., will officiate during the holidays at Guatemala City, Guatemala. Rabbi Sessler will enjoy the distinction of being the first rabbi to officiate in a Central American city.

Dr. Grossman has been appointed by the National Education Association as one of the judges in a competition for a thousand-dollar prize for the best work on the subject of "The Teaching of Morality in the Public Schools."

The local interests which recently acquired the Baltimore News from Frank A. Munsey have retained Mr. Herbert Wyle, who has been the business manager for some time, and have also made him treasurer of the company.

The War Cross has been conferred on Maurice Maier, of Rheims, a soldier of the First Class in the French Army. He has been named in dispatches no less than ten times, and has been recommended for the highly-prized Military Medal.

In spite of the war, the Jewish congregation of Vienna reports its receipts for 1914 to have been 3,559,321 crowns, allowing a surplus of nearly 21,000 crowns. The congregation was thus enabled to subscribe 500,000 crowns for the war loan.

The cornerstone of the new Hebrew Institute at Pittsburgh, Pa., will be laid on Sunday afternoon, September 12. Mr. Louis I. Aaron, whose gift of $25,000 to the building fund made possible the building of the institution, will perform the ceremony.

Rabbi Samuel A. Rabinowitz, superintendent of the Mikve Israel School of Observation and Practice of Gratz College, Philadelphia, Pa., has accepted a call extended to him some time ago by the Beth Emeth Congregation of Wilmington, Del.

An effort is being made by members of Temple Israel to engage a permanent rabbi. Rev. Rabbi Max Hoffman is occupying the pulpit temporarily over the holidays, and if proper arrangements can be made he will be tendered a permanent post.

The Jews of Minsk have decided to work on the Sabbath day in the government ammunition factories, regarding this as of such vital importance to the welfare of the land that the Sabbath might be violated in order to produce more ammunition.

It is expected that the new Temple B'nai Jeshurun, now being erected in Newark, N. J., will be ready for use in about six weeks. The building is one of the most costly religious edifices in New Jersey, and when completed will represent an outlay of almost $300,000.

The committee recently formed in Holland to deal with the question of Jewish emigration after the war, advocates the formation of a world-wide organization in connection with an emigration bank, the opening of information bureaus, and of classes for intending emigrants to instruct them in the languages and habits of the countries in which they propose to settle.

Young Men's Hebrew Associations are prospering. At the annual convention of the New Jersey Federation, held last Monday, there were eighteen Young Men's and twelve Young Women's Hebrew Associations represented. At the same time the New England Federation held their convention and reported forty bodies with a membership of almost 6,000.

Forty-five students of the Hebrew Union College, all that are permitted because of class standing to officiate for the holidays, are occupying pulpits this season throughout the country. This is the largest number in the history of the college that have gone out to conduct services for the High Holidays. In Oklahoma, for example, four students are this year officiating in congregations newly organized and admitted into the Union. A number of congregations that formerly had students for the holidays now have permanent leaders.

An unusual distinction has been won by Max Marcin, a young playwright. Two of his productions, "The House of Glass" and "See My Lawyer," were produced in New York last week, and a third is scheduled for production next week. All of these plays were written over two years ago, but until this season Mr. Marcin was unable to get a hearing.

Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago, Ill., has donated to the United States Department of the Interior a sum of money for the construction of a trail from the Granite Park chalet, the most northerly hostelry in Glacier National Park, to a high point on the continental divide, overlooking the tremendously scenic region surrounding Flat Top Mountain upward of 60 miles in extent.

Bernard Aaronson, who for the past fifty-three years had been a resident of Boston, passed away last week. Mr. Aaronson was born in Russia and came to Boston in 1862, being one of the first Russian Jews to settle in the city. He was president of the Jewish Home for Children, a director of the Home for Aged, and president of the summer congregation maintained at Old Orchard, Me.

The distress of Jewish refugees in Russia is growing very acute, according to the following cablegram just received by the American Jewish Relief Committee from the Jewish Colonization Association at Petrograd: "Referring our cable 5th June, seeing daily increasing acuteness, indescribable distress. Urgently pray for further aid. Sums collected and half million government contribution completely exhausted. Please cable. ICA."

Acting Corporal Issy Smith (Israel Schmulovitch), of the First Battalion of the Manchester Regiment, has been awarded the Victoria Cross for conspicuous deeds of bravery. The official bulletin announces the award as follows: For most conspicuous bravery on April 26, 1915, near Ypres, when he left his company on his own initiative and went well forward towards the enemy's position to assist a severely wounded man, whom he carried a distance of 250 yards into safety, whilst exposed the whole time to heavy machine-gun and rifle fire. Subsequently Corporal Smith displayed great gallantry, when the casualties were very heavy, in voluntarily assisting to bring in many more wounded men throughout the day, and attending to them with the greatest devotion to duty, regardless of personal risk.

The Jewish cause continues to win supporters in all parts of Russia. At last month's conference of all Russian military commercial committees, held at the capital, with M. Gutchkoff in the chair, the flower of the empire's commercial and industrial institutions participated in the deliberations. The importance of the conference can be adequately judged from the fact that the hopes of Russia for a victorious campaign are concentrated on the efforts of those commercial committees to equip the army with all its requirements. In the first place the conference, in accordance with the wishes of the Wilna and Riga merchants, recognized the necessity of allowing the Jewish factory owners, together with their employes, to move from places near the war zone to the interior provinces outside the Pale, and of permitting Jews to acquire land anywhere. Finally, Professor Yubosheff, in a stirring speech recording the fact that the Jews were fighting side by side with the Russians for a fatherland which treated them like stepchildren, proposed that the conference should express itself in favor of the abolition of all anti-Jewish restrictions. The resolution was adopted amidst loud and prolonged cheers.

Judaism and Health.

It is very easy to stigmatize traditional Judaism as a kitchen religion, or a hospital religion, with the priest a kind of physician and the rabbi a medical expert. The olden provisions of the law and its traditional interpretation secured their purpose and preserved the Jewish people. It only needs the experience of a generation or two who believe that Judaism is merely a kind of ethical sentimentalism without any demand for sacrifice, any shred of discipline or aid to self-control and purification, to strengthen appreciably one's faith in the wisdom of our ancestors, which deduced helpful lessons even from the food and health laws of Pentateuch. If these have apparently narrowed the individual freedom, they have preserved the Jew and his religion as no other provisions could ever have done.—Rev. A. S. Isaacs.

and asks for Cheney Silks, you should have them. Be prepared with the weaves and colors that fashionable women will wear this fall and winter.

include an exceptional showing of satins of many weights, widths and colors. With them, your silk department will be ready for any demand.

Cheney Failles will also be worn largely this fall. Our color range in these silks comprises 98 shades, including the very latest tones.

Needless to say, every silk counter should have its selection of Cheney Bengalines, for fall fashions make generous use of these beautiful corded silks. It would be difficult to find as complete a variety as are to be had in the Cheney line.

All these, as well as other fashionable silks, are to be seen at our showrooms. A cordial invitation to the trade is given to see them, and order.

CORRESPONDENCE.

No Charges for Remitting Funds to Europe.
Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
In order that the people who desire to send money to their needy relatives and friends in the war zones may not be put to the expense of paying for clerical services or otherwise, I desire to ask you to be good enough to give the fullest publicity to the fact that the American Jewish Relief Committee, in addition to collecting funds for the general relief of the suffering Jews in Europe and Palestine, are making transmissions to the following places, with absolutely no charge to the remitter:
To all points within Russian dominion.
To those provinces which were formerly Russian and which now are within German habitation.
To various points in Austria.
To various points in Palestine.
The request for such publicity is made to you partly because the attention of this committee has been called to the fact that here are existing agencies which are doing this work at a sliding scale of cost to the remitters, and more specifically because of the fact that we have been advised with respect particularly to Russian remittances that our paying agent, the ICA in Petrograd, has requested that we publish to all Jews in this country the statement that the ICA (the Jewish Colonization Association) will not be responsible for moneys transmitted to it through agencies other than ours.

We request that you advise your readers who are interested of the fact that this committee makes transmission to Russia:
As against the price charged in the postoffice of 52½ cents per rouble, all money deposited with the American Jewish Relief Committee for forwarding to Russia is converted into the then value of Russian money; at the present time such value is 34½ cents per rouble.
This committee makes transmission to those provinces which were formerly Russian and which are now within German habitation.
This committee makes transmission to Austria.
This committee makes transmission to Palestine.
All such service is without charge to the remitter.
I would appreciate your hearty cooperation with the efforts of this committee by publicity in your valued columns.
Yours very sincerely,
J. L. MAGNES,
Vice-Chairman Pro Tem., American Jewish Relief Committee.

An Appeal from the Holy of Holies!

What is holier than to care for the sick?
What is holier than to give bread to the starving?
And when you consider that the sick are starving! When you consider that they are starving in the Holyland; no money to buy medicine for them; no funds for food to nourish their wasted bodies! Their heart-rending cries reach us from Jerusalem—from the greatest Jewish Hospital that it glories in—The Bikur Cholim Hospital! Contagious disease must be resisted, dangerous epidemics must be averted and the trustees are struggling with their last strength to keep the doors of the hospital open! Help them that they shall not be forced to close to the afflicted, the only door of hope. Help also the great Talmud Torah "Etz Chaim" whose 950 scholars are literally starving for hunger, who stretch forth their emaciated hands to you who alone can give them relief. The war-devastated countries of Europe can give them nothing now. The income of entire Europe is cut off from them. Fortunate coreligionists of the United States, will you not pity the unfortunate?
The favorite institutions of the late Rabbi Samuel Salant, of blessed memory, were these three: 1. The Talmud Torah, 2. The Yeshuath Etz Chaim, 3. The Bikur Cholim Hospital. When you are collecting or donating money for the war-victims, bear them in mind. Help them, and the Lord will help you with a happy and prosperous New Year. These three institutions are under one

The Red Year—Red

מִדְּרָם חֲלָל וְשֵׁנִיָּה
 By Rabbi S. Fyne

A sombre, eventful year had passed: a year whose record is written in blood—a year of slaughter, privation and suffering for many nations. Yet the sufferings of none of them can at all be compared with the tribulations endured by our hapless people—the step-children of the so-called civilized humanity. We suffered the most! We are always first to suffer, the last to benefit! We, alas, have drained, during this blood-stained year, the "staggering cup" to its very dregs. As our contribution in men, to the various armies, was out of all proportion to our numbers, our losses in slain and wounded are considerably greater. Again, while all the others were fighting for lands that watched over and protected the civil relatives of their soldiers, the bulk of Jewry, alas, have fought and are still fighting for a land that butchered at home the relatives of the soldiers that shed their blood for it at the front; The enemy killed the men; the friend—the women and children! And the women whom they did not kill, they dishonored! Their goods they have plundered, their homes they have destroyed. Official Russia had given her mobile soldiery a free license to indulge themselves at the expense of the poor, helpless Jew!

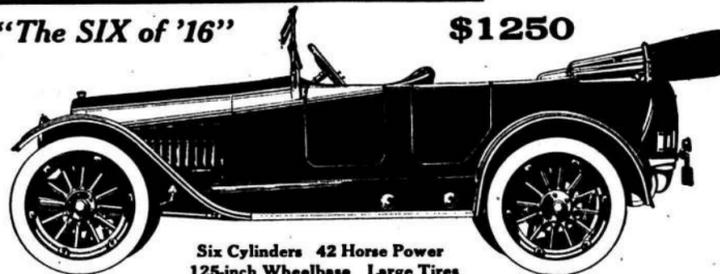

Ah, year 5675! What a calamitous year thou hast proved to the Jews of Central Europe—a year that we have to travel more than a couple of centuries back, to 5408 or 1648, to find a parallel! Calamitous in the present, calamitous in thy after-effect!

For this blood-stained year has witnessed the recrudescence of anti-Semitism all over Europe—notwithstanding all our heavy sacrifice in blood and in treasure. The revival of Jew-hatred in such liberal countries as England and France came as a surprise upon our advocates of assimilation, who were loud in asserting that the co-mingling of the blood of the Jew with that of the Gentile on the field of battle would have the immediate effect of banishing anti-Semitic feeling to the realms of the limbo even in holy (?) Russia: secure for the Jew the removal of all his disabilities and obtain for him equal rights! The harrowing accounts that come from Russia, tell, alas, a different tale! And how could it be otherwise? How could war have had any other effect?

War, we know, brutalizes not only the soldiery, but even lowers the moral standard of the countries engaged therein. Germany furnishes the proof! War has a dehumanizing effect: it uncages the brute in us, and makes us ferocious. Instead of being swayed by justice, we become propelled by brute instinct. Where the mailed fist reigns supreme, prejudice, hatred and revenge are bound to flourish under its destructive sway. Such being the case, how can war, which evokes hatred, be productive of love? Or, to pass from the subjective to the objective, how can this war, which brutalized the civilized German, humanize the savage Russian?

The mingling of the blood of the Jew and the Aryan on the field of battle is altogether inadequate to the task of cementing fellowship between them; and this war has supplied the proof. The Germans, at this day, are fighting with the Turk for the Turk—their blood is co-mingling in the Dardanelles and elsewhere. Well! Does the fanatic Musselman love the infidel German on that account? Did we not see it reported in the press how the Turks revolted against some of their German officers and put them to death?

Besides, if the co-mingling of blood could have that effect upon two distinct races, such as the Jew and the Aryan, surely it ought to produce that effect a fortiori, when the co-mingling comes from two nations of the same race. And yet we find, that the German and the Anglo-Saxon, both of the same race, both Teutonic, who fought side by side in the Napoleonic wars, have hated each other cordially ever since!

But why rake up history to supply the proof to the contrary, when we have telling evidence nearer home.

There can be no closer tie than marriage, for whose sake, in order to cleave to his wife, one is enjoined "to leave even his father and mother"; and yet intermarriages between a Jew and an Aryan ever proved a fiasco. Here on this field of battle—the battle of life, their blood actually co-mingles in their offspring—co-mingling in the most natural most perfect way, and yet it fails to unite the parents, fails to cement them in good fellowship. Now, surely, what marriage—what love fails to produce, how can war—how can hatred accomplish?

No, the co-mingling of the blood of the Jew and the Gentile in time of war will never unite them in time of peace!

O year 5675, thou hast left us a sorry legacy! left us an immense crowd of widows and orphans; an innumerable host of starving poor;

Tomorrow is the Sabbath of Repentance. 'Twere trite to say, Repent ere it be too late! Yet such is the significance of the day. Seize upon its message to the end that your name be inscribed in the Book of Life for good!

The name of Rev. I. H. Hadad, the author of the splendid poem, "The New Year and the Shofar," which appeared in our last issue, was inadvertently omitted. We take this means of giving him full credit for his excellent literary effort, which has been favorably commented upon by a number of our readers.

In Brooklyn a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Justice of the Municipal Court for one of the judicial districts of that borough points out that he is a Jew of the variety known as German, and that accordingly his nomination, if consummated, will bring to his support both Jews and Germans. We have never, from the standpoint of American citizens regardless of faiths, heard of a better reason for refusing an aspirant for political honors that which his heart so much desires.

We are glad to observe that the proposed literacy test for voters in this State was "killed" by the constitutional convention. Had such a provision been incorporated in the instrument which this body is preparing we doubt if it would have received the approval of the people in November. Many excellent words fell from various speakers who opposed the proposed test on the floor of the convention. But one of the best arguments against it was the one advanced by Senator Robert F. Wagner, late Lieutenant-Governor, a non-Jew and an immigrant himself. He pertinently asked: "But what new fear has arisen? If the literacy test was not applied to the Irish and the German why should it be applied to the Jew, the Italian or the Slav of the new immigration? Like our ancestors, they now are flying from persecution, from ignorance, from inequality; like our ancestors, they expect to find here freedom and equal opportunity. Are we going to deny to them an equal opportunity? Are we going to withhold from them the equality which our fathers enjoyed? Are we going to deprive them of the privileges guaranteed by our traditions, by our ideals and by the spirit in which and through which we have become the exponent to the world and to all time of a free republican government?"

In The Atlantic Monthly for September Agnes Repplier, who has heretofore in her writings now and then evidenced her antipathy against our people, returns to the old charge. This time she writes on "The Modest Immigrant," and declares on her own ipse dixit that the Jew owes much more to America than America owes to the Jew. This dictum need not concern us one second; it is based upon such hopelessly false premises as not to require serious argument in refutation. The provoking cause of Miss Repplier's outburst against Jews this time is the phrase used by Mary Antin in one of her numerous incursions into literature, "Lowell would have agreed with me." Were Professor Lowell alive he, the great master of American letters, would have smiled merely and good-naturedly at Mary Antin's appeal to his authority. Not so Dr. Repplier, who is, in some other respects as well, no James Russell Lowell. This much may be said, however, of Mary Antin's share in the incident: There is no doubt in our minds that Mary Antin as an apologist, or what you will, for Jews, requires to be taken both conservatively and deliberately. We have never deemed her a representative of our people from the point of view of their present day common and collective need. This is a fact which some of our synagogues and associations of a sort should have remembered ere they "star featured" Mary Antin before their members in all and any manner of rhetorical antics. From the point of view of Dr. Repplier Mary Antin is as much a Jewess today, when she deliberately lives without the walls of Judaism, as she was when she landed here an emigrant from Russia, and was glad to enjoy the hospitality of those Jewish families whom she has, with a curious and consistent lapse of memory, not remembered in "The Promised Land." Dr. Repplier transfers the errors of Mary Antin to Jewry at large and correspondingly castigates the latter. We would have Dr. Repplier's criticism apply where it belongs—first, last and all the time to Mary Antin, "the modest immigrant."

STEWED IN HIS OWN JUICE

MUCH as one would wish it, one cannot feel sorry for the predicament in which Governor Moses Alexander of Idaho found himself vis-a-vis the Jewish community of Boston, to which he latterly paid a visit. The Chief Executive of the far Western State, in attendance on the conference of Governors, was made the subject of a newspaper interview by, of all journals, the Christian Science Monitor; and the Jews of Boston were quick to resent the expressions voiced by Mr. Alexander through the medium of his repertorial interrogator. It is unnecessary that we set forth some of the views to which Mr. Alexander gave utterance; suffice it to say they were quite un-American and altogether un-Jewish.

Nor can we blame the Boston community for accepting the newspaper article in question as authentic, seeing that a public and unconditional opportunity was given Mr. Alexander to disavow it and deny the sentiments therein attributed to him. His excuse, too, that the reporter violated the confidences of a private conversation is jejune and inconsequential to say the least. The Chief Executive of a sovereign Commonwealth of the Union ought not to go about within earshot of the ubiquitous reporter and declare, if he happen to be a Jew, that his Judaism is quite sufficed in his Americanism; that he will never appoint a Jew to public office and that if his State were largely peopled and governed by Jews he would remove his habitation therefrom. Such statements are both self-condemnatory and impolitic, and smack more of the professional Jew-baiter than of one himself a Jew and apparently proud of his race and religion when the spirit so moves him, who happens to be the first citizen of his State.

We are genuinely sorry Mr. Alexander left Idaho for the East. While he remained at home we could point to him with pride, knowing him as the first Jew to be chosen as Governor in one of the United States. We could instance his membership of the Jewish congregation of his home city as proof that his connection with and interest in the ancient faith was vital, real. When, however, on his visit to these parts he utters sentiments showing him to be neither a good American nor a good Jew we can but ascribe his rash unwisdom to the circumstance that he was probably intoxicated with the adulation heaped on his head because of being the first of his kind, and sadly ponder once more on his fall. Go home, Mr. Alexander!

A LOST OPPORTUNITY

A PERUSAL of the correspondence which passed some time since between Louis D. Brandeis and Dr. Cyrus Adler, the respective leaders in the agitation for the congress or the conference to deal with Jewish affairs in the light of the European war, leaves us with the distinct impression that the American Jewish Committee permitted a splendid opportunity for a satisfactory adjustment of the differences which divide our Jewry to pass by. We have purposely refrained from printing these views until the air cleared somewhat of controversy; the present is not a partisan word by way of a contribution to the storm of tergiversation which the calling of the conference has provoked.

We proceed to explain why we regard the action of the American Jewish Committee as unfortunate. Our readers will remember that we, from the outset, favored the calling of a democratic congress, by which we mean a body recruited upon and conducting its business upon a democratic basis. We said we had no objection to the arrangements for this being placed in the hands of the American Jewish Committee, supplied with the machinery for this purpose and numbering among its members several men who are undoubtedly qualified to lead American Jewry. We had, however, a considerable objection to the committee acting as the convener and judex of the gathering. In the working the committee's plan realized our worst anticipations.

Louis D. Brandeis assumed, and with right, to represent those elements in the community which stand for the congress plan in the negotiations he conducted with Dr. Adler. His insistence on the open meeting, with the house itself the sole judge of its own elections, should have sufficed to show Dr. Adler, who is fully aware of the American law of the subject, that here was no phantasm, but a material point which Mr. Brandeis rightly advocated. Dr. Adler should then, in the interests of harmony, have fallen in with these suggestions, and Mr. Brandeis must have come to the conclusion that a compromise might produce a favorable result in the matter of, for example, the scope of the work before and the preliminary arrangements as to the meeting. But it was not so to be! Each of the negotiators persisted in his own view. Mr. Brandeis with more right because he had a popular mandate, and the result of their divergence is not yet in sight.

From the Ark Publishing Company we have received "Seminary Addresses and Other Papers" by Dr. S. Schechter, president of the Jewish Theological Seminary. This volume contains the interesting commencement addresses delivered by Dr. Schechter at the annual graduating exercises of the seminary from 1904 to 1915. They do not call for any other comment than the remark that therein one finds the conservative viewpoint of the institution abundantly set forth. The addresses deserved this permanent preservation by reason of their author's learning and pithy humor and style. The other papers in the book comprise brief obituary notices of Jewish scholars and responses to "toasts" at dinners in honor of Jewish notables. As if to accentuate the middle-of-the-road attitude of the institution over which he presides so well, we find within these covers Dr. Schechter's two tributes to Dr. Kohler, the head of the Reform Rabbinical College. We regretted to find an occasional error in proof marring a publication which is sumptuously printed and bound.

RETURNING TO GOD

שובה ישראל עד ד' אלקיך כי כשלת בעונך; קחו עמכם דברים ושובו אל ד'.

"O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity. Take with you words, and return unto the Lord."—(Hos. xiv, 2-3.)

THESE are tremendously earnest words. They seem to carry with them the awful weight of the prophet's anxiety concerning the destiny of Israel. Year by year they are addressed to us by the silent page, yet their force is as unspent as when they were first uttered. Year by year we read them anew, only to discover therein some fresh meaning or heightened emphasis. Just now it strikes us that the chief emphasis of this ringing call lies in the phrase, "unto the Lord." The phrase is repeated, as if one utterance alone could not contain the full pressure of the prophet's spirit. "Return unto the Lord!": such is his burden. All his thoughts converge toward this one idea that the return of the people should have for its avowed goal—God! They were not to return merely to certain ways of living held to be good or useful; not to certain standards of action deemed to be moral or commendable; not to certain ideals of righteousness cherished as being lofty and inspiring: they were to return to God.

They were to understand and deeply realize that in sinning they had gone astray from God; and, therefore, their return to better ways could not be made effective unless it meant first and foremost a coming back to God, a re-establishment vivid and passionate of the personal relationship between man and his Maker. Repentance does not mean merely a re-adjustment of the Life to a more or less vaguely conceived moral order, but it means a most definite re-adjustment of soul to Soul—the lesser soul to the larger, creature to Creator.

Men who look for ultimate facts rather than ulterior motives will see no difference between a return to goodness and a return to God. They may say that the two things are one and the same; or that, at any rate, the chief thing is that the ends of morality be served, no matter by what method or from what motive. Spiritual-minded men, however, will at once see the difference. First of all, perhaps, in the manner in which the return affects the repentant soul. The return to mere goodness may be accomplished in a mood altogether too complacent and easy-going: let the leaf be turned, let the slate be wiped clean, let bygones be bygones—tomorrow is another day! Plainly, such an offhand return, though serviceable in its visible effects, does not attain unto the dignity and the depth of true repentance, for it fails to stir the hidden inward parts of the man. A return to God, on the contrary, cannot fail to be of vital concern to the sensitive soul; it is bound to have a radical transforming influence upon his entire being. The one manner of return may barely touch the surface of the life; the other is as deep as the world and as real and abiding as the everlasting hills that point perennially heavenward. If it is true that we live inwardly not outwardly; if the invisible processes that shape a man's character and provide it with a subtle mechanism all its own are of the same moment as the visible processes that operate in the material universe, then the mood and motive of the Return should not be considered negligible.

We are, however, not ready to admit that the difference lies only in the invisible background of the soul and not in the visible results of moral striving. The most determined return to righteousness, attended by the finest glow of ethical passion, does not in itself involve such a crushing crisis, such a shock to the entire personality of man, as a profoundly religious return to God. A return to an idea, or even to an ideal, cannot mean as much to a man as a return to a Person. And therefore out of this overwhelming soul-crisis, wherein and whereby a man's entire being is unhinged and made to revolve around a new-found centre, there is bound to arise a more enduring passion for goodness, a readier willingness of self-sacrifice—resulting in greater and more numerous ethical achievements—than out of a change in ways of living which, though praiseworthy, leaves a man cold and essentially untouched. God and Goodness are the twin-passions of the human soul; and when together, they mutually enhance each other; but when apart, they tend to degenerate: the one into mere superstition, the other into smug respectability. Under this view, Repentance is the firmer welding together of these twin-passions of the human soul in the white-heat of genuine religious exaltation.

Let it be remembered, too, that Repentance proper—that poignant soul-experience of which the Rabbis say: "G'doloh teshuvoh shemagaas ad kisse-hakovod—great is Repentance for it alone reaches up to the Throne of Glory"—is not conceivable except as a return to God. For there is a vast difference between mere regret, or even remorse, and Repentance. The difference between regret and Repentance is as between wrong-doing and Sin. Strictly speaking, no one can commit a Sin, for to characterize any act not merely as wrongful but as sinful, means to admit that it is directed not only against Goodness, but against God. But who with a vivid sense of Sin, which implies a vivid sense of God, would do wrong? A sense of Sin is already the beginning of Repentance. He who only admits that he has done wrong may regret; but he alone who confesses that he has sinned can repent. The former recognizes only a moral order, the latter knows of a still higher spiritual order, of which morality is but a part; and which is jointly presided over by God and the human soul.

We believe that infinite nobility is lent to human existence with all its strivings and struggles, all its forces and foibles, by bringing it into right relations with an infinite Personality. It is a most stupendous feat, this reaching up of the soul to God. But if the soul reaches up to God, God reaches down to the soul. If man returns to God, God returns to man. If the Child repents, the Father forgives.

Nothing for the Jews.

The recent Russian Government order so modifying the Jewish pale as to permit the Jews to settle anywhere except in the cities of Petrograd and Moscow looks more like a concession to necessity than a reward to the Jewish people. Throngs of dwellers within the old pale are now refugees, forced out by the German occupation. Their settlement elsewhere is unavoidable, at least temporarily.

There have been no assurances, however, that the opening of Russia to the Jews is permanent. The Jewish Daily News hears, by way of London, that Friedman, the Jewish Deputy, has been distinctly told that the abatement of the pale law does not signify any action toward giving the Jews new rights, even residence rights.

In fact, Russia is still Russia. The conquering of a small corner of its territory seemingly has not affected the Russian mind. Early in the war, when Jewish brown was needed in Russian uniforms, there was much speculation as to the Jewish people's gain by Russia's loss. Interest hasn't waned, but it finds little nourishment to sustain its advance lately.

Except for losing some hundreds of thousands of men in the various armies, the Jews in Europe are precisely where they were a year ago. The right to roam in poverty from one Russian province to another during the war isn't quite in the nature of a gain, surely.—Boston (Mass.) Journal.

Jews at Arras.

It is always necessary in time of war to disprove the slander upon the Jews. It is one of the lies which never die that the Jew doesn't fight for the country that shelters him. As good and fair a man as Samuel J. Clemens made some such statement years ago, and afterward, confronted with the facts, honestly took it back.

France has not forgotten Dreyfus. The hatred which boiled over and engulfed the nation in the disgrace of having cruelly persecuted a brave and innocent man has not wholly died. French soldiers at the front have been openly taunting their Jewish comrades. "At each stop," wrote a Jewish soldier the day before he was killed, "the motive for our act was matter for suspicion, and our ardent desire to shed our blood for France was interpreted as a desire for 'la gamelle' (soldier's rations). In a few hours we shall go into battle. I know that we shall die well and that we shall die facing the enemy."

This soldier was not a conscript, as the native Frenchmen are. He belonged to the Foreign Legion, composed mainly of volunteer Russian Jews. In the first affair at Arras the legion went into action 4,000 strong and came out with 900. The Princess Patricia had hardly a greater percentage of losses in their great battle. The Jews won shouts of admiration from their commanding officers; they died among the bravest of the brave, for France. They wiped away—for the moment—the reproach which their enemies never cease to inflict upon them.—Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard.

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW

By Rev. I. H. Hadad

Hence, blackest, bloodiest, torturous Year!
O'er Israel with "ev'l eye" thou didst leer;
Born and bred and bode amidst, boiled blood,
Lands, oceans, airs and homes thou didst flood
With woes, throes, with horrid shapes, shells and shrieks;
Love, lore, life, manhood, nay, God too, turnst freaks;
Heartbreak, O father, mother, mate and child,
Starvation, exile withal thou doomst mild.
Be gone! Be gone! dying, decrepit year!
Let hapless Israel dry his bitter tear.

But hail, brightest, blissful Year New!
Yea, thrice hail, O Morn's Star of gaudy hue!
Come, with sweet mother's kisses and caresses,
Bring us thy bright blessing and messages.
Say "No more war, no more tears, no more curses;
Nations no more 'buse God and their purses;
And thou Heaven's child chosen and first born,
With savage Fate's teeth no more shall be torn;
But if thou wouldst win Wisdom and Heartsease
Gird thee with Love, Duty, Content, Faith and Peace."

Pepper Salad.

Remove the seed cones and chop fine three peppers, one onion and six olives. Slice three cucumbers thin and marinate in French dressing for twenty minutes, then drain and add to the chopped mixture, toss all in heavy mayonnaise made with mustard, fill pepper shells with the salad and lay on lettuce leaves, garnishing with strips of finely cut pepper and a tiny ear of pickled maze.

Peach Custard.

Yolks of three eggs, two peaches, one cup milk, quarter cup sugar, half cup cake crumbs. Put the milk on to boil, beat the yolks and sugar together and add slowly to the boiling milk. Remove from fire, and when cold put into ice cream glasses or sauce dishes, in which have been put one tablespoonful of cake crumbs, half of a crushed peach, some more cake crumbs. Made in the morning and placed in the ice box, this makes a good hot weather dish.

Tomato and Macaroni Soup.

Break a cup of egg macaroni into small pieces, cover with a quart of boiling salted water and simmer slowly for an hour. Add one cup of stewed, strained and seasoned tomatoes, cook a moment and just before serving add one cupful of cream or rich milk.

Spinach Soup.

Three lbs. spinach, 1 quart water or stock, salt and pepper to taste, 1 tablespoonful flour. Wash the spinach in several waters, strip off the leaves and place them in a saucepan of cold water with a little salt, and boil till tender (about 1/2 hour). Pulp through a hair sieve with the water in which it was boiled; boil it up again in a clean stewpan, thicken carefully with the flour, cook for 10 minutes and serve with poached eggs.

Broiled Salt Mackerel.

Take the fish from the brine and wash it thoroughly. Put to soak over night in cold water, taking care to soak it with the skin side down. About ten minutes before breakfast, drain from water, pat dry on a clean cloth and wipe over both sides with olive oil, roll under the gas flame, attending to the flesh side of the fish first, as the skin side scorches easily and needs but a moment or two to brown. Put on to a heated platter, pepper lightly, garnish with a little parsley and cut lemon.

Chili Sauce.

Peel and chop one pack of ripe tomatoes; boil until thick and not juicy. Add one pint of chopped onions, one-half dozen large peppers, chopped fine. Let this boil for half an hour and then add half a cup of salt, one pint of vinegar, a tablespoonful of cinnamon; two tablespoonfuls of whole mustard seed.

Cheese Delicacies.

Cottage cheese salad makes a wholesome and seasonable dish. Take one pound of cottage cheese, mix with cream, salt and pepper; arrange on lettuce leaves.

Cut up small about six stalks of green onions and one small stalk of celery if you have any, scatter over the top of the cheese, dash with paprika. Serve on mayonnaise dressing.

Here is a recipe for mixed cheese, which is very tasty, keeps well in a cool place and is splendid for sandwiches: One-quarter pound grated cheese, yolks of two hard-boiled eggs, creamed with one dessertspoon butter, one-half teaspoon each of salt, mustard and pepper; then add sufficient vinegar to make a creamy mixture. Mix well.

Summer Fudge.

Cut one-half pound dipping chocolate in pieces, set saucepan in larger saucepan of boiling water, and let stand until melted. Beat two eggs until thick and add one cupful of powdered sugar gradually, while beating constantly. Add to melted chocolate, and when well blended add one teaspoonful of vanilla, a few grains of salt, two-thirds cupful of English walnut meats, broken in pieces, and one-third cupful glazed cherries cut in pieces. Turn into a buttered pan and let stand to set. Cut in cubes and pile on a dish.—Home Companion.

When engaged on delicate needle work a good plan is to have a little flour in a saucer by you and to dip your fingers in it from time to time. This will not only keep the hands dry but the work beautifully clean.

A white satin dress, when put away, should be pinned in blue tissue paper, with brown paper outside sewn together at the edges.

"Water forms 60 per cent. of the weight of the body of the average man," says Dr. Edward S. Hodgskin, the noted food expert, in a recent issue of the International Culinary Magazine. Continuing, Dr. Hodgskin says:

"It is a component part of all his tissues.

"A man in health digests his food completely. If for any reason his digestion is not complete he becomes sick.

"This condition may show itself in many ways. The one about which we are most interested is the condition known as uric acid. This is the result of incomplete chemical changes in the body leaving by-products in the shape of insoluble minute crystals.

"These circulating in the fluids of the body locate themselves in joints or muscles and give rise to those symptoms which the ordinary person calls rheumatism or uric acid.

"The treatment for such a condition almost suggests itself. It is plain that if these irritating particles are to be removed they must be rendered soluble and then washed out of the tissues.

"The only medium which accomplishes this is water, but it must be more than plain water, it must contain elements which render the solution of these crystals more complete than just water.

"In this group are the so-called lithia waters. The secrets of nature are unfathomable. The addition of large amounts of lithia to ordinary water does not give the same specific effect as those waters which contain very much less lithia in natural solution. No one knows why this is so.

"In the Virginia-Etna water the percentage of lithia, while higher than in most lithia waters, gives a positive effect out of proportion to the amount of lithia which it contains.

"The Virginia-Etna springs are in the most beautiful Shenandoah Valley of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Their valuable qualities have been known since the earliest days of America, and were imparted to the first settlers by the friendly Indians.

"Its use is recommended most heartily by the writer and freely used will help to ward off many of those distressing symptoms which are the accompaniment of middle life."

No Animal Matter in Educator Wafers All-Food Crackers Without Shortening

Educator Crackers contain the full food value of the grains from which they are made.

EDUCATOR WAFERS are a deliciously crisp combination of Educator Entire Wheat Flour and Pure Spring Water, baked just hard enough to require mastication, which brings out the real sweet flavor of the wheat.

Dr. William L. Johnson was in practice 42 years and saw the evil effects of white flour and soft foods. That is why he originated Educator Crackers, made them from Entire Wheat Flour and baked them just hard enough to compel the use of the teeth.

Use Educator Wafers in place of bread—they make everything else taste better and make you want to eat.

Sold by most dealers in 10c. packages, 25c. and 45c. tins and by the pound. If your grocer can't supply you send us his name and address.

REFLECTIONS OF A PRAYER.

By Arthur A. Dembitz.

The special fast has passed, whereby a hundred or more of our rabbis in convention assembled thought meet and proper to signalize the sadness of the conditions resultant from the war. Those who fasted will feel that it was a historic occasion; in times to come they will have something to remember—"we fasted and prayed that the Almighty might come to our assistance and bring peace to mankind—answer, O Lord, answer us 'seek ye the Lord while He is nigh' and that as when Moses supplicated 'the Lord might repent him of the evil he had spoken to do to his people since they had purified their hearts—therefore He would, according to his promise, make us better and more numerous than our fathers, for were not our efforts in that direction.' For a long time I had been contemplating the expression in brief of a few thoughts on prayer. Prayer, even according to those who question "What can our petition do in influencing the Divine Ruler?" is effective in that it puts into concrete or palpable form our own aspirations and desires, and is a precious boon in that it forms an outlet for the sentiments and feelings that surge in the human heart and breast.

The question which we may ask, then, regarding persons, families, communities, nations, is "What petitions do they send up to Him from whom all blessings flow? Wherein do they wish to be blessed or to receive Divine assistance?" This question may even include in its scope the whole generation—as one human family, particularly when peace prevails and all feel bound by certain common interests and the knowledge that in this age no nation is absolutely unaffected by what takes place in distant countries. But ever and anon comes this question to individuals, for the desire of the individual cannot be ignored, even though his ambitions be of the loftiest kind, particularly for service to locality, State, nation, humanity, the question comes: Which should be uppermost: one's own life and soul-development or the fate and existence of thousands and millions of fellow-creatures? A time like the present tries men's souls, and many are found not wanting in the nobler elements. Now many an individual who would at other times say in the language of the Talmud: "My blood is as red as that of any one of my neighbors" or "Who knows but that my soul weighs as much in the mind of God as the soul of him who is accounted great among men." Many an individual soul thinks different thoughts. At a time like this the individual refrains or is inwardly estopped from praying for his own needs, for his own happiness, forgetting for the moment that one thing, that one consummation with which he believes his happiness and soul-completion are inextricably linked—then will he speak with His maker as follows:

"O Lord, I dare not open my lips to speak my desire as regard my own well-being, when I see multitudes suffering from the ravages of war which can never be humane, how much we may flatter ourselves that there is such a thing as civilized warfare, and from famine and plague, which kill off many times the number of those who die by sword and shot. What am I, though I doubt not Thy power of which so many evidences are extant and existent—what am I in contemplation of all the ravages and of the sufferings of many, among others, whose deserts and merits far exceed mine, that Thou shouldst be mindful of me, whether it be in giving strength to achieve or counsel to obtain or it be in putting by one act wealth or opportunity within my reach! All I can pray of Thee, Father of Mercy, at this moment of dire distress and woful anguish, Thou knowest: give peace on earth, and then if Thou hast aught of work for Thy servant to do, give him the strength and the means to do it in love and fear of Thee. Amen."

In contemplating that heart culture which embraces the welfare of nations—in their peace shall be your peace—we can readily appreciate the sincerity of those men who compiled the prayers that on New Year's Day and Atonement are to precede the repetition of the Amidah, the prayer in which the Hazan or other representative of the congregation prays for himself and his colleagues throughout the world: "Make them understand what they should say." Let us know how we should phrase our petition, yea, in our melody let us not be put to shame or confused, let our hearts being directed to Thee in behalf of Thy people not lose courage in praying, though humility becometh man—this the Ba'al Tefilla's petition. Enable me to pray, O Thou who hearest prayer—how strange at first sight, and yet to one familiar with the human heart, one who possesses in any measure, heart—how touching and how affecting: Habnem ma sheyomeru, yadd'em ma sheyishahu. Instruct them what they shall say, inform them what they should ask. Then grant all our desires for good. Amen."

SULZBERGER, FERDINAND.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and Independent, to Nathan Grabenheimer and executor and Stella L. Sulzberger, Simon Sulzberger, Nathan Sulzberger, Tillie Weinberg, Bella Schrag, Lilly Rothschild, German F. Sulzberger, Arthur Sulzberger, Marlon Sulzberger, Sheridan Sulzberger, Karl Fulton Sulzberger, Dulcie Sulzberger, the heirs and next of kin of Ferdinand Sulzberger, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, Max J. Sulzberger, who resides at Sherry's, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, the City of New York, has lately applied to the Surrogate's Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, bearing date March 7, 1913, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Ferdinand Sulzberger, who was at the time of his death a resident of the County of New York, deceased. Therefore you and each of you are cited to show cause before the Surrogate's Court of our County of New York, at the Hall of Records, in the County of New York, on the 1st day of October, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day why the said will and testament should not be admitted to probate as a will of real and personal property. In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Honorable Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County, Surrogate's Court, the 19th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen.

DANIEL J. DOWDNEY, Clerk of the Surrogate's Court. STROOCK & STROOCK, Attorneys for Petitioner, 30 Broad Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

ROTHFELD, SOLOMON.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and Independent, to Bettie Rothfeld, Benjamin Oppenheimer, Selma Hirschmann, Cacille Schubart, Hedwig Stern, Karl Oppenheimer, Bernhard Hirschmann, Paul Hirschmann, Elisabeth Hirschmann, Herbert Schubart, Edith Triest, Alfred Stern, Walther Stern, Alfred Rothfeld, Florette Steindler, Milton F. Steindler, Laurence Rothfeld, Tracy Rothfeld, John Steindler, Winifred B. Rothfeld, George Oppenheimer, Elizabeth Oppenheimer, George Oppenheimer, Jr., George Oppenheimer and Robert B. Rothfeld, as executors of the will of Elsie Oppenheimer, deceased, send greeting: Upon the petition of Julius Oppenheimer, John Frankenhelmer, Hyman Sonn and Robert B. Rothfeld, who reside, respectively, at No. 155 Riverside Drive, No. 139 West Eighty-first Street, No. 40 West Eighty-sixth Street and No. 251 West Ninety-second Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, you and each of you are hereby cited to show cause before our Surrogate of the County of New York, at the Hall of Records in the County of New York on the 28th day of September, 1915, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the account of the proceedings of said Julius Oppenheimer, John Frankenhelmer, Hyman Sonn and Robert B. Rothfeld, as trustees under the last will and testament of Solomon Rothfeld, deceased, late of the County of New York, should not be judicially settled. In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Honorable Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County, at [L. S.] the County of New York, the 25th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen. DANIEL J. DOWDNEY, Clerk of the Surrogate's Court.

American Jewish Committee Takes Over Falasha Work.

Dr. Jacques Faitlovitch, who has been in the United States for the past eight months for the purpose of enlisting the aid of American Jews on behalf of the Falashas, the Jews of Abyssinia, has departed for Italy on his way to Abyssinia. In view of existing conditions, which make it difficult for the central office of the International Pro-Falasha Committee at Frankfort to actively direct the work in other countries than Germany, the American Jewish Committee, at the request of Dr. Faitlovitch, has temporarily taken over the supervision of the Falasha work. The committee will collect the annual contributions pledged to Dr. Faitlovitch, will endeavor to keep in communication with him, and will from time to time make public his reports of the progress of his work. During his stay in the United States, Dr. Faitlovitch secured $5,000 from the American Jewish Committee, $1,000 from the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, and $5,000 in miscellaneous contributions from lectures, individuals, etc. Dr. Faitlovitch will endeavor to resume the educational work which he has been carrying on among these Jews for the past four years.

Young Women's Hebrew Association.

Owing to the holy days, the late Friday evening service will be discontinued throughout the remainder of the month of September. An early service will be held, however, each Friday evening at sunset. In addition to the services on the holy days, there will be a service on Shabbath Shuvah. Examinations for entrance to the Day Commercial School will take place on Monday morning, September 13, and class work will begin on Wednesday morning, September 15. All school graduates who are interested are urged to register at once.

At this time of the year there is no more seasonable or appreciated gift than a Krakauer Piano. This well-known make of instrument has been made by three generations of the Krakauer family, and for beauty of tone it is unsurpassed. The Krakauer piano is a favorite instrument with professionals, and their judgment in this matter is an excellent guide. The warerooms are conveniently located at No. 17 East Fourteenth Street, where the intending purchaser will find a wide range of styles to suit his taste and prices which are consistently low when the high quality of the instrument is considered.—Adv.

Activities of the United Synagogue of America.

(Communicated.)

The work of the United Synagogue of America during the summer months included the successful convention that was held at Arverne on July 12 and the 13th ult., of which the full report will soon be published throughout the country. As in the past, these reports will contain considerable amount of interesting matter concerning the principles for which the United Synagogue stands and the work that has been done throughout the country to further them.

Following the convention itself, a meeting of the newly constituted Executive Council was held at Wave Crest Manor, Edgemere, L. I., on August 15. The officers elected by the council are as follows: Treasurer, Mr. Meyer Goodfriend, of New York; vice presidents, Professors Louis Ginsberg and M. M. Kaplan and Dr. Elias L. Solomon, of New York, and Dr. C. H. Kauer, of Denver, Colo.; corresponding secretary, Rabbi Jacob Kohn, of New York.

A new Standing Committee on the Publication was elected in accordance with the resolution passed at the last convention to supervise all publications of the organization. The committee consists of the officers and the chairman of the Standing Committee.

The Committee on Sabbath Observance and that on the Observance of the Dietary Laws were merged under the title the Committee on Religious Observance.

In response to the communication from the Chief Rabbi of England, Dr. Joseph H. Hertz, a committee was appointed to make suggestions for improvements in the next edition of the authorized (Singer's) Prayer-book and to prepare a prayer for the government suitable for this country. The committee consists of Professor S. Schechter, Dr. E. L. Solomon and Rabbi Jacob Kohn.

The application for the membership of the Congregation Derech Eموah, of Arverne, was favorably acted upon.

Mr. M. David Hoffman was selected to act as assistant to the president in Philadelphia.

The work of the United Synagogue throughout the country has consisted in building up new congregations and strengthening those already in existence, providing them with speakers, aiding them in the selection of rabbis, and stimulating them to a larger activity. In Asbury Park, N. J., a new movement has been started for the conduct of religious services, at which Rabbi Charles I. Hoffman officiated on July 31 and Mr. Jacob Gittleman has been appointed for subsequent Sabbaths and holidays.

Rabbi Samuel M. Cohen has visited the communities of Toledo, Ohio; Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis. The Duluth congregation determined to join the United Synagogue. The other congregations were greatly interested in his message, and the results of his visit will be shown in their future call to English-speaking rabbis.

In Portland, Me., an important movement has culminated in the formation of the congregation that has issued a call to Rabbi Max Hoffman to officiate for the coming holidays, with the likelihood of a permanent engagement. A number of calls have been issued to seminary students to occupy positions throughout the country to officiate over the holidays.

Talmudical Institute of Harlem. The Talmudical Institute of Harlem, 56 West 114th street, this summer again takes the pleasure of chronicling that its friends have not forgotten it. While everyone was on pleasure bent at seashore and mountain, seemingly oblivious of the communal needs of a great city, there were those whose heart was centred upon the needs of the sacred institution wherein about one hundred children obtain their entire education as sincere Israelites and patriotic Americans. Mrs. J. Richman, the president of the Ladies' Society of the Talmudical Institute of Harlem, has, through a raffle which she had arranged at Sharon Springs, where she had spent the summer, enriched the funds of the Institute to the amount of fifty dollars. In this she was assisted by Mrs. Rosen, a daughter of the vice-president of the institution.

Mr. Philip Freeman, a faithful supporter of the Institute, who materially assists it by bringing a donation from one of his friends every summer, this time also has bought a donation of $25 from the Nov Manufacturing Company. Such constitute the true friends of a society, who do not allow their pleasure to make them oblivious of their duty by doing all they possibly can for its support.

They have the sincere thanks and best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year of the Talmudical Institute of Harlem.

The Mikveh Baths.

The Department of Health of New York city has for more than a year been interested in the sanitation of the Mikvehs. Through the medium of the Kehillah the Vaad Horabbonim became interested in the problem and stimulated the formation of the Mikveh Owners' Association. After a number of conferences extending over several months, and through the energetic efforts of Dr. W. A. Manheimer, of the Department of Bacteriology of Columbia University, plans for the sanitation of Mikvehs satisfactory to the Department of Health, the Vaad Horabbonim and the Mikveh Owners' Association have been completed and carried out. As a consequence of the operation of these plans the Mikvehs, while retaining their thoroughly Jewish ritualistic character, are much more sanitary and safer than before. The method of rendering the Mikvehs sanitary and safe is very simple and inexpensive.

At the recommendation of the Board of Rabbis the Mikveh Owners' Association adopted the rules requiring all members to comply with the following:

1. Each pool to be emptied after every fifteen baths and at night.
2. The bath to be disinfected by adding two ounces of chloride of lime for every 1,800 gallons of water every three hours the bath is in use.

Rules Nos. 1 and 2 are to comply with the Department of Health's regulation, which requires that "all pools, plunges and mikvehs shall be emptied daily, and the bottom and side walls of same thoroughly scrubbed before refilling. The water of the pools, plunges and mikvehs shall be maintained in a condition suitable for bathing purposes at all times."

3. Bathers to be required to take preliminary soap baths.
4. Towels to be sterilized after use.
5. No waste water to be allowed to drain into pool.
6. Clean and adequate accommodations to be provided, and no one to be allowed to commit a nuisance in a pool.
7. Walls of room to be rendered impervious to water (by white enamel paint or otherwise) to at least six feet above the floor level.
8. Bathers to be safeguarded from danger of fire.

Observance of Rules 3 to 8 is required in all public baths by the Department of Health.

Further, in order to explain and enforce these rules, an inspector of the association has been detailed to make regular inspections, at which he takes samples of the pool water for examination and reports as to observance of the rules given above. Besides this inspection the establishments will be visited in common with other bathing establishments by inspectors from the Department of Health.

As no civic undertaking can be successful without the co-operation of the public, all owners of Mikveh baths are urged to join the association and all users of these pools, for their own protection, are requested to aid in the enforcement of the rules given in the foregoing.

For this efficient and simple solution of a problem the Jewish public owes a debt of gratitude to the Vaad Horabbonim and the Mikveh Owners' Association.—Board of Health Weekly Bulletin.

There is no perseverance without patience. The man who must see results or who else will not work is sure not to accomplish the most that is possible for him in life. The spirit of persistency that can keep plugging when nothing seems to move is the spirit that at length inherits the promises. The battle is not to the strong, nor the race to the swift, but the persistent win out in the long run. Many lose out because they let up just a little before the dawn of victory. If they had patience to endure, they would soon have the joy of achievement.

while, prior to preparing herself for the first dip in the ocean that season. Mrs. Rosenthal, dressed in the most approved bathing costume, made her appearance on the beach. The costume could well stand comparison with any that could be seen: the circle in which she moved at home guaranteed that. So that it was with a certain sense of pride that she looked at it and then looked at others around her. But several repetitions of this operation led to another consideration. The women around her seemed remarkably thin. Or was it—was it that she was abnormally stout? And yet in her own set she never stood out so conspicuously.

Now having made this discovery, Mrs. Rosenthal began to feel a little uncomfortable. She even imagined that the eyes of some people around her were fixed upon her. The Long Branch feeling of I-am-as-good-as-you-and-a-little-bit-better gave place to a vague fear of inferiority. This merely resulted in added clumsiness to her movements.

The sea was rough, and no small strength was required to hold on to the ropes. A viciously-inclined wave knocked poor Mrs. Rosenthal completely over, and she badly hurt her ankle. A tall, light-haired youth, with the symmetry of an Apollo, rushed up to offer his services. He helped her to dry land, fixed up the bruised part in a rough-and-ready way, and offered to escort her home. A small crowd of curious ones gathered around. Little Billy, who was never known to be a respecter of persons, turned to Pa, and said in a voice that could be heard by all: "Oh, Pa! look! ain't that lady got fat feet!" Billy got his ears boxed on the spot, but that didn't prevent giggling all around, nor did it add to Mrs. Rosenthal's composure.

Hester limped home—she had politely but firmly refused the escort of Apollo—repaired to her little room, and reflected on this auspicious beginning of her stay in Massachusetts.

At supper time she again had occasion to admire the cleanliness and the service, and again to experience the same difficulty in digesting what was served.

She went into the reception-room and wrote home her first letter. "I am having a perfectly glorious time." So ran one sentence. The rest was merely an amplification of this central theme.

Mrs. Rosenthal retired to her room and reflected, among other things, that she had been there the greater part of the day, and had not met a single person—aside from Apollo.

All this happened on a Monday. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were merely repetitions of Monday—except that the Apollo scene was wanting. There was the same dainty service, the same difficulties in digestion, the same consciousness of inferiority and consequent awkwardness; and, beyond the usual interchange with waiter, chambermaid and clerk, not a soul to talk to! The optimism of the first day still showed itself—in the letters to New York; but Mrs. Rosenthal began to think that this was not quite the ideal resort for her. And so this is how Hester greeted her Abraham on Friday afternoon, when that good man came to join his beloved spouse and had anxiously inquired how she fared.

"Fine! I'm having a perfectly glorious time!" Abraham was delighted.
"Only," she continued, "I'm afraid the climate does not suit my constitution."

Baron Rosen in Plea for Jewish Rights.

Baron Rosen, formerly Russian Ambassador to the United States, speaking before the Council of the Empire at Petrograd last week, said that it was the duty of the Legislature to take the initiative in introducing bills abrogating all legislation restricting the rights of Jews and the law concerning Finland. It was time, he said, for the government to break with the traditional policy so dear to militant nationalism. The passage of the measures advocated by Baron Rosen would undoubtedly alleviate the onerous task of the government in the domain of international relations, and would be received with satisfaction by Russia's allies. "The great European conflict," Baron Rosen said, "is not only a conflict of interests, but a conflict of ideas and principles. In this conflict against the trampling down of all rights by German militarism and against the attempt on liberty and independence Russia stands on the side of right and liberty. For the triumph of the ideas for which we are fighting, for it is necessary that in Russia itself there should no longer be injustices or oppressions."

A Good Story.

The German Jewish papers have been publishing this amusing story: A German mattress-maker, a young Jew, while in the United States received the order to join the colors. He thereupon managed to obtain a Finnish passport and arranged to work out his passage on a Norwegian boat. When the boat came to be searched by the English naval officers they suspected the young man and asked him questions in German. "No understand—Finnish!" he answered, in broken English. He was then requested to say something in Finnish. Mah nish-tano halayeloh hazeh mikol haleyelos. he rolled off volubly. The officer being satisfied, the man was allowed to continue his voyage to Norway, whence he made his way to Germany.

The Function of Religion.

The field of religion is in the hearts of the people, the hidden goodness there, the yearnings and longings of the silent night watches, the sense of duty, of self sacrifice, the faith of tear-blinded eyes, the faith of strong, clear-eyed men; these are the fertile soil all her own. The philosopher may speak in enthusiastic verbosity and with fascinating vagueness and with delightful ambiguity about the absolute—but you cannot love an abstract absolute. He, too, must seek elsewhere expression for the deeper yearning. The artistic genius whose mind's eye realizes through a facile hand some psychic vision, must bow down in adoration before this great gift of his that even he cannot understand. The musician, through whose soul there surge the mighty symphonies, he, too, must close his eyes in prayer before that miracle which makes of two notes, as Browning says, "not a third, but a star." The mind of the scientist may soar into the limitless depths of the firmament, may pull into vision from out the distant oblivion stars and worlds undreamed; and yet—yet there is the mystery of the first germ of protoplasmic life! Religion is this other craving of the personality which seeks some completeness in life. In this field religion has something that nothing can take away from it; an office and function peculiarly its own. Here man comes, not as scientist, philosopher, not as musician, lawyer, merchant or laborer; but as man; as a soul; wanting to give expression to that part of him which is seeking a mood of uplift, inspiration for tomorrow's sun, with its round of duties and cares.—Rabbi Morris S. Lazeron, Baltimore, Md.

"Young America," the new play at the Astor, has registered one of the biggest hits Broadway has known in years. "Young America" tells a story about boys and grown-ups, in the course of which laughter and pathos is so admirably mixed that the audience is kept in a constant state of good humor, tempered with tears, throughout the three acts, in which the author, Fred Ballard, has written this comedy masterpiece.

Cohan and Harris have scored another triumph with "The House of Glass," the new drama by Max Machin that began its run at the Candler Theatre last week. "The House of Glass" is a powerfully constructed play of New York life. It is most unusual in dramatic construction, in that it grips with an intensity that refuses to be shaken off, holding the audiences spellbound from beginning to end. "The House of Glass" is destined for a long stay at the Candler Theatre.

At the Standard Theatre, Broadway at Ninetieth street, the attraction for the week beginning Monday night will be Selwyn & Co.'s substantial success, "Twin Beds," a farcical comedy by Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo, which played for fifty-two consecutive weeks at the Fulton and Harris Theatres last season. The story of the play has to do with the misadventures of a newly married couple in a New York apartment house. They have made acquaintances, if not friends, of two other couples residing in the same house, and the complications arise over the fact that the apartments are nearly all alike.

For its second week as a neighborhood playhouse, the York Theatre, on 116th street near Lenox avenue, will have as its attraction, beginning Monday night, H. H. Frazee's farcical success, "A Full House," which recently had a profitable run at the Longacre Theatre. Practically the entire original cast will be seen in the play. The company will include Herbert Corthell, May Vokes, Maude Turner Gordon, Edgar Norton, Hugh Cameron, Bernice Buck and many others. Matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

"The Yellow Ticket," A. H. Woods' production of Michael Morton's drama of Russian life, will be the week's attraction at the Lexington Theatre, Fifty-first street and Lexington avenue, beginning Monday night, with matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The title of the play is derived from the color of the passport which accords protection to social outcasts in Russia, it being understood that the holder is responsible to the Russian secret police.

TANNENBAUM, LIPPMAN.—In pursuance of an order of Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of the County of New York, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against Lippmann Tannenbaum, late of the County of New York, deceased, to present the same, with vouchers thereof, to the subscriber, at her place of transacting business, at the office of Leo Oppenheimer, her attorney, No. 60 Wall Street, in the City of New York, on or before the fifth day of March next.

BROOKLYN NOTES.

Death of Ernest Nathan. Ernest Nathan, for many years president of Temple Beth Elohim (Keap street), and a prominent figure in local Republican political circles, died suddenly last Friday night at his home, 1421 Dean street. Death was due to heart disease. Mr. Nathan, who was in his 74th year, was a native of Prussia and came to this country at the age of 10. After receiving a common school education he entered his father's business, later establishing himself as a cigar manufacturer. Early in life he developed a keen interest in politics that prompted him in later years to take an active part in Republican party affairs, and to rise from the leadership of a district to the leadership of his party in Brooklyn. The only elective office held by Mr. Nathan was that of a Supervisor. He served two terms from 1876 to 1880. Later he was appointed an internal revenue collector and held the position for a number of years. He was noted for his activity in Jewish charities. He was president of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum for eleven years and was also at one time president of the Jewish Federation of Charities. The funeral took place from Temple Beth Elohim on Sunday afternoon, and the interment was in Maimonides Cemetery.

Girls Portray Biblical Characters. More than 1,000 Jewish girls gathered in Prospect Park last Tuesday afternoon, and for more than three hours delighted a large crowd with portrayals of Biblical characters in Jewish history. Preceded by music and dancing, Israel entered in the first tableau. Another scene showed the banishment of the Jew to Babylon. Other tableaux represented the period of Jewish domination by the Romans, the monks and Arabs, and the Jew in exile. The final tableau represented the present-day Jew in his varied characteristics and believing in a great Jewish nationality to be established in Palestine. The performance was concluded with the unfurling of a Zionist flag.

Governor Alexander in Brooklyn. A dinner was tendered to Governor and Mrs. Moses Alexander of Idaho at the Unity Club last Friday night. Besides the guests of honor there were present Rabbi and Mrs. Max Raisin, Mr. and Mrs. Max Reiss, Mr. and Mrs. John Bogert, Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Kahn, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Baruch. After the dinner the Governor delivered an address at Temple Shaari Zedek, Putnam avenue, which was filled to the doors.

New Hospital to Open. The formal opening of the New Zion Hospital, located at No. 1550 Fifty-second street, Brooklyn, will take place next Sunday afternoon, on September 12, beginning at 3 o'clock. There will be interesting ceremonies to commemorate the event and all are welcome.

Reducing prices has stimulated attendance at the Montauk Theatre, but there will be no reduction in the standard of the shows for the current season as is evidenced by next week's attraction, "Potash and Perlmutter." Able and Mawress and their tribe were here last year, and their popularity has not been dimmed by age as they are just as humorous and quaint as ever and their readiness to risk their all, rather than see their bookkeeper fall into the clutches of an autocratic government, touches the heartstrings. The original company and production will be at the Montauk, and the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given.

The reigning sensation of burlesque, in Miss Winifrede La France, is with the American Belles at the Star Theatre next week, and her travels in foreign climes enable her to give to the public one of the most versatile acts in vaudeville. She has a highly cultivated voice, sings her songs with ease, and impersonates many local celebrities. She has an imposing figure to help her in her many poses of artistic tableaux. The special added feature will be Zallah, in a series of new classic dances.

Roumanians Dedicate New Home. The Home for Convalescents recently established by the Federation of Roumanian Jews of America at Grand-View-on-the-Hudson, two miles south of Nyack, was formally dedicated last Monday. The home has accommodations for 200, and it is expected that 4,000 patients will receive treatment each year. Among those who participated in the dedication ceremonies were Dr. Julius Weiss, who donated a finely equipped surgical ward; Rev. Dr. Bernard Drachman, Hon. Leon Sanders, Judge Aaron Levy and Isaac Abramson.

SINSHEIMER, JOSEPH.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God, free and independent, to Freda Lowenthal, Alice Israel, Bernard Wolf, Lucille Wolf, Rosalind Sinsheimer, Jeannette Sinsheimer, Meyer Sinsheimer, if living, and if dead, Agnes Sinsheimer, his widow; Rosalie Sinsheimer and the other heirs at law and next of kin of said Meyer Sinsheimer, whose names are unknown, the heirs and next of kin of Joseph Sinsheimer, deceased, send greeting: Whereas, Benjamin J. Well, who resides at No. 21 East Eighty-second street, Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, has lately applied to the Surrogate's Court of our County of New York, to have a certain instrument in writing, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Joseph Sinsheimer, who was at the time of his death a resident of the County of New York, deceased. Therefore you and each of you are cited to show cause before the Surrogate's Court of our County of New York, at the Hall of Records, in the County of New York, on the 13th day of October, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the said will and testament should not be admitted to probate as a will of real and personal property. In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Honorable Robert Ludlow Fowler, [Seal of a Surrogate of our said County Surrogate's of New York, at said county, Court.] the 3d day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen. DANIEL J. DOWDNEY, Clerk of the Surrogate's Court.

ROSENBERGER, MAX.—In pursuance of an order of Honorable Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of the County of New York, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against Max Rosenberger, late of the County of New York, deceased, to present the same with vouchers thereof to the subscribers, at their place of transacting business, at the office of M. THE TEN DAYS OF PENITENCE

Dear Children:

Young as you are, you, too, can yet understand that the ten days that are so solemnly ushered in on Rosh Hashana, and end on Yom Kippur, are fraught with the greatest consequence for your future welfare, your destiny is in your own hands; what you have done in the past year you have done; you cannot recall it any more. You have written your deeds in the great book and the Judge Supreme has already looked at your record and, although you are innocent children, you, too, must try to rid yourselves of your childish sins and do your very best to come with nice and clean little hearts on the day when the verdict is given on Yom Kippur. Our Father in Heaven is merciful to us. His children, and forgives us on the day of Atonement for those sins of which we have been guilty towards Him, for instance, if we sometimes failed to say our prayers, and in the ten days of penitence we are sorry for it and resolve henceforth not be guilty of such a sin any more, He forgives us for it on Yom Kippur, but if we sin towards our fellow creatures, for instance, if a child has insulted his playmate, no matter how sorry he is as long as he does not go to his playmate and beg his pardon, the Lord will not forgive him on Yom Kippur, and if a person cheats the other, no matter if he fasts the entire ten days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur, he will not be forgiven, but will have to suffer for his sin as long as he did not return the amount to the person whom he cheated. These ten solemn days of reflection over the deeds of the past year should not plunge a person in despair, thinking how can I ever be forgiven for all my misdeeds? For that purpose our Merciful Father has commanded us to regale ourselves with the best food and drink on the day before Yom Kippur to show that we are confident that our repentance will be acceptable before the Almighty and our sins forgiven. Thus the Medrash tells us that once on the eve of Yom Kippur the Mayor of a certain city ordered his steward to buy him the best fish in the market; the steward went to the market and could find only one fish that was of very choice quality, he offered to buy it for a gold piece, but there was a Jewish tailor there who offered two gold pieces for it, the Mayor's steward offered three gold pieces, but the tailor offered more and more until he finally bought it for five gold pieces. The steward returned empty-handed and told his master the entire story. The Mayor sent for the tailor and asked him what was his occupation. "I am a tailor," said he. "And why did you buy a fish worth one gold piece for five gold pieces, and not only that, but you bid against my steward whom I sent to buy it for me?" "Why should I not buy it and even pay ten gold pieces for it," said the tailor,

"in order to eat it on that day on which the Holy One, blessed be He, commanded us to eat and to drink thereon and to be confident that He will forgive us our sins." "If that was your object you have acted rightly," said the Mayor, and he bid him good-bye and he went away in peace. This story teaches us that any deed that one does for the sake of Heaven will not lead him into danger. This also teaches us how much our Heavenly Father has compassion upon us for having told us to fast one day in the year He bids us to eat and drink well the day before, in order that we should be better able to fast. Nevertheless, although we should rejoice that the Lord has given us one day on which our sins are forgiven, we should cleanse ourselves well from our sins before that day arrives in order that the effect of that day should be beneficial for us, just as the doctor who desires to cure his patient of a certain disease gives him such medicine as will have the effect of cleansing him well of all the poisonous matter which caused that disease in order that when the day comes on which he can apply the cure he will be prepared to benefit by the treatment, as otherwise the very remedy may hasten his death, so it is with Yom Kippur. That is the day on which the moral sickness of the soul can go no further, either it must be cured or the soul must die. Therefore these ten days of penitence is the treatment that will cleanse one's soul from the poisonous matter by the medicine of repentance. If one takes that treatment Yom Kippur will cure him and make him well, otherwise that very day is fatal to him. Therefore, before one goes to feast on the ninth of Tishri preceding the fast of the tenth of Tishri he must see that his confidence that he will be forgiven is supported by repentance and good deeds.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE
Albany, July 20, 1915.
Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the state of New York, and section two hundred and ninety-five of the Election Law, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the state of New York is to be submitted to the people for approval at the next general election in this state to be held on the second day of November, nineteen hundred and fifteen.

FRANCIS M. HUGO,
Secretary of State.
AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE
Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly proposing an amendment to section one of article two of the constitution, in relation to qualification of voters.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution, be amended to read as follows:
Section 1. Every [male] citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last thirty days a resident of the county and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he or she may offer his or her vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he or she shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that a citizen by marriage shall have been an inhabitant of the United States for five years; and provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his or her vote by reason of his or her absence from such election district, and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Senate concur), that the foregoing amendment be submitted to the people for approval at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, in accordance with the provisions of the election law.

STATE OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE
Albany, July 20, 1915.

Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the state of New York, and section two hundred and ninety-five of the Election Law, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the state of New York is to be submitted to the people for approval at the next general election in this state to be held on the second day of November, nineteen hundred and fifteen.

FRANCIS M. HUGO,
Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO
Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution, permitting the legislature to alter the rate of interest upon debts authorized pursuant to said section.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows:

§ 1. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debts shall be authorized by law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by yeas and nays, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and shall the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrevocable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provisions hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock created under such law shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law or any bill shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund, and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. The legislature may from time to time alter the rate of interest to be paid upon any state debt, which has been or may be authorized pursuant to the provisions of this section, or upon any part of such debt, provided, however, that the rate of interest shall not be altered upon any part of such debt, unless a bond or other evidence thereon, which has been, or shall be created or issued before such alteration. In case the legislature increases the rate of interest upon any such debt, or part thereof, it shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay and sufficient to pay the increased or altered interest on such debt as it falls due and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof, and shall appropriate annually to the sinking fund moneys in amount sufficient to pay such interest and pay and discharge the principal of such debt when it shall become due and payable.

In case any annual tax heretofore imposed for the payment of a debt authorized by vote of the people under the constitution will, if continued, provide for the payment of the interest on such debt as it falls due and also the payment of the principal of such debt before it becomes due, the legislature may amend the law by reducing the rate of such tax, provided that the same shall not be reduced below a sum sufficient to pay the interest on such debt as it falls due and also the principal of such debt when it becomes due.

The supreme court shall have jurisdiction to direct the comptroller or any officer of the state to impose a sufficient to comply with the provisions of this section for the protection of any sinking fund of the state.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be submitted to the people for approval at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, in accordance with the provisions of the election law.

STATE OF NEW YORK.

PROPOSITION NUMBER ONE
STATE OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE
Albany, July 20, 1915.

Pursuant to the provisions of section four of article seven of the Constitution of the state of New York, section two hundred and ninety-five of the Election Law, and section six of chapter five hundred and seventy of the laws of nineteen hundred and fifteen, notice is hereby given that chapter five hundred and seventy of the laws of nineteen hundred and fifteen, of which the following is a copy, will be submitted to the people for the purpose of voting thereon at the next general election in this state, to be held on the second day of November, nineteen hundred and fifteen.

FRANCIS M. HUGO,
Secretary of State.

AN Act making provision for issuing bonds to the amount of not to exceed twenty-seven million dollars in addition to bonds heretofore authorized by the provisions of chapter one hundred and forty-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred and three, for the improvement of the Erie canal, the Oswego canal, and the Champlain canal, and for the payment of the improvement of such act, and providing for a submission of the same to the people to be voted upon at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen.

Became a law May 10, 1915, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There shall be issued, in the manner and at the times hereinafter specified, bonds of the state in amount not exceeding twenty-seven million dollars in addition to the bonds heretofore authorized by the provisions of chapter one hundred and forty-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred and three, which bonds shall be sold by the state and the proceeds thereof paid into the state treasury, and, except as hereinafter provided, no such bonds shall be necessary for the purpose of such act, and the proceeds of the Erie canal, the Oswego canal, and the Champlain canal, and for the procurement of the lands required in connection therewith, and for the payment of the improvement under such act. The said bonds when issued shall be exempt from taxation.

§ 2. The comptroller is hereby directed under the supervision of the commissioners of the canal fund to cause to be prepared the bonds of this state, to an amount not to exceed twenty-seven million dollars, the said bonds to bear interest at the rate of not to exceed four and one-half per centum per annum, which interest shall be payable semi-annually in the city of New York. Said bonds shall be issued for a term of not more than fifty years from their respective dates of issue, and shall not be sold for less than par. The comptroller is hereby charged with the duty of selling said bonds to the highest bidder after advertising for a period of twenty consecutive days, Sundays excepted, in at least two daily newspapers printed in the city of New York and one in the city of Albany. Said advertisements shall contain a provision to the effect that the comptroller in his discretion may reject any or all bids made in pursuance of said advertisements, and in the event of such rejection, the comptroller is authorized to readvertise for bids in the manner above described as many times as in his judgment may be necessary to effect a satisfactory sale. The said bonds shall be sold as the moneys may be required for the purpose of making partial or final payments on work contracted for in accordance with the provisions of this act and for other payments lawfully to be made under the provisions hereof. There is hereby imposed a direct annual tax to pay and sufficient to pay the interest on each bond issued under this act as it falls due, and to pay, and sufficient to pay and discharge the principal of each of such bonds within fifty years from the date thereof. The rate of such annual tax shall be five one-thousandths of a mill on each dollar of valuation of real and personal property in this state subject to taxation, for each and every one million dollars, or fraction thereof, in par value of said bonds issued under this act, and outstanding or to be outstanding during the fiscal year during which the amount of such tax is computed. The rate of such annual tax each year compute the amount of tax required as above specified and in making such computation shall include at the rate above mentioned, such bonds as will be required to be issued under this act during the fiscal year for which the amount of such tax is so computed. The tax imposed as herein provided, shall be assessed, levied and collected in the manner prescribed by law, and shall be paid by the several county treasurers into the treasury of the state. The proceeds of such tax shall be invested by the comptroller under the direction of the commissioners of the canal fund and, together with the interest arising therefrom shall constitute a sinking fund which is hereby created. Said fund shall be used solely for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of bonds issued in accordance with the provisions of this act. Provided, however, that in case the legislature shall set apart in any fiscal year moneys in the state treasury as a sinking fund to pay the interest on the said bonds as it falls due and to pay and discharge the principal thereof, and such moneys shall be sufficient to provide a sum equal to the amount that would otherwise have been raised, as hereinbefore provided, in such fiscal year for such sinking fund, a direct annual tax for such year shall not be imposed and collected as required by the provisions of this act.

§ 3. The provisions of chapter one hundred and forty-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred and three and of the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, so far as they relate to the appropriation of lands for canal purposes; to the routes of said canals and the manner and method of doing the work; to the preparation of maps, plans, specifications and estimates; to the payment to contractors upon engineer's estimates; to the form of contract and bonds; to the change of plans for work under contract; to the measurements, inspections and estimates by the state engineer; to the duties and authority of the canal board; to the appraisal of lands taken for canal purposes; to the retention by the state of all waters, surplus or otherwise, created or impounded as a result of canal improvements or constructions, as provided in section sixteen of said act; and all other provisions of said act and of acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, as well as the provisions of chapter one hundred and ninety-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and eight, as amended, relative to the special examiner and appraiser of canal lands, so far as they may be applicable and consistent herewith, shall apply to and govern the work authorized by this act.

§ 4. The legislature may appropriate to the cost of said improvement moneys hereafter coming from premiums on the sale of bonds of franchise the sale of abandoned canal lands, buildings or other property. In case, after the payment of the cost of said improvement, there shall remain any of such moneys unused, the remainder shall be applied to the sinking funds provided for the payment of canal bonds. All moneys realized from premiums on bonds or sale of abandoned lands, buildings or other property and all moneys realized from the sale of bonds shall be applied in the first instance to construction of the canal improvement.

§ 5. The legislature is hereby authorized to appropriate from the proceeds of the sale of said bonds such an amount as shall be necessary to reimburse the general fund of the treasury for any moneys advanced and paid out of such fund under appropriation made by the legislature of nineteen hundred and fifteen for the improvement of said canals.

§ 6. This law shall not take effect until it shall at a general election have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election; and the same shall be submitted to the people of this state at the general election to be held in November, nineteen hundred and fifteen. The ballots to be furnished for the use of voters upon the submission of this law shall be in form prescribed by the election law and the proposition or question to be submitted shall be printed thereon in substantially the following form, namely: "Shall chapter (here insert the number of this chapter) of the laws of nineteen hundred and fifteen, entitled 'An act making provision for issuing bonds to the amount of not to exceed twenty-seven million dollars in addition to bonds heretofore authorized by the provisions of chapter one hundred and forty-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred and three, for the improvement of the Erie canal, the Oswego canal and the Champlain canal, and providing for a submission of the same to the people to be voted upon at the general election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen,' be approved?"

STATE OF NEW YORK } 55:
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE }
I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole of said original law.

GIVEN under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the City of Albany, this twentieth day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifteen.

FRANCIS M. HUGO,
Secretary of State.
