OUR LADY BOUNTIFUL

A STORY—By SAMUEL ROTH

A slender, fair-smiling lane guided me through a triangular field of neatly lawned grass, at the termination of which I saw a woman, evidently a summer boarder, seated on a large gray rock with a brood of three jovial, rollicking youngsters scattered within a slight radius of her. Two were boys, the older not exceeding the age of ten, and the third was a little girl—well, one of those miracles of childhood that happen in neat little frocks, brown hair evenly cut in crown fashion, fresh pink cheeks dimpled exactly in the middle, and little smiling eyes fairer than the loveliest blue of summer sky.

The little girl reached me in just two leaps, laughed me full in the face from out of her devilish blue eyes, and just as swiftly turned about and rushed back to her mother. As I came up toward the latter I confess I was somewhat startled: a face and body of such pronounced ugliness that I wondered it was possible she could be the mother of that pretty child. It was not alone her fat face, blown out into extraordinary dimensions that disturbed my sense of delicacy. Everything about her was large and hammy. Even her lips, thick and sensual, gave me the shuddering sensation of an open flesh wound. And a nose! One would have thought it was her husband's angry fist pasted in the middle of her face!

I lifted my cap slightly, paused as her large, fleshy eyes surveyed me, and remarked: "What a pretty little girl that! Is it your own?" She opened her mouth wide, evidently with the intention of saying something, suddenly changed her mind (as though on consideration she thought it too much for one effort) and merely nodded her head. Just then the bell for dinner reached us, and she started back to the farmhouse. I followed meekly.

I had seated myself at the table firmly, had taken a piece of bread from the platter and was aiming with my knife at a little hill of herring in the center of the table when my hand encountered an obstacle which made it pause on its mission. I looked closely to see what it was

"Sir," said a harsh, guttural voice, "this is my hand!" "I—I beg your pardon," I apologized weakly, "I didn't know." But moment I was spellbound by the muscular motions of her jaws which worked like magic, grinding hugely at the substance in her mouth, rising bread or herring on the table. And the lady had lowered her knife and was regarding me with meaningful complacency. "Are you searching for the bread, sir?" she asked.

"I think I wouldn't mind some." She called the waiter by his first name and managed thus to obtain for our share a double platter of bread and herring. She fixed two pieces for herself sandwich-fashion, permitted me to do likewise, and said: "It's a funny thing in the country I can't eat a thing. Would you believe it, sir?" "No ma'am." "But it's true. I don't eat a thing. I somehow lack the appetite. I think it must be the air around here, don't you?"

"I suppose so." She buttered two more sandwiches, surrendering one to the little girl at her side who, I noticed, gave fair promise of living up to her mother in every detail of digestive fortitude.

Just then the proprietor paused at the table, smiled to every one of the boarders amiably, and addressing himself to the formidable person opposite me, "And how do you find the fare here, madam?"

She took a long pull at her nose. "Very well, sir. But what can I do? I have lost my appetite!" The proprietor sighed sympathetically. Just then the waiter passed by.

"Jack, will you bring me some chicken?"

The waiter flushed. "I—I'm really sorry, ma'am, but you've already had two pieces, and we're short of chicken today."

She hurled him a disdainful smile and turned to the proprietor. "That's how it is when you're not at home. I tell you, sir, I haven't eaten a thing and God knows how I manage to keep flesh and bones together."

The proprietor was by this time quite nervous. "Jack," he called, angrily, "why don't you give this lady something to eat?"

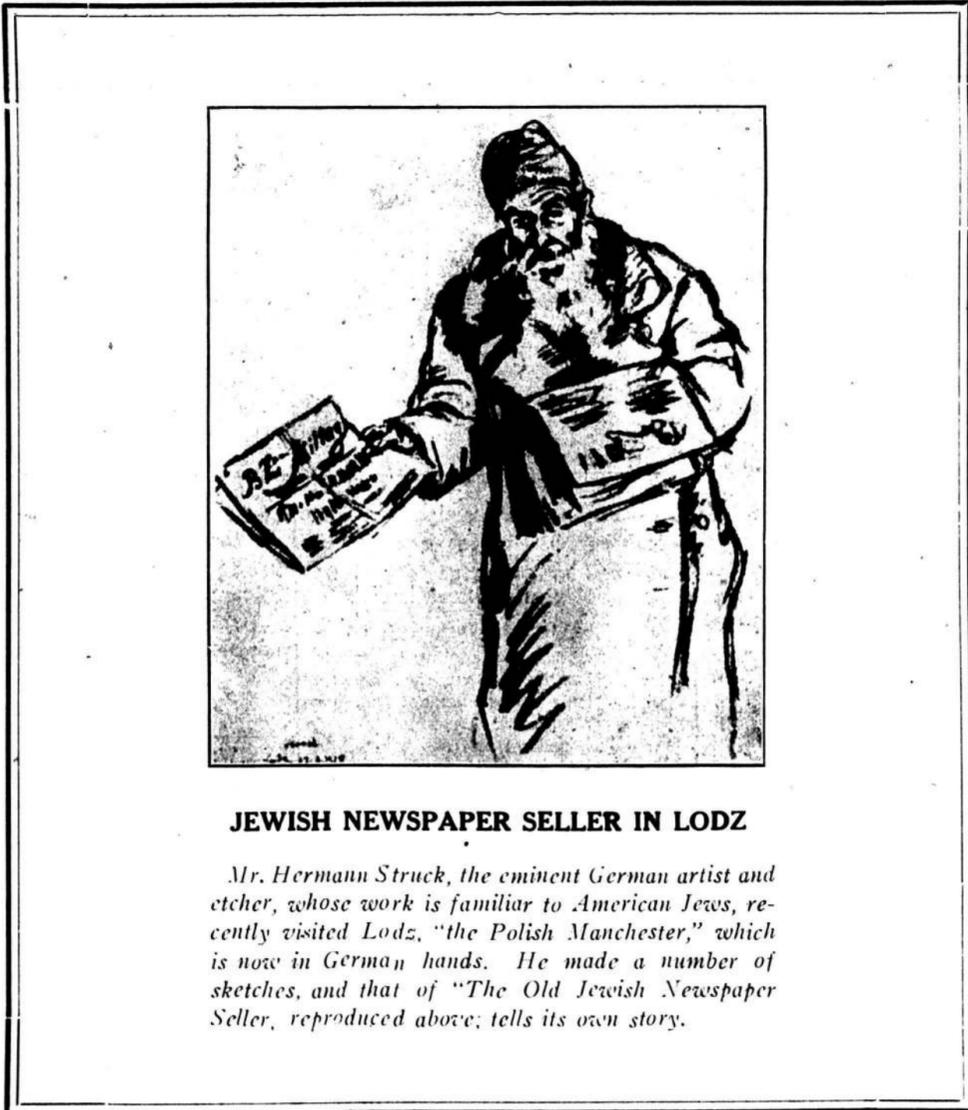

The chicken was brought. She seized it by the large bone, dug two there was no need of apology, for she paid no further attention to me. It gave me an opportunity to observe her more closely, and for a whole

JEWISH NEWSPAPER SELLER IN LODZ

Mr. Hermann Struck, the eminent German artist and etcher, whose work is familiar to American Jews, recently visited Lodz, "the Polish Manchester," which is now in German hands. He made a number of sketches, and that of "The Old Jewish Newspaper Seller, reproduced above, tells its own story.

YOU are prudence personified—positively” laughed a young leader of the “smartest set.”

“Who would ever think of getting those mannequinettes from France—just to make sure your frocks are right?”

“I, for one, leave that question entirely to Best’s. I have learned that I am perfectly safe in buying my things at their shop.

“Not just so far as correctness is concerned, but in getting the season’s styles in advance.”

More and more women of the smartest set are “leaving it all to Best’s.”

Not only in the matter of children’s clothes, now, but in buying clothes for themselves.

sheets and groaning softly but voluble groans that bore the weight of real suffering.

“What ails you, ma’am?”

“I don’t know. I think it must be that I have eaten so little these days.”

“But it can’t be. People don’t become sick of hunger. There must be something else the matter with you.”

She looked me full in the face. “I tell you it’s hunger,” she insisted.

“Well, shall I bring you something?”

“No, no; not now.”

“Well, then,” I declared, firmly, “it shall be a doctor. Quick now, Esther (that was the name of the little girl), run for the doctor.” She was an obedient little tot and ran as I directed her.

“Will you touch my shoulder?” she pleaded, when the little girl had left.

I did so.

“Don’t you think I have kidney troubles, sir?”

I expressed grave doubts.

“You don’t know,” she argued, “and therefore you can’t be expected to know. But I have been suffering of kidney troubles for many years.”

“That’s possible. But it could hardly have been in your shoulder, ma’am.”

“But how do you know where it is when I tell you that it is right there that it pains me! It’s no use. I’m afraid I shall die of it. See what it has already done to me. I was once so beautiful, you see my daughter. And now—”

I was about to offer her consolation when the doctor entered. He made a brief examination of her.

“Well?” she asked, breathlessly.

“Indigestion, ma’am. You’ve over-eaten yourself.”

She became as pale as a sheet. “And maybe you’ll say that that pain in my shoulder ain’t from kidney troubles, huh?”

The following day there were two seats empty at the table. Our Lady Bountiful, as the boarders had come to call her, had taken an early train and made her premature departure.

The Great Wanderer.

Is the Russian Jew coming to America to get a job? The truth is that he leaves a job at home and he cannot get more dignified work here. He must labor in the sweatshops and undergo the terrible limitations of the East Side, the awful poverty.

No, he does not come here for a job. He comes because he wants to better live his life, to have more spiritual freedom. It is said that the Jew comes here for employment and because of business prospects. In the last twenty odd years 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 Jews immigrated. Are they prosperous? In the city of New York there are 1,000,000 Jews, and of these 800,000 are absolutely poor, desperately, hopelessly poor, and they knew they would be poor when they emigrated.

In Cincinnati there are 15,000 poor Jews. You have never heard of any riot, any tangible protest because of poverty. They are industrious in a modest way. They do not grab for opportunities. The Jew is a willing martyr. He does not want to be rich.

Every migration of the Jew is caused by his wish for greater spiritual opportunity. None are explicable on the ground of political economy. The wandering is forced. There is no open eye for jobs or commercial advantage.—Rabbi Louis Grossmann, Cincinnati, O.

URGES NOTED JEWISH MUSICIANS TO CEASE REPUDIATING THEIR RACE.

For almost two thousand years has Israel been wandering all over the globe, being driven from one country to the other. During that time the map of the world has frequently been altered, but the Jew still remains in the paradoxical position of being a citizen of the world and yet having no country of his own. While such is the case in the Jew’s relations to the political world, it is somewhat different in his relations to the musical world. Admitting that music, although cosmopolitan in the larger sense, is divided into schools representing the different nations, the Jew has left a large and indelible mark upon the map of the musical world.

So far the Jew, although he has contributed more than his share to the world’s collective wealth of music, has rarely been bold enough to claim any part thereof as his own. On rare occasions some one takes the initiative of giving him credit for his contribution, but immediately a number of self-styled musical scholars appear on the scene and attempt in the face of all irrefutable facts to deny the existence of Jewish music. However, the Jew at last has become determined to assert himself in musical spheres and to establish his position in music among the nations of the earth. Individual and collective attempts are being made both here and in Europe to place Jewish music in the limelight and to familiarize the music-loving public with its beauty and originality.

An organization for the purpose of promoting Jewish music has been organized in Petrograd, which consists of some of the most renowned musicians in Russia. As a result of their activity they have recently published a volume of folk songs containing some songs said to be at least two, hundred years old. Another collection of Jewish folk songs and national songs was recently published by Ginsburg and Marek, in Warsaw. Dr. Idelson, of Berlin, also published a volume of Jewish folk songs and classical compositions in Hebrew and German. Leo Winz, of Berlin, the famous librophil, has accumulated countless copies of rare old traditional melodies and folk songs, of which he permits one to be printed in the Jewish-German monthly magazine, Ost und West. Under the auspices of the latter, concerts of Jewish folk songs and Hebrew traditional melodies are arranged in the bigger cities of Germany and are generally well patronized and receive a friendly criticism at the hands of the German press.

In this country, naturally, having more scope and larger opportunities, the Jew’s activity along this line is spreading rapidly. Platon Brounoff has collected more than three hundred folk songs, fifty of which he published in one volume. Cantor Cahon has also published two volumes of folk songs, and Henry L. Gideon, the Boston organist, and Mary Antin are about to complete their collection of folk songs. Furthermore, Mr. Gideon, with the assistance of his wife, frequently gives concerts of Jewish folk songs at concert halls, churches and private musicales.

The promoters of Jewish music in New York are so zealously active in presenting it that it is no rare thing to see two or three numbers on a program of our city park bands. Yes, it even finds its way once in a while to the programs of Carnegie and Aeolian halls. Not long ago Alma Gluck sang a Jewish song by Maurice Ravel at a Sunday evening concert at the Metropolitan Opera House. Efreim Zimbalist never fails to include in his program his “Hebrew Melody and Dance,” which he built on the theme of an old folk song. Kurt Schindler is another lover of Jewish folk songs. Programs exclusively of Hebrew music have been presented by Cantor Sirota at Carnegie Hall, and Cantor Steinberg at Symphony Hall, Boston. The People’s Music League has a number of artists on its staff who sing Jewish folk songs and Hebrew traditional melodies in the concerts at the public schools. Besides, among the Jewish people a feverish craving for Jewish music is now in vogue. In towns in the United States where there is a Jewish population, no matter how small, they are forming singing societies and glee clubs, and concerts of Jewish music are always well patronized.

That the Jews are a musical people no one will deny. The only objection some of the antagonists to the Jewish music have to offer is that they fail to find its ethnological origin. But origins no more affect our music than they do our customs and institutions. Let the investigator trace our music to some non-Jewish source if he will. For our music will retain all the Jewish quality with which it has been invested by sacred association. Even if we grant that the larger part of our melodies were derived from different ages and peoples, nevertheless, they are Jewish in the sense that they symbolize and express the Jew’s holiest sentiments, his saddest misfortunes and tribulations, as well as his fondest hopes and aspirations. Jewish music records the subtlest emotions which swayed the Jew’s heart during his life-long struggle, and it was called into being by Jewish tears, faith and meditation. For centuries our music has comforted the Jewish heart through all the persecutions, and it still renders a similar service today to the afflicted of our race, be it in the pale of Russia or the Ghetto in New York.

When I look around and watch the sudden activity and enthusiasm that the present calamity in Europe has stimulated among us, I am more hopeful than ever that the day is not far off when a Jewish composer, musician or singer will not have to change his name to conceal his origin, in order to enhance his chances of recognition and ultimate success. Well do we remember the ostracism to which some of our big lights, such as Rubinstein, Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, Halevy and Offenbach were subjected on account of their Moslem descent. But their genius was so great that it fully overshadowed all anti-Semitic prejudice and their names remain to be honored by the very offspring of those who despised them.

However, we still have men among us in the different countries of Europe, as well as in this country, who claim our Jewish musical geniuses for their own nationalities; the Germans claim Mendelssohn; the Russians, Rubinstein; the French, Meyerbeer, Halevy, Offenbach, Ravel and others, because those men were born in those countries. It is true that some of them were converted Jews, but in those days conversion of a Jewish musician simply meant self-advancement on the material basis of life, but had nothing to do with the spiritual aspect.

The fact is that today since the world has grown broader and more tolerant, we do not hear of any such conversions. Men like de Pachmann, Ravel, Jadowlker, Elman, Zimbalist and many others are proud of their nationality to the extent that they declare themselves at all times loyal sons of Israel. It certainly takes some courage even in these days, for anti-Semitism is still rife in some quarters, to come out openly as a child of our much abused race. On the other hand, these men are so big that they are beyond injury at the hands of those who still cling to ideas which are remnants of barbarism in this enlightened age.

We often see certain artists billed as “The Irish Tenor,” “The Belgian Violinist,” “The Polish Pianist.” Why shouldn’t we also see “The Jewish Violinist, Pianist or Singer”? If those artists are proud of being advertised in that manner by virtue of their respective countries being subjected to oppression and tyranny, surely our people have been persecuted and tortured more than all the rest combined. Again, if they prefer to be known as sons of their respective countries because they have given the world a large number of musical geniuses, surely we have given our share.

As long as our artists are still compelled either for professional reasons or through their own lack of self-respect and national consciousness to conceal their nationality, it will be impossible to obtain a complete list. Whenever any of our big artists appear at the Metropolitan or Carnegie Hall, our people turn out in large numbers to greet them, and, therefore, there is no reason why these artists in return for our patronage should not honor us by upholding their nationality and give the fact of their Jewish origin due publicity.—Musical America.

shortly the plate that had been the depository of fresh, tempting chicken, was the receptacle of a thin pile of chicken bones of which the slightest suspicion of meat had been skillfully removed.

The lady then finished the rest of the bread and butter, emptied a pitcher of water that was standing idly at the other end of the table, wiped her mouth with the tablecloth, and, taking her daughter by the hand, left the table serenely.

About nine o’clock that very night the little girl found me on the furthest corner of the porch. I noticed that she was slightly pale and disturbed with an excitement not intended for such pretty cheeks.

“What is it, little girl?”

“Oh, sir; I must tell you, mamma is sick and there’s no one with her.”

“Is that so? Well, give me your pretty hand and we’ll both go and see.”

She was stretched out on her bed at full length, covered thickly with

Some Individual Jewish Claims for Exemption from Military Service—Queen Mary Visits London Jewish Maternity Hospital—Herbert Bentwich on Zionist Work in Palestine—Anglo-Jewish Association and Forthcoming Peace Convention—Dr. Israel Abrahams on Spanish Period of Jewish History.

London, March 10, 1916.

I have mentioned already the fact that the committees called exemption tribunals are sitting all over the country to hear the claims of applicants who desire to secure exemption from military service. When the military service bill was passed it imposed compulsory service on single men between the ages of 18 and 41. The anti-conscription party in the House of Commons secured an insertion of a clause in the bill allowing exemption to be claimed for certain specified reasons, the principal of these being engagement in indispensable work and a secondary one being conscientious objection to military service. The tribunals sit every day and tick off cases usually at the rate of about one every five minutes. A total of about 30,000 "conscientious objectors" have lodged or are lodging claims for exemption. In the majority of cases there are Quakers or members of the Society of Friends who are about 20,000 strong in this country, and furthermore, there are about 3,000 Christadelphians here who come under a similar anti-war category, and likewise get exemption easily. The remainder are all kinds of people ranging from Socialists, syndicalists and agnostics on the one hand, to minor religious sect officials on the other. Judging by the replies given to questions by the tribunal committees some of the applicants are sincere to the point that flatters them; others are shifty, hypocritical and out to make money by getting hold of well-paid jobs of men who have gone to fight. I have been looking up for this letter the specifically Jewish applicants and find very few.

The case of Pizer Cohen may be quoted, who is a commercial traveler. He said that being a "Cohen," he was forbidden to look upon any dead body either of his own or any other faith. He was not even allowed to visit a cemetery or attend an inquest. There was no greater sin, he said, than a Cohen could commit than to look upon the dead. He quoted this as one of the laws of the Jewish faith as immutable as the laws of the Medes and Persians, and he advanced this as a reason for exemption from military service. The appeal was dismissed by the tribunal, but the applicant was told he would be recommended for non-combatant service in the army.

Apart from Quakers and Christadelphians and one or two smaller sects, total exemptions are not being granted, the objection to military service being recommended for a non-combatant branch of the army.

Another Jewish applicant advanced as a reason for exemption from military service the fact that he had no son to continue his family. He got two months' exemption.

Another Jew who asked for exemption as a conscientious objector was found to be engaged in a well-paid job making military clothing for the army, whereupon his application was refused. Taking the proportion of figures to the population there are, as a matter of fact, fewer applications for exemption from Jews than from any other section of the population.

Queen Mary of England, attended by Lady Isobel Gathorne-Hardy, paid a visit last Monday to the Jewish Maternity Hospital in Whitechapel. She went over the whole building and expressed herself as highly interested in the organization and arrangements of the place. Introduced to the matron in charge, she shook hands with her and engaged her for some minutes in interesting conversation.

Herbert Bentwich, Grand Commander of the Order of Ancient Maccabees, at a meeting of the London Beacons last week expressed satisfaction at the fact that even the present world war could not shatter their well-established organization. The Zionist work was not disturbed. The Turkish Government had given the Rishon Colony about 10,000 acres of land as a recognition of its usefulness to the country. The colonies had supplied 7,000 eucalyptus trees for the new railway which was being built. The educational establishments were being kept up as heretofore, and the present pioneers of a future Jewish settlement were maintained as best could be. The leaders of both sections of Zionism in Great Britain were doing their duty, but would be helpless without the co-operation of the masses which must find their expression not only by paying dues and buying the shekel, but also by constant propaganda.

Israel Zangwill, Claude G. Montefiore and D. L. Alexander, K. C., are shortly to address a big meeting of the New National Union for Jewish Rights. Speeches in Yiddish will be delivered by Rabbi Charne, the Rev. Rabinowitz, Mrs. Yochelman and Ginsburg.

The Independent Order B'nai B'rith will confine the work of its new Jewish social service bureau to men only, leaving work among women in the hands of the Union of Jewish Women. The B'nai B'rith bureau is out to train and supply honorary workers for communal institutions and appeals to Jews with leisure and good will to come forward and offer their services. There is a bigger shortage of willing workers of this kind than ever in the ranks of Anglo-Judaism. Of course the appeal is to men of non-military age or men otherwise ineligible for military service.

H. G. Lousada, presiding at the last meeting of the Council of the Anglo-Jewish Association, reported that a letter had been received from the Council of Jewish Friendly Societies suggesting united action in view of the coming peace congress. The meeting decided to postpone consideration of this pending the receipt of a report of the joint committee which is dealing with the matter. An appeal was read from the Jewish committee in Corsica asking for assistance for Jewish refugees from Syria and Palestine who had arrived there. As the council has no funds at its disposal, they were unable to come to the aid of the refugees. It was also felt that the matter should be taken up by the Jews in France.

The Spanish period of Jewish history is being made the subject of a course of university extension lectures at Toynbee Hall. Dr. Israel Abrahams delivered the first lecture of the series, and said that the period they were about to study was by no means all bright, by no means an unbroken day. It had its lurid intervals, its grim memories. Yet the Spanish period deserved in the main the current description of it as the golden age of Jewish history. Not even the Inquisition obscured that outstanding fact, not even the phenomenon of Crypto-Judaism so characteristic of, but not exclusive to, Spain. For their period included their greatest philosopher between Philo and Spinoza (Maimonides). It was the epoch of the greatest poet between David and Heine, Yehudah Halevi. It saw the rise of a school of Talmudic learning which imparted new vigor and enduring vitality to rabbinic literature and life, and established it on a firm Western basis. It gave them their greatest art between Bezalel and the Jewish artist who was yet to be. This last remark moved the audience to the mild amusement that the lecturer desired.

Continuing, Dr. Abrahams said that the period revealed the power of Judaism to ally itself with the world's dominant civilizations—with Arab science, Christian scholasticism, medieval mysticism—and to emerge from the alliance unloathed, fuller, stronger, richer, and nevertheless still true to itself. Above all, it gave them splendid examples of the readiness and competence of Jews to serve the State in the highest positions of trust. If the Jews suffered terribly from the Inquisition, Spain suffered more. If any moral could be drawn at all from history, it was that the narrow unqualified acceptance of the theory of the identity of Church and State weakened the State without strengthening the Church. All judges were unanimous in attributing the decline of Spain to the Inquisition. Dr. Abrahams gave a brief summary of the Moorish occupation of Spain and compared the love of the Spanish Jews for their country with that of the Alexandrian Jews for their great city. He traced a parallel between the intellectual life of the Andalusian and the Alexandrian Jews. He alluded to the characteristics of Jewish poetic and plastic art and to the curious influence which the Moorish style had had upon synagogue architecture.

The Jews of Verdun.

The capital of the Meuse, for the capture and defense of which one of the most sanguinary contests throughout the war, or perhaps of any war in history, is being fought, contains a small Jewish community of some fifty families, or rather did before the present struggle in which so much of Europe is engaged, began. But it has an ancient Jewish history, for Jews lived there in the twelfth century, and Verdun produced three scholars of note, R. Samuel ben Hayyim and two brothers Rabbis Samuel and Jacob ben Joseph. After that period Jews were not allowed to reside in the town or even to pass through it, and this restriction was not removed by the Council of Basel when a peti-

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE JEWISH WORLD

A campaign has been begun among the seventy-five Jewish families of Freeport, L. I., to purchase a lot and build a synagogue.

The members of Temple Beth El of South Bend, Ind., have elected Mr. Julius Leibert, at present a Hebrew Union College senior, as their rabbi. He will also officiate at Ligonier, Ind.

At Wilna, the Jewish population sent influential representatives to the German Governor to support the general protest against the imposition of a war tax on the city.

Over 100,000 of the poorest inhabitants of Pinsk (mostly Jews) have been transported by the invaders into the interior of Poland on account of the lack of food in the city.

On the 21st inst. Governor McCall of Massachusetts signed the "Kosher meat bill" and presented the pen with which he affixed his signature to Representative Samuel Silverman, of Ward 9 of Boston.

Montreal Jewry is mourning the loss of one of its pioneers, Mr. Jacob Hirsch, who came here in 1857. He helped organize the Congregation Shaar Hashomayim and was its sole surviving charter member.

The Conference Board of Jewish Women's Organizations of Greater Boston, Mass., have adopted a constitution. Fifteen organizations are affiliated and a determined effort is being made to enroll the twenty-five remaining organizations.

The Boston (Mass.) School Committee gave a public hearing on March 20 to the protest filed by Jewish residents against the use of Christian songs in the public schools. No action was taken, the committee withholding its decision until the next meeting.

Special services were held by Temple Emanu-El of San Francisco, Cal., last Thursday in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of its house of worship. The building was partly destroyed by the great conflagration of 1906 and reconstructed shortly afterward.

German-Jewish journals have printed statistics which show that there has been a considerable increase in recent years in the number of marriages between Jews and Christians in Germany. The number, which in the year 1911 represented 17 per cent. of the whole, had risen in 1915 to 31 per cent.

The climax of a fight which has been going on in Chicago, Ill., for some time was reached last week when Dr. Theodore B. Sachs resigned as head of the Chicago municipal tuberculosis sanatorium. The resignation has attracted much attention and several meetings of protest against the politics which forced the resignation have been held.

At a recent meeting of Algerians in Paris, Minister Maurice Collin spoke in the highest terms of praise of the heroism of the Algerian Jews on the battlefield. He recalled with sorrow the time when anti-Semitism was rampant in Algiers and said that now there can be no question any more as to the fitness of the Algerian Jews for French citizenship.

The Governor of Tambov has received from the Assistant Minister of the Interior, Plehve, the following telegram: "In view of the question raised by the Borjaglesk Committee for the Relief of Refugees, I beg to inform your excellency that Jewish refugees must be given government relief on equal terms with all the needy refugees of other nationalities."

According to Mr. Boris Schumacher, who accompanied the Ford party to Europe, and who has just returned, although only 4 per cent. of the population of Russia is composed of Jews the army includes more than 7 per cent. in its numbers. Of those killed in battle, 18,435, or 4 per cent., were Jews; 8,822 Jews, or 5 per cent., died in hospitals; 11,541, or 7.3 per cent., died later from wounds; 31,324, or 4 per cent., were reported missing; 5,831, or 5.5 per cent., received wounds of a minor nature.

According to official statistics just published, the Jews in Bavaria numbered 55,065 at the last census. They form 0.8 of the entire population.

Three Jewish soup kitchens have recently been opened in Jerusalem, under the auspices of the German and Dutch Palestinian Committee.

The Temple Sisterhood affiliated with Congregation Beth Ahava of Muskogee, Okla., recently joined the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods.

Prof. Dr. Robert Davidsohn, who is well known for his investigations into the history of Florence, has been elected an ordinary member of the Munich Academy of Sciences.

A report of anti-Jewish riots in Baku, Caucasus, organized and maneuvered by the police, has recently reached the Duma in Petrograd. The riots took place on March 5, and were carried out in all their horrible details as in other places in Russia. The rioters were shown Jewish and German shops and dwelling places, and any Jew who opposed the work of destruction was beaten and arrested by the police for disorderly conduct. The Socialist Deputy, Skoboliev, openly accused the Minister of Interior, Khvostov, as the author of the Baku riots.

The great difficulties now experienced on the Russian railways with regard to the transport problem have also affected Jewish communities. The Petrograd community is suffering from a scarcity of kosher meat; the local rabbis, schochetim and communal workers accordingly formed a committee to deal with the question. The committee suggests that a permit should be obtained from the government to import frozen kosher meat. The communities are also dealing with the question of transport of flour for matzot. So far they have succeeded in obtaining a permit to use a certain number of railway carriages for the purpose.

Dr. Anselm Landau, who made a tour of the Galician towns which were for a time under Russian rule in behalf of the Relief Committee, reports of the present condition of the Jews there in a recent issue of the Lemberger Tageblatt. Turka, a town with a population of 6,080, of whom about 3,000 were Jews, presents a most frightful sight. Three hundred and forty-five houses were burned down; of some of these the walls are still standing. All synagogues were destroyed and all the copies of the Torah, except fifteen, are lost. Not a single Jewish house was left unharmed. The refugees who came back after the Russian evacuation found all their possessions entirely destroyed. The government assisted them somewhat, but their condition now is most pitiable. Similar conditions also exist in Podhelze, with a Jewish population of 3,800, in Jaslowitz, with a Jewish population of 1,500 and in Narejow, with a Jewish population of 800.

The Hebrew Technical Institute.
The Hebrew Technical Institute, as announced in these columns, dedicated its new annex, situated at Stuyvesant and Ninth streets, on February 27. This new building is a memorial to the late Dr. Morris Loeb, while the auditorium in the building is a memorial to Joseph E. Bloomingdale, who was president of the institute for many years prior to his death. The lot on which this new annex has been built was purchased some years ago by the institute while Dr. Morris Loeb was its president, at a cost of over $100,000. The building itself and its equipment have cost $175,000. The building contains a large auditorium that will seat 500 people, a gymnasium, shower baths, class rooms, drawing rooms, laboratory and a roof garden.

The Hebrew Technical Institute was organized in 1884 and held its first session in a small room on East Broadway. In 1887 the institute moved to a private house on Stuyvesant street, and in 1896 a new building was erected on the site of the old private house. Subsequently Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Steinman gave to the institute a large building on Ninth street connecting with the Stuyvesant street building, and now with the annex completed there is a large school plant, six stories in height, which will accommodate 400 students.

The present enrollment is 300 boys in the day school and seventy men in the evening school. The total cost of operation is about $60,000 per year. The institute is supported by a membership society of 2,000 people and an income from a few endowed departments. There are seventeen instructors who are training boys from fourteen to seventeen years of age in a three years' course in the mechanic trades of machine work, tool making, instrument making, pattern making, mechanical, architectural and freehand drawing and electrical construction work, while at the same time they have a thoroughly practical course in the academic subjects of English, mathematics, physics, electricity, history and civics.

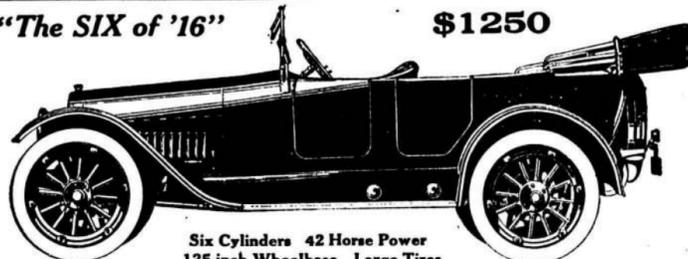

The institute has graduated over 1,200 men, more than 75 per cent. of whom are following some mechanical line of work and practically all are meeting with a greater degree of success than the supporters of the school expected. Some of them are occupying positions of great responsibility and prominence, both in the field of the mechanic and artisan trades and as educators. Many volumes and many inventions are the products of the graduates of the institute.

The institute is intended primarily for poor boys of New York city, and it is a well known fact that no family of a graduate of the institute has sought relief at the charities after the boy has got started in his life work, thus proving that after all education is the surest form of relief and is a preventive of charity.

The new building will be used not only by the institute during the day, but by the Educational Alliance and the Teachers' Institute during the evenings and on Sundays. The Educational Alliance will conduct its activities for young men in the vicinity of the institute, and in connection with Columbia University will give courses in English and in citizenship. The Teachers' Institute will train young men and women for religious service. For many years the Council of Jewish Women have conducted a Sunday school on Sunday mornings for 300 young girls and boys in the vicinity. While the institute is Jewish in name, it is a non-sectarian institution and there are many Gentile students in both the day and the evening schools.

What the Industrial Department of the United Hebrew Charities Is Doing.

In a report submitted to the members of the Board of Trustees of the United Hebrew Charities last week, the feasibility of the Industrial Department was not only demonstrated but its permanence assured.

Since the beginning of the activities of this department in May, 1915, 25,932 bags have been received to date. There were in all 84,298 empty bags distributed, and during that period 3,500 families who are recipients of aid of the United Hebrew Charities, either partially or entirely dependent, received adequate supplies in the nature of clothing, underwear, shoes, etc. Besides, of the goods which were so donated, the department sold quantities for cash amounting to $29,967.

It has to date returned almost all of the money loaned to it for its establishment by members of the Board of Directors of the United Hebrew Charities, who were so confident of the plan that they advanced $9,500 of their own funds, together with $5,000 of the United Hebrew Charities, to launch the venture.

The department not only has been able to supply clothing and to sell goods, thereby making it entirely self-supporting and a profitable venture, but it has been able to collect a sufficient amount of goods besides to launch applicants for relief, those who are permanently disabled or prevented from earning a livelihood, into business. Six stores were opened in different parts of the city for women having children to provide for. Old clothing, men's, women's and children's wear, as well as shoes, toys, bric-a-brac, knick-knacks, etc., were supplied these women, and they have been able since the opening of these stores to secure enough goods from this department to sell across the counter to provide a comfortable livelihood for themselves. Besides this, they have been able to bring to the tenement dwellers at a smaller price better clothing than they can afford to buy in the stores. In other words, they have created a market for shop-worn and discarded goods, affording people the opportunity to buy more cheaply than heretofore.

Families who otherwise might perhaps have gotten along in torn and tattered clothing during the end of the winter season have been able to secure for themselves the necessary clothing which will hold them over until the warmer weather sets in, when they make their regular purchases of new goods.

Springtime and Passover are about to be ushered in. The Passover season means for the Jew a period of change and spring cleaning. Almost every self-supporting member of the community at this period of the year discards winter clothing.

The department is particularly anxious at this period to secure the donation of such discarded clothing at once, so that the poor dependent upon the United Hebrew Charities will be able to secure new outfits for the next three months, or until the hot weather sets in. During the Passover period special foods must be secured, which are more expensive than at other periods of the year, and the United Hebrew Charities usually is taxed at this time for additional funds to meet the demand.

The donation of clothing and other discarded effects will materially help in relieving the pressure.

Bags will be sent on request without any obligation on the part of the receiver, and will be called for at once on receipt of a postal card or telephone message to the department at 37-39 Greene street.

A campaign for the donation of tin foil, silver paper and lead foil is to be made. It is safe to assume that a vast fortune is annually thrown away in the way of such material, and if some of this is collected, placed in the bags and sent to the United Hebrew Charities, a substantial sum of money can easily be raised with which to relieve the distress of the dependent poor of this city.

Honest is the excuse lots of men give for being poor.

Money is called the circulating medium because it is difficult to circulate without it.

In order to insure the insertion of communications in the current issue of THE HEBREW STANDARD they must be in this office not later than Wednesday 10 a. m. of the week in which they are to appear.

Purim has gone, which means that Pesach will be with us very soon. Thus one gladsome festival is succeeded by another!

The bazaar for the relief of the Jewish war sufferers has been open all the week, and is now nearing its close. It has been a great and deserved success. Help it all you can so that the closing days may be as remarkable as the opening days were. You are aiding, moreover, an extremely worthy cause.

The renaissance of Hebrew as a cultural expression has come upon American Jewry "with a vengeance." The loshon hakodesh is being fostered in divers ways. In the literary, educational and kindred fields Hebrew is being developed. This is a splendid manifestation, which deserves all possible encouragement, as it must satisfactorily react on the religion of Judaism.

During 1915 the Industrial Removal Office sent 1,821 persons to 241 cities in various parts of the United States, and carried on those of its important enterprises whereby the "man minus the job" is brought into useful contact with the "job minus the man." This institution continues to grow in value and efficiency and to bring its activities within the reach of ever-widening circles of our community. Thus it has become one of the forces to be reckoned with, and is a standing argument against restricting immigration.

Prof. Gotthard Deutsch, of Cincinnati, has made the interesting "discovery" that the advocates of the Jewish congress movement are our modern Maccabees, while its adversaries may be regarded as latter-day Mordecais. The professor's "discovery," although he promulgates it with a wealth of illuminative detail, is no discovery at all, for the contending champions of the respective points of view in this matter have been ever ready to seize upon the illustrations offered by him as indicative of the justice thereof. As a matter of fact, the age of the shtadlonim has gone, never to return, and, hence, the congress is the correctly apprehended "need of the hour."

That America is, indeed, about to assume definitely the hegemony of world-Jewry is apparent from an incident with reference to Hatoren. This is the name of an excellent monthly magazine, published in the Hebrew language by the Society Achieber. The magazine has been transformed into a weekly, and its seat transferred from the Old World to the New. It is now controlled by the Provisional Executive Committee for General Zionist Affairs, and its responsible editors are J. D. Berkowitz, Dr. Selmarjahu Levin and Dr. Samuel Max Melamed.

In spite of the many inspired expressions in the daily press and elsewhere throughout the country, looking to an early resumption of treaty relations between the United States and Russia, nothing approximating a protocol is as yet in course of negotiation, and the influence of local Jews is probably sufficiently profound to prevent this consummation until such a time as Russia gives the necessary permanent guarantees that the Jews will be treated as human beings. Moreover, the present year marks a Presidential election, and, to put the matter upon no higher ethical ground than this, neither political party will wish, by aiding Russia in her designs, to alienate any possible supporters of its contentions at the polls.

In spite of the prevailing war and the fact that thereby seemingly all the energies of all Englishmen are fully absorbed, the Anglo-Jewish community finds time to offer courses of popular lectures on Jewish history in Toynbee Hall, in London. This is quite as it should be, since there are many in England who cannot go to the front, yet who thirst for Jewish knowledge and deserve to have their longing satisfied. Moreover, this is the second series of such courses, the first having been given less than a twelvemonth ago. In the face of this situation, stressed as England is by the great war, what shall we say of our own community basking in a time of piping peace, where such courses of lectures are often suggested, occasionally seriously thought of, but seldom, almost never, brought about?

A TEST OF STRENGTH AND ITS SEQUELS

UNDER the above title a paper appeared in The Expositor for December to which the interesting letter of Mr. David Epstein, printed in another column of this issue, is a complete and adequate reply. Mr. Epstein couches his commentary in letter-form, addressed to the author of the Expositor paper, the Rev. George Margoliouth, M. A. Mr. Margoliouth was born into the Jewish fold, but has been for many years in Anglican orders. He is an able student of the Bible and an interesting writer, but, like so many other meshummodim, has entirely obliterated all traces of Jewish feeling in his mental makeup.

The Margoliouth essay is an attempt to read into the incident related in 2 Kings xiii, 14-19, dealing with the admonition of Elisha, the aged Hebrew prophet, to Joash, the son of Joahaz, king of Israel, a practical application to the ruthless conflict now waging in Europe and Asia.

Mr. Margoliouth, scholar though he undoubtedly is, looks upon the Bible (which he, in his new faith, would call the Old Testament) as giving facts concerning a people whose development religiously only foreshadowed the later incidents preserved in what we emphatically denominate the New Testament. To him the Holy One, Blessed be He, is not God, the all-wise Father of all human flesh, as exquisitely depicted by Mr. Epstein, the observant Jew, in his remarks, but the Lord of battle, the tribal-deity whose strength is cast with the strongest battalions. Perhaps, if Mr. Margoliouth were dissecting critically a different part of the Bible, for the sake of some modern instance as the case may be, the Holy One, blessed be He, would assume varying attributes. But the point Mr. Epstein makes clearly is that Mr. Margoliouth's application is not only misdirected but also mischievous, inasmuch as it gives the world a wholly false picture of the religion of Judaism.

Oh, these meshummodim! Why must they, of all men, ever be at pains to seek to diminish the nimbus which surrounds the Chosen People? As if it were not enough that they themselves have earned the title of traitor and poltroon, they aim to please their new masters, "to find grace material in their sight," by heaping obloquy on the race they have deserted, which, it is remarked by the way, is infinitely better off without them!

"THE UNREPENTANT SINNERS"

THE Sunday School Times of Philadelphia is an excellent weekly medium for making known to its circle of readers the best contemporaneous thought of the leading Protestant religious scholars in the world today. The standpoint of many, if not most, of its contributors may be denominated as the orthodox New Testament attitude, and it is not surprising, in consequence, that oftentimes a sympathy with the Jews (hardly ever with Judaism) is exhibited in its columns proceeding from a sincere and pious wish to have the race of Jesus of Nazareth become "witnesses to the light."

The foregoing remarks may serve to explain, perhaps, why some of the readers of the Sunday School Times have recently troubled over the appropriate answer to the query, "When Will Israel Turn to God?" Some of them seem to think that when the Jews repent of their century-old attitude toward Jesus, when they will accept him as the Messiah for whom they are waiting, then they will have turned to God! In other words, this orthodox Christian viewpoint presupposes that the Jews are still fit subjects for the enticing persuasion of the missionaries, and, no doubt, some of our "knightly" meshummodim who have adopted this debasing traffic as a means of legitimately (!) gaining a livelihood, are not above utilizing the implications of this "interesting argument" for their own purposes.

So, we have little doubt that there are many sincere Christians, among whom the "knightly" meshummodim shall not be numbered, who day by day pray for the Jewish acceptance of Jesus as the Messiah. This, although theological thinkers hold that the offer to the Jews to accept Jesus had long ago been withdrawn. We are, therefore, the "sinners" who cannot possibly repent, and, we are so stiff-necked besides, that the only way to make the Jews sufficiently plastic for missionary onslaught is to "regale" them with something more tangible than prayers!

In short, the Sunday School Times has in this tidbit of practical Christianity afforded us an insight into the motive force of missionary activity. We fear, however, that the contentions advanced are not exceptionally convincing, and that the Jews will never turn to God according to the orthodox Christian dispensation. Cuibono? The "offer was withdrawn long ago!"

If only the Christians themselves would turn to God! Lip-service and troubling about one's neighbors, as they ought to know, do not make for true faith.

The National Education Association has "crowned" an essay, dealing with the essential place of religion in education, in such a way as not to run counter to the creeds of Catholic, Protestant or Jew. We may be permitted to state our wonderment at the possibility of treating such a subject in such a way as to receive the distinction of a "crowning" by the above association. Religion, especially without reference to Jewish tradition and Jewish life in the case of Jews, is simply an ethical system of good conduct, and this a large number of creedless creeds and similar "new thought" foundations profess to inculcate. No, to our mind the essential place of religion in education is the church, the chapel or the synagogue, but, more than any of these, the home. There, and there alone, true religion may properly flourish.

WHENCE AND WHITHER?

אשה כי חוריע וילדה זכר:

"If a woman have conceived, and born a man child." (Lev. xii, 2).

A DAZZLING shaft of light speeds with incredible swiftness across the evening sky, eclipsing for the moment all other luminaries that grace the jeweled night. What matters it that its race is so brief if its coruscation is so brilliant? What matters the darkness out of which it bounds forth, or the darkness into which it dives headlong? Does the falling meteor ask, Whence did I come and whither do I go?

Is not man a falling meteor, with but a brief though brilliant race to run? Does he not come out of the incomprehensible Nothing, and does he not disappear into a still more incomprehensible Nothing? Bound by Aft and Fore—as the Psalmist says—what, really, are we? Still, whatever we are, what do the two Eternities Aft and Fore matter, if between them we live so dazzlingly and gayly—happily though not heroically?

Why ask questions? Why ask: "Whence and Whither?"

To be sure, those that are satisfied with a happy life, and crave not at all for a heroic one; those that have made their choice between heroism and happiness by truckling to the base human fears and foregoing all the arduous privileges of human daring and danger, ask no such questions. In a stolid, bovine fashion they early recognize these to be hopeless and helpless questions. Questions that no one ever did nor will answer. And yet even these are occasionally shocked into asking some questions, when all is not well with them, and they begin to perceive that human life is but a shadow and a dream. And what is the question they then ask? Just—Whither? They never ask: Whence? The cradle they do take for granted, it is only the grave they question. And yet the grave is silent and cannot answer; surely not when its mouth is open, but not even when its mouth is shut; while the cradle talks: ah, but that is only baby-talk. Why give heed to the divine truths that proceed "out of the mouth of babes"? The nature that tends to happiness—of the shallow kind—and refuses to accept sorrow—though it be deep as the ocean and thrilling as God's living touch upon the soul—does not seek to learn the origin and source of its joys. It is there—that is enough. Why search further back? Love stood waiting to receive us at this side—so much is certain. The rest is uncertain. And the soul that buds into this earthly life does not tell any secrets. It does not tell us what gardens it had bloomed in before it descended into this terrestrial one. What breezes had fanned it, what sunshine had kissed it, what dew had nursed it? It does not know. It does not remember. The gates that open into this life are shut to Memory—to the memory of what went before. God does not want little tell-tales to gossip about the things of Paradise. Why then ask about them?

And yet—and yet, if these men and women, these idle devotees of happiness, asked the question of Whence as much and as insistently as they ask the question of Whither, they might learn something of this life's realities. And, perhaps, asking the one question, they might find it easier to answer the other. For these are twin-questions that suffer no separation. They should never be separated, just as the shore is never separated from the sea; when the waves recede, the shore follows them; when the waves leap forward, the shore is there to receive them. Even so do Fore and Aft brother one another. The Yesterday that never dawned touches upon the Tomorrow that will never set. We cannot think of the after-life without thinking of the fore-life as well.

Ah, but there are men and women who know all this. Men and women who would rather be heroic than happy; men and women who would rather tread the paths of danger than frequent the slothful ways of ease; men and women to whom life—all the glory and grandeur of living—means sounding the depths of existence, though perishing in the attempt; men and women who risk standing at the shore of Infinity even though the breakers engulf them; men and women who accept joy and pain, and all the experiences of the quivering flesh and the trembling spirit, in the sole hope that these will lead them to the gateway of ever higher truths: men and women who think thoughts that, before man was, were God's thoughts! And these men and women turn their gaze backward, not only forward. The dim past calls to them like a faint song from the distance. Like dwellers on an island, they look in all directions for lights that may be gleaming in the dark...

And these men and women know that if the soul cannot die, it cannot be born. To them the question of Whence is of the same importance as the question of Whither. The cradle is just as much of an enigma as the grave, though the one is a riddle of smiles and the other a riddle of tears. And they can find the tear in the smile just as surely as they can find the smile in the tear. Twig-mysteries of Life and Death, they see in them One Face—the Face of the Inscrutable—One. The same glorious possibilities of living shine out of the one as of the other. To them these questions bear no troubling aspect. Rather do they bear a reassuring aspect: the one helping to answer the other; for if man extends his Hope to Eternity, he should stretch his Memory back to Eternity, too. If Mother's Love stands at the cradle waiting to receive the new Life, God's Love stands at the grave waiting to receive that same Life—which to Him is neither new nor old—into Eternity, thus turning the grave of Mortality into the cradle of Immortality. But if God stands at the other end, He stands at this end, too. The meteor bounds from darkness into darkness, but man is born out of Eternity and is borne into Eternity.

According to our tempers and dispositions will be our answers to the Whence-and-Whither questions. Say some with mournful mien: from Dust to Dust. Say others with disgust and disdain: from Womb to Worm. Say yet others who with trembling hope clutch at the promise of Faith: from God to God. Only those who know, having had it whispered to them by God, say: from Love to Love.

With our next issue we shall begin the publication of a series of papers by William Mitchell on the general subject of federating our charities, concededly a "burning topic of the day." Mr. Mitchell knows whereof he writes; he was with the local Y. M. H. A. for a long time, and executive secretary of the Brooklyn Federation for five years. Our readers will thus be provided with some important and interesting food for thought.

We call the attention of our readers to the letter of Dr. Drachman printed in another column of this issue. Dr. Drachman appeals on behalf of the poor unfortunate coreligionists who are in the City Hospital on Blackwell's Island and who will be deprived of their Kosher kitchen unless our community comes to the rescue. The amount required for the continuance of this noble work is trifling and it is to be hoped that our generous public will contribute without further ado.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Test of Strength and Its Sequels.
 Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
 There recently appeared in the English The Expositor an article under the above caption, contributed by Rev. George Margolouth. The gentleman attacks some of the fundamental principals of our holy faith, and in rejoinder I sent him a letter, a copy of which I am appending, and which I trust you will find space for in your publication.
 DAVID EPSTEIN.
 New York, March 16, 1916.

New York, March 16, 1916.
 I received the copy of The Expositor which you sent me and I thank you very much.

Naturally what interested me more than anything else in the whole book was "A Test of Strength and Its Sequels."

I take it for granted that you want me to be frank with my criticisms, and I will say, therefore, that I cannot agree with the underlying thoughts of the article.

I have the most exalted ideas of the great Jehovah. It would be foolish to say that there is no one like Him, as He is all alone in His Holiness. It would be childish to picture Him in any form, or to talk about His deeds, as the finite mind will never grasp the greatness of His infinite mind.

It is wicked, most assuredly wicked, to portray Him as a Lord of War, or as a commander in chief of any fighting army or race.
 It is blasphemy to think that a merciful God would be desirous that one nation should destroy another nation and to kill one and all without mercy.
 The verses from Kings which you quoted certainly sound very incongruous; permit me to repeat extracts from the same; "Shoot," cried the prophet, his voice vibrating with all the strength of his mighty soul; "Shoot an arrow of victory for Yahweh, and an arrow of victory against Aram," "so that thou smitest Aram in Aphek till thou hast consumed them." "The arrows flew, and the first scene of the great test was over."

"A victor for Yahweh," then Yahweh himself must have taken part in the battle.
 Please tell me, if it is possible, believable that a Supreme Ruler of the whole universe would be engaged in a conflict with a few mortals and a dying prophet has to bid a young king to shoot so that His Holiness would come out victorious. The Creator of the universe is certainly not in need of any assistance. He could destroy the whole world as easily as he created it.

I rather believe that you yourself are not entirely satisfied with the wording of the quotation, and in your effort to modify the same, you are putting some different meaning to the plain spoken words. Your version is as follows:
 "The arrow of victory of Yahweh" amounted to nothing less than the necessary mobilization of faith. The nation must first of all dedicate itself unreservedly to the Sovereign Deity who had chosen it for Himself. May I ask you what you mean by necessary mobilization of faith? Faith in what? Faith that the Sovereign Deity is so revengeful, so unmerciful, that He is desirous that any race which does not recognize His authority should be wiped off the face of the earth. Dreadful spiritual agony overcomes me when I think of such a cruel God, but God is not cruel; on the contrary He is merciful, kind and forgiving, and it is only in men's imagination that He has ever participated in any conflict.

You state, "He, the God of Holiness, Truth and Reality must in advance be crowned victor over the Ellim, or no deities of the nations around."

But as long as it is admitted that there are no other deities, then the only God certainly cannot fight a thing which is not in existence, so that it should be necessary for Him to be crowned a victor, and for us to say that God will fight a nation or nations is to say what is both foolish and wicked.

One of the reasons which an atheist will give you of his unbelief is that a true and living God would not permit the cruelties which are committed under the sun.

Only last night a customer of mine, after reciting the horrors of the present war, and of the misdeeds toward the Jews in dark Russia, asked me with self-satisfaction, "Where is your God?" My answer simply was that we are only infants and our finite minds cannot grasp the infinite. Of course my reply did not satisfy my inquisitor.

What I would like to ask you is, is it not folly for religious people to quote, or to allude to God as though He himself was ever connected in any earthly struggle, or that He has ever taken part in any battle.

I believe that those quotations and talks are simply helping to spread the plague of atheism throughout the land.

War is hell, and they who are conducting war are simply carrying out Satan's bidding. God has nothing to do with it, as His command was "Thou shalt not kill." If the Christian rulers now engaged in the bloodiest war of the whole history of the world would have taken the Founder of their religion as their guide, this unholy conflict would never have occurred. You as a religious man must fully agree with me.

It seems very strange to me that Christians are going back on their vaunted superiority of their religion over Judaism. They have always claimed that Christianity is the superior religion because while in Judaism God is the Man of War, in Christianity he is conceived as of the God of Love, the Prince of Peace. Do you not admit now that that concept of Christianity is false; in other words, that Christianity has failed?

Even granting that God is a Lord of War, and that He has commanded Israel to destroy Aram, I would like to ask you, how do you get the inference that God is now directing the war of the allies, and how do you infer that England is Israel, and that Germany and its allies are Aram—and who is the present Elisha?

As a whole, "The Test of Strength and Its Sequels" is a very strong article, written by a scholar for scholars. For scholars, I said, as I believe that the layman will not appreciate the value and magnitude of the article. The ordinary man simply will not have the spiritual strength to give it a fair test, therefore there cannot be any sequel.

It seems to me that every gifted writer when composing should have in his mind the "laymen" and not the "scholars," as after all it is the masses who are in need of enlightenment, and every author would be of more service to the human race and to himself materially when his article would appeal more to the laymen than to scholars.

You will understand me, I am expressing my opinion simply as an ordinary layman, and I certainly would be delighted to have your views about it; if your opinion should differ from mine in regard to this matter, do not hesitate to say so. Very truly yours,
 DAVID EPSTEIN.

An Urgent Appeal.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
 Several weeks ago the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America appealed to the Jewish public through the medium of your columns in behalf of the Kosher kitchen in the city hospital on Blackwell's Island. The merits of the cause need no description. It is one to appeal to every feeling Jewish heart. Several hundred unfortunate coreligionists are the inmates of city institutions on Blackwell's Island; A considerable proportion of them are sincerely religious men and women who have never violated the precepts of Judaism, in particular the dietary laws, during all their previous lives. It would be a spiritual agony of the most painful kind for these good and sincere, though unfortunate and poverty-stricken, coreligionists to be forced to partake of food which their religion prohibits.

For five years the Kosher kitchen was maintained by the city and did a world of good. The number of its regular patrons during the entire year was between sixty and seventy, and at Passover time this number increased to approximately 300. Owing to an unfortunate misunderstanding the Board of Estimate made no appropriation for the maintenance of the Kosher kitchen during the present year, and unless we are to permit this most beneficent and necessary institution to pass out of existence it devolves upon the Jewish community to raise the funds needed for the payment of the salaries of employees and for necessary incidentals. This is the comparatively trifling amount of $1,350, as the city continues to pay for the required food under the regular appropriations. The returns from our appeal have been quite inadequate, only a little over $200 having as yet been raised. The Union therefore appeals again most earnestly to all who have the interests of Judaism at heart or who comprehend the spiritual sufferings of persons obliged to violate their conscientious convictions to send their contributions on behalf of this most worthy Jewish cause. It would certainly be a disgrace and a stigma upon the good name of the Jewish community of New York if it should prove to be impossible to continue this noble work of pure humanity and religion.

We sincerely trust that our appeal will this time meet with a generous response. Contributions may be sent to Jacob Hecht, Esq., 46 Walker street, treasurer of the Union; to the Rev. Dr. Bernard Drachman, 123 West 121st street, president of the Union, or to the office of THE HEBREW STANDARD, 87 Nassau street.

Very sincerely,
BERNARD DRACHMAN,
 President, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America.

Good Jewish Work.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
 We are a club of twelve boys ageing from eight to twelve years. We have formed the Young Israel Congregation and our purpose is to celebrate all the Jewish holidays and observe the Sabbath. We hold meetings at the synagogue every Sunday, when Rabbi Hirmes tells us stories of the Talmud and also of the great Jewish men.

The president of our club reads the children's page of your paper at every meeting. We also have a library, which contains all the Jewish history and the lives of our great men. On Purim we gave $2 for the Hebrew schools of Palestine instead of giving a party.

Hoping to see this in your paper, we are, very truly yours,

The Other Side of the Denver Controversy.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
 We wish to clear up a grave misunderstanding caused by a statement signed by eight individuals of the Jewish Community of Denver, who, in order to throw around the statement a mantle of respectability, mentioned the offices each held, or is now holding. The statement was supplemented by a letter of Mrs. S. Pisko, secretary of the National Jewish Hospital, and sent to the local directors of the hospital throughout the United States, in which she casts disparaging reflections on Mr. G. A. Berlinsky, executive director of the Jewish Social Service Bureau and its members.

We, the undersigned, members of the Board of Trustees and contributors to the Jewish Social Service Bureau, respectfully request you to do us justice and publish the following:

The signers of the statement mentioned above do not represent nor do they express the crystallized view on the question at issue of the entire Denver Jewish Community.

That they are directly or indirectly connected with the two sanatoriums and evidently prompted by an unwarranted fear that a recognition on the part of other communities of Denver's claim on them in behalf of the poor may reflect unfavorably on the institutions they represent.

That Mr. S. L. Bressler was only president of the Federation (since dissolved) two months, that the Temple Emanuel, of which W. S. Friedman is rabbi, is like a smoldering volcano before an eruption and about to be torn in twain, some of the members of which are now planning to establish a new temple and calling into service another rabbi that Mr. Steinberg was only provisional president of the bureau during the process of its formation for a period of a few weeks; that none of the signers' use of the names of the organization they mention was authorized by members of the same; that Mrs. E. Morris is a sister of Mrs. Pisko, but adroitly uses her office as president of the Jewish Women's Council without the approval of the members, many of whom are ardent supporters of the bureau; that their statement about conditions in Denver is a deliberate misrepresentation of the real facts; that if the Jews in Denver were amply able to cope with the situation and adequately provide for the needy, they would not have permitted the well-organized and scientifically conducted Federation, under the able management of Mr. G. A. Berlinsky, to go out of existence for lack of funds; that the two sanatoriums never have and do not now, take care of the great number of discharged patients and their families, much less take care of the great number of poor sick that drift here from all over this country attracted on account of the favorable climatic conditions of Colorado; that Dr. C. D. Spivak, editor of the Denver Jewish News, sums up the situation in Denver in the issue of December 31 last, as follows:

"There is no doubt that a great number of the cases that come to Denver for their health, whether they enter the National or any other institution, or they live privately, eventually become incapacitated and indigent and must necessarily become public charges. Such cases, according to the rules adopted by the Conference of Jewish Charities, and according to the rules of COMMON SENSE, do not belong in Denver."

We respectfully leave the public to judge as to the reason why the Doctor, as secretary of the J. C. R. S., takes a different view now than he did then, as editor of the Denver Jewish News (a communal paper).

Without intending to parade their generosity, but in justice to them, we make the following comparison:

The total contribution of the eight rich and influential (?) signers of the above mentioned statement to the War Sufferers' Fund, January 27, was $420, while the contribution of only three of the board of the bureau was $510. That "there is not a Jew in the city suffering from want of food or shelter" is such a gross misrepresentation of the real facts that it would be ludicrous if it were not tragic. Is there such an utopia anywhere on earth? Mrs. Plisko, in her letter, also supplied the gratuitous information that Mr. Berlinsky is to receive as his salary one-third of his collections. True, will the lady also volunteer the information as to how much less than $5,000 per year she received when she was out collecting for the National Jewish Hospital; also if it is not a fact that the collectors for the hospital receive about 35 per cent. of their collections?

To prove to the kind-hearted and broad-minded Jews of America that the Jews of Denver are not alone in their endeavor to call the attention of the outside communities to the problem of the poor sick IN, but not OF, Denver, we herein enclose a circular issued by the Commission of Charities and Correction of the city and county of Denver, that was sent to all parts of the country and speaks for itself.

We do not ask that the contributions to the two sanitariums be in any way curtailed, but we earnestly request our generous co-religionists throughout the country to complete their generosity by contributing additionally for the care of the sick poor Jews in Denver, outside the walls of the sanitariums, as they do for those inside.

Contributions may be sent to our treasurer, Mr. J. M. Greenblatt, care of Union State Bank, corner Fourteenth and Larimer streets; D. W. Naftalin, secretary of the Jewish Social Service Bureau, 1583 Boulevard F, or may be given to Mr. G. A. Berlinsky, our executive director, if he should happen to be in your city.

Respectfully and very sincerely,
THE JEWISH SOCIAL SERVICE BUREAU.

The Work of the Down Town Branch Free Synagogue.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
The Down Town Branch of the Free Synagogue is now in the fifth year of its existence.

Starting with a Friday evening service at Clinton Hall, the activities of the Free Synagogue have grown until they now cover every morning, afternoon and evening in the week.

Five mornings in the week the Synagogue House, at 155 Clinton street, is used for a kindergarten, conducted by Miss Sara Michel.

During the afternoons there are classes for sewing, cooking, dancing, story telling, art, in-door and out-door game playing; also a religious chorus, and confirmation classes, respectively, for boys and for girls.

There is a religious school for girls on Saturday morning and a religious school for boys Saturday afternoon.

The evening activities comprise lectures on Hebrew literature by Dr. Ben Jahudah, on social service by Dr. Goldstein, on Jewish history and Jewish ethics by Dr. Cronbach. At the Friday evening services, which are held in Clinton Hall, the addresses are delivered by Dr. Wise, Dr. Goldstein, Dr. Cronbach, or visiting speakers who are in sympathy with the cause.

For the Forum, which is held at the Synagogue House on Sunday evenings, some of New York's ablest lecturers have been secured.

In addition to these activities, there is Social Service Visitation, a Free Legal Aid Bureau, a Mental Hygiene Clinic, a Social Service Store Room and a stenography class; a mothers' club, a civics class, a religious kindergarten, an art class and an Emerson class are being contemplated.

The Synagogue House also serves as the meeting place of numerous clubs. While the purpose of some of these clubs is social and recreational, other clubs are devoted to more serious literary, religious, educational and philanthropic quests.

The leaders of the downtown branch of the Free Synagogue are concerned to make prominent the religious character of the work. The religious services and classes constitute the chief activities; the other activities being secondary and accessory.

The viewpoint is that of liberal Judaism. While friendly toward all forms of Judaism, the Free Synagogue elects, as its special field, the interests of those Jewish people who use the English language. A further characteristic of the Free Synagogue is the emphasis it throws upon the ethical, social and spiritual implications of Judaism. The ceremonial, ritual and dogmatic aspects of Judaism are not denied or opposed; they are simply left for elucidation to the orthodox and conservative synagogues of the neighborhood.

The Free Synagogue seeks not to discard but to conserve, not to destroy but to rebuild. It asks those allied with it to be not less Jewish but more Jewish, not less religious but more religious. It does not disrespect the customs and usages by virtue of which Judaism is unique. It merely urges that first place be accorded the ethical, social and spiritual ideals which are Judaism's most precious heritage. The fact that these ideals may have so impressed and captivated other religious groups as to have been copied from Judaism and to have been made the possession of all men does not, from the Free Synagogue standpoint, make those ideals any the less valuable or any the less Jewish.

Everybody is cordially welcome to the schools, classes, services and lectures. All contributions are voluntary. Membership qualifications are identification with Judaism, good character and a certain minimum age.

ABRAHAM CRONBACH,
Rabbi in charge.

Temple Israel of Harlem.

The Purim play given Sunday, March 19, was so successful that it was repeated on Wednesday evening, March 29, at the Parents' Association meeting.

A new class for children of about the age of six has been formed in the Religious School on kindergarten principles. It is proposed to have a Seder service on the second night of Passover for pupils of the Religious School.

On Sunday evening a benefit performance will be given for Isaiah Temple at the Standard Theatre, Ninetieth street and Broadway. Professional vaudeville and film features will be brought out.

Owing to the congested condition of Eastern freight terminals, furniture shipments from the Middle West are uncertain. Normally such shipments take a week or ten days to reach New York. At present they take three or four weeks.

Unless conditions are improved in the immediate future we fear that it will be difficult to make definite promises for delivery.

With the large stock of up-to-date Period styles carried in our warehouses and show-rooms, we are in the unique position of being able to make immediate deliveries.

We urge prospective purchasers to make early selections or far enough in advance to insure definite promises from us and early deliveries.

Paterson, N. J.

Sunday evening, the 26th inst., the auditorium of the Barnett Memorial Free School was crowded with its 500 pupils and fully as many friend visitors to witness the ceremony of receiving a new scroll of the law which the children themselves had bought at the suggestion of Mr. Jaffe, the efficient superintendent. After a few circuits had been made and a Hebrew song sung, Dr. A. S. Isaacs gave an address, and generous offerings were made for the benefit of the school. In addition the children gave a play and there were varied songs and a musical program.

Twentieth Anniversary of Rabbi Isaac Elchanan's Death.

The twentieth anniversary of the demise of the famous Russian rabbi, Isaac Elchanan, of Kovna, was observed last Sunday, March 26, 1916, in the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary at the Rabbinical College, 9-11 Montgomery street. Many prominent rabbis and laymen participated in the exercises.

The president of the faculty, Rev. Dr. B. Revel, said, among other things: "The lack of a trained leadership in American orthodox Judaism is the only cause of its weakness. The American Jewry must not be dependent for its rabbis and scholars solely upon Europe, if it is not to fall into chaos and confusion, particularly now when most of the institutions of higher learning in Europe are closed. The first step toward this goal was made by the Rabbinical College, which was opened as a true orthodox seminary about twenty years ago and has done its work effectively, although on a scale large enough to meet the demands of American orthodox Jewry."

Among the other speakers were Rabbi Alperstein, of New York; Rabbi Ginsberg, of Wilkes-Barre; Rabbi Burack, a student of the Rabbinical College; Rabbi Idelson, of Denver; Rabbi Brody, of Newark, and Dr. Romanoff, of Baltimore, an alumnus of the Yeshiva. Rabbi Bernstein, a former director, gave the benediction.

A few months ago the Rabbinical College, consisting of the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, founded in 1896, and the Etz Chaim Talmudical Academy, founded in 1886, moved in its present commodious and well equipped quarters, 9-11 Montgomery street, under the direction of the renowned Jewish scholar, Dr. Bernard Revel, with a very able faculty. The scope and the aims of these institutions have been enlarged to meet the growing needs of an intenser and more deeply conscious Jewish life. It aims to spread the knowledge of and love for the Torah and Jewish traditions, and to train truly orthodox rabbis and scholars who have an intimate knowledge of and love for the Torah and Jewish traditions; who possess great Jewish learning and who at the same time possess general culture and are acquainted with modern thought and problems.

15. The practical aspects of Zionism.
16. The attitude of the rabbis toward progress.

Harlem Hebrew League.

That the various phases of the Sabbath question present subjects for deep reflection by thoughtful people, was again demonstrated last Friday evening, when a large audience packed the rooms of the Harlem Hebrew League, Inc., at 26 West 115th street, to hear the lecture delivered by Rev. Herbert S. Goldstein, on some of its aspects. A very spirited discussion on the lecture was participated in by many of the audience.

The closing lecture of this course will be delivered next Friday evening by Rev. Dr. Bernard Drachman, under the title of "A Review of the Phases of the Sabbath Question." The public is cordially invited to be present.

The Talmud and other classes on Saturday afternoons are being attended by large numbers of young men, and the attendance at the Talmud classes on Thursday evenings exceeds the most sanguine expectations of the officers of the league, who invite young men of Harlem to avail themselves of the privilege of attendance.

Borden's Kosher Milk for Passover

Borden's beg to announce to all their customers and to all the Jews in Greater New York, Westchester, Albany, Troy and New Jersey that for this coming Passover they will deliver KOSHER PASSOVER MILK. They have made all the necessary arrangements so that the milk will be bottled and the cows milked under the supervision of inspectors with the certificate of Chief Rabbi SOLOMON E. JAFFE. He will strictly enforce that the bottling and the milking shall be absolutely in accordance with the Jewish dietary laws.

The inspectors will be at the Borden's plants the whole week of Passover. At all the Borden's plants from which the Kosher milk will be shipped, each inspector will be present at the washing of the utensils and at the bottling. He must seal the bottles of milk. By so doing the milk is strictly Kosher, so that the most pious Jew may use it for Passover. All the utensils as bottles, cans, etc., which are used for Passover are absolutely new.

Send your order to BORDEN'S CONDENSED MILK COMPANY, or order your Passover milk from a BORDEN'S DRIVER. Write a postal card or telephone 5360 Franklin, or any BORDEN'S Station. Remember, BORDEN'S KOSHER PASSOVER MILK costs no more than their regular bottled milk.

We have arranged this year for the distribution of MILK which is KOSHER for PASSOVER from the following plants:

Afton, N. Y.; Branchville, N. J.; New Milford, N. Y.; Mount Upton, N. Y.; Wassaic, N. Y.; Washington Depot, Conn.; Dryden, N. Y.; Brewster, N. Y.; Walkill, N. Y.; Granville, N. Y.; Solsville, N. Y.; Bouckville, N. Y.; 950 DeKalb Avenue, Brooklyn, 55 Steinway Avenue, Long Island City, 4362 Park Avenue, Bronx, New York.

The Certificate of Chief Rabbi SOLOMON E. JAFFE

I do proclaim to all Jews, and to the most particular and pious, that the Borden's bottled milk, with a certificate on every bottle of milk, is Kosher for Passover, because I have installed inspectors, most pious and God-fearing Jews, on all Borden's plants from where Kosher milk is to be shipped, so that they shall supervise at the milking of the cows, bottling of the milk, and the washing of all utensils; so that there is no doubt that the milk so produced under my certificate is Kosher, and that Borden's milk is Kosher for Passover, for all the most pious Jews.

SOLOMON ELCHANAN HALEVY JAFFE, of New York.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Mutton Cutlets a la Reforme.

One-half gill red wine, 1 dessertspoonful red currant jelly, ¼ pound mushrooms, ½ pint brown sauce, a small piece of glaze, 4 pounds best end neck of mutton, 2 eggs, bread crumbs, shallot, parsley, 2 ounces clarified fat. Cook the wine, red currant jelly and half the mushrooms, finely chopped, together for a few minutes. Add the brown sauce and glaze, and cook slowly half an hour to reduce it. Cut the meat into neat cutlets, and dip them into the following mixture: Beat the eggs on a plate with some chopped cooked mushroom, finely minced shallot and parsley. Then bread crumb the cutlets and fry in hot clarified fat as quickly as possible, turning them with a knife to avoid pricking them. Then bread crumb the cutlets and fry in hot clarified fat as quickly as possible. Drain on kitchen paper and serve on a small ring of mashed potato, in the centre of which the sauce is poured. Garnish with little heaps of shredded vegetables, etc., using for this purpose—carrot, turnip, gherkin, truffles, mushrooms, hard-boiled white of egg and lean tongue. Serve very hot.

Tapioca Custard.

Stir four tablespoonfuls of Instantaneous Tapioca into one pint of boiling milk; add three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a little salt; cook but a minute—remove from fire and stir in one egg beaten light and one teaspoonful of vanilla or lemon extract. Pour into mold and put on ice.

Fish Toast.

Take one cup of cold flaked fish, free from skin and bones. Heat in water sufficient to moisten; add butter, pepper and salt. When hot, pour on slices of buttered toast; garnish with eggs poached in muffin rings. Serve with whipped cream or wine sauce.

Cauliflower Soup.

One large cauliflower, one quart stock (white), two tablespoonfuls flour, salt and pepper.
 Boil the cauliflower separately, and when cooked, rub half of it through a sieve and add it to the stock. Season it and thicken it with two tablespoonfuls of flour to each quart of white stock. Divide the other half of the cauliflower into little branches, and heat them in the soup just before serving.

Devilled Flounder.

One flounder, 1 dessertspoonful curry paste, 1 teaspoonful anchovy sauce, juice of ½ lemon, 2 tablespoonfuls salad oil and 1 of vinegar, 2 bay leaves, 1 sprig parsley, a very small piece of chopped onion, 1 teaspoonful finely chopped chutney salt and pepper. Remove the skin and head of the flounder and score it with a knife on both sides. Soak it for 1 hour in the oil, vinegar, bay leaves, onion parsley, salt and pepper. Place the flounder in the oven on a flat dish. When it has been ¼ hour in the oven, spread it with the mixture of curry paste, anchovy sauce, lemon juice, chutney, salt and pepper, and return to oven for 10 minutes. Serve with chopped parsley sprinkled on it, and garnish with slices of lemon.

Stewed Chicken and Rice.

One pint of rice, 1 quart stock, 1 onion stuck with cloves, 1 bunch of sweet herbs, 1 chicken, 4 egg yolks, 1 lemon, a pinch of saffron. Stew the rice in the stock, and when it begins to swell, add the onion, herbs, saffron and the chicken. Stew the latter with the rice, etc., till well done, then remove it, and stir the egg yolks and lemon juice into the rice. Serve all together in a very hot dish.

Mutton Cutlets a l'italienne.

Cut off cutlets from the best end of a neck of mutton, trim them, and remove all superfluous fat. Make a seasoning of finely chopped mushrooms, bread crumbs, chopped parsley, a sprinkle of mixed herbs, a little shredded shallot, and a grate of lemon peel. Dip the cutlets in egg, then mask them with the mixture, dip them in egg and bread crumbs and fry them. Drain them on kitchen paper, place them on a hot dish round a mound of mashed potato, and pour a well-flavored brown gravy round them.

Spanish Soup.

Two quarts water, 2 lettuces, 2 ounces dripping, 2 endives, 3 onions, pepper and salt, 1 cup of browned and grated bread-crumbs. Shred the endives and lettuces slice the onions and fry them in the dripping till well cooked, stirring them all the time. Boil the water, bread-crumbs, pepper and salt together for three-quarters of an hour, then strain the water and mix it with the lightly-fried vegetables. Boil all together for 10 minutes. Hand fried bread out in dice with this soup.

When the doors, windows and drawers stick, use a candle to rub along the edges. The result is that they slide very easily.

MUSIC NOTES.

Jubilee Year is the New York Philharmonic Society's announcement for next season, the seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the society. The event itself will be celebrated by a five days' festival, which will include festival performances in each of the four New York series, the Thursday evenings, Friday afternoons, Saturday evenings, and Sunday afternoons. These series will, as usual, comprise twelve Thursdays, sixteen Fridays, four Saturdays, and twelve Sundays in Carnegie Hall, and the soloists engaged so far include Josef Hofmann, Mischa Elman, Efreim Zimbalist, Alma Gluck, Julia Culp, Elena Gerhardt and Percy Grainger.

The society's subscription books are now open at the Philharmonic office for renewals, and judging from the way these have been pouring in the demand to hear the Philharmonic concerts will be greater than ever. In addition to the New York series, the Brooklyn Sunday afternoons will be continued and the orchestra will tour more extensively than ever before.

A recital will be given for the benefit of the Italian reservists by Olga Carrara at Carnegie Hall on Tuesday evening, April 4. It will be an evening of Italian melodies, old and modern, for which the following program has been arranged:
Caro mio ben.....Giordani
Non temere.....Grossi
Quel laccio ch'unito.....Grossi
Danza-Danza.....Durante
Un bel di' vedremo (from Butterfly).....Puccini
Melodia.....Morpurgo
M'ama non m'ama.....Mascagni
Lasciami.....D'Annunzio-Tosti
Ninna-Nanna.....Mortugno
Vieni.....Denza
Sogni e Canti.....Mazzoni
Racconto (from Cavalleria).....Mascagni

At his farewell recital in Carnegie Hall, Saturday afternoon, April 15, Ossip Gabrilowitsch will play numbers that have proven especially popular in the course of his historical series. Following such works as the Bach Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue and the Beethoven Sonata Appassionata, there will be the Schumann "Carnaval," the Chopin Sonata in B flat minor and a long list of pieces by modern composers.

Eddy Brown will end his first New York season with another Aeolian Hall recital, his fifth, Sunday afternoon, April 16. The violinist will play works of Mozart, Mendelssohn, Vivaldi, Bach-Auer, Saar-Brown and Wienlawsky.

At the joint recital which Pablo Casals, cellist, and Susan Metcalfe-Casals, soprano, will give in Aeolian Hall, Saturday afternoon, April 8, the following program will be offered:

- Sonata in G minor.....G. F. Handel
Pablo Casals.
- (a) Come raggio di sol.....Calderà
(b) Amarilli.....Caccini
(c) Recitative and aria from Orpheus.....Gluck
(d) Das Veilchen.....Mozart
Susan Metcalfe-Casals.
- Suite in C minor.....J. S. Bach

Sir Jornie Cope (Jacobean song).....
Faithful Johnie (Scottish song).....
Susan Metcalfe-Casals.
- With violin, 'cello and piano accompaniment
Stucke in Volkston.....R. Schumann
Pablo Casals and Jean Verd.

Harold Bauer will give a farewell recital in Aeolian Hall Sunday afternoon, April 9, playing an all-Chopin program that will include among other numbers the Sonata in B minor, Op. 58, the F sharp minor Polonaise, Waltzes in A minor and G flat major, Scherzo in C sharp minor and Nocturnes in C sharp minor and F sharp major.

Julia Allen, an American prima donna, who is probably better known abroad than in her native country, will give a recital at Aeolian Hall Monday evening, April 10.

A few years ago Miss Allen was engaged for a six months' season on the island of Cuba with a company which had been organized for the Spanish coloratura soprano Barrientos, now at the Metropolitan. When the company reached Havana word was received that Mme. Barrientos was very ill in Milan and would not sail, which left the American in the position of first coloratura soprano of the company. After a most successful debut in "Rigoletto," Miss Allen was heard in twelve or fourteen different roles in that season of six months. During that time the company sang not only in Havana, but in Santiago, Matanzas, Cienfuegos and various other cities.

Paulo Gruppe, the Dutch cellist, who gave his first recital Saturday evening, March 25, will give a second recital some time during the month of April.

Mr. Arthur Friedheim, who has been absent from the United States for four years, will make his reappearance on the concert platform at Aeolian Hall in a piano recital on Monday, April 3, at 3 p. m. On this occasion Mr. Friedheim, who has achieved a worldwide fame as the greatest Liszt interpreter, will break away from the traditional form of piano recital by making comments on Liszt as he is not known. Coming from one whose long association with this great composer enabled him to know him better than any living man, it will not only be of great interest, but authorization. The program will consist mostly of compositions by Franz Liszt.

Happiness reigns at the Hippodrome. Having passed its 300th milestone this past week, Charles Dillingham's magic spectacle, "Hip Hip Houray," still claims first place in popularity among current amusements. Since the brilliant record season began at this vast playhouse, over one million and a half patrons have found delight in this marvelous pageant of novelty and grandeur. Its ice ballet has been the most talked of innovation ever produced on a New York stage, and its attendance records to date surpass those of any attraction in the history of the theatre. During the coming fortnight excursions come to the Hippodrome from such far off points as Montreal, Buffalo, Allentown and Ogdensburg, and to facilitate bookings a long time ahead seats are now on sale up to May 6, which period includes the Easter holidays. Matinees are given daily and new features are introduced each week.

"The Blue Envelope," Frank Hatch and Robert E. Homan's side-splitting farce, has caught the public fancy and is attracting large audiences to the Cort Theatre, where it will enter upon the second month of its run Monday night under Richard Lambert's management. The play has greatly improved since its first night presentation and the screams of laughter that prevail at every performance give every evidence of the attraction remaining at the Cort well into the summer. The excellent cast of farceurs includes Walter Jones, Carrie Reynolds, George Probert, Josie Sadler, George W. Howard, Beth Franklin, Ralph Nairn, Alice Claire Elliott, Henry Stockbridge, Belle Theodore, John L. Kearney and Ford Fenimore.

"The Cinderella Man," Oliver Morosco's production of Edward Childs Carpenter's delightful and eminently successful comedy, will begin the fourth month of its run at the Hudson Theatre Monday night with the complete original cast, including Shelley Hull, Phoebe Foster, Frank Bacon, Berton Churchill, Reginald Mason, Charles Lane, Lucille La Verne, Hazel Turney and others.

If you hear a sound of revelry, and laughter in the air, at Forty-fifth and Broadway, as you're passing through the square, you'll know a thousand people (and a thousand's not a few)—are just "hollering" their heads off, at George Cohan's new Revue. It's a show that starts them laughing, as they've never laughed before; in fact, a laughing riot, that rolls into a roar, compared to other comic plays, it's a gem of purest ray, for proof go to the Astor any night or matinee. You'll see comical comedians, and chorus girls divine; you'll see burlesque of the play hits; they've been voted extra fine, you'll see dancing, you'll hear music, 'tw'll start you dancing, too; there's so much that's fascinating in George Cohan's New Revue.

George M. Cohan's American farce, "Hit-the-Trail Holiday," as presented by Fred Niblo, Lorena Atwood, Hazel Lowry, Laura Bennett, Joseph Allen, Edgar Halstead, Frederick Maynard, Frank Williams and others of this excellent cast, continues to keep large audiences at the Harris Theatre in a continual state of great, good humor.

Salmon Fritters.

One-half pound cold cooked salmon or other fish, ¼ pound mashed potatoes, 1 teaspoonful chopped parsley, 1 hard-boiled egg, 1 teaspoonful anchovy sauce, pepper and salt to taste, egg, bread crumbs, frying oil. Free the fish from bones, flake it up, add to it the mashed potato, hard-boiled egg cut into small pieces, parsley, seasoning and anchovy sauce; a little beaten egg must be added if necessary to bind the mixture. Form into small flat cakes, dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry in boiling oil till a golden brown color. Drain on kitchen paper, dish neatly and decorate with sprigs of parsley or chopped parsley.

Pickled Salmon.

One thick slice salmon, ½ pint vinegar, 2 cloves, 1 shallot, ½ gill aspic, pepper. Boil the salmon, drain it, set it aside to get cold, place it on a dish. Put all the other ingredients in a stew pan, let them boil up, strain them over the salmon and serve cold.

When a pen has been used until it appears to be spoiled place it over a flame of gaslight for a quarter of a minute, then dip it into water, and it will again be fit for work.

When using gas or electric iron get a 10-cent bird cage spring. Hang it either on light fixture or on the wall near your iron, so it comes above the ironing board; loop cord through hook. The spring gives when you iron, also saves wear and tear on cord.

When a velvet dress is done with the material is still valuable. It makes excellent polishing cloths for mahogany and other woods with a high finish. It is good for use on silver and plated ware also. When soiled the velvet may be cleaned by washing in soapy water.

After washing decanters turn them upside down and allow water from the cold water tap to run over them. In about five minutes' time they will be dry inside, and if the outside is carefully wiped and rubbed they will sparkle beautifully.

Perfect cleanliness does much to prevent rats and mice from congregating. If food is not left around the room or closet the rodents rarely favor an occupied house.

Dry cut glass with soft tissue paper if you want it to be brilliant.

One teaspoonful of ammonia to a teacup of water, applied with a rag, will clean silver or gold jewelry perfectly.

Glassware should always be washed in a wooden bowl, and there will be far less chance of its getting broken.

Needlework should be ironed on the wrong side in a piece of flannel, and it should be kept long enough under the iron to thoroughly dry it.

Tumblers that have been used for milk should be filled first with cold water, and rinsed, and then use a little warm. Putting the milky glass into hot water at first has the effect of clouding it permanently.

To avoid the expense of having a feather recurred, sprinkle it with a fair amount of ordinary salt and shake before a fire until quite dry. The feather will be quite fresh again.

Orach Chaim School Exercises.

The promotion exercises of the Hebrew school of the Sisterhood of the Congregation Path of Life took place last Sunday, March 29, in the auditorium of the Young Men's Hebrew Association. Rev. Dr. M. Hyamson delivered an inspiring address, which filled the hearts of the 590 boys and girls present with enthusiasm and joy. Mrs. M. Schwarz, chairman of the School Board and of this event, distributed prizes for general proficiency to seventeen boys and girls. The untiring, thoughtful and persistent efforts of Mrs. Schwarz have greatly helped to make this intrinsically Jewish institution a successful contribution to orthodox Judaism in this city. Mrs. Hyamson, president of the Sisterhood, and Mr. J. J. Dukas, president of the Orach Chaim Congregation, entertained the children with talks full of genealogy and encouragement. A series of educational moving pictures, music and songs contributed to the merriment of the well-mannered little audience. Mrs. Dukas and Mrs. Wilhelm, assisted by several others, saw to it that none should miss any of the refreshments served by the Sisterhood.

The school consists of a boys' and a girls' department. The boys' department is situated in the building of the Y. M. H. A., Lexington avenue and Ninety-second street, while the girls' department is located in the vestry rooms of the Orach Chaim Synagogue, Lexington avenue and Ninety-fifth street, and the new term is beginning. Registration of pupils is carried on by the principal, Mr. Lewisohn, from 4 to 6 week days, and 10 to 12 Sundays, in the building of the Y. M. H. A., Lexington avenue and Ninety-second street, second floor, room 9.

AN EPOCH-MAKING VENTURE IN JUDAISM.
 BY RABBI JOEL BLAU.
 God creates—man re-creates. This entire world did the Almighty turn over to us in order that we should cast it into the mold of our own aspirations.
 God is the Former—man is the Reformer.
 The only trouble is that men often associate wrong ideas with Reform. They believe that to reform means to uproot, to destroy, to change everything in a most radical fashion, just for the sake of change. They forget that to uproot is not to plant, that to destroy is not to build. They forget that the distinction between "evolution" and "revolution" is not a mere quibble or a cheap pun, but one of the laws of nature—one of the laws of God. When God formed all things so that by man's skill and wisdom they might be reformed, He did not mean to give man an opportunity to change His creation so that the original form, the original divine intention, might be lost. All nature cries out against such violent change. But God meant to give man an opportunity to place the human stamp upon things divine, so that all nature should exhibit the thrilling co-partnership that exists between man and his Maker.
 Do not shrug your shoulders and say, this is idle philosophy. Consider how Judaism fared under these mistaken notions of reform. We were, as we still are, facing the problem of how to maintain our Judaism in the midst of an environment which, to say the least, is not favorable to the development of Jewish individuality. None so blind but sees that the problem of Jew and Judaism in modern times consists just in this: How to find the right sort of adjustment to our surroundings without injury to our unique Jewish life. Now, what did they do who, actuated by false notions of reform, saw in modern progress nothing but the element of change—change that meant the placing of an alien stamp upon our life, the rending of families and communities, the separation of father from son, of mother from daughter? What they did was to apply the rule of change ruthlessly to everything Jewish, until the original form of Jewish life was utterly effaced and not even the Synagogue retained its essentially Jewish features.
 And they called this "Jewish progress."
 Both the noun and the adjective are wrong.
 That sort of reform is not "Jewish" because its endeavor is to minimize Jewishness.
 That sort of reform does not lead to progress, because Progress does not mean just senseless running—running away from the Old—without a definite intention of getting anywhere—without having something New that is very much better than the Old. Yet, this is exactly what our religious speed-maniacs have been doing: just rejecting the Old because it is old, though it is worthy of our reverence and fostering care, and putting into its place the New because it is new, though it is cheap and flashy and in all respects unworthy.
 Shall we then despair of the possibility of Jewish progress? A progress that shall be as truly progressive as it shall be uncompromisingly Jewish? No, a thousand times, no!
 The purpose of this article is to show that Jewish progress is possible; that a true adjustment of Judaism to an American environment is feasible without either Americanism or Judaism suffering in the least. And, moreover, the purpose of this article is to show that this is not a mere theory, but an actual fact.
 A band of enthusiastic workers, members of the Kehillah Jeshurun Congregation, whose modesty alone forbids my mentioning names, and specifically the name of that enthusiastic American Orthodox Jew who is the leader of this movement, have materialized this idea and built it into brick and mortar—and steel, too, as well as other high grade, up-to-date modern building equipment. They have erected next to their synagogue, on East Eighty-fifth street, just off Lexington avenue—in a location, that is, which is accessible to all "East Siders" as well as "West Siders"—a social center. To detail the excellent equipment of the building, the marvelous ingenuity which went to the utilization of every inch of space in this handsome edifice, and which made it possible to install not only a gymnasium and a moving picture booth, but also a tiny place dedicated to the holy and wholesome purposes of "al-netlasyodayim" for the prospective participants of public banquets, is really beyond my capacity. I should have to take first a course in architecture in order to be able to explain all that, but though the rabbis are called "Builders," they are not "Architects"—and the distinction is quite vital.
 Suffice it to say that the projectors of this novel institution are subordinating "Architecture" to "Building" in the old rabbinic sense, in order to help "build" up Jewish life by the power of the Spirit, so that all "Bonayich" may become "Bownayich." And the spirit of the place, as manifested in the material form of classrooms and lecture halls is simply infectious. One cannot resist it. Here there will be classes for Hebrew and history, for civic and Americanism; here clubs will be organized for the young and lectures for young and old. Mishnayoth and Midrash will range side by side with Meredith and Maeterlinck. Judaism and modernism, Hebraism and Americanism will be brought into perfect harmony. And over these varied activities of this institution will hover the all-overbrooding and all-sanctifying spirit of Jewish idealism.

Magdalen Home Appeals for Jewish Help.
 A conference was held at the Magdalen Home, Dyckman street, last Monday afternoon. There were a number of social workers present and addresses were delivered by Borough President Marcus M. Marks, Magistrate Peter Barlow, Dr. J. L. Magnes and Mrs. M. S. Menken.
 The institution was opened eighty-five years ago and receives wayward girls, and helps toward their reformation. Some years ago a Jewish girl was committed to the institution, and the fact elicited surprise from the management. Ten years ago there were three Jewish inmates and today out of a total of 100, fifty-four of them are Jewesses. These figures, astounding as they may seem, have been verified.
 The management of the institution has never looked for Jewish support, but they find themselves in need of funds, and for this reason are appealing directly to the Jewish public. It is the only home of its kind, and if assistance is not forthcoming it will be compelled to receive State assistance and become a penal institution and on a par with the workhouse. The House of Good Shepherd is a Roman Catholic institution and the House of Mercy is a Protestant institution, where religious worship is compulsory, and these are the only other institutions where girls can be sent. It is proposed to build a separate Jewish cottage at the Magdalen home, where under Jewish auspices Jewish girls will be taught the principles of Judaism and an effort to reclaim them will be made on Jewish lines.

Sinai Temple Activities.
 This Friday evening, at 8.15, Israel Weinstein, instructor of biology in Morris High School, will lecture on "Science and Morality" at Sinai Temple, located at Stebbins avenue and East 163d street. Mr. Weinstein is interested both in scientific research and the religious training of the young. On Saturday morning, at 10.15, Rabbi Max Reichler will speak on "The Family Skeleton."
 At the congregational meeting Monday evening, March 27, three additional trustees were elected: A. L. Greenwald, Max Schaurer and L. W. Blum. The other trustees are: Wm. Daub, Samuel Grossman, Emil Fleisch, Samuel N. Alexander, Wm. Mitchell, Solomon Schiff, Max L. Harris, Paul Goldstein, and Dr. M. N. Karsh. A committee of five was appointed to bring in a plan for the assigning of seats at the next meeting of the congregation, April 26.
 The Henriette Sisterhood will celebrate its first meeting in the new temple by an open kaffee-klatsch, to be held on Wednesday afternoon, April 5. A special musical program has been arranged for the afternoon.

The Bazaar a Success.
 The bazaar in aid of the Jewish war sufferers, which opened at the Grand Central Palace last Sunday night, has been attended by huge gatherings, and the results will doubtless surpass the expectations of the promoters.
 There is an unusual display of merchandise on sale at reasonable prices, and chances may be had on a Studebaker automobile, a Maxwell automobile, tickets to Europe via the Hamburg-American or the North German Lloyd and many other articles.
 One of the principal attractions at the fair is the reproduction of a street in Palestine. A daily newspaper, the Gazette, is issued and has had a large sale.
 The bazaar will remain open until April 3, and there are still some excellent merchandise bargains to be had. It is hoped that all who have the Jewish cause at heart will visit the bazaar and lend their assistance toward ameliorating the deplorable condition of their suffering brethren in the war zone.

Free Sons of Judah to Convene.
 The annual convention of the Independent Order Free Sons of Judah will be held at McKinley Square Casino, Boston road and 169th street, on Sunday, April 2 and Monday, April 3. This will be the first national convention of any Jewish order ever held in the Bronx.
 Invitations to address the meeting have been extended to Hon. Henry Morgenthau, Hon. Oscar S. Straus and Mr. Louis D. Brandeis.

In a word, this congregation has resolved to turn itself into a community center. Its synagogue will henceforth be an institutional synagogue. The movement to establish such centers is comparatively recent—it is the latest word in the conduct of both church and synagogue. It has for its underlying idea the thought that, in order to vivify the congregational life and secure for religion the desired permanence, all possible social influences and social safeguards must be thrown around the members of the congregation, and especially around the young. This the new institution will attempt to do by means of its clubs and classes, its kindergartens and shower-baths, its synagogue and its Succah—the latter, by the way, situated on the roof, raised above the tumult of city life.
 And it is significant that this ultra-modern institutional movement has been espoused by an ultra-orthodox congregation, thus proving that progress can be made Jewish, can follow Jewish lines. The edifice, which is the first of its kind in New York city, is soon to be dedicated—by strictly orthodox rabbis under strictly orthodox auspices—and thrown open to its magnificent uses. I wish it God-speed. If nothing else, it will prove, it will demonstrate a thing which needed demonstration, namely, the real Meaning of Jewish Progress.

SCIENCE NOTES.

Privat-docent Dr. Barany, the Viennese physician who received the Nobel prize for medicine, and who was taken a prisoner by the Russians when Przemysl fell, is now a surgeon to prisoners of war at Merv, Siberia. Mr. Burian, the Austrian Premier, is reported to have suggested that Dr. Barany be exchanged for a Russian prisoner held in Austria.

Richard Willstatter, the recipient of this year's Nobel prize in chemistry, may well be regarded as the greatest chemist we Jews have yet given to the world. He ranks with Baeyer and Fischer, the two foremost organic chemists of today. His research with the chemistry of substances of physiological importance, and especially in the chemistry of chlorophyll, the green pigment of plants, has been epoch-making. He is to succeed Baeyer at the University of Munich, and incidentally will thereby become the only professing Jew occupying a full professorship at a German university.

Dr. J. J. Taubenhaus, associate plant pathologist of the Delaware Experiment Station, delivered the John Lewis Russell lecture before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on March 27, on "Diseases of Sweet Peas."

Mrs. Taubenhaus is one of several accomplished daughters of Rabbi Hirschenson, of Hoboken. One of them, a favorite pupil of John Dewey, is the wife of Dr. Adlerblum, the economist, and another is an instructor in French at Hunter College and leader of the Menorah Circle there.

Dr. J. Rogoff, formerly of the department of physiology and pharmacology, Vanderbilt Medical School, has been made instructor in experimental medicine in the Western Reserve Medical School.

Drs. Morgulis and Kraus have been made instructors in bio-chemistry in Columbia University. Dr. Morgulis received his Ph. D. in biology at Harvard. A traveling Fellowship enabled him to continue his studies with Przybram in Vienna and Lunz in Berlin. He has published many first class investigations. Dr. Kraus received his academic training at Harvard, and his M. D. from Johns Hopkins. He has specialized in pathological chemistry.

At the recent meeting of the American Mathematical Society, the following, among others, presented papers: Drs. H. B. Phillips, Edward Kasner, Joseph Lipka, L. L. Silverman, G. M. Green and W. C. Graustein.

Prof. Arthur Schuster, emeritus professor of physics, Manchester University, has been elected one of the secretaries of the Royal Society of England.

Prof. Raphael Meldola, whose death was recently announced, came from a line of distinguished Spanish Jews. He himself was president of the London Maccabean, the society of Jewish professional men, and in many ways showed a keen interest in all things Jewish. At the time of his death he held the position of chairman of the Advisory Council of the Board of British Dyes.

Dr. C. Alfred Jacobson, of the University of Nevada, has a suggestive article in the January number of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, on the need of a large government institution for chemical research. No less than 150 research departments are recommended.

Dr. G. D. Rosengarten has been elected one of the four directors of the American Chemical Society.

The Goldwater registry law, requiring that all patent medicines have a proper declaration label on the outside or that the seller declare the contents to the Board of Health, went into effect January 1, 1916. Several days before this date, 300 inspectors from three bureaus of the Department of Health, started to canvass 2,494 drug stores in Greater New York, and place labels on 5,000,000 packages of patent medicines. Druggists have been urged to give inspectors their co-operation in enforcing this ordinance. B. HOROWITZ.

Young Women's Hebrew Association.
 The Friday evening services on March 31 will be conducted by Rev. Rudolph Grossman.

The work of the Employment Bureau, which registered 2,024 and placed 1,299 young women last year, has shown marked progress. Since January 175 out of 227 applicants have been placed. Calls from employers are most carefully investigated. The co-operation of the professional and business men and women readers of THE HEBREW STANDARD would be especially valuable. Telephone 5288 Harlem in calling for workers. A system of vocational guidance in advising and placing girls in positions for which they are fitted and in following them up in their new work is being developed. Registrations and placement invariably are followed by membership in the association and enthusiastic participation in the group activities.

Edward Everett Chapter Daughters of B'nai B'rith.

Edward Everett Chapter, No. 2, Daughters of B'nai B'rith, held a special meeting at the residence of its president, Mrs. Henry Duschnes, on Wednesday evening, March 29, for the purpose of conferring with the Advancement Committee of Chapter I upon the scope of work to be undertaken. Hon. Clarence Y. Palitz, the founder of the new order, addressed the meeting, and Mrs. Samuel Elkeles, president of the Federation of Sisterhoods, gave advice out of her rich fund of experience.

Washington Heights Talmud Torah.

The annual Purim entertainment of the school, which holds its sessions daily at 510 West 161st street, in the vestry rooms of the synagogue, was given last Sunday afternoon before a large audience at Commonwealth Hall, Amsterdam avenue and 159th street.

Addresses were delivered by Rabbi Moses Rosenthal and Mr. Arthur Lamport, chairman of the Board of Education. Two plays were produced, a comedy, entitled "On the Way to the Mejlilah," in which the honors were carried off by Minnie Wurzel, Edith Berchenko, Annie Heller and Izzie Berchenko (aged 5), and "Esther, Queen of Persia," in which about forty children took part. The leading roles were played by Ethel Berchenko, Bella Hundert, Louis Kaufman, Abie Parnas, Ruth Salmowitz, Arthur Raphael, Annie Heller, Gerald Salmowitz, Eugene Greenwald and Arthur Frankenburg.

Other numbers were recitations by Helen Manchyle, Michael Greenberg and Betty Turkeltaub, and piano solos by Elizabeth Waiss.

Temple Rodeph Shalom.

The Rodeph Shalom Mothers' Association will hold its monthly meeting in the vestry of the Temple, corner Sixty-third street and Lexington avenue, on Monday April 10, at 3 p. m. The subject for consideration will be "The Position of Woman in Judaism in Ancient and Modern Times." Rev. Dr. A. Cronbach, of the Free Synagogue, will speak on "The Jewess of Ancient Times," and Mrs. Sar. Geismar, of Brooklyn, on "The Jewess of Modern Times." All interested are welcome.

The Purim entertainment of the Religious School was held last Sunday afternoon, having been postponed for a week owing to the Sisterhood celebration. More than fifty pupils of the school participated in the presentation of a play entitled "The Star of Judah." Each child of the school received as a Purim gift a number of miniature volumes of the Bible, this being the third series of Bible books thus distributed.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.

The speaker at the services last Friday night was Rabbi A. G. Robison.

On Sunday evening, March 26, the association held a Shakespearean tercentenary celebration. Mr. Herbert S. Miller delivered an address, Mr. C. B. Ruskay gave a reading from Hamlet and the Y. M. H. A. Players gave several scenes from Shakespearean plays. A very fine musical program was provided by the Y. M. H. A. orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Maurice Anik.

This coming Saturday evening, April 1, Mr. Gilmore D. Clarke, deputy scout commissioner, will give an illustrated lecture on "Camping in Canada."

On Sunday evening, April 2, the association will hold a members' social, at which a very fine entertainment program will be provided.

Sheffield Milk Kosher for Passover

We beg to inform our customers and all the Jews of Greater New York that we have made all necessary arrangements to supply during the coming Passover week, our bottled under the strictest supervision and certification of Rabbi Abraham Barash. Every one can readily understand the difficulty and expense attached thereto, in providing the Jewish residents of Greater New York, with KOSHER MILK FOR PASSOVER. We do this simply for the accommodation of the many thousands of our Jewish customers, and therefore urge that they co-operate with us by notifying our delivery man in advance, how much milk they will require daily, and thereby avoid disappointment.

READ WHAT RABBI BARASH SAYS:

I hereby proclaim to all the Jews of Greater New York that the firm of Sheffield Farms-Slawson-Decker Co. has part of its establishment under my supervision and employs trustworthy people to supervise the milking of the cows and the general cleanliness of the utensils, which are new. The milk is Kosher, even for those who are particular throughout the year and who want to be assured that they get good, clean milk. Every Jew can use this milk and feel satisfied. The duty of the supervisor is to watch the milk from the beginning of the milking until the bottling. Everything that is done is properly watched by the supervisors. The bottles are provided with a special label, which states that the milk is Kosher and is bottled under the supervision of Rabbi Barash.

הנהגתי את המילק של שפילד פארמס סלאוסון דקער קו. לראות כי המילק הוא כשר וטהור. כל הכלים החדשים והנקיים. המילק הוא כשר, אפילו לאלו המבדלים כל השנה. כל מי שרוצה להיות בטוח שיש לו מילק טוב ונקי, יוכל להשתמש במילק שלי. שליטתו של המפקח היא לראות את המילק מרגע שמוצא מהבקר עד לרגע שמוצא בקבוק. כל מה שמתבצע נעשה תחת עיני המפקחים. כל הקבוקים מצוידים בתווית מיוחדת, המאשרת כי המילק הוא כשר ומופקח על ידי רבי אברהם ברש.

On the cover of all bottles you will find my signature, "A. B. B." The milk in the grade "B" bottles contains my certificate with the initials under the cover. This announcement is made 10 days in Adar Shanle.

What Shall the Poet Sing?
 In a speech or editorial of recent date the remark occurred that men of such and such vocations, even poets, had been led into error and preaching of error. So the thought came to me, "Write a poem discussing 'What Shall the Poet Sing?' Shall the true poet, the modern Caedman, be a nationalist, or shall he be a universalist; shall he indorse armament or must he, to be true to that which is really noble, insistently call for disarmament?" Or dare he ignore today's problems—ostensibly ignore them, though really by his expositions of what literature and history contain in the way of instruction and guidance he may mold opinion and affect decisions of nations and thus become a factor for (we hope) good?" As soon as certain work is off my mind I shall strive to put this into fitting diction—rhyme and rhythm. All this did I write to a former pupil.—Arthur A. Dembetz, in a letter to "Tom Daly" in the Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

Spiritual Grafters Do Not Aid Jewish Institutions.

We have among us a throng of what are entitled to no higher characterization than that of spiritual grafters. They are people who affirm their Jewish identity and interest, but will contribute nothing to the support of distinctively Jewish religious institutions, although they can well afford to do so. And yet when their children need religious instruction they will be sent to schools to which their parents do not contribute, and when the service of a minister is required they will send for a rabbi to whom they are really not entitled, since they have contributed nothing for the support of the institution by which his presence is made possible in the community. Such people are spiritual grafters or parasites. They ought to have sufficient intelligence and self-respect to lead them to support the institutions which at some time they may have occasion to use or they ought to be compelled to do so. By permitting and humoring the religious parsimony of these people our congregations are encouraging them in a kind of spiritual pauperization.—Rev. Alex. Lyons, Brooklyn.

Committee Has List of Warsaw Jews in Distress.

The Provisional Executive Committee for General Zionist Affairs has received from the Zionist Central Bureau in Germany a list containing 6,000 names of Jews in Warsaw and vicinity who are now in great distress and need assistance. A further list of names of relatives of these people has been received and the committee requested to communicate with all these relatives in this country. The committee has sent out notices through the mails to these relatives, in which the conditions is explained.

The Provisional Committee some time ago announced to all who have relatives in the occupied territory of Poland that it is in a position to forward, without any charge or cost to the senders, any financial assistance that the relatives here desire to send. This is called to the special attention of those receiving the announcements referred to above.

Applications for the sending of money should be made by mail or in person at the offices of the Provisional Executive Committee, 44 East Twenty-third street, New York city.

The Modern David.
The youngest soldier in the British and Colonial armies, Reuben Ginsberg by name, became Bar Mitzvah at the Ramsgate Synagogue last Saturday week.
Fifteen months ago the boy was in school at Montreal. When his father joined the first Canadian Contingent and was about to leave for England, Reuben, who is a devoted son, determined that he should not go alone. The father, Staff Sergeant Ginsberg, it may be said, is an old soldier, having served in Africa, Egypt and the Sudan. Reuben having saved up a few dollars, expended this on his fare to Halifax, and there stowed himself away on the vessel in which his father was to be transported to England. Then, in mid-ocean, the child presented himself, and begged so hard to accompany his father that he was enlisted there and then as trumpeter and regimental mascot. Reuben soon became an expert trumpeter, and after a course of training at Salisbury Plain his father's battery, to which Reuben was attached, was ordered to the front.
When Lord Kitchener reviewed the troops previous to their departure for the front, Reuben was brought before him, and after the usual catechism from K. of K., permission was granted to Reuben to go to the front. The sturdy, bright lad, evidently made an impression upon the old soldier, for as he turned away he was heard to remark to his aide-de-camp, "That's blood for you!"
At the front Reuben became the pet of the battery, for he endured hardships and privations in the right spirit, and did his duty like a soldier and a Jew. On a horse and a motorcycle alike he was at home, and he often carried messages, learning how to rough it with the best of the brave Canadian lads. At length he was wounded by shrapnel at Ypres while riding his motorcycle. He was brought to Shorncliffe, and there he was "discovered" by the assistant chaplain, Rev. H. Shandell, when he recently visited that district. He found that Reuben (the wounded soldier!) would soon become Bar Mitzvah, and arranged for the ceremony to take place at the Ramsgate Synagogue. The Bar Mitzvah wore the tallis which he always put on under his tunic before going into action, and it bore the traces of battle upon it.
After the synagogue service a reception was held by the Rev. and Mrs. H. Shandell at Mill House, and the whole congregation there offered their congratulations to father and son.
Among the few presents the gallant lad received was an embroidered tephillin bag with his regimental emblems worked by Mrs. Konski, of Conduit street.
It is interesting to note that the young soldier is a grandson of Samuel Salant, the famous Rav of the Ashkenazi Congregation in Jerusalem.—London (Eng.) Jewish World.

Sometimes a deceitful woman pretends to be happy even when she is.
A woman isn't necessarily industrious because she has a busy tongue.

It doesn't necessarily follow that man would rather fight than eat because he marries a cooking school graduate.
Nothing will make a woman give up a girl friend quicker than to find that when they enter a crowded street car together the friend is offered a seat before she is.

New Jewish Center for West Side.

Announcement has been made of the purchase of the property, 131-135 West Eighty-sixth street, for the purposes of the Jewish Centers, Inc. Mr. William Fischman is at the head of the movement which plans for a composite structure will begin plans for a composite structure, to be ecclesiastical in style, combining the facilities appropriate for a synagogue, a school, a neighborhood or settlement house and a communal house. As soon as satisfactory designs have been submitted the construction will begin.

The site chosen covers a plot area of 66 by 100 feet.

How explain the apparently tortuous policy by which King Constantine has kept Greece out of the war? Not by the fact that his wife is the Kaiser's sister, for it is common knowledge that Constantine and Sophia are and have been for years at swords' points, and that for Sophia to recommend anything would be for Constantine to oppose it. The inner story of Constantine's dilemma, it is said, is revealed in an article entitled "The Greek King and the Present Crisis," which Stanton Leeds contributes to the April Century. It is known that Prince von Buelow returned to Berlin last May bearing a summary of the sea powers' agreement with the Italian Government as to the division of the spoils of war. It is known also that shortly afterward an envoy of the Kaiser arrived in Athens with information that Greece would gain nothing by joining the Allies. This is said to be Mr. Leeds' explanation of the unexpected refusal of Venizelos to press Greece into the war against Germany. His training has taught Constantine that the German army is the greatest the world has ever seen, according to Mr. Leeds. No wonder he has hesitated to bring his beloved soldiers up against that terrible machine, especially as it would involve coming to grips first with the arch-enemy Bulgaria, and with no longer any assistance on the part of the Serbians.

Cohan and Harris announce the last performance of that exciting drama, "The House of Glass," which leaves the Candler theatre after tomorrow night, with a record of an eight months' run to its credit.

John Galsworthy's "Justice," with John Barrymore, is the incoming attraction at the Candler, opening Monday, April 3.

Albert Bigelow Paine's "Boys' Life of Mark Twain," which is running serially in St. Nicholas, will describe in the April Number, it is stated, the humorist's mining days and early experiences as a newspaper man on the Pacific coast. Mark Twain's greatest feat as a reporter was the story of the wrecked vessel Hornet, whose crew were rescued and brought into Honolulu after forty-three days drifting in the open sea. Mark Twain was in Honolulu at the time, but being too ill to go to the hospital where the survivors lay, took down their story, worked at it all night, and by the greatest good luck got it into the ship sailing early in the morning for America. When the story was made public it created a sensation that went around the world, a great feather in the cap of the Sacramento Union, which first published it. Some weeks later Mark Twain returned to California and went up to Sacramento. It was agreed that a special bill should be made for the Hornet report. "How much do you think it ought to be, Mark?" asked one of the proprietors. Clemens replied: "Oh, I'm a modest man; I don't want the whole Union office; call it a hundred dollars a column." There was a general laugh. Mark himself later reported that the cashier nearly fainted when the proprietors assured him good naturedly that though it was robbery the bill was to be paid.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

LAUGHTER

Dear Children:

Whenever you see a person laughing all the time you may be sure that his continuous merriment is due to his lack of intelligence and lightheadedness, therefore the Menorath Hamor teaches us that the eighth rule for guarding your tongue is to keep from excessive laughter. Even where it is praiseworthy to make merry, that is, at a wedding, in order to cause the hearts of the bridegroom and bride to rejoice, there should also be a limit to one's merriment. Thus the Talmud tells us that when Mar the son of Ravina made a feast at the marriage of his son and he saw that the rabbins were too merry he had a very costly crystal goblet brought to him and broke it in pieces before their eyes in order to make them sad. At the wedding of Mar the son of Ravina the rabbins asked Rabbi Hammuna Zuta to sing. He sang "Woe is us that we are destined to die! Woe is us that we are destined to die!" "What chorus shall we sing?" the rabbins asked him. He answered: "Woe is us that the Torah and Commandment will cease with our death." Others say that he answered: "Where is the Torah and where is the Commandment that shall save us from Gehinom?" Rabbi Jochanan, in the name of Rabbi Simon ben Jochai, said that one is forbidden to fill his mouth with laughter in this world, for it is said (Psalms 126): "Then shall our mouths be filled with laughter and our tongues with singing," when the nations will say: "Great things hath the Lord done for these." Thus we are taught to possess a feeling of earnestness at all times, but especially so when we stand in the holy synagogue must we compose our thoughts to seriousness and not act with levity, but we must consider that the Schechina or Divine Presence is above us, and especially grave must be our demeanor when engaged in prayer. Nevertheless, it must also be borne in mind that there are people who are always in low spirits, either because it is their nature or because things do not go well with them, or because they have a habit of sighing continually, and on account of this sadness they are unable to centre their minds on their prayers or realize their deep significance, as we find that such was the case with our father Jacob, who, during all the years that he mourned for his son Joseph, was deprived of the spirit of prophecy; the prophets, too, when they were sad, were deprived of the power of prophecy, and it is because of that sadness that has clung to the Jewish nation ever since the Holy Temple was destroyed that prophecy has ceased to exist in Israel even though there are those worthy of possessing it. For that reason the Sages have taught us that it is the fulfillment of a commandment to be of a cheerful disposition for the sake of heaven—as we find was the case with the Prophet Elisha, when he was angry with the King of Israel in consequence of which the spirit of prophecy departed from him, he said to him: "But now bring me a musician." And it came to pass when the musician played that the inspiration of the Lord came upon him. The Sages have taught that one should not stand in prayer immediately after having made some joking remark, or after laughing, or in a mournful mood, or through laziness, or in a spirit of levity, or after idle conversation, but in a spirit of joy in having learned the Torah or having performed a commandment for the Schechina or Divine Presence rests only where there is the joy of a commandment fulfilled. Rava, wishing to brighten the wits of his disciples, always before he began his Talmudical disquisition, would make some witty remark to put them in good spirits, after which, with great solemnity and reverence, he taught them the Laws. The Sages have also taught that on the Festivals one fulfills a commandment if he causes his wife and children to rejoice, but only if he does it for the sake of heaven and the worship of his Creator, yet should he not drink to drunkenness, nor eat to satiety, but his sole object should be to honor the festivals, and this was the custom of the pious men of ancient times, who divided the festivals, half the day they devoted to the study of the Torah and half to prayer and enjoyment for the sake of heaven. This is what they called "Half for the Lord and half for ourselves." But now that owing to our sins our holy temple is destroyed and our glory has departed we should not feel too joyful even on a festival until our Messiah will come, when our mouths shall be filled with laughter and our tongues with singing, for then the nations will say, "Great things hath the Lord done for these," we will rejoice and be glad in his salvation. Although the Sages of blessed memory said that we are forbidden to fill our mouths with laughter because we should mourn for the destruction of the Holy Temple, we find that the ancient Sages, when they contemplated the comforting of Jerusalem, were so glad that they laughed with joy. As it is related that Rabbi Gamliel, Rabbi Eliezer Ben Azariah, Rabbi Joshua and Rabbi Akiba were walking together when they heard at Antifras, twenty-five miles from Rome, the great tumult of that city. It affected them to tears whilst Rabbi Akiba laughed. Said they to him: "Why do you laugh?" "And why do you cry?" asked Rabbi Akiba. They answered: "These heathens who bow to the stars and planets are prosperous and dwell in serenity, whilst the house which was the footstool of our Lord is burned in fire and shall we not weep?" "For this very reason do I rejoice," said Rabbi Akiba. "If those who transgress the Lord's will enjoy such prosperity how much more so those who fulfill his will!" Again they went up to Jerusalem. When they came to the mountain where stood the ruins of the Holy Temple they saw a fox coming out of the Holy of Holies. They cried and Rabbi Akiba laughed. "Why do you laugh?" asked they. "And why do you cry?" he demanded. Said they: "The place of which it is said 'And the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death' is now fulfilling the prophecy. Because of the Mount of Zion, which is master, foxes walk about on it, 'and shall we not cry?' Said he to them: "For this very reason do I rejoice, for just as the prophecy of evil has been fulfilled against Israel, so will all the prophecy of good be filled for them." "Rabbi Akiba!" said the rabbins, "thou hast indeed comforted us."
