THE CHAMPION OF THE CZAR

By I. KAUFMAN

The Congregation Anshei Yareslow was composed not, as the name implied, entirely of men of Yareslow. Only two or three of the members were Yareslower. However, all of them came from Galicia, near the Russian border. One Reb Yussel, to be sure, had emigrated to New York from Odessa, and he had been born in a village near Warsaw, which is in Russian Poland. But he had spent twenty years, with a pack on his back, traveling through Yavorow, Yanow, Nemerow, and as far as the suburbs of Cracow in the west. He spoke with a Galician accent. So that he was as good as a true Galician; and the Anshei Yareslow thus formed a uniform whole.

When the war broke out in Europe, the congregation as one man ignored the operations in the west, and turned their attention to the Russian frontiers; as one man they awaited the downfall of the Czar. After the evening prayers they gathered together in their little synagogue on Pitt street, presumably to study the Talmud, actually to do only a little studying, but much arguing about the war—though, as a matter of fact, it could hardly be called arguing where all were on the same side. Even Reb Yussel who, being not yet naturalized, was a subject of the Czar, hoped and expected to see Francis Joseph come out victorious over the great Slav. But he had left a wife and three children behind him in Russian Poland. And in his heart of hearts he cared little who won and who lost; but it grieved him that his eldest son should have to draw the sword to kill, or perhaps—might God prevent!—to be killed.

For that reason Reb Yussel remained silent during the nightly discussions that went on in the synagogue of the Congregation Anshei Yareslow. It was in the wild time of the first Russian campaign in Austria. Rumors, conflicting, unconfirmed, of victories and defeats, made up the bulk of the war news. The Yiddish newspapers eagerly seized upon everything unfavorable to the Czar, and daily headlined complete annihilation to his troops. And the men of the Congregation Anshei Yareslow gloated as they read.

"Nu," said Reb Leibish one evening when the prayers after sundown were over—Reb Leibish was tall and cadaverous and had a scraggly black beard—"Nu," he said, "Nicholas is winning!" The remark was made not to give information, but in an ironical tone of voice, and to start the ball of talk rolling.

"Win!" said Reb Frayim—he with the night. "In Lodz," he said, "they so mauled the Russian that there did not remain a trace of him."

"Eh, said Reb Frayim, "but they did beat those Cossacks!"

"the Russian has, indeed, many many men." Chayim was president of the Congregation, and from his height he could afford to speak in a manner generously of the foe.

Yussel sat listening through all this. He did not feel in the mood to talk. But Leibish had long battled with shadows, and was eager to prove his prowess on a real opponent. Suddenly he remembered there was a Russian in their midst.

"Yussel," he said, "they are whipping your Czar so, that the sparks fly."

"Nu," agreed Yussel, shrugging his shoulders deprecatingly.

"Long before the Day of Atonement," continued Leibish, "he will be a dead sin-offering."

"He is an enemy to Israel," admitted Yussel, "and it will be well when he is conquered."

But this was side-stepping which neither Leibish nor the rest of the congregation would allow.

"Even his son," some one called out, "he has sent to battle for the Russian." And though this was said in a joke, henceforth they considered Reb Yussel the champion of the Czar.

"Eh! eh! eh!" said Leibish some two days later, with mock pity in his voice, as he slowly drew out of his pocket that afternoon's "extra" edition of the Tageblatt. "A hundred and twenty thousand Russians killed! A hundred and twenty thousand! Bad! Very bad! eh, Yussel?"

Yussel was now taking the part that had been, against his will, assigned to him. "Well," he said, "it is not altogether as you think. First of all, the Czar has conquered all your Galicia—he has taken Lemberg, and—"

"What is he talking about!" There was a cry of protest from the members of the congregation, and Reb Chayim hastened to explain.

"Lemberg is in a valley with hills on all sides. By whichever way you go into Lemberg you go down. By the Janow road you go down; by the Cracow road you go down; everywhere you go down. Before a foe could get within ten miles of Lemberg, there would be blood pouring in the air."

"The Forward says," insisted Yussel, "that they took Lemberg."

"It cannot be," said Reb Chayim.

"The Forward is altogether an anti-Semite," said Reb Frayim. "He hates Jews."

"Because he tells the truth?" asked Yussel.

"Why, then," inquired Leibish, "does not the Tageblatt say that Lemberg is taken?"

This Yussel could not answer. But some three days later he came in, the full, brown beard and the twinkle in the eye—"Win! He will win a good cholera!"

And the one they called Reb Lezer began the real discussion of

"And," put in Reb Leibish, "in Allenstein they took captive seventy thousand of them. Seventy thousand!"

"Ah," said Reb Chayim, slowly,

"Yes," said Leibish, "he has many. But it is horse—not man." And he touched his forehead with his forefinger to signify that the Russian head lacked brain,

DR. ABRAHAM YAHUDA.

Some six months ago Dr. Abraham S. Yahuda was appointed professor of rabbinics at the Central University of Madrid. He was inducted into office with splendid ceremonies and was received in special audience by Alfonso XIII., King of Spain. Dr. Yahuda is the first professing Jew to receive a position of honor in the Iberian peninsula since the expulsion of 1492. He was educated in Germany, although a British subject, and for a time was an instructor at the Jewish seminary of Berlin.

New YorkThe Big Sisters and Their Fight
Against Immorality.By MARION L. COHEN-POLAK, Philadelphia, Pa.

For two years I had been working as a volunteer with the Personal Service Bureau of the Council of Jewish Women, handling 90 per cent. of immoral girls or those that had been so and a scattering of those very close to the line. A very slight number we knew to be good, but just weak or foolish. During one month I made more than 200 visits to the homes of girls needing supervision and in my investigations I came to the conclusion that the whole problem was being handled from the wrong end. I could not see the use of working ten times as hard to try to cure an immoral girl when by the use of one-tenth of the effort required the girl could probably have been prevented from becoming immoral.

As an encouragement to anyone wishing to start the same proposition in another city, which I sincerely hope will be done, I wish to state that I received nothing but discouragement from social service workers and others interested in such problems.

We were told we needed large amounts of money; that we needed technically trained workers; that unpaid workers were never reliable; that we were overlapping work that "was going to be done," but we listened to no one. We had information that there was no organization in Philadelphia with either money enough to pay to have our plans carried out by paid workers or with volunteers enough to carry the plan through. We consulted with business men to get our plans down to a working business basis. We had to have a large number of persons financially interested in the work and a large number ready to do the actual work without pay. We found that the objection to most social service organizations was the petty graft of buying tickets, being asked for donations, begging on the floor of the organization for funds for different purposes, all tending to keep persons of moderate circumstances, and yet with time enough to give some to the community, out of the work.

We made up our minds that this class of persons were absolutely necessary to make any plan like ours successful if we expected to do the work on a large scale and still not need much money. We formed a social organization called the Big Sisters. We charged them $1.50 a year and the younger members 15 cents a month as dues, with the absolute guarantee that no one would ever be allowed, in the name of the organization, to beg from them, directly or indirectly. We asked those who could afford to give us their services for the work to state how much time they could spare and when. We asked the synagogues to grant us the use of their assembly buildings to meet in, and met in all of the prominent ones to show the community that we were not congregational and still a religious organization. This secured the friendship of members of all of them. We explained our purpose to the rabbis and had them address us the first time we met in their rooms. We used publicity to explain what we intended to do. We made a strong fight against all sorts of opposition for membership and our business-like pledges secured us the very persons we wanted—the workers, not the ones who wanted to see their names in print. At our meetings we secured the services of professional talent free, had lecturers speak on subjects of interest to the workers and made the social part of the work successful. I was elected president of the Big Sisters and after officers were elected the Social Service Committee was appointed and given authority by the association to devote to their work a certain part of all dues paid into the association. We secured the services of the younger married set, near enough to the age of the girls to be handled to understand their point of view and yet experienced enough to be able to advise a younger girl how to act.

Then we selected from our midst certain girls about eighteen years old and through them formed the Junior Clubs in their own neighborhoods. They invited girls about the ages wanted to join a younger club of the Big Sisters. The girls were then addressed by me on the purpose of the work and assisted in forming a program for their work and play. After getting each club started a member of the Social Service Committee (one of the younger married set) was designated to act as the "advisory member of the Big Sisters to assist the president of the club." The president of each club was the organizer, who was also a member of the Big Sisters. So we had two members of the association connected with each club. We talked frankly to the girls, explained that when we said Big Sisters we meant it and that we were always ready to talk over anything with them that they considered worth while in absolute confidence. We also started our talks on social hygiene, made arrangements for them to have dances under our supervision and generally superintended their work, although we tried to make it all look like play.

One case after another has already developed in these clubs, none of immorality, but the sort of things that lead to it. In some cases the persons were forcing a girl to meet the boys on the corner by refusing permission to have them come to the house. Another had never had any Jewish friends and the club made several for her. Lonely girls found something better than mischief to take their time off their hands. The enthusiasm of helping other girls go right by showing an example put them into the social service class, and they felt they were really "little Big Sisters." We have three of these clubs already started and the experiment has proved that this method of reaching the girls from fourteen to eighteen years of age is the correct one. One central place might do good, but places of meeting for fifteen to twenty of them right in their neighborhoods is the better method, besides it lets them get home in proper time. They start at 8 o'clock and must leave a few minutes to 10.

We visit the girls' parents whenever it seems advisable and make them feel we are not interfering with their charges, but only acting as a friend to them. In several places we have changed conditions about a home that has decidedly improved the atmosphere.

This is the work we have accomplished thus far and we are three months old. We have more than two hundred paying members and twelve working members on the Social Service Committee taking the proper training necessary to allow them to handle the work intelligently. We have, through membership in the Big Sisters themselves, acted as friends for girls needing companionship, but over the age of the Juniors. These we have introduced to members of the association. We are always on the lookout for the lonely girl and we see she is not lonely long in the Big Sisters. We are making arrangements to open up a community center in one of the public schools, though our plans for that are not fully matured enough for publication. We are going, by lectures and other methods, to make the older folks realize the necessity for American ideas being carried out in their homes; the rights of the girls to use their homes as American girls do, to entertain their friends; to explain that their objection to a girl having a number of friends is European, not American, and to try to help them see the American point of view and then help them put the proper plans into operation. We are proud of our organization because it was founded by the solid middle class; because it is founded on good, honest business principles; because we are helping persons help themselves; because we are creating social service workers who will always have the feeling that doing good for others is worth while, and we hope within a year to have one hundred clubs of fifteen girls each on an average, radiating such an influence for good in the community that it will be far-reaching in our fight for morality.—Jewish Charities.

A Labor Week of Five Days.

The Mizrahi has inaugurated a campaign for the better observance of the Sabbath. As a first step a conference was held last week at the Hotel McAlpin, New York city, for the purpose of discussing bringing into line the large masses of Jewish workmen and women. It has been suggested that the forty-eight or fifty hours of work a week shall be divided over five days and thus make unnecessary labor on the Sabbath. A committee of prominent men and women is being formed.

bringing a copy of the Tageblatt; and in it the loss of the Galician capital was grudgingly confirmed.

"It cannot be," said Reb Chayim.

"It is not true," said Leibish. "They are bribed to write it. But it is not true."

"Well," asked Yussel, "how will you know what is true?"

"Wait," said Reb Chayim, "wait until letters come from home. You have a wife near Lemberg, and I a brother—we will hear."

"Well," said Yussel,

But there was a long wait; for the mail was delayed and no word came from relatives in Europe; and the Tageblatt meanwhile daily conquered Russia, and nightly Leibish ridiculed Yussel for imagining that the Czar could put foot into Lemberg.

"Nu," he would remark, as an aside, during the first pause in the study of the Talmud, "eighty-six generals the Germans have captured in Russia. But Russian generals—what are they worth?"

Then, as Yussel remained silent, he would add: "And they have taken Lemberg! Ha! ha!"

"Well, we will hear from home," answered Yussel. "Soon we will get letters from home."

Finally the letters came. Because of the long delay, the mail had piled up; and now in the same day almost everybody got at least one letter, and many got three and four. In the synagogue that night extracts from these were read and reread. And the fact became undeniable: the Russian pig had gotten into Lemberg. There was gloom for a while, until some one suggested that he would be driven out again. Then there was joy—of course he would be driven out. There is no greater optimist than your destitute Galician Jew.

But where was Reb Yussel? He had not appeared for the evening prayers, and he was not here now to gloat over the Austrians' defeat.

"He has surely heard from his wife and son," said Leibish; "he will be here soon."

"Let us," suggested Chayim, "when he comes, treat him to a pitcher of beer."

"Yes," said Leibish, "we must; and let us drink together—to the sorrow of the Czar."

So they all contributed small coins; and were prepared, when Yussel should arrive, to send for a tin pail of beer, and drink. Half an hour later he came. He seemed weary, and there was not the expected gleam of joy in his eye.

"I will bet," said Leibish, "that he has not heard."

"Did you get a letter?" asked Chayim.

"Yes," said Yussel.

"From your wife?"

"Yes."

"And from the son?"

Yussel fumbled in his inside coat pocket. He drew out a folded newspaper and dropped it on the floor. He drew out a letter with a foreign postmark, and said, "News of the son." And the seal on it was blackened and the border of the envelope was black.

And the men who were gathered there forgot Lemberg, and forgot the beer, and remained still.

Lord Reading First Jew to Be Made Viscount—Some Early Historical Examples of Other Jewish Honors—Other Jews Honored in Birthday List—Lord Kitchener and Palestine—Russian Jews and the British Army—Manchester Jews in the Forces—Dr. Hockman and His Experience as a Trooper.

London, June 9, 1916.

The conferment of a viscounty on Lord Reading raises him to the highest rank ever attained by an English Jew. Previously none had ever risen above a barony, etc. The first English Jew to be raised to the peerage was the late Lord Rothschild, whose father, Baron Lionel de Rothschild, was the first Jew to gain election to the House of Commons. Sir George Jessel was the first Jew to be sworn of the Privy Council, to enter a British Government (as Solicitor-General), or to be appointed a judge (Master of the Rolls). Lord Pibright was the first Jew to hold a non-legal office in the government, and Herbert Samuel the first to enter the Cabinet. Sir Isaac Lyon Goldsmid was the first Jew to receive a baronetcy. His son, Sir Francis Goldsmid, was the first Jewish Queen's Counsel, and had previously been the first Jew to be called to the bar. The first Jew to receive the honor of knighthood lived much earlier, for this honor was conferred on Solomon Medina by Queen Anne. Still earlier, shortly after the Restoration, Charles II. knighted Augustine Coronel, who had, however, previously adopted Christianity. Later in life misfortune overtook him, and he reverted to his earlier faith, retaining, presumably, his knighthood.

Lord Reading advances yet another step on his brilliant career by the dignity of a viscounty bestowed on him by his Majesty. The rapidity of his promotion and the uniformity of his success form one of the romances of the English bar. Prior to 1910 he was known as a successful barrister, with a seat in Parliament, but in March of that year he was appointed Solicitor-General, and a few months later succeeded to the senior office of Attorney-General. In 1912 he joined the Cabinet, and the following year, on the retirement of the late Lord Alverstone, became Lord Chief Justice of England. Honors followed rapidly on each other. He was knighted in 1910, became K. C. V. O. and a member of the Privy Council in 1911, and was created Baron Reading of Erleigh in 1914. He was made a G. C. B. in 1915. He has rendered valuable service to the government at the treasury since the outbreak of war, and was largely responsible for the successful placing of the English loan in America last year.

Quite a number of other Jews figure in the birthday honors list. Among them is the knighthood conferred upon Alexander W. Prince, the dignity of Privy Councillor granted to Sir Harry S. Samuel, M. P. A Privy Councillorship is an ornamental dignity not carrying with it much in the way of emolument or executive power, but still only given as a sign of esteem for national service. In addition, note must be taken of the military honors conferred in the birthday list. Colonel Leveson became a companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George; Captain E. H. S. Beddington becomes brevet-major. One Jew receives the military cross; two Jews receive the D. C. M., and three the military medal, and another, Major Jacob Waley Cohen, the D. S. O. The community here heartily congratulates Mrs. Nathaniel Cohen on the distinction thus gained by her son.

The late Lord Kitchener's first chance of adventure arose owing to a vacancy on the staff of the Palestine Exploration Society. Kitchener was offered the post in 1874, and at once accepted it. He remained in the Holy Land until the year 1878, engaged first as assistant to Lieutenant Conder, R. E., in mapping 1,600 square miles of Judah and Philistia, and then in sole charge, during the year 1877, surveying that part of Western Palestine which still remained unmapped. The work was done with the thoroughness which distinguished Kitchener's methods in his subsequent career. He rejoined Conder in London in January, 1878, and by the following September the scheme of the society was carried through, and a map of Western Palestine, on a scale of one inch to a mile, was satisfactorily completed. The work entailed considerable hardship, and even danger. Kitchener suffered from sunstroke and fever. He and his surveying parties were frequently attacked by bands of marauders, and on one of these occasions both Conder and Kitchener barely escaped with their lives. On another occasion Kitchener pluckily rescued his comrade from drowning. His survey work in Palestine led directly to his nomination for similar work in Cyprus, where he began the map of the island, which was eventually published in 1885.

The British Army Council have had under consideration for some time proposals for allowing friendly aliens domiciled in this country to join the British army, and instructions to this effect are shortly to be issued. In this way an opportunity will be afforded them of showing their appreciation of their new home by doing something to help in the war.

A friendly alien will in a few days be able to apply to his local recruiting officer, and, provided that satisfactory evidence of his good faith is forthcoming, he will be enlisted and posted to one or other of the various branches of the British army. As Russian subjects of the Jewish faith form the greater portion of the aliens living here who might wish to join the British army, a special, but quite simple, procedure is to be adopted in their case. They have only to apply to the recruiting officer in their district, who will be instructed to communicate with the Jewish War Services Committee at Newcourt, St. Swithin's lane, E. C. This committee has been authorized by the army council to make recommendations respecting these applications, and, with the organization at its disposal, decisions will be quickly obtained. By this new step an anomaly will be obviated, which now exists in the East End of London and in other places, where there are to be found men who have younger brothers in the army, but are themselves ineligible because they were born in Russia before their parents came to this country.

The War Office, recognizing that an alien who renders good service in the army should receive some acknowledgment, has arranged with the treasury that if, after the war, such a man should desire to be naturalized, he will not be required to pay any naturalization fees. Instructions were to be posted to the various recruiting officers on June 8, so that they would be able to answer questions and deal with applications on and after June 10.

Private Joe Cowan, a Manchester Jew, who won the D. C. M. for gallantry, was on June 4 presented with the medal at a large gathering of Jews in the Manchester Jewish Working Men's Club.

Colonel James, in making the presentation, said that the Jews had established an extremely fine record in this war.

Captain Neville Laski, who has just recovered from severe wounds sustained at the front, made a spirited appeal for more men of his race to join the army, in recognition of all that England had done for the Jews. His own experience of the army was that in it there were no distinctions of race or creed. Each man, whatever his rank and race, was taken at his working value. There a Jew who was ashamed to own that he was a Jew would be treated with the utmost contempt.

The Chief Rabbi has been continuing his pastoral tour. He has been conducting services, lecturing before the Jewish literary and debating societies, visiting schools and meeting eminent Jews. In various towns also he has examined the pupils of the Hebrew classes, and generally he has been doing wonderfully good work in tightening up some of the looser bonds of union.

Dr. Hockman, about whose ministerial resignation there was so much excitement a few months ago, is now a fully qualified trooper in the British army. He has written a letter to the press, which is an interesting and jolly document from every point of view. One interesting extract may be given which incidentally shows the influence of the personality of Dr. Hockman:

"The police sergeant of our squadron called a man to book for addressing me as 'Mr. Hockman.' This is a bad habit which some of our men have not yet overcome. It persists with a certain tendency to drop swearing when speaking to me. Swearing is the order of the day. Trooper A, on my right, would have a vile adjective before every word when he spoke to Trooper B, on my left, as we sought repose on our bed boards; but the adjectives disappeared when either spoke to me. A sergeant once apologized to me for swearing at me! Which all goes to show that soldiering is far from brutalizing."

A little later on in his letter Dr. Hockman adds some reasoned views about the moral force which induces men to volunteer for military service. This is what he says:

"It has surprised me much to find that our men have hardly any idea of the spiritual values involved in this war. They seem to have volunteered under the influence of crowd psychology. 'I don't believe in patriotism' is not an uncommon phrase; but a search for an idealism transcending patriotism proves barren of result; so I am constrained to look lower for their motive of enlistment. Perhaps they thought it was 'the thing to do.' Is this the spirit of the sportsman? Perhaps so. England owes a great deal to this spirit, and I am not sure but that its vagaries, born of healthy instincts, give us better leading, intuitively, than would be given by a reasoned idealism learned by rote at the bidding of bureaucratic professors. All this, however, may be the result of our training; for 'it is not our business to think.'"

The hope is expressed right and left here that after the war Dr. Hockman will return to the profession he left to join the army.

President Poincaré at a Synagogue.

The attendance of President Poincaré at a synagogue memorial service in Paris is an event which should not pass without a word of comment. The incident is no doubt intended to mark the splendid loyalty which the Jews of France have shown their country in its dark hour of trial, and, as such, it will gratify our French co-religionists and set a seal upon the complete harmony which community of suffering and sacrifice has established between all creeds and parties in the republic. In the United States the presence of a President in a synagogue is no new occurrence. But this, we believe, is the first time that the French President has done the Jewish citizens a similar honor. We fervently hope that it means that racial ill-will between the citizens of France has now been buried forever, beyond recall.—London (Eng.) Jewish Chronicle.

Mail from War Zones Arrives.

The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America has arranged a complete mail service from Poland, Courland and Lithuania to the United States, with a small army of letter carriers, as a result of the arrangements completed by Isidore Hersfeld before he returned to America two weeks ago. About 50,000 letters have already reached the society, and information has been received that large numbers are held up by the British and French censors. Steps are being taken to expedite the forwarding of this immense quantity of mail, so that the relatives of the residents of the occupied provinces may have some word from those who need their help.

To deliver this large number of letters which the society has already received, and which, according to the promise made by Mr. Hersfeld, must be delivered without cost to those for whom they are intended, is not an easy undertaking. The letters must be carefully sorted and envelopes must be addressed. A special staff of clerks has been engaged and extra quarters rented. Those letters which are intended for New York or for those cities in which the society has branches (Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, San Francisco and Seattle) are being delivered by the employees of the society. Those for other cities are being mailed with a circular letter, instructing the addressees how to send an answer with the best possible chance of having the answer delivered.

Thousands of the letters are being sent to Polish persons, as the society makes no distinction as to the race or creed of the sender or receiver of the letter. These letters are a cry for immediate financial help. The acknowledgment from those who have received such letters indicate that an immense amount of money is being sent abroad for the aid of the war-stricken residents of the occupied provinces.

Austrian Government to Aid Stricken Jews.

The Austrian war press bureau (under date of March 22) announces:

The Commander-in-Chief, Field Marshal Archduke Friedrich recently received at headquarters a delegation of the Austrian Central Committee for the Protection of the Rights and Interests of the Jewish Population of Poland, occupied by the Austrians. The members of the delegation described to the Commander-in-Chief the condition of the Jewish population in Poland and pointed to the necessity of taking measures for the improvement of cultural and political conditions.

Archduke Friedrich, having attentively listened to the members of the delegation, told them that, notwithstanding the necessity, in accordance with the regulations of The Hague conventions, to rule the occupied region according to Russian laws, the Austro-Hungarian military authorities had announced on March 7, 1915, that they would strictly adhere to the principle of equality regarding all religious denominations recognized in Austro-Hungarian government. In the warring countries, and, also, in some neutral countries, there had been some protests regarding the violation by the Austro-Hungarian military authorities and referred them to paragraph 43 of the statute, concerning the ruling of an occupied region, accepted by The Hague Conference, which gives to the authorities in case of "absolute necessity," the right to deviate from strict compliance with the laws of the occupied territory. The application of extraordinary laws, whether it be with regard to individual persons or to religious denominations and nationalities, was considered by the Austro-Hungarian military authorities absolutely impossible.

After the audience with the Commander-in-Chief, the members of the delegation had a long talk with the high officers of the temporary military government of Poland who promised to render their assistance to the Jewish Committee in their task to protect the right of the Jewish population and to improve its cultural and political conditions. The Grace Aguilar House, under the auspices of the Philadelphia section of the Council of Jewish Women, has recently passed a resolution to this effect, offering to all sections of the Council of Jewish Women the opportunity to enter such girls as may require discipline, industrial training and education, from the age of twelve to eighteen years, providing there does not exist in such cities a similar Jewish or non-sectarian institution, doing similar work. The cost for maintaining each applicant to be $250 per year, for which the section applying is responsible.

Young Men's Hebrew Association.
The summer session has begun at the association with the opening of Surprise Lake Camp, at Cold Springs, on the Hudson. The camp expects to accommodate this year over 300 boys and young men every week. During the past two months the committee have extended the mess hall so as to receive a larger number of boys. The camp season opened on Friday, June 23, and a large enrollment has already been made for the Fourth of July holiday. There will be a special celebration and athletic games at the camp on that day. A novel departure this year is the institution of a Hikers' Camp, on Judge Lehman's estate, at Portchester, N. Y. Tents and camp equipment for twenty boys have been installed there, to receive the Boy Scouts and the Boys' Clubs of the association, who hike there from the city. Judge Lehman has donated the full equipment for the camp.

Prof. Deutsch on the Kosher Law.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
Sir: "I am for peace, but when I speak, they call for war." Not that I have any objection to the tone in which your editorial in your issue of June 23 criticizes my remark on the Kosher law, in the H. U. C. Monthly of June, but I shall be obliged if you give me the privilege of presenting my views briefly before your readers.

I wish them to understand that my object was not to make converts for reform or to ridicule the dietary laws, but to guard the honor of Israel which is dead to all parties in Judaism, regardless of their particular religious station. Let your readers be assured that I condemn fraud, whether it consists in selling spurious mining stock, or passing shoddy as woolen goods, or fake curios as genuine, or trefah meat as kosher. There could be no difference of opinion on this point between two honest people, be they Jews or gentiles. I, as a Jew, also appreciate the serious import which the dietary laws have for an observant Jew. The only thing I desire is that the courts and the police be not troubled with these questions.

For this purpose I have shown conclusively that in all times and in various places, prominent rabbis have differed on the application of the principles of dietary laws to individual cases. I further pointed out that a little over a year ago two factions of New York rabbis, led by Reb Welwele Margolies and Reb Sholem Elchonon Joffer, charged each other mutually with wilfully allowing trefah meat, especially chicken, to be sold as kosher. Under the existing law the rival rabbis and butchers might have brought suit in court against each other. The same condition existed in Chicago, a few years ago between the butchers under the supervision of Rabbi Ridway, who since died in Safed, and Rabbi Olshum, and within the last two years between the Mazzoh baker, under the supervision of the Chicago and the Cincinnati rabbis respectively. I can see no way by which the court can form an opinion, whether the one or the other rabbi is right, and therefore see great scandal ahead.

On the other hand I cannot see why one particular rabbi or the convention of orthodox rabbis, cannot copyright a trade mark, and declare, We caution our followers not to use any article requiring sanction as to ritual permissibility, whether meat, milk, butter, cheese, olive oil, sardines, soap, cleaning powder, Mazzos, candy, cloth, including lining and buttons, unless it bears our registered trade mark. We warn all observant Jews against the frequency of fraud perpetrated by unauthorized people. I am sure all dealers in such articles would willingly bear the expense of "ads" in the Jewish press and would pay to the convention of orthodox rabbis a good royalty if they could agree on that point.

In Chicago it was frankly stated even by orthodox people that the Mazzoh controversy was inspired by purely mercenary motives. In New York similar insinuations were made. I am not concerned whether these charges were true or not; the fact remains that such controversies are a disgrace to the whole Jewish community, and should be repressed by reformer and orthodox alike.

Respectfully yours,
GOTTHARD DEUTSCH.
Cincinnati, June 26, 1916.

An Oriental View of American Affairs

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
As a constant reader of the American Jewish press, I desire to avail myself of the hospitality of your esteemed journal in tendering my heartfelt congratulations to some of the leaders of the American Reform Rabbinate for their courage in commending the Zionist movement, notwithstanding their quondam uncompromising hostility toward it.

Dr. Maurice H. Harris, of New York, wrote an appreciation of Zionism, and it is indeed gratifying to observe the new spirit of harmony that is coming over our erstwhile opponents, which augurs well for the future of Israel throughout the world.

Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, at one time a most bitter and fanatic opponent of Jewish nationalism, is today full of warm appreciation, zeal and ardor of the Zionists and Zionism. In an address delivered on March 26 last, on "Americanism Waning," this celebrated preacher pays the following tribute to the Zionists: "I honor the Zionist who, though his people have been deprived of their Palestine Fatherland nearly 1,900 years long, still loves it dearly, still hopes to see it resettled by such of his people as are suffering from persecution in other lands." Again, in an address delivered on November 28 last, entitled, "The Hyphenless Jew," Dr. Krauskopf came out with the following bold statement: "If there are Jews in our country who are dreaming of re-establishing in Zion an Israelitish Commonwealth, it is not because they regard that land as having prior claim on their affections to this, but because of a wish to establish in the land that seems the most legitimate to them a legally and internationally guaranteed place of refuge for the millions of their persecuted brethren in Russia, Roumania, and other benighted lands." The most ardent disciple of Herzl could not have reaffirmed Zionism in plainer and more concise language than does our non-Zionist friend, Dr. Krauskopf.

Nor is he less envied by his dear colleague, Dr. J. Leonard Levy, of Pittsburgh. In an address delivered by this celebrated preacher on December 19 last on "The Jews and the Messiah," Dr. Levy referred to the address of Prof. Kallen, of the University of Wisconsin on Zionism, whose audience, according to Dr. Levy, "were regaled by a learned and delightful feast of reason and flow of soul." After giving a brief resume of his address, Dr. Levy says, "Surely we need not be so opposed to an ideal which animates the mind and soul of millions of our co-religionists as to refuse, for argument's sake, to admit this."

And now comes Dr. Leon Harrison, of St. Louis, administering a severe rebuke to his colleagues in the Reform ministry for their unreasonable antagonism to Zionism. In an address delivered on the "Leadership of Isaac M. Wise" and published in the American Israelite of April 6 last, Dr. Harrison says: "The synagogue should be a home for every Jewish idealism. I am not in sympathy, therefore, with fanatical opposition to Zionism. Zionism is also Jewish idealism, its dominant factor, the race-consciousness being one of the two-fold strains."

Curiously enough this particular expression of views was expunged by the editor of the Israelite, whose bitter denunciation of everything Zionist, did not, happily, prevent some of the prominent leaders of American Reformed Jewry to join the movement en bloc. It has been said that if the founder of that journal, Isaac M. Wise, were still with us today he would have been an active worker in the vineyard of Zionism. Everyone knows that the late Dr. Wise was a bitter opponent of Theodor Herzl, so much so, that he denounced him as a "charlatan and a highway robber." (Vide Jewish Encyclopedia, article Zionism.) And yet it is only fair to say that there would have been ample reason and justification for Dr. Wise to withdraw his serious allegations against Herzl and make the amende honorable. If he could thus change his mind about his quondam opponent, is it not fair to infer that he would have equally changed his attitude towards Zionism? Be that as it may, it is indeed a sign of the times that his disciples are today setting aside their preconceived notions and coming out as ardent exponents and champions of Zionism, the only "ism" that is destined to save Israel, in the memorable words of the late Rabbi Bernard Felsenthal, from "total extinction and annihilation."

N. E. B. EZRA.
Shanghai, China, June 2, 1916.

Jewish Societies and Trefah Banquets

A thing that is becoming very common nowadays is the holding of banquets in hotels by societies whose membership is of the Jewish persuasion. We see Jewish lodges, Y. M. H. A.'s, Menorah societies, Zionist clubs, and general organizations openly and shamelessly running these affairs. Shall nothing be done about it? Can't we arouse any latent spark of feeling in these individuals? Can't we appeal to their pride (if they have any), to their self-respect, to their Jewish conscience, to their sense of the fitness of things? Can't we do more than just appeal?

It may be of interest to you to learn that one of the older Harvard classes has not held its last two annual reunion dinners, preferring to send the money to the Belgians. Might I be permitted to suggest to our errant brethren who insist on making these public exhibitions of themselves that our stricken co-religionists in Europe stand in infinitely more need of aid than even the Belgians?

These trefah banquets are disgusting—positively nauseating. They are indecent; they are thoroughly disgraceful and un-Jewish. Let us hope that they will speedily be no more.

JACOB HELLER.
Dorchester, Mass., 25 Sivan, 5676.

A Warning to Jewish Parents.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
With the advent of summer we respectfully desire to call the attention of the Jewish public to the efforts being made by missionaries to send Jewish children to country homes for vacations.

During their stay in the country as the guests of the missionaries the children coming from Jewish homes must offer Christian prayers and sing Christian hymns, and, in several instances of which we have learned, must attend chapel services.

We would advise all parents to acquaint themselves with the character of those who offer free vacations, for many a Jewish child's first lesson in another faith is received far away from the protecting influence of the home.

We would ask the editors of the various Jewish publications to warn the parents of the summer activities of the missionaries and also the principals of the Talmud Torahs, the Jewish settlement heads, etc., to inform their charges of the baneful effects which may follow the spending of a vacation in a cottage maintained by missionaries.

PAULINE ROTHBERG,
Chairman Propaganda Committee, the Builders of Israel.

An Anniversary.

Editor HEBREW STANDARD:
Owing to the horrible bloodshed in Europe at the present time very few people will remember that on the 21st inst. two years had elapsed since the genial woman and friend of mankind, Baroness von Suttner, passed away.

On November 18, 1891, Die Neue Freie Presse published in its columns an article which attracted the attention of the whole civilized world, and as a result the first international peace congress was called.

Baroness von Suttner set a world-wide example by promulgating the peace movement, not only in printed form, which has found its highest expression in the unforgettable book, "Die Waffen nieder," but she preached for and defended the peace movement against its opponents on every occasion. Taking into consideration that the baroness was a woman of high social standing, she attracted the labor classes by appearing in person and addressing workingmen's gatherings.

As a recognition of her work on behalf of the international peace congress she was awarded the Nobel prize.

When, in July, 1914, all the European countries were on the brink of war, her book, "Disarm," was printed in English and widely circulated, although without effect.

We Jews mourn the loss of this great friend of our people, who was an intimate associate of the great leader, Theodore Herzl.

Very truly yours,
MORRIS CESHINSKY.

C. C. N. Y. Menorah Society.

The academic year just come to a close has witnessed a great stride forward in the development of the College of the City of New York Menorah activities and in the establishment of the society as a potent element in collegiate activities. The true meaning of the Menorah has been brought to the attention of the student-body in such a manner that the former indifference has almost entirely given way to an active interest—or, at least, to a warm sympathy—for the Menorah idea. The past year has been the banner year as far as actual Menorah work accomplished is concerned. While the lectures and the forums were conducted along practically the same lines as hitherto, it was the study circles which constituted by far the most important and most distinctive of C. C. N. Y. Menorah activities. It is only within the past year that the idea of the study circles was developed, and they have proven so successful that almost every other Menorah Society in the country has followed our example and adopted the study circle as the chief activity of the society.

At the College of the City of New York every Menorah member is expected to attend at least one hour a week at a study circle. In the study circles a group of not more than ten members comes together once a week for one hour, and discusses or studies some subject which that group has chosen. The circles are conducted by the members themselves with one of their number as leader. During the year fourteen circles were conducted weekly in this way.

In connection with the study circles the Menorah Library has proved of inestimable value to the members, since it enabled them to get the material for the study circles without recourse to the public libraries. During the year the library has been enlarged to almost double its former size, and consists now of several hundred volumes, including books on all aspects of Judaism. These books may be borrowed for a period of two weeks, subject to renewal by all Menorah members.

Through the generosity of Hon. Abram L. Elkus the society has been enabled to offer the sum of $100 for the best essay on any phase of Jewish life. The results of the competition are shortly to be announced.

The new administration is preparing plans to continue and further develop the splendid work accomplished during the past year.

Sisterhood Opens Public Playground.

On Monday afternoon, June 26, the Sisterhood of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue opened a public playground at the corner of Essex and Broome streets, for the use of the neighborhood. The property has been loaned to the Sisterhood by the Police Department, and the playground has been equipped by Mr. Henry S. Hendricks, president of the Junior League of the Sisterhood.

At this meeting Mr. Peterson, of the Police Department, and six sergeants of the district attended the meeting and spoke on the use of the playground work.

The Rev. Dr. D. de Sola Pool, the Hon. N. Taylor Phillips, Mr. Mayer M. Svaab, Jr., and Mrs. Mortimer M. Menken, president of the Sisterhood, also made addresses.

The equipment was purchased and put in place through the efforts of the chairman of the Sisterhood's House Committee, Miss M. Rosina Samuel and Mrs. J. Levy, resident workers of the Neighborhood House, 86 Orchard street.

Mr. J. de A. Benyunes, the chairman of Religious Work, led the children of the Sisterhood's Talmud Torah schools for religious and patriotic songs. Each one carried a flag, and there was

Zionist Council of Greater New York.
A meeting of the Executive Board of the Zionist Council of Greater New York was held under the chairmanship of Mr. Morris Rothenberg, president of the council, on Monday, June 26. Mr. Isaac Carmel was elected secretary of the council.
Mr. Carmel was the organizer of the Order Sons of Zion, and he was very successful in his work for this organization. He possesses executive ability and he is also a good speaker, and it is the hope of the present council that he will be able to establish Zionist organizations in all corners of this great and vast Jewish community.

Where Reform Falls.

For the ensuing three months I expect to be preached to and not to be preaching myself. This expectation may, perhaps, be a little too sanguine, in view of the kind hospitality and the patient fore-bearing which the Atlantic City Temple manifests in its dealings with visiting summer rabbis. The pulpit of this congregation is placed generously at the disposal of the preachers from other parts of the land. The chance to display eloquence and erudition is open to every rabbinical summer guest. As the Central Conference of American Rabbis is scheduled to hold its session in the nearby resort, Wildwood, the likelihood is great that there will be no dearth of rabbinical illumination in this region in the near future.

Were I one of the directors of this congregation I should institute a Min'hah service in addition to the evening and morning services now conducted every Sabbath. This would increase the opportunity for profiting by the presence of the great preachers. The attendance at the services here, as a rule, are very good. But it is not the "native" who furnish the larger contingent. Most of the worshippers are transients. As the number of visitors is as yet not considerable, last Sabbath the vacant pews outnumbered by far the rows of such as were occupied.

Be it recorded here that conservative Judaism is considerably in evidence hereabouts. More than a score of hotels and boarding houses display over their portals the reassuring legend that the food therein provided is kosher. Butcher shops with similar devices and advertising over door and on window are not scarce. Ocular evidence abounds, then, here that Western impiety is not as flagrant in this region as it is in its own Godforsaken haunts. How far this tendency to be loyal to the habits and views, and the gastronomy of the fathers goes it is not possible for a stray observer to determine. But there is sufficient ground for the suspicion that as many other bolstorous professions, so this ostensible adherence to traditional law is not very strenuously supported and borne out by action. If word were the ultimate test indeed liberal Judaism, as we understand it at home, could not claim recognition in this latitude.

I repeat what I believe I recorded last year as the sum of my observations. Reform as here taught and understood has naught in common with our interpretation of Judaism and its historical content. Under the usurped designation reform or liberal, views are advanced that are purloined from our neighbors' theology. Small wonder that the thinking few reject this caricature, and have for the movement, which seemingly stands for it, only contempt. This fact more than any other explains why conservative Judaism so called is in such high favor with the prominent leaders of seaside Jewry.—EMIL G. HIRSCH, in Reform Advocate.

Edmund Burke Feldman, son of the late Professor Ephraim Feldman, of the Hebrew Union College, has made a most enviable record for himself in the scientific department of the University of Cincinnati. He had the highest average, covering the entire course of four years in the engineering college, and was winner of the Dean Schnelder prize for the best essay in the engineering department. Upon his graduation on June 10 he was offered a fellowship in engineering, valued at $500, by Dean Schnelder. He was elected to membership in Tau Beta Pi, the honorary engineering fraternity.

Judge Brandeis.

The warmest congratulations will be tendered by Jews to their co-religionist, the Hon. Louis D. Brandeis, who has now definitely attained the splendid distinction of judge of the United States Supreme Court. At the same time the appointment will cause a very natural feeling of pride among our people, and a feeling of even increased regard for the great State which has set yet another impressive example in the realm of human rights and civic equality. We do not forget that Mr. Brandeis has reached his present position in spite of some inevitable opposition. Nor can we be quite oblivious of the fact that he has achieved this signal honor without in the least shedding his Jewish sympathies. On the contrary, he is at this very moment in charge of the Zionist movement in the United States, having taken it under his care at a moment when the world-war, with its cross-currents, threatened the Jewish Nationalist endeavors with shipwreck. The significance of this remarkable spectacle—the leader of Jewish Nationalism sitting in the Supreme Court of the United States—will not be lost upon Jews the world over, and requires no emphasizing. And all we need do here is to pay our tribute of admiration to the republic—and not least to President Wilson, by whose nomination the Judge holds his high office. We should be less than human did we fail to remember that in the two great English-speaking States at this moment one Jew has a seat in the Supreme Court of the United States, while another occupies the post of Lord Chief Justice. Everybody who cares for the cause of human progress will draw the only possible conclusion from that splendid fact—and not least in its relation to the great struggle between two civilizations which still hends the world in strife and sorrow.—London (Eng.) Jewish Chronicle.

Former Reichstag Deputy Dr. Arthur Mahler died in Vienna on April 22. The deceased was instructor in classic archaeology at the German University of Prague. In 1907 he was elected a member of the Reichstag as a Jewish Nationalist, and received the support of the Zionists and also of the Ruthenians. During recent years Dr. Mahler lived in Vienna and contributed largely to the local press on political questions.

THE FREEDOM OF RESIGNATION

W HEN we speak of the freedom of resignation, we mean the freedom of the individual to resign from any position or office, without being bound by any contract or agreement, and to do so at any time and in any manner.

This freedom is essential to the development of the individual and to the progress of the nation. It is the basis of all liberty and the foundation of all justice.

The freedom of resignation is not only a right of the individual, but also a duty. It is the duty of every citizen to stand up for his rights and to defend them against any and all encroachments.

The freedom of resignation is a principle that should be applied to all positions of authority and to all offices of public trust. It is the only way to ensure that those in power are held accountable to the people.

HIDDEN POSSIBILITIES

DEAR FRIENDS, I AM WRITING TO YOU TODAY TO TALK TO YOU ABOUT THE HIDDEN POSSIBILITIES OF OUR NATION.

There are many hidden possibilities in our nation, many things that we have not yet discovered. We must look for them and bring them to light.

Our nation is a land of great promise, a land of great potential. We must not let these possibilities go to waste. We must use them to the benefit of all.

The hidden possibilities of our nation are not only in our resources, but also in our people. We must educate our people and give them the opportunity to reach their full potential.

Let us work together to bring these hidden possibilities to light. Let us strive for a better future for our nation and for all its people.

ARE YOU DOING YOUR DUTY?

An open letter from Mr. Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, of the funds for Jewish War Sufferers, to all the Jews of America.

We, the Jews of America, are the only ones to whom the millions of our unhappy co-religionists in the war zone can stretch forth their hands, and beg for pity, and help in order to obtain bread; their previous cries were heard, and their present, and future needs are serious problems with which we are confronted.

The Joint Distribution Committee, consisting of the American Jewish Relief Committee, the Central Relief Committee, and the People's Relief Committee, represents American Jewry of all classes and walks in life, orthodox and reform, capitalists and laboring classes.

As chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, which is the clearing house of the three committees, I take pleasure in expressing my sincerest appreciation to each of these committees, and to every individual contributor through whose efforts to swell the fund for Jewish War Sufferers, we have been able to alleviate in part the awful calamities of our co-religionists in the war zone.

Up to this time the contributions have been generous, yet I grieve to report that the donations from all the three committees during the past few months have fallen off considerably, although the demands from the crying suppliants abroad are becoming more pressing and the necessity daily grows greater and more urgent.

A most gruesome communication has just come into the hands of the Joint Distribution Committee from Dr. S. Nathanson, of Warsaw. Over 17,000 children of tender age, under fourteen years, are naked and barefoot, without a rag on their backs, suffering appalling hunger and thirst, and other almost inconceivable privations. They look to us for help.

Similar sad conditions exist in every portion of the war zone, and we in America must not and dare not permit our generous donations to cease while the great catastrophe still rages over our afflicted co-religionists.

May I beg most earnestly that all the Chevras and societies throughout our country, who have collected money for the war sufferers, kindly send their money to the respective committees, or to the Joint Distribution Committee, at its central office, 52 William Street, where it will immediately be sent through a commission of American citizens to the needy ones abroad. The contributing society or individual may, if it is so desired, suggest a particular place for distribution of its donation, and the committee will be very glad indeed to follow all instructions.

The time has come, in my judgment, when the Joint Distribution Committee must be able to know well in advance what funds will be placed at its disposal, so that it can systematically arrange for distribution of relief moneys abroad. The best plan thus far suggested and adopted at our last meeting is that of Mr. Morris Engelman—that every city throughout the nation should be required to raise a certain specified sum each month. Every one would thus be able to undertake a task of such proportion as its financial condition may warrant. In order to avoid every possibility of duplication, a uniform receipt will be issued by the three committees, indorsed by the Joint Distribution Committee. This will still leave it open to every one to forward his contribution to any particular committee he chooses. But as the Joint Distribution Committee will be a clearing house for all such receipts, every one will know that his money has reached the central office and that his contribution has been properly recorded, thus leaving no suspicion of our having evaded a self-imposed moral obligation.

In this manner duplication of appeals and expenses will be avoided. In order to give the general public an idea of the great work accomplished by the Joint Distribution Committee, it is proper to state that in Russia for general relief funds, there are 349 points of distribution; in Poland, within German occupation, there are over 300 committees; in Palestine local committees chosen by our three committees here in America are distributing funds under the supervision of the United States consuls; in Tunis, Morocco, Algiers, Turkey other than Palestine, Switzerland, everywhere where our people are suffering because of the war, we are in constant communication with prominent local Jews who are co-operating with the United States consuls wherever possible to ameliorate the plight of the war victims.

In Russia.—There has been forwarded thus far to Russia the sum of $1,538,315.06 in the way of general relief and direct remittances. Of the latter there have thus far been sent 6,838, each of which represents the amount forwarded by some one in this country for the relief of designated relative or friend in the war zone. Each person who receives such a remittance is required to sign a receipt, which is returned to us at our Remittance Bureau in room 705, 52 William Street, where the remitter is notified to call and look at the receipt of his payee. At the time of this writing, a new batch of over 200 receipts has just come in, making in round numbers about 2,200 receipts in our possession, showing that almost one-third of the remittances have actually reached the hands for which they were intended. We have every reason to believe that in Russia, as well as in other portions of the war zone, more payments than those for which we have effected, but until we receive the payees' receipts showing that the designated money has been delivered, we do not notify the remitters in this country that payment has been effected.

In Poland within German Hands.—There has been sent thus far to occupied territories in Germany the sum of $1,337,999.52 in the way of general relief and of direct remittances. Of the latter, 4,576 have thus far gone forward, for which we have secured up to the present writing over 2,500 receipts signed by the payees, showing that more than half of the remittances have thus far reached the hands for which they were intended.

In Austro-Hungary and Galicia and the occupied territory within Austrian hands there has been sent thus far forward the sum of $922,519.34 in the way of general relief and direct remittances.

In Palestine.—There has been sent thus far to Palestine the sum of $375,722.72 in the way of general relief and direct remittances, of which latter number we have 1,103, for which we have thus far received 236 receipts, showing that about one-fifth of the payments have actually been effected.

In Greece and Turkey other than Palestine there was sent thus far the sum of $124,510 in the way of general relief and direct remittances, of which the latter amount to sixteen in number. In addition to the relief which was afforded in the above fashion—that is, by means of money collected for the general fund and forwarded to the various sections of the war zone in the installments designated—and in addition to the relief afforded by transmitting on behalf of individuals in this country such sums as they have for the amelioration of their relatives and friends, the Joint Distribution Committee is rendering invaluable service in locating for people in this country their relatives, many of whom were driven from their original places of residence, and who could not have been located by the anxious inquirers here without the excellent machinery of the Joint Distribution Committee.

In addition to locating refugees and others in the war zone, the Joint Distribution Committee has also made searches throughout the country on behalf of people abroad who send to the Joint Distribution Committee only the vaguest details—all they have in their possession—concerning the names, occupations and possible addresses of people in this country to whom they can turn for succor.

It is our intention, after the war is over and normal conditions again prevail, to publish a book containing a detailed account of our work, in which will appear the names of those who have made this work possible.

Very truly yours,
 FELIX M. WARBURG,
 Chairman Joint Distribution Committee.

Dr. Friedenwald's Rejoinder.
 Baltimore, Md., June 25, 1916.
 Louis Marshall, Esq., President and Dr. Cyrus Adler, Chairman, Executive Committee, the American Jewish Committee.

Gentlemen: I have received your reply to my letter of resignation from the American Jewish Committee. It is useless to discuss now just what was said at the "Conference of Presidents" concerning the relation between a meeting held at my home and the formation of the American Jewish Committee. It is likewise needless to explain to you that the demands of my profession are such as make my attendance on meetings out of town difficult and at times impossible. That I have, however, made earnest endeavors to prevent a breach is well known to you. Your insinuations on that score are most unfair. I shall make no denial of statements which you attribute to me, but which you do not find in my letter of resignation, nor shall I follow you in the use of invectives which I abhor even when indulged in by officers of the American Jewish Committee.

You have explained at length the recent service of the committee in securing planks in the party platforms, expressing the hope of obtaining equal rights for all after the war is over. You have, however, failed to indicate that the sole power to which you owe this influence is that of the great body of American Jews; in spite of this, however, the committee has deliberately closed its ears to popular demands.

You cannot have seriously meant that "you and your new-found associates" seem to have fallen into the strange error of supposing that the people on whose behalf we are concerned in the present crisis live in the United States." We know but too well that "it is the people who suffer in the war zone and who live in lands of oppression whom we desire to rescue." I am surprised that you should have made such a statement. Entertaining such views, however, explains your attitude.

You reiterate again that "your new-found associates, some of whom have but recently discovered that they were Jews," etc. It should be below the dignity of the officers of the American Jewish Committee, to speak in this disparaging manner of the one to whom this refers. As Jews interested in the welfare of our people, we should rejoice that at the zenith of a life of service to the people of the United States, he has placed himself, his wisdom, his idealism, his wonderful power, in the service of his people.

You may desire comfort from the fact that "never has a whisper been heard that they (the people who suffer in the war zone and who live in lands of oppression) repudiate or even criticize the American Jewish Committee or its work." Is it not possible that they do not know that an American Jewish Committee exists? But they do know that they have millions of brothers and sisters in these United States. To them they look for sympathy and help, to them their cries of despair have gone out. It is they who form the "overwhelming masses—the unorganized masses which have so long been silent." And it is this same body of American Jews which has been trying to answer, trying to aid. The American Jewish Committee refused to permit them to participate in its councils. The leaders of the American Jewish Committee looked with contempt upon their efforts to find expression in meetings and in conferences, when they should have welcomed with joy the participation of a large part of American Jewry in the solution of the gravest problem that the Jewish people has faced.

I am unwilling to believe that "a majority of the members of the American Jewish Committee" will subscribe to the charge you make against me of "an ignoble shirking of individual and communal duty and a betrayal of Judaism and of common humanity." But I am ready to place my cause before a higher tribunal, the Jewish people of this country.

In conclusion I must reject the insinuation, twice made in your letter, of a design to destroy the American Jewish Committee. Had I had this desire I should have regarded any effort as needless. For no action could have been more effective in destroying the influence of the American Jewish Committee than that of its leaders in their insistent rejection of popular support.

Very truly yours,
 HARRY FRIEDENWALD.

An Open Letter to the Conference in Session Assembled at Wildwood, N. J., Auent the Harmonization of Civil and Religious Marriage Laws.

The report of Dr. Simon, to be presented at this year's conference with a view to harmonizing civil and religious marriage laws, will of a certainty effect a schism in Israel if the intimation in his last year's paper—for they cannot be styled recommendations—are carried into effect. Much as his paper last year—so his report this year—appears to be an individual effort, not representing the committee on civil and religious marriage laws, in so far as Dr. Simon's name does not appear in the list of names under the caption of committeemen. Thus his opinions cannot represent the view of the conference. Should his views of last year be incorporated in his this year's report, it would mean a break with the Holiness Code, Leviticus, chapter 18, for almost 3,000 years Israel's particular pride. This Holiness Code is admitted by the very best critics to be the quintessence of priestly work. It was the result of long meditation, and has never been challenged or altered in Israel's long history. No conference, however radical, has ever set it aside. Neither the Breslau conference in 1846 nor the synod at Leipzig in 1869, nor that of Augsburg in 1871 have in the remotest deviated from it. All stood by it. Israel's last pride as a religion would be gone with the alteration of the Holiness Code. This section was so much thought of that it was always read on a Yom Kippur afternoon as a caution for sex discipline and as a token of Israel's protest against un-schooled forms of living. Throughout its long history the code has stood as a remarkable monument to Israel's ideals of purity.

On page 381 of the Conference Year Book, 1915, Dr. Simon intimates that the law preventing a brother-in-law from marrying a sister-in-law, whether she has or has not a child, should be abrogated. Dr. Simon misses the real point, which he may find in Dr. Mielziner's book on "Marriage and Divorce," a classic and a standard work. Dr. Simon bases his point on Dr. Kohler's, who dubiously leans toward the abrogation of this law, on the score that the Levirate marriage was allowed. However, on page 57, Dr. Mielziner explicitly says in his book that Haliza was to be preferred, "because it was considered doubtful whether he who marries his brother's widow with other than the purest motives is not actually committing incest." In fine, Jewish sentiment now, as in Talmudic times, is against the Levirate marriage, and Haliza was really a protest against marriage.

Thus Judaism in spirit was wholly against any infringement of the Levitical law prohibiting the marriage of a brother-in-law to a sister-in-law, whether she has or has not any children.

The other changes with reference to this code which Dr. Simon contemplates making are no less subversive of Israel's religious spirit and that splendid system that has given us vitality for many centuries. This code has stood as a bond of unity in the household of Israel. With conditions as they beset the household of Israel now, with the slow but sure process of assimilation going on, it would be nothing short of suicidal to weaken these laws. Then, for whom shall these changes be made? They who break with these laws are less than one in a hundred thousand. And shall the laws in the whole household of Israel be changed for the sake of one or two exceptions.

So this is a word of caution to Dr. Simon, who, for the sake of one or two, would set aside moral standards that have served millions of Jews and that still continue as a bond of unity between Jews in every land, whatever their shade of religious opinion.

Congress Executive Declines A. J. C. Invitation.

A meeting of the Executive Organization Committee for an American Jewish Congress was held in the offices of Mr. Nathan Straus, Aeolian Hall Building, on Thursday, June 22, the first session being held in the afternoon and the second in the evening. Justice Louis D. Brandeis presided, and among those present were members from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Newark, Washington, Chicago and Madison, Wis.

The secretary presented a report of the recent activities of the organization and of correspondence carried on with various affiliated and unaffiliated organizations. A communication was presented from the American Jewish Committee and other organizations which had called a conference for July 16 to consider the question of Jewish rights and of the holding of a congress. After a lengthy discussion, in which most of the members took part, the following resolutions were adopted:

1. That the invitation of the American Jewish Committee and other organizations to this body to attend a conference to be held at the Hotel Astor on July 16 be declined.
2. That it is the sense of this meeting that no organization affiliated with the congress organization be officially represented at the said conference.
3. That it is the sense of this body that we regret the action of any organizations that have already voted to send delegates to the conference, and we hope that such organizations will rescind their decisions.
4. That the American Jewish Committee and other organizations be notified further, in answer to their invitation, that a committee of three has been appointed by this organization, which will be ready to attend their conference, if invited, to lay before the delegates there assembled the views of this organization.

Rabbi Rosenthal Re-elected.

At the June meeting of Washington Heights Congregation (508-510 West 161st Street), Rabbi Moses Rosenthal was re-elected unanimously with an increase in salary. This is the fourth year of the rabbi's work in this community, and since his call to the position considerable progress has been made.

An Unusual Rabbi.
 Rabbi Joel Blau, of the Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, will not take a vacation during the ensuing summer, and will deliver a sermon every Sabbath morning. The congregation is now holding services at Leslie Hall, in New York City.

In view of the fact that the majority of rabbis recreate during the summer months, and that many of the synagogues are closed or else hold only brief perfunctory formal services, the action of Rabbi Blau may be regarded as unusual.

We conceive that Rabbi Blau takes his course from choice. Thus viewing it, the subject becomes interesting, insofar as it applies to the wisdom of the self-denial implied by thus refusing a vacation.

The conception of vacation to men of the ministry is that the relaxation better fits them for thinking and for doing.

Frankly, this theory might with equal justice fit to any man or woman in any field of labor.

We would be the last to deny any man, least of all a rabbi, the rest or recreation that he doubtless has deserved in many instances.

The only question that could be raised is whether a rabbi should have an extended vacation of all summer if his congregation needs his services.

In mercantile life the question is no problem, for either others perform the duties of the temporary absentee or the worker does not go.

The rabbi, as a rule, expects his summer rest. The voluntary devotion to his post throughout the summer by Rabbi Blau is therefore worthy of comment. We do not think he will have many imitators. From the Modern Vice, St. Louis, Mo.

Darioles of Poultry or Game.

Six oz. minced game or poultry, 1 gill brown sauce, 1 tablespoonful bread-crumbs, 1 egg, chopped tongue, truffles and mushroom, salt and pepper, brown sauce, a little wine and red currant jelly. Well grease 8 small dariole moulds, and sprinkle 4 with the chopped tongue, and 4 with the truffles or mushroom. Mix the other ingredients well together, season it, and fill the lined moulds. Cover with greased paper and steam for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve with brown sauce, flavored with red currant jelly and a little wine.

Egg Plants with Anchovies.

Remove the stems from some aubergines, split them in halves and cut the inside of each half in 4 or 5 places lengthways; season these spaces with pepper, salt, chopped shallot and parsley. Steep some neat filets of anchovy in olive oil, then place one in each incision, brush the aubergines over with oil, sprinkle the top with browned breadcrumbs, and place them on a greased tin in the oven for about 20 minutes. Place on a hot dish and garnish with parsley.

Cauliflower a la Varenne.

Trim a cauliflower and place it in salt and water for 1 hour; then put it in a saucepan of cold water with a pinch of salt, bring it to the boil, rinse the cauliflower and put it again in boiling water seasoned with salt to boil till tender. Cut it in pieces, place it in the center of a hot dish, pour parsley sauce over and garnish with braised carrots or a macedoine of vegetables, placing the cut up stalks of the cauliflower in the center.

Boiled Green Peas.

Shell the peas just before they are required; put them into a saucepan with just enough boiling water to cover them, a sprig of mint, a little salt, and 1 teaspoonful sugar; boil them till tender (about 15 to 20 minutes) with the lid off the saucepan; when done, drain, add a little pepper and a small piece of clarified dripping, and serve at once.

White Cabbage Salad.

One firm hard white cabbage, oil, vinegar, salt, pepper. Remove the outer leaves of the cabbage, wash it thoroughly and shred it finely with a sharp knife. Mix with it a proper proportion of oil, vinegar, salt and pepper, turn it over a few times till well mixed, and serve. Red cabbage salad is made in the same way.

Stewed Leeks.

Trim, peel and clean the leeks, cutting off most of the green part, and lay them in water for about 1 hour; cook them in boiling water and a little salt for 20 to 30 minutes; drain from the water, and dish them up, covering them with white sauce, well flavored with salt and cayenne.

Stewed Globe Artichokes.

Cut the artichokes into quarters, scrape out the inside and trim the leaves about half. Fry the pieces in oil with a shallot chopped fine, until it is all a light brown, season with pepper and salt. Add bones or pieces of cold meat and enough good stock to cover, and let them stew till tender. Take out the pieces of artichoke and strain the sauce over them in the dish. The sauce should be thick and dark brown. Take the lid off the stew-pan some time before serving to let it boil down, otherwise the sauce will be thin and watery.

Roast Goose, Apple Sauce.

One goose, sage and onions, clarified fat, brown sauce, apple sauce. Have a goose trussed for roasting, stuff it with sage and onions, and fasten it up with a skewer or string; rub it well over with clarified fat, wrap it in a greased paper and put it to roast or bake for 3/4 hour or more, according to size. Place it on a hot dish, remove the paper, skewers and strings, and serve with some thin brown sauce and compote of apples or apple sauce.

Much of the flavor of really good coffee is lost to the housewife through purchasing in quantities and then having it get stale on her. This can be obviated by using Ernst's Special Coffee, put up by F. Ernst & Son, Section N., No. 3 (Fulton street side) Washington Market, which is also on sale at their branch establishment, 792 Westchester avenue, Bronx. They roast their coffees fresh every hour, and thus enable the purchaser to take a limited quantity and overcome the risk of it getting stale. "Ernst's Special" is sold at the nominal price of 19 cents per pound or five pounds for 90 cents; the sellers warrant it to be the equal of most coffees sold elsewhere for 30 cents. Their teas usually sold at 60 cents are retailed at 35 cents per pound, or three pounds for $1, and while these prices may seem ridiculously low, yet a trial will convince you of the excellence of the teas and coffee sold by Messrs. F. Ernst & Son.—Adv.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

To keep an open pail of paint fresh stir it well to dissolve all the oil, then fill up the pail with water. When the paint is again needed for use pour off the water.

Imitation frosted glass is made by dissolving in a little hot water as much epsom salts as it will absorb. Paint the glass with the water while it is warm.

To remove slight scratches from plate glass, clean first the injured surface by rubbing it with a pad of cotton wool. Then cover the pad with a layer of cotton velvet, well charged with a fine rouge, and this when rubbed over the surface, will not only remove the scratches, but will also add a new luster to the glass.

Salt, slightly moistened, will remove stains left in the bottom of teacups, but as the salt will scratch a delicate china, in this case it is wiser to use powdered whiting, which is equally efficacious.

If the housekeeper is unable to obtain a regular brush for cleaning polished floors, a substitute can be made by covering an ordinary broom with a soft muslin bag. For sweeping rooms that are covered with matting, dampen the bag.

When cleaning oilcloth, put two tablespoonfuls of turpentine into the bucket of water, and the result will be that the oilcloth will look much brighter.

When any basket chairs require cleaning, scrub them well with a coarse brush and water that is strongly saturated with salt. Then dry with soft cloth. Salt not only cleans wicker-work, but prevents it from turning yellow. Straw matting may be most successfully cleaned in the same way.

When washing greasy dishes, etc., use a few drops of ammonia in the water instead of soda.

Boot polish which has become dry can be successfully softened with a few drops of turpentine.

Salmon Souffle.
Beat one egg. Add one cupful of milk, the contents of a small can of salmon, one and one-fourth cupfuls of cracker crumbs, and pepper and salt to taste. Mix thoroughly and turn into a casserole. Drop three or four small pieces of butter on top. Bake about fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

Boiled Endive.
Parboil sharply in salted water for 20 minutes, then drain, rinse, dry, chop, and stew or simmer for 20 to 30 minutes in stock.

Moses Hyamson officiating. The bride was attended by Mrs. Abner S. Werblin, as matron of honor, and the Misses Sylvia Michelman and Helen Crystal as flower girls. Mr. Abner S. Werblin was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Kodin left for a Western trip, and on their return will reside in New York city.

Among those registered for the season at Wolfson's, Arverne, L. I., are: Mr. and Mrs. I. Ozdoba and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. Zeltz and family, Messrs. S. Lisk and brother, their mother and the Misses Lisk; Mr. and Mrs. L. Finkelstein and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. Bayer and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Nowalk and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Geviz and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ph. Rothenberg and family, Mrs. M. Bayer and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Dykes, Mr. and Mrs. B. Githman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Samuels and family, Mr. and Mrs. N. Ginsburg and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Menos.

Unfair Stamp Legislation Vetoed in Massachusetts.

Thousands of women who are collectors of trading stamps and coupons, as well as merchants who are interested in the subject of premium advertising, both pro and con, will find food for thought in the action of the Legislature of that State in sustaining the Governor's veto of a bill which had for its purpose the elimination by excessive taxation of co-operative profit-sharing in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. This action coming as it does at this time when premium giving is under "fire," is a pertinent indication of how inspired legislation directed toward the disintegration of premium-advertising is to be regarded in the future.

After this bill had been passed and was put up to the Governor for his signature, the attention of the Legislature was called to the fact that the bill created a preferential class. The Governor made this very clear in his message, as follows:

"While the reason is not apparent to me for permitting the issue and redemption of stamps by the same party and prohibiting the issue by one party and redemption by another, and while on first thought such a discrimination would appear to be in favor of the large trader and against the small one. Yet due deference to the action of the Legislature and to the investigations which preceded the passage of the act would lead me to waive doubts I might have upon that aspect of the subject in favor of the bill. It appears, however, to create a preferential class which should never be created without a very strong reason. The objection which constrains me to withhold my approval from the bill rests upon constitutional grounds."

The message explained that the State courts of Massachusetts have always upheld the legality of trading stamps and similar instruments. The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, holding certain anti-trading stamp legislation of certain States to be valid under the Federal Constitution, does not, he says, imply that these or other laws are necessarily valid under the individual State constitutions. The Supreme Court of each State has always been accepted as the final interpreter of its own Constitution.

It was pointed out that article 1 of the bill of Rights of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is quite different from the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution and expresses the belief that the freedom of trade guaranteed by the bill of rights is quite obviously curtailed by the restrictions of the measure presented for approval.

The absolute fairness of this ruling is significant in that the proposed legislation was branded as obviously discriminatory and while it is well within the province of the State to pass laws regulating any business, these laws must subscribe to the spirit and intent of the Constitution of that State.

Pauline Frederick, in the screen version of E. Phillip Oppenheim's novel, "The World's Great Snare," is the current feature at the Strand Theatre for the week of June 25. The Oppenheim story is one of the Wild West in the days of the gold fever, and is replete with thrilling scenes and dramatic incidents. A Max Figman comedy, called "Microbes," a scenic picture and a Mutt and Jeff comedy are also shown. The musical program for the week, aside from the overture and incidental music, includes Bruce Weyman, baritone, and Miss Autumn Hall, violinist.

Stewed Asparagus.
One bundle asparagus, white sauce, salt, pepper, and a grate of nutmeg. Clean the asparagus, scrape the stalks carefully, and remove all stringy fibres. Cut them into short lengths and put them into a stew-pan with sufficient thin white sauce over them to cover the pieces. Cook very slowly until tender; season with salt, pepper and a grate of nutmeg. Stir them gently occasionally to prevent them from burning. Serve hot.

Roumanian Jews Confer With B'nai B'rith Head.

At the request of Mr. Adolph Kraus, president of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, a committee of the American League of Roumanian Jews met him last Friday morning at the Hotel Astor, when Mr. Kraus informed them that he has received some important documents concerning conditions of the Jews in Roumania and suggestions for various plans of action in their behalf. For obvious reasons the documents cannot be published at present. In a letter, one of the leading Jews in Roumania states that organizations have been formed in France, Germany, Switzerland, and other countries, with the object of securing the emancipation of the Roumanian Jews, and he urges that the Roumanian Jews in America do the same thing.

The American League of Roumanian Jews, which was recently organized for this purpose, will take up the question of bringing to the attention of the American public the condition of the Jews in Roumania, in the hope of enlisting their sympathy and interest in their behalf. The gravity of the situation is such that an immediate unification of all Roumanian elements and forces throughout this country becomes imperative.

The members of the committee present were: Dr. P. A. Siegelstein, Messrs. Louis Diamant, D. M. Hermalin, Charles I. Fleck, Leo Wolfson, Nathaniel Feldman, Edward Herbert, Herbert Salter and Leon Schwartz.

Annual Meeting of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives, at Denver, Colo.

Sunday afternoon, June 18, was made memorable at the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives by the dedication of the William S. Friedman Building. Officers and trustees of the hospital from many States were present, as well as Jewish citizens of Denver and Christian representatives.

President Samuel Grabfelder, in the name of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives, dedicated the original building of the hospital, to be known as the William S. Friedman Building, in honor of the distinguished services of Rabbi William S. Friedman during the past twenty-five years.

The annual meeting of the hospital was held on Monday, June 19, in the Joseph E. Shoenberg Memorial Building of the hospital. There was a large attendance at the meeting. Among those present were:

Lucius L. Solomons, of San Francisco, first vice-president of the Executive Committee of the Independent Order B'nai B'rith; Karl Votsburg, of St. Louis, president of District No. 2, Independent Order B'nai B'rith; Messrs. Sidney G. Kusworm, of Dayton, Ohio; Alfred A. Benisch, of Cleveland, Ohio, representatives of the B'nai B'rith.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Samuel Grabfelder, president, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. Walter Freiberg, first vice-president, Cincinnati, Ohio; Rev. Dr. William S. Friedman, second vice-president, Denver, Colo.; David May, third vice-president, St. Louis, Mo.; Harmon August, fourth vice-president, New York, N. Y.; Mrs. S. Young Judaea of New York City Hold Annual Convention.

The Young Judaea clubs and district councils of New York city, at their annual convention, held on Sunday last at the Hebrew Technical Institute, decided upon a local Young Judaea organization. Previously this work was conducted by the national body. Sunday's deliberation resulted in a Young Judaea organization of New York, similar to State bodies existing in New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and New York State. A constitution was drafted, to be presented to the national convention at Long Branch for ratification, and an executive committee of twenty was elected to be in charge of all local activity.

The convention opened with a leaders' session on Saturday evening, June 24, at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Eighty-fifth street. Two hundred leaders and prospective leaders were in attendance. Mr. Isaac Rosengarten, the president of the New York Leaders' Association, presided. Addresses were delivered by Dr. David de Sola Pool, the president, and by Mr. David Schneeburg, the executive secretary of Young Judaea. The aims and work of Young Judaea were explained and plans discussed for the coming year. Besides entertaining numbers, the evening's program included sociability and dancing. The business sessions of the convention opened on Sunday morning at the Hebrew Technical Institute, Ninth street and Stuyvesant place. Three sessions were held—morning, afternoon and evening—and were presided over by Mr. David Schneeburg. One hundred and fifty-eight delegates were in attendance, representing clubs from every section of the city. Reports were rendered by the district councils from Bronx, upper Manhattan, lower Manhattan, lower West Side, Williamsburg, Brownsville, Borough Park and Bath Beach. The reports showed the rapid growth of the movement during the year. There are now in New York city a total membership of 150 clubs affiliated with the national organization, totaling a membership of 2,500, ranging in age from thirteen to twenty-one years.

In addition, the councils reported a large number of other groups, conducting Young Judaea work under the supervision of district councils that have not as yet secured certificates of affiliation. Other reports were rendered bearing upon the formation of junior congregations, the formation of a senior league for older Young Judaea clubs, the formation of an athletic league to spread physical training among the members. One of the most important results of the year was the formation of Young Judaea centers in a number of congregations and other institutions throughout the city. This plan will be continued, with the hope of establishing similar centers at every congregation, Hebrew school and Jewish institution in the city.

The principal feature of the afternoon session was a declamation contest, in which each of the local councils entered one contestant. It proved a very interesting and exciting contest, and the judges arrived at their decision only after a prolonged discussion. Mr. Harry G. Fromberg, chairman of the board of judges, announced that Miss Sarah Jaffee, representing lower Manhattan, was awarded the first prize for a recitation in Hebrew, entitled "The Cup." A second prize was awarded to Miss Leah Vidaver, of the Bronx, for a recitation taken from the play of "Bath Zion," Esther Anapolsky, of Harlem, being awarded the third prize for a recitation, entitled "Israel." Mr. Morris Rothenberg presented the greetings of the Zionist Council of Greater New York and Rabbi Mayer Berlin that of Mizrahi. Greetings were also read from various leaders of the Zionist movement.

At the session held in the evening several important resolutions were adopted bearing upon Young Judaea's efforts in behalf of the Palestine Emergency Fund. It was decided that Young Judaea of New York pledge $5,000 to be collected immediately in answer to an urgent call from the Provisional Zionist Committee. It was further decided that a special Emergency Fund Committee be appointed to continue these efforts during the coming year and that a recommendation be made to the National Convention at Long Branch that a similar committee be appointed at the convention to further such efforts throughout the country.

Another resolution was adopted after considerable discussion that the delegates to the Long Branch Convention be instructed that the minimum age of delegates be lowered from 16 to 13 years. Following the adoption of the constitution, addresses were rendered by Mr. Sylvan Kohn, the president of the New Jersey State Organization, and Mr. Robert Kesselman, representing the Provisional Zionist Committee. The nomination committee then represented its report with the following recommendations: Borough Park, George Cohen; Bath Beach, Mrs. Kesselman; Brownsville, Eisenberg, Max Cohen, Frank Cohen; Williamsburg, Borowsky, Gribetz, Ehrlich; Lower Manhattan, Artz, Leon, Dr. Brill; Bronx, Benjamin Weiss, Miss Benjamin and Mr. Benjamin; Harlem, Mr. Zipper, Zetkin, Miss Hannah Levy. The names as recommended by the committee were unanimously elected. The meeting adjourned at 10:30, with the singing of "Hatikvah" and the "Star-Spangled Banner."

of Chicago; Simon Wolf, of Washington, D. C.; Lucius L. Solomons, of San Francisco; Jacob Furth, of St. Louis; Charles Hartman, of New York; Jacob Singer, of Philadelphia; Rev. Dr. E. N. Calisch, of Richmond, Va.; Philip Stein, of Chicago, and the executive secretary, A. B. Seelenfreund. The committee decided that the order would not participate in either the projected conference or congress to be held by various Jewish bodies, for the reason that as an international organization it would be unwise in the spirit of its constitution to commit the European membership to the action of an assemblage composed exclusively of American Jews. The important Jewish problems arising out of the oppression of the Jewish people in Russia and Roumania accentuated by the war conditions, received the earnest consideration of the committee, and resulted in the adoption of a plan which it is hoped will answer the call of all humane people for the granting of equal rights to Jews in the countries where they are now grievously oppressed. The plan is embodied in the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted and will be promptly carried into execution:

"Resolved, That in furtherance of the organic principles set forth in its constitution and of its settled policy as heretofore consistently maintained, to secure full and equal rights for our co-religionists wherever denied or abridged, the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith appoint a commission of two or more to visit European countries and place before the representatives of the various governments the claims of the Jewish people of the world for equal and political rights;

"That said commissioners seek such co-operation abroad as in their judgment may be helpful to their mission, and likewise take such other course as may be found advisable in the premises;

"That they report progress from time to time to the Executive Committee, and that said committee adopt and carry into effect such further and additional measures as may be necessary to attain the end desired;

"Resolved, further, That we invite the co-operation of all other Jewish organizations, and of all Jews, individually, in support of the action hereby determined upon."

In addition to sums heretofore appropriated, the committee ordered $5,000 for Roumanian relief.

Hon. Henry Morgenthau, ex-Ambassador of the United States to Turkey, and member of the order, was unanimously elected a member-at-large of the Executive Committee and accepted the office.

UNION HOTEL Sharon Springs, N. Y.
Mr. & Mrs. Joseph Garsony, Props

A Pineapple-Tin Synagogue.

Among the Jewish prisoners in Germany it is said that many are sincerely pious, and it is said that they risked "seventy-two hours' arrest" for using lights for Haddallah. Perhaps the most manifestation of this religious zeal is the small wooden synagogue which has been erected in the camp. It is only fifteen by twenty feet, and cost but £53. Two columns, which form part of the architectural features of the building, were composed of pineapple tins, and the chandeliers were made of sardine tins and match boxes. This is surely the strangest synagogue that has reared its timid head in the diaspora.—The Jewish World.

Demonstration for Jewish Rights.

The demonstration and mass meeting which was held at Carnegie Hall on June 21 proved to be a very remarkable meeting, which attracted an overflowing audience of Jews and Jewesses enthusiastic for the Congress movement. Tremendous applause greeted the many distinguished speakers who addressed the gathering, and great impetus was thus given to the calling of an American Jewish Congress by the Jewish democracy of the land.

Mr. Nathan Straus, who presided, said, in part: "It is claimed that this is not the right time to come forward, that we might do more harm than good. Was there ever a right time for us? Have not the governments in Russia, Roumania and Poland always done their worst for our people? Even the bravery and heroism which they have again shown in the war has not softened the hearts of their oppressors. While fathers and husbands fight and fall for their Fatherland, women and children at home meet with the worst treatment. They are denied any of the help which is given to the women and children of other faith. And worse than that, they are driven away penniless, often sick, without knowing which way to turn for home and shelter. What worse could happen to them if their governments are made to realize that across the ocean there stands a body of Jews ready to take up the cause of these poor, persecuted non-religionists to enforce recognition of their equal rights?"

"It is cowardly to be afraid. Our people have been cringing too long, always afraid—afraid of consequences. What could be worse than the treatment they have received for centuries, and for the last fifty years worse than ever?"

"May this meeting be a voice going forth from our whole people, convincing, united, asking and determined to get what our actions and our cause may justify."

Dr. Harry Friedenwald, of Baltimore, Md., whose recent resignation from the American Jewish Committee created a stir, was a speaker, and said, in part:

"The masses have now found a means of voicing their hopes and their desires. The methods that have been adopted are so fair and so just and admit of such universal acceptance that there is no ground why all cannot enter, why all views cannot find expression and why wisdom and prudence of the highest kind cannot prevail. All parties should welcome and rejoice that we have given the people the means to become a part, to take part in the discussion, and the solution of the great and difficult problem. All should be happy to witness the splendid evidence of participation of the people in every Jewish community throughout the land and in the numerous conferences that have been held. If anything had been needed to convince our opponents that they had been mistaken in their estimate of the people, surely these conferences should have given them proof. The earnestness of the discussion, the clearness of their understanding, the familiarity with the questions, the care and the moderation in expression and the good judgment displayed in the resolutions which they adopted should convert even many who had had the lowest estimate of the ability of the masses to take up the problem of the Jewish people. (Applause.) If I were asked the reason for their wise, judicious and temperate care of the problem which they have taken upon themselves I would find no difficulty in furnishing the answer. It is because the people are in such close touch, are so near to our brethren who are suffering, who are going through the great trial of Israel. They feel keenly the suffering of their brethren that no one need warn them to be careful—it is their own, it is their very brethren and sisters, their mothers and their fathers, their own nearest and dearest, about whom they are concerned."

"My friends, when all our Jews in this land realize this, then there will no longer be disunion, but real and true union of all Israel. Let us, my friends, do our part in arousing American Israel to a recognition of its duties."

Judge Hugo Pam, speaking on the Philadelphia conference, said:

"What was represented at this conference? On the one side we had about thirty central and national organizations. We had on the other side, with us also, eighty-three different city congress associations. We had a total of 367 delegates, representing over 4,000 different branches—totaling over one and a half million people—represented in that Philadelphia conference. One million five hundred thousand human souls, that beat with hopes high for the relief of the condition of the Jew abroad—not after the close of the war, but now, and immediately!"

"On the other side, who was not there? Unfortunately the men who had been a factor, and who are a factor—men who, I believe, have been actuated by motives of the highest and most noble, who felt they were doing their duty by the Jews by taking the action that they did. But

Unfortunately they did not read the handwriting on the wall; they did not realize that the people who have come over here since 1882 has grown up, have gotten out of their swaddling clothes—that they, under the American institutions, have grown so that they know what democracy was, because in them was implanted from tradition what democracy was. And they didn't realize that these people had a right to be there. (Applause.) So, practically, we had them absent. Why were they absent? They feared. They feared we there gathered together might be rash in our utterances, we might adopt fanatic resolutions, we might, perhaps, show to the world at large that we were not fit for government. And yet this great country of ours, men who have been here for years—has given us the right to vote and the right to prepare for voting, to participate in the great affairs of this nation. Let me say to you, there was no fanaticism, no rash utterances."

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Dr. Max Heller and Mr. Joseph Baronless also delivered addresses.

Professor Frankfurter also Resigns from American Jewish Committee.

Prof. Felix Frankfurter, of the Law School of Harvard University, has sent the following letter to Mr. Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish Committee:

Cambridge, Mass.
June 23, 1916.

My Dear Mr. Marshall:
Dr. Friedenwald's letter of resignation and your answer thereto reveal a radical difference of attitude, a real clash of ideas, if not of ideals, toward Jewish problems, to the solution of which both the American Jewish Committee and Dr. Friedenwald are wholeheartedly devoted. These letters breathe certain underlying spirits, defined hopes none the less definite because inarticulate. Dr. Friedenwald has reached the conviction that disinterested devotion on the part of a few, even if resulting in certain concessions at home or abroad, does not answer to the needs of the days ahead; that the great problem is to mould an opinion of the Jews throughout the land, particularly the great masses of more recent immigration, so that the wisdom and the sacrifice of all Jewry may be embodied in action. Democracy is not a political fetish, but a ruling faith that the Jews in America must think their own thoughts, make their collective personal sacrifice, express their own will, choose their own leaders, if the Jews in America are ever to reach self-respect that entitles them to be heard and the weight that will give them a hearing here and abroad.

So conceiving the issue, and finding myself in thorough accord with Dr. Friedenwald, there is no choice left but to resign from the American Jewish Committee. I realize that I have been a delinquent member, that I have had but paper participation with the committee since my election to it. That default, however, in no wise relieves me from acting on the grave issues of the present. The least that one can do is to give utterance to one's opinion. I regret to be compelled to say the American Jewish Committee does not represent mine.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) FELIX FRANKFURTER.

A Pity 'Tis True.
 Looking over the volumes of The Jewish Advocate for 1908 and 1909 one notes not only constant news about the New York Kehillah, but a distinct enthusiasm even in the headlines for that cause. Of late years the Kehillah has disappeared from the news columns. It has been neither praised nor blamed. Sunday week its annual convention took place. There were only two hundred delegates present and these did not represent as many institutions, or organizations. There are more than 200 synagogues in New York City, about four thousand Jewish societies, clubs, etc. The Kehillah has not won their allegiance. It is weaker than a year ago, weaker than it was seven years ago, and the organization support which Mr. Samuel Dorf and Judge Leon Sanders temporarily brought it is discountable, and understood by those who observe the ways of New York Jewish politics.
 What a pity! For the Kehillah is a good idea and could be made a better one. Success in New York City would have led to effort and success elsewhere, and rational Jewish organizations would have developed quickly in this country. But the Jewish public is naturally slow to learn the value of organization and slower still to pay for it. To overcome such defects there is need of great patience. The Kehillah leaders lacked this. They disagreed with Euclid, who denied that there is "a royal road to mathematics." They tried a short cut. They acted in good faith. The name exists, but the Kehillah is not what it was intended to be—a fundamental factor in the life of the Jews of New York City.—Jewish Advocate.

The great interest taken in war relief by our brethren, without regard to the place of their origin, is shown by the number of collections that are being made at many gatherings. At the Bar Mitzvah party of William Contente, 5 West 107th street, last Sunday evening, the majority of the guests were from countries bordering on the Levant. Rev. A. H. Nieto was present and made an appeal which met with a generous response. The sum of $20.25 was contributed, for which amount proclamation certificates of the Central Relief Committee were purchased and presented to Master Contente in the name of his relatives and friends as a souvenir of his Bar Mitzvah.

To Buy Palestine from Turkey Before It Is Too Late.

By I. N. PRENOVICH.

Time and again I have expressed my views in the HEBREW STANDARD to the effect that the European Powers are only waiting for an opportunity, such as is usually at hand in time of war, to cripple Turkey and to deprive her of much valuable territory, including Palestine. The Turkish leaders seem at last to understand the dangerous position of the Turkish Empire during the present war, and it is unquestionably due to this understanding that they are willing, as we were informed by a prominent Zionist, to enter into negotiations with us in the matter of making Palestine a free Jewish country. Turkey wants a Jewish Palestine, because she hopes by that to save the Turkish Empire, or as much of it as can yet be saved, from sure destruction. We Jews want a Jewish republic in Palestine, in order to solve, once forever, the much perplexed Jewish question. In other words, we want Palestine in order to prevent the various royalties and all the other ancient aristocrats from using millions of our brethren for the purpose of satisfying their cravings for a beastly enjoyment of life.

The recent catastrophe of our poor brethren in Russia, for instance, would have been utterly impossible if the Jews had been in possession of Palestine before the great war started. Let us get our ancient fatherland back at present, and thus prevent a repetition of similar catastrophes in the future.

What were the main causes of the great anti-Jewish excesses in Russia during the last two or three decades? I often heard that those very high in authority, who are above the law and who are mainly responsible for all Jewish troubles in the Russian Empire, are not so much anti-Jewish as pro-German. That millions of Jewish subjects of the Czar are sacrificed not so much because the inquisition makers cannot live without Jewish blood, but for the purpose of creating continuous disturbances in Russia, and thus making the latter less dangerous to the German fatherland in time of war.

I believe that the above opinion is correct, and it seems to me that the diabolic orders issued at the beginning of the war by the Grand Duke Nicolas Nicolaevich (he is believed to be the real ruler of Russia), in reference to the Russian Jewish subjects, more especially those of his orders which have been dealing with the Jewish soldiers of the Russian armies, prove the correctness of the said opinion without a shadow of doubt.

Imagine the powerful and numerous Russian armies arrayed in long battle lines against an equally powerful and numerous enemy, suddenly dumfounded by orders, issued by the Grand Duke Nicolas Nicolaevich himself, to the effect that millions of Russian Jewish subjects should be driven out of the war zone, without even designating a safe place where the unfortunate should be driven to! And close upon this came the other order of the Grand Duke, making it the business of all officers of the Russian armies to consider the several hundred thousand Jewish soldiers under their respective commands as unloyal to the Czar, and to keep a steady watch over them!

The falling of Warsaw and Kovno plainly show not only to what extent the Russian armies, especially the better and more honest element of the same, became demoralized and heart-broken by the above-mentioned orders of the Duke, but also the purpose the said alleged great Russian patriot and the alleged defender of his country evidently had in mind when he issued the orders in question.

Maybe this disclosure gives us also a hint why the Czar is made to send his millions-strong armies to the Caucasus front, where they can accomplish relatively little, instead of employing the said armies for the purpose of driving out the invaders of Russia!

Turning now our attention to France, the country so much advanced in civilization and so full of democratic principles, and where the Jews are usually believed to enjoy the same rights and privileges other Frenchmen are entitled to, we find that even there—even in France—is the position of our brethren by far not normal. The Dreyfus affair is not very old, and gives us all the necessary information on the subject.

What was the Dreyfus affair in a nutshell? Prominent Frenchmen, even Cabinet Ministers, tolerated a traitor of France, an Esterhazy, in the general staff, from where he could do incalculable harm to France, for the purpose of slandering and harming the French Jewish citizens! Or can any person capable of thinking and remembering the details of the much celebrated affair ever doubt that the French Minister of War Mercier, and the many other prominent French patriots of his kind, who were so eager to find Dreyfus guilty of treason, knew at the time all about Esterhazy, Colonel Henry and the other conspirators in the general staff, and all about the doings of those real traitors of France?

I went to a rather great length in the above description in order to show to the reader that the Germanic countries, which are unquestionably the main herds of anti-Semitism, are not the only countries where our brethren are much persecuted and abused. I also want to show that civilization and progress cannot materially improve our condition anywhere, in spite of the claims to that effect by our many would-be friends.

Of course, make the United States and England an exception. (The foreign-born anti-Semitic brutes who do not want Jews in their armies have no solid standing in this country.) Unfortunately, however, the said two countries make practically the only exception in the case.

It seems to me that I have given above sufficient hints, especially for our wealthy brethren, to understand that a free Jewish Palestine is the only sure means for solving the Jewish question in Europe; that all other hopes we may cherish to improve the conditions of our brothers and sisters—for instance, in Russia—may possibly be realized to a certain degree, but will surely not do us much good, and that the only way to come into possession of our ancient fatherland is to buy it from Turkey before the said territory should become the property of the Czar of Russia or of any other European ruler.

As to the idea that a free Jewish Palestine should ever become dangerous to this beloved country of ours, I think that the said idea is too much void of common-sense to be taken seriously into consideration. All we need and all we want is Palestine, a country like Switzerland, under the protection of all great Powers, especially the United States, and our hopes are that this generous, great country will lend us a helping hand in the redemption of the Holy Land.

Synagogue and School Extension Office Opens Religious Day School.

The Synagogue and School Extension Department, New York office, is preparing to open a new Jewish religious day school in a densely populated district in the Bronx, where comparatively few schools are maintained. The school will have its home in the old Tremont Presbyterian Church, on Washington avenue, which has been leased for the purpose. Sessions will be held daily, except Saturday, with two shifts of pupils, each receiving instruction three times weekly. The subjects taught will be Hebrew, Jewish history and religion. On Saturdays devotional services will be held. It is also planned to make the building a social center for the children and young people of the neighborhood.

The Department of Synagogue and School Extension, which organized the school, is the propaganda department of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, which has its headquarters in Cincinnati, Ohio, and is composed of 200 reform congregations throughout the country.

During the past three months the New York office, which is located at 18 East Forty-first street, has been occupied with various preliminary activities. The first task was to study the problem with special reference to the Bronx, where the immediate activities will be carried on. A survey was made of the number and distribution of Jewish children of school age in the Bronx. This was followed by a survey of the existing religious schools, their location and the number of pupils attending them. The results of this investigation showed a total of 51,000 Jewish children of school age. The investigators visited a total of seventy-seven religious schools, having a combined registration of approximately 6,000 pupils. This represents only 11 per cent. of the total number of children of school age. While without doubt many children receive private religious instruction at home, the surveys made make plain the fact that a large number are altogether unprovided for. To reach as many as possible of this number is the larger task which has now been undertaken.

The school will be opened early in July. Rabbi Jacob D. Schwarz, who is in charge of the New York office, will be the superintendent.

If you wish to effect a saving of at least 12 1/2 to 15 per cent. on your auto tires it will be well to consult Messrs. Dolkart and Salkin, of 247 West Forty-ninth street, whose card appears on this page. Messrs. Graduation Exercises at the Educational Alliance.

The graduation exercises of the School of Religious Work of the Educational Alliance were held in the Straus Auditorium on Monday, June 26, 1916, at 8.15 p. m.

Mr. Samuel Strauss urged strongly the necessity for a true Americanism fostered by staunch adherence to Judaism and loyalty to the faith of our fathers.

Prof. Israel Friedlaender, a director of the institution, commented on the remarks of Mr. Strauss, stating that there had been lack of understanding of the point of view of Mr. Strauss.

In an address in Yiddish to the parents, Rabbi Jacob B. Grossman outlined the course of study in the post graduate classes.

education. The post graduate classes offer splendid opportunity to those graduates of the school who wish to fill the ranks of the much needed teacher.

Dr. Henry Fleischman made the award of prizes. Money prizes and two gold medals were awarded to those in the graduating class who distinguished themselves in Hebrew and to those who maintained the highest records in class standing.

The exercises were concluded with a closing prayer by the graduates of the school.

Pineus Elijah Congregational School.

There were interesting exercises held by the Hebrew and Religious School of Congregation Pineus Elijah, 118 West Ninety-fifth street, last Sunday afternoon, and despite the inclement weather, an appreciative audience witnessed them.

These were preceded and followed by hymns in Hebrew and English, and the distribution of rewards as follows: Gold and silver medals, donated by the Sisterhood of the congregation and the Junior League, were awarded to Florence Heller, Mildred Seiler, David Jacobson and Isidore Mandel.

In an address in Yiddish to the parents, Rabbi Jacob B. Grossman outlined the course of study in the post graduate classes.

The Zionist Convention.

Several new features have been arranged in connection with the conventions of American Zionist organizations, to be held in Philadelphia from July 2 to 5.

The South Broad Street Theatre has been selected as the place for the opening session of the conventions, to be held on Sunday afternoon, July 2, at 2 o'clock.

Another new feature that has now been definitely arranged is the Hebrew Conference, to be held at the Hotel Walton on Tuesday evening, July 4.

On Monday afternoon, June 3, the Achaosa or the Zion Commonwealth, will meet. This is an organization for the work of the colonization of Palestine.

The main public function will be the mass meeting to be held on Sunday evening, July 2, at the Metropolitan Opera House.

CHARITY

...the wayfarer, to eat and drink, he also let them lodge in his house, and when they went home he escorted them and thus were we taught in the Ethics of the Fathers, "Let thy house be wide open and let the poor be the members of thy household." He meant by that that you should live in a place where the wayfarers usually pass, and that you should receive them with a very pleasant countenance and give them instantly, to eat, for, perhaps, the poor man is hungry and ashamed to ask; therefore, without delay, give him his food and drink and let your countenance radiate with good will towards him, and even if you have any worry in your heart, do not let it appear upon your face in the presence of your guests, but comfort them with soothing words, and thus you will revive their drooping spirits, and do not tell them your troubles, for that will break their spirit, because they will think you are telling them such things because you do not want them to be an additional burden to your woes, and if you do that, you can hardly expect to be rewarded for your hospitality. On the contrary, when they eat, show them that you are very sorry that you cannot treat them better. Also endeavor to treat your guest with as fine a repast as he was wont to have in his own house, and if you accommodate your guests with lodging, let them sleep in the best beds you possess, for more refreshing is the repose you provide for them than the eating and drinking. And when they leave you, escort them and give them along food on the way—for men sin because of the lack of food. Because Jonathan did not give David bread to take along with him when he left him, it brought about the slaying of the priests of Nob. And he who does not escort the wayfarer and give him

MIDSUMMER HATS FOR WOMEN AND YOUNG WOMEN

As you may guess, they are all combinations of satin-velvet and maline. Tantalizing floppy black velvet hats with huge bows, so effective with sheer dresses—a few of white Georgette crepe and panne velvet—one or two with maline brims and butterfly wing ornaments—very unique—still others of satin and velvet with imitation Numidi trimming. Then there are the breast-hats, which may truly be called light as a feather—they are made of the softest, downiest of breast feathers into simple toques, with just a perky wing on each side. You would say after the first glance at these hats, "Copies of French models"—and they are—and now every one does want some kind.
