PROSPERITY

By ETHEL TAUROG

"One thing is certain. Father must go South. We'll have to manage somehow," said Florence with an air of finality.

"Sure, but the question is how?" Mrs. Hesterman asked eloquently.

David, a high school junior, tall and thin, spoke in a bantering tone. "Nothing easier. In these days of prosperity, when people's pockets are bulging out into fantastic shapes in an effort to contain so much money, we'll simply go out some dark night, bold Florence and I, and relieve them of some of these superfluities."

"Can't you ever talk anything but nonsense?" asked his sister, frowning.

"Well, let's hear some sense from your quarters. What's your great scheme for getting enough money to send father to the South? Speak up, fair lady."

"Florence hesitated slightly. "I can get a fine position if I quit college. Lots of girls that can't sew a bit better than I are earning all kinds of money in shops. Really, college is getting to be a bore," she concluded with affected gaiety.

"Your sense is greater nonsense than David's," Mrs. Hesterman replied grimly.

"And what's more, you are, to put it politely, prevaricating. Your fabrication, however, is too transparent. Your gay tone in which you set forth that college is a bore cannot deceive anyone who has heard you rave on about your studies and your professors. Give us another."

"Maybe you think she isn't right," came in a hollow voice from a form which sat huddled in the corner of the kitchen. "What's the use of trying to remember what you were once upon a time. It's better for you that you should forget it. The trouble with you, Friede, and with your husband, is that you always look back to the time when you were in Russia, and you had your beautiful house, with your cook and your maids and your governesses. Then the rich Madam Friede Hesterman could afford to think of sending her children to schools and universities. But the wheel has turned around, and now Mrs. Hesterman, a poor woman, who lives in four little rooms in the back, with a sick husband, and has to keep in board an old grouchy woman, who is such a distant relation that you have to go back at least three generations to get to how she is related to them. And for what? For the few dollars a week her children pay for her so that she won't have to go in a home for old people. Such a Mrs. Hesterman shouldn't even dream of such luxuries like education for her children. Florence has more sense poor thing, she has found an unappreciative audience."

"No one is asking you for advice," retorted Mrs. Hesterman sharply. "If you want to know, I can tell you that I am the same Madam Friede Hesterman that I was, even without the maids and the governesses, and when my David comes home from high school, and he sits father to the South for the winter," remarked David.

"What are you talking about in there?" came in a weak voice from the kitchen bedroom.

"Did we wake you, father?" asked Florence, solicitously, as she walked into the bedroom.

"Merely a discussion, father, dear," called David, cheerfully.

indispensable," replied the father in the same bantering tone.

Soon uproarious laughter issued forth from the bedroom where father and children were engaged in what they called a philosophical discussion.

"Crazy, upon my word, crazy," muttered the old woman as she hobbled over towards the cupboard and poured out a glass of milk for the sick Mr. Hesterman. Then she carried it into the bedroom and seated herself on the bed, whilst she listened to the light-hearted tone of the conversation of this family, mumbling comments upon the folly of these people, who had once been the most envied in their home in distant Russia.

Several times the old peddler knocked on the kitchen door without receiving any response. Then he threw civility to the winds and entered the kitchen.

"Fine housekeepers!" he called loudly. "A robber could come in and move away the whole house and you wouldn't hear him."

"No robber with any self-respect would be seen trotting down the stairs with our household goods," said David.

A chair was brought in from the kitchen for the peddler. He seated himself.

"The old lady must be looking out her eyes for me, but I had to come in here and tell you the news—some good news I got for you. Tired enough I am, you may believe me. Walking up the steps in the buildings isn't a joke. If one could walk up the front steps with the carpets it wouldn't be so bad, or to ride up in the elevators. Only try it! They put you up a sign on the door, in gold letters, yet they print it, that beggars and peddlers shouldn't come in. First of all, what right have you to put up a sign that I can't read? So I walk myself right up, unless I am stopped on the way. I can't read and done. Go and do me something! This is a free country, you understand. But, I ask you, where is the sense of putting beggars and peddlers on the same sign? It's queer, eh? Well, to get to my story. I am doing good business now. Prosperity. Everybody is rich, I tell you. Girls in the shops buy only silk stockings. Imagine, silk stockings! A little thing, prosperity. To-

A MODERN PRINTERY IN JERUSALEM.

This cut is from an architect's drawing for the front elevation of the home of the "Beth Tfus," the printery which is to be established in Jerusalem for the purpose of supplying the entire Jewish world with religious and secular books.

The enterprise has been organized by Mr. Leon Zolotkoff, of Chicago, and Messrs. I. L. Goldberg and Solomon Saltzman, of Petrograd. The building, which is to be thoroughly modern, has been designed by Mr. Benzion Gulni, construction engineer for the municipality of Jerusalem, with American revisions by Mr. Louis Horwich, of Chicago.

A tract of land with a frontage of 420 meters on the north side of Jerusalem has already been acquired, and building operations are expected to begin shortly.

than the whole bunch of you. She's right. For what should she go to the college, shivering in her little, thin, tight coat, which was already too small for her two years ago winter, when other girls are shoveling in money from good jobs, and they are wearing the heavy sealskin coats, and the good silk dresses?"

"She's a genuine pragmatic philosopher," exclaimed David. "But, over his books, and when my Florence comes home from college, and she sits down over her books, and I know that my children will not be ignorant people, and that they will possess that which is of more value than money, I feel that I am richer than a good many women in their furs and their diamonds."

"I wish our books had a magical power by which we could transport

"Your daughter was trying to convince me that the present wave of prosperity was occasioned by the high cost of living, whereas I maintain, with my usual pertinacity, that the high cost of living is due to the present wave of prosperity."

"And your mother probably presented the facts in the form of the rapid rise in prices of certain articles which are popularly supposed to be day I climb up to one of my regular customers. Silk stockings she ordered from me. Everybody, I tell you, wears silk stockings already. I sit on a chair in the kitchen, and my customer holds the stockings up to the light to see if all the stitches are where they belong, and in runs a girl with books. A big girl, a little girl? I don't know. The little girls and their mothers and their grandmothers all wear the same kind of clothes. Go and tell who is the mother and who is the daughter. The girl throws the books down on the floor. "I'm not going in school. No more school," she says.

"What do you mean, you won't go to school? I'll give you no more school," scolds the mother. "I can't learn," says the girl. It's too hard for me, and the teacher says I can't go on." The girl begins to cry, and the mother begins to scold, and it's merry. I sit and listen, and think to myself: "You foolish woman, why should you scold the child? This is the way it should be. You have a lot of money, and Mr. Hesterman has too little money. You have a daughter who has no head for learning, and Mr. Hesterman has a daughter who has a good head for learning. Why shouldn't I be able to make a match between you and them?" With me, you know, I think and I talk. So I tell the woman the story about you, and about the children, and everything, and I say to her: "It wouldn't be a bad idea for your daughter to take lessons from Florence Hesterman."

"My lady throws up her hands like this," he demonstrated. "What did you say their name is?"

"I tell her."
 "And is her name Friede?" she asks me in a crying voice.

"Yes, Friede," I answer, because I heard your name from the old woman here who told me your whole history.

"And they've got two children?" she asks again, "a boy and a girl?"
 "You're right," I answer.

"Then she begins to describe you, and give me your names and asks me if they're right."

"Like you knew them," I answer.

"It's my Madam Hesterman," she says and begins crying. "I'll faint."

"Then she begins to cry, and seems to me she will never stop. It takes a little while, and then she tells me her story. Her name is Esther, and in Russia she worked in your house. Five years she worked for you, and you treated her like a sister, or like a daughter. Then when she got married your husband gave her a dowry of a few hundred dollars, so they could start in business. They went to America. And with the money that your husband gave them they started in business, and, anyhow, they're rich now. I gave her your address, and I bet you she will be here tonight."

Later in the evening a woman drove up in a limousine. She knocked at the door timidly. With a joyous cry she embraced Mrs. Hesterman. When she left that evening Mr. Hesterman's trip to the South was assured, with a prospective position upon his return in their prosperous firm.

The Feast of Lights.

By EMMA LAZARUS.

Kindle the taper like the steadfast star
 Ablaze on evening's forehead o'er the earth;

And add each night a lustre till afar
 An eightfold splendor shine above thy hearth.

Clash, Israel, the cymbals touch the lyre,
 Blow the brass trumpet and the harsh-tongued horn;

Chant psalms of victory till the heart
 Takes fire,
 The Maccabean spirit leaps new-born.

Remember, how from wintry dawn till night,
 Such songs were sung in Zion, when again

On the high altar flamed the sacred light,
 And, purified from every Syrian stain,
 The foam-white walls with golden shields were hung,

With crowns and silken spoils, and at the shrine,
 Stood midst their conqueror tribe, five chieftains sprung

From one heroic stock, one seed divine.
 They who had camped within the mountain-pass,
 Couched on the rock, and tented 'neath the sky.

Who saw from Mizpah's heights the tangled grass
 Choke the wide Temple courts, the altar lie

Disfigured and polluted—who had flung
 Their faces on the stones and mourned aloud,
 And rent their garments wailing with one tongue,

Crushed as a wind-swept bed of reeds
 Is bowed.

Even they by one voice fired one heart
 Of flame,
 Though broken reeds, had risen, and were men.

They rushed upon the spoils and o'er-came
 Each arm for freedom had the strength of ten.

Now is their mourning into dancing turned,
 Their sack-cloth doffed for garments of delight;
 Week-long the festive torches shall be burned,
 Music and revelry wed day with night.

Still ours the dance, the feast, the glorious Palm,
 The mystic lights of emblem, and the Word.

Where is our Judas? Where our five-branched palm?
 Where are the lion-warriors of the Lord?

Clash, Israel, the cymbals, touch the lyre,
 Sound the brass trumpet and the harsh-tongued horn;

Chant hymns of victory till the heart
 Takes fire,
 The Maccabean spirit leap new-born!

Roumania Wins Her Point with Reference to Minority Rights.

London (By I. J. P. B.).—Roumania has agreed to sign the peace treaty with Austria, but only after she had managed to secure the approval by the peace conference of her suggestion that she be allowed to modify the clause concerning the rights of minorities. How far this will affect the Jews of Roumania is not yet known.

An Arab Defends Hebrew.

Opposition by certain groups of Arabs to the official recognition of Hebrew by the British administration in Palestine, and the use of that language for announcements and proclamations by the Jerusalem municipality has elicited a remarkable defense of Hebrew which appears in the Al Achbar (The News), an Arabic paper published in Jaffa. The Arab champion of Jewish rights justifies the demand, led by Eliezer Ben Yehuda, as president of "Sfatenu," that the municipality of Jerusalem recognize Hebrew, saying, among other things:

"Since the time of the French revolution which spread the spirit of true freedom and built up a new humanity on the ruins of the old, we know of no people opposing another on the ground of its language. Even in the days of Torquemada and the Spanish Inquisition there was no law forbidding the use by the Jews of their language, and the Turks, who persecute the Armenians, never issued such a prohibition. Does the Jerusalem paper which has agitated so strongly against the use of Hebrew really desire that England, thousands of whose sons shed their blood for the freeing of oppressed peoples, shall adopt tyrannical methods and forbid the Jews to spread their language? The language of each people is as its own king, in regard to whom none can interfere, just as the strong man cannot prevent the weaker from enjoying the warmth of the sun or breathing the air. Such is the natural view.

"From the historical standpoint the Jews were the cornerstone of Arabic enlightenment, especially in Europe. Had it not been for the interest of the Jews in the revival of the Arabic tongue, culture and literature, Arabic would not have played the role it did in the world, and especially in Andalusia; the Jews were indeed the cause of the Arabs giving to the world writers and scholars as Ibn Rasad and those who succeeded him, both Jews and Moslems, who together developed Arabic literature and philosophy, poetry, logic, etc. The Jews should be thanked for what they did in transferring to Europe Arabic culture; if it were not for them there would now remain no trace of Arabic culture, just as there has remained no remnant of their kingdom of Andalusia since their return to the peninsula of Arabia and the wilderness of Syria.

"There is no conception in Arabic whose counterpart will not be found in Hebrew, both as regards its meaning and grammatical form, for there is a great similarity between the Arabic and Hebrew tongues, both being Semitic and joined by one history. When the Jews of today proclaim the necessity of learning Hebrew it is as though they were proclaiming the same for Arabic and vice versa. The difference between Arabic and Hebrew is much less than that between Turkish and Persian or Italian and Spanish.

"It follows that the Jews have the same right to spread their language as any other people. Moreover the spreading of a Semitic tongue in a country where the remaining inhabitants speak Arabic, another Semitic language will be of great advantage to the latter in purifying their language and freeing it from all foreign phrases and expressions that have reached it from other languages, so restoring it to its former standard.

"The demand of the Jews that the municipality should publish its notices also in Hebrew is an essential outcome of the order of Great Britain, issued when she conquered Palestine, that all notices and instructions be published in Hebrew so that all the inhabitants should understand them. The municipality is obliged therefore to submit to this order of the government, on the one hand, while on the other it is in its own interests. The Egyptian Government publishes its orders in Greek because of the large community of Greeks in Egypt who do not understand English, and if the number of Persians in Egypt increased it is quite clear it would add Persian in its notices.

"To whoever found satisfaction in the deeds of Turkey and is not pleased with Great Britain's granting of freedom to minorities it should be said: "Get thee gone to the Turkish capital, remember thy past and find rest for thy soul."

The suppression by the military administration of Suria del Genobia, the organ of the anti-Jewish Arabs in Palestine, is announced by the Palestine News-Agency of the American Zionist Publicity Department.

Jewish Life in Siberia and in the Ural District.

Information from Siberia regarding the life of the numerous Jewish communities in that country is very scanty and very irregular, but the little that does come through to the Jewish organizations in the West suggests a picture of energetic communal activity and conscious national development. On the whole the Siberian Jews have had less political trouble than the Jewish communities in the Bolshevik Russia or in Denikin's Russia, and their economic position, though very unstable and insecure, was not further impaired by any pogroms or excesses of the kind that took place in South Russia (under Denikin), in Poland, and in the Western Ukraine (under Petlura).

The fact that Siberia was always able to keep in contact with the western world owing to its uninterrupted communications with America was probably one of the reasons why there were practically no excesses against the Jews, and why the Koltchak government treated the Jewish population with much more consideration than his nominal subordinates in the South of European Russia.

The interest shown by the American Jewish community in Jewish institutions in Siberia has exercised a strong and beneficial influence on the internal life of the Jewish population of Siberia and the Ural, as it gave them the assurance that they were not being abandoned to their fate by their co-nationals in the West. At the end of June of this year Dr. Rosenblatt, a representative of various American Jewish committees, was in Siberia and had conversations with members of Koltchak's government and with Admiral Koltchak himself on the position of the Jews, and strongly emphasized the interest American Jewry took in the fate of the Siberian Jews.

The internal life of the Siberian community does not seem to be interfered with in any way by the authorities of the Koltchak government. The communities are being freely reorganized on an entirely democratic basis, with the application of the proportional system of representation. The reorganized communities are rightly considered by the Siberian as well as by non-Siberian Jews as the basis of Siberian Jewry's national development.

Cultural activity in the community is developing quite rapidly, and Hebrew is studied a great deal. The chief difficulty in this respect is the lack of teachers, and the Central Bureau "Tarbut" in Tomsk, has organized classes for the preparation of teachers. Siberia is, of course, one of the vastest countries in the world, and communication is very

NEWS FROM ENGLAND

(Exclusive Correspondence to the HEBREW STANDARD)

The Great Hush—Dr. Einstein and His Discoveries—The Balfouria Colony—More Jewish War Memorial Movement—Further Honors for Sir Philip Sassoon—Lucien Wolf and the Judeo-Bolshevik Slanders.

London, November 14, 1919.

The two minutes' silence arranged to start at eleven o'clock on November 11th in this country in memory of the glorious dead was carried out with extraordinary completeness. As the signals went up so activity stopped on the trigger. People walking in the streets stopped still and the men took their hats off. Vehicles of every kind came to a standstill and any passengers on them stood up, the men again being bare-headed. People in factory and office interiors observed the same ceremony. The extraordinary hush that descended upon London was noted on all sides and was in itself a most memorable thing. It was odd even to see a horse's head nodding for a moment. At the expiration of the two minutes all was once more galvanized into life, but a momentous occasion had been registered. It was the same in the Jewish quarters as elsewhere, perhaps at times with an even more emotional atmosphere.

Dr. Albert Einstein, whose discovery concerning the relativity of the dimensions of space was described at last week's meeting of the Royal Society as the most remarkable since the discovery of Neptune, is a Swiss Jew about forty years of age. His exceptional brilliance as a physicist was recognized on the continent some years before the war. After occupying a position as professor of mathematical physics at the Zurich Polytechnic, and afterwards at Prague University, he was elected a member of the Emperor William Scientific Academy in Berlin. This position carried with it a salary of 18,000 marks ($4,500) a year, entailed no duties, and enabled its holder to devote himself entirely to scientific research.

At the outbreak of the war Dr. Einstein protested against the German professors' manifesto approving of Germany's participation in the war, and at its conclusion he welcomed the revolution. He has been living in Berlin for about the last six years. When he offered his last important work to the publishers he warned them that there were not more than twelve persons in the whole world who would understand it. But the publishers took the risk.

It is a consequence of Einstein's theory that a ray of light passing through space near gravitating matter should suffer deflection, and Einstein predicted that if stars be observed near the sun during a total solar eclipse, they would be found displaced—he even predicted the amount of this displacement, 1 1/2 seconds of arc. A suitable opportunity was offered by the eclipse of May, of this year, and specially equipped expeditions were sent from England to Sorbal in Brazil, and to Principe, an island off the west coast of Africa. The photographs there taken have been measured, and, as announced at the meeting, Einstein's prediction has been confirmed.

There is no question of overthrowing Newton, or even of a revolution in science. Newton's law of gravitation and the facts of science are hardly shaken. The practical effect of Einstein's theory is to introduce slight corrections, the influence of which will be evident in very special cases. What is overthrown is the philosophic basis of the Newtonian mechanics, the revolution is in the hitherto accepted view of time and space. It is a revolution of ideas that have dominated human thought. Einstein's theory will rank with the epoch-making advances of Copernicus, Kepler and Newton in the ever onward march of scientific endeavor and scientific achievement.

Dr. Einstein has been sympathetic with Zionism, and has expressed his willingness to co-operate in the establishment of the Hebrew University at Jerusalem.

The following story is in circulation here and your correspondent quotes it because it appears very frequently that items given here as American news are quite a surprise to their alleged country of origin. Certainly some of the British news cabled back here from America is amazing. Here is the story:

The first British Minister whose name is to be perpetuated in Palestine in connection with the establishment of a Jewish commonwealth in that country under the protection of Great Britain is Mr. Balfour. A considerable tract has been acquired in the valley of Jezreel by an American Zionist corporation, the "Zion Commonwealth," upon which a small agricultural colony is to be started by 100 demobilized Jewish soldiers, and as a mark of tribute to Mr. Balfour for his services in connection with the British Government's declaration of policy concerning a Jewish Palestine it has been decided to name it "Balfouria." When Mr. Balfour was asked to give his consent to this step he suggested that a more Jewish name might perhaps be found, but it was pointed out to him that his name had already become indelibly impressed upon contemporary Jewish history.

The only other Englishman whose name has so far been adopted in the new Palestine is Lord Allenby, whose name has been given to one of the streets of Jaffa.

Dr. Weizmann, of the Zionist Commission, who is now on a visit to Palestine, was welcomed at a special meeting of the Jewish Town Council of Jerusalem. He said he could assure the Jews of Palestine that in spite of all obstacles they would soon be able to begin the great task of reconstruction. Dr. Weizmann expects to remain in Palestine until the middle of December.

Further progress is to be recorded in the Jewish War Memorial matter. B. A. Persht and Maurice Myers have been appointed secretaries and central offices have been taken. A series of Metropolitan and provincial mass meetings are being arranged to popularize the idea and another $30,000 has been subscribed since last week.

Sir Philip Sassoon has been appointed Parliamentary Private Secretary for Sir Eric Geddes, Minister of Transport. This brings another Jewish member of Parliament into the second line of Ministerial rank. Sir Philip is 30 years old and holds a decoration for war services, these war services including confidential work for General, now Lord, Haig. The Sassoons are a particularly wealthy family and Sir Philip sits as a Member of Parliament for Hythe. He recently figured in the newspapers as the buyer of an aeroplane so that he could travel quickly during the Parliamentary session between London and Hythe when he wished to visit his home or consult his constituents. His sister is Countess of Rocksavage, and amongst his many cousins are Siegfried Sassoon, the poet, and David Sassoon, the painter.

The other Jewish Sir Philip in the House of Commons is Sir Philip Magnus. Magnus made himself prominent lately, by the way, by insinuating in a House of Commons debate that the pogroms in Russia were the work of the Bolsheviks. This was denied in an interview granted to the Jewish Chronicle by D. T. Goode, who has recently been on a visit to Russia and who is principal of an important training college in this country. General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevik leader, is severely trounced in this reply as a very virulent Jew-baiter and pogrom-raiser.

Talking about Jews and Bolshevism, by the way, a topic that is always being well worked by the British press, it is good to be able to record the fact that the Daily Telegraph, one of the greatest of our morning newspapers, printed a column and a half article recently from Lucien Wolf, entitled "Jews and Bolshevism: A Baseless Legend." This is part of what he says:—

Were it not for its very tragic possibilities the evocation of the Judeo-Bolshevik bogey would be a fit subject for mirth, or at best a problem for the folklorist or the student of corporate hallucination. As it is, it is a very serious matter, seeing that the lives of many thousands of innocent persons are jeopardized by it. The bogey takes the form of a charge against the Jews of Russia and Poland that they are for the most part Bolsheviks, and that the Bolshevik revolution was engineered by them, and is still controlled and directed by them. The only evidence cited in support of it is that Trotsky and a few of the more prominent Bolshevik commissaries are men of Jewish birth, and that a similar element on an even more restricted scale is found in certain of the Soviets. But these men are no more Jews than Lenin, Lunacharsky, Chicherin, and the great bulk of the Russian Bolsheviks are Christians. It would indeed be just as reasonable to say that the mainstay of Russian Bolshevism is to be found in American and British Christendom because it has found sympathisers in Bullitt and Steffens, in Goode, Price, Russell, Ransome, Hunt, and many other Americans and Englishmen of Christian birth.

The growth of the bogey, he continues, is not difficult to trace. There has always been at the back of the anti-Semitic mind an uneasy feeling that the Jews are, as the old law books say, perpetui inimici Regis et Religionis. Their participation in the revolutions of 1830 and 1848 gave political point to this superstition, and ever since it has been a favorite theory of the more fanatical reactionaries that the whole democratic movement in Europe is a Jewish conspiracy for the subversion of Christianity and Christian society. In Russia it became early an expedient of reactionary tactics. To denounce revolution on its merits was difficult, but to denounce it as a Jewish conspiracy against the throne and the altar was always calculated to impress large classes of the population who otherwise might not have been indisposed to look indulgently on a great political change.

TORAH AND SCIENCE.

By RABBI M. YUNG, London, Eng.

Even if the results of scientific research should at any epoch be entirely opposed to the teaching of the Torah touching the creation of the universe, we should not be entitled to talk of discrepancy or conflict between them.

A main characteristic of science is development. What we recognize today as truth we shall perhaps tomorrow be compelled to reject. The view we hold now, as the result of our researches in the domain of physical science, may be repudiated by us tomorrow because of new results of further researches. The whole progress of mankind is based on development. Science has not yet arrived at its culminating point. There is no doubt that the knowledge possessed by mankind in future days will be deeper and wider than it is at present. Science itself admits that it is not able to present an absolute truth; it is only a method of inquiring, of seeking to find the truth. While science is thus in a perpetual flux, Torah offers us definite, absolute truth, refusing to admit any possibility of its development or progress.

The Torah states that it will yield to no pressure from without, its truth being of Divine origin and character and, therefore, unalterable.

Can we, this being the case, say that there is a conflict between the revealed truth and science? When science is ever moving on the road towards truth, and Torah is the truth itself, are we not justified in assuming that science, which is constantly advancing, will in time arrive at the same conclusion as that implied by the teaching of the Torah? Science rejects today what it yesterday recognized as true. Can we not suppose that it will reject tomorrow, what it recognizes as truth today?—How does science work?

Someone tries to explain the universe, he reflects upon the facts or appearances he has observed, or thinks he has observed. There an idea occurs to him by which he thinks to be able to understand a greater part of the appearances of nature. If the explanation seems to him to be satisfactory he proudly proclaims his ideas as truth. He may, however, tomorrow discover one fact which escaped his attention till now, a fact which refuses to be explained by his theory.

At once the whole edifice, built up on his artificially constructed basis, is overthrown, and he is bound to begin seeking afresh after truth. How can we expect a perfect concord between the Torah, which rests on an eternal foundation, and ever-changing, ever-growing science? Until science declares that it is capable of no further development, and that it has been brought by the results of its researches to an ever-lasting standstill, and proves this by irresistible evidences, we cannot admit that there is a conflict between science and Torah. But we confess that while the views of many scientific people can be perfectly reconciled with the Torah, there are some whose views resist any attempt to bring them into harmony with the Torah; and we are bound to recognize that there is a temporary conflict between the two. But are the scientific views really more intelligible to our mentality than those of the Torah?

Are the arguments supporting them really more convincing? What does the Torah, and what does science teach about the origin of the universe? According to the Torah, the All-mighty and All-wise God created the world out of nothing, and endowed it with the possibility of development. He created man and breathed into his body a soul, thus making him a spiritual and moral being. When we accept this idea then we understand the laws of nature governing every creature, the wisdom displayed in every appearance of nature, and the progress of mankind. Only one thing remains unexplained, and this is the being of God Himself.

According to modern science there existed millions of years ago an infinitely small something called "cell," out of which the whole universe emanated. This view is one of the most famous of science and caused a new departure in the scientific world. This view was hailed with great enthusiasm as most ingenious and most intelligible to human reflection. Is it really so? Does this something throw light upon the darkness that enshrouds the origin of the universe?

Is this something really so sympathetic to human reasoning? Does this "cell" really powerfully attract our searching spirit? On the contrary. This scientific theory only increases the difficulty with which we are confronted concerning the origin of the universe. As we do not understand God, so we cannot understand the "cell" or its origin; and in addition we are at a loss to conceive how the "cell" could produce, in response to a blind driving power, all this wonderful world. Should we resort to the thought that God created the "cell," and invested it with all the energies needed to produce the

The creator of such a "cell," bearing unseen within its small limits the vast universe, could scarcely have possessed less wisdom than would have been required in a creator who was to call into existence a fully-developed universe. What, then, justifies science to denounce the teaching of the Torah as being beyond our intellectual grasp, and, therefore, not to be recognized?

As long as science cannot produce an idea able to solve the most important problem, that of the origin of the world, in a more intelligible way than offered by the Torah, it would be unwise to pay much attention to the conflict between them.

It required thousands of years to recognize the moral laws taught by the Torah. They were also rejected as not intelligible to the human mind and uncongenial to the human heart. And even now, although their importance is dawning upon the mind, mankind is very slow in realizing them fully and living up to them. The same is applicable to the explanations of the laws of the universe as revealed by the Torah.

May science advance, develop. The Torah is waiting patiently that as time goes on and investigation progresses, science will more and more comprehend the truth of the Torah, which is final and as immutable as God Himself, who revealed it. Science already admits, although reluctantly, that there is one energy that supplies nature with all the physical forces and laws, which sustains and rules it. Further advance will surely lead science to see that this energy is the All-mighty and All-wise God, who created the world.—THE SINAIST.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE JEWISH WORLD

Last month a Hadassah chapter was organized at Timmons, Ont.

The Kesher Israel Synagogue, at Lombard and Fourth streets, Philadelphia, Pa., was wrecked by fire last week.

Presidents of Temple Sisterhoods of Ohio held a two days' conference in Cleveland, Ohio, on November 24 and 25 and organized as the Ohio Federation of Temple Sisterhoods.

The members of the Philadelphia (Pa.) Section, Council of Jewish Women, gave an elaborate pageant last week in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their organization.

Joseph Austrian, of Chicago, Ill., has given Yale University $6,000 with which to establish a scholarship in memory of his son, Walter Austrian, who graduated from Yale in 1906.

There has been an amalgamation of the various Jewish factions in North Adams, Mass., and a larger synagogue than the city boasts of at present will soon be erected as a result thereof.

At an enthusiastic meeting held last week in the Mt. Sinai Synagogue at Cheyenne, Wyo., a local Mizrahi organization was formed with 100 members as a beginning.

The Marks-Nathan Jewish Orphan Home of Chicago, Ill., has been enlarged and rebuilt and will be dedicated on Sunday afternoon, December 21. The home now accommodates 300 children.

The Temple Sisterhood of Congregation Rodeph Shalom, Waco, Tex., has affiliated with the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, bringing the total number up to 211 individual societies.

The newly organized Anshe Emeth congregation at Youngstown, Ohio, will erect at once a $250,000 temple facing a park in the residential district. The building will also contain a social center.

Mr. Harry S. Wiseman, for many years active in commercial and communal ways in Philadelphia, Pa., has been appointed executive director of the Philadelphia District of the Zionist Organization.

The next annual convention of the United Synagogue of America will be held in Philadelphia, Pa., beginning with Sunday, February 1, to last for several days. The Women's League of the United Synagogue will meet in annual session at the same time.

Mrs. Laura Studzinski, pioneer Jewess of Pueblo, Col., died last week at the age of 64. Mrs. Studzinski, who was the wife of Michael Studzinski, president of the City Council, has resided in Pueblo for forty-five years. She came to Denver with her parents in 1856.

The latest and among the most important activities of the Los Angeles (Cal.) Federation of Jewish Charities is the Clinic which was opened to the public on December 1, at 246 North Bunker Hill, and which will be known as the Jewish Dispensary of Los Angeles and operated under the auspices of the Kaspary Cohn Hospital.

Ben Bernstein, of Montreal, Canada, has been notified by the faculty of law, McGill University, that he has been awarded the Sir William Macdonald traveling scholarship, which will give him a year's legal study at the universities of Sorbonne and Paris. This is the first award of the scholarship since 1913, the war having intervened.

The city of Richmond, Va., and more especially its Jewish community, has sustained a serious loss in the death of Charles Hutzler, who passed away on December 5, in his seventieth year. Mr. Hutzler, who was born in Richmond and lived there all his life, was the president of the Central National Bank, and was identified with several other important business organizations. He had been for many years an active member of the school board and was deeply interested in the public schools. He was a leader in all Jewish communal affairs, and was a zealous member of Beth Ahava Congregation, whose president he was at the time of his death.

In view of the tremendous amount of work now being administered by Mr. Isidore Herschfield in Poland for the Joint Distribution Committee, Mr. Leo Gerstenzang has called to assist him. Mr. Gerstenzang served with the A. E. F. and later on with Dr. Boris Bogen in the Joint Distribution Committee work in Poland, from which he recently returned.

The Congregation Temple Shalom of Chicago, Ill., has decided to increase the salary of their rabbi, Rev. Abraham Hirschberg, to $10,000 per annum. Rabbi Hirschberg, who has been with the congregation for over twenty-two years, will thus rank next to Emil G. Hirsch as Chicago's highest paid rabbi. He came directly from college to his present pastorate as a youth of 21.

Mrs. Emma G. Heinsheimer, 78 years of age, widow of Louis Heinsheimer, died Sunday evening after a brief illness at her home in Avondale. Mrs. Heinsheimer, who was born in Cincinnati in 1841, was a daughter of the late Jacob Goodhart, one of the pioneer Jewish settlers in Cincinnati, a charter member of the Plum Street Temple Congregation at its establishment in 1842.

A large number of alien Jews have received orders to leave Pressburg. At Bartfeld the police ordered the expulsion of fifty-five Jewish families on the ground that they were aliens. The Jewish leaders, however, succeeded in proving to the authorities that the families in question had settled in Czecho-Slovakia many years ago. The expulsion orders were thereupon withdrawn.

Sixteen cases of shoes and sweaters were recently distributed by the Joint Distribution Committee among the children of the Dienensohn, Reichmann and Medem schools (the workmen's schools) in Poland. Twenty thousand suits of men's clothing and 40,000 pairs of sandals (made with wooden soles, leather straps and fur heel piece) have also been purchased and distributed.

Rabbi Rubinstein, of Wilna, submitted a memorial to General Pilsudski, complaining that the Polish Commission had only released a limited number of Lithuanian Jews interned in the camps, and that the War Office declined to set at liberty many Jews who had been recommended for release by the commission. In the meantime, epidemics continued to rage in the camps with increased severity. The President immediately appointed a new commission with wider powers to visit the camps and release the innocent prisoners. The new commission includes a Jewish representative.

While in Warsaw, Sir Stuart Samuel, who is investigating the Polish pogroms for the British Government, attended a lecture by Professor Stecherback, who endeavored to prove that some Jewish sects at one time committed ritual murders. The remarks of the lecturer gave rise to protests from the Jews in the audience. A Christian lady also protested, but the Polish Christians sided with the lecturer.

The campaign recently inaugurated by the Federated Jewish Charities of Montreal, Can., was a huge success. A total of $250,706 has already been reported, and the collections will be augmented when the various trade unions are heard from. The members of the Clothing Union, numbering 5,500, have signified their intention of working two hours overtime for the next four weeks as their subscription to the federation.

Among the notable members of the Chamber of Deputies who were re-elected at the recent elections are Messrs. Louis L. Klotz, Minister of Finance, and Ignace, Under Secretary of State to the Ministry of Military Justice. Mr. Bokanowski, another member of the former Chamber, has also been re-elected. The new members include Messrs. Georges Mandel, principal private secretary to the Prime Minister; Maurice de Rothschild, and Leon Blum. M. Joseph Reinach was defeated.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Edward Lashman, of Chicago, have been appointed superintendent and matron respectively of the Cleveland Jewish Orphan Home at the last meeting of the board. Mr. Lashman was until recently connected with the Jewish Welfare Board and was also acting as secretary of the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai B'rith. Mrs. Lashman, who is a daughter of Dr. Gotthard Deutsch, of the Hebrew Union College Faculty, is a trained social worker.

Prior to his departure for Paris recently on a mission, the Chief Rabbi of Turkey was received, in a long and cordial audience, by the Sultan. His Majesty expressed his thanks to the Jews in the country who, during the sad period through which it had passed, had not been lacking in gratitude. It is reported that the Chief Rabbi upon his return from Paris will resign his office owing to a campaign of hostility carried on by a certain section of the Jews.

A congress of the Jews in Serbia and Jugo-Slavia, recently convened by Dr. Isaac Alcalay, chief rabbi of Belgrade, was attended by 124 delegates, representing fifty-four communities. The government was represented by two delegates, and, in addition, the Serbian Minister of Public Worship sent a telegram tendering his congratulations and wishing success to the labors of the congress. The congress decided to found a daily Jewish newspaper, edited in Serbian, but without any political tendency. Its existence for one year has already been assured.

The Serbian Prime Minister, speaking to a deputation of Jews, said that the government, in its protest against the national minorities' clauses of the peace treaty, in no way had the Jews in view. Serbia had always regarded and treated Jews as loyal citizens, conceded them all rights, and admitted them to government posts. The objection was due to the fact that in New Serbia there resided a large number of Bulgars, who would use the clauses referred to for a pro-Bulgarian agitation.

Violent Anti-Semitic Outbreaks in Hungary.

Budapest (By I. J. P. B.).—After attending a meeting at which several addresses of an anti-Semitic character were delivered, about 300 of those who attended immediately made a dash for the Jewish section of the city and began to rob and attack Jewish shops and homes. Two Jewish papers, the Azest and the Nepsavd suffered the greatest damage. Both offices were practically destroyed and all the printing machinery demolished.

The anti-Semitic assembly which was the immediate cause of the outbreak was addressed by the theological Professor Klaska, former Labor Minister Alah, and former Governor of Pressburg Srekzani. The speakers demanded that Jews be put at enforced labor because they were the ones responsible for Bolshevism. Resolutions were adopted that Jews be considered traitors and that it be considered lawful to confiscate the property of such traitors and to distribute it among loyal Hungarian workers.

Students and workers were among the mob which stormed the newspaper offices and carried on this pogrom attack. It is reported that one man was shot and that the police made forty-two arrests during the rioting.

The Premier has given out a statement in which he appeals to Hungarian patriotism not to bring any misfortune to the State by anti-Semitic demonstrations, and declaring that those guilty in the occurrence will be punished.

Posters with anti-Jewish slogans and accusations meet the eye everywhere in Budapest, and there is grave apprehension of other and more serious outbreaks.

Acquittal of Jewish Militia in Lemberg.

Lemberg.—Shortly before the anti-Jewish pogrom which took place last year on November 22 and 23 in Lemberg, eight members of the Jewish militia were arrested by Polish troops on the charge that they were in league with the Ukrainians and had fired upon the Poles. The Jewish Militia had been organized for the protection of Jewish lives and property during the Polish-Ukrainian conflict, and had been sanctioned by the Polish civil and military authorities. After nearly a year the arrested members of the Jewish Militia, who were imprisoned the whole time, were tried in Lemberg. The court, after thoroughly investigating the charges, found that they were without foundation, and the prisoners were liberated. The leader of the patrol of eight men, Lieut. Staub, who had approached the Polish lines with a white flag, was shot by a certain Antoni Davidowski, who was found by the Lemberg court to be a well-known criminal, and was removed to a lunatic asylum. The Polish court has thus finally disposed of the oft-repeated charge that the Jews attacked the Poles during the Polish-Ukrainian conflict.

Immigration from Poland Impossible at Present.

Mr. Isidore Herschfield has conferred with representatives of the Polish Government and with the American Minister and consul with reference to immigration to this country of relatives of American citizens, and the minister and consul promised to inquire about transport facilities that may be available for this purpose when immigration becomes possible. At the present time, however, immigration from Poland to America is impossible, and this fact should be made known as widely as possible. Many tragedies are being caused by the unfounded belief that families can come to America; they sell their belongings, come to Warsaw in the belief that they can secure passports for America, and there, in Warsaw, helpless, without shelter or resources, they are stranded.

Installation at Richmond Hill.

On November 30, 1919, Rabbi Reuben Rabinowitz was formally installed as rabbi of the Congregation Beth Israel, of Richmond Hill, L. I.

The program of the evening was simple and impressive. Rabbi Benjamin Lichten gave the invocation prayer. Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of Dropsie College and acting president of the Jewish Theological Seminary, delivered the address of installation and Rabbi Rabinowitz then addressed his congregation in response to Dr. Adler.

The musical numbers were rendered by Cantor Josef Shlisky, of the Congregation Ohab Zedek, Manhattan, and Miss Etta Goldstein.

Anniversary of the Jewish Congress.

New York delegates of the Jewish Congress celebrated the first anniversary of its existence on Sunday evening, December 14, by a meeting at the Central Jewish Institute of New York, attended by most of the Jewish congress members from New York, and at which addresses were made by members of the committee which had represented the Jewish Congress at the peace conference.

The hope was expressed that other cities and towns throughout the country would also find a way of celebrating this first anniversary of the Jewish congress in some appropriate form, so as to uphold the idea of the Jewish Congress and of Jewish public opinion in America, and to express their appreciation of the great historic significance of the congress in the recent past, and its still greater possibilities for the future of Jewish life in America, where it is quite likely to be called upon to play a vital role.

Poale-Zion Building Dedicated.

The Poale-Zion has dedicated the building at 153 East Broadway, which had been one from which the former Warheit was issued before its consolidation with the Day.

The dedication ceremonies began on Saturday evening, and did not end until last Sunday night. There were speeches and dancing, and many good wishes for the success of the new publication which is soon to appear.

Jewish Legion Adopts Armenian Orphans.

Jewish soldiers in the Thirty-eighth Battalion of the British Fusiliers adopted more than a score of Armenian and Syrian orphans while in the camp at Rayal, Syria, according to a statement made at Near East Relief Headquarters, 1 Madison avenue, New York city, by a worker who has just returned from Syria.

This battalion was made up of Jewish young men from the United States who joined the English army to help wrest the land of their forefathers from the grasp of the Ottoman power and was known as the Jewish Legion.

"We just can't see the babies starve," was the way members of the organization explained the fact that so many of these children were finding homes and food at their camp. The poor little wanderers came to the camp ragged, hungry and almost exhausted from the hardships they had endured.

One of the most interesting of the orphans adopted by the battalion was Reuben Innegian, who appeared at the camp one morning "lacking practically everything that a boy should have to make him happy. He was without food, without clothing and, most of all, without his left leg. His story is typical of those of the other children who found a refuge with these American Jewish young men while they were serving in the land of the Turk.

This boy was six years old and lived with his parents in the Lebanon mountains, when, at the beginning of the war, his family was deported, driven from place to place, and finally died. He became a wandering orphan and for four years sought food where he could beg it or pick it from the refuse in the streets. One night he fell asleep on the railroad track and when he returned to consciousness he realized that a passing train had cut off his left leg.

Of how he survived this accident

Reuben has only a faint recollection, but he knows that he was again made happy and taught to smile under the care of these Americans in the British army. He grew fat and forgot his sufferings while in the army camp, for, while the Turks were unable to conquer the Jewish Legion, Reuben captured the hearts and affections of the men almost instantly by his natural intelligence and cheerfulness.

When the British withdrew the soldiers from Rayak, Reuben had to look for a new home, and he found it in one of the orphanages established by Near East Relief, 1 Madison avenue, New York city. This organization is caring for thousands of homeless orphans, most of whom have witnessed the torture and death of their parents at the hands of the Turks.

Not only is Near East Relief looking after the welfare of the children, but, further, it is caring for thousands of young women who have been rescued from Turkish harems where they were imprisoned after the men of their families had been deported, and is furnishing food, clothing and medical treatment to thousands of homeless refugees who would perish from hunger, exposure and disease if aid were not given them.

According to reports from Allied commissioners in the Near East, 800,000 persons will die of starvation unless aid is given them until the next harvest, and 120,000 more orphan children are wandering around over the country without food and clothing.

The only hope of these people is to obtain relief from the generosity of the people of the United States, a nation which represents all that is great, noble and generous to suffering people throughout the world.

$150,000 in Individual Remittances Sent Abroad Last Month.

Desperate appeals from poverty-stricken parents, wives, brothers and sisters in Europe to their relatives in America for help have resulted in a redoubling of the efforts of the Joint Distribution Committee to transmit individual remittances from relatives in every part of this country to their people abroad. More than $150,000 was sent abroad during the last month by agencies throughout the country co-operating with the Joint Distribution Committee in this task.

Branch agencies are operating in seven cities as follows: Baltimore—Hebrew Immigrant Aid, 1613 East Baltimore street; Boston—New England Bureau, 46 Cornhill, Room 502; Chicago—Chicago Joint Relief Committee, 720 West Twelfth street, and Chicago People's Relief Committee, 803 Roosevelt road; Cincinnati, Ohio—United Jewish Charities, 731 West Sixth street; Cleveland, Ohio—Jewish National Relief Committee, Woodland avenue and East Fifty-fifth street; San Francisco—Federation of Jewish Charities, 436 O'Farrel street; New York—Main office, Joint Distribution Committee, 10 Exchange place; branches, 98 Second avenue, 1321 Boston road; Bronx, 1878 Pitkin avenue, Brooklyn, 175 East Broadway.

Arrangements are being made to secure similar co-operation wherever local agencies are desirous of helping in the work. In cities where such co-operation exists, funds destined for relatives abroad can be brought directly to the office of the co-operating organization; in all other cases a certified check or money order for the amount should be sent directly to the New York office. The entire process of remitting funds now makes it possible to send direct relief to suffering relatives in Europe without difficulty, and all American relatives and friends of families abroad may avail themselves of this opportunity.

In the sending of funds it is recommended for many reasons that the money be sent, not in one large remittance, but in regular monthly installments of as much as the sender can afford. It is desirable that the sender secure a regular remittance form, either from the New York office and send this, filled out, together with his remittance, or apply to one of the local branch offices. In any case it is important that the check or money order be accompanied by full information concerning the name and address of the sender, the name and address of the person to whom the remittance is being sent, and any further information that might help to locate the addressee. It is also absolutely necessary that the check be certified. The check and remittance blank or letter should then be mailed to the New York office, or, where co-operating agencies exist, should be brought to such an office and the sender will receive in return a receipt testifying that the money has been received and will be forwarded.

The Pogrom in Jelez.

London.—The London Jewish Correspondence Bureau communicates the following particulars about the pogroms which have taken place during the march of Mamontow's troops from Kursk to Tula. All along the route which the soldiers of Mamontow took not one Jewish town was spared from outrage, but that which occurred in Jelez has no parallel. There bloody pogroms lasted for three days, and the Cossacks plundered practically every Jewish house in the town. On the very first day on which the Cossacks arrived in the town a great number of Jews were taken to the Jewish cemetery and there slaughtered ruthlessly. But one example of their cruelty was the taking by the Cossacks of a woman named Sakheim and her young daughter into a wood, where they first violated and then slew them, together with sixteen other Jews. Further reports state that in the Orlower street alone sixteen young Jewish girls were violated and slaughtered, together with twenty other Jews, among them two children four years of age. In the house of the Jew Sarchin, the Cossacks violated his only daughter, sixteen years of age, before the eyes of her father, and then killed them both. Similar scenes of horror took place in the houses, all in the Oskalsker street, of the following Jews: Feldmann, Rapaport, and Zeitlin. Altogether over 200 Jews were killed during the pogrom in Jelez.

SOCIAL NOTES.

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Mark, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. Mark, and Alexander Goodrich will take place on December 24, 1919, at Savigny Hall.

The Hebrew Mutual Benefit Society will celebrate its 100th anniversary by giving a dinner and dance at the Hotel Astor on Sunday evening, March 28.

A Chanukah entertainment will be given by the children of the Ohav Zedek Talmud Torah on Sunday, December 21, at 8 p. m., at the synagogue, No. 18 West 116th street. All are welcome.

"A Jewish Girl's Dream," a Chanukah play, will be given at the Harris Theatre, West Forty-second street, Sunday evening, December 21, by the children of the religious school of Temple Peniel. "A Jewish Girl's Dream," which was written by Rabbi and Mrs. Joel Blau, is a Biblical pageant, in which practically the whole course of Jewish history is shown in the form of a mystic dream which is dreamed by a Jewish girl while unwillingly studying her Bible lesson for Sunday school.

Mme. Hulda Lashanska (in private life Mrs. Harold Rosenbaum, of 157 West Seventy-ninth street) became the mother of a nine-and-a-half-pound daughter at Lenox Hill Hospital on Monday, December 15. Mme. Lashanska is America's favorite concert soprano, and her career as a singer has been phenomenal because of her extraordinarily beautiful voice. Little Margaret Rosenbaum is a lucky youngster to have a mother whose hundred-thousand dollar voice will sing lullabies for her.

A dinner was tendered to Dr. Henry Keller and Dr. Ira I. Kaplan last Sunday night at the Central Jewish Institute by the officers of the Jewish Forum Publishing Co. The dinner was given to mark Dr. Keller's return from Palestine and to honor Dr. Kaplan for his many services to Judaism. There was a large gathering present, who listened to excellent addresses by Rabbis Drachman, Hyamson, Goldstein and Hurwitz, Messrs. Charles D. Shapiro, Abraham Schepper, Peter Wiernick, and I. Montefiore Levy. Mr. Israel Fine was toastmaster and Rabbi M. S. Margolies said grace after the meal.

The marriage of Miss Cecile Rosenblum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob C. Rosenblum of 490 West End avenue, to Mr. Stanley E. Selonick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Selonick, took place on Wednesday, December 10, at the Hotel St. Regis. The twin sister of the bride, Miss Dorothy Rosenblum, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Julia Solomon and Miss Phyllis Cahn. Mrs. David Forman was matron of honor and Miss Ethel Grifenhagen was flower girl. Edwin Goldberg served as best man, and the ushers were Benjamin W. Rosenblum and Harold L. Heimerdinger. Among the guests present were the bride's uncle, ex-Sheriff Max S. Grifenhagen, Hon. Joseph Yeska, Commissioner of the Board of Education, and Judge Julius M. Mayer of the United States District Court.

After a trip South the couple will reside in New York city.

British Captain Tells of Plight of Siberian Jews.

The miserable plight of the Jews in Siberia, the terrible condition of Jewish refugees and the horrible suffering endured by the prisoners of war there, of whom the vast proportion are Jews, were told to members of the American Jewish Relief Committee and its disbursing organization, the Joint Distribution Committee, by Captain David I. Sandison of the British Military Mission to Siberia, while awaiting sailing to England this week.

Captain Sandison conferred with Louis Marshall, chairman of the American Jewish Relief Committee; Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee; Jacob H. Schiff, Abraham I. Elkus and other members of the committees. As a British staff officer he refused to discuss the political situation in Russia, but made public a plea for immediate relief for the thousands of suffering Jewish people in Siberia. Captain Sandison is on his way home after fourteen months he spent in Siberia with the English mission.

"The plight of Jewish refugees in Siberia, who have fled from Russia, is pitiful," he declared. "Thousands of these refugees, barely existing, are found throughout Siberia. They are absolutely destitute, as they were forced to leave everything behind when they escaped from Russia. Many of them are to be found in Vladivostock, where their misery is appalling. I hate to think what their condition is this winter or how they will live through the frightful tortures of the severe climate with little or no clothing, food, shelter and fuel."

"I naturally came in contact with Jewish relief work in my travels through Siberia. As far as it extends, it is good, but it is pitifully small for the amount of work there is to be done. Siberia is a vast country which renders relief work difficult and which makes any aid seem infinitesimal when compared with the needs at hand."

The most distressing and pitiful cases of all the misery he witnessed in Siberia were the Russian prisoners of war, according to Captain Sandison. "Most of them are Jews, that is, about 15,000, or 80 per cent., of the total number of prisoners," he continued. "They are kept in three large prison camps, and as there is no available shipping or other transportation, they are forced to remain in Siberia, suffering unbelievable hardships.

"Every British officer with our mission sympathizes deeply with their terrible condition. Thousands of them have died and they will certainly perish, unless something is done to save them," he concluded.

Through funds, raised by the American Jewish Relief Committee and allied organizations, almost two million roubles were disbursed recently in Siberia by the Joint Distribution Committee. More extensive relief measures to alleviate the suffering there will soon be put in operation, it was announced.

Needs of Jews in Roumania Urgent.

According to reports sent by Lieutenant James H. Becker and records presented by Miss Hetty Goldman, who visited Roumania in the spring and organized the relief committee there, the needs of the poor Jews in that country continue great and urgent. High prices of food commodities, brought about by the small harvest during war-time, and, on the other hand, reduced incomes due to lack of work, lack of raw materials and economic discrimination against the Jews, make the problem of securing enough food to sustain life a difficult one. Due to lack of transportation facilities, it is difficult to obtain fuel and other commodities.

When the Joint Distribution Committee initiated its activities there, there was a terrible need of clothing, linens and shoes; thousands of Jews walked bare-foot and in rags, the hospitals were without necessary linens and, what with the lack of both fuel and warm clothing, the winter had been a cruel and terrible one.

The well-to-do Jews in Roumania were extraordinarily generous and interested in the welfare of their unfortunate brethren, and all sorts of activities were promoted to secure funds for relief. At Fucharest the community supported thirty charitable societies, in addition to thirty cultural and social organizations, twenty-four schools, thirty-nine mutual aid societies and fourteen organizations established to meet war needs. The women of the community supported a large orphan asylum, the B'nai Brith organized canteens which distributed free soup, provided vacations for school children, distributed bread and jam to school children, and distributed wood to the poor during the winter. But the needs of the Jews throughout Roumania continued to increase until the local Jews could no longer supply them, and it was then that a call for aid was sent to America.

The recent celebration of the second anniversary of the Zion-ist Declaration was like Hamlet without the melancholy Dane. Where was Mr. Balfour?

A League of Religions has just been established in London in the formation of which the representatives of all the various creeds domiciled in the British capital participated. The State of New York has long had an organization with similar aims, working along identical lines. We refer to our useful State conference of religion.

No one to our knowledge has ever put better the ineptitude of "Jewish" Christian Science as opposed to Judaism, pure and undefiled, than Rabbi Horace J. Wolf in the following extract from his diary. We owe this tidbit to the interesting Hebrew Union College Monthly, to which the rabbi's diary was originally contributed:

My head was in a whirl. For an hour I had been listening to the latest convert to Christian Science. "Mind is superior to matter; circumstances are of no account," ad infinitum and beyond! As she continued to bury me beneath an avalanche of words I contrasted mentally the beautiful and luxuriously furnished house, designed to serve every creature comfort, the quiet, shady street in our city's most exclusive neighborhood, with the brave little mother whom I had seen that same morning in her stuffy tenement apartment, ugly and squalid in its poverty. If only the latter had preached of the superiority of mind to matter my skepticism might not have been so stolid.

Since when have the local Zionists undertaken to "interest" themselves in municipal partisan politics? The question is appropriate, for we are credibly advised that all the Zionists of the Borough Park district of Brooklyn recently got together and named a committee. Not to aid in the rehabilitation of Palestine, or the like, but to secure favorable consideration of the claims to be a deputy sheriff of Kings county by a local Republican election captain and fellow-Zionist. We have the notion that the sheriff-elect of Kings county will not be seriously influenced by the appeals of this novel committee, since this is not recruited from the accredited political material. As a matter of fact, when Zionists engaged upon work (?) of this nature they must expect to be rebuffed. Besides, their great movement is likely to be injured in public esteem by a performance of this nature.

We are not surprised, in view of the unexampled prosperity of the country during recent years, that the attraction held out by the rabbinical profession in particular to young men of parts and education has markedly declined. In truth, so far as the American-born Jew is concerned, how many of them adopted the rabbinical career as their chosen life work? It is a pity that this is the case, but the truth must be stated; and now, by reason of the gigantic rewards which lie to hand in all the departments of commercial life, it is even more difficult than ever to hit upon a Jewish lad born on our soil who is willing to forego the choice, material prizes of life and become a rabbi. Our theological seminaries, if they were to make this fact known, are suffering under this condition. Their students have melted away, having become attracted by opportunities which they could not deny. And yet, with a fine idealism which has ever characterized Israel, there is hope that the rabbinate will attract men of native origin, of light and leading, who are abundantly able to shed lustre on the eternal verities of Judaism by their lives and actions. Such there are and such will be found, the need for them to function being so apparent. At all events the rabbinate is worthy the earnest attention of men of accredited standing, with the essential prerequisites of training and the ability and the desire to live up to our deathless ideals in a world engrossed by material passions.

Correspondents and subscribers are notified that matter intended for the current issue of the HEBREW STANDARD must reach our office not later than Tuesday, 10 A. M. This rule will be strictly adhered to.

FAREWELL TO SURROGATE FOWLER.

ON the last day of this month and year the official term of the Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of the county of New York, expires through the operation of the constitutional provision whereby no judge of one of our higher courts of record shall perform his functions after he shall have completed the seventieth year of his age. But for this fact Surrogate Fowler would continue to adorn the bench, of which he is so great and eminent an ornament, till the close of his days, for his intellectual vigor and youthful ardor are still undiminished—indeed, unquenchable. Surrogate Fowler neither looks nor acts like a man who has reached and passed the milestone of life celebrated by the Psalmist.

With this Surrogate's departure from the bench the judicial system of this State loses one of its brightest stars. It is not too much to say that he has been the most learned and distinguished jurist who ever graced the Surrogate's Court of this county, if not one of the most scholarly judges in the history of American jurisprudence. Our readers are not required to take our statement on trust; Surrogate Fowler's decisions attest his wealth of learning, his remarkable ability and his thoroughgoing practical wisdom. Some of them—as, for example, the case of Henry Spondre, on which we commented at length in our issue of February 2, 1917—involved questions of interest to our community. In the cited case the Surrogate displayed an amazing mastery of intricate problems of rabbinical law.

Withal, this great jurist is winningly modest. We know that he refused tenders of complimentary dinners on his retirement by John G. Milburn, Charles E. Hughes and a group of former justices of our Appellate Division and by the various bar associations of this city. Moreover, he even declined to sit for his portrait at the request of a committee of our leading lawyers. The learned Surrogate will be remembered to the end of time by his works—the accumulated mass of his decisions during the years that he sat on the bench. These in many instances blazed the way to the solution of vexatious and hitherto undetermined questions of property rights as well as of probate law, and are landmarks in our jurisprudence.

Surrogate Fowler takes with him into retirement the good wishes for long life, good health and unabated prosperity of all the people of our city.

THE UKRAINIAN POGROMS.

MORE devastating in their consequences than even the worst anti-Jewish excesses perpetrated in the name and with the tacit encouragement of the old regime in Russia are the pogroms in the Ukraine which have filled the lives of the Jews surviving them since the beginning of this year. Every investigator on the spot, every returning traveler from that part of the world is loud in protest against these inhuman barbarities. We have heard it stated by those in a position to know whereof they spoke that the Ukrainian pogroms rivaled in their devilish outrages and wastage of human lives the worst attacks against the Jews under the notorious Bogdan Chmielnitzki around the middle of the seventeenth century.

In short, after a cruel world war of nearly five years' duration, and after Russia had passed through a short and apparently glorious revolutionary period, the world of twentieth century progress and enlightenment is made the scene of inhumanities comparable only to the worst that befell the race in the dark Middle Age.

Hence the testimony of Dr. Abraham Koralknik, the Yiddish writer, the latest member of this community to return from a tour of inspection of the Ukraine, was known before its delivery, as it were. He simply corroborated and reinforced that which had been made known to us by his predecessors.

Statistics disclose that during the year 1918 in no less than 353 localities in the territory known as the Ukraine, pogroms occurred, involving the destruction of well over 30,000 Jewish lives. In addition, many more of our co-religionists were wounded in various degrees of seriousness, while the frightful property loss (which is comparatively negligible) remains unestimated. It should not be forgotten that the Ukraine, being the place of contention for the rival forces of Denikine and Petlioura, the Ukrainian Jews have been subjected to attacks of an equally rapacious character from all sides, and have no power to withstand them.

Here, then, is a call to civilization to devise and secure efficacy for immediate measures of alleviation and relief. The American Jewish Commission, received by Secretary Lansing, made such an appeal. Those who contended for the triumph of democratic ideals throughout the world especially should see to it that human beings (not merely Jews, if they please) are no longer exposed to such abominable attacks.

It is undoubtedly true that the recent blast of Rabbi Samuel Schulman against Dr. Felix Adler's Society for Ethical Culture presents no features of novelty. Years ago, when Ethical Culture was a comparatively new movement, the pulpits and journalistic organs of our community were eloquent in pointing out the fallaciousness reposing beneath the structure of this new religiosity. Of late years, due to the undignified flirting of ultra-radical Jews with Liberal Christianity and sundry undigested theologies, the Jewish warning against Ethical Culture ceased wholly. Indeed, it is more than likely that Dr. Adler could have returned to the synagogue, had he been so minded, through the same doors as had been opened so theatrically to "Rabbi" Jesus and the Snyoptic Gospels. Therefore Rabbi Schulman's criticism of Ethical Culture was not without its use, although it is to be regretted that the form of the comment left considerable to be desired on the side of the amenities.

THE "HAPPY ENDING."

"And it came to pass at the end . . ."—(Gen. xli., 1.)

LITERARY critics usually frown upon "happy endings." Stories or plays of a certain type, appealing mostly to the galleries, in which after obviously contrived obstacles hero and heroine marry and "live happily forever after", or in which suffering innocence is rewarded and the villain visited with condign punishment, are as a rule objectionable not alone because by their sentimental melodramatic tone they offend good taste, but chiefly because they are not true to life. They impress us as unreal. Life is altogether too strange for these easy contrivances of playwright or story-hack. "Happy endings" are not as readily brought about, if at all, in real life as in the imitation life of magazine fiction. To indulge in a shallow, superficial optimism means to falsify life. Your typical happy-ender misses this great truth: his very difficulties are paste-board and paint, and the way out is a mere counterfeit of the solution of life's problem. All this is felt with respect to literary "happy endings" not from a morbid sense of the sadness of existence, but rather from a fine realization of the tragic grandeur inherent in the passionate business of living, when this is carried on consciously towards a grandly conceived aim. This tragic grandeur is the outcome of Frustration. Frustration is the central fact of life, which the happy-ender disregards. Frustration that adds nobility to all true heroism, and enhances with spiritual beauty all who have dared and failed. Frustration that grows more imminent the higher men go in the scale of human endeavor, and which in the end offers a crown of thorns as the wreath of true victory. . . .

Life's strangeness, as seen in frustration, is undeniable. But it is equally undeniable that at times life is just strange enough to give us "happy endings." The hero does not necessarily have to end his days by suicide or on the gallows. Occasionally life surprises us by its merciful regard for ordinary human nature which after all delights in "happy endings." The case to which our text refers is one of these. Joseph, after a great many vicissitudes which led to the dungeon, whence he had precious little chance of being liberated, is suddenly, by an astonishing turn of fortune's wheel, lifted out of the darkness and placed on the throne of Egypt. This perhaps is no story to delight captious critics; but God who directs the course of life has his own canons of art. Here at least the hero was redeemed and compensated for his unmerited suffering. And all this "at the end" of but two years. A finely contrived happy ending!

And let us admit that these occasional happy endings serve as encouragement to Faith. True faith indeed is too staunch to be shaken by failure. Failure is a challenge to faith which the latter accepts and answers heroically. In fact it is faith that turns defeat into victory in the face of heartrending frustration of the noblest human effort. For all true victories are inward, are of the spirit; and their virtue lies in their death-defying quality. Not alone is it wonderful to behold the human spirit rising, by an act of stupendous recoil, above reverses, but such an example is fruitful in providing the necessary impulse for the ultimate victory of the very cause which seems to have failed in the outward failure, in any given case, of the man of high emprise. Hence all failure is purely temporary, even as regards the cause such a man champions, suffers and dies for. That is to say that in all such cases failures are merely happy-endings deferred. The delay may be longer or shorter—dependent on the wisdom of God. The virtue of faith lies in its infinite patience: it knows supremely how to wait. And when faith has waited and won in the end, it is encouraged, though it never seeks encouragement in mere outward circumstance. "Happy endings" are as a matter of fact not objectionable in themselves; they are only objectionable when by a process of vulgar reasoning they are believed to be reachable by easy stages. They cannot so be reached: they can only be attained after due atonement is made and the supreme sacrifice brought for truth's sake. But when the sacrificial act finally ends in victory of truth and right, faith shouts Hosannah to the God who never allows tears and blood to flow in vain. . . .

All this applies to Joseph. But it also applies to Israel. As is well known from the rabbinic writings, Joseph is a favorite symbol for the Jewish people. And this symbol, this embodiment of the woes and hopes of Israel, is particularly applied with the advent of the Festival of Chanukkah, reminiscent of the struggles, the heroism and the victories of the Maccabaeans. Here again, in the story of Judas the Hammerer, we have a happy ending. Only, in considering this happy ending, we cannot ward off the sad reflection that it was so short-lived. For awhile, indeed, the foreign foe was driven out and Israel restored to independence of life and worship; but the glory departed after a relatively brief historic period, to give way to untold hardships and superhuman suffering through all the dark ages of Jewish martyrdom to this very day. . . .

Chanukkah is the occasion when, beneath the feebly flickering flames of the festal lights, we Jews should consider the fate and future of Israel. We naturally ask, Will there be a happy ending for the story of Israel—and when? This story extending over the unhappy centuries of Jewish dispersion, Jewish homelessness, Jewish world-wandering, will it ever end in the final restoration of Israel, in the final triumph of Jewish ideals? "For indeed I was stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews, and here also I have done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon"—was the cry of Joseph. It is a cry that the Jewish people may well echo. Will there be at last an answer to this age-long cry of a much-maligned, home-sick people? Faith only, the wonderful faith of Israel, has an answer to these questions. Israel believes. Israel hopes. Israel prays. And its death-defying faith shines out clearly of the feebly yet valiantly flickering Chanukkah-flames. JOEL BLAU.

Jewish New Thought Centers.
 Editor Hebrew Standard:
 I would appreciate if this could receive space in your valuable paper, as it may be of interest to many people who are interested in the idea set forth.
 A Jewish New Thought Center has been formed under the direct leadership of Mrs. Nettie Samuelson, Miss Alice Joseph and Mrs. Bertha Strauss. Meetings for education on every topic relating to this idea take place every Sunday evening at various centres which are being rapidly formed and are to be scattered throughout the city.
 Jewish New Thought centers are formed for the purpose of not only antidoting the great breach formed in Judaism by having thousands of Jews seek the churches of Christian Science and similar cults, but to re-establish a Jewish renaissance, as it were, and bring back the old truths of the Bible, create within the consciousness of the Jewish people a desire as to study from its pages all the knowledge, the wisdom, the prosperity and power it contains, and to prove to them that they can by diligent study, great desire and a purified consciousness acquire from this remarkable book everything that they desire, healing of the body, prosperity in the home, harmony in affairs.
 As Whittier said—

"We search the whole world and bow at shrine of wood and stone for bread.
 At last, outworn, come back to tread the paths our mothers trod and read the Book our mothers read."

And as for the great Messianic idea, signs of which we see everywhere and the coming of which the prophet Ezekiel had been the forerunner of, let me quote this from Emma Lazarus on the New Ezekiel, which includes the prophesy of the work which is essentially ours, but puts forth the clarion call for a greater, a nobler, a grander Judaism—a Judaism freed from the degradation and darkness into which it has sunk at present, a Judaism that gave to the world not only its prophets, priests and kings, but from which all Christendom has received its power of spirituality and illumination:

THE NEW EZEKIEL.

What can these dead bones lure whose sap is dried by twenty scorching centuries of wrong?
 Is this the house of Israel, whose pride is as a tale that's told, an ancient wrong?
 Are these ignoble relics all that live of Psalmist, priest and prophet?
 Can the breath of very heaven hide these bones, open the graves and clothe the ribs of earth?
 Say to the wind, Come forth and breathe afresh,
 E'en that they may live upon these slain.
 And bone to bone shall leap and flesh to flesh. The Spirit is not dead.
 Proclaim the Word. Where lay dead bones a host of armed men stand. I ope your graves, my people, saith the Lord.

and I shall place you living in your home.

"Lest We Forget."

Editor Hebrew Standard:
 In issue of Standard of December 12 you write eloquently on the theme "Lest We Forget" and intimate that the late Dr. Sabato Morais, founder of the Jewish Theological Seminary, is not so often mentioned as his worth deserved. And why? His writings, which should have been given to the world twenty years ago, are still withheld from publication, and therefore it is in the very nature of things that men who were but babes when Dr. Morais departed this life and others who came very young to America after 1897 should know but little. The written word is very powerful, at times, to keep alive the memory of the great departed, their utterances properly arranged and elucidated by instructive comment and historical survey. Something ought to have been done—who is to blame hitherto for this sin of omission? The Jews of America waited for some years; finding that waiting was vain, they shrugged their shoulders: "What can we do in the matter?" Perhaps, you, dear editor, can do something.

Forbidden Passages in the Bible.

Editor Hebrew Standard:
 There is an Evangelist in our town who in an address declared, "There are certain passages in the Old Testament which are left out and the Jew forbidden to read. Will you be good enough to enlighten me on this subject and let me know whether the statement of the Evangelist is correct and oblige

BERTIE F. GREEN.

Liberty, N. Y., Dec. 11, 1919.

The following opinion is furnished by Rev. Dr. Moses Hyamson, rabbi of the Congregation Orach Chaim and professor of laws and codes of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America:

There are no passages left out of the Old Testament that the Jews are forbidden to read or learn, as the Evangelist asserted. The whole Bible is open to the Jew and the world without the suppression of a single word.

Still, the Evangelist may have some basis for his statement. In olden times it was the custom to read the Torah publicly, as we do on Sabbaths and festivals, and to translate it into Aramaic, verse by verse, for the benefit of those who did not understand Hebrew which we do not do at the present as Aramaic is not the vernacular. Genesis, chapter 35 verse 22, which expresses Reuben's unseemly conduct, was left untranslated so as not to shame Reuben's memory. Likewise, the second account of the making of the Golden Calf (Exodus 32:21-25) was not read and not translated for fear that the words at the close of v. 24, "I threw it (the gold) into the fire and this calf came forth" might be understood by the people to mean that the Golden Calf was miraculously formed and was a proper object of adoration.

The story of Amnon and Tamar (Sam. 13, v. 29) (Amnon, a son of King David, dishonored his half-sister Tamar and was murdered by her brother Absalom) is not read publicly nor interpreted, i. e., is not chosen as the Haftorah—the reading from the prophets, customary on the Sabbaths—the passage not being particularly edifying and there being a large number of chapters in the Scriptures from which selections can be made.

But these chapters and sections are in the Bible. They are read regularly by young and old. The Evangelist must have got his information, or, rather, his misinformation from some anti-Semitic work like Eisenmenger's, Pefferkorn's, Wagensell's or Rohlings.

Maimonides Code Book 2, Laws of Prayer, c. 2, par. 12, says that only the words Amnon son of David are left out and untranslated for the sake of David's honor. The priestly benediction is read and not translated.

Council House to Be Dedicated.

"Council House," at 74 St. Marks Place, the new headquarters recently purchased by the New York Section, Council of Jewish Women, will be dedicated on Sunday, December 21, at 3 p. m. The program will include a prayer by Dr. Moses Hyamson, a presentation by Mrs. William D. Sporborg, a resume of the work by Mrs. May V. Fisher, and the dedication address by the Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass. The music will be furnished by the children of the religious schools. A reception and tea will follow the dedication, and an inspection of the building will be invited.

After an experiment of three years the New York Section of Council of Jewish Women found the need for a headquarters very great indeed. Following out the idea of this need a house was purchased at 74 St. Marks Place recently. Through the efforts of Mrs. Irving Lehman the purchase price of the house above mortgages was met by Mrs. Julius Beer, Mrs. Henry J. Bernheim, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Nathan Hofheimer, Mrs. Irving Lehman, Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff and Mr. Arthur Lehman. To help raise the mortgages on the house a musicale and ball was given at the Hotel Commodore on November 25. Money is still needed to complete the payment of the mortgage and to complete the budget for the activities of the section.

A group of the Classes in Religion conducted by the New York Section Council Jewish Women at 74 St. Marks place.

The house at 74 St. Marks Place is used for many purposes and is a Jewish center for the neighborhood.

Mothers meet there to discuss neighborhood problems.

They bring their children, who are given care.

Children under trained teachers learn the Jewish traditions and the precepts of the Jewish religion.

Friday evening services are conducted at 74 St. Marks Place.

All Jewish holidays are fittingly observed.

Women who have been in America for years, until recently speaking only Yiddish, now learn English at this house.

The religious work under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Mayor Asher, is one of the most important factors at Council House.

In addition, the work is becoming more and more educational, conducted along scientific lines to counteract the extreme radical element that has crept into the district. The emphasis is laid upon the training of foreign mothers hitherto not assimilated in the Americanization movement, who are the most backward of the immigrant group. Their arrested development is largely responsible for the disintegration of the family.

The mothers of the various classes have been organized into a mothers' club. They are taking a weekly course of lectures given under the auspices of the Board of Health.

Over 500 people attended different functions at the house during the past week, and the people in the neighborhood come to it for all kinds of advice and service.

The officers of the New York Section are:

- President, Mrs. Wm. D. Sporborg;
- honorary president, Mrs. Alexander Kohut;
- honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. Simon Baruch, Mrs. Julius Beer, Mrs. A. N. Cohen, Mrs. Isabella Freedman, Mrs. Nathan Glauber, Mrs. J. B. Greenhut, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Daniel P. Hays, Mrs. Frederick Nathan, Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, Mrs. Oscar S. Straus, Mrs. Cyrus Sulzberger;
- vice-presidents, Mrs. May V. Fisher; first vice-president, Mrs. Irving Lehman; second vice-president, Mrs. N. Taylor Phillips, Mrs. Bernard E. Pollak, Mrs. William Singer, Mrs. Robert Weil;
- treasurer, Mrs. Emil Klein; auditor, Mrs. Ira Leo Bamberger; recording secretary, Mrs. Samuel H. Bijur; corresponding secretary, Miss Sara X. Schottenfels.

THE HIGHEST CHOICE

Do not let it be merely a question of initial cost when you make your choice of pianos. The matchless music of the Steinway has lifted it above the "price" atmosphere for all time.

It is true, the Steinway does cost a little more. But no one who owns a Steinway has ever a shadow of regret for the price paid. It is but little higher than the cost of other pianos, and the Steinway carries within its perfect mechanism the guarantee of a satisfaction beyond all price.

For more than three score years it has been the ideal of the greatest music masters of their day. So the Steinway must command your respectful attention before your choice is made.

apartment hunting

In the past few months has become an odious and arduous duty for many people. Any number, however, have solved this problem by making their winter home at the HOTEL SHELBURNE.

Congregation Kehilath Israel of the Bronx.

The Bronx is not especially noted for its speed, yet when it begins to work it does so with relish. The Congregation Kehilath Israel, 1162 Jackson Avenue, is now well on the way with its activities. At a meeting of the School Committee, held on Tuesday evening, December 9, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kleban, 1714 Crotona Park East, it was decided to arrange for a mothers' association which shall include besides such members of the sisterhood as may be interested, the mothers of the pupils of the synagogue. The first meeting has been called for Thursday, December 18, at 3.30 p. m., at the synagogue. For future meetings invitations will be extended to experts who will discuss various aspects of child welfare. But, of course, the primary purpose of the organization is the finding of means of developing co-operation between the school and the home so that they may supplement each other.

It was also decided to arrange as soon as practicable for extension teaching for such children as could not attend the regular Hebrew school. This will probably be carried out by means of club work, with the co-operation of Young Judea and the League of the Jewish Youth.

The young folks' league is making rapid progress. On Tuesday evening, December 16, Mr. Moses Baroway, secretary of the Palestine Medical Unit, is to tary of the Palestine Medical Unit, addressed the league at the headquarters periences in Palestine. The lecture was followed by a musical and social program. The league is offering a course on "Jewish Problems of Today," the time and place to be settled at the convenience of those undertaking the work. It is also expected to arrange a course in "Social and Economic Problems of the World," to be given by one well trained in these matters.

The necessity of housing the various activities as well as the school is arousing more and more the attention of the members. It is everywhere felt that the time has come to build an institution that shall be not only a synagogue but a community center so that all the activities can be housed together.

Jewish Memorial Hospital Fund Over $300,000.

A dinner meeting of the Jewish Memorial Hospital Building Fund was held last Thursday night at Floral Gardens, 146th street and Broadway. Samuel Marx presided, and the speakers were Borough-President-elect Henry Curran, Congressman La Guardia, Dr. Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner Murray Hulbert, Anna M. Kross and others.

Additional pledges of more than $40,000 were reported. This brings the total thus far collected past $300,000, and many practical suggestions were made to speed up the securing of the balance of the $500,000 fund needed for the erection of this non-sectarian hospital.

A site committee was appointed to select the location in the Washington Heights section for the new hospital.

Communal Leaders Veto Proposed Joint Drive for Zionist and Joint Distribution Committee.

A meeting of communal leaders was held at Temple Emanu-El vestry rooms last Sunday afternoon, called by Mr. Jacob H. Schiff. Mr. Schiff explained that the meeting was convened at the request of Justices Louis D Brandeis and Julian W. Mack to consider the question of instituting a joint drive on behalf of the Federation of American Zionists and the Joint Distribution Committee. The sense of those present was against the proposed drive, but a resolution was adopted to the effect that collections be undertaken for reconstruction work in Europe and in Palestine.

The Way of God.
(By Dr. S. J. Brenner, D.O.D.C.)

A warm heart in perfect trim,
Masculine-like in its strength;
Where love and goodness reign supreme,
In its valves and cardiac length.

O, wondrous is that work of art
Which knells the passing hour,
That never will alone depart
Without the magic feminine power.

No passion are these fearless sounds
That beat with lonely sadness;
But pure and holy in their bounds,
They wait for love and gladness.

For a truthful soul and heart,
God-like in its loving thrillings,
That will harmonize and dart
In the divine thoughts and feelings.

That when eyes in eyes will gaze,
And tender words be spoken;
Divine understanding, God, O, praise,
Immortal tie, universally betoken.

Such is the love that measures life,
One blood, one flesh, one spirit blended,
Thus 'twill run without hate nor strife,
Till every breathing spark be ended.

Hebrew Session at I. Z. A. Conference.

One of the features of the I. Z. A. annual conference, which will take place in Boston from December 31 to January 4, will be a Hebrew session, which will be held on Thursday evening, January 1, at Harvard Union, the headquarters of the convention. Prof. H. Wolfson, of Harvard, will be chairman, and Dr. N. Turoff, educational authority on Palestinian education, who has just arrived from Palestine, will speak in Hebrew on "Hebrew Culture in Palestine," and Dr. Simcha Rubinstein will present a paper on Ha Poel Hazair. Cantor B. Chaggi, of Boston, will give a short concert of Hebrew melodies. Many New York and Eastern delegates are looking forward to this occasion, which is unique in the history of the I. Z. A.

Commission to Go to the Ukraine.

Mr. Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee for American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, has announced that a commission of three Americans will leave shortly for the Ukraine to investigate conditions of the Jews there and to take steps toward carrying out a relief program there. He stated that the United States Government has sanctioned the sending of the commission and would give all possible assistance in its work. It was also announced that large quantities of clothing purchased abroad from funds contributed by the J. D. C. would be sent to the Ukraine to be distributed by the commission.

Jews in Poland to Have Matzoth.

The Joint Distribution Committee is making the necessary inquiries to make possible the sending of flour to Poland for matzoth to be used in the coming Passover. It has learned that it will be possible to have matzoth manufactured in Poland for the Jews there and may afford them foodstuffs for the Passover season and employment for many persons in baking and preparing the unleavened bread. The shipping of flour now, it is believed, will insure the arrival on time of needed holiday supplies.

Sabbath Observance.

The question of Sabbath observance is constantly to the fore. There is one fact that is absolute and beyond contradiction. That is the fact that the Sabbath of the Bible—the only Sabbath of the Bible—is the seventh day of the week, commonly called Saturday.—Jewish Exponent.

Next week will be an Irish week at the Bronx Opera House. David Belasco will present "Dark Rosaleen" to the patrons of that house with essentially the same cast as that seen in it during its phenomenal run at the Belasco Theatre last season, when it broke all records for the run of an Irish play in the city of New York. Those who go to the Bronx Opera House to see a play that is truly Irish will not be disappointed. "Dark Rosaleen" is a romance in which the portrayal of scenes of Irish life is so realistic that one can almost get the scent of the Irish heather coming over the footlights when the curtain rises on the first act. One of the advantages secured by Mr. Belasco was in the bringing together of the most Irish cast ever seen in a production organized in this country. Unlike the amateur players who came to this country some years ago to present plays by Yeats and Synge, the actors in "Dark Rosaleen" are well schooled players and lend to the performance a degree of artistry that is as rare as it is delightful, and from the rise of the curtain on the first act until the close of the play, the laughter is almost continuous.

The management of the Bronx Opera House take pleasure in announcing that they have secured the season's most sensational melodramatic success, "The Crimson Alibi" for New Year's week, beginning Monday, December 29.

United Synagogue Eighth Annual Convention.

The eighth annual convention of the United Synagogue of America will take place in Philadelphia on February 1. Owing to the turn of Jewish affairs in this country this convention promises to be the most important in the history of the United Synagogue. Problems of national concern, such as the five-day working week and the activities of the missionaries, will be considered.

The United Synagogue, as stated by its leaders, is a federation of orthodox and conservative congregations throughout the country, with the object of strengthening traditional Judaism in the United States and Canada.

The president is Dr. Elias L. Solomon, of New York city, and the officers and chairmen of committees are as follows: Vice-presidents, Prof. Louis Ginzberg, Prof. M. M. Kaplan, Dr. Herman Abramowitz and Dr. C. H. Kauvar; treasurer, Mr. Harry Krulewitch; recording secretary, Dr. Jacob Kohn; corresponding secretary, Rabbi Chas. I. Hoffman; executive director, Rabbi Samuel M. Cohen, chairman of Propaganda; Dr. Cyrus Adler, Education; Dr. Julius H. Greenstone, and Religious Observance, Rabbi Max Drob.

Anti-Jewish Disorders in Budapest.

Budapest, Dec. 8.—At the conclusion of a meeting of the Anti-Jewish party today, at which resolutions were passed demanding a continuance of the internment of Jewish communists, the sequestration of Jewish fortunes to help pay for the war and other anti-Jewish measures, a vast crowd rushed to the offices of the newspapers Nepszava and Az Est. The machinery and furniture were demolished, the crowd shouting "We must rid ourselves of the Jewish press."

The police fired blank charges and succeeded in dispersing the mob. One person was shot during the disorder and forty-two arrests were made.

Poles Protest to Government Against Appointment of Jewish Judge.

Warsaw (By I. J. P. B.).—The appointment of the assimilationist Jew, Adolph Cohen, as chief justice of the Lodz District Court, has aroused a storm of protest against the Polish Government, on the part of the local justices, court clerks, and lawyers who do not care to serve under a Jew. A deputation was sent to Cohen asking that he resign, but he refused. A petition to the government that the appointment be revoked met with no more success. The government declined to remove the judge from his office.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

THE PLEA OF MOSES.

Dear Children:

When Moses heard that it depended upon him to bring about a reconciliation between the Lord and Israel he besought the Lord and said: "Why, O Lord, shall thy wrath wax hot against thy people?" Rashi says (here he pointed out the insignificance of the thing they worshipped as not worthy of exciting a feeling of jealousy, for a sage should be jealous only of another sage, a mighty man of another mighty man): "Repent, thee, of the evil decree"—rather change thy thoughts in their favor but not for their harm. "Remember Abraham!" If they transgressed the Ten Commandments, remember their father, Abraham, who was tried with ten temptations, and as yet did not receive his reward. Give him his reward, that those ten may atone for these ten.

"Remember Abraham, Isaac and Israel." If they have incurred the penalty of being burned by fire, remember Abraham, who has, for thy sake, delivered himself to be burned in Ur of the Chaldees. If they have incurred the penalty of being slain by the sword, remember Isaac, who stretched forth his neck for the knife when he was bound as a sacrifice. If they have incurred the penalty of exile, remember Jacob, who was an exile in Charan. And if they cannot be saved for their sakes, why dost thou tell me, "And I will make of thee a great nation"?

If a stool having three feet cannot stand before thee in the time of thy wrath, how much less a stool standing on one foot, "to whom thou didst swear by thine own self." Thou didst not swear by something that is perishable, not by the heaven or the earth, not by the mountains or the hills, but by thine own self, thou who art eternal, and thy oath remains forever, as it is said: "By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord" (Genesis, 22), and to Isaac it was said: "And I will perform the oath which I swear unto Abraham, thy father" (Genesis, 26); and to Jacob it was said: "I saw the Eternal, the Almighty; he fruitful and multiply" (Genesis, 35).

He swore to him by his holy name. Moses having effected the reconciliation, went down from the mount with two tables of the testimony in his hand—"tables inscribed on both their sides": the words could be read from both sides, as it was made in a miraculous manner. "And the tables were the work of the Eternal." This is to be understood literally: He, in his glory, made them.

Another meaning of it is this, as one would say to another: "That one's entire occupation is in that work, thus all the delight of the Holy One, blessed be He, is in the Torah."

"And Joshua heard the noise of the people in its shouting," for they were shouting in their frivolous hilarity. "And he said, It is not the voice of a shout for mastery"—not the jubilation of triumphant conquerors—"neither is it the voice of a cry for defeat," of weaklings who cry despairingly as they flee from their enemy; "the noise of singing do I hear"—ribald songs of blasphemy that afflict the soul of him who hears them.

"And it came to pass, when he came right unto the camp, and he saw the calf and the dancing, that the anger of Moses waxed hot, and he cast from his hands the tables and broke them at the foot of the mount," he thought if the paschal lamb, the partaking of which is only one commandment—the Torah said, "No stranger shall eat thereof" (Exodus, 12)—the entire Torah is here and all Israel are recalcitrant, how can I give it to them?

"And he took the calf which they had made and burned it in fire and round it to a powder, and he strewn it upon the water and made the children of Israel drink of it." He intended to prove them as a wife suspected of unfaithfulness to her husband (Numbers, 5). With three deaths were they sentenced there: If there were witnesses and they were warned not to transgress, their disobedience was punished by the sword, as are punished the people of a city who worship idols; if there were witnesses and no warning was given, by a plague, as it is said, "And the Lord sent a plague among the people"; if there were not witnesses and no warning was given, by a swelling of the belly, as the waters proved them, and their bellies swelled.

"And Moses said unto Aaron, What hath this people done unto thee that thou hast brought upon it so great a sin? What tortures did they subject you to that compelled you to cause them to sin? And Aaron said: "Let not the anger of my lord wax hot; thou knowest the people, that it is bent on mischief (ki beraug hu), that they go in an evil way, always tempting the Lord. And they said unto me: Make gods that shall go before us, for this man Moses, who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we know not what hath become of him. And I said unto them just one thing. Who hath any gold?"

And they hastened and divested themselves of their gold and gave it to me, and I cast it into the fire, and I did not know that this calf would come out of it, but it did come out."

"And Moses saw the people (ki poruang) that it revealed its shame," for Aaron had made it unruly for a disgrace among their opponents, "that all their opponents shall shame them through this thing."

"Moses then placed himself in the gate of the camp and said, Whoever is on the Lord's side let him come unto me. And there assembled themselves unto him all the sons of Levi," hence we infer that the entire tribe was guiltless. "And he said unto them, "Thus hath said the Eternal." Where did he say this? "He that sacrificeth unto any god save unto the Lord only shall be utterly destroyed." (Exodus, 22.) "Put ye every man his sword by his side and go ye hither and thither, from gate to gate in the camp, and slay ye every man his brother" (from his mother's side, but who is an Israelite and not a Levite).

"And Moses said, Consecrate yourselves today to the Lord. Ye who are slaying them on account of their worshipping idols, this act consecrates you to be priests to the Omnipresent; yea, even every man of you who for the holiness of his name spares not his own and his brother consecrates himself unto the Lord, who bestows upon you this day a blessing."

MUSIC NOTES.

Harriet Scholder, pianiste, will give a recital in Aeolian Hall on Friday evening, January 23.

Geno Aubert, the Swiss pianist, who arrived in the United States recently, will give several recitals in New York after January 1.

Serge Rachmaninoff will be the soloist with the New Symphony Orchestra at its next pair of concerts at Carnegie Hall on Friday afternoon, December 26, and Sunday evening, December 28. He will play his own Concerto in F Sharp Minor.

Solomon Golub, the well-known Jewish composer and poet, will give a recital of his own compositions for the first time this season at Rumford Hall, Saturday evening, December 20. Mr. Golub is better known in the Middle West for his rare interpretations of ancient Hebrew melodies, Jewish popular folk songs and his own musical settings to modern Jewish poetry.

The Jewish Art Theatre announces the withdrawal of Emanuel Reicher from active artistic direction of this playhouse and the engagement of Ossip Dymow.

Mr. Dymow will be recalled for his play "Njuz," which he produced in conjunction with Richard Ordynski several years ago at the Punch and Judy Show. Mr. Dymow has written a number of plays in Yiddish that have enjoyed long runs. Two of them in particular have attracted Broadway's attention. They are "A World in Flames" and "A Slave of His People."

It should be noted that many of the principal members of the Jewish Art Theatre Repertoire Co. first distinguished themselves in Mr. Dymow's plays. Mr. Dymow will at once put in rehearsal a farce comedy entitled "The Bronx Express," a local comedy.

The second of the Symphony Concerts for Children to be given by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch conductor, this season will be held tomorrow (Saturday) morning at eleven o'clock at Aeolian Hall.

The programme will be devoted to illustrating the woodwind instruments of the orchestra, and Mr. Damrosch will give his usual illustrative and explanatory remarks.

The programme will consist of the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," followed by a solo for the oboe, "En Vendee," by J. Rousseau, played by Pierre Mathieu, solo oboe of the orchestra. The English horn will receive its exposition in an excerpt from Dvorak's "New World Symphony." Mario Bottesini, solo horn of the orchestra, will play the excerpt. The clarinet and violoncello will be brought out in Massenet's "Under the Linden Trees," Robert Lindemann and Willem Willeke playing the two solo instruments. The bassoon will have its chance in the Rondo from Mozart's Concerto for Bassoon, Louis Letellier, first bassoon of the orchestra, playing the solo part. The programme will close with Gounod's "Little Symphony," written for flute, oboe, clarinets, bassoons and horns.

A LONG-FELT WANT AT ATLANTIC CITY

Everyone knows that while almost every seaside resort these days has a boardwalk, at the same time there is only "one" boardwalk and that is located at Atlantic City, N. J. And on this boardwalk there is but "one" restaurant and that is the establishment of the Victory Catering Co., located directly opposite the Steel Pier, perhaps the most accessible location in all Atlantic City.

The president of this unique institution, Lee H. Weiler, hails from Pittsburgh. A frequent visitor to Atlantic City, he grew familiar with its needs and saw the lack of a suitable restaurant on the boardwalk where one could dine satisfactorily and at a reasonable price. So he decided to satisfy this long-felt want and the magnificent establishment at No. 1003-5 Boardwalk, opposite the Steel Pier, and right in the heart of Atlantic City, is the result. No finer and handsomer equipped restaurant exists and the accompanying illustration fails to give an adequate idea of the handsome fittings.

Mr. Weiler has surrounded himself with experts in every department. Mr. Sidney Stiebel, the general manager, is well known to New Yorkers through his many years' connection with the Harlem Palace, and later through the Cosmopolitan Club of Atlantic City. George Maier who presides over the culinary department, was for many years with Constantine's, Louis Sherry's and the Knickerbocker Hotel of New York, previous to which he was connected with the world-famous Savoy Hotel of London, and Grand Hotel of Paris.

Many New Yorkers who visit Atlantic City these days, prefer to go on the European plan and eat when and what they please. They will find the La Vivien the very place they have been seeking.

Yiddish Is Not the "Jewish" Language.
 A number of daily newspapers and non-Jewish religious periodicals have acquired the habit of speaking of the Yiddish jargon as "the Jewish language," which is a mistake. There is no such thing as a Jewish language, unless perhaps Hebrew might be so considered.
 The Yiddish is a jargon in colloquial use in Eastern Europe. Its foundation is German and with it are mixed words and expressions borrowed from the language of the country, such as Polish, Russian, etc. The only thing Jewish about it is that the Hebrew alphabet is used in writing and printing. The jargon is known among Jews as Yiddish, which in itself is a corruption from the German.—American Israelite.

To Mme. Bertha Kalich.

Lady-of that inspired art
 Which drives at will the human heart
 And holds in leash with reins of fire
 The steeds of passion and desire,
 You are yourself the riddle, Woman,
 All artificial yet all true,
 Acting and mimicking the human,
 Yet human through and through.
 How well your loyalty to race
 Fits with your individual grace
 And proves your quality of heart
 A worthy rival of your art!
 JESSIE E. SAMPTER.

The Arabic newspaper South Syria has been suspended for a month on account of its anti-Jewish agitation. This paper, as its name suggests, opposes the establishment of an independent Palestine, and it incites the Arabs systematically against the Jews. The Arabs of Damascus have, however, passed a resolution requesting the government to allow the republication of this paper.

BROOKLYN NOTES.

Noted Charity Worker Passes Away. Mrs. Hannah Finkelstein, who had been a resident of Perth Amboy, N. J., from 1889 to 1909, passed away at her late residence at 1465 Fifty-fourth street, Borough Park, Brooklyn, N. Y., at the age of seventy-five. The interment took place on Monday, December 15, at the family plot in the cemetery of the Congregation Beth Mordecai, of Perth Amboy, N. J.

While residing in Perth Amboy Mrs. Finkelstein had been affiliated with many charitable and philanthropic organizations. She was a member of the ladies' auxiliary of the Congregation Beth Mordecai and also of the Madison avenue synagogue of that city, and one of the founders of the Talmud Torah and the Free Loan Association.

Her late husband, Mr. Kassel Finkelstein, who died in 1909, was a prominent citizen and was one of the organizers of the Congregation Beth Mordecai, and helped to erect the temple on Hobart street in 1897.

Mrs. Finkelstein was paid the last respects by memorial services held at the synagogue, Hobart street and Madison avenue, Perth Amboy, as the funeral passed. She is survived by five children: Mr. J. M. Finkelstein, of Red Bank, N. J.; Mrs. L. Risenstadt and Mrs. J. Slobodien, of Borough Park; Mrs. S. Berkman, of Charleston, S. C., and Dr. A. A. Finkelstein, of Stamford, Conn.

Rabbi Melamed Succeeds Rabbi Levinthal in Petach Tikvah.

The members of the Congregation Petach Tikvah, Rochester avenue and Lincoln place, have elected Rabbi Raphael H. Melamed to succeed Rabbi Israel H. Levinthal, lately resigned, to head the new Brooklyn Jewish Centre.

Rabbi Melamed comes from Montreal, Canada, where he succeeded the late Rev. Meldola de Sola as rabbi of Congregation Shearith Israel. He was born in Hebron, Palestine, and obtained his secular training in New York University, where he received his B. A. He was graduated as rabbi from the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in 1909, being valedictorian, and was awarded the Robison Memorial prize. In 1915 he received the degree of Ph.D. from the Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning, of Philadelphia, where he was a fellow and honorary fellow from 1909 to 1915. From 1911 to 1916 he was rabbi of Congregation Ohel Jacob, of Philadelphia, and later was elected instructor of Hebrew and biblical literature in Gratz College.

Sam Levy, Detroit producer is sending his best show to the Star Theatre next week. It is called the "Beauty Revue," and when so announced by the motor city man there is no disappointment in store for lovers of good, clean burlesque. The latest songs, dances and specialties feature this show and they are presented by a company that it has taken months of hard and strenuous work to gather together. And it is the general opinion of press and public all over the American burlesque circuit that it is one of the premier productions of the season. Middle-weight grapplers will be featured in George Bothner's wrestling carnival on Thursday evening, while there is an array of excellent vaudeville talent booked for next Sunday's concert.

Moscow on Behalf of the Pogrom Victims

London.—The London Jewish Correspondence Bureau learns that the reports of the terrible slaughter which has taken place in the territories occupied by Denikin have made a great impression on the Jews in other parts of Russia. In the synagogue at Moscow a great meeting took place, at which the well-known Rabbi Masse made an impressive speech in which he described the Jewish sufferings under the pogroms in South Russia, and as his speech proceeded, he was greeted with such cries of horror from his congregation that he was obliged to desist. Immediately after he had finished speaking there was a rain of gifts, and in a very short time some millions of roubles had been collected for the pogrom victims. Innumerable Jews have left their homes, and Moscow is now becoming a center for Jewish fugitives, who come flocking in from the surrounding districts and from the towns which have suffered from the onslaughts of the pogroms. The need of these refugees is appalling, but the Jewish communal workers are doing everything possible to mitigate the sorrow and the sufferings of them all.

BRATIANO LOSES HIS TEMPER.

Roumanian Jewish Representatives Do Not Allow Themselves to Be Intimidated into Giving Up Their Demand for Citizenship.

By LEO WOLFSON.

(Copyright by I. J. P. B.) All Roumanian governments without exception have always refused to recognize the Jewish organizations which were engaged in the fight to secure political emancipation...

The administration of Mr. Bratiano was no exception in this respect. Circumstances, however, decreed that the bitterest enemy of the Union of Native Jews in Roumania should give it the greatest recognition and consideration.

After its acceptance by the Cabinet, it had to be submitted to the King for approval. When the decree was ready, the committee of the union which had been in touch with Bratiano, was invited to come to discuss it with him, the date set being November 18, 1918.

Mr. Bratiano opened the meeting with a short address in which he declared that the government was prepared to issue a law decree which would give the Jews political rights...

Mr. Buzdugan began with the statement that the Liberal party had long ago resolved to solve the Jewish problem, and that the former Liberal Cabinet, under the leadership of General Coanda, had already submitted a naturalization law...

Dr. Filderman, chairman of the Jewish committee, was next granted the floor, and his words were as follows: "Gentlemen, I wish to say that we Jews have an entirely different conception concerning the method and manner in which the Jewish question ought to be solved..."

Royal Palace 16-18 Manhattan Ave., Brooklyn

From the Roumanian standpoint, Dr. Filderman explained that the problem was to win the loyalty and confidence of over 700,000 Jews in the occupied regions...

Dr. Filderman then went on to present the case from the purely Jewish standpoint. First he deplored the fact that the Roumanian Jews were living in the only land in the world where there still remained a Jewish question.

Mr. Filderman held that the proposed law was impracticable, and that it would be impossible to meet its requirements. The law demands that those who wish to become citizens prove by documents that they have never been citizens of any other country.

Mr. Buzdugan tried to argue that this condition in the decree did not require any documents which could not be obtained in Roumania itself—for instance, birth records, census reports, etc., would meet all the requirements.

Asserting that the decree was meant merely to cloud the issue for the Jews, and that it was not an honest attempt on the part of the government to reach a satisfactory solution of the problem...

For the space of a moment, a deep stillness prevailed in the room. The ministers exchanged glances, and it could be seen from their expressions that this was not what they had expected.

a reply to your wholly unjustified statement. We have come here to do something toward the solution of the Jewish question, and that we are prepared to do.

After remarks in the same vein by Dr. Mayersohn, Dr. Filderman again arose and said with great sadness: "Gentlemen, we Jews fought side by side with you in the war of 1877. At that time we saw that in Dobroged, which was annexed, all the Turks, Bulgars, Jews and others who lived there, were granted citizenship rights—only we remained foreigners.

Here the Premier sprang up out of his chair, walked over to the committee, looked hard at each one of them, and extending his hand, said: "Gentlemen, we cannot reach an understanding. I am sorry. I might have agreed to some changes in the form of the procedure, but I see that we differ in principle. I can do no more for you."

The committee and the other ministers remained standing, at a loss for what to do. Finally, Minister Constantinescu remarked that there must be a way of doing something in this matter.

Dr. Ettinger argued that this objection was not valid when so many millions of aliens of all nationalities in the annexed territories have become citizens.

To Minister Duka's statement that the Jews themselves stood in the way of this desideratum, Dr. Ettinger took exception and declared that the Jews were not creating enmity.

Minister Buzdugan declared that the Jews need not fear difficulties in the carrying out of the proposed decree, as the officials would help them to overcome such matters, and if they did not, then the Jews had the right to complain.

about them. The Premier had re-entered in the meanwhile, and heard a part of this discussion.

Dr. Ettinger then addressed Premier Bratiano, with the request that considering the great importance of the question, the committee be supplied with a copy of the proposed decree.

The Premier replied that the request is unprecedented, and that he cannot see his way clear to do so, as the decree might become public, but on the assurance of Dr. Filderman that no one outside the Central Committee would be permitted to see the copy, the Premier promised to grant the request, and the conference adjourned.

Zionist Organization Tenders Reception to Dr. Turov.

A reception in honor of Dr. Nissim Turov, a distinguished educator, who has recently arrived from Palestine, was tendered at the Hotel Majestic, 72d street and Central Park West, on Saturday evening, December 13, by the Zionist Organization of America, under the auspices of the Palestine Education Association.

Dr. Turov is in this country for educational research work. He has been principal of the Girls' School, and the Women Teachers' Seminary in Jaffa. He has written extensively in Hebrew on education and pedagogy, and has been the editor of 'Hachinuch (Education), a journal issued by the Organization of Palestine Teachers. He was also for a time editor of the Hadashoth Haaretz, a Hebrew daily paper published in Jerusalem.

Addresses were delivered by Prof. Paul Monroe, director of the School of Education, Teachers' College, Columbia University; Judge Julian W. Mack, president of the Zionist Organization of America; Miss Henrietta Szold, secretary for education, Zionist Organization of America, and Reuben Brainin, editor of Hatoron. Simon Hirsandinsky, principal of P. S. 4, the Bronx, presided.

Who is Professor Einstein?

Prof. Albert Einstein, whose theory of the Universe has lately attracted the attention of the scholarly world and which is said to be the most important scientific event in many years, is a Swiss Jew, forty-five years of age. He was for some time professor in mathematical physics at the Polytechnic at Zurich, and then professor at Prague. Afterwards he was nominated a member of the Kaiser Wilhelm Academy for Research in Berlin, with a salary of 18,000 marks ($4,500) per annum, and no duties, so that he should be able to devote himself entirely to research work. During the war, as a man of liberal tendencies, he was one of the signatories of the protest against the German manifesto of the men of science who declared themselves in favor of Germany's part in the war, and at the time of the armistice he signed an appeal in favor of the German revolution. He is an ardent Zionist and keenly interested in the proposed Hebrew university at Jerusalem, and has offered to co-operate in the work there.

Jews Ill-Treated by Bulgarians.

A Reuter report from Greek sources in Smyrna has been received at Salonika as follows:

"The Jewish inhabitants of Smyrna express their lively satisfaction at the sympathy extended towards them by the Greek authorities. A Jewish newspaper denounces the extortion made from the Jews at Drama and Cavalla during the Bulgarian invasion, which have recently been verified by the Jewish deputy at Salonika, Doctor Coffinas. The paper emphasizes the sincere sympathy of Greece towards the Jews and calls attention to the flourishing condition of the Jewish-Greek towns of Volo, Trikkala, Larissa, Corfu, Chalois, Prevesa and Janina.

"Another Jewish journal attacks the Bulgars for the extortions already mentioned, as well as for their habits of pillage and destruction which, the paper says, brand them as a people unworthy of civilization. The separation of Thrace, the paper concludes, is the lightest punishment that can be inflicted on Bulgaria which persecuted all non-Bulgarian nations."—Reuter.

Yiddish vs. Hebrew in Palestine.

During the Feast of Tabernacles, Mr. Ussishkin attended the service at the Yehuda Hachassid Synagogue in Jerusalem. Rabbi Kuk began to preach in Yiddish, and thereupon Mr. Ussishkin immediately rose and left the synagogue. Cries of protest arose on all sides, with the result that Mr. Ussishkin was called back and Rabbi Kuk continued to preach in the Hebrew language. Mr. Ussishkin's action, though somewhat brusque, has, it is stated, won the general approval among the Jews in Jerusalem.

The New Shelburne at Lakewood.

The new Hotel Shelburne at Lakewood, N. J., has opened its doors for the current year, and the arrivals and future bookings portend a very successful season. The hotel was for the past two years known as the Hotel Ellisburg, but with its purchase by the present proprietor, Mr. Frank Seiden, it has acquired not alone a new name, but virtually an entire new interior, as Mr. Seiden expended $40,000 in redecorating and refurbishing, purchasing only the most up-to-date and luxurious furniture and fittings that money could buy.

The rooms are large and sunny, most of them with southern exposure and they are furnished with oriental rugs, in addition to handsome furniture, and of course, hot and cold running water is in every room. Many of the rooms have adjoining baths.

Mr. Seiden has established an unusual name as an excellent hotel man and doubtless in his new venture he will surpass all previous efforts. Good service and every comfort possible are provided at the Shelburne. A jazz band will play nightly, and there will be many features for both old and young. The lobbies are spacious and there are card and smoking rooms for the men. The cuisine as heretofore remains under Mrs. Seiden's personal supervision, and patrons of the former Shelburne of Lakewood and the Jefferson of Edgemere, know what this means.
