A Modern Story from a Dramatic Sketch by Michael Bamberger

By E. C. EHRLICH

It was late Friday afternoon, and Ruth, just home from the last fitting of her graduation dress, glanced uneasily at the clock as she donned an apron and began to peel potatoes for the evening meal. "Table to set, fish to buy, fish to fry," she half chanted under her breath as she worked, "and father home any minute. I'll have to hurry!"

Suddenly she threw down her paring knife, her blue eyes dancing with excitement. "Won't he be surprised?" she murmured, running to the window to look down upon the little court beneath. "Yes; there he is! I thought I heard him putting his push cart away." She hurriedly placed the potatoes upon the stove, then tripped gaily out into the hall to welcome Elias Jacob.

She drew him into the little room, her face glowing with happiness as she kissed him. Neither old nor young, the face of an exiled prophet beneath his battered derby, his shoulders stooping in his shabby frock coat, there was a simple dignity about him as he stopped to kiss the mezuzah, which would have reminded Ruth, had she known Heine better, how the German sang of the downtrodden Jew who on Sabbath eve assumes the stature of a king.

"Father, my graduation dress is just lovely," she began. "But I'm afraid you can't afford—"

He interrupted her, shrugging: "Nu, Ruth, you'll never graduate from the high school again, so I make it once I should afford it."

"You'll think I'm worth it when you know my secret," she teased, perching on the arm of his chair. "Just read this letter," dropping an envelope into his lap.

"A letter for me?" He picked it up gingerly. "But it's in writing English, and you know I read only print English. You read it."

"O' course." She cleared her throat importantly. "It's from my principal. 'Dear Sir: Allow me to be the first to congratulate you upon the high school record of your daughter Ruth. She has been appointed valedictorian of her class and at our closing exercises next week the Vanderbilt gold medal, awarded to the most deserving graduate, will be awarded to her. I hope to have the pleasure of meeting you at that time. Again extending to you my most sincere congratulations,

I remain, Yours respectfully, John H. Andrews."

Jacobs sprang up as lightly as a boy and hugged the girl roughly. "Didn't I always told you you'd be a smart young lady if you went through the high school?" he reproached her. "Didn't I told you you were too smart to go to work and stand on your feet in Cohen's Emporium all day and sing, 'Gash curl, gash curl,' instead of learning to be a respectable teacher and growing up and marrying a rabbi some day.

worked so hard. Just as you worked day and night to put me through high school. Mercy!" with a quick glance for the clock. "It's after four. And I haven't even bought the fish."

"You go to Isaacs on Grand street so it won't take long," observed Jacobs as Ruth jammed her black tam on her blond head and took up her market basket.

"Not any more, daddy. He sold Mrs. Finkelstein what he said was trout, but the rabbi said it was catfish and she had to throw it all away.

his high hat, not exactly new, but still impressive, and changed into his Shabbas frock coat. "My Ruth with medals," he chuckled again and again as he snapped a small black tie under his clean collar, "and valley—valley—nu, valley—whatever it is—they make her and hang gold medals from Mr. Vanderbilt upon her." Some one knocked on the door; he went to open it, still chuckling, a look of contentment in his kindly eyes.

A tall fleshy man stood on the threshold, a man in a flashy checked

The big man shook his head. "It's you I want to see," he said briefly, "you and especially the girl. How is she?"

"My Ruth?" They were seated now on either side of the kitchen table. "Fine, Mr. O'Bryan, fine!" "I came to ask you about her."

"So you have heard of her gold medals already. Believe me, Mr. O'Bryan, when my daughter—"

O'Bryan bent toward him across the red cloth. "Does she know that she isn't your daughter at all?"

Jacobs stared at his visitor with bewildered eyes. "Yes—her mother—I mean my Rebecca told her just before she died. We didn't want she should hear from outsiders. But how do you know?"

"Because I am her father." He leaned back in his chair surveying Jacobs beneath half-closed eyelids.

"Her father?" Jacobs' voice was incredulous.

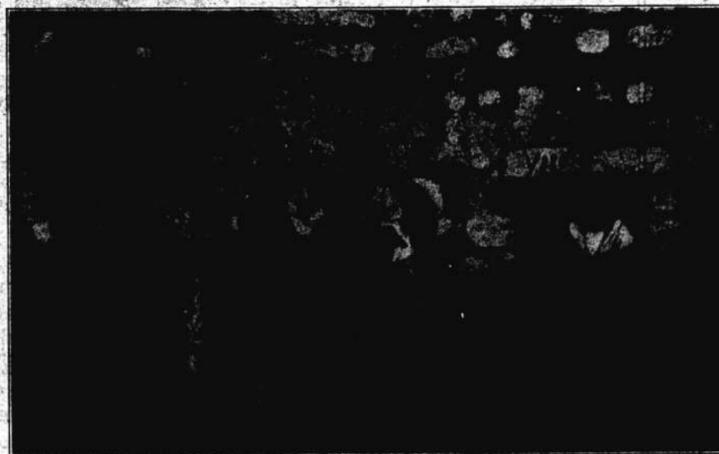

"Yes. It's not necessary to tell you much about her mother; she was a dancer in vaudeville, had made quite a success of it. Naturally she didn't want to be bothered with the child; and I didn't blame her. Well, I knew you had been married four or five years and didn't have any children; you had a good reputation in the neighborhood, so—he laughed a little uneasily beneath Jacobs' accusing gaze, "so I didn't feel I was doing so bad for the baby when I left it at your door."

"Maybe you are not telling me the truth—how do I know?"

"Wait a minute. I can tell you just what happened. I put the child in her little basket and left it at your door. Then I knocked loudly, reached for the bannister leading downstairs, and slid to the next floor where I crouched in a dark corner. You opened the door a little way and asked, 'What is it?' And, seeing no one, you called again, 'Who's there?' You see I still remember. That's right, isn't it?"

"Yes, that is right," agreed Jacobs wearily.

"And then you called to your wife, Rebecca, come quick. See what the good God has sent us." Then I heard you take the child in and shut the door and I crept out into the street. Why, to prove I'm not lying—do you still have the locket that was around the baby's neck?"

TYPES AT THE JEWISH WAILING WALL.

The recent decision of the Supreme Council of the Allies, sitting at San Remo, making Palestine a Jewish Homeland, again brings the Jewish Wailing Wall at Jerusalem in the limelight, for here brethren now gather in larger numbers than ever. In the above illustration are shown a number of "types" of those steadfast Jews who "live" to die in Jerusalem.

Mark my word, Ruth, some day you will marry a rabbi and I will be proud of you." His eyes suddenly dimmed and the hand that caressed her bright curls trembled a little. "If only my Rebecca was here now to be proud of you, too."

The girl nodded. "Yes, father—but maybe she knows, anyhow." They were silent for a moment, both thinking of the silent, bewigged little woman who had left them but a few years before. Then: "I knew you'd be proud of me, daddy: that's why I

Now I go to the new shop across the street."

"That is right to be on the safe side," approved her father. "And, Ruth," he called down the tenement stairs, "be sure to watch the scales. No," as she looked up inquiringly, "I don't mean the fish scales—I mean the scales he weighs it on. I don't trust no new fish man even if the rabbi says he is more kosher than Isaacs."

Back in the little room, Jacobs went to the clothes press, took down suit, a diamond flashing from his finger, another in his tie. Even in the dim passage way there was something strangely familiar in his carriage; as soon as he stepped into the room, Jacobs knew him at once for O'Bryan, one time ward-heeler and proprietor of the prosperous saloon on the corner.

"Mr. O'Bryan!" Jacobs raised inquiring eyebrows, for the neighborhood boss whom he had not seen for years had never stooped to visit him before. "Are you looking for some-

"A gold locket with an 'R.'?"
"Yes. It was my wife's—her name was Rosamond. I suppose the 'R' gave you the idea of naming her Ruth."

"Yes. But where have you been with your wife ever since you deserted your little baby?"

O'Bryan winced a little. "I told you it was for the baby's good," he answered in sullen self-defense. "Well, a few weeks afterwards Rosamond signed a contract to go to Australia and I went along. We had hardly reached there when she took sick; a heavy fever and died. I came home but I seemed to have a regular streak of hard luck. First Flanagan beat me for alderman. Then came the Lexow Investigating Committee and they made the climate so warm around here that I sold out my little place and went back to Australia. It was spending ten or fifteen years there or ten or fifteen years somewhere else, not quite so pleasant. A year or so ago my friends advised me it was safe to come back. In the meantime I had grown rich. It seemed like home to come back to the old ward again, but I'm lonely, Jacobs, and lately I've thought more and more of the child. I catch myself watching for her as she passes on her way to school. Maybe I didn't do the right thing by her. I have no other relative on earth, so I want her. I hear she's very clever and sings well, too. She must get that from her mother; she certainly looks like her. So I'd like to take her to Europe, get her good teachers, educate her right and make her forget the East Side. See?"

"Forget me and Rebecca? Forget her old home?"

"Of course, she will. In London or Paris with fine clothes and plenty of society, she'll soon forget her old life here. Any young girl would."

"Maybe so," agreed Jacobs, dejectedly, "maybe so."

"I suppose you've looked forward to an hour like this," went on O'Bryan slowly, "and you've calculated on it. I know you people are great calculators. The Jews—and the Irish—have the longest heads in the world; don't we own little old New York? Well, you'll not find me hard to settle with, though when I pay you for all you've done for my girl, I don't intend to let myself in for blackmail, either. Here, I've made you out a check for enough to set you up in a little business of your own: twenty-five hundred dollars ought to pay you for all your trouble." He held out the check to the man who stared stonily before him without raising a hand to take it. "What's the matter? Not enough?"

"Enough?" Jacobs, voice trembled as he tore the bit of paper across and flung the pieces upon the table. "All the money you've got—all the money Mr. Vanderbilt has—that wouldn't pay me for the memory of her childhood and girlhood days in my home. She paid me double for all I did for her. But now you're going to take her away and nothing can make up for the loss of her. But I cannot stand in her way—I cannot rob her of her rights." His face whitened as he heard Ruth's light footsteps in the hall. She was humming a song he had heard her sing several times lately—the class song for the graduation exercises. "You tell her," he pleaded, suddenly grown an old man and very helpless, "I cannot."

"Yes, father?" She stood in the door way, her basket on her arm. "You have company?"

"It is Mr. O'Bryan, Ruthie. Our old neighbor who used to live here when you were a little girl." Jacobs sank limply into his chair, his hands fumbling with the torn check.

"Father!" Ruth was hovering over him. "What did he tell you? You are not in trouble?"

"Not at all," O'Bryan spoke easily. "I'll not waste any words—it's not my style. He tells me you know already how you came to him as a baby. I could have told you the same thing because I put you in that basket myself and brought you to his door."

"You!" faltered Ruth.

"Yes—and I am your father." He held out his hands. "I've come back for you, Ruth."

But she drew back. "I can't believe it—after so long. And my mother?"

"She is dead. And I would have come to claim you before but I was far away in Australia where I made my fortune," he ended craftily.

"So my mother is really dead," Ruth repeated softly.

"That is why I want you so very much," he urged. "I was very good to her and I will be good to you. I haven't another soul on earth but you to care for and when I die you will be very rich. I tell you I'll make it up to you," he promised eagerly.

"But, daddy?" Ruth's hand rested upon Jacobs' shoulder. "I couldn't leave him, you know."

Chief Rabbi's Convalescence—Enthusiastic Speeches at Arrival of Weizman and Sokolow in London—A Note on the Arab Settlement—Max Nordau Speaks—A Communal Golden Wedding—British Educational Honor for Bergson—Seventeenth Century Jewry in the Near East.

London, May 7, 1920.

Dr. Hertz is still far from well and will need much rest and care. His recent severe illness will necessitate, probably, a prolonged period of convalescence.

Dr. Weizman and M. Sokolow, who represented the Zionists in the recent conference at San Remo, arrived in London on May 5 and were most warmly welcomed by hundreds of co-religionists at Victoria Station. They were hailed as the champions of their cause so far as resettlement of the Jews in Palestine was concerned. So great, so persistent, was the demonstration that one of the waiting rooms at the station was placed at the disposal of the Zionists by the railway authorities, and here cordial speeches were exchanged. The hundreds who were unable to squeeze into the waiting room were persistent in their cries for a speech, and at length the party moved out into the station yard, where Dayan Chaikin performed the solemn ceremony of presenting the "Roll of the Law" to the two delegates, the Chief Rabbi being unable to attend. With the Dayan were the Chief Rabbi of Salonika, in Eastern dress, and various prominent London Jews. Dr. Weizman replied in Yiddish to the speeches of welcome, saying it was a joy to do what he could to reclaim Palestine for his co-religionists, after which, with heads uncovered, the assembly sang the British national anthem. Hundreds left the station in taxicabs, waving pale blue and white flags.

A well-informed Paris correspondent writes the following: The arrival in Paris of the Turkish peace delegation will coincide with that of the Emir Feisul, and possibly of the Emir Abdullah. The French Government will be as firm about the Lebanon mandate as the British in the matter of Palestine, although it may more readily concede the Arab standpoint in Syria than the British are inclined to concede it at Mosul. But the main bone of contention will, I gather, relate to the prospective Jewish immigration in the Holy Land. The fact that the Arab is so largely nomadic, and so little inclined towards agricultural pursuits, renders him naturally prone to suspicion and anxiety lest he should be outnumbered by Jewish colonists on the Jordan and Indian labor on the Tigris. How precarious is the Emir Feisul's personal authority over the Northern Arabs has been illustrated by recent attacks on the British in Mesopotamia as well as on the French in Syria.

Dr. Nordau has been pretty widely interviewed during the past week in connection with the latest developments in connection with Palestine. In one interview he made the following interesting remarks: "Our dream is to transform Palestine as quickly as possible into a Jewish country which, while preserving its Arab population and securing the material prosperity, the free democratic development, and the general advancement of those elements, will be developed into a thoroughly Jewish commonwealth, rich in economic resources, rich enough to secure a living for perhaps eight or ten millions of Jews, and representing at the doors of Asia the most approved form of Western civilization. Practically, of course, we cannot hope to see this ideal fully realized in a very short time, but we shall begin with settling as rapidly as materially possible at least half a million Jews, who in the countries of persecutions and pogroms wait with heart-throbbing impatience for the signal to move towards Palestine. To sum up, our immediate work will be mass immigration into Palestine; taking possession of the soil which may be brought immediately under the plow; building up all the houses that are necessary for the immigrants; founding the industries which the country is most able to support, and raising the funds which we must have in order to start work."

The latest lecture on Jews of the seventeenth century was delivered by Haham Dr. M. Gaster, who took as his subject the Jews of the Near East, which included Turkey, the Balkan States, South Russia, Moldavia, and Wallachia, now Rumania, ancient Hungary, then called Pannonia, to the gates of Budapest, and Asia Minor. Dr. Gaster said he liked to view Jewish history as a whole, and he drew attention to a phenomenon which had always appealed to him. That was how Jewish life had suddenly flourished in some particular country to an extraordinary degree, and then suddenly vanished to reappear elsewhere, but that it had never flourished with the same vigor twice in the same place. The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were the period when it flourished most vigorously in Turkey. He had never, even during the war, concealed his opinion that Turkey had been the best friend of the Jew. There they had been able to live a truly Jewish life. The period with which he was dealing was the age in which the Sultans were at the height of their power.

To Turkey at this time came the Jews of Spain and Portugal, fleeing from the inquisition, and they were well received; and with them came the revival of learning and commerce for the Orient. They gained the favor of the Sultans and their advisers. They were granted not only the free exercise of their religion, but almost complete autonomy within their own communities, and the rabbis had the power of cadis. So powerful and renowned were the Jewish communities of the Turkish Empire that Salonika was known as the "small sanctuary."

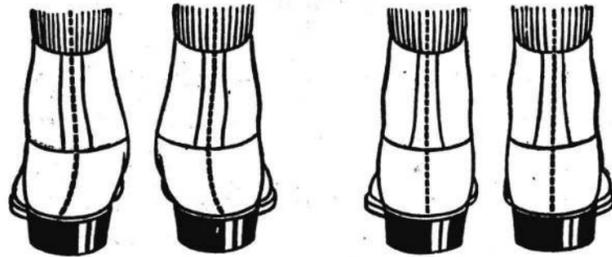

The outstanding figure in Jewish life was the Donna Gracia Mendes, who fled from Portugal via the low countries and Venice to Constantinople, and whose boundless charity and great wealth gave her a position of great importance at the Porte, especially as she was the friend of the favorite wife of the Sultan Murad. Her influence was great enough to thwart the anti-Semitic policy of Venice. She established a printing press, one of the workers at which was Eosy, founder of the Sabbatarians of Transylvania. Her nephew, who married her niece, was Joseph Nasi, Duke of Naxos, the pioneer of Palestinian colonization. He obtained a grant of land at Safed, and the charter may be regarded as suggesting that charter which Dr. Herzl in his day tried in vain to obtain.

Under these auspices Safed became a remarkable center of Jewish learning. It was sufficient to mention such names as Joseph Caro, author of the Shulchan Aruch, Yitshak Luria and Berab. Joseph Nasi had the idea of a center for the regeneration of the Jewish people, and so strong was this feeling in Safed that the idea of the revival of the "Sanhedrin" and of the summoning of a great Sanhedrin was seriously discussed. Unfortunately, Nasi had his enemies, notably the great Salomon Ashkenazy, and his autocratic temperament brought him into conflict with the rabbis, who, in those days, said the lecturer, were independent folk and would not be bullied.

Dr. Gaster dwelt on the part played by the influence of Cabbalistic literature in that age, superseding as it did to a large extent the rationalistic philosophy of which the Jews had got tired. He pointed out how the Chassidim and Tsadickim of the present all owed their existence to this school of thought. It was this mystical influence, combined with the growth of national feeling, as evidenced by the ideas of Joseph Nasi, which made possible the appearance of such a phenomenon as Sabbethal Zevi. These pages of our history, concluded the lecturer, will be written in letters of gold, but, like other happy periods, they lacked the quality of permanence, and we do not know where or when the next epoch of intellectual and material happiness and prosperity will occur.

For the first time in the history of Jewish war relief, a campaign will be held outside the United States next October, when at the request of prominent Jews of Havana, the American Jewish Relief Committee will conduct an appeal throughout Cuba.

Over 400 delegates attended the eighteenth annual convention of the Independent Order B'riith Shalom at Norfolk, Va., last week. The convention was opened with the presentation of a flag to the city of Norfolk by the order. Mayor William F. Broenig, of Baltimore, who accompanied the delegates, made the presentation speech, and the flag was accepted by Mayor Albert L. Roper on behalf of his city.

The Polish Government issued an order instructing the officers to impress upon all soldiers that anti-Jewish rioting in the streets and in the trains was undignified for the army and harmful to Polish interests abroad. At the same time all officers and officials were ordered to take severe measures against such rioting, as the latter was exploited by the enemies of Poland abroad for anti-Polish purposes.

Emanuel Wurm, the German food administrator, died after a severe operation, at the age of 63. The deceased was for many years a Socialist member of the German Reichstag. In contrast to many Jewish Socialist colleagues, Herr Wurm took a deep interest in Jewish activities. He was not ashamed to have people know his Jewish descent and never tried to hide the fact that he was a Jew. His death has been a source of grief to all who knew him.

The famous Jewish book publishing house of Romm, in Wilna, announces its resumption of pre-war activities. The firm intends to issue a version of the Talmud Jerushalmi with 42 supplements; they are preparing to publish a useful edition of the Palestinian and Babylonian Talmud and the Tosephta, and also have in view the publication of the whole of Jewish literature from the Bible to the Talmud, to be accompanied by selected commentaries.

Dr. S. A. Friedberg of the faculty of Rush Medical College and on the staff of the Presbyterian Hospital, Chicago, died last week following an operation for mastoiditis. Rush Medical College was closed in his honor on the day of the funeral. He was secretary of the Society of Medical Research of Chicago and was also distinguished for his work in bronchocopy.

Following immediately upon its Community Class initiation, at which occasion over 500 members were inducted into the organization, Pisgah Lodge, No. 3, I. O. B. B., of Detroit, Mich., conducted another record initiation, Monday evening, June 7, when 300 more candidates were received, bringing Pisgah's membership to the 2,500 mark, rendering it the largest single B'nai Brith organization in the world. Ramlah Lodge, of Chicago, hitherto ranked as the largest I. O. B. B. lodge, has 2,200 names on its roster.

Anti-Semitic agitators have made their appearance at Ponevez, Lithuania, and spread accounts of the alleged abduction, by Jews, of Christian children for ritual purposes. The mob attacked and plundered the shops of Jews, but the police intervened and prevented the attacks spreading. Similar attacks on Jews and their property were made in some frontier townlets. In each case, the ritual libel played a great part in the anti-Jewish outbreaks. Finally, however, the libels were disproved, and the agitators disappeared.

Professor Hinckley Gilbert Mitchell, D. D., Ph. D., head of the department of Hebrew and Old Testament exegesis at Crane Theological School, Tufts College, since 1910, died last week at the age of 74. He was the author of several volumes on Old Testament subjects. Among them are "Amos," 1893; "The Theology of the Old Testament," "Isaiah, I-XII," 1897; "The World before Abraham," 1901; "Genesis," 1909; "The Ethics of the Old Testament," 1912. He also wrote on his travels in Palestine and many articles for Biblical journals. He was recognized as a scholar of wide and original research.

Demands of Hungarian Anti-Semites. Budapest (By I. J. P. B.).—The following proposals were presented by the anti-Semite, Bela Fangler, in the Hungarian Parliament toward the solution of the Jewish problem:

1. That the property of all Jews suspected of having been in league with the Communists be confiscated. At this point the speaker was interrupted by the remark: "This is Bolshevism." "So it is," replied the anti-Semite. "We suffered a Jewish Bolshevism against Christianity. Now let us have a Christian Bolshevism against Judaism."
2. That all places of business owned by Jews not suspected of Bolshevistic tendencies be removed from Jewish hands and be handed over to Christians.
3. That all Jews be compelled to call themselves by their Jewish names.

The scene of this year's "annual picnic" is laid in Rochester. If we are not mistaken this will be the very first time the Jews of Rochester will play the hosts to the doughty champions of Reform Judaism. The end of this month and the first few days of the following, then, will behold Rochester the theological centre of American Jewry, to speak the language of the main supporters of the "annual picnic."

New York is rapidly growing into one of the greatest centres of Jewish learning in the present-day world. It already possesses within its borders the material required by scholars to enable them satisfactorily to carry on their work. Recently announcement was made that the library of the Jewish Theological Seminary had acquired, through the generosity of Mortimer L. Schiff, a great collection of Anglo-Judaica, immeasurably adding to the store of bibliographical treasures already existing under the shadow of Grant's tomb.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has issued a stirring appeal to the conscience of the civilized world against lynching and other despicable forms of race prejudice of which the negro is the victim. An appeal of this nature must commend itself to every lover of humanity. The conscience is shocked whenever excesses, culminating in lynchings, take place. Race prejudice in any form and manifestation is degrading. Our modern civilization is travestied by such occurrences. It were high time that the world realized fully the great prophetic ideal of doing justice.

The Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Empire is to undertake, presumably early in October next, an important pastoral tour of Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand, to which task he will devote some seven months. Much is anticipated in the way of practical worth from such a globe-trotting visitation. A tour of this kind is exclusively a British institution, and applies to Jewish ecclesiastical affairs the methods beloved of British governments in their dealings with the political questions affecting their far-flung empire. The Chief Rabbi will have the example of the Prince of Wales, on similar mission bent, to guide and fortify him in his tour.

With his usual wealth of learning Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch found that Shabuoath has greater claims upon the affections of our people than, say, Sukkoth. Of course, he approached his conclusion along the path of Reform; for did he know the Orthodox and Conservative wings of our Jewry as well as he knows the Radicals he would have discovered quite easily that the Jewish observance of Sukkoth has not declined. In point of fact, year after year and more and more is Sukkoth being widely observed. For Rabbi Hirsch the great virtue inherent in Shabuoath is the confirmation ceremony, which forms a part of it. But he is no misguided or overzealous partisan: he speaks of confirmation in the deliberate accents of a careful and conscientious student of the history of Jewish theology. Here, too, it were profitable for him to inspect Orthodox and Conservative synagogues while their worshippers foregather in them to observe this festival. Without the adventitious and, we may add, meretricious, aid of the confirmation exercises, Orthodox and Conservative worshippers observe the two days of Shabuoath in just the same way as did our fathers in ancient days. What more, if anything, does Rabbi Hirsch need to demonstrate to his expert mind that Reform is a snare and delusion?

THE JEWISH CONGRESS.

LET us at the outset express our gratification at the step taken at the Jewish Congress in Philadelphia last week, when this great and important organization placed itself upon what we hope will be a permanent basis for all time. There is need for such an institution as the American Jewish Congress in the life of our communities in this great republic. We have in the past ventured to point out the main reasons for this our belief, and regard this as an opportune moment to repeat what is to us the chief factor sustaining our contention. The Congress is representative of all shades and directions of American Jewish thought, and is recruited upon a thoroughly democratic basis and principle. This is the reason which in our opinion demanded the permanent continuance of the organization.

At Philadelphia, if the reports of the industrious pressmen may be accepted, stirring scenes attended the holding of the Congress session. Such concomitants are inevitable in the conduct of a democratic organization. But underlying the outbursts, we fancy we discover a deeper-seated cause. The Congress delegation at Paris was wise in its day and hour. The point of view of 1919, when these delegates were in Paris, is not that of 1920. The world has changed, and with it the Jewish world. These considerations should have, of course, weighed with the persons assembled at Philadelphia last week. That they did not is regrettable, ascribable to the workings of imperfect human nature, but sufficiently explanatory of the pent-up feelings and expressions which there sought and found a vent.

Now that the Congress has concluded its work in respect of the temporary emergency which called forth its existence, we trust the organization will steadily and expertly devote itself to the great tasks confronting all Jewry with singleness of aim. Of the need of this transcendent service we have already spoken by and large. The future will demonstrate whether the organization possesses the qualities required for the solution of the problems which press upon it. We think the Congress has the forces at its command to absolve itself brilliantly of its mission and duty. So we wish it "Godspeed" on the task which, under the capable leadership of Nathan Straus, it has set itself to accomplish.

We learn that the present government of Bavaria has decreed that all foreigners and "persons without nationality" who entered that country since August 1, 1914, must leave it within five days after March 30 of this year. We do not know if this rigorous order was strictly enforced, but suspect that it was utilized as a club in the hands of the present authorities of Bavaria against such elements of the population as have incurred their dislike. Naturally, an order of this kind presses most heavily on non-German Jews, especially those who fled to the new Freistaat from the Eastern war zones. Anti-Jewish legislation, unfortunately, is no novelty for the Bavarians. In days gone by their repressive measures against Jews were degrading and thoroughgoing. Then, however, they aimed at and succeeded in repressing their own Jews. Now they are on the warpath against the foreign Jew.

We Jews are prone to bewail our lack of world organization and to refer in cant terms to the scattered forces of Jewry. As a matter of fact, we are not quite so unorganized as surface conditions indicate. The world union of Orthodox Jews represents the commencement of a strong, solidly-welded alliance which is eventually to embrace all the Jews of the entire universe. The international Zionist organization, of course, is a world union of Jews banded together in practical support of the idealistic aspirations comprised in Zionism. But the Zionists form a partisan, political group, and therefore their alliance cannot possibly comprehend such Jews as decline to uphold the Basle program. The orthodox union, on the other hand, is based on the purely religious, typically Jewish foundation of an alliance of Jews for Judaism. Consequently this organization contains the germ of a universalistic organization of Jews of the right sort within itself. The religious appeal is still, after all, the strongest ground on which to reach all Jews.

Industrious Zionist commentators on passing events are now engaged in gilding refined gold and painting the lily, as it were. In the face of what occurred at San Remo they are busily occupied with the task of drawing all and sundry fine distinctions between the Jewish protectorate in Palestine as it will be and as they would have it. Really, such an appalling task is scarcely worth while. What difference, for example, does it now make whether or not Feisal is satisfied with the settlement arrived at by the Powers? Let Feisal protest against it; let him, for the matter of that, attempt to effectuate his protest by affirmative action of any kind. If the mandate assumed by Great Britain is worth anything, and we assume from our knowledge of Britain's past that it is valuable in the highest degree, a short, sharp and decisive quietus will be administered to any affirmative action taken by Feisal or his associates and supporters. The die is cast. The future of Palestine is now determined. Let the Zionist writers refrain from speculating on and conjuring up future difficulties for Jewish Palestine. Let them, rather, labor assiduously to the end that the new state may begin its career under the best possible auspices. Instead of worrying over Feisal & Company let them unite to make Herbert Samuel's administration a successful one.

MILK AND HONEY.

"We come unto the land whither thou hast sent us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey. . . ." (Num. xiii, 27.)

MILK and Honey? Yes—Milk of Human Kindness and Honey of Divine Truth. Material prosperity? Our chief interest lies not in them. But in spiritual treasures;—for Palestine surely became a mine of these. The land of fabled riches may have attracted the undeveloped spirits of the scarce-emancipated slaves; but in the world's history Palestine occupies the place it does because it was the Promised Land; and, in the vision of many of us, it is still that. Did that rugged soil, that yields but to heroic cultivation, grow corn and wine and oil? Did it feed plentifully man and beast? This we know: that it was a sacred sod, the home of prophets and sages, which grew truth even more than barley and wheat, out of which sprang noble ideals and beautiful dreams and world-redeeming visions. This universal nurse fed the minds of men with thought; it reared a civilisation whose last fulfilment is not yet; its fertility is not to be judged by what its soil produced but by what its soul gave forth. The greatest export country Palestine was in all the world, only the merchandise it sent abroad was not sold for money, and the wares with which it flooded the earth brought to itself but the questionable return of desolation and destruction. Was there ever land that wielded such an influence over mankind, with such fatal results to itself, as this land flowing with the milk of human kindness and the honey of divine truth?

A small country, a bare strip of coastland on the Mediterranean,—but in the story of human progress it looms larger, without any exception, than every other land. It is significant that some of the smallest countries (Greece, for instance) have contributed most to the enrichment of mankind, and among these Palestine—the Land of the Bible—is without doubt the most important. The Orient as a whole is spiritually far more fruitful than the Occident: the East is the source of God's light. In the lands of the rising sun, from the Mediterranean to the Pacific, men have instinctively turned their eyes and hearts Godward; and the outcome of this insistent living with God was that many inspired Teachers arose there who put their thoughts about God and Goodness in illumined writings—Bibles, if you will—that have been as beacons on man's upward and onward way. Whatever progress the West has been able to make along religious lines, the inspiration and instruction therefor was derived from the East. But even in the East, among the many God-intoxicated Teachers, there were no teachers like the prophets of Israel, and among the many eastern bibles there is none like the Palestinian Bible—The Book—God's supreme revelation to mankind. Small the land, but great in influence: with a great and glorious past, and, as we in these stirring days hope, with a still greater and more glorious future.

The riddle of how a land of such small physical dimensions could loom so large in the history of man has occupied many minds. To the believer this is no riddle, but rather a plain hint—as to the real values of life: God scorns the mighty in order to lift up the lowly; in His wisdom He has ever chosen the humble rather than the high to be His mouthpieces and champions. There is enduring strength where the world recognises but weakness and impotence, only the strength is of another than material character. So much for the believer; the scientifically-minded must needs find in dust and dirt their explanation for spirit and soul. These have tried to solve the riddle of Israel being the prophet-people of the world by means of facts relating to climate and soil. It is pointed out that Palestine is a land of striking contrasts: the miniature within a short compass of all climates—here summer and winter reign next door to each other, the snow of Lebanon hovering white above verdant valleys and smiling orchards. Granted; but does the aspiration of the mountains fully explain the aspirations of men, and does the flowering of meadows cause the efflorescence in far greater beauty of souls? We do not deny that climate and environment exercise a certain amount of influence upon the inhabitants; even the rabbis are fond of saying that the very air of Palestine maketh wise: but we deny that there can be truth in the exaggerated emphasis placed upon them as factors in the spiritual development of a people. Have not other lands similar features? Are not other lands similarly marked by striking contrasts? Why have not the mountains and valleys of other lands inspired Bibles and Religions as did those in Palestine? Shall we accept Geography as the last truth in God's self-revelation?

The answer must necessarily lie deeper than in Geography. Not out of the soil but out of the soul did Israel's God-vision spring. Let us not forget that spiritually too Palestine was a land of striking contrasts. There can be no greater contrast than the one that existed between the Prophet and the People of Palestine. Why were not the people, under the influence of the same skies, impressed in the same fashion as were the prophets? The answer must be sought in the depths of the Jewish spirit, which reached its greatest depths in the great men in Israel and not in the masses: He who can read the mysteries of the human heart knows why in this small land among a small people only a small number were fit to serve as Teachers of blundering mankind.

Today? Today we look again with longing eye to this Land of the Promise. Civilisation still writhes in the after-throes of the most iniquitous of all wars, lying like a broken thing among the ruins of a smoldering world. It is evident that mankind must look again Eastward for a new hope and a new faith. Palestine is the new hope of Israel as of mankind. Will the ancient fountains of God flow again with Milk and Honey—with Milk of Human Kindness and Honey of Divine Truth—as of old?

Women Pledge Their Time for "Federation."

That New York women will take a greater interest in philanthropy during the remainder of 1920 than ever before became evident last Friday when, at a luncheon given at the Midday Club, prominent local society women pledged themselves to give up a definite number of hours each week to a house-to-house and block-to-block canvass of the city for the Federation for Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. The Women's Division of the Ways and Means Committee of Federation was organized at the meeting to aid the recently formed Business Men's Council in its drive against drives, in which all-year-round propaganda is to be substituted for drives as a means of securing support. According to the plans for the Women's Division, as announced by Mrs. Sidney C. Borg, chairman, the city will be divided into sixty-four districts, each headed by a district chairman, who will be assisted by committees of volunteer workers. A thorough survey of every neighborhood will be made, and during the next twelve months a worker will visit and endeavor to enroll as a supporter of Federation every Jewish man and woman in the city.

Twenty-eight women's organizations, which are among the 91 social service institutions affiliated with Federation, were represented at the meeting by the following women: Amelia Relief Society, Mrs. S. M. Bondy; Beth-El Sisterhood, Mrs. I. Kubie; Beth Israel Hospital Ladies' Aid, Mrs. B. Gimbel; B'nai Jeshurun Sisterhood, Miss Frances Lillenthal; Central Synagogue Sisterhood, Mrs. M. L. Leffler; Downtown Talmud Torah, Mrs. M. Schorsch; East Side Day Nursery, Mrs. L. Fruchgott; Emanuel Sisterhood for Personal Service, Mrs. Joseph E. Hoffman; Emanuel Sisterhood Summer Home, Mrs. B. M. Guggenheim; Fellowship House, Mrs. Ottenberg; Hebrew Orphan Asylum Ladies' Sewing Society, Mrs. I. N. Spiegelberg; Home for Hebrew Infants, Ladies' Sewing Circle, Mrs. Louis Lew-

J. D. C. Children's Colonies in Poland.

Fifty thousand Jewish children in Poland, whom hunger crippled during the four years of the war, are to be made whole again this summer, according to the plans of the American Joint Distribution Committee, which is to provide outings in the country for that number of children. Throughout Poland hundreds of thousands of Jewish children are victims of a disease which people in Poland call the "English sickness"; this is an advanced form of rickets, which comes as a result of chronic underfeeding and the lack of fundamental bone building elements that should come in a child's food. The feet of the children afflicted by "English sickness" do not grow straight and sturdy to support the little bodies, but remain puny; the bones bend like gristle, and within a short time the little legs, twisted powerless and shapeless, bear little resemblance to human limbs. Often other parts of the body cease to develop. The head grows in size, but remains round and infantile in feature; the skin assumes a putty like color. There is nothing of appeal or beauty in such a child; there is only ugliness and misery. With whole sections of the child population of Poland afflicted by this malady, one question became uppermost in the minds of the relief workers in the field: "What will the next generation of Jews in Poland be, with this heritage of crippled parenthood?"

About ten months ago the Joint Distribution Committee established its first children's colony; this was at Milosna, just a few miles out of Warsaw, on an old farm estate. Rows of little cots were set up in the airy rooms, and twenty-five child cripples, drawn from the cellar homes, the gutters, the disease-ridden tenements and the crowded clinics of Warsaw, were brought there. A few weeks in the sun and air, with plenty of milk and eggs and green plant food, wrought astounding changes. Children who had been unable to attend, who lay helpless, staring stupidly from shrunken eyes, crawled about on the lawns. Children whose stunted legs could not support their bodies, ran about, laughing, playing, wrestling. Twisted, deformed bodies being straightened out, the expressionless faces became child like and colorful; it was nothing short of a miracle. The entire cost of the experiment was about five dollars a month for each child.

Other colonies were opened throughout Poland and all summer long a stream of crippled, bent, little old people went out, to return as happy, growing children! During last summer about 25,000 children were thus cared for with funds sent by American Jews.

In every district throughout Poland the relief conditions organized by the Joint Distribution Committee are arranging for the establishment of colonies for the coming summer; the Joint Distribution Committee allots a fixed sum for every child sent out, and this summer will see the work developed on a scale larger than ever before.

Union of American Hebrew Congregations Planning to Reach Farmers.

An extensive synagogue and school building program, involving an expenditure of half a million dollars, has been embarked upon by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the purpose of which is to afford Jewish families in outlying districts an opportunity for religious practices and education. The venture is one of many activities characterizing the Union's ten-year program of expansion to insure the survival of Judaism in America.

It is estimated by the Union that there are 6,000 families and 12,000 children on farms strangers to Judaism. To afford them opportunity of religious expression and training, schools and synagogues will be erected in various rural communities. In the past an effort has been made to reach Jews in isolated farming districts through traveling rabbis, but it was found that the great weakness of this system was the lack of meeting places and schools.

J. Walter Freiberg, president of the Union, when talking of conditions in rural communities, said:

"Why make good farmers out of Jews if the process makes poor Jews out of farmers. The synagogue in the rural district and the religious school in the rural district represent problems that will tax our utmost ingenuity. But this program of building must be completed in order to keep under the influence of the House of Israel those of us who today are entirely without religious instruction, and opportunity to participate in religious observances."

A correspondence school giving training to 12,000 children was instituted, but it was pointed out that, although much good had resulted from its activities, yet it had not been adequate to cope with the situation. It was further found that the correspondence could not be made to take the place of the synagogue or school.

Rev. G. Bursetown, the first incumbent of the pulpit of the Congregation Sons of Israel Sydney, Nova Scotia, has resigned, to return to his former charge at Fort Worth, Texas.

To Conclude Drive for War Sufferers.

A call to all workers who participated in the Greater New York Non-Sectarian Appeal for Jewish War Sufferers Abroad for a final rally to bring in the remainder of New York's quota has been sounded by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, chairman of the campaign, and Colonel H. A. Guinzburg, chairman of the Administration Committee. The heads of the drive urge that workers exert every effort to secure the completion of the funds before June 15. The pressing demand for relief funds coming continuously from Poland, Roumania, Lithuania, Ukraine and other parts of Eastern Europe has made it imperative to secure New York's quota as quickly as possible, according to Colonel Guinzburg and Judge Rosalsky.

"While New York lags behind, thousands of men, women and little children are perishing of hunger," Judge Rosalsky stated in issuing the call. "While prosperous New Yorkers are trying to decide whether to give $10 or $10,000 or whether to give at all, hundreds of young girls are crying for a small piece of bread; little children clothed in rags, motherless and fatherless, wander about the streets without shelter because every orphanage is overcrowded. Men and women in countless numbers fall victims of typhus, and even the hope for help from America—the only hope in the lives of these people—grows more dim. New York dare not longer delay. We announced our intentions of seeing this campaign through, of not relaxing our efforts until every dollar is raised. We mean to do this, but we want everyone to realize the tremendous importance of raising this money quickly—of delaying no further. Every hour that this campaign is extended means a loss of lives and an increase of suffering which our funds could alleviate. If a little child came knocking at your door and said 'Please give me something to eat, I am hungry,' would you ask her to wait, wait and wait, until she perishes of hunger? Thousands of little children are knocking at America's door! Delay means starvation for them."

Young Israel Synagogue Completes Purchase of Old Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Building.

Young Israel Synagogue last week signed the contract for the purchase of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society Building for the sum of $60,000.00. This building has been occupied by the Society for many years and has become a landmark in Jewish activities. Young Israel Synagogue expects to expend the sum of $50,000.00 to $75,000.00 in reconstructing the building, so that it will contain, besides the Synagogue, a splendidly equipped gymnasium, an auditorium, class rooms, social rooms, shower baths and many other novel features.

It is intended that this building will serve the needs of not only a model Synagogue conducted on strictly orthodox principles; but at the same time prove to be a Y. M. H. A., religious centre and settlement house. The Synagogue will conduct classes for adults in the evening in all Jewish subjects, as well as, classes for Americanization of foreigners, teaching them English, Civics and United States history. The Synagogue will also conduct a Talmud Torah and will establish and maintain junior and senior clubs and provide leaders for the clubs for young men and women, as well as children. No money or effort will be spared to make this Synagogue not only a place of worship; but a place of study and assembly as well.

The Synagogue intends to launch a campaign for $300,000 in the early fall for the required re-building and maintenance of its new home.

Zionists to Send a Missionary.
Mr. Israel Cohen has been entrusted by the Executive of the Zionist Organization with an important mission—the first of its kind in the history of the movement—to the Jewish communities in Australia, India, and the Far East. Its purpose is to explain the significance of the Peace Conference's decision concerning Palestine, to extend and strengthen the ramifications of the Zionist movement, and to raise funds for the furtherance of Zionist projects in Palestine. Mr. Cohen left England last Sunday for a few weeks' visit to Palestine, in order to obtain first-hand information of the country's developments and needs, and he will then proceed from Port Said to Fremantle (Australia), where his mission proper will begin. The territories to be included in his tour are Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan, the Straits Settlements, Java and India. Mr. Israel Cohen has been furnished with credentials from the Foreign Office and Colonial Office, and with special messages from the Zionist leaders, Dr. Weizmann and Mr. N. Sokolow, as well as from Lord Rothschild, Lord Robert Cecil, Dr. Nordau and others. His tour is expected to occupy him until about the end of the year.

Mt. Nebo Temple Notes.

The graduation and closing exercises of the Hebrew religious schools were held on Sunday morning in the temple. Historical essays were read by the children, also Hebrew readings and translations. Addresses were delivered by Rabbi Eiseman, Chairman David E. Goldfarb and President Edward R. Cohen. Gold and silver medals were presented to pupils of all classes and certificates of merit for proficiency in work. Gold pieces were given to six children for good work in Hebrew studies. An exhibition of kindergarten work was also given by the class. The past year was the largest and most successful year in the Mt. Nebo Religious School, sixteen classes, with an average attendance of between 400 and 450 children. Plans are being made to enlarge the facilities for the important branch of congregational work.

The closing meeting of the Mt. Nebo Sisterhood was held on Monday afternoon in the Temple, with Mrs. Blanche Goldfarb presiding. A review of the year's work was given, revealing a most successful year's work.

Sloux Lodge No. 357, K. of P., will hold a memorial service in connection with the regular Sabbath eve services on Friday evening, June 18, in the temple. Rabbi Aaron Eiseman will deliver the sermon.

Attorney William J. Klein, who died suddenly on May 26 at his home on Washington avenue, Avondale, Ohio, was at one time very prominent in civic affairs. He served in the State Legislature, on the Board of Education and in the City Council. He was also for a time president of the Union Board of High Schools and prominent in the Knights of Pythias, being colonel of the Third Regiment, Uniform Rank.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

THE CONSECRATION.

Dear Children:
The time came for Aaron and his sons to be consecrated, in the presence of all Israel, for the priesthood for all generations. And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying, "Take Aaron and his sons with him, and the garments, and the anointing oil, and the bullock for the sin-offering, and the basket of unleavened bread, and all the congregation shall thou assemble together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation." Rashi says, "The commandments in this section were given seven days before the tabernacle was reared up, but the Torah does not always follow the chronological order." Take Aaron, take him with kind words and draw him to the service. And the bullock for the sin-offering, etc., these were already detailed in the commandments concerning the consecration in the 27th chapter of Exodus, but now, on the first day of consecration he repeated it to him in order to expedite its fulfillment. "Assemble together at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation." This is one of the occasions when a small space accommodated a large gathering. And Moses said unto the congregation, "This is the thing which the Lord hath commanded to do." These things that ye see me do, in your presence, the Holy One, blessed be He, has commanded me to do, and do not think that I am doing it for my honor or for my brother's honor. "And he put on him the breast plate, and he put in the breast-plate the Urin and the Thummim." The Urin was the writing of the ineffable name. "And he placed upon the mitre, toward the front thereof, the golden plate." The laces of blue that were fastened in the plate be placed upon the mitre, thus the plate was suspended from the mitre. And he poured of the anointing oil upon Aaron's head. He first poured it upon his head and then with his finger he put thereof between his eyes. And Moses took the blood and put it upon the horns of the altar round about with his finger and purified the altar. He thus divested it of the profane and invested it with holiness. And sanctified it through this service, to make henceforth atonement upon it. And he took all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the midriff of the liver, and also a little of the liver with it, and the two kidneys and their fat, and Moses burnt them upon the altar. And he brought near the other ram, the ram of consecration. It is called "miluim," which is synonymous of the word "shelamine" and signifies "perfection," because they perfect the priests for their priesthood. And out of the basket of unleavened bread that was before the Lord, he took one unleavened cake, and one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer, that was well sodden, and a great deal of oil was placed therein in proportion to the cakes and wafers. Thus it is explained in the Talmud Menachoth. And he put them on the fat and upon the right shoulder. And he placed the whole upon the hands of Aaron, and upon the hands of his sons, and made with them a waving before the Lord. And Moses then took these things from off their hands, and burnt them on the altar upon the burnt offering. Moses, who was robed in white, performed the service the entire seven days of consecration. As the Sifra comments thereon, the entire seven days of consecration Moses officiated as High Priest, he killed the sacrificial offering, he poured out its blood upon the bottom of the altar, he made the atonement. To what may it be compared to a princess who was married when she was very young, and it was stipulated that the mother should serve as a hostess until the daughter would learn. Thus it was with Aaron. Previously he was a Levite, as it is said, "Is there not Aaron, thy brother, the Levite? When he was chosen to be a High Priest, the Holy One, blessed be He, said to Moses, "Do thou serve me until Aaron, thy brother, will learn." Until Aaron learned Moses killed the sacrifice and Aaron looked on. He sprinkled the blood upon the altar and Aaron looked on. He sprinkled some of the oil and the blood upon the garments of the priests and Aaron looked on. He purified the altar and Aaron looked on. He poured the blood on the bottom of the altar and Aaron looked on. He sanctified it for the atonement and Aaron looked on. Moses burned the shoulder upon the burnt-offering, after sacrificing the burnt-offering. This is the only occasion when the shoulder of the peace-offering was sacrificed. As they have done this day, so hath the Lord commanded to do farther, to make an atonement for you. Both the Lord commanded to do—the entire seven days—and our rabbins of blessed memory have expounded it as meaning the sacrifice of the heifer. To make an atonement refers to the service of the Day of Atonement, and to teach us that the High Priest is required to separate himself from all worldliness seven days before the Day of Atonement, as also the priest who burns the heifer. "And at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation shall ye abide day and night seven days, and keep the charge of the Lord, that ye die not, for so have I been commanded." Hence, we infer that if they do not do so they incur the penalty of death. And Aaron and his sons did all the things which the Lord had commanded by the hand of Moses. Thus the Torah lauds them for not deviating from the command neither to the right nor to the left, although they did not hear it from the Holy One, blessed be He, but only from Moses, yet they rejoiced as much to receive the command through Moses, as if they would have heard it from the Holy One, blessed be He.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

The Jewish Art Theatre has completed negotiations with John Wenger, the brilliant scenic artist, commissioning the latter to design scenes and decorations for two of the plays to be produced early in the fall. Wenger made a notable success at the Rialto and Rivoli theatres and later at the Capitol.

The revival of the famous musical comedy, "Florodora," at the capacious Century Theatre, with its beautiful music, its sparkling comedy scenes, its dazzling sextette, and its all star cast, including Eleanor Painter, George Hassell, Christie MacDonald and John Murray, is the reigning musical and theatrical sensation of the year. The Messrs. Shubert's elaborate presentation of the piece has shown that there is a considerable body of "Florodora fans" not only in New York City but over the country as well. One of the surprises of the present run has been the large number of theatre parties from cities as far away as Chicago, Washington and Pittsburgh. Members of such parties evidently arranged to make their annual visits to New York in groups in order to see "Florodora." The Messrs. Shubert were quick to provide special service for such parties and their comfort is seen to by a special bureau in the Century Theatre which also cares for the visits of delegates from various societies and social organizations.

The critics have been a unit in declaring that the revival "Florodora" far surpasses the original production in every respect. Eleanor Painter, who is the Dolores, has made a pronounced hit. George Hassell, who is one of the most popular comedians in the country, is hailed by the critics as far funnier than Willie Edouin, the creator of the role of Tweedlepunch twenty years ago. Christie MacDonald, the Lady Hollywood, is one of the best known prima donnas on the light opera stage. To add the crowning touch of novelty the Messrs. Shubert have provided three sextette, the modern sextette, a sextette gowned as was the sextette of 1900, and the sextette of 1920—the latter a group of children.

A young man whose rise to the top of the vaudeville ladder is little less marvelous than the spirits' ability to answer ouija board calls at all hours of the day and night is to invade New York with two arms-full of personality and a leaping countenance of magnetism in August. That young man is Jack Osterman. Space doesn't permit to tell all about Jack. Suffice to say that he is clever enough to provide himself with novel and original material, both in music and dialogue, and that he is the solo representative of Personality in America.

New York will get the first glimpse of Jack on August 23d, at Keith's Royal. Those who know say he will stay in New York six months. Those who saw him at the Palace in Chicago and the Orpheum Circuit, when his fifteen minute act held the stage thirty-four minutes, predict a year in New York.

Younger than any of them, but perhaps much faster, he has worked to the top achievement's pinnacle through merit. And he has always worked hard. For years he hid on the outskirts of vaudeville stardom; and in that school he received the grammar education of the vaudeville college.

Young Osterman is the talented son of Kathryn Osterman and J. J. Rosenthal of the Wood's Theatre in Chicago. Mr. Rosenthal will be remembered by many New Yorkers as the former manager of the Bronx Opera House. His mother was one of the beauties of a day not so long ago when Broadhurst propelled his charming farces into the open through the medium of young Osterman's parents.

Mario Salvini has incorporated the National Opera Company with a capitalization of $250,000, to give the following operas: "Traviata," "Trovatore," "Rigoletto," "Carmen," "Faust," "Merry Wives of Windsor," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Hansel and Gretel," "Pagliacci" and other works. Besides these operas those of promising American composers will be included.

"The Passion Flower," from the Spanish of Jacinto Benavente, a new dramatist to the American stage, but the foremost playwright of Spain, will be acted at the Bronx Opera House next week by Nance O'Neil and the remarkable supporting cast which made this play one of the sensations of the dramatic season when it was first produced at the Greenwich Village Theatre and subsequently at the Belmont Theatre by Richard G. Herndon. Not within the memory of the oldest critic or playgoer has more powerful acting been seen than that contributed by Miss O'Neil, who, by common consent, is one of the greatest dramatic actresses speaking the English language.

This will be the last appearance of the company in this city until after the holidays, when it returns from a tour across the continent.

Messrs. Shubert will present a new romantic comedy drama entitled "The Lights of Duxbury," with a brilliant cast at the Bronx Opera House week beginning June 21.

Another Miss Ranson Graduates From Law School.

At the commencement exercises of the New York University on Wednesday, June 9, the degree of Bachelor of Law was conferred upon Miss A. Ruth Ranson, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Ranson, and sister of Rabbi Marius Ranson of Tremont Temple, New York City. This is the second degree of LL. B. which has been conferred on the girls of the Ranson family.

Miss Ruth Ranson completed her first year of law work at the Cincinnati Law School. She then came to this city and during the war temporarily discontinued her law studies to enter the industrial world. For the past year she has been filling the position of assistant secretary to Mr. Leo S. Bing of Bing & Bing, one of the most prominent real estate firms of New York city, and at the same time attending night law school.

Miss Ranson intends to take her bar examination in October with her sister, Miss Naomi Ranson, a member of the Ohio bar, who was graduated from the Cincinnati Law School at the head of her class and was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1917 with an average higher than that of any other applicant in the State.

Free Bazaar to be Given by the Sisterhood of Young Israel Synagogue.

The Sisterhood of Young Israel Synagogue, composed of more than two hundred young men and women, has made every arrangement for a monster bazaar to be held Saturday evening, June 12th, Sunday and Monday afternoons and evenings, June 13th and 14th, at the National Hebrew School, 206 East Broadway. Thousands of dollars worth of merchandise of every description has already been received and a great deal more is anticipated. Besides the features of the bazaar, a program of entertainment has been arranged, restaurant service, dancing, etc.

Every dollar realized at this bazaar will be applied to the Building Fund, towards the reconstruction of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society Building, just purchased by the Synagogue. The public is invited to attend. No admission will be charged.

Official Incitation to Pogroms Under Pretense of Defending Jews. Warsaw (By I. J. P. B.).—The Jewish deputies of the Polish Parliament presented their Premier with a memorandum in which they charged the government with inciting to pogroms under the mask of counteracting the anti-Semitic activity. This memorandum is of great historical significance, because it exposes in unmistakable terms the treacherous and deceitful conduct of the present Polish military regime. Here is a complete translation of it: "The ever rising wave of excesses committed by military men upon Jews demands the most energetic safety measures on the part of the government. "Officials of the War Department adopt various means against these outrages. Simultaneously, however, with their orders to stop the lawlessness against Jews they come out with statements which annul completely the possible influence of these protective measures. To this type belong not only the famous communication of the press division of the War Department, which categorically denied the attacks of soldiers upon Jews and which referred to the complaints of the victims as acts of agents provocateurs, but also to the personal letter of the Minister to the Third Division of the War Department. While condemning the excesses, the Minister adds in that letter that some mythical part of Jewry will exploit them to the injury of Poland.

"Naturally, a declaration of this sort by the Minister himself must rouse a feeling of hatred for the Jews and a desire for revenge among the military men, for no one will seek to determine just what part of Jewry the Minister refers to and to what part, let us say, a particular Jew who passes some soldier on the street belongs. The latter will gladly use the declaration to mask the torturing of defenseless people. We, therefore, consider it necessary to remark that if a thing is fought and if something is condemned, that should be done without any modifications. Circulars which may be understood to mean that it is not convenient to beat the Jews at this time, altho, according to their conduct they deserve such treatment, we consider to be not only useless but, on the contrary, of a kind that would tend to arouse the feeling of hatred against the Jewish population even more.

Such circulars lead to attacks of the kind that we have witnessed at the Best Railway Station on the 1st of May. We must protest against similar official declarations, which are extraordinary harmful and which insult our honor without cause.

British Women Giving Their Time for Palestine Cause.

Giving their jewels to the Palestine Restoration Fund, being raised in Great Britain, for the upholding of the Jewish National Homeland, prominent Jewish women of England, led by Mrs. Herbert Samuel, wife of a former member of the Asquith Cabinet, are organizing the movement throughout England, according to a report received by the Zionist Organization of America.

The Rt. Hon. Herbert Samuel, former Postmaster General and Secretary of State for Home Affairs, has been mentioned as the first High Commissioner to Palestine, when the British supplant the present military administration with a civil one. He is an ardent supporter of the Zionist cause and his wife is equally active in the movement.

The movement to give their jewels toward the restoration of Palestine is not limited to England, for according to another report received by the Zionist Organization, the Jewish women of Poland, Galicia and Lithuania, are donating their jewels liberally for the restoration fund.

If you are in need of a suburban home in New Rochelle or vicinity, you would do well to consult Mr. Leslie P. Harris, of 8 North Avenue, who can secure a home for you within your financial limitations. Mr. Harris also transacts a general real estate business, including the renting of summer cottages, and, although the season is a trifle late, he is still in a position to secure some choice bargains at moderate rentals.

To Standardize Charitable Contributions.

Announcement of the appointment of a committee to standardize and equalize giving to philanthropic organizations has been made by Mr. Solomon Lowenstein, executive director of Federation of the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. This committee has as its goal the distribution of the burden of caring for the city's sick and needy, in the ninety-one institutions that are affiliated with Federation, by setting a quota for each Jew in New York City—so that every one who is not himself dependent on philanthropy may support it, according to his means. In announcing the appointment of the committee, Mr. Lowenstein stated that, at present, the bulk of the contributions to philanthropy are made by a small group of men and women, and were not fairly representative of the Jewish population of this city.

More than one hundred thousand names were alphabetized and classified during the last few days at the offices of the Federation, in preparation for the work of this committee, which will work in conjunction with the recently organized Business Men's Council of Federation.

"Charity should be the business of the many and not of the few," Mr. Lowenstein said in announcing the committee's organization. "The burden of caring for the sick and needy is a huge one and it should be shared by all men and women according to their own ability. Our Business Men's Council, and its associated Women's Council aims to make every man and woman in the city a member of Federation and a supporter of the ninety-one institutions affiliated with Federation. The Equalization Committee is the first step in this direction."

Advance Guard to Zionist Convention Sailing.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis, of the Supreme Court, honorary president of the Zionist Organization of America; Judge Julian W. Mack, of the U. S. Circuit Court, president of the same organization; Nathan Straus, Mrs. Mary Fels, Jacob de Haas, Zionist executive secretary; Louis Lipsky, organization secretary; Prof. Felix Frankfurter, Capt. Abraham Tulin and David Rosenbloom will sail on the Lapland to-morrow to attend the International Zionist Conference which convenes in London July 4th. They are the advance guard of an American delegation of 39 elected. The balance of the party will sail on the S. S. Finland, next Saturday.

The International Zionist Conference, which will be attended by large delegations from every country in Europe, as well as delegations from Palestine, Argentina, Australia, Canada and New Zealand, is the first world Zionist conference to be held in six years.

Sailing with the delegation are Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Mrs. Julian W. Mack and Mrs. Nathan Straus, who will go with her husband to Palestine in order to inspect their many philanthropies in Jerusalem, and with an eye to establishing such other as they may find necessary to aid the Zionist Organization in its reconstruction plans.

Those in need of a first class chiroprapist are referred to Dr. J. M. Brown, who is located at 14 South Fourth Avenue, Mount Vernon, above the National Drug Store. Dr. Brown is not alone a skillful operator but is particularly clever in diagnosing foot ailments, and thereby applying the proper remedy and treatment without loss of time and suffering on the part of the patient. Prior to locating in Mount Vernon he practised in Brooklyn and for fourteen months was with the Orthopedic Branch of the Medical Department of the U. S. Army, and was located at Camp Upton, L. I.

Rabbi Adolph Steiner has presented his resignation to Congregation Beth Israel at Lima, Ohio, where he has been officiating for two years.

SUMMER CARE OF HEATING PLANTS

All steam or hot water plants should have the water removed, which was in use during the Winter Season, and the system refilled with fresh water.
 The smoke pipe should be taken down and thoroughly cleaned and stored away in a dry place until fall.
 Great care should be taken to remove all soot and scale from the interior of the boiler; the fires should be cleaned and sprayed with kerosene to prevent rust.
 The outside of the boiler should be painted with heat-proof black enamel made for this purpose. Better have us attend to this for you soon.

Protest Against Deputy Diamond. Warsaw, Poland (By I. J. P. B.). Deputy of the Polish Parliament Diamond again betrayed his Jewish constituency by presenting a report to the Mission of the International Socialist Party which is now in Poland to investigate the pogroms. In this report Dr. Diamond naively denies that any pogroms have been made upon the Jews and declares that it is impossible to solve the Jewish problem in Poland so long as the Jews form a large number of the population. Further in his report he contends that it would be wise to organize the emigration of the Jews from the country. Throughout this document is distinctive of the spirit of the Polish anti-Semitic authorities. A sharp protest was called forth by this latest treacherous stab in the back from the Jewish laboring masses of Lemberg who sent him to Parliament to represent them.

The protest meeting against Diamond was held in Lemberg on April 20 and was attended by a huge crowd of outraged and angry Jewish citizens. A resolution was unanimously adopted demanding the immediate resignation of Dr. Diamond.

For a considerable time there has been very bitter feeling against Dr. Diamond in the Jewish Socialist circles. It is he who is said to have influenced the Morgenthau Commission against the Jews. Once at a meeting in Cracow this same deputy frankly stated that it was by mere accident that he was born a Jew. In thoughts and feelings, however, he considered himself a Pole.

Who is this Deputy Diamond? His career is quite interesting. In his youthful days, as a poor student, he was active in Zionist circles. Later, he married one of his pupils, the only daughter of a Jewish millionaire of Lemberg. Soon afterwards he withdrew from the Zionist ranks and declared himself to be a class-conscious Socialist. Then he was elected by the Jewish Socialists and workers of Lemberg as their deputy in the Austrian Parliament.

Kehillah Plans to Renew Activities. Owing to war conditions, most of the activities of the Kehillah have been held in suspense for the past two years, and it is now proposed by those in authority to renew them. As a result of two special conferences, held on April 25th and May 16th, a report was adopted which is now being submitted to the various Jewish organizations in New York City asking their opinion upon it. It is planned to call a Kehillah convention in the fall.

Dr. Jung in America.

Rabbi Dr. M. Jung, head of the London (Eng.) Federation of Orthodox Synagogues, is in America in response to an invitation of the Knesseth Israel Congregation of Cleveland, O., to be present at the installation of his son, Rabbi Dr. Leo Jung, as Rabbi of the United Hungarian Congregations, which took place on June 6. Dr. Jung, who was a worshipper at the Ohab Zedek Synagogue, this city, on May 29, will return in about two weeks' time.

A Mt. Clemens Hotel Which Welcomes Jews.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., has a world-wide reputation for the curative powers of its mineral springs, but many of our coreligionists have refrained from going there, largely on account of the anti-Semitic feeling so openly displayed by the larger and better hotels, and not caring to put up at the small boarding houses. But this condition is now a thing of the past, for the Riverside Hotel (formerly the Park Annex), one of the largest and finest hotels in Mt. Clemens, has recently passed into new hands, who are endeavoring to make this hostelry a first class Jewish hotel, on the order of the largest and finest of resort hotels, and are providing a strictly kosher cuisine.

This is something that has long been greatly needed in Mt. Clemens. The bath house is under the same roof and is supplied with mineral water from the Original Spring. It is a well known fact in Mt. Clemens that this well pumps the best water known in that part of the country. The Riverside Hotel has over one hundred rooms, also large dining room, breakfast room, tea room, writing rooms, card rooms, gymnasium, lounging rooms, etc., and the new owners have expended an unusually large sum to make the hotel as attractive as money can make it.

The Twin Mountain House.

Nestled snugly between two mountain peaks is the Twin Mountain House, Elka Park, near Tannersville, N. Y., a house that for the first time is under Jewish ownership and management. The significance of this fact is that heretofore the Twin Mountain House was not open to our coreligionists. The section in and around Elka Park heretofore has been exclusive, but now that it is accessible to our people a new interest is manifest in this part of the Catskills. The Twin Mountain House is a comfortable and delightful establishment, having all improvements and amusement facilities within the building or on the spacious grounds surrounding it.

The bowling alleys, the dining room, the parlors are all attractive places of the best construction, while the bedrooms are noted for their coziness and exposure to the bracing breezes from the mountain sides. The new owners, Belluk & Leiterman, assure guests the best service, entertainment and excellent food, strictly kosher, supplied from their own farm. The house accommodates 250 persons. A complete establishment within itself for the happiness of its guests, the Twin Mountain House is convenient to all other centers of amusement and traffic in this region.

New American Hotel Annex.

The most notable improvement in Tannersville, N. Y., for this season, is the new annex to the American Hotel, operated for fourteen years by Mr. Marshall. The new annex consists of twenty-six rooms, superbly furnished, arranged in suites, with baths connecting every room. Hot and cold running water in each room and all utilities and conveniences of the better class hotels. It is a recognition of the growing popularity of the American Hotel and it is certain that this new expenditure will prove a profitable investment and a great boon to the guests of this house.
